The PREFACE.

THE great and mysterious Truth of the Trinity of Persons in one God, which is the Foundation of our Christian Faith, and which tho not contrary to our Reason, is so much above it, that we could never have had a thought of it, if God had not reveal'd it to us in his Word; is not a mere speculative Notion, but a Truth, in which the Faith and Practice of a Christian is concern'd; insomuch as it is necessary, that every one who is sav'd, should believe that there are three Persons, one and the same Infinite, Eternal God, blessed for evermore. For how can we believe that God hath chosen any of Mankind, to make them unchangeably and for ever happy; that the same God hath redeemed, and doth sanctify these his Elect, if we do not believe that this one and the same God is three Persons, to whom these Works, so necessary to our Salvation, are in the Holy Scriptures distinctly attributed? How can we trust in the God of all Grace, and his infinite Mercies, and adore and love him for that great, and indeed unspeakable Love, in sending his only begotten Son to die for us? And how can we act Faith on our Blessed Redeemer, as having voluntarily come into the World, to accompliſh the Work which his Father sent him to do, unless we have distinct Thoughts of the Person of the Father sending, as distinct from the Person of the Son sent by him? And these Persons are equally God; for any one inferiour could no more have redeemed us, than he could have elected or created us: But they are not so many several Gods, therefore they are one and the same God, equal in all Perfections and Glory. The Author hath discours'd of the Work of God the Father, in the Second Volume of his Works; and of the Work of God the Son in the Third, with great Clearness of Light from the Scripture, and consequently with as great a Strength of Evidence to every Spiritual Mind. In the Discourses of this Fifth Volume, he as clearly and evidently describes in all its Glory, the Work peculiar to the Spirit, in healing and restoring our depraved, wretched Natures, by making them alive unto God, and sanctifying them in Likeness to him. It is a Work which demonstrates him to be True God, as well as the Father and Son are; for Life is that which God only can give, and a creating Power is as necessary to produce a Spiritual as a Natural Life. Nay of the two it is more difficult (tho nothing is so to God) to raise a dead Soul than a dead Body. It is also as much a Work of God, to make us Partakers of a Divine Nature (2 Pet. 1. 4.) as it was to make Adam at first after his own Image. That none may think these Truths to be merely Niceties or abstruse Controversies, and an Enquiry into them needless; the Author hath made, through all the Discourses, proper and pertinent uses naturally flowing from the Doctrines: which may evince, that as all the Truths of the Gospel have in their own Nature, a Fitness and a proper Tendency to strengthen our Faith, and to improve our Holiness, and to make us not only wiser but better; so God hath revealed them as needful to be known by us for these Purposes. And as the Gospel is peculiarly suted to raise and tune our Hearts to thankful Strains, and chearful Praises of our Lord Jesus Christ (and in honouring him we honour the Father also) so this Doctrine of the Work of the Holy Spirit in our Salvation, which is pure Gospel too, is adapted to excite us to give that Glory to him which is due; and in honouring him we honour both the Father and the Son. I have given on the other side of this Leaf, a Catalogue of the MSS. in this Volume, that the Reader may be satisfied that he hath all which I promis'd in the Proposals; and also may see that I present him with several other Discourses, which I did not offer in them.

I am

Thine entirely in the Service of the Gospel,

THO. GOODWIN.

A CATALOGUE of the Manuscripts, in the Discourse of the Work of the Holy Spirit in our Salvation.

A Catalogue directing in what part of the Volume the several MSS. are printed.

1. A General and Brief Scheme, of the whole Work committed to the Holy Spirit, in bringing us to Salvation; in an Enumeration of all Particulars: And what is the Glory due to Him for it.	Part I. Book I. chap. 1. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.
2. Of the Gift of the Holy Ghost to us: How he is at first given to the Elect when called, and what is his Indwelling within us for ever.	Ibid. ch. 8, 9, 10.
3. How the Work of Regeneration, or the first Application of Salvation to us, is in a peculiar manner attributed to the Holy Ghost.	Ibid. ch. 7.
4. That there are two States and Conditions God carries the Elect through: 1. The State of Nature. 2. The State of Grace. And how the New Birth is the Passage between these two States; from which the Necessity of Regeneration is demonstrated.	Ibid. Book II. ch. 1, 2, 3.
5. That God, for Holy and Glorious Ends, permits the Generality of his Elect, that live to riper Years, to abide some time in that Estate of Nature, and then renews and turns them.	Ibid. ch. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.
6. The Necessity of Regeneration demonstrated, by Arguments drawn from the Nature of Reconciliation with God. That all which God, and Christ have done towards their Reconciliation to us, will not benefit us unless we be reconciled to God. This Work of Regeneration set forth under the Notion of Reconciliation to God, and some Differences of a Counterfeit Work and a Saving Work discover'd thereby; with an Exhortation to be reconciled to God.	Ibid. Book III. throughout.
7. The Necessity of the new Birth, and some brief Explication of the Nature of the Thing begotten in it: as the Similitude of begetting again imports.	Ibid. Book IV. ch. 1.
8. The Eminency of Mercy and Grace discover'd in this Work, comparatively with other Works wrought in us.	Ibid. Book IX. ch. 1, 2, 3.
9. The Divine Power put forth by God, in a Saving Work of Regeneration.	Ibid. chap. 4, 5,
10. Of the new Creature, or the Thing begotten in us by the Spirit; that beside his Indwelling in us, and his Acting of our Spirits, there are permanent or abiding Principles inwrought in the Soul; that is, Spiritual Habiliments, or Dispositions so to act.	Ibid. Book V. ch. 1, 2.
11. The Nature or kind of the Thing begotten in us, as it is set forth under the Notion of Spirit; That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit, Joh. 3. 6.	Ibid. Book IV. ch. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.
12. That this new Creature is a Change of the Heart.	Ibid Book V. ch. 4.
13. That it is a different and higher Principle than natural Conscience, in its greatest Elevation of Light.	Ibid. Book VI. throughout.
14. That this new Creature is peculiar only to the Elect, and is a thing specifically different from the Common Work of the Spirit in Temporaries.	Ibid. Book VI. chap. 13. and Book VII. throughout.
15. That the Virtual Cause of Regeneration, is the Resurrection of Jesus Christ.	Ibid. Book IX. ch. 6.
16. Of the three Parts of Regeneration, and the New Creature. 1. Humiliation for Sin, and the Necessity thereof. 2. Faith in Christ for Justification. 3. Turning from Sin unto God.	Ibid. Book VIII. throughout.
17. The nature and way of Conversion, illustrated from an Instance of what it was in Job's Time, Job. 33. and in the Instance of Paul's Conversion.	Ibid. ch. 3.
18. Of one eminent Disposition of a Man born again, which is to desire and endeavour to convert others to God.	Ibid. Book X. ch. 7.
19. Of the distinguishing Character of this new Creature, or of a Man born again; which is for a Man to make God his chiefest Good, and God's Glory his utmost End.	Ibid. ch. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

THE LIFE OF Dr. Thomas Goodwin;

Compos'd out of his own Papers and Memoirs.

THOMAS GOODWIN, the eldeſt Son of Richard and Catherine Goodwin (the Name of whoſe Family was Collingwood) was born Octob. 5. 1600. at Rolſeby, a little Village in Norfolk. He was brought up religiouſly by his Parents, and they devoting him to the Miniſtry of the Goſpel, gave him alſo a Learned Education. After ſome time ſpent in School, having got the Knowledg of the Latin and Greek Tongues, he was ſent to Cambridge, Aug. 25. 1613. and plac'd in Chriſt's College, under the Tuition and Inſtruction of Mr. William Power, one of the Fellows there. He continued about ſix Years in that College, which flouriſhed in a Fulneſs of all Exerciſes of Learning, and in the Number of Scholars; there being two hundred of them: but A. D. 1419. he left it, and removed to Katherine-Hall; the State of which ſeem'd ſo contemptible to him, there being no more than 16 Scholars, and few Acts or Exerciſes of Learning had been perform'd for a long time, that tho he was choſen Fellow and alſo Lecturer for the Year 1620, yet he had ſome thoughts of leaving it again. He had by an unwearied Induſtry in his Studies, ſo much improv'd thoſe natural Abilities which God had given him, that tho ſo very young, he had gain'd a great Eſteem in the Univerſity. But all this time he walked in the Vanity of his Mind; and ambitious Deſigns and Hopes entirely poſſeſſing him, all his Aim was to get Applauſe, to raiſe his Reputation, and in any manner to advance himſelf by Preferments. But God who had deſtin'd him to higher Ends, than what he had projected in his own thoughts, was graciouſly pleaſed to change his Heart, and to turn the Courſe of his Life to his own Service and Glory. But as the Account of the Work of the Holy Spirit on his Soul, will be moſt acceptable as related by himſelf, I ſhall preſent it in his own Words.

'Tho by the courſe of Nature in my firſt Birth, I was not like to live, being born 'before my time, and therefore of a weak Conſtitution; yet God ſo kept and ſtrengthe-'ned me, that he preſerved me (as David ſays) when I hung upon my Mother's Breaſts; 'as one in whom he meant to manifeſt his Grace, in the miraculous Converſion of my 'Soul unto himſelf. He did often ſtir up in me in my childiſh Years the ſparks of Con-'ſcience, to keep me from groſs Sins, and to ſet me upon performing common Duties. 'I began to have ſome ſlighter Workings of the Spirit of God, from the time I was ſix 'Years old; I could weep for my Sins, whenever I did ſet my ſelf to think of them, and 'had Flaſhes of Joy upon thoughts of the Things of God. I was affected with good 'Motions and Affections of Love to God and Chriſt, for their Love revealed to Man, 'and with Grief for Sin as diſpleaſing them. This ſhewed how far Goodneſs of Nature 'might go, as well in my ſelf as others, to whom yet true ſanctifying Grace never comes. 'But this I thought was Grace; for I reaſon'd within my ſelf it was not by Nature. I 'receiv'd the Sacrament at Eaſter, when I was fourteen Years old, and for that prepa-'red my ſelf as I was able. I ſet my ſelf to examine whether I had Grace or not; and 'by all the Signs in Urſin's Catechiſm, which was in uſe among the Puritans in the Col-'lege, I found them all, as I thought, in me. The Love of God to ſuch a Sinner, and 'Chriſt's dying for me did greatly affect me; and at that firſt Sacrament I received, with 'what inward Joy and Comfort did I ſing with the reſt, the 103*d* Pſalm, which was uſu-

'ally ſung during the Adminiſtration! After having receiv'd it, I felt my Heart chear-
'ed after a wonderful manner, thinking my ſelf ſure of Heaven, and judging all theſe
'Workings to be infallible Tokens of God's Love to me, and of Grace in me: All this
'while not conſidering, that theſe were but more ſtrong Fits of Nature's working.
'God hereby made way to advance the Power of his Grace the more in me, by ſhewing
'me how far I might go, and yet deceive my ſelf, and making me know that Grace is a 'thing ſurpaſſing the Power of Nature; and therefore he ſuffer'd me to fall away, not
'from theſe good Motions, for I could raiſe them when I would, but from the Practice 'of them; inſomuch as then my Heart began to ſuſpect them as counterfeit.

'I made a great Preparation for the next enſuing Sacrament at Whitſontide, and in 'the mean time I went to hear Mr. Sibbs (afterward Dr. Sibbs) then Lecturer at Trinity- 'Church to the Town of Cambridge, whoſe Lecture the Puritans frequented. I alſo read
'Calvin's Inſtitutions, and O how ſweet was the reading of ſome Parts of that Book to 'me! How pleaſing was the Delivery of Truths in a ſolid manner then to me? Before 'the Sacrament was adminiſtred, I look'd about upon the Holy Men in Chriſt's-College, 'where I was bred; and how affected was I, that I ſhould go to Heaven with them! I 'particularly remember Mr. Bently, a Fellow of that College (who was a dear Child of 'God, and ſo died) and I then look'd on him with Joy, as one with whom I ſhould live
'for ever in Heaven.

'When I was in my Place in the Chappel, ready to receive the Sacrament, being lit'tle of Stature, the leaſt in the whole Univerſity then, and for divers Years; it fell 'out that my Tutor Mr. Power ſeeing me, ſent to me that I ſhould not receive it, but 'go out before all the College, which I did. This ſo much dampt me, as I greatly pi'tied my ſelf, but chiefly for this, that my Soul which was full of Expectation from this 'Sacrament, was ſo unexpectedly diſappointed of the Opportunity. For I had long 'before verily thought, that if I received that Sacrament, I ſhould be ſo confirm'd, 'that I ſhould never fall away. But after this Diſappointment I left off praying, for 'being diſcouraged, I knew not how to go to God: I deſiſted from going to hear Dr.
'Sibbs any more, I no more ſtudied ſound Divinity, but gave my ſelf to ſuch Studies
'as ſhould inable me to preach after the Mode, then of high applauſe in the Univerſity,
'which Dr. Senhouſe brought up, and was applauded above all by the Scholars.

'It now fell out that Arminianiſm was ſet afoot in Holland, and the reſt of thoſe Pro'vinces, and it continued hotteſt at that very time when I was thus wrought upon. I
'perceiv'd by their Doctrine, which I underſtood being inquiſitive, that they acknow'ledged a Work of the Spirit of God to begin with Men, by moving and ſtirring the 'Soul; but Freewill then from its Freedom carried it, tho aſſiſted by thoſe Aids and 'Helps. And this Work of the Spirit they called Grace, ſufficient in the firſt begin'nings of it, exciting, moving and helping the Will of Man, to turn to God, and giv'ing him Power to turn, when being thus helped he would ſet himſelf to do it: but 'withal they affirm'd, that tho Men are thus converted, yet by the Freedom of the 'ſame Will they may, and do, often in time fall away totally; and then upon another
'fit through the Liberty of the Will, again aſſiſted with the like former Helps, they re'turn again to Repentance. Furthermore I am yet to tell you how I was withal acquaint'ed during this Seaſon, with ſeveral holy Youths in Chriſt's College, who had made 'known unto me the Workings of God upon them, in Humiliation, Faith, and Change
'of Heart: And I obſerv'd that they continued their Profeſſion ſtedfaſt, and fell not
'off again.

'Tho the Arminian Doctrines ſuted my own Experience, in theſe natural Workings 'of Conſcience off and on in Religion, yet the Example of thoſe Godly Youths in their
'conſtant Perſeverance therein, made ſo ſtrong an Impreſſion upon me, that in my very 'Heart and Judgment, I thought the Doctrine of Arminianiſm was not true: and I 'was fixed under a Conviction, that my State was neither right nor ſound; but yet I 'could not imagine wherein it failed, and was defective. But notwithſtanding my fal'ling thus away, yet I ſtill upon every Sacrament ſet my ſelf anew to examine my ſelf,
'to repent, and to turn to God; but when the Sacrament was over, I return'd to a neg'lect of praying, and to my former ways of unregenerate Principles and Practices, and 'to live in Hardneſs of Heart and Profaneneſs. When I was thus given over to the 'Strength of my Luſts, and further off from all Goodneſs than ever I had been, and ut'terly out of hope that God would ever be ſo good unto me, as to convert me; and be'ing reſolved to follow the World, and the Glory, Applauſe, Preferment and Honour
'of it, and to uſe all means poſſible for theſe Attainments: When I was one day going 'to be merry with my Companions at Chriſt's College, from which I had removed to 'Katherine Hall; by the way hearing a Bell toll at St. Edmunds for a Funeral, one of my 'Company ſaid there was a Sermon, and preſſed me to hear it. I was loth to go in,
'for I lov'd not preaching, eſpecially not that kind of it which good Men uſed, and
'which I thought to be dull ſtuff: But yet ſeeing many Scholars going in, I thought it 'was ſome eminent Man, or if it were not ſo, that I would come out again. I went in

'before the Herſe came, and took a Seat; and fain would I have been gone, but Shame 'made me ſtay. I was never ſo loth to hear a Sermon in my Life; enquiring who preach-'ed, they told me it was Dr. Bambridge, which made me the more willing to ſtay, be-'cauſe he was a witty Man. He preach'd a Sermon (which I had heard once before) 'on that Text in Luke 19. 41, 42. I remember the firſt Words of the Sermon pleaſed 'me ſo well, as to make me very attentive all the while. He ſpake of deferring Re-'pentance, and of the Danger of doing ſo. Then he ſaid that every Man had his day, 'it was, this thy day, not to morrow, but to day. He ſhew'd alſo that every Man had a 'time, in which Grace was offer'd him; and if he neglected it, 'twas juſt with God, 'that it ſhould be hidden from his Eyes. And that as in things temporal, 'twas an old 'Saying, that every Man had an Opportunity, which if he took hold of, he was made 'for ever; ſo in Spirituals every Man hath a time, in which if he would know the 'things which belong unto his Peace, he was made for ever, but otherwiſe they would 'be hid from his Eyes. This a little moved me, as I had wont to be at other Sermons. 'Then he came to ſhew that the neglect of this, had final Impenitency, Blindneſs of 'Mind, and Hardneſs of Heart; concluding with this Saying, Every day thou prayeſt 'pray to God to keep thee from Blindneſs of Mind, and Hardneſs of Heart.

'The matter of the Sermon was vehemently urged on the Hearer (whoever he was 'that deferr'd his Repentance) not to let ſlip the Opportunity of that day, but imme-'diately to turn to God, and defer no longer; being edged with that direful Threat-'ning, leſt if he did not turn to God in that day, the Day of Grace and Salvation, 'it might be eternally hid from his Eyes. I was ſo far affected, as I utter'd this Speech 'to a Companion of mine that came to Church with me, and indeed had brought me to 'that Sermon, that I hop'd to be the better for this Sermon as long as I lived. I and 'that Companion of mine had come out of our own Chambers at Katherine-Hall, with 'a fixed deſign to have gone to ſome of my like Acquaintance at Chriſt's College (where I 'had been bred) on purpoſe to be merry and ſpend that Afternoon; but as I went along, 'was accidentally perſuaded to hear ſome of the Sermon: This was on Monday the ſecond 'of Octob. 1620. in the Afternoon. Aſſoon as we came out of the Church, I left my 'Fellows to go on to Chriſt's College; but my Thoughts being retir'd then, I went to Kathe-'rine-Hall, and left all my Acquaintance, tho they ſent after me to come.

'I thought my ſelf to be as one ſtruck down by a mighty Power. The groſſer Sins 'of my Converſation came in upon me, which I wondered at, as being unſeaſonable at 'firſt; and ſo the Working began, but was proſecuted ſtill more and more, higher 'and higher: and I endeavouring not to think the leaſt thought of my Sins, was paſ-'ſively held under the remembrance of them, and affected, ſo as I was rather paſſive all 'the while in it than active, and my Thoughts held under, whilſt that Work went on.

'I remember ſome two Years after, I preaching at Ely in the Minſter, as they call it, 'in a Turn of Preaching for Dr. Hill, Prebend of that Church, Maſter of our Col-'lege: I told the Auditory, meaning my ſelf in the Perſon of another, that a Man to 'be converted, who is ordinarily ignorant of what the Work of Converſion ſhould be, 'and what particular Paſſages it conſiſts of, was yet guided through all the dark Corners 'and Windings of it, as would be a Wonder to think of, and would be as if a Man 'were to go to the Top of that Lanthorn, to bring him into all the Paſſages of the 'Minſter, within Doors and without, and knew not a jot of the way, and were in every 'ſtep in danger to tread awry and fall down. So it was with me, I knew no more of 'that Work of Converſion, than theſe two general Heads, That a Man was troubled 'in Conſcience for his Sins, and afterwards was comforted by the Favour of God mani-'feſted to him. And it became one Evidence of the Truth of the Work of Grace upon 'me (when I reviewed it) that I had been ſo ſtrangely guided in the dark. In all this 'Intercourſe, and thoſe that follow to the very end, I was acted all along by the Spirit of 'God being upon me, and my Thoughts paſſively held fix'd, until each Head and ſort 'of Thoughts were finiſh'd, and then a new Thought began and continued; that I have 'look'd at them as ſo many Conferences, God had with me by way of Reproof and Con-'viction. My Thoughts were kept fix'd and intent on the Conſideration of the next 'immediate Cauſes, of thoſe foregone groſs Acts of ſinning. An abundant Diſcovery 'was made unto me, of my inward Luſts and Concupiſcence, and how all ſorts of Concu-'piſcences had wrought in me; at which I was amazed, to ſee with what greedineſs I had 'ſought the Satisfaction of every Luſt. Indeed natural Conſcience will readily diſcover 'groſſer Acts againſt Knowledg; as in the dark a Man more readily ſees Chairs and Ta-'bles in a Room, than Flies and Motes: but the Light which Chriſt now vouchſafed 'me, and this new ſort of Illumination, gave diſcovery of my Heart in all my Sinnings, 'carried me down to ſee the Inwards of my Belly (as Solomon ſpeaks) and ſearched the 'lower Rooms of my Heart, as it were with Candles, as the Prophet's phraſe is. I ſaw 'the violent Eagerneſs, Unſatiableneſs of my Luſts: and moreover concerning the Diſ-'penſation of God in this new Light, I found the apparent difference, by experience of 'what I had received in former times. I had before had Enlightenings and great Stir-

'rings

'rings of the Holy Ghoſt, both unto and in the performance of Holy Duties, Prayer, 'and Hearing, and the like; and yet I had not the ſinful Inordinancy of my Luſts diſ-'cover'd, which had been the Root and Ground of all my other Sinnings. And theſe 'foremention'd Devotions were different alſo in this reſpect, from the preſent Sight of 'my inward Corruptions: That in all the former, tho I felt my ſelf much ſtirred, yet 'I had this ſecret thought run along, that God could not but accept thoſe real Services, 'which I thought I did perform; and ſo I fell into the Opinion of Merit, which thought 'I could not get rid of, tho the common receiv'd Doctrine taught me otherwiſe. But 'now when I ſaw my Luſts and Heart in that clear manner as I did, God quitted me of 'that Opinion, which vaniſh'd without any diſpute, and I deteſted my ſelf for my for-'mer thoughts of it. And the Sinfulneſs of theſe Luſts I ſaw chiefly to lie in Ungodli-'neſs, as the Spring of them; foraſmuch as I had been a Lover of Pleaſure more than a 'Lover of God: according to that in Jeremy, My People have committed two Evils, they 'have forſaken me the Fountain of Living Waters, and have made unto themſelves Ciſterns 'that will hold no Water. And theſe Luſts I diſcern'd to have been acted by me in things 'that were moſt lawful, anſwerably unto that Saying in Scripture, The very plowing of 'the Wicked is Sin: and by the clear Light thereof, the Sinfulneſs of my Sin was ex-'ceedingly enlarged; for that Light accompanied me through all and every Action 'that I could caſt my Remembrance upon, or that my View went over.

'And by and through the means of the Diſcovery of thoſe Luſts, a new horrid Vein 'and Courſe of Sin was revealed alſo to me, that I ſaw lay at the bottom of my Heart, 'in the riſing and working of all my Luſts; namely, that they kept my Heart in a con-'tinual Courſe of Ungodlineſs, that is, that my Heart was wholly obſtructed from act-'ing towards God any way, or from having any holy or good Movings at all.

'God having proceeded thus far, I perceived I was humbled under his mighty Hand, 'as James ſpeaks, with whom only and immediately I had to do, and not with my own 'bare ſingle Thoughts. But God continued orderly to poſſeſs my Thoughts with a fur-'ther Progreſs, as to this Subject; I being made ſenſible of God's Hand in it, and my 'ſelf was merely paſſive: but ſtill God continued his Hand over me, and held me in-'tent to conſider and pierce into what ſhould be the firſt Cauſes of ſo much actual Sin-'fulneſs; and he preſented to me as in anſwer thereunto (for it was tranſacted as a 'Conference by God with me) the Original Corruption of my Nature, and inward e-'vil Conſtitution and Depravation of all my Faculties; the Inclinations and Diſpoſed-'neſſes of Heart unto all evil, and Averſeneſs from all Spiritual Good and Acceptableneſs 'unto God. I was convinced that in this reſpect I was Fleſh, which was to my appre-'henſion, as if that had been the Definition of a Man, That which is born of the Fleſh is 'Fleſh. And here let me ſtand a while aſtoniſh'd (as I did then) I can compare this 'Sight, and the Workings of my Heart riſing from thence to be, as if I had in the heat 'of Summer lookt down into the Filth of a Dungeon, where by a clear Light and 'piercing Eye I diſcern'd Millions of crawling living things, in the midſt of that 'Sink and liquid Corruption. Holy Mr. Price's Compariſon was, that when he heard 'Mr. Chattertom preach the Goſpel, his Apprehenſion was, as if the Sun, namely Jeſus 'Chriſt, ſhin'd upon a Dunghil; but my Sight of my Heart was to my ſenſe, that 'twas 'utterly without Chriſt. How much and deeply did I conſider, that all the Sins that 'ever were committed by the wickedeſt Men that have been in the World, had proceed-'ed from the Corruption of their Nature; or that the Sins, which any or all Men did 'commit at any time, were from the ſame Root; and I by my nature, if God had left 'me, and withdrawn from me, ſhould have committed the ſame, as any Temptation 'ſhould have induc'd me unto the like. But what much affected me, was a Sight and 'Senſe, that my Heart was empty of all good; that in me, that is, in my Fleſh, there 'dwelt no good, not a Mite of truly Spiritual Good; as the Scripture deſcribes true in-'herent Grace to be ſome good in us toward the Lord our God, which none of my 'Goodneſs nor Ingenuity was (which I boaſted of.) What is all ſuch Goodneſs to God 'who is only good, and is the only true meaſure of all that is called good? which is ſo 'only ſo far as it reſpects him, as he is holy and good, as of the Law it is ſaid, Rom. 7. 'Thus at preſent I was abundantly convinc'd.

'But next I was brought to enquire into, and conſider of what ſhould have been the 'Original Cauſe at the bottom of all this foremention'd Sinfulneſs, both in my Heart 'and Life. And after I had well debated with my ſelf that one place, Rom. 5. 12. By 'one Man Sin entered into the World, and Death by him, and paſſed upon all Men, in whom, 'or in that all had ſinned: That it was in him they all ſinned, for they had not in and 'of themſelves ſinned actually (as thoſe that die Infants) after the Similitude of Adam's 'Tranſgreſſion, which Limitation is cautiouſly there added by the Apoſtle, to ſhew that 'they had not actually ſinned of themſelves, but are ſimply involved in his act of Sin-'ning; and that Sin wherein we were all involved, as guilty of it, is expreſly ſaid to be 'the Diſobedience of that one Man; for by one Man's Diſobedience, many of his Chil-'dren of the Sons of Men were all made Sinners, for Diſobedience notes an act of

'Sinning,

'Sinning, not a ſinful Nature or a Habit. This cauſed me neceſſarily to conceive thus 'of it, that it was the Guilt or Demerit of that one Man's Diſobedience, that corrupt-'ed my Nature. Under ſuch like Apprehenſions as theſe did my Spirit lie convicted ſo 'ſtrongly of this great Truth, that being gone to bed ſome hours before, and filled 'with theſe Meditations, I in the end of all roſe out of bed being alone, and ſolemnly 'fell down on my knees before God, the Father of all the Family in Heaven; and did 'on my own accord aſſume and take on me the Guilt of that Sin, as truly as any of my 'own actual Sins. But now when I was thus concluding in my own Heart concerning 'my Sinfulneſs, that all that I had acted was wholly corrupt, and that in me there 'was nothing but Fleſh, as born of Fleſh; ſo that all the Actions that came from me 'were wholly corrupt; and in me (that is in my Fleſh) there dwelt no good thing, 'Rom. 7. my pronouncing this Concluſion with my ſelf, was preſently interrupted by 'the Remembrance, which not till now did come in full upon me, in this nick of time 'and not afore.

'The Interruption was made by theſe intervening Thoughts, that I had forgot my 'ſelf, and ſhould wrong my ſelf to end in this Concluſion; for I had had abundance of 'Experience (as I thought) of the Workings of true Grace, Enlightnings and Ra-'viſhments of Spirit and of Faith in Chriſt, at Sacrament and at other times. I recal-'led the Courſe of my Spirit, until I was towards thirteen Years old (for I was not thir-'teen when I came to the Univerſity) and I recalled to my remembrance, that during 'that ſpace when I was ſeven years old, my Grandfather whom I lived with had a 'Servant, who obſerving ſome Sin in me, reproved me ſharply, and laid open Hell 'Torments as due to me, whither he ſaid I muſt go for ſuch Sins, and was very vehe-'ment with me; and I was accordingly affected with Thoughts of God, and Matters of 'Religion from thenceforth. I was indeed but in my Infancy, in reſpect of my Know-'ledg of Religion, having childiſh Thoughts, which I began to build my hopes on. 'For my Conſcience was open'd with the ſight of my Sins when I committed any, and 'from that time I began to weep and mourn for my Sins, and for a while to forbear to 'commit them, but found I was weak, and was overcome again; but I could weep for 'my Sins, when I could weep for nothing: and I doing this privately between God and 'my ſelf, concluded 'twas not Hypocriſy. I thought of Hezekiah's Example, who turn'd 'to the Wall and wept, and how it moved God; for I was brought up to read the 'Scriptures from a Child, and I met with that Promiſe of our Saviour's, Whatever you 'ſhall ask the Father in my Name, I will do it for you: and that made me confident, for to 'be ſure I would uſe his Name for whatever I would have of God. Yet ſtill I fell into 'Sins, renewing my Repentance for them: As Paul ſays, when I was a Child, my 'Thoughts were as a Child; and I judged, that whatever is more than Nature muſt be 'Grace: and when I had my Affections any way exerciſed upon the things of the other 'World, thought I, this is the Work of God, for the time was I had no ſuch actings. 'And thus my younger time was at times ſpent, but God was to me as a wayfaring 'Man, who came and dwelt for a Night, and made me Religious for a Fit, but then de-'parted from me. The Holy Ghoſt moved upon the Waters when the World was 'creating, and held and ſuſtain'd the Chaos that was created, and ſo he does in carnal 'Mens Hearts, witneſs their good Motions at times. In a great Froſt you ſhall ſee where 'the Sun ſhines hot, the Ice drops, and the Snow melts, and the Earth grows ſlabby; 'but 'tis a particular Thaw, only where the Sun ſhines, not a general Thaw of all 'things that are frozen. But ſo it was, that for theſe lighter Impreſſions and ſlighter 'Workings, my Heart did grow ſo preſumptuous, that I thought my ſelf not only to 'have Grace, but more Grace than my Relations, or any Inhabitant of the Town that 'I knew of, and this for the time I was a School-boy before I came to the Univerſity. 'When I was paſt twelve Years old towards thirteen, I was admitted into Chriſt's Col-'lege in Cambridge, as a Junior-Sophiſter, a Year before the uſual time of ſtanding; 'and there being the Opportunity of a Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, appointed to 'be adminiſtred publickly in the College, and all of that Form that I was now in, being 'taken into receiving, I was aſhamed to go out of the Chappel alone and not receive, 'and ſo I adventured to obtrude my ſelf upon that Ordinance with the reſt. I had ſet my 'ſelf to the greateſt Preparation I could poſſibly make, in repenting of my Sins, and exa-'mining my ſelf, and by Meditations on the Sufferings of Chriſt, which I preſumed to apply 'to my ſelf, with much Thankfulneſs to God. And that which now, ſince I came to that 'College, had quickened and heightened my Devotion, was, that there remain'd ſtill 'in the College ſix Fellows that were great Tutors, who profeſſed Religion after the 'ſtricteſt ſort, then called Puritans. Beſides, the Town was then filled with the diſ-'courſe of the power of Mr. Perkins his Miniſtry, ſtill freſh in moſt Mens Memories; 'and Dr. Ames that worthy Profeſſor of Divinity at Franeker, who wrote Puritaniſmus 'Anglicanus, had been Fellow of that College, and not long before my time had by the 'Urgency of the Maſter, been driven both from the College and Univerſity. The 'Worth and Holineſs of that Man is ſufficiently known, by what he did afterwards in 'the Low-Countries. Theſe Puritan Fellows of that College had ſeveral Pupils that were 'Godly, and I fell into the Obſervation of them and their Ways. I had alſo the ad-'vantage of Urſins's Catechize, which Book was the renowned Summaries of the Ortho-'dox Religion, and the Puritan Fellows of the College explained it to their Pupils on 'Saturday-night with Chamber-Prayers. This Book I was upon this occaſion acquainted 'with; and againſt the time of the foremention'd Sacrament I examin'd my ſelf by it, 'and I found (as I thought) all things in that Book and my own Heart to agree for my 'Preparation. As I grew up, the Noiſe of the Arminian Controverſy in Holland, at the 'Synod of Dort, and the ſeveral Opinions of that Controverſy, began to be every 'Man's Talk and Enquiry, and poſſeſſed my Ears. That which I obſerved, as touching 'the matter of my own Religion, was, that thoſe godly Fellows, and the younger ſort 'of their Pupils that were godly, held conſtantly to their ſtrict Religious Practices 'and Principles, without falling away and declining as I knew of. I judged them to be 'in the right for matter of Religion, and the Arminians in the wrong, who held fal-'ling away; yea and I did ſo far reverence the Opinions of the Orthodox, who are a-'gainſt the Power of Freewill, and for electing Grace, that I did ſo far judg my ſelf, 'as to ſuſpect I had not Grace, becauſe of my ſo often falling away, whereof I knew not 'any probablier Reaſon that it was not true Grace which I had built upon, then this, that 'ſtill after Sacraments I fell away into neglects of Duties, and into a ſinful Courſe, which 'thoſe godly Youths I had in my eye did not. But that which chiefly did ſerve moſt to 'convince me, was the powerful and ſteady Example of one of thoſe godly Fellows in 'the College, Mr. Bently, who was a Man of an innocent, meek, humble Spirit and 'Demeanour, and an eminent Profeſſor of Religion, in the greateſt ſtrictneſs, whoſe 'Profeſſion was further qnickned and enhaunced by this, that he lived in a continual 'Fear of Death, having had two Fits of an Apoplexy that laid him for dead, and daily 'expecting a third. This bleſſed Man I obſerved, and reverenced above all other Men 'but Mr. Price, who then was of the Univerſity, an eminent Example of Converſion in 'the Eyes of all, and who was afterwards Miniſter of the Goſpel in Lyn Regis. I re-'member that when I came to the Prayers, I uſed to have uſually great Stirrings of Af-'fections, and of my bodily Spirits to a kind of Raviſhment, and ſo I continued in 'private Devotion for a Week after; yet ſtill all thoſe Impreſſions proved to be but 'Morning-Dew, and came to nothing, and I utterly forbore to pray privately, or ex-'erciſe any other good Duty, and ſo all my Religion was ſoon loſt and came to nothing. 'But again, when the time of the next Sacrament came, I renewed the former Exerci-'ſes, and then I grew into a Love of the good Scholars of the College, both of Fellows 'and others, and began to continue more conſtant in Duties for a longer time together.

'And I left going to St. Maries the Univerſity-Church, where were all the florid Ser-'mons and Strains of Wit, in which that Age abounded, the great Wits of thoſe 'times ſtriving who of them ſhould exceed each other: But from theſe the Work I 'had the next Sacrament upon me, did ſo far withhraw me, as for eight Weeks together 'I went with the Puritans of that College to hear Dr. Sibbs, whoſe Preaching was plain 'and wholeſom; and to improve my time the better before Sermon began, I carried 'with me Calvin's Inſtitutions to Church, and found a great deal of ſweetneſs and ſavo-'ryneſs in that Divinity. In thoſe Weeks I kept conſtantly to private Prayer, and cal-'ling to mind the ſweetneſs of this Courſe, of thoſe eight Weeks in theſe Exerciſes; 'and acquainting my ſelf more with the Youths of that College, who held ſtedfaſt in 'their Profeſſion. O how did I long for the receiving of the next Sacrament, in which 'I hoped the Body and Blood of Chriſt received with due Preparation, which I endea-'voured to make to the utmoſt of my Ability, would confirm me in the way I had be-'gun, and continued in ſo long, and would ſtrengthen me for ever from falling into 'the ſame way of liking florid and ſcholaſtick Sermons. I went to Chappel for the 'Sacrament, as I was wont to do, and expected no other but to receive it; but in the 'nick, when every Communicant was riſing to go to kneel at the Step, as the manner 'was, my Tutor Mr. Power (who was the only Tutor that ever I had) ſent a Meſſenger 'to me to command me out of the Chappel, and to forbear to receive; which Meſ-'ſage I receiv'd with extreme Dolor of Heart and Trouble; but he being my Tutor I 'obeyed him. But upon this Diſappointment I was ſo diſcouraged, that I left off pri-'vate Prayer for the firſt Week after, and at laſt altogether, and from thence after 'went conſtantly to St. Maries, where the flaunting Sermons were; and tho I never 'fell into the common Sins of Drunkenneſs or Whoredom, whereunto I had Tempta-'tions and Opportunities enough, yet I return'd unto the Luſts and Pleaſures of Sinning, 'but eſpecially the Ambition of Glory and Praiſe, proſecuting thoſe Luſts with the 'whole of my Soul. And tho I did not walk in profane ways againſt Religion, yet 'with a lower kind of Enmity againſt good Men and good Things, reſolving to have 'preached againſt thoſe at Lyn and their Ways, and to have taken part with the whole 'Town againſt them; which my wicked Spirit was too eager and fitted to do by the

'Studies

'Studies I had perſued, it came to this at laſt, that if God would give me the Pleaſure 'I deſir'd, and the Credit and Preferment I purſued after, and not damn me at laſt, 'let him keep Heaven to himſelf; and I often thought thus with my ſelf, they talk of 'their Puritan powerful Preaching, and of Mr. Rogers of Dedham, and ſuch others, but 'I would gladly ſee the Man that could trouble my Conſcience.

'When God now by a true Work of Grace effectually converted me to himſelf, the 'Vanity of my former Religion was, by ſerious Reflections on theſe Paſſages mention'd, 'ſufficiently manifeſted. The Deficiency of the Root of all my Devotions, did alſo a-'bundantly add to the Diſcovery: For God did vouchſafe me a new and further Light 'into the bottom of my Heart, to diſcern that Self-Love and Self-Flattery, acted by 'the Motives of the Word ſo far as they will extend, were but the Roots of all theſe 'gaudy Tulips which I counted Grace: and I needed no other Scripture than that in the 'Parable, together with my own Heart, for the Proof of it: Mark 4. 4,5. Some fell upon 'Stony Ground, where it had not much Earth, and immediately it ſprang up, becauſe it had no 'Depth of Earth: But when the Sun was up it was ſcorched, and becauſe it had no Root it wi-'thered away. And with this one Blaſt, and thus eaſily, did the Flower of all my former 'Devotions wither and come to nought, becauſe they wanted Moiſture in the Heart to 'nouriſh them.

'By the Proſpect of all theſe Heads of Sinning which I lay under, I was ſurrounded 'and ſhut up, and ſaw no way to eſcape: but together with the Sight of all this Sinful-'neſs, Hell open'd his Mouth upon me, threatning to devour and deſtroy me; and I be-'gan withal to conſider the Eternity of time that I was to paſs through under this Eſtate, 'that 'twas for ever and ever. But tho I was ſubjugated and bound over to theſe Appre-'henſions, yet God kept me from the Soreneſs of his Wrath, and its piercing my Soul 'through and through: that tho I had a ſolid and ſtrong Conviction of God's Wrath a-'biding on me, as being in a State of Unbelief; yet my Soul ſuffer'd not the Terrors of 'the Almighty, tho I lay bound as it were Hand and Foot, ſubacted under the Preſſure 'of the Guilt of Wrath, or of being ſubject to the juſt Judgment of the Lord, as the 'word is to be tranſlated, Rom. 3. 19. How long my Soul lay filled with theſe thoughts, 'I perfectly remember not; but it was not many Hours before God, who after we are 'regenerate, is ſo faithful and mindful of his Word, and his Word of Promiſe, as to 'ſuffer us not to be tempted above what we are able, but will with the Temptation alſo 'make a way to eſcape, that we may be able to bear it; and he loving us with the ſame 'Love as we are his own dear Elect, does not often ſuffer a deſtroying Apprehenſion to 'continue long upon us, but out of the ſame Faithfulneſs and Pity to us finds a way to 'eſcape. I do not ſpeak now of Temptations, but of the juſt Conviction which many 'ſuch Souls have, previous unto their Believing. See what God ſays, Ezek. 16. of the 'whole Body of his Elect Church, comparing their Condition as to that of a Child born 'dead, and covered over with Blood, as it came out of the Womb, the Navel not cut, 'neither waſhed in Water, but in this plight caſt out into the open Field, as a Child that 'was dead, among the Carcaſes: And therefore God when he was ſaid to have Compaſ-'ſion on him, ſaid to him, Live, which implies that he was dead. In this Plight was 'my Soul dead in Sins and Treſpaſſes from my Nativity, and from thence ſo continuing 'to that very day, together with that heap of actual Sins, that were the continual Ebul-'litions of Original Sin. And no Eye pitied me or could help me, but as God there '(in Ezek. 16.) on the ſudden (for 'tis ſpoken as a ſpeedy Word, as well as a vehement 'earneſt Word, for 'tis doubled twice) yea I ſaid unto you Live: So God was pleaſed 'on the ſudden, and as it were in an inſtant, to alter the whole Courſe of his former 'Diſpenſation towards me, and ſaid of and to my Soul, Yea live, yea live I ſay, ſaid 'God: and as he created the World and the Matter of all things by a Word, ſo he cre-'ated and put a new Life and Spirit into my Soul, and ſo great an Alteration was 'ſtrange to me.

'The Word of Promiſe which he let fall into my Heart, and which was but as it were 'ſoftly whiſper'd to my Soul; and as when a Man ſpeaks afar off, he gives a ſtill, yet a 'certain ſound, or as one hath expreſſed the Preachings of the Goſpel by the Apoſtles; 'that God whiſpered the Goſpel out of Sion, but the ſound thereof went forth over 'the whole Earth: So this ſpeaking of God to my Soul, altho it was but a gentle 'Sound, yet it made a noiſe over my whole Heart, and filled and poſſeſſed all the Fa-'culties of my whole Soul. God took me aſide, and as it were privately ſaid unto me, 'do you now turn to me, and I will pardon all your Sins tho never ſo many, as I for-'gave and pardoned my Servant Paul, and convert you unto me as I did Mr. Price, who 'was the moſt famous Convert and Example of Religion in Cambridge. Of theſe two 'ſecret Whiſpers and Speeches of God to me, I about a Year after did expreſly tell Mr. 'Price, in declaring to him this my Converſion, while 'twas freſh with me, as he well 'remembred long; and I have ſince repeated them to others I know not how often, for 'they have ever ſtuck in my Mind. And Examples laid before us by God, do give us 'Hope, and are written and propos'd unto us: Rom. 15. 4. For whatſoever things were 'written

'written to us afore time, were written for our Learning, that we through Patience and Com- 'fort of the Scriptures might have Hope; and we uſe to alledg Examples, not only to il-
'luſtrate and explain Rules, but to prove and confirm them. That God pardon'd ſuch
'a Man in ſuch a Condition, is often brought home unto another Man in the ſame Con'dition, and impliedly contains a ſecret Promiſe, that ſo he may do to me, ſays the 'Soul in the ſame Condition. And I remember that I preaching at Ely two Year after,
'urged to the People the Example of Paul (which I was before refer'd to) as an Exam'ple to win others, in having in my Eye and Thoughts the ſaid Experience of God's 'dealing with me in the ſame kind; and that the Examples of ſuch are to be held forth
'by God, as Flags of Mercy before a Company of Rebels to win them in.

'Now as to this Example of Paul, it was full and pertinent for that purpoſe, for which 'God held it out to me; I then conſider'd with my ſelf the Amplitude of my Pardon,
'that it involved all ſorts of Sins of the higheſt Nature, in which Paul had ſo walk'd,
'as he was even upon the narrow Brink of ſinning againſt the Holy Ghoſt. And God
'ſuggeſted unto me that he would pardon me for all my Sins, tho never ſo great, for
'Boldneſs, Hardneſs of Heart, and Hainouſneſs of Sinning, as he had pardon'd Paul,
'whoſe Story of Forgiveneſs I was refer'd unto: and alſo that he would change my 'Heart, as he had done Mr. Price's, who was in all Mens Eyes the greateſt and moſt
'famous Convert, known to the whole Univerſity of Cambridge, and made the greateſt
'and notedeſt Example that ever was, of a ſtrange Converſion to God, and who was
'the holieſt Man that ever I knew one or other, and was then Preacher at Kings-Lyn,
'whither my Parents had remov'd from Rolſeby, and then liv'd there.

'The Confirmations which my ſelf have had, to judg that theſe Inſtructions and Sug-
'geſtions were immediately from God, were theſe.

'1. I conſider'd the Poſture and Condition of my Spirit, and that this Suggeſtion took 'me when my Heart was fix'd, and that unmoveably, in the contrary Perſuaſions, not 'only that I was guilty of thoſe Sins, and had continued in them to that time; but that 'I was in a damned Eſtate without hope for Remedy: and when God had ſet a Guard
'upon me as the Priſoner of Hell, then came in theſe contrary Apprehenſions and Im-
'preſſions as it were in an inſtant; which Impreſſions alſo were ſo deep and rooted in 'my Heart, that I remember'd them ever ſince: And I did accordingly acquaint Mr. Price
'at Lyn, a Year and a half after this, ſetting them on upon my Heart, in rehearſing to 'him the Story of my Converſion, which he exceedingly approved of.

'2. It was a Word in its proper Seaſon, like that which was ſpoken to Abraham the 'Father of all the Faithful, and which ran into a Proverb among the Jews, In the Mount
'the Lord will be ſeen, or provide; which they apply to the immediate Remedy, which God
'does uſe to afford out of pity to a Man in a Strait or Diſtreſs, and which none but 'himſelf can give Remedy to. It is a Word fitted and proper to ſuch an occaſion, and 'peculiar to the caſe of the Perſon; a Word that was quick and ſudden, and interrupt-
'ing all contrary Expectations and Fears, as the manner of the Speech was, Abraham,
'Abraham, as a Man that ſpeaks in haſt to prevent any contrary Fears: 'Tis a Word
'ſpoken in Seaſon, which Chriſt himſelf was taught by God to ſpeak to diſtreſſed Souls,
'Iſa. 50.

'3. This that was ſuggeſted to me was not an ungrounded Fancy, but the pure word 'of God, which is the ground of Faith and Hope. It was the Promiſe and Perfor'mance of God's forgiving of Paul the moſt heinous Sins, that ever any Convert com'mitted who was ſaved; for he was the chiefeſt of Sinners, as himſelf confeſſes: And
'this Inſtance was directed unto me as the moſt pertinent to my caſe, that I could elſe-
'where have found in the Book of God.

'4. In conſidering the Conſequents and Effects that follow'd after God's ſpeaking to 'me, I was hopefully perſuaded it was from God, for the things were fulfilled which 'God had ſpoken of. For firſt I felt my Soul, and all the Powers of it, as in an inſtant
'to be clean altered and changed in the Diſpoſitions of them; even as our own Divines
'of Great Britain, do ſet out in their Diſcourſe of the manner of Converſion in the ef'fect of it. Secondly I found from the ſame time the Works of the Devil to be diſſol-
'ved in my Heart in an eminent manner, my Underſtanding enlightened, my Will mel'ted and ſoften'd, and of a Stone made Fleſh, diſpoſed to receive, and diſpoſed to 'turn to God. And thirdly, I found my Spirit clothed with a new Nature, naturally
'inclining me to good; whereas before it was inclined only to evil. I found not only good
'Motions from the Spirit of God, as he was pleas'd to incite me formerly, not only
'fluſhings and ſtreamings of Affection (which ſoon vaniſh) or ſtirring my bodily Spi'rits with Joy, when I applied my ſelf to a Holy Duty, but I found a new Indweller
'or habitual Principle of oppoſition to, and hatred of Sin indwelling, ſo as I concluded 'with my ſelf, that this new Workmanſhip wrought in me, was of the ſame kind as 'to matter of Holineſs with that Image of God, expreſſed Eph. 4, 23, 24. but more ex-
'preſly affirmed, Col. 3. 10. It was this one Diſpoſition that at firſt comforted me, 'that I ſaw and found two contrary Principles, of Spirit againſt Fleſh, and Fleſh a-

'gainſt

'gainſt Spirit: and I found apparently the difference of the Oppoſition, that only 'Conſcience makes againſt a Luſt, and that which the Spirit, that is, the new Work of 'Grace in a Man's Heart, makes againſt the Fleſh. That the Spirit not only contradic-'ted and check'd, but made a real natural Oppoſition, ſuch as Fire do's to Water; ſo 'that the Spirit did as truly luſt againſt the Work of the Fleſh, as the Fleſh againſt 'that of the Spirit. And this difference I found not by reading, or hearing any 'one ſpeak of it, but (as Auſtin did) I perceived it of my ſelf, and wonder'd at 'it; for I may ſay of this Combat, that 'tis proper and peculiar to a Man that is re-'generate. It is not in God or Chriſt, who are a Fulneſs of Holineſs; not in Devils, 'for they are all Sin; not in good Angels, for they are entirely holy; not in wicked 'Men, for they have no Grace in them, to fight with their Corruptions after ſuch a 'manner.

'Thirdly, The Conſequent of this that fell out in my Heart, was an actual 'turning from all known Sins, and my entertaining the Truth of all Godlineſs, 'and the Principles of it as far as I received it from the Word of God, and 'the beſt examples of godly Men I liv'd withal. And in general, I took this 'Courſe through God's Direction and Aſſiſtance, that I looked back upon my ſinful 'Eſtate, and took a ſummary Survey of my chiefeſt Sins and Luſts; and I found them 'to be Love of Pleaſure more than of God, corrupt ends, eſpecially of Vain-glory and 'academick Praiſe, which I ſought with my whole Soul: and God was pleaſed to direct 'me to take up, as the Rule of my turning to him, a ſincere Aim at his Glory as the 'Rule of all my inward Thoughts, Words, Actions, Deſires and Ends whatſoever. And 'in this it pleaſed God to direct and aſſiſt me, to conſider aſunder all the ſorts of Actions 'I had gone through in my Life, and to take them aſunder in Particulars every one in 'order, but eſpecially the principalleſt of them. And here in the firſt place, I conſi-'der'd, what was the Aim and Drift of my Studies, which I had ſpent my whole time 'upon: and having been devoted by my Parents for the work of the Miniſtry, I conſi-'der'd what it was, did ſerve moſt to the Glory of God in the Work of the Miniſtry, 'and that overturned all the Projects and Deſigns of my Heart hitherto, which were 'the deareſt of all to me; ſo dear, that I would certainly rather not have lived, than 'have forſaken that Intereſt. The Univerſity in thoſe times was addicted in their 'Preaching to a vainglorious Eloquence, wherein the Wits did ſtrive to exceed one a-'nother: and that which I moſt of all affected in my fooliſh Fancy, was to have preach-'ed for the matter thereof in the way that Dr. Senhouſe (of St. John's, afterwards made 'Biſhop) did exceed all Men in. I inſtance in him, to explain the way and model that 'I ſet up, becauſe his Sermons five or ſix of them are in print, and becauſe it is the e-'mineneſt Farrago of all ſorts of Flowers of Wit, that are found in any of the Fathers, 'Poets, Hiſtories, Similitudes, or whatever has the elegancy of Wit in it: and in the 'joining and diſpoſing of theſe together, Wit was the eminent Orderer in a promiſcu-'ous way. His way I took for my Pattern, not that I hoped to attain to the ſame per-'fection, I coming far behind hand of all the Accompliſhments he abounded in. But I 'ſet him up in my thoughts to imitate as much as I was able; and about ſuch Collections as 'theſe did I ſet my Studies until I ſhould come to preach. But this way of his did ſoon re-'ceive a fatal Wound, Dr. Preſton oppoſing it and preaching againſt it, as vain and unedify-'ing. His Catechetical Sermons in the Chappel of that College it fell out I heard, whilſt un-'regenerate; but they moved me not to alter my Studies, nor ſhould all the World have 'perſuaded me to have done it, nor all Angels, nor Men; but my Heart upon this my 'turning to God, and ſetting his Glory as my reſolved end of all my Actions and Ways, 'did ſoon diſcover to me the Unprofitableneſs of ſuch a Deſign; and I came to this re-'ſolved Principle, that I would preach wholly and altogether ſound wholeſom Words, 'without Affectation of Wit and Vanity of Eloquence. And in the end, this Project 'of Wit and Vainglory was wholly ſunk in my Heart, and I left all, and have conti-'nued in that purpoſe and practice theſe threeſcore years; and I never was ſo much 'as tempted to put in any of my own wither'd Flowers that I had gather'd, and va-'lued more than Diamonds, nor have they offer'd themſelves to my Memory to the 'bringing them into a Sermon to this day, but I have preach'd what I thought was truly 'edifying, either for Converſion of Souls, or bringing them up to Eternal Life: ſo as I 'am free to profeſs that great Maxim of Dr. Preſton, in his Sermon of Humiliation, 'on the firſt of the Epheſians, That of all other, my Maſter-Luſt was mortified.

'I obſerved of this Work of God on my Soul, that there was nothing of Conſtraint 'or Force in it, but I was carried on with the moſt ready and willing Mind, and what I 'did was what I choſe to do. With the greateſt Freedom I parted with my Sins, for-'merly as dear to me as the apple of my Eye, yea as my Life, and reſolv'd never to re-'turn to them more. And what I did was from deliberate choice; I conſider'd what I 'was doing, and reckon'd with my ſelf what it would coſt me to make this great Alte-'ration. I conſider'd the common Opinion the World had of thoſe ways of Purity and 'Holineſs, and walking according to them. But tho I conſider'd what the common

'Courſe and Vogue of the World was concerning the ways of one that would be a 'true Convert and ſincere to God, yet they hindred me not at all. The Weeds that 'entangled me in thoſe Waters, I ſwam and broke through, with as much eaſe as 'Sampſon did his Withes; for I was made a Vaſſal and a perfect Captive to another bind-'ing, ſuch as Paul ſpeaks of, when he ſays, he went bound in the Spirit to Jeruſalem; 'and I ſaid within my ſelf, of all my old Companions, What do you breaking my Heart? 'I am not ready to be bound only, but to give up my Life, ſo as I may ſerve God with 'Joy in theſe ways. I parted with all my Luſts, not as Lot's Wife, looking back 'on what I departed from; but with my whole Soul and whole Deſires, not to return 'more to the Enjoyment of any Luſt, and caſting down all thoſe childiſh Imaginations 'of Preferment, ſuch as Scholars do generally aim at, and promiſe to themſelves, and 'to attain which they make their Aim, and the Card of their Life they ſail by. All 'theſe fell, and like Bubbles broke and vaniſh'd to Air; and thoſe which I counted my 'ſtrongeſt Holds and Imaginations, And every thing that exalteth it ſelf, was brought in-'to Captivity and Obedience to Chriſt, 2 Cor. 10. 5. And I was brought in my own 'Thoughts, to be content with the meaneſt Condition all my days, ſo as I might 'fulfil the Courſe of my Life, tho never ſo mean, with Uprightneſs and Sincerity towards God. I took my Leave for my whole Life of all Eccleſiaſtical Prefer-'ments; and tho afterwards I was Preſident of Magdalene College, my great Motive to it from the bottom of my Heart, was the fair opportunity of doing 'good in my Miniſtry in the Univerſity: And that it might be in my power, to 'bring in young Men that were Godly, both Fellows and Students, that ſhould ſerve God 'in the Miniſtry in after times. And after ſuch as were godly did I enquire and ſeek, 'and valued ſuch when I found them as the greateſt Jewels: And when I fail'd of ſuch, 'it was a great Affliction to me: but this was my Heart and Endeavour, as my own Soul 'and Conſcience bears me witneſs, tho I did, and might fall ſhort of this my own Aim 'in ſome particular Perſons. And this Principle I brought with me from Katherine-'Hall in Cambridg, where I had my firſt Station, and where I was the Inſtrument of 'the choice of that holy and revérend Man Dr. Sibbs, to be Maſter of that College, and 'of moſt of the Fellows of that College in thoſe times, as Dr. Arrowſmith, and Mr. Pen 'of Northamptonſhire, to name no more: And I was the more fixedly eſtabliſh'd in the 'practice of this, that after I had been ſeven Years from Cambridge, coming out of Hol-'land, I had for ſome Years after, well nigh every Month, ſerious and hearty Acknow-'ledgment from ſeveral young Men, who had received the Light of their Converſion 'by my Miniſtry, while I was in the Univerſity of Cambridg. And this was the great 'Encouragement I had to return again to an Univerſity, having enjoyed ſo frequent a 'Teſtimony of the Fruit of my Labours while I was Preacher at Cambridg; and what 'the Succeſs has been at Oxford, I leave to Chriſt till the latter day.

'But the moſt eminent Property of my Converſion to God (I have been ſpeaking of) 'was this, That the Glory of the great God was ſet up in my Heart, as the Square and 'Rule of each and every particular Practice, both of Faith and Godlineſs, that I tur-'ned unto; and of all Signs of Sincerity, there is, nor can be none clearer than this, 'witneſs our Saviour Chriſt's Speech, John 7. 18. He that ſeeketh his Glory that ſent him, 'the ſame is true, and no Unrighteouſneſs is in him. Chriſt ſpeaketh it of himſelf, who is 'the Truth it ſelf, and ſpeaketh of himſelf, out of his own Experience of what he did 'who is the Truth it ſelf; and the Glory of God is God himſelf, who doth all things 'for himſelf: and therefore he that acteth thus predominantly for God above all other 'ends, muſt neceſſarily be judged truly righteous. Nor can any Man extract that out of 'his Heart which is not in it: Now there is not the leaſt Spark of the Glory of God in 'the Heart of Man unregenerate, and therefore cannot be extracted out of it; no not 'the leaſt Spark. Take a Flint, and ſtrike it againſt Steel or Iron, and you ſhall have 'Sparks ſtruck out; but if you take a piece of Ice never ſo great, and ſtrike it againſt 'a Stone, or any other material, you ſhall not have a Spark, for there is none in it, nor 'any Diſpoſition towards it. I remember that when I heard Dr. Preſton deſcribing true 'ſpiritual change of Heart ('twas upon Rom. 12. 2. Be ye transformed by the renewing 'your Minds) he ſpoke in this manner. It is (ſaid he) when upon the change of a 'Man's utmoſt end, there is a change made upon the whole Man, and all the Powers of 'it; which when I had duly conſider'd, I judged I never had any thing more punctual, 'remembring this Work of God upon my ſelf at firſt. For as he then diſcourſed it, if a 'Man changes but unto one particular end, and has but one particular and limited end, the 'Effect is anſwerable, 'tis but partial ſo far as that end ſerves to: as if a Man that had a 'Humour of Prodigality, and now thinks it concerns him to be ſparing and covetous, 'this change of his End being but particular, has but a narrow'd Effect, namely as to 'ſparing and care to keep his Money, not to ſpend it laviſhly: but Godlineſs, the height 'of which lies in a reſpect to God, and his Glory above all things elſe, hath a general, 'yea univerſal end, which extends its Influence upon all things.

'Hence

'Hence my Task from this Principle, proved to be to ſurvey and go over every particular kind of Act, both what I muſt forbear and for what end, and with what Heart, as 'alſo to obſerve each particular Practice of Godlineſs, which I wretchedly had altogether for a long while lived in neglect of; and hereabout I began with what I was to 'forbear and practiſe no longer, but alter my Courſe in, as firſt of all my Sins I had liv'd 'in; and therein I fixed upon this ſummary of my whole Life, that I had made Luſts 'and Pleaſures my only end, and done nothing with aims at the Glory of God: and 'therefore I would there begin my turning to him, and make the Glory of God the 'meaſure of all for the time to come.

This is the Account which my dear Father drew up, concerning the Work of the Holy Ghoſt on his Soul, in converting him to God. He left it with a deſign (as himſelf ſaid) to give from his own experience, a Teſtimony of the difference between common Grace (which by ſome is thought ſufficient) and that ſpecial ſaving Grace, which indeed is alone ſufficient, and always invincibly and effectually prevails, as it did in him, and endur'd through a long Life, and Courſe of various Temptations and Trials unto the end. In the firſt enlightenings and workings of Conſcience, he experienc'd how far common Grace might go, and yet fail at laſt, as it did in him, to an utter withering and decay. In the other Work on his Soul, he felt an extraordinary Divine Power changing it, and entirely ſubduing it to God; a work that was laſting and victorious to Eternity. I have often heard him ſay, that in reading the Acts of the Synod of Dort, and taking a review of the firſt Workings of common Grace in him, he found them conſonant with the Arminian Opinions: but comparing his own experiences of efficacious Grace, with the Doctrines of the Orthodox Proteſtant Divines, he found the one perfectly to agree with the other. It was this inward ſenſe of things, out of which a Man will not ſuffer himſelf to be diſputed, that eſtabliſh'd him in the Truths of the Goſpel, and poſſeſs'd him with a due temper'd Warmth, and Zeal to aſſert and vindicate them with ſuch Arguments and Reaſons, as the Truth is never deſtitute of to reſiſt Gainſayers.

It was many Years before he came to have a clear Knowledg of the Goſpel, and a full view of Chriſt by Faith, and to have Joy and Peace in believing. 'A bleſſed Age 'this is (ſaid he in his latter Years) now the time of Faith is come, and Faith is prin'cipally inſiſted on unto Salvation: In my younger Years we heard little more of Chriſt, 'than as merely nam'd in the Miniſtry and printed Books. I was diverted from Chriſt 'for ſeveral Years, to ſearch only into the Signs of Grace in me: It was almoſt ſeven 'Years e'er I was taken off to live by Faith on Chriſt, and God's free Love, which are 'alike the Object of Faith. His Thoughts for ſo long a time, were chiefly intent on the Conviction which God had wrought in him, of the heinouſneſs of Sin, and of his own ſinful and miſerable State by nature; of the difference between the workings of natural Conſcience, tho enlighten'd, and the Motions of an holy Soul, chang'd and acted by the Spirit, in an effectual Work of peculiar ſaving Grace. And accordingly he kept a conſtant Diary (of which I have above an hundred Sheets wrote with his own hand) of Obſervations of the Caſe and Poſture of his Mind, and Heart toward God, and ſutable, pious, and pathetical Meditations. His Sermons being the reſult of theſe, had a great deal of ſpiritual Heat in them, and were bleſſed by God to the Conviction and Converſion of many young Scholars, who flock'd to his Miniſtry: As my Reverend Brother Mr. Samuel Smith, Miniſter of the Goſpel at Windſor, told me, that his Reverend Father, then a young Scholar in Cambridg, acknowledg'd mine to have been bleſſed by God as an Inſtrument of his Converſion among many others.

As it was that holy Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt Mr. Price of Lyn, with whom my Father maintain'd a great Intimacy of Chriſtian Friendſhip, and of whom he ſaid, that he was the greateſt Man for experimental Acquaintance with Chriſt, that ever he met with; and as he pour'd into his Boſom his Spiritual Complaints, ſo it was he whoſe Conference by Letters and Diſcourſe, was bleſſed by God to lead him into the Spirit of the Goſpel, to live by Faith in Chriſt, and to derive from him Life and Strength for Sanctification, and all Comfort and Joy through believing. As for Tryal of your own Heart (wrote Mr. Price to him in one of his Letters) they are good for you; remember only this, that Chriſt in whom you believe, hath overcome for you, and he will overcome in you; the reaſon is in 1 Joh. 4. 4. And I ſay Tryals are good for you, becauſe elſe you would not know your own Heart, nor that need of continual ſeeking unto God. But without thoſe Tryals your Spirit would ſoon grow ſecure, which of all Eſtates belonging to thoſe that fear God, is moſt dangerous and moſt uncomfortable: Therefore count it exceeding Cauſe of Joy, not of Sorrow, when you are exerciſed with any Temptations, becauſe they are Tokens of your being in Chriſt; which being in him Satan would diſquiet, and carnal Reaſon would call in queſtion: Yet ſtand faſt in the Liberty of Chriſt, maintain the Work of God's free Love, which his good Spirit hath wrought in you. Say unto the Lord; Lord, thou knoweſt I hate my former ſinful Courſe, it grieveth me I have been ſo long ſuch a Stranger unto thee my Father: Thou knoweſt now I deſire to believe in Jeſus Chriſt, Christ, I desire to repent of my Sins, and it is the Desire of my Heart to do thy Will in all things. Finding these things in your Heart, cast your self upon the Righteousness of Christ, and fear nothing; for God will be a most merciful God in Christ unto you. Strive but a little while, and thou shalt be crown'd; even so come Lord Jesus, come quickly, Amen. In another of his Letters he thus wrote to him: All your Complaints are good, and will bring abundance of Thankfulness in the end; for mark it in the Scripture, where the Saints of God have complain'd for want of Christ, or any good thing from God in Christ, they have had e'er long their Hearts and Tongues fill'd with Thanksgivings and Praise, Rom. 7. 24, 25. It is the surest State for our deceitful Hearts to be kept in awe, and not to be as we would be, in Perfection of Grace. God knows the time, when it will be best to fill us with his Love, and to ravish us with his favour in Christ. In the mean time let us go on in Faith, looking every moment for that day of Gladness, wherein Christ shall manifest a fuller Sight of his blessed Presence. I pray you fight it out valiantly by Faith in Christ, against base Unbelief and proud Humility. I do assure you, and dare say it, you may by Faith in Christ challenge great matters at God's Hands, and he will take it well at your Hands: yea the more you can believe for your self in Christ, the better it will be taken at the Throne of Grace. Now the Lord give you of his Spirit to help you in all things. The Lord keep your Spirit in Christ, full of Faith and Love to Immortality. In another Letter he thus wrote: Your last Complaint made in your Letter of your self, is from Spiritual Insight of your unregenerate part: It is wholesom, for it being loathed and abhorred, makes Christ in his Righteousness and Sanctification, more glorious in your Eyes daily. If this were not, Pride and Security would start up and undo you: Besides, I find you have great assistance from God in Christ: He ministers much Light to you both of Knowledg and Comfort; and therefore you had need of some startling Evils, to make you depend upon God's Grace for the time to come, lest you should rest in that which is past. Let the Lord do what he will with our Spirits, so he drive us from the liking our selves in any Sin, and make us long after Christ, to be found in him, and in his Righteousness. In another he wrote thus: Your Letter is welcome to me, and your State also matter of rejoicing unto me, however it may seem unto you for the present. Know you not that the Lord is come to dwell in your Heart, and now is purging you and refining you; that you may be a purer, and also a fitter Temple for his Spirit to dwell in? All these things concerning the right framing of your Spirit will not be done at once, but by little and little, as it shall please our Gracious God in Christ, to work for his own Glory. Yet this you may have remaining ever unto you, as an evidence of God's everlasting Love, that the Marks of true chosen ones are imprinted upon you, and truly wrought within you, for your Eyes are open'd to see your self utterly lost, your Heart is touch'd with a sense and feeling of your need of Christ, which is Poverty of Spirit; you hunger and thirst after Christ and his Righteousness above all things, and it is the Practice of your inward Man to groan and sigh, to ask and seek for Reconciliation with God in Christ. These things you have to comfort you against Sin and Satan, and all the Doubts of your own Heart. Therefore when you fear that all is but Hypocrisy; to fear is good and wholesom, but to think so is from the Flesh, carnal Reason, Satan, Darkness, because it is against that Truth which hath taken place in your Heart, merely of God's free favour towards you in Jesus Christ. As for Slips and Falls, so long as your Purpose is in all things to do the Will of God, and to judg your self for them, so soon as you find your self faulty, fear nothing; for these will stick by you to humble you, and to make you loath your self the more, and to long after the Holiness of your blessed Saviour, which is imputed unto you for your Holiness in the Sight of God. It was thus this gracious Minister of Christ Mr. Price, pour'd the Balm of the Gospel into his wounded Soul, and God blessed it to heal and comfort it. These truly Evangelical Instructions turn'd his Thoughts to Christ, to find that relief in him, which he had in vain sought from all other Considerations. I am come to this pass now (wrote my Father in a Letter to him) that Signs will do me no good alone; I have trusted too much to habitual Grace, for assurance of Justification, I tell you Christ is worth all. Thus coming unto Christ, his weary Soul found Rest, when in all its unquiet Motions, it could not find it any where else.

But the account of this Work of Faith I shall give (as I have done the other) in his own Words: 'It fell out, that soon after my being humbled for Sin, the Doctrine of 'Justification through Christ by Faith came into my Thoughts: But my Spirit was turned off from it by this Prejudice, that it had been the common deceit ordinarily of 'carnal Men, when they continu'd in their Sins, and so I might be deceiv'd in that Way 'and Course; and I remember'd that I had been also deceiv'd, in believing on Christ 'crucified with Joy, and Ravishment in my carnal State; and that remembrance was 'from time to time an hindrance to me from going to Christ; and I was pitch'd on this 'great Principle, that if I found I were sanctified (as I plainly did) I then was certainly justified. But I did not think my Sanctification to be my Justification, but an evidence of it only; and thus my Spirit was set upon examining the inherent Work in 'me wrought by the Spirit; and I pursued after Mortification of Lusts, and of Holiness within, and then I thought I should have the Comfort of Justification, or of being 'justified. And thus I was kept from going to Christ actually; tho I dealt with God 'and his Mercy in Christ, as having done all that was on his part to be done, in redeem-

'ing and reconciling us, and so I dealt immediately with God, and his pure Mercy
'and free Grace. But as it fell strongly into my Thoughts, that there was a necessity 'of Christ's Righteousness to justify me, as well as of his Grace which had sanctified
'me; and the course God took to convince me of it, and to set me awork about 'it, was this. He us'd the very Conviction which I had of Original Sin from Adam,
'in the two Branches of it; the Guilt of Adam's actual Transgression imputed to me,
'and the Corruption of my Nature thence deriv'd; I had had a mighty and large
'Conviction, and deep sense of these, and that all Lusts were Sins; and this mightily
'help'd me clearly to take in the absolute necessity of Justification by Christ's Righte'ousness, and to discern the perfect difference of it from Sanctification, and the neces'sity of it, and I gloried in it. I began to reflect that Jesus Christ was the Head for 'Salvation, as Adam had been for Sin and Condemnation: and that therefore as there 'were two Branches of Sin and Condemnation deriv'd to me from Adam, the one an
'Imputation of his Fact to me, the other a violent and universal Corruption of Nature
'inherent in me; just so it must be in Christ's Salvation of me; and hence I must have 'an Imputation of his Righteousness for Justification, as well as an holy Nature deriv'd
'from him for Sanctification; which Righteousness of Christ for Justification was per'fect, tho my Sanctification was imperfect. The Notion of this did mightily and ex-
'perimentally enlighten me.

He now alter'd his way of preaching, which before had been for the most part, if not wholly, for Conviction and Terror. But now his experience of the refreshing Comforts, which the Knowledg of Christ, and free Justification by his Righteousness alone, afforded him, made him zealous to preach the Gospel for the Consolation of Consciences afflicted, as his had been. And this was according to the Directions given him by that great Man, and lively Preacher of the Gospel, the Reverend Dr. Sibbs, who by my Father's Interest among the Fellows had been chosen Master of Katherine-Hall, and who familiarly said to him one day; Young Man, if you ever would do good, you must preach the Gospel, and the free Grace of God in Christ Jesus. As he called his Sermons of the Glory of the Gospel, printed in this fifth Volume of his Works, his Primitiæ Evangelicæ, or his evangelical First-Fruits; so the only Copy of them was preserv'd by a remarkable Providence. The Portmanteau in which they were, was by a Thief cut off from my Father's Horse in the dark of the Evening, just against St. Andrew's Church-yard in Holborn. The Clark or Sexton coming on the Lord's-day Morning to ring the Bell, found a bundle of Papers ty'd up with a String, lying at the foot of a great Tree. In it there were some Acquittances, which Mr. Leonard Green a Bookseller of Cambridge, who had accompanied my Father to London, had from some of his Customers. It was by these only the Clark could know to whom the Bundle did belong, and so he brought it to Mr. Green, which he was the more careful to do, because he was his particular Friend.

He was chosen in 1628. to preach the Lecture to the Town of Cambridg at Trinity-Church. Dr. Buckridge Bishop of Ely, at first made some difficulty of admitting him to it, unless he would solemnly promise, in pursuance of the King's Proclamation, not to preach about any controverted Points in Divinity. My Father alledged, that the most essential Articles of the Christian Faith being controverted by one or other, such a Promise would scarce leave him any Subject to preach on: That it was not his Majesty's Intention to inhibit him, or any other from preaching against the gross Errors of Popery. After some Opposition he was admitted Lecturer, and so continued till 1634, when being in his Conscience dissatisfied with the Terms of Conformity, he left the University and his Preferments. As he acted herein with all Sincerity, following the Light which God had given him, and the Persuasions of his own Mind and Conscience, in which no worldly Motives had any part; for if he had hearken'd to 'em, they would have sway'd him to a contrary Course: so I have heard him express himself with great Joy of Faith, and Thankfulness and Praise of the faithful Love of Jesus Christ to him, in performance of that Promise, Luke 18. 29, 30. And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, there is no Man that hath left House, or Parents, or Brethren, or Wife, or Children, for the Kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the World to come Life Everlasting.

'I freely renounced (said he) for Christ, when God converted me, all those De'signs of Pride, and Vain-glory, and Advancement of my self; upon which my Heart
'was so strongly set, that no Persuasions of Men, nor any worldly Considerations could 'have diverted me from the pursuit of them. No, it was the Power of God alone that
'prevail'd to make me do it: It was he alone made me willing to live in the meanest,
'and most afflicted Condition, so that I might serve him in all godly Sincerity. I chear-
'fully parted with all for Christ, and he hath made me abundant Compensation, not 'only in the Comforts and Joys of his Love, which are beyond comparison above all 'other things, but even in this World. What Love and Esteem I have had among good 'Men, he gave me: He alone made my Ministry in the Gospel acceptable, and blessed

' it with Succeſs, to the Converſion, and ſpiritual Good and Comfort of many Souls.

A. D. 1638. he married Mrs. Elizabeth Preſcott, the Daughter of Alderman Preſcott: of the other two, one was married to Sir William Leman of Northaw, the other to Sir Nicholas Criſp of Hammerſmith. He was very happy in a Woman, of ſuch a ſweet Temper, lively Wit and ſincere Piety, as endear'd her to all that knew her: And he was happy in an only Daughter he had by her, Elizabeth, who was married to Mr. John Maſon, a Citizen of London. In natural Endowments of Mind, and which is far more to be valued, in Grace and Piety, ſhe was a lively Image of her Parents: She loſt her Mother when ſhe was about ten Years of Age, and died two Years before her Father's Death.

The Perſecution growing hot in England, my Father reſolv'd to remove into ſome Foreign Country, where he might exerciſe his Miniſtry in the Goſpel, and enjoy the Ordinances of Chriſt, according to his Conſcience, which he could not do in his own Native Land. He went over into Holland in 1639. ſettled at laſt at Arnheim, and was Paſtor of the Engliſh Church in that City. During his abode there, ſome differences ariſing in the Engliſh Church at Rotterdam, my Father, and the Elders of the Church at Arnheim went thither, and God was pleas'd to bleſs their Brotherly Advice and Counſel to compoſe the differences, and to re-eſtabliſh the diſturb'd Peace of that Church. After ſome years continuance in Arnheim, he return'd into England, was Paſtor of a Church in London, and by an Ordinance of Parliament, June 12. 1643. appointed to be a Member of the venerable Aſſembly of Divines at Weſtminſter. The Debates about Church-Government and Diſcipline which aroſe in that Synod, are not ſo proper to be inſerted in the Life of a particular Perſon: I ſhall only take notice, that he took a brief account of every Days Tranſactions, of which I have fourteen or fifteen Volumes in 8vo. wrote with his own Hand. And his way of arguing was with ſuch Modeſty and Chriſtian Meekneſs, that it procur'd the Eſteem of thoſe who differ'd from him, and the other diſſenting Brethren in their Judgment.

In the Year 1647. he had Invitations from the Reverend Mr. John Cotton (in whom Grace and Learning were ſo happily conjoin'd) and other worthy Miniſters in New England to come over thither, which he was ſo much inclin'd to do, as he had put a great part of his Library on Shipboard. But the Perſuaſions of ſome Friends, to whoſe Counſel and Advice he paid a great deference, made him to alter his Reſolution.

In the Year 1649. he married Mrs. Mary Hammond, deſcended from the antient Family of the Hammonds in Shropſhire, whoſe Anceſtor was an Officer in the Army of William Duke of Normandy, when he invaded England, A. D. 1066. Tho ſhe was but in the ſeventeenth Year of her Age, ſhe had the Gravity and Prudence of a Matron: Her conjugal Affection, her tender Care, her wiſe Adminiſtration of the Affairs of her Family, the Goodneſs of her Diſpoſition, and more than all this, her Grace and Piety have left an honourable remembrance of her among all that knew her. He had by her two Sons, the eldeſt of which is yet living; the other whoſe Name was Richard, died in a Voyage to the Eaſt-Indies, whither he was ſent a year after his Father's Death by the Eaſt-India Company, as one of their Factors. She alſo bore to him two Daughters, who died in their Infancy.

In the ſame Year 1649. he was admitted Preſident of Magdalene College in Oxford; where he made it his Buſineſs to promote Piety and Learning. His Candor, ingenuous Nature, his Catholick Charity for all good Men tho of different Perſuaſions, won the Hearts of thoſe who had been moſt averſe to him. In conferring any Places of Preferment at his Diſpoſal, he was not byaſs'd by affection to a Party, but beſtow'd 'em where he ſaw Goodneſs and Merit. Thoſe who continu'd Fellows of the College many years after he left it, Mr. Brown, Mr. Byfield and Dr. Fairfax, retain'd an Affection and Eſteem for him, and always ſpoke of him with an honourable mention. He was not only Preſident of a College but Paſtor of a Church, which conſiſted of Perſons of Piety and Learning, Mr. Thankfull Owen Preſident of St. Johns, Mr. Francis Howell Maſter of Jeſus College, Mr. Theophilus Gale, Mr. Stephen Charnock, Mr. Blower, Mr. Baron, Mr. Terry, Mr. Lowman, and many others. Upon the Revolution in 1660. he reſign'd his Place of Preſident to Dr. Oliver, and remov'd to London, where he was Paſtor of the ſame Church which he had gather'd in Oxford, a great part of the Members of it following him to that City. In the faithful diſcharge of this Office, and Labour in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he continu'd till his Death.

It was now he liv'd a retir'd Life, ſpent in Prayer, Reading and Meditation, between which he divided his time. He read much, and the Authors which he moſt valued and ſtudied were Auguſtin, Calvin, Muſculus, Zanchius, Paræus, Waleus, Gomarus, Altingius, and Ameſius; among the Schoolmen Suarez and Eſtius. But the Scriptures were what he moſt ſtudied; and as he had furniſh'd his Library with a very good Collection of Commentators, he made good uſe of them. And as the Scriptures are an inexhauſtible Treaſure of Divine Knowledg, ſo by an eager ſearch into them, and comparing one with another, he diſcover'd thoſe Truths which are not to be found in other Authors. The

Love

Love and Free Grace of God, the Excellencies and Glories of our Lord Jesus Christ were the Truths, in which his Mind soar'd with greatest Delight. And it was not merely a speculative Pleasure, but these Truths were the Life and Food of his Soul; and as his Heart was affected with them, he wrote 'em with a Spiritual Warmth, that is better felt than expressed. Tho he read much, yet he spent more time in thinking; and it was by intense Thought, that he made himself Master of the Subject of his Discourse.

In that deplorable Calamity of the dreadful Fire at London, 1666. which laid in Ashes a considerable part of that City, he lost above half his Library, to the value of five hundred Pounds. There was this remarkable, that that part of it, which was lodg'd very near the Place where the Fire began, and which he accounted irrecoverably lost, were by the good Providence of God, and the Care and Diligence of his very good and faithful Friend Mr. Moses Lowman, tho with extreme hazard, preserv'd from the Flames. But the other part, which he thought might have been timely secur'd, being lodg'd at as great a distance as Breadstreet, was by the negligence of the Person whom he sent on purpose to take care of 'em, all burn'd. I heard him say, that God had struck him in a very sensible Place; but that as he had lov'd his Library too well, so God had rebuked him by this Affliction. He blessed God he had so order'd it in his Providence, that the Loss fell upon those Books which were of humane Learning; and that he had preserv'd those of Divinity, which were chiefly of use to him. As the exercise of Faith and of Patience, which is the Fruit of it, gave him relief, so on this occasion he meditated and wrote a Discourse of Patience, and its perfect Work, printed soon after.

In February 1669. a Fever seiz'd him, which in a few Days put an end to his Life: In all the Violence of it, he discoursed with that strength of Faith and assurance of Christ's Love, with that holy admiration of Free Grace, with that Joy in believing, and such Thanksgivings and Praises, as he extremely moved and affected all that heard him. That excellent Man Mr. Collins (who was then Pastor of the same Church, that he had formerly been Pastor of, and with its Consent, tho unwilling at first to part with him, he remov'd to Oxford, 1649. and which is now under the Pastoral Care of his worthy Son, and of Mr. Bragg) praying earnestly for him, offered up this Petition, That God would return into his Bosom all those Comforts, which he had by his Ministry of Free-grace, poured into so many distressed Souls. My dear Father felt this Prayer answered, in the abundant Comforts and Joys with which he was filled. He rejoiced in the thoughts that he was dying, and going to have a full and uninterrupted Communion with God. I am going (said he) to the three Persons, with whom I have had Communion; they have taken me, I did not take them. I shall be changed in the twinkling of an Eye, all my Lusts and Corruptions I shall be rid of, which I could not be here, those croaking Toads will fall off in a moment. And mentioning those great Examples of Faith, Heb. 11. All these (said he) died in Faith: I could not have imagined I should ever have had such a measure of Faith in this Hour, no I could never have imagin'd it. My Bow abides in Strength. Is Christ divided? No, I have the whole of his Righteousness, I am found in him, not in my own Righteousness which is of the Law, but in the Righteousness which is of God, which is by Faith of Jesus Christ, who loved me, and gave himself for me. Christ cannot love me better than he doth, I think I cannot love Christ better than I do, I am swallowed up in God. Directing his Speech to his two Sons, he exhorted 'em to value the Privilege of the Covenant. It hath taken hold on me (said he) my Mother was an Holy Woman, she spake nothing diminishing of it. It is a Privilege can't be valued enough, nor purchas'd with a great Sum of Money, alluding to the words of the chief Captain to Paul, Act. 22, 28. Then he exhorted them to be careful, that they did nothing to provoke God to reject them. Now (said he) I shall be ever with the Lord. With this assurance of Faith and Fulness of Joy his Soul left this World, and went to see and enjoy the reality of that blessed State of Glory, which in a Discourse on that Subject he had so well demonstrated. He died Feb. 1679. and in the eightieth Year of his Age.

THE CONTENTS OF THIS TREATISE.

BOOK I.

A General and Brief Scheme of the Whole of the Work Committed to the Holy Spirit in bringing us to Salvation; in an Enumeration of all Particulars, and of the Glory due unto Him for it. The Work of the Holy Spirit in the Unction of Jesus to be our Saviour.

Chap. 1. Some General Observations premis'd out of the Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Chapters of St. John's Gospel. p. 1.

Chap. 2. Some further Observations touching the coming of the Holy Ghost. That He had a Signal Coming design'd to him for His Glory, at the Feast of Pentecost, as Christ had a Visible Coming in the Flesh; the great Change made in the World thereby. p. 5.

Chap. 3. Of the Works of the Holy Ghost, upon Christ our Saviour. p. 8.

Chap. 4. His Operations upon the Church, the Body of Christ, and that First, as Collectively taken, The whole thereof. p. 10.

Chap. 5. His Operations in every part, and Member of the Church, and Body of Christ. p. 13

Chap. 6. The Uses of the Precedent Doctrine. 32.

Chap. 7. How the Holy Ghost is the Author of Regeneration, or the first Application of Salvation to us, in a more peculiar Manner, Comparatively to the other two Persons. 40.

Chap. 8. How the Holy Ghost is the Gift of God the Father to us, in and by Jesus Christ. That this inestimable Gift is bestowed freely by the pure Mercy, Grace and Love of God. 44.

Chap. 9. That we not only partake of the Effects of the Holy Spirit's Operations in us, but also of his Person dwelling in us. 51.

Chap. 10. The Uses of the Foregoing Doctrine. 59.

BOOK II.

That there are two States or Conditions thro' which God carries the Elect: The state of Nature, and the state of Grace. That the New Birth is the Passage between them; which evidenceth the Necessity of the New Birth, or Regeneration. The Reasons why God hath so order'd it, that the Generality of the Elect, who live to Riper Years, should for some time remain in that State of Nature, before he renews them: The Uses of the Doctrine.

Chap. 1. The Words of the Text explained; from which, and other Scriptures, it is proved, That the Elect are in a State of Sin, and Wrath, before they are brought into a State of Grace. 65.

Chap. 2. That it is by the New Birth that an Elect Soul is translated from a state of sin and wrath into a state of Grace. That it ought therefore to be our earnest Enquiry, Whether we are regenerated or no. That tho' we are by Nature the Children of Wrath, yet our Case is not desperate, because this State is alterable. 69.

Chap.

Chap. 3. That all Gods Elect do not indeed, before their Regeneration, remain in that State of sin and wrath, as is evident in the Case of Infants. 76.

Chap. 4. The Reasons why God suffers his Elect, grown unto riper Years, to continue for sometime in a State of sin. The Glory of Gods Mercy and free Grace is the more Illustrated by this Dispensation. 79.

Chap. 5. Other Reasons why God suffers his Elect, who are Adult, to continue for some time in a Sate of Sin. That this Dispensation turns to their Benefit and Advantage in the Event. That it serves for the Conviction, and Judgment of wicked Men, and greater Confusion of Satan. 86.

Chap. 6. The Uses of the foregoing Doctrine. That they who are brought into a State of Grace, should always bear in their Minds a remembrance of their former State of sin and misery. That it will have an Influence to promote, and strenghen their Faith. 91.

Chap. 7. The Second Use we should make of the Review of that wretched sinful state, out of which God removes us by the Work of his Grace, is to have our Hearts affected with the sense of Gods extraordinary Love Manifested herein, and to excite, and heighten our Love to God, by the consideration of this his great Love to us. 99.

Chap. 8. That the thoughts of Gods Excellent Love in bringing us out of this woful, state of sin, into a state of Grace; should enkindle in us sacred Zeal, and Fervency of Spirit, to Live in all holy Obedience to him. And what a dreadful condition they are in, who make an Ill Use of the Doctrine of Grace, by abusing it to an Encouragement of Carelesness, Negligence, or Licentiousness. 102.

BOOK III.

The Necessity of Regeneration Demonstrated by this Argument, That all that God and Christ have done towards their Reconciliation to us, will profit us nothing; unless we be reconciled to God. And how Conversion is set forth under the notion of Reconciliation, as on our part.

Chap. 1. That notwithstanding what God and Christ have done for their Reconciliation to us; it is by Gods Ordination necessary, that we be Reconciled to God, if ever we be saved. This prov'd from Gods design in his Reconciliation to us, to Glorifie his Holiness, &c. 107.

Chap. 2. The necessity of our being reconciled to God, evinced from Christs Design in his Work of Reconciliation. 111.

Chap. 3. That we may be Reconciled to God, it is necessary for us to be Convinced, that we are Enemies to God: That our Estate is dangerous. That yet God is appeasable: That there is a Mediator by whom the Soul may come to God, that we must also seek God and his Favour in Christ; and seek him with Confession of, and Mourning for Sin. 116.

Chap. 4. How our Reconciliation to God consists in renouncing all friendships and Interests which stand in Competition with his! And in choosing him for our alone Friend, and Portion; in resigning all to him; in having a Disposition and Nature like to God: And also in all our Addresses to God proceeding from an Inward Principle of pure good will unto God. 120.

Chap. 5. The Application, or Uses of the foregoing Doctrine. 130.

BOOK IV.

Of the Work which the Holy Spirit effecteth in us, as it is expressed under the Notion of our being Begotten unto God, and of a New Birth; from which the necessity of Regeneration is farther Demonstrated. Of the nature of the thing Begotten in us, as it is set forth under the Notion of Spirit. John 3. 6.

Chap. 1. The necessity of the New-Birth Demonstrated, and the Nature of it described, from the Notion of our being begotten unto God, 1 Pet. 1. 3, 4, 5. 139.

Chap. 2. That by Spirit, John 3. 5 is not meant the Indwelling of the Spirit. Nor that in the New Birth, the Holy Ghost produceth in us the same Nature which himself hath. 146.

Chap.

Chap. 3. That by Spirit, John 3. 5. is meant all those Gracious dispositions in the Soul, which do suit it unto things Spiritual, as Spiritual. 150.

Chap. 4. What it is to have the Heart elevated, and suited to all things Spiritual, as Spiritual. 152.

Chap. 5. That this suitableness of the Mind to Spiritual things, is the great distinguishing Character of one that is born of the Spirit, (John 3. 5.) from other who are not so. 155.

Chap. 6. How we may discern, value, and love Spiritual things, purely as Spiritual, and yet view them as Blessings to us: And regard and affect our own Interest and Benefit in them. 161.

Chap. 7. That the Blessings which we have by Christ are purely Spiritual, proved by an enumeration of them; how a Spiritual Heart considers and affects them in their pure Spirituality. 164.

Chap. 8. That a Spiritual Heart desires Heaven, as it is a Spiritual Happiness: Desires, and prizes inherent Graces as Spiritual Ornaments of the Soul, and a Divine Likeness, in which God is pleased: Takes pleasure in Holy duties on the Account of his having Converse and Communion with God in them. 169.

BOOK V.

Of the Work of the Holy Ghost in us, as it is represented to us under the Notion of a New Creature. That besides the Holy Spirits indwelling in us, and his Motions, and Actings of our Spirits, there are permanent, or abiding Principles wrought in our Souls, which dispose them for Holy Actions, and give Spiritual Abilities for the performance of them. That this new Creature is a change of the Heart. That it is a Conformity to the Image of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Chap. 1. That exciting and moving Grace is not all that the Spirit doth for us, to enable us to the performance of Holy Actions: But he works Grace inherent, which is an abiding Principle in us. The Opinions of the Popish Doctors, of the Arminians, and of some Enthusiasticks, considered. 173.

Chap. 2. That the Holy Ghost, when he makes us New Creatures, works in us fixed and abiding Principles of a Spiritual Life, proved; 1. Because it is a New Birth, which supposeth a Principle of Life given. 2. Because this New Creature is called Spirit. 3. Because it is called so, in Opposition to Flesh. 4. Because the Apostle speaks of our being Born of God, and so having received a Seed of Divine Life, which cannot sin. 5. Because he speaks of Eternal Life, abiding in us. 6. Because, 2 Pet. 1. 3. We are said to be Partakers of a Divine Nature, and this is something which is continually growing in us. 7. The same is proved from the Parable of the Sower, and his Seed, Mark. 4. 17. And of the Ten Virgins, Mat. 25. 177.

Chap. 3. That the Holy Ghost in Regenerating us, works in us an abiding Principle of a Spiritual Life, Demonstrated by other Arguments deduc'd from the Nature of the Work wrought in us. 186.

Chap. 4. That it is necessary, and congruous to the Nature of things, that such inward permanent Principles should be wrought in us by the Holy Ghost, to enable us to live Holily. 188.

Chap. 5. That the New Creature wrought in us by the Spirit of God, is a Change of Heart. 195.

Chap. 6. That the New Creature in us is a Conformity to the Image of Christ. 200.

BOOK VI.

That the Work of Grace wrought in us by the Spirit of God in Regeneration, is a Different and Higher Principle than Natural Conscience in its greatest Elevation of Light. The deficiency of Natural Conscience shewed, and the mistakes of Men about it detected.

Chap. 1. That all Men being under a Covenant of Works, or a Covenant of Grace: There are two Principles of Actions, viz. Conscience alone in it's Natural Light in the One, and Supernatural Grace with it's Light in the Hearts of the Other, who are Regenerate. The two Texts, Rom. 2. 14, 15, and Jer. 31. 31, 32, 33. Explained. That the Principle by which

OF THE WORK OF THE HOLY GHOST (THE Third Person of the TRINITY) IN OUR SALVATION.

BOOK I.

A General and Brief Scheme of the Whole of that Work Committed to the Holy Spirit in bringing us to Salvation; in an Enumeration of all Particulars, and of the Glory due unto Him for it. The Work of the Holy Spirit in the Unction of Jesus to be our Saviour.

CHAP. I.

Some Generall Observations premis'd out of the Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Chapters of St. John's Gospel.

THERE is a general Omission in the Saints of God, in their not giving the Holy Ghost that Glory that is due to his Person, and for his Great Work of Salvation in us; insomuch that we have in our Hearts almost lost this Third Person. We give daily in our Thoughts, Prayers, Affections and Speeches, an Honour to the Father and the Son; but who almost directs the Aims of his Praise (more than in that general way of Doxologie we use to close our Prayers with, All Glory be,&c.) unto God the Holy Ghost? He is a Person in the God-head, equal with the Father and the Son: And the Work he doth for us in its kind, is as great as those of the Father, or the Son. Therefore, by the Equity of all Law, a proportionable Honour from us is due to Him. God's ordination amongst Men is, That we should render to all their due, Honour to whom Honour is due, Rom. 13. 1. To the Magistracy (which there he speaks it of) according to their Place and Dignity; and this he makes a Debt, a Due, v. 8. And the like is enjoyned concerning Ministers that are Instruments of our Spiritual good, that we should esteem them very highly

Book I. highly for their Work's sake, 1 Thes. 5. 13. Let the same Law, I beseech you, take place in your Hearts towards the Holy Ghost, as well as the other Two Persons of the Trinity. The Holy Ghost is indeed the last in order of the Persons, as proceeding from the other Two; yet in the Participation of the God-head, He is equal with them both: And in His Work, though it be last done for us, He is not behind them, nor in the Glory of it, inferiour to what they have in theirs; and indeed He would not be God, equal with the Father and the Son, if the Work allotted to Him, to shew He is God, were not equal unto each of Theirs: And indeed, no less than all that is done, or to be done in us, was left to the Holy Ghost's share, for the ultimate execution of it; and it was not left Him as the Refuse, it being as necessary, and as great, as any of Theirs. But He being the last Person, took His own Lot of the Works about our Salvation, which are the last; which is to apply all, and to make all actually ours, whatever the other Two had done afore Him for us. The scope of this Treatise is to set forth this Work to you, in the amplitude of it; to the end, you may accordingly in your Hearts, Honour this Blessed and Holy Spirit. And surely, if to neglect the notice and observation of an Attribute of God, eminently imprinted on such or such a Work of God's; as of Power, in the Creation; Justice, in Governing the World; Mercy, in bearing with Sinners; Grace, in our Salvation: If this be made
Obs. 1. so great a Sin, (Rom. 1.) then it must be deemed a greater diminution to the God-head to neglect the Glorifying One of these Persons, who is possessed of the whole God-head and Attributes, when He is Manifested, or Interested in any Work most Gloriously.

In prosecution of my design to perswade you to Honour the Holy Ghost, as you do the Father and the Son, I shall consider the XIV, XV, and XVI Chapters of John, and make some General Observations upon various passages in those Chapters, serving to this purpose; and we shall see therein what a Valuation the Father and the Son, the other Persons with Him, have in those Chapters put upon Him, and His Work; and what a great and singular matter they make of His Work, and what Divine esteem of His Person, as by Christ's Speeches scattered up and down therein, appears. Tho the Father himself doth not immediately Speak, yet the Son doth in His Name, as well as in His own: And you may well take their Judgments, for they are Sharers and Corrivals with Him in point of Glory, about our Salvation: The Work of which, I shall only treat of.

There are these General Observations which I shall make upon the whole Series of the aforesaid Chapters, which serve the design of my Discourse.

First, Our Saviour had abundantly, in all his former Sermons, discoursed both his Work and Hand in our Salvation, as also his Fathers: And now at last, just when he was to go out of the World, he then, and not till then, doth more plainly, and more fully discover to them this Third Person, that had an after-Work left to him; who, to that end, was to come when he should be gone, and was to come visibly upon the Stage, to Act visibly a new Scene of Works left by the Father and Himself unto him, John 14. 16. I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another Comforter: He had said Chap. 8. 17. That the Testimony of Two Men (or Persons) is true; and that he himself was One Witness of those Two there spoken of; and his Father another, v. 18. I am One that bear Witness of my self; and the Father that sent Me, beareth Witness of Me. And he tells us here, you see, that there is yet Another, distinct from the Father and Himself; for in his saying I will pray the Father to give you another Comforter, he must mean a Third Person, distinct from them both, to be that Other. And moreover, this Spirit, as another Person, is said likewise to be a Third Witness of, and unto Christ, John 15. 26. and so is to be joyned as a Person, and third Witness with these Two; when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of Truth, which proceedeth from the Father, He shall testify of Me; like as of the Father and himself, the same had been spoken in that Chap. 8. 18. last cited. And the coherence with v. 17. argues their being Witnesses alike, to be distinct Persons, each from other; for v. 17. he alledgeth the Law, It is written in your Law, that the Testimony of Two Men is true. For therein lyes the validity of their Testimony, That they must be Two Men, or Two Persons, that make up a legal Teſtimony. And in this 15th Chap. v. 26. there is the Holy Ghoſt as a Third Witneſs brought into Court, to teſtify with Both; and therefore he is a Perſon, if a Witneſs; for there are Three Perſons, if Three Witneſſes; and the Law it ſelf He cites, ſays, Under the Mouth of two or three Witneſſes ſhall the matter be eſtabliſhed, Deut. 19. 15. and Mat. 18. 26. We may alſo obſerve how induſtriouſly careful Chriſt is further to characterize this Perſon of the Holy Spirit, the Author of theſe works, and to deſcribe who he was, and what mannerof Perſon, that they might be ſure to mind him, and have a regard to him; and to know whom, and to what Name, they were to be ſo much beholden. Thus v. 26. The Comforter, which is the Holy Ghoſt, (ſays he) And v. 27. Even the Spirit of Truth. And Chap. 15. 26. Whom I will ſend unto you from the Father, who proceedeth from the Father. Which laſt addition is to ſhew the Divine Proceſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and the Original, and the Conſubſtantiality of his Perſon, to be out of the Subſtance of the Father, proceeding from him; as (1 Cor. 2. 12.) the Apoſtle ſignallizeth him, The Spirit that is out of God. Or (which is all one) that hath his ſubſiſtance, or his being a Perſon, by proceeding from God the Father, and ſo being God with God; inſomuch as it is not in any wiſe to be underſtood that he Subſiſted Extra Deum, out of, or ſeparate from God; for he had ſaid v. 11. that he is in God, even as the Spirit of a Man is ſaid to be in him. Book I.

Some would underſtand that ſpeech of Chriſt's [Who proceedeth from the Father] to be meant in reſpect of God's ſending him forth to us, and his Embaſſage to us. But that had been ſaid by Chriſt in the words afore, Whom I will ſend from the Father; and therefore to intend the words after (Who cometh from the Father) of an Embaſſadors ſending, had been needleſs, for Chriſt had ſaid that already, and therefore if that had been all the meaning of that addition, he had but ſaid the ſame over a ſecond time. There is therefore in thoſe ſpeeches, a manifeſt diſtinguiſhing between that Diſpenſatory Sending of Him from the Father to them, and that Subſtantial proceeding of his from the Father, as a Third Perſon; and this is added to ſhew the Original ground, why it muſt be from the Father that he ſends him, and with his conſent firſt had; becauſe his very Perſon is by proceeding from the Father, and therefore this his Office too. And therefore that latter is ſpoken in the preſent time; whereas that other ſpeech of Chriſt's, Whom I will ſend from the Father, is in the future; becauſe the Holy Ghoſt his Diſpenſatory ſending, both from the Father and from Chriſt, was yet to come; whereas this Perſonal proceeding of his from the Father, was Then, when he ſpake it, and is continually, and had been from Eternity.

Now the tendency of theſe reiterated deſignations of the Perſon, doth manifeſt Chriſt's ſedulous intention, and tender regard to, and for the Honour of this, ſo Great a Perſon; and to raiſe up in their hearts a valuation of this Perſon himſelf, that ſhould be the Comforter; and to make them careful to give Glory to Him, even the Holy Ghoſt, as a Third Perſon, and the Comforter: As likewiſe to aſſure them of his coming upon them, when Himſelf was gone; and that therefore they might Honour Him in His coming, for His Work; as he would have them to Honour himſelf for his own Work, and coming in the Fleſh. It is as if he had ſaid, I would not, for that honour I ever look for from your ſelves, that you ſhould ſo attribute the Comfort you ſhall have, or the revealing of Truth to you, (from which he is called The Spirit of Truth) ſo unto Me or my Father alone, as to neglect, or omit to give him his peculiar honour in it; for it properly, and of due belongs to him. You are and ſhall be beholden to Me and my Father, for the ſending of Him; but you are to be eſpecially beholden to Himſelf, for that Work he doth in you, being ſent by Us. Be ſure therefore to take notice of him and his Perſon, diſtinct both from Me and my Father. For it is another Comforter (ſayes he, v. 16) which is the Holy Ghoſt, (v. 26.) and therefore you ought, as diſtinctly to Glorify Him as you would do Us. Obſ. 2.

The Second Obſervation is Concerning the Particular Works which Chriſt ſayes are His; and for which we are to honour Him. And an enumeration of His Works, being the Scope of this my Diſcourſe, We may find divers particulars that are the moſt eminent of them, named and ſpecified in theſe Chapters to our Hand, which will ſufficiently ſerve for me to take the mention of them for an Example to me to proceed to ſpecify other Works that are attributed to Him elſe-where: This I premiſe, becauſe I would not be obliged to fetch each of them which I ſhall after name, out of theſe Chapters; and ſo to confine my ſelf thereto.

The Particular Eminent Work indeed on which He inſiſts in theſe Chapters, is, that of being A Comforter to them; for the occaſion of theſe Sermons was to relieve, and pacify the Apoſtles Minds, againſt his own leaving them, as they thought, Deſolate. But therewith He further brings in other Works of his beſides, and in effect that He ſhould do All, that they had need of his help In. He Inſinuates to them how much already themſelves had been obliged unto Him, for his Working hitherto in them; which He calls them to look back upon, for they had received Him already in Regenerating, Converting and Calling them out from the World (which was his Firſt and Great Work in them;) and ſo diſtinguiſhed them from the World. Thus Chap. 14. 16, 17. The Comforter, the Spirit of Truth; whom the World cannot receive, becauſe it ſeeth Him not, neither knoweth Him; that is, Knows him not by experience of any Saving Work upon them; and ſo they cannot receive Him as a Comforter, becauſe it is neceſſary they firſt receive Him as a Converter. But ye know Him; and have found Him to have begotten you again; for He dwelleth in you; Hath come and taken Poſſeſſion of you, and acted hitherto in you all that Spiritual good, that hath been found in you; and thereby hath taken everlaſting Poſſeſſion of you, as it follows, and ſhall be in you, to perfect all that is wanting, and that for ever: as v. 16.

A Second Work there ſpecified is, that he ſhould be to them A Spirit of Truth, to Lead them into All Truth; which, as a ſacred Depoſitum, He was by them, as Apoſtles, to leave unto the reſt of the World; Chap. 14. 26. He ſhall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatſoever I have Said unto you. And not only ſo, but ſhall ſuggeſt new to you, Chap. 16. 12, 13. I have many things to ſay unto you, but ye cannot bear them now: Howbeit when He, the Spirit of Truth, is come, He ſhall not ſpeak of Himſelf, but whatſoever He ſhall hear, that ſhall He ſpeak.

A Third Work Inſtanced in is, that He will ſhew you things to Come: And this to that end, that ye may Teach, and Write them to others, Chap. 15. 26, 27. He ſhall bear Witneſs of Me, and you ſhall bear Witneſs of Me.

A Fourth Work Specifyed is, to Sanctifie them, againſt Sin and Corruption. This Work is Imported in His Name, the Holy Spirit; as the other, of Leading them into all Truth, is ſignified by that other Title, the Spirit of Truth; for He is termed the Holy Spirit; becauſe He Sanctifies, Rom. 15. 16. Being Sanctified by the Holy Ghoſt.

Fifthly, He ſhall be a Comforter to you, againſt all Sorrows, Chap. 14.
Obſ. 3. 16, 17, 18.

Sixthly, He ſhall Aſſiſt and Direct you in all your Prayers, and be the Inditer of them for you; and ſo effectually as to obtain what you ſhall ask, Chap. 16. 23. Verily, verily, whatſoever ye ſhall ask the Father in my Name, He will give it you: Hitherto have you ask'd nothing in my Name; for the Holy Ghoſt was not as yet given, as He in theſe Chapters promiſeth He ſhould be. But in that Day, namely when the Holy Ghoſt is Come, ye ſhall ask in my Name; then, (as in Chap. 14. 20.) In that Day, namely, when the Comforter is Come, (That Word in that Day, refers thereunto) Ye ſhall know that I am in my Father, and you in me. Theſe Works He ſpecifies as to themſelves.

But withal, Seventhly, He mentions His Works upon the World, by their Miniſtry; unto whom they were ſent: He ſhall be a Converter, and Convincer of the World; that is, the Glory of the Converſion of the Gentiles, is reſerved for Him: By your Miniſtry, Chap. 16. v. 8, 9. when He is come, He will reprove the World of Sin, and of Righteouſneſs, and of Judgment: Of Sin, becauſe they Believe not on me &c. To which Three Enumerations, the Total of the Work of Converſion is reduced, of which afterwards.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, Obſerve what Chriſt ſays, I my ſelf muſt be gone, (ſaith He) and diſappear, to the end it may appear that all this whole Work is His, not mine, v. 7. If I go not away, the Comforter will not Come; He will not do theſe Works while I am here; and I have commited all to Him. That look as my Father hath viſibly Commited all Judgment unto me (John 5. v. 22, 23. For the Father Judgeth no man, but hath commited all Judgment unto the Son; that all men ſhould Honour the Son, even as they Honour the Father) ſo here, I and my Father will ſend him, having Committed all theſe things to Him, That all Men might Honour the Holy Ghoſt, even as they Honour the Father and the Son. Even, as in like manner the reaſon why the Spirit was not ſent, whilſt Chriſt was on Earth, was to ſhew, that not the Father alone ſent Him; but that He came from Chriſt, as well as from the Father: And ſo Chriſt, He went to Heaven, to ſhew that both Father and Son would ſend the Holy Ghoſt from thence; Acts 2. 32, 33. This Jeſus hath God raiſed up, whereof we all are Witneſſes: Therefore being by the Right Hand of God Exalted, and having received of the Father, the Promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, He hath ſhed forth this, which you ſee and hear: Thus wary and careful are every of the Perſons, to provide for the Honour of each other in our Hearts: And as careful ſhould we be, to give it to them accordingly.

CHAP. II.

Some further Obſervations touching the Coming of the Holy Ghoſt. That He had a Signal Coming deſigned to him for His Glory, at the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, as Chriſt Had a Viſible Coming in the Fleſh; The Great Change made in the World thereby.

ADd to theſe Obſervations out of thoſe Chapters, theſe alſo that follow; concerning this His Coming promiſed, in thoſe Chapters; but obſerved out of other Scriptures.

I. That a Signal Coming ſhould be appointed to Him, to the performance of His Work; as well as unto Chriſt to perform His. This Coming of His you have inculcated again and again in theſe Chapters, in theſe Words, When He is Come, and the like: Which imported that although He was given to Work Regeneration in Men afore, even under the old Teſtament (as Nehem. 9. 20. He gave them His good Spirit; And many other places ſhew) that yet to let all the World of Believers take notice his Coming, and his Work; He muſt have a coming in ſtate; in a Solemn and Viſible manner; accompanied with viſible Effects; as well as Chriſt had, and whereof all the Jews ſhould be, and were Witneſſes, (thus Acts 2. 4. Chapters) and it was alſo apparent throughout the Primitive Times, in outward Signs, and Miracles; extraordinary Gifts, and Converſions. And as Chriſt, tho' he was, under the Old Teſtament, preſent with that Church, and with the Fathers, Acts 7. 37, 38. This is He that was in the Church in the Wilderneſs, with the Angel which ſpake to Moſes in the Mount Sinai; and with our Fathers) yet had a viſible coming in Fleſh, to manifeſt his Perſon; that it was He who had done all thoſe works then; and came now to work more, and far greater works: So there was a viſible coming of the Holy Ghoſt, both in the Appearance of him as a Dove, deſcending on Chriſt at Firſt, and afterward in the reſemblance of cloven Tongues.

And

Book I. And there was not a personal Union of the Holy Ghost, with that Doves and those Tongues, as in Christs manifestation in the Flesh, there was between the Eternal Son of God and humane Nature: Yet these appearances of the Holy Ghost are to be understood by us, as visible outward Representations, and Discoveries of Him, to be the Third Person. And that it had been He who was the Author of all the whole work of Application in the Saints; then under the Old Testament; as well as now, of Regeneration, and Sanctification; and of Comforting; and that He had been indwelling in all Saints afore this his coming, as well as after.

And this His coming was as clearly prophesied of, and solemn Promise made thereof, under the Old Testament; as there was of Christs coming in the Flesh: Which did so much heighten and raise up the expectations of all Believers then, about Him; as that upon which, and whereby, so great a change should be made in the Church and World, in the last days. This the Apostle Peter commemorates and applies upon the Spirit's visible coming upon himself, and the rest of his Fellows, Acts 2. 16, 17, 18. This is that which was spoken by the Prophet Joel, it shall come to pass in the last days (saith God) I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh, and your Sons and your Daughters shall Prophesie, and your young Men shall see Visions, and your Old Men shall dream Dreams, and on my Servants and on my Handmaidens, I will pour out in those Days, of my Spirit, and they shall prophesie; and so on. Yea, this coming of the Spirit, I may farther call, the Great Promise of the New Testament. For as Christ's coming was the great Promise of the Old Testament; so the sending of the Spirit is entituled the Promise of the Father in the New, Luke 21. 49. And behold I send the Promise of my Father upon you. And He is so stiled, not only in that He had been promised in the Old Testament by the Prophets, (as in that of 2 Joel, 28, 29. now cited) and in multitude of other Prophecies of old; but because that Christ himself did now DE NOVO (as it were) promulge it as his promise, and the Fathers; and that upon this Authority, that this Spirit proceeded from Him, as well as from the Father, and that he was first to receive, Him from us, and then shed Him forth on us, Acts 2. 33. That so it might be made good, that all the Promises are Yea and Amen in Him; seeing this Promise of the Spirit is given upon Christ's account, as He is the Son (according to that, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts, Gal. 3. 13, 14. compared) and also because now under the New-Testament this promise was to be fulfilled in such a manner and measure as was never under the Old; and so it becomes a Promise proper to the New, That next great Promise, which was to succeed that of Christ himself, The Promise of Promises; The sole great Promise now left to be given. God the Father had but two Grand Gifts to bestow; and when once they should be given out of Him, He had left then nothing that was great (comparatively) to give, for they contained all Good in them; and these two Gifts were his Son, who was his Promise in the Old Testament; and His Spirit, the Promise of the New. And the Father doth Honour himself to us by this Title, that He is the Promiser and Giver of the Spirit; And Christ himself now when he is come, takes the Honour too of that, to make the sending of the Spirit His Promise also, in saying, Behold I send Him, Luke, 24. 49. and John 14. 26. Whom my Father will send in my Name. And 'tis evident, that our Saviour in calling Him the Promise of the Father, which was spoken by Him after his Resurrection, Luke 24. 49. doth refer to his own Words and Sermons uttered afore his Resurrection, in 14, 15, 16, Chapters of John, rather than to the Prophets primarily in his Intention, Acts 1. 4. Wait for the Promise of the Father which ye have heard of me.

Again, Christ had John the Baptist, who began the Gospel, to foretel his manifestation in the Flesh, and to prepare the way for this Lord. And besides him, His Angels did it: But the Holy Ghost hath Christ Himself to fore-tell his coming upon Flesh: And that to prepare the Hearts of Men for Him, whenever he should come.

And Lastly, on purpose to Honour His visible coming, He had answerably an extraordinary work left to him, upon that his visible coming: The Conversion of the whole Gentile World; and the raising and building of the Churches of the the New Teſtament, was reſerved of His Glory. To believe in the Holy Ghoſt, and the Holy Catholick Church; you know how near they ſtand together in the Creed. His viſible coming at Pentecoſt, was the viſible Conſecration, and Dedication of that great Temple, The Myſtical Body of Chriſt, to be rear'd under the Goſpel (the ſeveral Members of which Body are called Temples of the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Cor. 3. 16.) as that Appearance at Chriſt's Baptiſm, was the Conſecration of the Head, of this Work of the Spirit, that of the Pſalmiſt, though ſpoken litterally of the firſt Creation, may yet be uſed in Alluſion; and is Myſtically applied by ſome of the Fathers thereunto, Pſal. 104. 30. Thou ſendeſt forth thy Spirit, they are Created; thou reneweſt the face of the Earth. The whole Earth was decked, and adorned with a new Array, when the Spirit of God moved upon that Chaos; and the whole face of the World was in that Age of the Goſpels promulgation, no other than a Chaos, void, and without all form; All Nations had walk'd in their own ways: But the Spirit was ſent forth, and lo this barren Wilderneſs became a fruitful field all the World over.

Book I.

Ye are the Temples of the Holy Ghoſt.

The Feaſt of Pentecoſt, was under the old Law, the Feaſt of the firſt Fruits; Lev. 8, 23. Thus it was in the Type; and the Apoſtles on that day received for the Church of the New Teſtament, the Firſt Fruits of the Spirit: Rom. 8. 23. And the Sickle was then firſt put in, in the Converſion of the Three Thouſand out of all Nations; (whether Jews, or Gentiles, or mixt with both) ſo to begin that great Harveſt, whereof theſe were the firſt Fruits or Seeds which conſecrated the reſt, (as the firſt Fruits did under the Law;) in after Ages to come, as Chriſt told them that their Fruit ſhould remain, John 15. 16. And this coming of the Holy Ghoſt then, and Converting ſuch as were Inhabitants out of all Nations, was by Chriſt deſigned to be for the handſel of the Converſion of all Nations: Acts 1. 8. Ye ſhall receive power, after that the Holy Ghoſt is come upon you; and Ye ſhall be Witneſſes unto me, both in Jeruſalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermoſt parts of the Earth; charging them to ſtay at Jeruſalem, and not to ſtir one foot out from thence; but wait firſt for the promiſe of the Father; and v. 4. For it would have been a vain attempt to have endeavoured to Convert the World, until the Holy Ghoſt had come upon them; and hence it was that this his viſible coming was reckoned by the chief Apoſtle, the firſt Æra; the beginning of the Goſpel; as the beginning of the Creation deſcribed by Moſes, is of the World: Acts 11. 15. The Holy Ghoſt fell upon them Gentiles, as upon us, at the beginning; which refers to that at Pentecoſt. And this yet further anſwers the Type: For the firſt giving of the Law by Moſes, was on that day; the Day of Pentecoſt; and ſo this coming of the Spirit that Day, was juſtly reckon'd the beginning of the Goſpel, although the account of the Chriſtian World begins with the Nativity of Chriſt. But the full Revelation of the Goſpel, and the Myſteries thereof, and the Converſion of the World of the Gentiles, this was ordained for the Spirits Glory; and reſerved for his coming John 16. Which Converſion of the World is magnified as an after-Sacrifice; (as the Saints Sufferings after Chriſts, are ſtyled the after-Sufferings of Chriſt, Col. 1 preſented unto God by the Holy Ghoſt, Chriſt offered up himſelf as that alone meritorious Sacrifice; but this of the Gentiles did come after: A Sacrifice Sanctified by the Holy Ghoſt. The Grace vouchſafed to the Apoſtle for his poor Inſtrumentalneſs therein, he owns, whilſt He yet gives the Glory of it to the Holy Ghoſt. Which you may find in Rom. 15. 15, 16. To me this Grace was given, that I ſhould be the Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles; Miniſtring the Goſpel of God; that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable; being Sanctified by the Holy Ghoſt. The Gentiles you know before had ever been eſteemed unclean; and upon that account unmeet to be an offering to God; as the Law ſhews; which that Viſion of all ſorts of unclean Beaſts made to Peter in the Sheet, (Acts 10.) And the Comment thereupon, which He makes, that the Gentiles were meant, doth ſhew. But theſe were all purified by the Holy Ghoſts converting of them, that thereby all difference was taken away; and ſo much as thoſe that were not to be convers'd with by a Jew, were now offered up as a Sacrifice to God. Thus Acts 15. 8, 9. God which know-

Book I. knoweth the Hearts, bare them Witness; giving them the Holy Ghost, even as He did us: And put no difference between us, and them; purifying their Hearts by Faith.

Thus much for some General Observations premised.

CHAP. III.

Of the Works of the Holy Ghost, upon Christ our Saviour.

THE Summing up of the Works of the Holy Spirit, and laying them altogether in one heap; that we find scattered up and down in the Scriptures; would, if we were able to recollect them all, and every particular, arise to a very great Bulk: I shall reduce them which I have Gleaned as most Eminent, unto these Three Heads.

1. What Work and Use He is, and was of, to Christ our Head.

2. What to the Church; taken Collectively.

3. What to every Saint: And in the filling up of these, I shall not mention any thing, that may by consequence be argued His; but what the Scriptures do expressly attribute to Him.

I shall first describe His Operations upon Christ our Head.

1. It was the Holy Ghost that formed His Humane Nature in the Womb: Mat. 1. 18. 'Tis said that Mary was found with Child of the Holy Ghost: and v. 20. That which is conceived in her, is of the Holy Ghost: So then He made the Man Jesus, both Body and Soul.

2. Some Divines do further ascribe unto this Spirit the special Honour of tying that Marriage knot, or Union, between the Son of God, and that Man Jesus, whom the Holy Ghost formed in the Virgins Womb. Now if their meaning be that He, in common with the Father, and the Son, did joyn in that great Action, I grant it, according to the measure of that General Rule, that opera ad extra sunt indivisa; All works outward, or that are wrought not within the Godhead, it self; which admit some exception, all the Three Persons had a joint common hand in. But that which is my proper Subject, is, what special Honour in those works, doth by way of Eminency belong to the Holy Ghost in any of these Works: And so considered, I have not found a ground why to attribute the Personal Union more particularly to the Holy Ghost; but rather according (unto what occurs to my Observation, in the Scriptures, and to consonant Reason) that Action is more peculiarly to be Attributed to the Son Himself; as Second Person; who took up into one Person with Himself that Humane Nature. The Father indeed sent the Son into the World, to take Flesh; and the Holy Ghost formed that flesh He assumed; but it was the Son's Special Act to take it up into Himself; and to assume it. So the Apostle tells us, Heb. 2. 16. He took on him, the Seed of Abraham: Or He took to himself: Assumpsit ad: Which Word denotes the very Act of that Union: And it was his own single Act, and in reason it must have been so; for it was an Act of a Person knowing, and actually intelligent in what he did, when it was done by Him. And that thing he did was a taking to himself a Foreign Nature, to be one Person with himself; as a Perſon affording his own Subſiſtance unto that Nature, to be a Perſon with Himſelf. Himſelf muſt Communicate that Perſonalitie, and none other for Him, for 'tis properly his own to beſtow, unto which that in Chap. 10. accords; when he comes into the World, He ſays, A Body haſt thou prepared me; ſpeaking to his Father, who prepared that Body by the Holy Ghoſt; and 'twas his Fathers Ordination He ſhould take it; but He, as a Perſon exiſting afore He took it, as coming into World by aſſuming it, ſays, Lo I come to do thy Will, ô God, as v. 7. it is more expreſsly added. But

3. It was the Holy Ghoſt had the Honour of the Conſecration of Him, to be the Chriſt; and that by anointing Him without, or above meaſure; as John the Baptiſt Witneſſed, John 3.34. It was with Power and all Grace that he was anointed, Iſa. 11. 2. The Spirit of the Lord ſhall reſt upon Him; and the Spirit of Wiſdom, and Underſtanding; the Spirit of Counſel, and Might; the Spirit of Knowledge, and of the fear of the Lord. What is Meſſiah, or χριστὸς; but the moſt Holy One, anointed? Dan. 9. Now with what Oyl was Jeſus anointed, and ſo made Chriſt? Acts 10. 38. God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghoſt. The Holy Ghoſt is that Oyl He is anointed with, above his fellows; and he hath his Name of Chriſt, which is the chief Name of his Perſon, from the Holy Ghoſt; as he hath that of Jeſus, for ſaving us, which is his Work. Chriſt the anointed, is the Name that ſpeaks all his Offices. Kings, Prieſts, and Prophets, who were only his ſhadows, were anointed. And it is made the true proper ſign and token of his Perſon's being the Son of God, that the Holy Ghoſt came viſibly on Him, and abode upon Him: John 1. 32, 33, 34, And John bare record, ſaying, I ſaw the Spirit deſcending from Heaven, like a Dove, and it abode upon Him: And I knew him not; but he that ſent me to baptize with Water, the ſame ſaid unto me, Upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit deſcending, and remaining on Him; the ſame is He which Baptiſeth with the Holy Ghoſt: And I ſaw, and bare record, that this is the Son of God: With which compare John 7. 38, 39. He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath ſaid, out of his Belly ſhall flow Rivers of Living Water: But this ſpake He of the Spirit, which they that believe on Him, ſhould receive; for the Holy Ghoſt was not yet given, becauſe that Jeſus was not yet Glorified: Whereupon, v. 40, 41. Many of the People, when they heard that ſaying, Of a truth, ſaid they, this is that Prophet, others, This is the Chriſt. This deſcending viſibly of the Spirit, (which was done firſt to Him) was the higheſt evidence of theſe that could be, excepting only that of the Father, This is my Beloved Son. The Baptiſt makes theſe his higheſt Characters, that it was he Baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, as with fire; and that he received the Spirit without meaſure, tho' he was perſonally full of Grace, and Truth, himſelf, as He was the Son of God.

4. It was the Holy Ghoſt anointed Him to all his Offices, as firſt to be a Prophet, and Preacher of the Goſpel; which was firſt ſpoken by the Lord; Heb. 2. Thus Luke 4. 18. (and ſome think it was his firſt Text.) The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath ſent me to heal the broken Hearted, to Preach Deliverance to the Captives, and recovering ſight to the Blind; to ſet at libertie them that are bruiſed. Whether you take the words ἕνεκεν Antecedently, or Conſequently, either that becauſe by God he was deſigned to be a Preacher, therefore the Spirit was on Him, or that becauſe the Spirit was on Him, He therefore was fitted to be a Preacher; it comes all to one, as to my purpoſe. The Spirit was He that made him a Preacher of the Goſpel, to utter things which man never did; and to ſpeak in ſuch a manner as Man never did. And this is evident by the Context, in that Luke 4. for it was his firſt Sermon after his Baptiſm, when the Holy Ghoſt had a new fallen on him; and he had returned full of the Holy Ghoſt: As Luke 4. 1. and again in v. 14. He returned, (or went) full of the Holy Ghoſt, into Galilee, his ordinary ſtanding Dioceſs, for his ordinary Preaching; as the Evangeliſts ſhew.

5. The Holy Ghoſt anointed him with power to do all his Miracles, and all the good he did: So in Acts 10. 38. He was anointed with the Holy Ghoſt, and with Power, going about doing good; and healing all that were oppreſſed of the Devil: Whom it is expreſsly ſaid, he caſt out by the Spirit, Mat. 12. 28.

Book I.

6. When Christ was dead, who was it raised him up from the Grave? Which work was so great a work, as God himself accounts it as a new begetting, or making him anew; and as it were a second Conception of Him: A new Edition of his Son Christ: Acts 13. 33. He raised up Jesus again, as it is written in the second Psalm, Thou art my Son, this Day have I begotten Thee. God rejoyceth, as having but then recovered, and found his Son, that was as it were lost in the likeness of sinful flesh. Now who was the immediate cause of this new Advancement, whereby he was born into the other World? The Holy Ghost, Rom. 8. 11. But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, dwell in you, He that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal Bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you: God by his Spirit raiseth up both Christ and us.

7. When he ascended, who filled him with that Glory? The Holy Ghost, Psal. 45. He was anointed with the Oyl of Gladness, above his Fellows: Which Oyl, Acts 10. 38. is said to be the Holy Ghost.

8. 'Twas the Holy Ghost that solemnly anointed him as King in Heaven: Acts. 2. 33. Being at the Right Hand of God; and having received of the Father, the promise of the Holy Ghost, &c. Peter's inference from thence is, v. 36. Therefore let all the House of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have Crucified, both Lord and Christ.

9. It was, and is the Holy Ghost that proclaims him Christ in all Mens Hearts. He sets the Crown upon him there also, as well as in Heaven; in so much that no Man could ever come to acknowledge Him the Christ, but from the Spirit. 1 Cor. 12. 3. No Man can say Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost. So as what ever right he had in his Person, or by his Fathers designation; (of which in Acts 2. 36. Rom. 14. 9.) yet it is the Spirit that publickly proclaimed Him such, brought him in all his Subjects, or to use Christs own words, He it is that Glorifies Me, shewing it to them, John 16. 14. All this He hath done to and for Christ our Head.

CHAP. IV.

His Operations upon the Church, the Body of Christ, and that First as Collectively taken, The whole thereof.

LET us now consider the Operations of the Holy Ghost in and upon the Church, collectively taken, as the Body of Christ.

1. He was the first Founder of the Church of the New Testament. The Apostle writing to the Ephesians; who, (as you know) had formerly Gloried of their Temple of Diana, as one of the Seven Wonders of the Gentile World, sets before them, Chap. 2. an Infinitely far greater and more glorious Temple, whereof they themselves, he tells them, were a part, even the Church Universal of the New Testament consisting of Jew and Gentile, Eph. 2. 20. A Building fitly Framed together, that groweth up into an Holy Temple in the Lord. But then, who is the Builder and Framer of this Fabrick, Age after Age, till all is perfect? And through whom also is it, that this Temple when built, is consecrated unto God, for a Mansion House, or Habitation, who hath the whole World to dwell in? The 22 v. shews both, In whom (namely Christ) ye (Ephesians) are also builded up together for an Habitation of God through the Spirit which in the coherence with the former, is as if he had said, He that made you the Ephesians, a Church, (which was as a particular Member of that Universal Body,) as Members in Particular 1 Cor. 12. v. 27.) the same Spirit was the Builder of that great Cathedral in which are comprehended all particular Churches as ſmaller Oratories: So as he is the great Founder of all, both in the whole; yea, of every Member that Worſhips therein. Thus in v. 18. Through him (namely Chriſt) we have both (Jew and Gentile) acceſs to God (but) through the Spirit. Yea, He is the Soul of this one Body, Eph. 4. 4. There is one Body, and one Spirit. Chriſt bears the Relation of Head to this Body; but who is the Univerſal Soul, which is in all, and every part of it? 'Tis the Holy Ghoſt: And, Oh! how Glorious a Church and Body ſhall Chriſt have, when all are met and ſet together, and filled full of this Spirit, at the latter day! Eph. 5. 27. At that day it is, he will preſent it to Himſelf a Glorious Church, not having ſpot, or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; Thus ſpake the Husband, the Head of this Spouſe. But who is the Soul that gives this Beauty, that formed this Symetry of all the Members, and adds Life to all? The Holy Ghoſt. And now let us think, what a mighty and vaſt Work, this of forming and building the Univerſal Church is, whereof this Holy Spirit is the Former and Effecter. There was a perfect pattern and platform of the whole and every Member thereof, in God's breaſt, an Idea alſo in Chriſt's (as appears by the laſt cited Eph. 5.) which this Spirit will bring in the End the whole unto, and frame each living Stone in the Building, to bear a due, ſuitable, and comely Proportion in the whole, and each to other. And this is, and hath been providentially a doing and a framing in every part thereof, in all and every Age, and hath been wrought from the begining of the World, in the ſeveral Parcels apart; even as each piece of Tapeſtry in hangings, uſe to be wrought in little bits and ſmall parcels; which when finiſhed, are then at laſt ſet together. And this Spirit, who is the Dedolator, the Architectonical Maſter-workman, hath in his Eye, every degree of Grace He works in every of theſe Members hearts, who is a Stone in this Building, according to the Pattern which the Father and Chriſt, have in their Idea and Model, of every particular, as alſo of the whole; and exactly frames each and the whole, unto their mind, and miſſeth not the leaſt of the ſet proportion in the Pattern; which in ſo long, ſo various, and multifarious a work to do, (as this therefore muſt be ſuppoſed) what infinite Wiſdom and Power doth it require, and argues him to be God, that is in God (as the Spirit of a Man within him) and ſearcheth the deep things of God.

Book I

2. All the means of the Churche's Edification, (as the Word, Miniſtry, and all Goſpel Ordinances) all which are the Goods and Chattels, the Houſholdſtuff of the Church Univerſal (Paul and Apollo are theirs,) theſe are all of Him, and Bleſſed by Him. He wrote the Scriptures, 2 Pet. 1. 21. gave the Prophecies, 1 Pet. 1. 13. Revealed the Goſpel, Eph. 5. 5. in ſuch a manner and meaſure, and with ſuch an enlargement as never before, to the Sons of Men.

The care of all that great Affair of the Miniſtry, and the work thereof, is incumbent on Him, lyes on His hands to manage. In the New Teſtament we find Him once immediatly ſpeaking in His own Perſon, and taking on Him as a Perſon, (as the Father had done afore, when he ſaid, This is my well-beloved Son) and the occaſion was particular about the execution of this work of the Miniſtry, 'tis in Acts 13. 2. The Holy Ghoſt ſaid, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. In which Effort of His, He ſpeaks as One entred upon an Office or Work committed to Him, and betruſted with Him: And it is as if he had ſaid, This is my work, proper to me, I am the immediate Governour and Adminiſtrator herein; for all that any way concerns the edification of the Church, is committed to My management and care. And He ſays He had deſigned Paul and Barnabas to one part, as Peter and John to another, Gal. 2. yea all their Gifts are His, in Him, and He as a Perſon that is the Soveraign thereof, diſtributes them as He will, 1 Cor. 12. 4, 7. He makes Miniſters, John 20. 22. And that power to declare that Sins are forgiven, and ſo ſet free Mens Conſciences, is from their having received the Holy Ghoſt firſt, Chriſt breathed on them, and ſaid, Receive ye the Holy Ghoſt; and then adds, Whoſe Sins ye remit, are remitted. And as He makes Miniſters, ſo He ſends out Miniſters, Acts 13. 4. and in vain it is for them to go, until he comes upon them. The Apoſtles are therefore commanded to ſtay going forth into the world, till they ſhould have received the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 1. 8. He appoints the place and People any of them ſhould go unto, and forbids and hinders, where they should not be usefully employed. He gives them Orders, He bids Philip go to the Eunuch, Acts 10. 19. and Acts 11. 12. And on the other side, He forbids to Preach to such or such. Paul and Timothy were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to Preach in Asia, Acts 16. 6. and they again essayed to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit suffered them not, v. 7. And when they preach, it is he prompts them with their Sermons, Mar. 13 11. The Apostles spake as the Spirit gave them utterance, and when they spake, they spake Apothegms, as the word is, weighty Sayings, 1 Cor. 2. 13. Which things, we speak not in the words which man's Wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing Spiritual things with Spiritual; that is, suiting expressions to the gravity and weight of the things delivered. He Fires their Tongues and Hearts, that they should not speak meer empty and powerless words, nor shoot Powder, but Fiery Bullets, such as have warmth and life in them. And when they Preach, He makes their Sermons to be the Ministration of the Spirit, to convey Himself unto their Hearts, and to make the Gospel the Power of God unto Salvation. All the power of Sermons is from the Holy Ghost, 2 Thes. 1. 5. Our Gospel was not in Word only, but in Power, and in the Holy Ghost, 1 Pet. 1. 11, 12. The Gospel is said to have been Preach'd with the Holy Ghost sent down from Heaven; who waiteth and watcheth when ye come to Sermons, and at the speaking such a word as will do your Hearts good, He falls upon you. Acts 10. 11. Whilst they were Speaking these words, the Holy Ghost fell on them. I might shew the same in all the Ordinances; but of them after.

Book I. Acts 2. 29. He sends Peter to Cornelius,

Christus Legis, Spiritus Evangelii Complementum. Tertul.

For a Conclusion. It may be truly said, (as it hath been by some of the Ancients) that as Christ was the Fulfiller of the Law, and the End of the Law; Rom. 10. So that the Spirit is the Complement, the Fulfiller, and maker good of all the Gospel; otherwise all that Christ did would have profited us nothing, if the Holy Ghost did not come into our Hearts, and bring all home to us; Christ made his Will, by his Death; Heb. 9. But the Spirit is his Administrator. Christs Blood, and Purchase gave us, by his redeeming us, jus ad rem; but the Holy Ghost, by applying it, only jus in re; he gives us Possession, Livery, and Seisin: Himself is the Arrha; the Earnest, and the Investiture of all, is by him: The Promises had been but as Blanks else to us; but it is the Holy Ghost is the Sealer of us by them, the Verifier of them: Christ also came, and delivered his Commands to his Apostles, to teach his Church to do them; as in Mat. 28. last; but withal it is expressly said of him, and that after his being risen again, that He gave those his Commands to them by the Holy Ghost, Acts. 1. 2. And then again, those great Truths he uttered only by word of mouth; but it was the Holy Ghost which recovered them when they were almost lost; and in a manner clean gone out of the Apostles weak and shallow Memories and Understandings. And he it was that added a Thousand more Truths to them, which Christ never uttered; to whom therefore Christ refers them, John 16. 12, 13. I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now; howbeit when He, the Spirit of Truth, is come, He will guide you into all Truth; for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak.

2 Cor. 1. 20, 22.

Only by the way, let Ministers and Christians take notice what is the Glory of the Ministry, even the Holy Ghost: Thus Paul himself, 1 Cor. 2. 4. My Speech and my Preaching was not with inticing words of Mans Wisdom; but in demonstration of the Spirit, and of power: The Phrase, 2 Cor. 3. 6. Is, He hath made us able Ministers of the Spirit. The words in that Text are indeed, Ministers of the New-Testament, but it follows in the same Verse, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit. And this new Testament, or the Gospel (says the Apostle, v. 3.) Is Ministred by us with the Spirit of the Living God. Our Abilities lye in our being made more or less Instruments, by whom the Holy Ghost is pleased to Communicate himself: Acts 11. 24. 'Tis said, Barnabas was a good Man, and full of the Holy Ghost, in his own Person; and much People was added to the Lord: A Preacher in the Primitive Language is termed, He that Ministreth the Spirit: Gal. 3. 2, 5. And therefore value Ministries by this; and let Ministers seek to be filled with the Holy Spirit. 'Tis still prefaced of their Preaching, such or such an one was filled with the Holy Ghost, and spake; as Acts 4. 8. and Acts 2. 3, 4.

CHAP. V.

His Operations in every part, and Member of the Church, and Body of Chriſt.

IT is next to be conſidered what the Holy Ghoſt doth in every part, and Member of this Body of Chriſt, the Church. What he doth for every particular Saint: For look what he is to, and in the the Church Univerſal, that he is firſt unto, and in, every Saint in particular; for it is the particular individual Saint, that makes up the Church Univerſal; even as Reaſon is firſt, and principally in every particular, and individual Man; and by means thereof it is that Reaſon is found, and ſo abounds in a Body, or Aſſembly of Men: They meeting together every one ſeverally brings a Portion of it with him, thereunto; ſo as the main of his Work lyes and conſiſts in what he doth in and to every Member And when he falls upon Aſſemblies of Saints as met, yet 'tis ſo as he falls on the whole, by viſiting the particular Souls ſo Aſſembled, and out of reſpect unto each ſingle Soul; as when the Rain falls upon a Field of Corn, it falls upon the whole for every particular Blades ſake: Watering every ſtalk at it's Root, and ſo all grow up together. Hence therefore Acts 2. where the fulfilling of thoſe Promiſes made in the 14*th* and 15 th Chapters of John, were in the firſt fruits of them accompliſhed, It is expreſly indigitated that the Spirit ſate upon each of them. v. 3. And they were all, (that is every one of them) filled with the Holy Ghoſt; As Organ Pipes uſe to be with the common blaſt of the Bellows, that breathes wind into them, though by the difference of the Pipes there is a differing Sound. And thus the Holy Ghoſt doth as one Spirit inform and inſpire the whole Body of Chriſt, as the Soul doth the whole Body of a Man. Eph. 4. 4. There is one Body and one Spirit, and the Spirit is the ſame in every Member. Now conſider with your ſelves, if there were but one common Soul (as ſome have feigned to be in the Syſtem of the World) which acted, and enliven'd every Man and Thing in the World; you would acknowledge that it muſt be a mighty, vaſt, and burthenſome work, which is incumbent upon that great Soul, (whatever it were) and which it undergoes every Moment. But thus it is in reality with this great Spirit, the Soul of the whole Church, who both informs and enliveneth the whole, and every Member of it.

What therefore is next to be conſidered, is the Activity of this Holy Spirit upon us, and in working in us.

Firſt, In General, He worketh no leſs than ALL that is wrought, 1 Cor. 12. 11. But ALL theſe WORKETH that one and ſelf ſame Spirit, dividing to every Man ſeverally as he will. As of Chriſt, who is the Word, it is ſaid in the point of the firſt Creation. (John 1. 3.) That without him there was not any thing made, that was made: So of the Spirit in this New-Creation, we may ſay, that without him there is not any thing wrought in us, that is wrought.

But let us conſider, Particularly his Works.

1. In Regeneration, which is his prime work in us.

1. He

Book I.

1. He is the Author of all the Principles or Habits of Grace, of that whole New Creature, of that Workmanship created to good works, the Spiritual Man, which is called Spirit; that DIVINE Nature, which is the Mass and Lump of all things pertaining to Life and Godliness, that which is born of the Spirit, John 3. 6. The Image of Christ, which is stiled Christ formed in us Gal. 4. 19. That Divine Nature is the Image, drawn: But who is the immediate Former, the Limner? It is the Spirit of God, 2 Cor. 3. last. We are changed into the same Image, from Glory to Glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord. And that place shews, that not only the first draught of that Image, is of his drawing, the ground-colours; but all the additional lines that follows after, to perfect it all along, from one end of the Work to other: For, he attributes that continual change wrought after Conversion in every degree of it, from Glory to Glory, unto this Spirit. And therein he so speaks of himself and these believing Corinthans, ye all Believers. We are thus changed all along by beholding, &c. All the changes into that Image, are by the Spirit of the Lord: No hand hath Skill or Power to add to this Work; none able to mingle colours Orient and Lively enough, but He. In the same Chapter the believing Corinthians are declared to be the Epistle of Christ, so far as they were, or shewed themselves Christians in reality: And Christ and his Graces are the perfect Original and Exemplar, and these Corinthians, so far as they had advanced in Christianity, were for Essential parts the intire Copy, which in some degree, does express to the Life, that Original; And there is not a letter or tittle added in the Copy, which is not found in him. 2 Cor. 3. 3. For ye are manifestly declared to be the Epistle of Christ ministred (indeed says the Apostle) by us (as the Pens) but written with the Spirit of the living God; Not with Ink, nor in Tables of stone, but in fleshly Tables of the Heart. Unto the draught of the least line of which, no Art or Pencil of Man can reach; or hath Colours Orient enough, to write it: For, all and every tittle, every stroke, is no other than an inward living disposition of Heart, like unto the Divine Life and Nature of Christ, the Son of the Living God; and therefore requires the Living Power of the Spirit of the living God, (as he is there styled) to concur to the Creating of it. Psal. 51. 10, 11. Create in me a clean Heart, O God, and renew a right Spirit within me: Cast me not away from thy presence, and take not thy Holy Spirit from me. For as he vouchsafes to become the Ink, so he bears the part of the Hand, too, of a ready Writer. The Spirit is the finger of God (Mat. 12. 28. compared with Luke 11. 20.) the sole Artist that guides those Pens that cast this Ink, as there also (in v. 6.) it follows: God hath made us able Ministers of the New Testament; not of the Letter; (for even that New-Testament, hath also Letter to Men unregenerate; and is but the dispensation of a Notion.) But, of the Spirit, or Power.

Let us go over the particular Actings of the Soul, which are as a drawing out of those created Principles, whether at or in our first Conversion or afterwards; and we shall find that each, and every particular thereof, are attributed to this Spirit.

1. Hast thou seen thy Sinful Condition, and been humbled, as to Hell, for it? It is the Spirit's proper work, for which He was sent. Thus says Christ, John 16. 8. When He is come, He shall convince the World of Sin. And He says it to His Apostles, when He was to send them into the World, to Convert Men. And this is the first work of the Three there rehearsed, that the Holy Spirit beginneth with, in Conversion; viz. A Conviction of a state of Sin and Unbelief: As it follows, Of Sin, because they believed not on Me, and consequently, of Damnation, as having lived without God and Christ in the World. and this work, though it may seem too low for Him; yet He is pleased to bear a title from it, and is termed a Spirit of Bondage to us, as causing us to see our bondage to Sin, and Death, and Hell. Rom. 8. 15. For ye have not received the Spirit of bondage again to fear: But ye have received the Spirit of Adoption, whereby we cry Abba Father. It is one and the same Spirit, there spoken of, in respect of two contrary operations, who hath the title there of both. It is the Holy Ghost who is that Spirit of Adoption there spoken of, whereby we (afterwards) cry Abba Father. This you may also see, Gal. 4. 6. and in the next v. 16. of that Rom. 8.

It

It is the Spirit who alſo witneſſeth to us, that we are the Sons of God; and by the oppoſition it will follow, that if the Holy Ghoſt be the Spirit of Adoption ſpoken of, that He alſo was that Spirit of bondage; inaſmuch as He doth diſcover to us our bondage; even as He is termed the Spirit of Adoption, becauſe He teſtifies our Sonſhip. And the diſcovery of this our Bondage is an Infinite favour; For, do not the Great and Wiſe ones of the World, go hoodwink'd quick to Hell in a moment; and know not whether they are going, until they are there? And of thy ſelf, thou couldeſt never have been thoroughly convinced of that; for the heart is deceitful above meaſure, who can know it? None without the light of this Spirit. For it is the Spirituality of the Law, whereby He inſtructs Men to know Wiſdom in the hidden point of their corrupt Nature, as David, confeſſing it, ſpeaks, Pſal. 51. 5. and 6. verſes compared together, Behold I was ſhapen in Iniquity; and in Sin did my Mother conceive me. Behold thou deſireſt truth in the inward parts; and in the HIDDEN PART thou ſhalt make ME TO KNOW WISDOM. And without the Light of which Law, the ſame David likewiſe confeſſeth, Pſal. 19. 12. Who can underſtand his errors? Cleanſe thou me from ſecret faults. By which ſecret Sins, He underſtands the immediate ebullitions of corrupt Nature. And it is HE that ſearcheth the Deep things of God, 1 Cor. 2. 10. The Hidden Wiſdom v. 7. Hid in God, Epheſ. 3. 9. and reveals it to us, v. 5. It is HE, the ſame Spirit, that ſearcheth the Deep Deceitfulneſs of Mens Hearts, and reveals it to them, which David called Wiſdom in the Hidden Part. And it is THOU (ſays he) to God, That makeſt me to know it; that is, thou by thy Spirit who knoweſt all things, 1 Cor. 2. 10. And this for Him to Vouchſafe to doe for Him, to take the ſame pains to do it; as ever Mother or Schoolmaſter took to teach a Child from his Alphabet to read, is an act of Infinite Grace. It is HE that gives thee EYES to ſee, and an Heart to Underſtand, who holds the Candle to thee, and points with his Finger to every Sin. Let us all conſider the Unpleaſingneſs of this work, which were it not that it is neceſſary for his ſaving thee, He who is the Holy Spirit, would never rake into ſuch foul and filthy Jakes and Dunghills of Luſts and By-ends, Unbelief and Preſumptions: This muſt needs be a Loathſome work to him, by reaſon of the objects He is exerciſed in, and tedious in it ſelf. And this is the entrance into Converſion.

Book I.

It is this Spirit which works Repentance upon this diſcovery of Sin, and turns our hearts from Sin to God effectually. John the Baptiſt came Preaching the Baptiſm of Repentance for the remiſſion of Sins. Now by what, or whoſe power was it, that repentance was wrought in the Hearts of Multitudes that were his hearers? It was the Holy Spirit, He ſhall come, (ſays the Prophet) in the Spirit and Power of Elias, Mal. 4. 6. The Spirit of Elias was the Holy Ghoſt, reſting on him, (2 Kings 2. 15.) as He did on the Baptiſt, Luke 1. 15. He ſhall be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, even from his Mothers Womb. And it is ſpoken to ſignify the Power that ſhould accompany his Miniſtry, to work repentance, as it follows in the next verſe; And many of the Children of Iſrael ſhall he turn to the Lord his God. And thereupon it is, that this Prophecy of Malachy's is alledged, v. 17. He ſhall come in the Spirit and Power of Elias, and turn the hearts of the diſobedient to the Wiſdom of the Juſt. So as that which is ſpoken of Paul's Miniſtry among the Theſſalonians, 1 Theſ. 1. 5. that it came not in Word only, but in Power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, might (though in a lower degree) be ſaid of his. And yet the firſt and eminent effect of his Miniſtry was ſeen in the working of Repentance as 'tis often ſaid, in Acts 13. and 19. Chapters. It may likewiſe be obſerved, as ſerving to this purpoſe, that when Chriſt gave that new Commiſſion to his Apoſtles, to Preach Repentance in his Name, unto all Nations, for the Remiſſion of Sins, (as in Luke 24. 40. He withal renews The Promiſe of the Father, which was the Holy Ghoſt, v. 45. Behold I ſend the Promiſe of my Father upon you. And why is that annexed to the former, as the Preface thereto, [And behold] ſhews, but becauſe the giving of the Holy Ghoſt, even after Chriſts Aſcenſion was to work Repentance in Mans Hearts by that their preaching, yea and he commands them (as with a caution, in the following words), that they ſhould tarry in the City of Jeruſalem, until they were endued with power from on high. With

Book I. out whom, and the power of whom, their Preaching Repentance would have had no efficacy at all, to move Men to turn unto God; but through whoſe Operation God gave Iſrael, Acts 5. 31, 32. Yea and the Gentiles, Repentance unto life, Acts 11. 18.

3. The work of Faith, is of his Operation; and therefore he is ſtyled, The Spirit of Faith, 2 Cor. 4. 13. And the ſame Spirit that wrought Faith in the New-Teſtament, is ſaid to have done it in the Old, as that place ſhews; 2 Cor. 4. 13. We having the ſame Spirit of Faith, &c. The ſame which David, and they in the Old Teſtament had. It is therefore alſo, that to be full of the Holy Ghoſt and of Faith, are joyned; Acts 6. 5. Stephen a Man full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghoſt: Alſo Barnabas is ſaid to be a Man full of the Holy Ghoſt, and of Faith, Acts. 11. 24.

Let us view ſome ſpecial Acts of Faith, and ſee how the Working of them is aſcribed to the Holy Ghoſt.

I. He gave thee A Spiritual ſight of Chriſt, and God's Free-Grace, which drew thy Heart unto them.

1. He gave thee a ſight of God's Free-Grace; when thou hadſt ſeen thy ſins, and thy undone condition, and thy Heart was thrown off the Hinges of thy former hopes on Self-Righteouſneſs, and the Bladders of Preſumptions upon God's Mercy upon falſe grounds, pricked and fallen; and thou wert left utterly at the loſs, and kneweſt not what to do, to be ſaved: Who was it opened to thee the firſt door of Hope (Hoſea 2.) and gave thee the firſt kenn, hint and glimpſe, of Grace and Mercy; and that God would abundantly and freely Pardon thee, if thou wouldſt ſeek him and plythy ſelf to him? Who was it then that laid before thee that Allſufficient Righteouſneſs of Faith; and that did ſet thy Heart on work to ſeek it? Even the good Spirit, who is therefore called The Spirit of Grace and Supplication, Zach. 12. 10. He became a Spirit of Grace, in making a diſcovery of that Rich and Free-Grace in God's Heart to be inclining towards thee, and therewith became the Spirit of Supplication in thee, inflaming thee, as a Condemned Man for Life, to ſeek after that Grace and Pardoning Mercy in God. And from thence he led thee to the Croſs of Chriſt, and made and ſet ſuch a lively Picture of Him, as Crucified before thine Eyes, (Gal. 3. 1.) as all Angels and Men could never have pourtrayed, no more, yea, infinitely far leſs than they can the Sun. 'Twas HE, the ſame Spirit of Grace, that did it; and ſo it follows Zachary 12. 10. And they ſhall look upon him whom they have pierced. Thus alſo, John 16. 8. 'tis ſaid, When He is come, he ſhall convince the World of Righteouſneſs; (which Chriſt there enumerates, as the Spirits ſecond Work, in calling us) even of that Allſufficient Righteouſneſs of Chriſt, offered up for ſatisfaction to the Father; Who was made ſin, that we might be made the Righteouſneſs of God in him. And when the word of Faith ſounded in thy Heart and Ears; thou hadſt not eyes to ſee it, Therefore This Fountain for ſin and uncleanneſs to waſh in, muſt be OPENED (as 'tis ſaid Zach. 13. 1.) Or Men deſcry it not. Thou wert ready to Periſh for thirſt, as Hagar was, Gen. 21. and lifted up thy Voice and Wept: But as God opened her Eyes and ſhe ſaw a Well (v. 19.) juſt by her: So did the Spirit Thine, to ſpy out Chriſt and His Righteouſneſs, which is hid unto the World: As I heard one ſay, on his Death-Bead, Oh! Where had I been, if I had not ſpied out Chriſt! It was this Spirit of Grace who cauſed thee to look towards Him, and firſt ſet thy Eyes and Heart to ſee Him, and look on him that was pierced, as all that are ſaved ſhould be brought to do, as they did on the Brazen Serpent, John 3. 14, 15.

2. When thou didſt find (being come to this Fountain) that the Well was deep, and thou hadſt not wherewith to draw; and while thou wert but looking down into it, with a longing Eye after it; but couldeſt not reach into it, to waſh thy ſelf in it; but layeſt as that poor impotent Man did at the Pool (utterly without ſtrength, as Rom. 5.) to have ſtept in: It was then the Holy Ghoſt Sprinkled of it upon thy Heart, and cauſed thine Iniquity to paſs away. (1 Pet. 1. 2.) Through Sancti-

Sanctification of the Spirit, and sprinkling of the Blood of Jesus Christ, The Blood indeed is the Blood of Jesus, but the sprinkling, (in that place) is attributed to the Spirit, as well as Obedience. 'Twas Christ shed that Blood, (it is therefore there called the Blood of Jesus Christ) but it is the Spirit that sprinkleth it, and he sprinkleth it with both hands, on thy Heart, to wash away thy spots; and therefore in v. 22. they are said to have purified their Souls in Obeying the truth, through the Spirit: Which is spoken of the Obedience of Faith for Justification, as well as Sanctification; as the parallel words of the same Apostle, in Acts 15.8, 9. compared, shew; God giving unto them the Holy Ghost, even as He did to us, and put no difference between us and them, purifying their Hearts by Faith. And in 1 Cor. 6. 11. Justification, as well as Sanctification, is attributed to the Spirit; But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are Justified in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God: But ye are washed, that's the general; but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified (two distinct Benefits,) Justify'd in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God. Both of these are by both Christ, and the Spirit; as Justification is in the Name of the Lord Jesus, so is Sanctification too; and by the like Reason they were both Justified by the Spirit of our God. It is Jesus Christs Name affords the Merit and Vertue for both, but the Spirit is the Applier of them, and all others Blessings. Book 1.

3. And when thou hadst been brought to close with Christ, for Justification and Righteousness, Who was it brought thee to the Father, to be justified by him also, (who Justifies the Ungodly, Rom. 4.5.) and who gave thee access to him, when thou stoodest trembling, not daring to approach to a Consuming Fire, and Everlasting Burnings? It is through Christ, we have access (Manuduction) by one Spirit unto the Father, Eph. 2.18. 'Tis both through Christ, and by the Spirit, who leads us, as well as Christ: And indeed, Christ leads us to the Father (as it were) with one hand, and the Holy Ghost by the other: Yea 'twas this Spirit that taught thee to call God Father, (Rom. 8. 15. Gal. 4. 6.) and therewith to seek Adoption from him.

4. When thou art once justified by Faith, and hast that Righteousness imputed to thee, who is it hath hitherto kept, and continues to keep thine Heart fixedly to wait for, and hold to that Righteousness alone for thy Salvation? And who is it with-holds thee from betaking thy self to any other, for Justification? Who settles thy hopes solely on it? 'Tis even this Spirit, Gal. 5. 5. For we through the Spirit, wait for the hope of Righteousness by Faith. Justification by Faith, (as we know) is the eminent Subject of that Epistle; and these words come in, in the midst of many other lesser additional perswasives, which he useth last, after the Doctrinal Arguments in the former Chapters, tending all to this, that they should stand fast in that Liberty which v. 1. of this Chapter begins with, and which the Righteousness of Christ endows us with; and that they should renounce that of Works in the point of Justification.

We, says he, that is the generality of Believers, Jew and Gentile, of weak and strong Faith, we all do steer this way; and therefore you that turn aside to the works of the Law, for your Justification, do sever your selves from the Faith common to the Church. With which accords that of the Apostle Peter, 2 Pet. 1.1. To them that have obtained like precious Faith with us (Apostles, namely through the Righteousness ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ) and of God our Saviour Jesus Christ. This was the true and common Faith of Apostles, and all in those times.

Do wait (says he) that is, we not only did rely upon that Righteousness wholly for our first Justification, (as the Papists distinguish) being necessitated unto that alone then, because as then, we had no other works to rely upon, but of Nature, and Unregeneracy (which upon Conversion are discovered to be Dead works) But ever since we abide by it, and depend upon that alone, for our Justification afterward, and that now, when we have have other manner of works of true Holiness and Sincerity renewed in us, and which encrease more and more in us; which (if any works could or might) would intice us over to join them with Christ, as a ground of our Confidence for Justification: But we are immoveably constant unto this Righreousness by Faith, and the Hope that is from it, for time to come, and this continually, all along the remainder of our Lives. Do wait, (says he) For the Hope of the Righteousness by Faith. Those words [Of Righteousness by Faith] are a distinction, severing it from that of Works, and is an indigitation that he meant that to be the Righteousness, which had been the Subject of his Discourse. For otherwise, that word [We wait] did sufficiently import that by Faith they were Expectants of it, without that addition.

Those words, For the Hope of Righteousness, are an extensive Speech, and spoken in many Respects, especially Three.

1. It Respects a waiting for Justification still to come upon us, from that Righteousness. Hope is of what is yet to come; and we not only lay hold on that Righteousness to be justified by it at present, but we wait for the hope of Justification by it for ever: For, we are to be Justified continually all along the remainder of our Lives; for it is Actus continuus or perpetuus; and therefore our hopes of Justification are to be continued and kept up, and we depend wholly on that Righteousness which is by Faith, as as well when we were Converted at first, or do at this day. It is called an Everlasting Righteousness, (Dan. 9. 24.) And it is but one and the same Righteousness first and last, which we wait for.

2. We wait for that Eternal Life, (which is frequently termed our Hope, and the Hope of Glory) both after Death, and at the day of Judgment, as the conjunct consequent of this Righteousness; for Glory is an Inheritance entailed upon that Righteousness of Justification, as the Holy Apostle informs us, Tit. 3. 7. That being Justified by his Grace, we should be made heirs according to the Hopes of Eternal Life: And at that day it is that Justification and Forgiveness of Sins is with the Solemnity of with those words (Come ye and inherit, &c.) finally to be pronounced, and admission thereupon is to be given into Eternal Glory.

3. Among the Persons here expressed by the Word We, whose example he presseth upon these unsetled Galatians, it falls out, that there are true Believers who have sought God much and long, for the Justification by Faith thro' Christ's Righteousness, and the Assurance of it; and God hath been pleased to defer the Manifestation of it to their Souls. And there were others that had obtained an assurance of it, in some good degree, and yet either thro' sins renewed, and other sad and dark Temptations, have been weakened in their Faith about it. And in that case, there are other ways for Relief and Comfort, besides this of the Righteousness of Faith, that are ready to offer themselves unto such Souls; or otherwise are apt to faint in waiting (as the Psalmist speaks of himself) and to have their Souls made sick, (as Solomon speaks of Hope deferred) and are ready to grow weary, and give over waiting for the Lord any longer. Now in such a case, who is it that giveth those poor Souls (who make the greatest Number of Believers) Patience of hope to wait? (Lam. 3. 29.) He putteth his Mouth in the Dust, if so be, there may be Hope) and causeth them to wait, (as there it is also said) and causeth them to wait on till God shall reveal himself to their Souls? (which is the thing I cited this place for, and have opened as I have done) It is even the Spirit. And for his great Honour, it is added by the Apostle, We, THRO' THE SPIRIT wait. It is one of his greatest Works in us, to hold our Hearts constantly fixed to this Righteousness, and to settle our whole Expectation upon it, and to continue so to do, that we may look unto no other Righteousness for Justification and Salvation. These Galatians having at their first calling embraced Christ nakedly, and him alone, for Justification as v. 7. and 8. insinuates, Ye did run well, (says he) who did hinder you? That ye should not obey the truth? This perswasion cometh not of him that Calleth you. One true Cause that so many of them afterward had fallen to the Doctrine of Works, was, That they would not wait by pure Faith; (at which, this place also glanceth) They would see something in themselves, as a ground of a Believing on Christ; and so had recourse to themselves, to their own Doings and Actings, for a Foundation of it; at least to joyn them in Commission with Christ to justifie them. A new Convert in Christianity, such an one especially, is in a great danger of thus Diverting; For the Spirit that is within us, would of it self go that way, unless powerfully detained from it, by this other Blessed Spirit in us. The Law is engrafted in every Man by Nature; and was in pure Nature of Innocency, which knew no other way for Juſtification, but by a Man's own Righteouſneſs, and it was the Law of Nature to be thereby Juſtified. And this new Nature that is begotten in a Chriſtian, is, in the ground work of it, materially a Conformity to the ſame Law; and the Law is continued under Grace to be a Tutor to inſtruct it how to walk in truth of Holineſs. And hence the Heart is apt to liſten to the other dictates of it even in the point of Juſtification alſo. And again it is Man's own Righteouſneſs, which Paul after many Years Experience of the Righteouſneſs of Faith, was yet by reaſon of the propenſity of nature to it, afraid to be found in, Phil. 3. And the diſpoſitions of Righteouſneſs that are renewed in us, and the Duties we perform, do often offer their help to ſupply the room of Faith, giving us confidence, ere Chriſt comes. And Chriſt to try us, ſtays often long (as Samuel did his coming to Saul) ere he reveals himſelf. And as Abraham, waiting long for a Child, turned aſide to Hagar; ſo doe we to works. Now in all theſe hazards who took thee by the Hand and taught thee the way of ſheer Faith, and then afterward the way of bare waiting upon God? Who inſtructed thee by a ſtrong hand, and would not ſuffer thee to go in the way of the Law, but ſtrengthned and ſecretly ſupported thy Spirit in waiting till God ſhould rain down Righteouſneſs, as the Prophet ſpeaks? It was this good Spirit; and nothing elſe could or had been able to have done it in thee, but that Spirit who mov'd on the Chaos when it was darkneſs, and but one ſtep from nothing, and newly come out of nothing, and ready to return unto nothing again: And who by his Almighty Power upheld, hatch'd, and ſupported it from falling into nothing. Gen. 1. It is the ſame good Spirit who inliveneth, and inſpiriteth ſuch a Soul in its Confeſſions. It was he who forſter'd, and maintain'd, and kept up this reſolved purpoſe in thy Heart, to remain comfortleſs for ever, otherwiſe than by ſuch comforts as Chriſt, and his Righteouſneſs ſhould afford thee. And tho' thou didſt vehemently hunger, and thirſt after Righteouſneſs of Juſtification, as well as of Sanctification, yet thou wouldſt have ſtarv'd, rather than have liv'd upon thy own Bread; that is, have truſted to thine own Righteouſneſs, and none but Chriſt, and his Righteouſneſs, who is the Lord our Righteouſneſs, and his alone, was it would ſatisfie thee; yea, that none elſe ſhould, was the fixed Reſolve of thy Heart. It is the Spirit guides and leads thee thus v. 18. of this 5*th* Chap. If ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law; which is ſpoken in point of Juſtification. He took thee by the hand, and gently led thee the right way therein, as well as (according to what is ſpoken in reſpect of Sanctification) he led thee to walk Holily. The Spirit is the Leader and Conductor in both, as the coherence with his former and his immediate foregoing diſcourſe do ſhew, and doe ſuit this of theſe works to be the Scope of theſe words in common to either.

5. When thou didſt attain unto joy and peace in believing, tho' Chriſt was the Peace-maker, yet Who was the Peace-bringer? It was the Holy Ghoſt; Rom. 15. 13. Now, the God of hope fill you with ALL JOY AND PEACE IN BELIEVING, that ye may abound in hope through the POWER OF THE HOLY GHOST. All that joy unſpeakable and full of Glory, 1 Pet. 18. that peace which paſſeth all underſtanding Phil. 4. 7. whereby we Glory in tribulation Rom. 5. 2. and are more than Conquerours, Rom. 8. 37. to whom is it to be aſcribed? Whoſe operation is it? The Holy Ghoſt's: It is particularly appropriated to him; and therefore it is ſtiled Joy in the Holy Ghoſt. Rom. 14. 17. The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but Righteouſneſs, and Peace, and JOY IN THE HOLY GHOST. As God's Kingdom conſiſts of theſe things, ſo this joy is a peculiar belonging to his Spirit; it is his juriſdiction, it is ſtyled Joy in the Holy Ghoſt; when yet our Joy is in God and in Chriſt objectively, yet in the Holy Ghoſt efficiently, which is therefore elſewhere ſtiled, The joy of the Holy Ghoſt. So 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. And the conſolations we have, are called The comforts of the Holy Ghoſt. Acts. 9. 31. As being the Author and Diffuſer of them into our Hearts, &c. In which ſenſe, our Praying is in like manner ſaid to be In the Holy Ghoſt (Jude. v. 20) as the Inditer of our prayers, Rom. 8. And it is alſo thus termed joy in the Holy Ghoſt, by way of a Superlative Eminency, in difference from all other joys, which have ever entred into the heart of man: and in compare to which, all other joys are but as the Crackling Book I. of thorns, the fewel they are fed with being earthy and terrene. It is a Joy not as the World giveth (saith Christ, speaking of his peace.) And it therefore hath the peculiar character of glorious Joy, as being Joy of another kind, and also unspeakable, for degrees and abundance; More Joy than when their Corn and Wine encreasing never so much afforded, Ps. 4. 7. We use to distinguish things that are Exellent by joyning the name of the Workman, Author, or Efficient, when in his Workmanship he transcendeth all other Artists; And so it is in this, All the Sweet-meats of Heaven, (and this Joy is the taste of the hidden Manna) He hath the keeping and Delivery of them out, where, and when He will; And not only so, but He Tempers them, and all the Cordials out of God the Fathers love, and Christ's heart and blood, and mingleth His own love with Theirs; and puts them into our hearts, conveying them in Promises of the Word; and fitly and seasonably applyes them, and reserves them for us as we need. And though Christ bequeatheth that Peace and Joy as His last Legacy, He being the Purchaser of it by his death; yet it is the Holy Ghost that is His Administrator and Executor of it, to perform it, and execute His will. He it is that maketh known to us that love which hath lain hid in the heart of God the Father towards a particular Soul in chooſing him at first, and then giving him to Christ, and giving His Son to dye for him. It is he who displays that love which is laid out in infinite Wisdom, contriving and ordering all about every man's particular Salvation who is Saved. 'Tis He likewise that takes of Christ's, and shews, and brings home His love in Giving Himself for every such Soul, and causeth it to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge; which he did vouchsafe to our Apostle; who loved me (says he) and gave himself for me, Gal. 2. 20. He shews these things (as Christ's word is) and tells over the stories of them, in a way of Application and Comfort to a Man's own heart in particular; and withal, lets in the taste of them; and makes the loves of all the Three pass thorow and thorow us, even through our very inwards; as Oyl, that soaks into the Bones, and refresheth the Marrow within them, even this Oyl of Gladness, which is purely of his making. And He gives an immediate taste of that love fresh out of the Heart of God and Christ, and causeth every Faculty, in its kind, to taste how good the Lord is. He gives us a Relish of the Sweetness, of the Deliciousness of Loves; Loves, in the plural, as it is expressed in Cant. 5. 1. which we are made abundantly to drink and taste of, as it is said Can. 5. 1. In Rom. 5. 5. you have it thus expressed, Hope maketh not ashamed, because the Love of God is shed abroad in our Hearts, by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us. Given us He had been afore, to endow us with Justifying Faith, and all those Glorious Fruits of it, which he setly had enumerated: As Peace with God, v. 1. Access by Faith into Grace, v. 2. Rejoycing in Hope of the Glory of God, Glorying in Tribulations; and Patience working Experience; and Experience Hope: And that Hope rising up, in the End, to a steadiness, solidity, and constancy, as never to be confounded, no, not in a Man's own Apprehension or Fears; and this hope is wrought by shedding the love of God abroad in the Heart, so as never to be violated or temerated by prevailing doubtings any more. And this he reckons last, as the sum, the Complement of all the foregoing Privileges. And this last, as well as all those other, are the Effects of the Spirit given us; for he Working those other first, and then this of shedding the Love of God, over and above. Now that wherein this love of God and Christ, materially or objectively doth consist; the Apostle tells us in the following 6, 7, and 8 verses, that God himself hath commended his Love to us, that when we were Enemies, Christ dyed for us; than which there cannot be an higher strain or note that Love could reach unto. Yet the Coherence of this place shews, that if the material part of this love should be declared in words never so illustriously, without the power of the Holy Ghost accompanying it; and his shedding that Love abroad in the Heart; yea, if these very words were used, whereby God Himself commends His Love by the Holy Ghost Himself, as the Penman of them; yea, if these words were Preached and enlarged upon by the Apostles themselves; ay and by all the Angels in Heaven too (if they were sent by God to do it) yet they would avail nothing upon our Hearts, to affect them therewith, without a Transcendant operation of this blessed Spirit, whose Work and Office is to be the Comforter. Yea further, where this Holy Spirit doth doth by this, and ſuch like words as theſe, ſetting forth the love of God and Chriſt, perfume and bedew the Souls of Believers, in his ordinary Diſpenſation of Faith, with the Conſolations of the Almighty; more or leſs; yet the Text in Rom. 5. 5. means and intends, by that ſhedding abroad God's Love, an higher Communication of the Love of God, than thoſe more commonly vouchſafed. And as there is promiſed a pouring forth of this Spirit, ſo there is a pouring forth Joys in the Holy Ghoſt, more extraordinary; which in its meaſure doth exceed the diſpenſings by the ordinary Light of Faith Believers are accuſtomed unto. And the reaſon for this latter diſpenſation, may be reſolved into this, That this Holy Spirit ſearching the deep things of God, and knowing the Heighth, Depth, Breadth, and Length, of this Love, to the extreameſt dimenſions of it; and coming immediately upon Mens Souls, from out of the Heart of God and Chriſt, is enabled from thence to bring this their love, warm immediately out of their Hearts, and convey it into ours; and give us a true and native original taſte of and from the things themſelves, and the Sweetneſs thereof. And ſo he ſheds it abroad (as the word here is) into every chink and Cranny of the Soul, thirſting after this Love, and brings it as freſh as the Mothers milk comes out of the dugg into the Child's Mouth or Stomach; and this Love ſo ſhed into us by the Holy Spirit, is digeſted or turned into Love in us, and returned on our parts towards God and Chriſt again. This is another manner of thing, than all the words that ever have been or can be uttered, yea, though penned by the Holy Ghoſt himſelf, ſpeaking the greateſt things that can be uttered of this love, and enlarging our minds to the moſt extenſive conceptions of the dimenſions of this love, ſo far as Words, or Arguments by words, will avail to do it, tho' uttered by the Tongues of Men or Angels. But, when the Spirit by the Word, (for I ſpeak not of Revelations without that Word, or beſides it) ſhall add his condiment and ſeaſoning to that Love of God ſet forth in the Word, with diffuſing Joy which paſſeth Underſtanding, This doth infinitely ſurpaſs even ſuch Joys, as he doth ſometimes unto ſome Saints vouchſafe. Book I.

6. If we conſider all the Fellowſhip and Communion we have with the Perſons of the Father, and the Son, we ſhall find that this Holy Spirit is the Introducter of us into it; and the Manager and Tranſactor of it in us, and for Them with us. Our Fellowſhip is with the Father and with the Son. (1 John. 1. 3.) By means of which it is, that our Joy mention'd is a full joy, v. 4. And all this Fellowſhip is through the help and manifeſtations of the Holy Ghoſt; Phil. 2. 1. If there be any Comfort in Love; (which is peculiarly attributed to the Father) If any Fellowſhip of the Spirit, who communicates both theſe. This place ſeems to ſpeak, in the matter of it, ſomewhat parallel to that of the ſame Apoſtle, 2 Cor. 13, 14. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the love of God, and the Communion of the Holy Ghoſt, be with you all. Now it is the Love of the Father which ordained Chriſt, and Salvation for us; it is the Grace of Chriſt which works our Salvation by Redemption; as you read how Grace is in that ſenſe and reſpect attributed unto Chriſt, 2 Cor, 8. 9. But yet it is the Holy Ghoſt imparts and conveys all things that the Father or Son hath. He takes them and reveals them to us, and ſo glorifies them both unto us, John 16. 14, 15. He ſhall glorifie Me, ſaid Chriſt, for he ſhall receive of Mine, and ſhall ſhew it unto you: All things that the Father hath, are mine, therefore ſaid I, He ſhall take of mine, and ſhall ſhew it unto you. In ſaying, All that the Father hath, are mine; He doth plainly affirm, That it is the Spirit that ſhews all that is the Fathers to us, as well as Chriſt, and what is Chriſt's. And in that renowned place in the Goſpel of John, where Chriſt promiſeth, that He and his Father will come to us, and make their abode with us, and that he will manifeſt Himſelf to us, John 14. v. 21, 23. Yet in the v. 20. immediately foregoing, Chriſt ſays, AT THAT DAY ye ſhall know that I am in my Father, and you in Me, and I in you; [in that day] namely when he ſhould give and ſend his Spirit; as by this verſe, being compared with v. 16. appears. And therefore it is, that that fullneſs of Joy which ariſeth from the Communion with theſe Perſons, is termed, Joy in the Holy Ghoſt; (that is, tho' the Holy Ghoſt) and the Communion of the Holy Ghoſt, altho' the Objects of that Joy are the Love and Perſons of the Father and Son.

7. All

Book I.

7. All the Evidence, and Witneſſing of all or any Grace wrought in us, (tho' not accompanied with joy unſpeakable and full of Glory) as a Love in us to God the Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt; they are all of his Working, and from Him.

1. Do our own Conſciences Witneſs to any eminent Holy Diſpoſition that is written in our Hearts; ſuch as the Apoſtle Profeſſeth he found in his own Heart, even to a willingneſs to be accurſed from Chriſt, for the Glory of God, and the Salvation of his own Countrey-men, the Jews? The evidence of this to his Conſcience, was from the Holy Ghoſt; without whoſe Teſtimony joined to that of his Conſcience, his Conſcience would not have Witneſſed it. Natural Conſcience Witneſſeth the things of the Law naturally in Man; Rom. 2. yet Gracious diſpoſitions it cannot. Hear the Apoſtle himſelf ſpeak of himſelf concerning this matter, Rom. 9. 1, 3. I ſpeak the Truth in Chriſt, I lye not; MY CONSCIENCE ALSO BEARING ME WITNESS IN THE HOLY GHOST: I could wiſh that my ſelf were accurſed from Chriſt, for my Brethren, my Kinſmen according to the Fleſh. When he ſays, My Conſcience bearing me Witneſs in the Holy Ghoſt, he ſpeaks it not only becauſe the Holy Ghoſt was He that had Wrought that Grace in him, but that in Point of his Conſcience Witneſſing of it, it was the Spirit who was the cauſe of that Witneſs. Conſcience indeed was the faculty that was the ſubſtance that Witneſſed this to his Soul; but it was in, (that is, from) the Holy Ghoſt, ſo teſtifying with it. And therefore, if that, or any other Grace in us, be evidenced to us, it is He that is the Eminent Witneſs, and cauſeth that Grace to ſpeak ſo loud as to Witneſs it, Rom. 8. 16. The Spirit it ſelf beareth Witneſs with our Spirit, that we are the Children of God. It may be read Witneſſeth to our Spirit, and Witneſſeth with our Spirit. And though Man hath a reflecting Faculty as a Man, which (1 Cor. 2.) the Apoſtle indigitates, None knoweth the things of a Man, but the Spirit that is in Man: Yet the diſcerning the things of God, and of His ſupernatural Working in a Man, the Apoſtle in the ſame place attributes to the Spirit; as the Perſon who Works all, and makes all in us, and alſo reveals all that to us which He Worketh: He writes (firſt all Graces in us, and then teacheth our Conſciences to read His Hand Writing, which we could never do, without His light. In 1 John 4. v. 6, and 7. you read of Six Witneſſes, Three in Heaven, and Three on Earth, who are Witneſſes of Two things; 1. Chriſt to be the Son of God; 2. To Believers Hearts, of their own Salvation, as in v. 1. Whoſoever Believeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, is born of God; which alſo is evident by comparing ver. 13. where both theſe two are put together, as the things Believers might know, through what He had Written in this Epiſtle, eſpecially now laſt Written, in thoſe immediate foregone verſes. Now you find there in theſe 6 and 7 verſes, that the Spirit, or the Holy Ghoſt, is mentioned in either Catalogue; Firſt among the Witneſſes in Heaven, The Father, the Word and the Holy Ghoſt; And yet again, this Spirit that is a Witneſs in Heaven, is yet numbred with thoſe that bear Record on Earth too: verſe 8. The Spirit, the Water and the Blood: And He, the Firſt, and as the Principal of theſe on Earth, is ſet before Water and Blood. One, among other Reaſons I have apprehended for this, is that He Efficiently is the Grand Witneſs, with thoſe other Two on Earth, in their Witneſſing; And that to whatſoever they bear their Teſtimony, this Spirit joyns with them in it, and brings home their Teſtimony into our Hearts; as without whom, and which, their Witneſs would be of no force; as, for example, If Chriſt's Blood, when believed on, Witneſſeth to our Hearts, by giving our Hearts Eaſe and Peace; it is becauſe this Spirit joyns with it in its Teſtimony. If Water, or the New Creature, (begotten of Water and this Spirit; the Holy Spirit, Working as Water in cleanſing us) if that do teſtify to us, it is in virtue of the Holy Ghoſt's conjuncture with it, and irradiation of it, and 'tis that which gives its validity of Teſtimony to it, as Rom. 8. 16. He Witneſſeth with our Spirits; that is, our Graces (or that which is Born of the Spirit which is Spirit) and in the ſame 1 John, 5, 6. the Apoſtle reſolves all into this, as the foundation of the others Teſtimonies, It is the Spirit that beareth Witneſs, becauſe the Spirit is Truth: 'Tis He therefore that bears the name of Witneſs, κατ' ἐξοχήν as being the Spirit of Truth, as Chriſt alſo calls Him.

And

And truly in that, Rom. 8. where it is rendered, The Spirit Witneſſeth with our Spirits, the Holy Ghoſt, in the Original, hath ſo compoſed the Words, that they Import His Witneſſing to our Spirits, as well as with our Spirits; and that Witneſſing with, hath a reſpect to the Witneſs of the other Two Perſons, the Father and Chriſt; as with whom this Spirit ſhould witneſs to our Spirits, they all three, the Witneſſes in Heaven, conjoyning their Teſtimonies together, to perſwade our Spirits, (that is our Souls and Graces in them) that we are the Children of God. And if ſo underſtood, then the witneſſing both of the Father, and of Chriſt, unto our Salvation, is eminently attributed to the Spirit, who only is named, as alſo, in witneſſing the truth by Chriſt, and the eſpecial Honour thereof is given to him; which accords with that fore-cited ſpeech of Chriſt, John 16. 14, 15. And thus, He is the Great Witneſſer both of Heaven and of Earth, to this of our being the Sons of God. Book I.

VII. As thus in reſpect of evidencing our Graces to us, and his joyning with God the Father and Chriſt in their Teſtimonies alſo to us the Spirit doth the work ſo as to lead us into all TRUTHS of the Word, and Sercets of God whatever, which in this Life are revealed, it is, He whom God ſends to diſcover and convince us of them all, 1 Cor. 2. 20. He ſearcheth all the deep things of God. He is the keeper of all thoſe Archives of Eternity, and they are all committed to his cuſtody, and he lets us into the view of them, and reveals what is revealed of them unto us, as He will. There is not a thing that God hath prepared for us that love Him, v. 9. (which is ſpoken of the hidden things of the Goſpel. v. 7.) but he is the Manifeſter of it to one or other of the Saints; 'tis he leads into all Truth. 2 Tim. 1. 13. and 14. Hold faſt the form of Sound Words, which is in Chriſt Jeſus But alas, might they ſay, of our ſelves, we are apt to let them ſlip and leak out, (as Heb. 2. 1.) And to be carried away with every Wind of Doctrine, Eph. 4. (this we are prone to be) therefore he adds. v. 14. That good thing (ſo he calls the Truth of the Doctrine of wholeſome words, for bonum & verum convertuntur,) Keep by the Holy Ghoſt, which dwelleth in us. Who alſo brings them home to our Remembrance, when we have forgotten them, John 14. 26.

And as theſe matters in point of Faith, and Aſſurance, and Joy, and all Communion with God the Father, and the Son, are Tranſacted by this Spirit, together with the Revelation of all Truths; So,

VIII. If we view all and the whole of the Work and Works of Sanctification, that are wrought in us, or proceed form us, it will appear that it is He tha works them all in us, and for us. This is the third part of the Application of Salvation to us; according to that diſtribution which Chriſt makes, John 16. 8, 11. and which he attributes to the Spirit; when He is come, He ſhall convince the World of JUDGMENT: That is, of true Holineſs, Sanctification, and Reformation of Heart and Life; as in the Old Teſtament frequently; and in the New: That word Judgment is uſed, as Mat. 12. 20. That Chriſt ſhall bring forth Judgment to Victory, citing v. 18. out of the Old, viz. out of Iſa. 42. 1. He ſhall ſhew Judgment to the Gentiles. And in reſpect of His working herein, he hath this denomination made appropriate to him, viz. A Spirit of Judgment, purging away the filth of Sin in his People, Iſa. 4. 4. And Holineſs is called the Sanctification of the Spirit, 1 Pet. 1. 2. And 2 Theſ. 2. 13. And for this cauſe he bears the name of the Holy Spirit, as the Eminent Efficient of Holineſs in us. And accordingly as Men have grown up into, and encreaſed more and more in Holineſs, they have been ſaid to be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, as Luke 1. 41. 'Tis ſaid of Elizabeth the Mother, and her Child the Baptiſt; and his eminent Holineſs is expreſſed by this, He ſhall be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, even from his Mothers Womb. Luke 1. 15. And the ſame ſtrain of Speech goes on in the New Teſtament, Acts 6. 3. Chooſe Men full of the Holy Ghoſt, and Wiſdom. Of Barnabas, 'twas ſaid A good Man, and full of the Holy Ghoſt: Acts 11. 28. and the ſupper-excelling fulneſs and Eminency of Chriſts Graces, is ſet out by this meaſure, That He had the Spirit above meaſure, For this Spirit's indwelling in Him, was the Fountain and Standard of his Infinitely tranſcending Holineſs.

Let

Book I. Let us go over the Several Particulars of that Work.

I. Habitual Holiness, and all the Principles of Holiness. I have shewn afore, that they are wholly of his operation; and this our Baptism (which is the Seal of Regeneration, or of the New Creature) doth signifie in a special manner: The letter of that word βαπτίζω, imports not simply to Wash, or to be washt; but to be Dyed also. It is also taken from the Dyers Fat, into which what Cloths are dipt, they carry away in them a new habitual tincture. The Holy Ghost takes a Man's Heart, and dyes it anew, changeth it. As a Cloth goes into the Fat of one colour, and comes out of it, of another: So is he who is born of the Spirit: He goes wholly Flesh, comes out Spirit in a good degree, which two are contrary, Gal. 5.

II. Mortification of Sin, and to the World, is ascribed to the Spirit, Rom. 8. 13. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye, THROUGH THE SPIRIT, do mortifie the deeds of the Body, ye shall live: 'Twas prophesied by Malachy, Mal. 2. 2, 3. That Christ coming after the Baptist, should purifie the Sons of Levi, by Fullers Soap, and the Refiners fire: Now who is that Refiners fire but this Spirit? As appears by comparing Isa. 4. 4. Where he is styled, The Spirit of Burning, and the Spirit of Judgment: The Spirit of Burning, consuming and purging out our Dross and Filth; and there also is the prophecy of Christs coming to Baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire, as the Baptist expounded it. (The Holy Ghost, as it is spoken partly because what remaining filth his Baptism of Water had not cleansed out, Christ's Spirit, as fire, should do it. For Num. 31. 32. the Fire is made a stronger purifier than Water; and even of the Baptist himself, and his Ministry, (the Spirit of God accompanying it) it was foretold by Isaiah, Chap. 40. That the Glory and Beauty of the whole Creation should be blasted, and caused to fade and wither, as flowers of the Grass are, by a wind; in and to New Converts Hearts, and deading their Souls, being deaden'd unto it, when the voice of the Cryer should come and Preach Repentance to the People; and the Glory of the Lord (Christ namely) should be revealed; The Grass withered and the Flower faded, (v. 7.) in such Men's Hearts as were savingly wrought upon by his voice and cry. And how came this to pass? 'Tis added, The Spirit of the Lord hath blown upon it. And the Apostle Peter expounding this Prophecy, says, That all Believers wrought upon by His and the Apostles Ministry, had purified their Souls, (1 Pet. 1. 22.) By the Preaching of the Gospel, and then referreth us unto this very place in Isaih, Being Born again, v. 23. For all Flesh is Grass, and the Glory thereof as the flower of Grass: The Grass withereth, and the Flower thereof falleth away; but the word of the Lord endureth forever; and this is the Word which by the Gospel is Preached unto you. verse 24. and 25.

III. There is in Scripture ascrib'd to the Holy Ghost the implantation of all the contrary Graces which are so often compared to Flowers and the Gardens of them; and unto Trees in Orchards, and Beds of Spices, planted artificially by a Florist (which is an allusion the Holy Ghost delights to use in that Book of Canticles) the Fruits and Flowers whereof shall never fade, (as the Flower of grass doth) but grow up, and flourish to eternal Life; which Flowers, &c. because planted in her Heart; the Spouse there calleth Her Garden [upon my Garden] As also Christ calls it his Garden, and both in that one Verse, Cant. 4. 16. which as appears by v. 12. was her own self. An inclosed Garden is my Sister, my Spouse, (says Christ of Her.) A spring shut up, a Fountain sealed. And v. 13, & 14. Thy plants are an Orchard of Pomegranates, a Fountain of Gardens, a Well of living Waters, and streams from Lebanon; which is certainly an Enumeration of particular Graces in their distinction and Variety, if we knew how aptly to apply those Similitudes in each, to what is proper to each. But how ever it serves in general to instruct us, that there is such a variety of Graces in our Hearts, as here of Trees in the Spouses Heart, and that the Heart of every Saint is an Orchard to such spiritual Plants growing therein; and in like manner, A Garden to a like variety of flowers as in ver. 12. and various Graces are meant by either. And the planting and bringing forth. Theſe are all aſcribed to the Holy Spirit as Chriſt's chief Planter. Thus I underſtand that fore-cited, v. 12. A Garden incloſed, A Spring ſhutup, to intend, That ſhe had two things incloſed in her Heart. Book I.

1. All ſorts of Graces, planted as in a Garden, as the Effects.

2. The indwelling of the Spirit as the Spring and Producer of all theſe Flowers, and accordingly in ver. 15. ſhe is ſaid to be A Fountain of Gardens, a Well of living water, and ſtream from Lebanon. Now that Well of living Water is apparently the Spirit, John. 4. 14. But whoſoever drinketh of the Water that I ſhall give him, ſhall never thirſt; But the Water that I ſhall give him, ſhall be in him a well of water ſpringing up into everlaſting life; Which is interpreted to be the Holy Ghoſt (John 7. 38, 39.) which comes as a ſpring from Lebanon, that is from that high Mountain, even from Heaven, from the Throne of God and of the Lamb, as Rev. 21. 1. And he ſhewed me a pure River of water of life, clear as Cryſtall, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb, which watereth theſe Flowers. Which Well the Church hath in her belly, as Chriſt's word is, in that of John the Evangeliſt Ch. 7 38. And all theſe plants in Chriſt's Garden (which is the Soul of a Believer) are of the Spirit's bringing forth and Setting. For as the Earth watered with fructifying water, brings forth Plants, as at the firſt Creation: So the Soul, bedewed with the Spirit, brings forth Trees of Righteouſneſs of the planting of the Lord, that He might be glorified, Iſa. 61. 3. Which (as appears by comparing v. 1) is recorded as the effect of Chriſt's having this Spirit given him: The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, to preach the Goſpel, whereof this is made the immediate effect, viz. the communicating the ſame Spirit unto His Members for this end, To plant in them Trees of Righteouſneſs. Thus it is aſcribed unto this Spirit, and ver. 11. of the ſame chap. it is added, For as the Earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the Garden cauſeth the things that are ſown in it to bring forth, ſo the Lord God will cauſe Righteouſneſs and Praiſe to ſpring forth before all Nations. In a word, he is ſtyled the Spirit of Grace, Heb. 10. 29. as the eminent Efficient of all our Graces; and therefore, they that Apoſtatize, are ſaid to do deſpite unto this Spirit, as He is the Efficient of all Graces and gracious Workings.

4. As the Planting, ſo the drawing them forth with into Act, both Bud and Fruit, and cauſing them to grow, is his work alſo.

1. The drawing them forth into Act, or the Acting of them; Or the cauſing them to ſhoot forth; is aſcribed to him. He is that Wind, which blowing upon our Graces, cauſeth them to flow out, even as his blowing upon the Flower of the Graſs, (as you hear'd out of Eſay 40.) Withers and Mortifies the Flowers or Glories of this World, to New Converts. And this follows in the next words of the ſame chapter, Cant. 4. v. 16. Awake O North Wind, and come thou South, blow upon my Garden, ſays the Spouſe; that the ſpices thereof may flow out: Let my Beloved come into his Garden, and eat his pleaſant Fruits, There are two prayers in thoſe words; The firſt to the Spirit, Come, thou South Wind and blow; and the ſecond to Chriſt himſelf, Let my Beloved come into His Garden when it ſhall be thus blown upon. Firſt, The Wind there apparently is, The Holy Ghoſt; Ezek, 37. 3. 14 verſes. compared with 5. 6. As the Wind bloweth where it liſteth, ſo is he that is born of the Spirit. The Spirit is a Quickening Wind, (the Breath of the living God and of Chriſt) who coming upon a man doth Regenerate him, and infuſe a New Spirit into him; as Chriſt had there ſaid: And after he is thus quickened, and born; A Soul newborn of the Spirit, then by blowing thereon, the ſame Spirit doth cauſe him to operate, and act, as ſuch a New Creature; who is ſo high-born ſhould in ſome meaſure do. Inſomuch as all and the whole of him who is truly born again, is from this Spirit; Not only his firſt begetting but his after-actings;

Book I. which latter, Christ also involves, in saying, So is he that is born of the Spirit; supposing him first to have been begotten a-new.

If any shall object, That the Spirit is but One and the Same Spirit, viz. the Person, and how can he be termed both the North Wind and the South Wind, which are not only divers, but blow contrary ways? The answer is, 'Tis true, the Person of the Holy Ghost is one and the same Person, as in himself considered; but his being said to be a Wind, is in respect of His Operations upon us; and so His blasts may blow several ways; Not only in these two Points of the Compass, there mentioned, but several others; and in this respect He is said to be Seven Spirits (Rev. 1. 7.) from whom Grace is there prayed for, as well as from Christ and the Father. And even the natural Wind in the Ayr is one and the same Wind, for the Substance of it, whilest yet it turneth it self about, as God pleaseth, unto several quarters, from North to South, &c. And this objection is preoccupated by the Apostle, 1 Cor. 12. 3, 4. Now there are Diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit; and so on, v. 6, 7, 8. and there are differences of administrations, &c. Now both these contrary Winds are needful, to cause the several Graces in Believers to flow forth; Come, says the Spouse, praying to this Spirit, come and blow upon my Garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. So then, the Spirits Operations upon those Graces, is the Blowing upon them; and their exerting that hidden virtue, or active power that lies latent in them, thr'o the Excitement and Actings of the Holy Ghost, is that their Flowing forth: And it is as if she had said, I indeed have these Plants and Graces habitually rooted in me, by thee, O Holy and blessed Spirit; but I am utterly unable so much as to give forth the least Scent or virtue of them (which other Plants naturally do) without thy breathing on them, and Moving and Impregnating of them: yet even earthly Plants yield their fragrancy of themselves, yet more strongly and abundantly when the Wind drives them to and fro, and exhales the Scent out of them: But she in the sense of her utter inability, prays to the Spirit to come and influence her.

And from hence, by the way, we may observe an Instance of a Warrant to pray distinctly to the Person of the Spirit, as if it had been said by her, Awake, and, come, thou Holy Spirit. As likewise to pray distinctly to the Person of Christ; as she also doth in these next words, Let my Beloved come; and that is, Then be Thou also pleased to come and visit thy Garden, when first thy Spirit, sent by Thee, hath drawn out and educed from out of those Plants that are growing therein, those pleasant Savours so pleasing to Thee, which these my Graces, when thus acted by the Spirit, do afford. And indeed, the many former Prayers and Petitions ever and anon found up and down in this Book of the Cantacles, do put it out of all question, that it is usefull for us thus to pray to each Person.

There is not so much as the least good thought, nor the least Bud which we with all our inherent Graces are able to bring forth, unless this Holy Spirit efficaciously blows upon us, 2 Cor. 3. 6. It is the Spirit (says he) who is ζωοποιῶν, That quickens and gives life; and he speaks this of the Holy Spirit joyning with the Gospel, even The Spirit of the Living God, whom he had under that title mentioned afore, in v. 3. And that His Quickening relateth unto all and every thing of the Spirit of life within us, even unto the production of but One, a single individual One Action, though it also be but the least good thought; is expressly said in v. 5. not that we are sufficient of our selves to think any thing as of our selves; but our sufficiency is of God; that is, unless God (the Living God) by his Living Spirit (as in v. 3.) do form it in us; And although the Matter of a good thought were cast into our Minds, yet as Seed thrown into a Barren Soil, it would sow this in our hearts, it would instantly become a dead work, such as all the works of unregenerate men, are Heb. 6. 1. So that our eyes, should be fixed upon, and intirely ascribe all that is good in us, to this Spirit as the Author. And tho' we and our Wills do concur in the acting also, yet He is the efficient of that concurrence in us causing us to do: Yea and is the cause of every degree of that goodness in our Actings, Dividing to every Man severally as he will, 1 Cor. 12. 11. Chap. 5.

3. The Spirit produceth all the Spiritual Strength we receive, when our hearts are ready to be over-born with temptations, or a lust; Or when we want strength to do such or such a Work or Duty; to suffer, that we may be able to endure in such a trial. It is the Spirit gives strength to the Inner Man, (Ephes. 3. 16. compared with Coloss. 1. 10 & 11.) Like as the Spirit fell on Sampson, and gave him strength, who of himself was otherwise but as other Men. 'Twas He made Elias so bold and couragious, and the Prophet Amos after him, ch. 3. 8. (Truly says he) I am full of Power, by the Spirit of the Lord, and of Judgment, and of Might, to declare to Judah his Transgression, and to Israel his sin. The like He gave the Baptist to tell Herod of his Sin, which cost him his life: 'Twas because he came in the power and Spirit of Elias. Take the weakest heart that is, as weak as water, (as the Prophet speaks) and let the Spirit joyn with it, and Mingle Himself therewith, and it is too hard and strong for all the World; it will snap asunder Tentations, as Sampson did his withs. There is a Supply of the Spirit, Phil. 1 10. comes in with fresh forces, when we are near to a yeilding up the Fort, and being led Captive, and so he rescues and Delivers us. In all our walkings with God, He is our Guide and faithful Companion, to see to us and to keep us out of harms way. And often when we stumble, He puts under his hand, as the Psalmist's word is. And a little help keeps up a man that is falling or reeling; Or to recover him again when he is falling: And thus the Apostle seems to intend that speech, who helpeth our infirmities (Rom. 8.) And those infirmities there are not to be limited to the infirmities that belong to, and accompany our Prayers onely; but which accompany us in all our ordinary walkings. The word συνελαμβάνεται supposeth it to be the case of a Weak Man in himself, who yet further hath a weight or a burden hanging on him, which presseth him down (as of our Corruptions, especially some, or such as are more proper to us; as the Apostle expresseth, Heb. 12.) who yet having a friend to accompany him in his Running the Race set before him (as there the Apostle's Allegory is) He perceiving the Weaklings aptness to sink under the weight, does continually relieve him; and not only shoares up, and sustains the Man; but himself takes the other end of his burden, (and the far heavier end) and so helps him to bear it, and go on a long with it. And this the Apostle expresly there atributes to the Spirit; and if so be, it chanceth that we fall, he is still at hand, a present help (as a present Help, as David says) to take us up; yea then when we fall into the Foulest Mire and Dirt, and grievously defile our selves, it is the Spirit that cleanseth us, according to that of the Apostle, 1 Pet. 1. 23. We through the Spirit purifie our selves: And according to that of David, Psal. 51. Create in me a clean Heart (after he had so foully fallen into Uncleanness) and take not thy Holy Spirit from me, v. 10, 11. In this Case this Gracious Spirit, says not, (as the harsh Spirits of Man would say) Even lye there still, since you would needs fall, sprawling in your own Filth: Not so this good Spirit; but as if a Man (a Brother) be overtaken with a fault, Those that are Spiritual, are to take on them, to restore, and often do, restore such a Man in the Spirit of Meekness; How much more will and doth this Blessed Spirit; who is He that makes Spiritual, those that are such, and indues them with that Spirit of meekness, out of His own Dovelike Meekness, Restore such an one, and take care of him, for ever after, lest he fall so again.

4. He is a Spirit of Counsel, powerfully Instructing and convincingly teaching how to act and walk, for He directs us to set right steps, and to walk with a right foot; and thereby prevents us of many a sin, by seasonable Instruction set on upon our hearts with a Strong hand, as Isa. 8. 11. For, as the same Prophet says, Isaiah 11. 2. He is the Spirit of Council and of the Might: 1. Of Counsel to direct: 2. Of Might, to Strengthen the Inner Man. Such He was to Christ the Head; (of whom 'tis there spoken:) For instance, In that agony and (on the determination of which our Salvation depended) and conflict in the Garden, when he prayed, Let this Cup pass; 'twas this good Spirit that counselled Him to dye: and in Psal. 16. 7. He blesseth God for it: I bless the Lord that hath given me counsel. 'Twas that Counsel that in that case caused his heart to say, Not My will, but Thine. When we are out of the way, He recalls us, and is a voice behind us, saying, This is the way, walk in it; and not only thus directs us, but taketh us by the Arms, and teacheth us to go; Hosea 11. 3. Thy Spirit is good, lead me, says the Psalmist: Psal. 143. 10. And therefore it is an usual Phrase, in Rom. 8. and Gal. 4. Our being led by the Spirit. And not only so, as to direct and lead, but effectually to cause us to walk in his statutes and ways. For,

Book I.

5. As He is a Spirit of Counsel to our Understanding part, so an Effectual Perswader, and Conducter of our Wills; with Might (as was observed) working in us the Will and the Deed, according to his good Pleasure: For altho' the Will of a Man Regenerate is endowed with a new vital Principle of Spiritual Life; so as in its willing and acting Spiritually it doth it freely, and as a Living Principle of its own Acts, yet it Acts concurring with the Movings and Influences of the Spirit, according to that most excelling Scripture (as to this purpose) Psal. 110. 3. Thy People shall be willing in the day of thy Power. Herein the Holy Spirit hath determined the Controversy; and reconciled the Freeness of Man's Will in Conversion; as likewise in the After-actings of Grace, with the determinating efficacy of the power of God's Grace; this being so full and infallible a Prophecy, certainly foretelling these Events of their willingness. Now that Prophecy doth directly refer to the day of Pentecost (whereof that Psalm treateth) and of Christ's Ascension and sitting in Heaven, and that passage refers unto the pouring forth the Spirit that day upon the Apostles; and unto His coming upon Three thousand of the Jews, converted the same day, and made willing (by the same Spirit accompanying that great Apostle's Ministry) as the fullfilling of this prophecy. You read the story in Acts 2. where you find that willingness ascribed unto the Spirit, as His work; and so wonderfully efficacious is his power, as it was styled in that Psalm, The day of His power; Not of Man's will; Christ's Power had the day of it in overcoming Mans Will. And whereas it is said, That God worketh in us to will and to do, it is not by His giving in power only to will or to do, but to will, τὸ θέλειν: the act of willing, the τὸ θέλειν: and the Giving This, was the Spirit's Gift. So in those Converts it was by the Spirit (as Psal. 110. compared with Acts 2. will inform us) who is indeed the Power of the Most High, Luke 1. 35. And to cause us to do, and therefore To will, is expressly atrributed to this Spirit in Ezek. 36. where, First it is said, A new heart also will I give you, and a new Spirit I will put within you; and I will take away the stony Heart out of your Flesh, and I will give you an Heart of Flesh: Which words denote the Creating of all those Principles of Spiritual Life and Habitual Graces; and then it is added v. 37. I will put MY SPIRIT within you, and CAUSE YOU TO WALK IN MY STATUTES, and ye shall keep my Judgments AND DO THEM. What is this other, but the same with that in the Philippians, To work in us to will and to do? For if to do, then to be sure to will: And this Promise of the Covenant (and it is the Covenant of Grace is there Promulged) is to work in us an Evangelical Obedience unto all the Commandments; which begins first with to Will and then follows to Do, according unto that of the Apostle, Not to do, but to be willing, 2 Cor. 8. 10.

6. As all the Principles, and the Production of the Acts, and fixing the Will; so our whole growth in Grace, from first to last, is attributed to this Spirit also: Isa. 44. 3, 4. I will pour Water upon him that is Thirsty, and Flouds upon the dry Ground: I will pour my Spirit upon thy Seed, and my Blessing upon thine Offspring; and they shall spring up as the Grass, as Willows by the Water Courses, or Streams. There are two things that cause the springing up of Grass, and Growth in Willows.

1. Suffi-

1. Sufficiency, and plenty of Water, either Rain from Heaven, or streams of Rivers, when Trees (as Willows) are seated by them. 2. The Sun and the sweet Influences thereof, Deut. 32. And for this latter We have elsewhere our Lord Christ compared to the Sun, in this very respect, Mal. 4. 2. But unto you that fear my Name, shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in His Wings; and ye shall grow up as Calves in the stall; as the Sun causeth Trees and Plants to grow, so Beasts too; which later allusion, he prosecutes there. But in that of Isa. 44. He compares the Spirit to the Floods, and the Rain, which encreasing the Sap within the Root and Body of the Trees, causeth them to grow up and bring forth fruits, even to old Age: I will pour FLOODS upon the dry Ground, I will pour my SPIRIT upon thy Seed.

7. The Acceptation of all these Fruits by GOD, and of our Persons by God for them, both all along, and specially when all is finished and perfected, is by and from the Holy Ghost. Thus Rom. 15. 16. the Apostle speaks, That the Offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being Sanctified by the Holy Ghost. In which Words, he sets out the great Function and Success of his Gospel-Ministry, under allusions to the Levitical Priesthood, as that which Succeeded that of the Law, (Isa. 66. 20.) in declaring how there had been a far more Excellent Sacrifice offered up to God, by his Preaching, than had been by them of Old. Their Sacrifices were but of Beasts; but this was of Men; the Souls of Men, which by his Preaching had been converted to God, even an innumerable Company of the Gentiles; which were the first Fruits and Foundation of the Church of the New Testament. These Sacrifices of the Gospel, also in number far exceed any of the Sacrifices of the Old Testament, that were at any one time, ever offered up; yea, than there had been by Solomon, at the Foundation, and Consecration of his New Built Temple; and yet all this was as the work but of one Apostle: Of those Old Testament Sacrifices, it is still noted how, and what acceptableness they had with God, as Abel's, Heb. 11. As Noah's, Gen. 8. 20, 21. God smelt a sweet savour, and of Solomon, Testified by Fire coming down from Heaven. Now of this great New-Testament Oblation here, that which gave the acceptableness, is expressly said to be, the being Sanctified by the Holy Ghost, as the Cause that rendred them acceptable; and our Translators favour it, if not imply it, in rendering it, Being Sanctified by the Holy Ghost; that is, in that, or because, it was Sanctified by the Holy Ghost, and therefore acceptable: As for the Apostles own part, he professeth himself but the poor Instrument, so in the following 18. ver. and that it was Christ, and his Spirit had wrought all by him. And as he wrought nothing in those Gentiles Hearts, so the acceptation of what was wrought, was much less from any Consideration whatever in him, to make this Sacrifice accepted by the Holy God. Far be that from the least of our thoughts, for it is to be attributed unto Christ, as the Worker of it, v. 18. and unto the Spirit, in this 16. v. and unto the Spirit as well as unto Christ. Neither is our Sanctification simply in it self, and abstractly considered, as it is in us, of force and virtue alone, to cause this Acceptation. This the Confessions of David and Daniel, &c. abundantly do declare. It is the matter indeed, or thing that is accepted, but not the ground or cause of the acceptation. And therefore, that word ἐν in (as in the Original) which is translated by the Holy Ghost, is not added barely to shew that the Holy Ghost was the Author of this and all other Sanctification, that is accepted, but that it might be noticed that it was He who was and is the main and principal cause of that acceptation, and for which it hath a due value with God; even for this reason, that our Sanctification is the work of the Holy Ghost. As we esteem the Work for the workmans sake; so doth God our Works for the Holy Ghost's sake, as the Worker of it.

Acceptationis istiusoblationis sive victimæ, Causam tribuit Sanctificationi. Rolloc in verba.

If it be said, that, our good Works and Holiness have their acceptation from Christ. It is granted, as most true, our Persons are accepted in his Person, as the Beloved, Eph. 1. 6. and our Works in his Works of Mediation; the sole Meritorious Cause of that Acceptation, and as by way of Mediation between God and us; in so much as Christ is said to be made Sanctification it self to us, 1 Cor. 1. 30. as if it were no Sanctification in the sight of God, that is not made accepted for such in Christ. And by him we offer up our Sacrifices to God

Book 1. God; and God is well pleased with them; Heb. 13. v. 15, and 16. And upon such an account, the Holy Ghost is not the cause of this kind of acceptation. This Honour is Christ's alone; yet so as there is left room for this Holy Spirit, to have the Glory of procuring acceptation to our good works another way; namely in that he is the Efficient of them, and in that they are His Works in us. Yea, and our Persons also are in such a like respect, accepted in, and for the Holy Ghost, in that we are the Temples of the Holy Ghost, and He dwells in us; and God hath respect to the Temple for His sake that dwells therein. Therefore give and acknowledge that Honour to the Spirit, for his Work and Interest, as well as to the Son for His.

If we have recourse to the Metaphor the Apostle began with, and continues along to the end of the verse, viz. That the Gentiles were made a Sacrifice, and an Offering to God, and had their Lusts slain by the Gospel, the Sword of the Spirit, as the Sacrificing Knife, and this by the Holy Ghost, according to that in Chap. 8 You by the Spirit mortifie the Deeds of the Body; we may extend the allusion to the acceptation of a Sacrifice. There were two things made the Sacrifices acceptable, viz. The Altar, upon which the Offering was made; which Christ teacheth us; The Altar sanctifies the Gift; and that most fitly represented Christ's part in our acceptation: Heb. 13. 10. We have an Altar, namely Christ; by whom we offer our Sacrifice of Praises, and by whom they are accepted, v. 12, 15, 16. But then there was fire also, which came forth immediately from the Lord, and consumed the Burnt Offering that was upon the Altar. So it was at first in Moses time; Levit. 9. v. 24. and the second time, fire came down from Heaven, and did the like in Solomons time, 2 Chron. 7. 1. When the Temple was finished and consecrated. This signified, The Holy Spirit, who comes out from God, (1 Cor. 2. 12.) even as that fire came forth from the Lord, and came upon the Apostles to convert the World, like fire; according to the Promise that they should be Baptized with the Holy Ghost, as with fire. And he is termed the Spirit of Burning, Isa. 4. 4. As the Sacrifices are termed, Burnt Offerings, and fire Offerings: And as the fire caused the Sacrifice to Ascend in smoak (and therefore the Hebrew word for a Burnt Offering is Gnolak, Ascension) and consumed the Offering to Ashes, so doth this Spirit cause our Sacrifice as well as the Altar: Psal. 20. 3. The Lord accept thy Burnt Sacrifice. It is in the Hebrew, The Lord shall turn to Ashes; which our Translators rightly Translate accept, from the wonted Speech of Moses Law; which informs us, that the smoak which ascended from the Sacrifice by reason of the fire, is termed up and down in the Levitical Law, a Rest before the Lord, and a Savour of Rest: Lev. 6. 15. Which the Paraphrasts do in Terminis, in our own Phrase and Words, render a favourable acceptation with the Lord, and this sweet savour, is expressly attributed to the fire, as that which did thus sanctifie the Offering, and the acceptation of the Sacrifice its being a Fire-Offering. He puts it upon account, Lev. 1. 9, and 13. It is a Burnt Offering, (says the Text there) an Offering made by Fire, of a sweet savour unto the Lord. As if he would have said, It is therefore of a sweet savour, because made by fire. So then, as Christ, as the Altar and Mediator, gives an acceptation; so the Spirit, as the fire that consumes the Sacrifice, and causeth it to ascend in smoak, causeth the acceptation also; but either upon differing accounts, as was explained.

8. The whole Edification of every Saint, by the means of Grace, which are the Ordinances, and other Means whatsoever, all flows from the benigne Influences of this Spirit, accompanying them, and bedewing Men's hearts by them. And for the proof of this in general, you have that passage, Acts 9. 31. Then had the Churches Rest, and [were edified] walking in the fear of the Lord. And so it is said of Churches walking in all the Order and Ordinances of Christ; (as of the Colossian Church it is spoken chap. 2.) that they did so, in the Comfort of the Holy Ghost, as the Author of that Edification and Comfort by those Ordinances.

I shall instance particularly in the main Ordinances of our Salvation, and shew how our profiting by them, is from the Spirit.

1. In

1. In the Preaching of the Word we receive not only the fruits of the Holy Spirit, but the Spirit himſelf, by the hearing of faith; that is, by the hearing the Goſpel preached, which is the doctrine of truth. Our Goſpel came not to you in word only, but in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Theſ. 1. 5. I create the fruit of the lips, Peace, and teach thee to profit; namely, by the lips of thoſe who by office are ſaid to preſerve knowledge, Mal. 2. 7. All which profiting is attributed to the Spirit, 1 Cor. 12. 7. But the Manifeſtation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withall. It is the profit both of a man's ſelf and others. And the Holy Spirit's care is very great herein; he is the Providore General, to overſee the Overſeers of the Flock and to ſee to it, provide the fitteſt Stewards for every flock, Acts 20. 28. The Flock over which the Holy Ghoſt hath made you Overſeers. And he furniſheth them with ſuch Gifts as ſhall beſt ſerve, and moſt ſuitably agree unto their capacities, and the bore of their Underſtandings, and to work on their hearts; and in providential Grace diſpoſeth of them and their Gifts, as ſhall be moſt agreeable to their Spirits, and Spiritual condition. As ſome Miniſters are fitted for the profiting of the Weak; ſo others, to the Wiſe; even as the Apoſtle ſays, he was a debtor to both, Rom. 1. And then he takes a further ſpecial care of their forehand Meditations and Preparations, to ſuggeſt ſuch Materials and Notions for their Sermons, as ſhall be a food moſt convenient for Men's Souls. They are Stewards that give meat in due Seaſon, Math. 24. 45. He fills the Breſts of Miniſters (their Spiritual Nurſes) with conſolations, and other Truths, ſuitable to the temper and conſtitution of their Stomachs, and inſtructeth them to ſpeak words in ſeaſon: And this, very often, unknown to themſelves that ſpeak them; They not having any aim at thee, or any other Man in particular, in ſuch paſſages, which alſo are utterly unexpected to, or perhaps not prayed for by him whom yet they greatly concern; when yet the Holy Ghoſt knew whom to direct thoſe paſſages unto; and had ſet up thy heart as the Mark, to ſhoot thoſe Arrows into it. Chap. 3.

9. And laſtly, To draw to a concluſion; and it is, indeed, the happy Concluſion and Crown of the whole work of the Spirit upon us, for we are now come to the Brink of eternity, the Conſummation of all:

1. With reſpect to Death, this Holy Spirit, the Comforter, all our Life long feeds and maintains by faith, more or leſs, a lively hope within them that are Regenerate, 1 Pet. 1. 3. Bleſſed be God that hath begotten us again to a lively hope; which according to the degree of it in any, allays that fear of Death, the King of Sorrows, Job 18. 14. The fear of which, all Men (that have not this Spirit) are ſubject unto the Bondage of, all their life time: Heb. 2. 15. From the Dominion of which Bondage, the Spirit of Adoption frees us, Rom. 8. 15. So as to have our Spirits ſupported by faith, ſo far as ordinarily to be able (when put to it in earneſt) to venture or caſt our Souls, into the hands of God as a Father; and this the Scriptures attribute unto this Good Spirit. In the 2 Cor. 4 and 5. chap. the Apoſtle treats of a Believers dying, and comforts himſelf and them againſt it: for upon occaſion as the times then were, he and other Saints were in continual hazard of death; as v. 11. For we that live, are always delivered unto death for Jeſus ſake. Now from whence, or from whom had he and they ſupports and reliefs againſt this, but from the Spirit, his working and upholding faith in them? We having the ſame Spirit of faith, according as it is written &c. and pertinently quotes a ſaying of Davids under the Old Teſtament in the 116 Pſalm; where he had been under apparent apprehenſions of death, as in the third verſe, upon occaſion of which, David had uttered that ſpeech, I believed, therefore have I ſpoken, v. 10. and ſpoke it, as it were, in defiance of Death, and all the fears of it, and dangers about it. Now whence had David this confidence? From the Spirit, ſays the Apoſtle; as who wrought and maintained that faith in him: Thus it was in the Old Teſtament; and he (ſays he under the New Teſtament) having the ſame Spirit of faith; we upon the view of ſuch apparent dangers of death, believe and therefore ſpeak, with a farr greater confidence, by how much the Spirit that is in the

the New, exceeds in his comforts, the ſame that was in the old: but,
Book I. from the ſame Spirit, both. And what ſpake he by this Spirit of faith? It follows in v. 14. We knowing, that he which raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall raiſe up us alſo by Jeſus; This they ſpake and believed, and comforted themſelves with against Dying. Again in the 5*th* chap. What made him confident of a houſe in Heaven, when this Earthly Tabernacle ſhould be diſſolved? Even this, and above all, this, That God hath given us the Earneſt of His Spirit, v. 5. to bind the Promiſe of Eternal life: And from thence it is (ſays he) that we are always confident, &c. v. 6. [always] which extends both to all along our lives, and alſo at our deaths: Which is a

2. Thing, That when we come to dye, or that the time of death approacheth, and is coming upon us, This Spirit is given to ſupport us. For, if always, as the Apoſtle even now ſaid, and at all other times of our lives, and upon other occaſions of fears and diſtreſs, He is given to help our Infirmities, Rom. 8. 28. Then eſpecially when we are weakeſt, as at Death (to be ſure) we ſhall be, when our fleſh fails, &c. Pſ. 73. 26.

2. And at the laſt day of the World (who is it ſhall raiſe thee up, having kept thy bones) dwelt in thy duſt all this while as Chriſt's God-head did his Body, which therefore though in the Grave David calls the Holy One, Pſal. 16. It is this Spirit, Rom. 8. 11. But if the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, dwell in you; he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. It is brought in as the comfortable Conſequent of this Spirit dwelling in us: And having raiſed thee, leaves thee not, but is the Author of all thy Glory and Communion with Father, Son, and Himſelf forever. 1 Pet. 4. 14. He is in that reſpect termed the Spirit of Glory; Not of Grace only, but of Glory. Bleſſed are ye, for the Spirit of Glory and of God reſteth on you; that is, you poſſeſs for ever this Fountain of all Glory, this Spirit of God; therefore the promiſe of the Spirit is made adequate to the whole Bleſſing (as being the Maſs of Bleſſings) which was given to Abraham. Gal. 3. 14. That the bleſſing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jeſus Chriſt; that we might receive the Promiſe of the Spirit, through Faith. The whole is termed the promiſe of the Spirit.

CHAP. VI.

The Uſes of the Precedent Doctrine.

USE 1. LET me a little affect your Hearts, with the Love of the Spirit, from and upon Occaſion of all that hath been ſaid. There is a daily entercourſe with, and Meditation of, the Love of the Father, and the Love of Chriſt. There is a Fellowſhip of the Father, and a Fellowſhip of the Son, in the Souls of every Believer: But the Holy Ghoſt, though he hath been Univerſally acknowledged as a Perſon equal to either, yet we do not hold and purſue after Fellowſhip with him as a diſtinct Perſon; nor is his Love in what he hath done for us, ſet on as a Seal upon our Hearts. Whereas the Scriptures (though more ſparingly, becauſe it was he who wrote them) do urge Obligations upon us, drawn from him, as well as the other two Perſons.

If we believe he is a Perſon in the Trinity, let us treat with him as a Perſon, apply our ſelves to him as a Perſon, glorifie him in our Hearts as a Perſon, dart forth beams of ſpecial and peculiar love to, and converſe with him as with a Perſon. Let us fear to grieve him, and alſo believe on him, as a Perſon; Which our very Creed directs us to: Do you profeſs to hold Communion and converſe with the Saints? I beſeech you have it with the Maker of them, the Holy Ghoſt; and this not at ſecond hand, by having fellowſhip with thoſe he dwells in, but immediately alſo with himſelf. Chap. 5.

Becauſe the Spirit is intimior intimo, is ſo nearly and intimately united to us, dwells in us as our own Souls do in us, therefore we converſe not with him (as we do ſeldom with our own Souls) but are moſt of all ſtrangers thereto. Alſo becauſe indeed his work is but new beginning, and as yet imperfect, and but a Foundation of that Building in Eternity to be raiſed: Whereas Chriſt hath perfected his, hath perfected for ever thoſe that are Sanctified (Heb. 10. 14.) by one Offering once made; it is therefor we diſcerne not, (mind not) the Holy Ghoſt, or his Works, as we do Chriſt and his. But what ſays the Apoſtle, Rom. 15. 30. Now I beſeech you, Brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye ſtrive together with me, &c. You ſee he adjures them by the Spirit, and his Love, and their Love unto the Spirit, as well as for Chriſt's ſake. The Occaſion was, That ye would pray for me, ſays he, that that Work of the Miniſtry, (which is properly the Holy Ghoſts Work, Acts 13. 2.) may proſper in my hand: And if you profeſs love to the Spirit, whoſe Work it is, and ſo Conſider his love to you, who hath done ſo much for you, His Honour in this Work will be dear to you. And in as much as he had urg'd them juſt before for the Lord Chriſt's ſake, and then ſubjoins, For the Love of the Spirit: Surely he muſt mean in like connexion of ſenſe, that for the Spirits ſake alſo, and for his Loves ſake towards them, who had born no leſs Love to them, than Chriſt had done, they would do what he exhorted them to. Sure his Exhortation falls not lower, nor runs in a lower way, to mean only the Love which they bore to the Spirit, but it means that Love which the Spirit himſelf bore to them, and which is equal to that of Chriſt. And the edge of his perſwaſive, farther lies in this, and is as if he had ſaid, Seeing that when we exhort you for Chriſt's ſake, it uſeth to take with you, to move and prevail with you; ſo when we urge you by the love of the Spirit, it will have no leſs effect, if you do but conſider all he hath done for you, or is to you. Now when he moves them for Chriſt's ſake (as in the firſt place he doth) the meaning is to obteſt them by all the love that Chriſt had born them, and by what he had done for them: When therefore he adds, And for the love of the Spirit; (the Spirit being a Perſon we are obliged to, as well as unto Chriſt) can you think he had not this as his more eſpecial Aim, to move them in like manner by this very love of the Holy Ghoſt, who indeed deals altogether in the affairs of love from the Father and the Son? He proceeds from them by way of love; and love in them mutually each to other, is the Original of his Perſon: And as he is the Love that is between them both, ſo it is he who ſheds abroad the love of both into our Hearts; and it is he who is grieved as a Friend or Perſon that loves us, (as Eph. 4. 30.) when we ſin, or neglect that Duty which is his Care and Charge to work in us.

And as this is the Apoſtles Scope, ſo this Love of his ought to be very dear unto us; for if we ſingle out any thing earneſtly to entreat ſome other thing from another, that thing we entreat them by, muſt be ſuppoſed to be moſt pretious to Us. Again, when Rom. 8. He had inſiſted on this, that there is the Spirit of Chriſt in us, or we are none of his; he then begins the Enumeration of many great things this Spirit doth for Us, throughout that Chapter; by thoſe Arguments perſwading Us not to live after the Fleſh, but after the Spirit. In the midſt of theſe perſwaſives, He come in with this, Wherefore, Brethren, we are Debtors, but not to the Fleſh. Thoſe Words make two intire Sentences, one Affirmative, that we are Debtors; the other Negative, but not to the Fleſh; We are not Debtors to the Fleſh: Now to whom is it he affirms, we are Debtors? Evidently the Spirit, as not only the Words of Oppoſition, not to the Fleſh, (which two are in this Chapter, ſet as ἀντικείμενα as Contraries and Oppoſites, as every where elſe) but as the Coherence and the Illation [therefore we are Debtors] ſhew. It was this Spirit he had laſt ſpoken of, the Spirit that dwelleth in us as a Guide and Leader, Actor and Informer of us, as the Soul in our Souls, v. 11. If the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, dwelleth in you; he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. And from thence he inferrs, Therefore we are Debtors. To whom but to him? Debtors unto what? To live after the Spirit, and not after the fleſh: So v. 12, 13. Not to the fleſh, to live after the fleſh; for if ye live after the fleſh, ye ſhall dy: But if ye thro' the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye ſhall live. The obligation here you ſee runs in the Spirits Name, the Arreſt is at his Suit. Debtors then we are, and infinitely indebted to him, and this for dwelling in us; and becauſe we are led and guided by him as a Perſon that loves us, are we wonderfully beholden unto him. And thoſe next words, As many as are led by the Spirit, directs us to treat with him as with a Perſon, a Fmiliar, a Friend, that walks with us, takes us by the hand, talks to you, adviſeth you as the Spirit of Counſel (as Iſa. 11. 2. he is call'd) continually ſpeaking in us, This is God's way, walk in it. Again, when we read 2 Cor. 13. 14. The Grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the love of God, and the Communion of the Holy Ghoſt, be with you: That Κοινωνία which we tranſlate Communion, doth it not, and may it not import the Fellowſhip and Converſe that the Holy Ghoſt vouchſafes to us with himſelf, as well as that with the Father and the Son, 1 John 1. 4. The word in both places is one and the ſame. And when he moves them (Phil. 2. 1.) by all theſe Conſiderations, If there be any Conſolation in Chriſt, any Fellowſhip of the Spirit, &c. why ſhould we not interpret fellowſhip of the Spirit, for Converſe and entercourſe had by us from him as a Perſon, as well as Conſolation in Chriſt, is that which is in the Perſon of Chriſt? Out of ſuch an experimental ſenſe of ſweet Familiarity and Converſe had with the Spirit of God, doth that ſpeech of Holy David ſeem to proceed, Pſal. 143. 10. Thy Spirit is good, lead me. Methinks he ſpeaks ſo feelingly of him, and of that ſweetneſs he had found in him as a friend, as if he had ſaid, I have found his Counſel and Converſe ſo good, oh give me more of them. And when he bids us grieve him not, (Eph. 4. 30.) doth it not Import one whom we converſe with dayly, that is full of Love and Kindneſs to us, full of Tenderneſs, whoſe love we ſhould take in, and conſider, and have a wary watchful regard to, and grieve with him, if we offend him. I cannot enlarge upon the work he hath done and is to do for us, which yet is proper to this occaſion. I ſhall only inſtance in what, in the doctrinal part, I have been ſo large in, and in that which Rom. 8. 11, 12. the Apoſtle putteth this very obligation upon our being Debtors to the Spirit. He had in that chapter ſpoken much, and great things about the Spirit's indwelling in us, and the fruits thereof: And he ſpoke thus, v. 11. If the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, dwell in you; he that raiſed Jeſus from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. Chriſt's love was in dying, the Spirit's is ſhewn in his in-dwelling in us. His inference from thence is, v. 12. Therefore brethren we are Debtors, not to the fleſh to live after the fleſh. But that the Greatneſs of his Love and Grace may appear unto us, and we may put a due Value upon it, let us compare it with the love of Chriſt himſelf in being incarnate, and dwelling in our Nature for us. You account it infinite love in him to leave the Boſom of his Father, to come down from heaven, and become one perſon with a Man, to be made fleſh, and ſo to be made leſs than his Father in that reſpect; Yea and this love is the greater, in as much as he aſſumed this Nature as cloathed with all Infirmities of fleſh and blood, the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and dwelt among us, and endur'd ſuch Contradictions of ſinners as the Apoſtle ſpeaks. And this Union was the foundation of all his work and ſatisfaction for us. And herein God commended his love, as Heb. 2. you have it ſet forth: And yet ſet this grace of the Holy Ghoſt's indwelling in us by it, and it riſeth up unto an equality; and though it fall lower in ſome reſpects, yet exceeding that of Chriſt in others, the Scales will be acknowledged even.

It falls lower in this, that the union between him and us is not perſonal as that of Chriſt's is with his humah Nature; but yet it is as near it as Poſſibly may be, for 'tis an immediate union of our perſons to and with his perſon, ſo as to have an eternal right perſonal to each other, and everlaſtingly to dwell each in other: And it indeed was well for us we had not a perſonal union with the Spirit; for our defilements (if remaining) would then have defiled and been imputed unto his Perſon. Book I.

2. In other things it is equall:

For, 1. Both are ſaid to come alike down from heaven; the Spirit (1 Pet. 1. 12.) as well as Chriſt.

2. He in-dwells in us for ever, as was ſhewn. He is in us; and ſhall be with us marryed as indiviſibly without all divorce, as the Son of God and that humane Nature alſo are. Yea, and as Chriſt continued his union with the Body in the Grave, ſo thoſe words (Rom. 8. 11.) If the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you; import, that the Spirit continueth his union and relation to the Body (which 1 Cor. 6. 19. is alſo called his Temple) even within the Grave, and faln to duſt.

But 3. In theſe things the love ſhewn by the Spirit in ſuch his union with us, doth exceed,

1. That, tho' indeed the Son of God dwelt and dwells thus intimately in an humane Nature, yet it is a Nature made holy, harmleſs, ſeparate from ſin, and ſinners (Heb. 7.) But this good Spirit's lott and part is to come at firſt into hearts full of all defilements, into raggs of uncleanlineſs, into fleſh, that is, and hath wholly corrupted it ſelf. Of old this was made a wonder by Soloman; Will God in very deed dwell on Earth, in a houſe which I have built for him, whom the Heaven and the Earth cannot contain? 2 Chron. 6. 18. But here is a wonder of wonders, That the Holy God (as the Spirit is) ſhould dwell in hearts ſo unholy and unclean, and make them his Temples (as 1 Cor. 6. 19.)

2. Chriſt indeed dwelt among us, and convers'd with ſinful Men, whereby He ſuffered daily ſuch Contradictions of Sinners: But it was a Contradiction meerly from without, and yet this grated on his Spirit (nothing more) inſomuch as 'tis ſaid, he pleaſed not himſelf, in the beſt of his Company, Rom. 15. 3. But the Union of the Holy Ghoſt, and his in-dwelling in us, is in our ſinful Hearts; ſo as often, where his in-dwelling is mention'd, it is inſerted, (Gal. 4. 6.) He ſent the Spirit of his Son into our Hearts, 2 Cor. 1. 22. He hath given the earneſt of his Spirit into our Hearts, John 7. 38. This Spring of Living Water, is ſaid to be in the Belly, environed about with mud; All which imports a neerer Union then that of Chriſt within us; to which this Limitation is added, He dwells in our Hearts by Faith. But of the Spirit, it is ſaid, every where, That he dwells in us. It is Originally, his Title, 2 Tim. 1. 14. to be ſtyled, He that dwells within us. Now the Contradiction, which he by reaſon of this near Inhabitation endures, muſt needs be much greater, and quicker to his Senſe, from thoſe he dwells thus within, and hath entred into, and hath undertaken ſuch a Conjunction withall, then that of outward Converſe, which Chriſt only endured. For if what Chriſt ſays, in another caſe, be true, What is from without ſhould offend; then how much more that which is from within, the Perſon one dwells withall? And in this Reſpect, he alone of all the Three Perſons is ſaid to be grieved, having taken on him, the part of an intimate Friend. A Father (as God the Father) is Offended, but a familiar Friend, is grieved: It argues a nearer ſtriking home at the Heart. And in this Reſpect, he hath had an hard task of it, and this from the beginning of the World. He hath been burthened, and felt the Weight of the Old World, (Gen. 6.) My Spirit ſhall not always ſtrive with Man therein. And yet he relieves himſelf by bringing the Flood upon them after an Hundred and Twenty Years. But againſt theſe, he thus in-dwels in, whem He Regenerates, He hath no Relief, for He hath Eternally undertaken for them.

Book I.

And is it nothing, think you, to have His Work continually spoiled? Never to find the Soul, as He left it? To have that Heart He dwells in, continually resisting and contradicting of him? To have that unspun in the Night, which He hath woven in the Day? To have made a good Prayer in us, and that swept away, as if it were but a Cobwebb, by Lust that riseth? To have His greatest Enemy, the Devil, Blaspheme him and His Graces, in His own House, in His own Hearing? If Lot's Righteous Soul was vext, or our own Graces within us troubled; than how much more is the Author of all Grace; dwelling in us, in so much as he is weary of this World, and the course held in this Respect?

And to that Accompt I have sometimes in my thoughts cast that Speech, Rev. 22. where we find some Out-crys for Christ's coming, that He would come quickly. The Spirit says come, (speaking to Christ) as well as the Bride says come: She, that She may injoy her Husband; He, that He may be eased. He groans to be unburthened of this Conflict with sinful Hearts He dwells in, (as our Souls are said to do, 2 Cor. 5.) as having so long born the Trouble and Grief of this Work, which till there is an End of all by Christ's coming, He is designed unto.

USE 2. There is another Use of this Doctrine, which I urge to unregenerate Men. Well, God by his Providence hath brought thee once more to the Word, which the Apostle calls the Ministration of the Spirit. Now Consider, tho' thou hast been never so empty, dry, and barren of goodness, and art now in thy filthiness; thou may'st carry home the Spirit with thee, and therein thou art passive; but if thou dost, it will cost thee something in His Workings on thee; He will work strangely on thy Heart. Thou may'st now begin to be possess'd of the richest Gift God hath to bestow. Thou camest to see Fashions, a Reed shaken with the Wind, as John's Hearers did; but thou standest in the Wind of the Spirit, and He may seize upon thee, and save thee; for he comes upon Men without preparation, and then works all. I shall open but two or three Scriptures to this purpose. In Isa. 44. 3. There is the promise of the Spirit (which in Gal. 3. is said to have been made to Abraham, and his seed) I will pour Water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry Ground. Which Isaiah himself interprets, I will pour my Spirit upon thy Seed, and my Blessing upon thine Off-spring; and they shall spring up (as Herbs namely) among the Grass, &c. One shall say, I am the Lords, &c. And this Scripture also did our Saviour allude to, in the promise of his Spirit to the Woman of Samaria, John 4. 14. But whosoever drinketh of the Water that I shall give him, shall never thirst; but the Water that I shall give him, shall be in him a Well of Water springing up into Eternal Life. He alludes also to the same Scripture, in what He says to His Disciples: John 7. 37, 38, 39. If any Man thirst, let him come to me, and Drink. He that Believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his Belly shall flow Rivers of Living Water. But this spake He of the Spirit, which they that believed on him should receive; for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet Glorified. The Promise in each refers to both places: And yet the occasion was differing, tho' of one and the same Spirit. If you observe the purport and occasion of the promise of this Spirit, in the 4*th* of John, it was when our Saviour was treating with the Woman of Samaria, a great Sinner, v. 18. Utterly ignorant, v. 10, 23. a Flouter of him, v. 15. And as yet (when Christ spake these Words) purely in her Natural Estate. And therefore this promise of the Spirit here, all acknowledged to be the Spirit of Regeneration to work Conversion at the first; to become, as at the first he doth, a Well of Water springing up to Eternal Life.

Now this was at first poured upon a dry ground, in respect to any such Work; utterly dry, utterly barren, that hath not so much as a desire or thirst, after this Holy Spirit, to ask him, as she had not, v. 10. If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith unto thee, Give me to Drink; thou wouldst have asked of him, and He would have given thee living Water. And upon this this ignorant barren Soul, doth Chriſt pour out his Spirit, whilſt he is ſpeaking with her; and which was the ſtrangeneſs of it, tho' poured from without, yet ſoaking into her, it began (as Chriſt promiſed) to become a ſpring in her Heart; which other Water, poured from without on Earth, doth never become; bubling up all that which tended to Eternal Life. And the promiſe of the Spirit as Regenerating at the firſt, and to that end poured out on ſuch Souls, as here, was part of Iſaiah's ſcope. He had a further alſo, for it is pouring Water upon dry ground, cauſing Herbs to come up where Barrenneſs was (v. 4.) to the end that Men that are Gentiles, and Strangers to the Common-Wealth of Iſrael, (as this Samaritan was) might call themſelves by the name of Jacob, and ſubſcribe unto the Lord, and ſirname themſelves by the name of Iſrael, v. 5. And the firſt thing we ſee God doth (as Chriſt alſo in the 4*th* of John promiſeth) to ſuch Souls, is to pour out his Spirit on them in that very Condition, and he becomes a Spring within them of all Goodneſs, even then, when there is not a drop afore, nor any Preparation to it. And again the Prophet Iſaiah, propheſying of Times when Chriſt ſhould be on Earth, thus ſpeaks, Chap. 35. 5, 6. Then the Eyes of the blind ſhall be open, and the ears of the Deaf ſhall be unſtopped. Then ſhall the lame Leap as an Hart, and the tongue of the Dumb ſing: Then followeth the very ſame Promiſe, that In the Wilderneſs Waters ſhould break out, and ſtreams in the Deſart, and the parched ground ſhall become a Pool. Which promiſe, as Chriſt interpreted, ſo he alſo made it good, fulfilling of it in this Samaritan, the firſt fruits of Gentile Converts; and this he did whilſt he was ſpeaking it to her. Ezekiel ſpeaks to the ſame purpoſe and effect (Chap. 37.) though under another alluſion of Men not only dead, but conſumed to Bone, and thoſe Bones dry, and a wind came from God, upon them, even when in this Eſtate, and made them live. And what is the Moral of it? The Spirit of God (whom Chriſt compares to the Wind, John 3. and who Acts 2. came as a ruſhing Wind) the Spirit of the living God (as in 2 Cor. 3. 3.) came upon theſe Men, and made them live, even when dead, and dry Bones: Thus it is ſaid, v. 14. I will put my Spirit in you, and ye ſhall live. He puts his Spirit into us, not only pours him on us, ere we have the leaſt of Life; who therefore muſt needs come on us, yea, into us, when we are dead. He gets into us, and becomes a Spring in our Bellies, in the Heart of this barren Earth, when it is dry.

Book I.

USE 3. Is it the Spirit of God who is the Author of Converſion? Then Lament, and bewail the hardneſs of thy Heart, which tho' it hath ſo often had good motions put into it by the Spirit (which motions, for ought thou knoweſt, are the beginnings of this work and Leaders unto Repentance) yet it hath not followed them, but given a deaf Ear unto them.

1. Conſider the hainouſneſs of the Sin. It is that which Stephen upbraided the Jews with, Acts 7. 51. Ye ſtiff-necked, who evermore reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt. It is the Sin for which our Saviour chiefly wept over Jeruſalem, Luke. 13. 34. Conſider that it is to oppoſe the Holy Ghoſt in his own proper work and office; and, in as much as in you lies, to put him out of Office. And tho' it be not always that Sin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, which is unpardonable (for many have afterwards repented of this) yet it is a ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt. For as the Scripture, though it makes indeed but one ὁ Ἀντίχριστος That Anti-Chriſt, the man of ſin and ſon of perdition, the Pope, the greateſt Arch-Heretick that ever was, or will be) yet every petty Popeling, and leſs Notorious Heretick is an Anti-Chriſt, for there be many Anti-Chriſts now in the World, (ſays the Apoſtle, of his times, before the great Anti-Chriſt was riſen) So it is in this caſe, though the Scripture makes but one ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt κατ' ἐξοχήν, yet the Reſiſter of the leaſt Motion of the Spirit leading to Repentance, is a Sinner againſt the Holy Ghoſt; and there be many ſuch Sinners. I appeal to many of you; how often hath the Holy Ghoſt come and viewed you? How often hath he come to your hearts, when ye were alone, and even unto you Bed-ſide, beſeeching you, and ye have put him off? And you may judge of the greatneſs of this ſin to reſiſt the leaſt good motion (which is a ſtep to the other) in that the Scripture makes the full Act (or groſſer act as I may call it) of that ſin to be in iſto generi, in that kind, the greateſt and the only unpardonable one. Now we meaſure ſins in the act they tend to: As Murther being a great ſin, and the act thereof more hainous than of other ſins, therefore thoughts of Murther and Revenge, are worſe than any other ſinful thoughts. And if you will put this ſin of reſiſting the motions of the Spirit, into the Ballance of the Sanctuary, and rightly weigh it, with other ways of ſinning; I dare affirm it, that the reſiſting the leaſt good motion tending to Converſion, is greater, than many of thoſe groſſer Acts againſt the Law of God. And theſe Motions reſiſted, do heighten and aggravate all our other ſins commited before and after them. For they tend to turn us from them, by cauſing us to repent of all ſins paſt, and preventing ſins to come. Moreover this ſin is a ſin againſt the Goſpel (for the Goſpel is the Miniſtration of the Spirit, and ſo of theſe good motions of the Spirit) and ſins againſt the Goſpel are greater than thoſe againſt the Law. And therefore (Heb. 2. 23.) The very neglecting the Salvation of the Goſpel, is made a Crime deſerving a ſorer puniſhment than any breach of the Law. And how much ſorer puniſhment does it deſerve to deſpiſe it, when it is brought home to us by the Holy Ghoſt, and by him ſett on upon our hearts? If barely to hear the word, and not be moved by it, be a ſin, and a heinous one, then to be moved by it, and to neglect it, is a greater: For it is the deſpiſing of the greater Mercy; and it is againſt the Spirit of Grace in the Goſpel.

2. Conſider the danger of this ſin: You have ſeen that for the guilt of it, it is above committing groſs ſins againſt the Law: And the danger of it is anſwerable; for ſins againſt the Law, God threatneth but conditionally with damnation: If men believe not, and repent not; ſo as that Repentance coming between, they may eſcape: But this, God threatneth, yea, and puniſheth with Impenitency it ſelf, (and that is the damning Sin) for God uſeth ordinarily to puniſh ſins in their own coin, according to their nature and kind; and this he puniſheth with Impenitency, becauſe it reſiſts the Work of Repentance. I would have purged thee (ſays God, in the Prophet, unto the people of Iſrael) but thou wouldeſt not. When God would, they would not; and therefore God never after would. And when God hath uſed means, and comes unto us, to cleanſe us, and we would not; he ſays (as 'tis Rev. 22. 11.) He that is filthy, let him be filthy ſtill; and ſo we ſhall be long enough, for all him: For at length, God grows peremptory, and never makes offer more. God commonly gives ſuch up unto irrecoverable hardneſs of heart and blindneſs of mind. And I appeal to their own Conſciences, if they grow not harder after ſuch reſiſtings, as Clay doth, the more the Sun hath ſhone upon it; or as Ice freezeth harder, after it had begun to thaw. Conſider but the reaſon of it, If a man ſins againſt the Law, he hath yet the Court ot the Goſpel to ſue in, and ſo to obtain pardon: As if a man be caſt in one Court, he hath a liberty to remove his ſuit from that Court unto a higher; but if he be condemned in the higher, then there is no going backward unto any lower Court: So God hath given us two Courts, that of the Law, and that of the Goſpel. Thou being an unclean or Covetous perſon, or a Drunkard, goeth to the Law, and that condemns thee. Then the Spirit offers thee to remove thy Suit to the higheſt Court of the Goſpel, and upon Faith and Repentance to bring thee a Pardon. Thou neglects this, and ſo the Goſpel it ſelf preſently condemns thee; for there he that believes not, is condemn'd already, John 3. 18. And if Mercy, and the offers of it, condemn thee, I know not what can ſave thee; for that is the higheſt Court, and go backward thou canſt not. The work of the Spirit (as you heard) is the laſt Act of man's Salvation and without it neither no evidence of thy Election, nor Redemption are to be reſpected. And if thou run unto God's Mercy (as that is the common ſhift, that God is merciful) or to Chriſts Redemption, in that he dyed for Sinners; both theſe ſend thee to the Spirit: And the Spirit tells thee He hath offered Salvation to thee, upon thy Repenting, many a time, and hath profered to aſſiſt therein, in, and thou didſt ſtill refuſe: And how then canſt thou expect Salvation? Ay, but thou wilt ſay, I hope the Spirit will offer again, and again, and when I am on my Death Bed, as well as now. I anſwer. Book I.

1. That it is a great Hazard: For the Spirit blows when, and where He liſteth. And it may be, will never move thee more. And,

2. Conſider whether thou haſt any reaſon to expect this. For ſuppoſe thou ſhould'ſt have often, again and again, moved a Friend of thine in a matter which concerns Himſelf, and which thou haſt moſt Benefit by; only out of Love, thou haſt thus moved him in it, and He ſtill gives thee a contrary, or froward Anſwer, and goes on doing the contrary: Wouldſt not thou at laſt reſolve, that ſeeing thou haſt ſo often moved Him in vain, hereafter thou wilt never ſpeak of it to Him more? This is the Caſe between the Spirit and thee. He hath often moved thee in a matter that concerns thine Eternal Wealth or Wo, even to Repent, but thou giveſt Him a churliſh Anſwer, and goeſt ſtill on in thine Impenitency: How then canſt thou expect He ſhould ever move thee again? God comes at length to ſay of thee, as of thoſe in Hoſea 6. 4. Who had had many good Motions, which like Dew the were dryed up; and Reformations, which like a Cloud paſſed away. O Ephraim what ſhall I do unto thee? O Judah, what ſhall I do unto Thee? For your Goodneſs is as a Morning Cloud, and as the early Dew, it goeth away.

3. Yet ſeeing this is thy Plea, That thou hopeſt the Holy Ghoſt will move thee again; I Charge thee, as thou tend'reſt thine own Salvation, if that now, or hereafter, He doth move Thee, to take the opportunity of Time and Tide. If by Meditation, Reading or Prayer, any Sparks be kindled in thee, blow them up, let thoſe thoughts reſt on thee; Welcome them, Hugg them, as the beſt Gueſts that ever came to lodge in thine Heart. Shall An Ambaſſadour extraordinary be ſent from the King of HEAVEN, unto thee, with a Meſſage; and wilt thou not give him Audience, but put him off, from Day to Day, and tell him (as Felix did Paul) Thou wilt hear him another Time? The beſt Men are but green Wood; on which, though Fire do take hold, it is ſubject to dye again; And therefore if thou haſt but a few ſparks, leave them not, till they have taken hold; nor then, till they are put into a Flame. And above all things take heed of quenching them by Carnal Mirth, or Company, or Recreations, as Men uſe to do.

CHAP.

CHAP. VII.

How the Holy Ghoſt is the Author of REGENERATION, or the firſt Application of Salvation to us, in a more Peculiar Manner, Comparatively to the other two Perſons.

TIT. III. 5, 6.

Not by Works of Righteouſneſs, which we have done, but according to his Mercy he ſaved us, by the waſhing of Regeneration, and Renewing of the Holy Ghoſt: Which he ſhed on us abundantly through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour.

REGENERATION, you ſee, is attributed to the Spirit as the Author. It is termed the Renewing of the Holy Ghoſt; and likewiſe the ſhedding forth the Holy Ghoſt, is magnified as the Rich Gift and Bleſſing of the New Teſtament.

I have in a former Diſcourſe ſhewn how all the Three Perſons have ſhared and diſtributed the whole work of our Salvation amongſt them, unto Three ſeveral parts. 1. Election is appropriated to the Father. 2. Redemption to the Son. 3. Application of both to the Holy Ghoſt. Who accordingly doth bear ſeveral Offices ſuited to theſe Three Works.

That which now I have to do, is more particularly to demonſtrate both the ὅτι and διότι of this point of great moment; both That, and Why, this laſt part of Salvation, viz. Application, and ſo principally this of Regeneration, is attributed to the Holy Ghoſt.

I. I ſhall produce Scriptures to demonſtrate this point.

1. The firſt Scripture is John 3. 5. Except a Man be born of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God. This Scripture ſhews not only the neceſſity of being born again, but withall, that it muſt be the Spirit, who muſt do it, or it will not be done. For no Man can ſo much as ſay, Jeſus is the Lord, but by the Holy Spirit, 1 Cor. 12. 2.

2. The neer Kindred and Dependance the New Creature hath with and upon the Spirit, as the Child begotten hath of, and with it's proper Father, doth evidence the ſame truth.

1. The new Creature is in the ſame third of John, v. 6. ſtyled Spirit. (as elſewhere it is called a Spiritual Man, 1 Cor. 2.) That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit: It is therefore profeſſedly Baptized into the ſame name, becauſe the Father of this new Birth and Baptiſm is the Spirit. With Men, the Begotten bears the name of the moſt Immediate Parent. And ſo in this Caſe, tho' this Work of the Spirit be in common termed the Divine Nature, 2 Pet. 1. 4. Becauſe it is the Image of the Godhead, of which all three Perſons are Partakers, yet to ſhew that in a more peculiar manner it is the Child of the Spirit, it is called Spirit. Chap. 8.

2. For the very ſame reaſon, this Spirit of God, the Author, relatively bears the name of Holy in the New Teſtament, where it is (tho' not firſt) yet more frequently uſed, as his ſpecial title, to be called The Holy Ghoſt, as our old Engliſh hath rendred it to us. Is not the Father Holy, and the Son Holy, and both equally Holy with this Holy Spirit? Yes, Eſſentially, and Perſonally alſo in themſelves; Holy, Holy, Holy, they are all Proclaimed, Iſa. 6. How came theſe other Two to bear it, that He, the third Perſon, ſhould have the peculiar ſtile of Holy? It is not neither in a Peculiar, either in a Perſonal, or Eſſential reſpect, but relatively unto that which is his proper and peculiar Work, becauſe he ſanctifies and makes us Holy; and ſo merits that name; as Chriſt doth of our Saviour; and the Father, of God the Father and Maker. And here let me return to the neceſſity of this Perſons making us Holy: As it is neceſſary for Chriſt to redeem us, there is an abſolute neceſſity that we all be a ſanctified Holy Sacrifice offered up to God, if we look to be ſaved; or otherwiſe we muſt be made a Sacrifice of his Wrath, as Chriſt hath told us, Mark. 9. 49. Where he haing threatned, if Luſt be not killed, Men ſhall be caſt into the fire that is unquencheable: (v. 47, 48.) He adds this as a reaſon, That every Man is to be a Sacrifice to God one way or other. According to the Old Law ſome Sacrifices were conſumed with fire, as the Burnt Offerings; ſome ſeaſoned with Salt, to ſink up the corrupt moyſture in them, Lev. 2. 13. One ſort of theſe Sacrifices all Men muſt become; if not ſanctified by the Spirit, ſo as to have ſalt in them, then with Hell-fire, which alſo is a Sacrifice to God. Now Chriſt for our Redemption offered up himſelf a Sacrifice to God, for a ſweet ſmelling ſavour, Eph. 5. 2. And it was neceſſary he ſhould be ſo. And to that end he ſacrificed himſelf as in his ſacrificial Prayer, he ſpeaks, John 17. 19. And it is as neceſſary if we be ſaved, that our Perſons be offered up unto God as a Sacrifice alſo, Rom. 12. 1. Even a living Sacrifice, Holy and Acceptable to God. It was neceſſary therefore we ſhould have a Sanctifier of us, to be an Offering unto God; as well as a Redeemer, that offered up himſelf for us. And who is that? You are directed to him in Rom. 15. This is the iſſue of my Miniſtry (ſays Paul, ſpeaking of his Converting the Nations, v. 18, 19.) that the Gentiles (being Converted) might be an Offering acceptable, being Sanctified by the Holy Ghoſt. Elſe never to be acceptable to God. Chriſt was Sanctified immediately by himſelf; by the Perſonal Union with the Son of God: I Sanctifie my ſelf: Even as he alſo offered up himſelf by the Eternal Spirit, or Godhead dwelling in Him, Heb. 9. But we by the Holy Ghoſt. And as in that other Speech, That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit; the New Creature bears his Name; ſo here, he is called the Holy Spirit, or bears the name of Holy, becauſe the Sanctifier of us, Being Sanctified by the Holy Ghoſt.

3. The Work of Converſion, not only in the Whole, but in every part thereof is attributed to him, John 16. 8, 9, 10. It is (as I hinted afore, and ſhall ſhew hereafter) divided into three parts: 1. Conviction of Sin: 2. Of Righteouſneſs for Juſtification. 3. Of Judgment, Holineſs and Reformation; and the Spirit is there made the Authour of theſe three. And according to this diviſion of the parts thereof, he hath Titles alſo given him, as in relation to his immediate working of theſe Three.

1. He condeſcends to be termed the Spirit of Bondage; I ſay he condeſcends but to the work and name; for otherwiſe, and in himſelf, he is the free Spirit, (Pſal. 51. 11, 12.) and delights in Comforting us, not in grieving us. And he is therefore alſo called the Comforter; but yet to Book I. effect our Salvation, and the effectual Application of it to us, He (contrary to his Nature) becomes our Jaylor, takes the Keys of Death and Damnation into his Custody, and shuts up our Spirits under the Law, as it is a School-Master to Christ, rattles the Chains, let us see the Sin and Punishment we deserve; He convinceth of sin, John 16. and becomes a Spirit of Bondage, Rom. 8. 15.

2. But then Secondly, In regard of the Revealing God's Love to us, and CHRIST and his Righteousness, by whom we are Adopted, and by which justified; He is called in the same place the Spirit of Adoption, the Spirit of Faith, as some interpret, 2 Cor. 4. 13. Barnabas was full of the Holy Ghost, and of Faith, Acts 11. 24.

3. In regard of Sanctifying us, and convincing of Judgment; He is in the Old Testament, instiled the Spirit of Judgment (Isa. 4. 4.) In respect of washing away the filth of Sin; When the Lord shall have washed away the filth of Zion, by the Spirit of Judgment, &c. And in the New, he is entitled the Spirit of Grace, Heb. 10. 22. Have done despight to the Spirit of Grace; that is, to him, as going about to work Grace and Holiness in the Heart; The sin against the Holy Ghost, which is there described, not being against the Person of the Spirit, so much as against him in his Workings; And that in his working Grace, and Sanctifying, as in the Words afore you have it. And as to Grace in the general, as he is the Author of every particular Grace, so in the Head himself, therefore much more in the Members. The Prophet speaking of the Messiah, in Isa. 11. 1. The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, and shall be in him, in respect of his Effects upon him; The Spirit of Wisdom and Understanding, the Spirit of Knowledge, and of the Fear of the Lord. There is the like reason he should be denominated from every other Grace. He is in one Chapter, John 14. termed The Spirit of Truth, v. 17. who reveals all Truth to the Understanding. The Holy Spirit, who sanctifies the Will, the chief Subject of Holiness; The Comforter, who fills the Heart with joy and peace in Believing; which is therefore usually stiled Joy in the Holy Ghost, in Multitudes of places. That Phrase speaking him not so much the Object of it (which is rather Christ, 1 Pet. 1. 8. In whom Believing, ye rejoyce with Joy unspeakable and Glorious; and God, Rom. 5. 11.) as the Author of it, Rom. 15. 13. Now the God of Hope, fill you with all Joy and Peace, in believing, that ye may abound in Hope through the power of the Holy Ghost.

II. I shall now Secondly give the Reasons why this Work is committed to him, and is his lot. These Reasons are not of Logical Demonstration, but Harmonious, by comparing Spiritual things with Spiritual, and by the suiting of one thing with another, in which the strength of Divine Reason lies; for Divinity is a Wisdom, not an Art.

1. This Operation of the Spirit is in a Coresspondency to the Creation of the first Man, who was a Type of what was to come, Job 33. 4. The Spirit of God hath made me; And the Breath of the Almighty hath given me Life. 'Tis evident he speaks of the new Creation, in allusion to the old. v. 1, 2, 3. My word shall be of the uprightness of my Heart, and my Lips shall utter Knowledge thereby: And then adds, The Spirit of God hath made me; that is, hath given me a sincere Heart, an illuminated Mind, put the words of life into me. To have spoken of his first Creation only, he being a Man fallen from it, had been a poor Argument to perswade Job of the truth of his Heart, and the Truths he went about to utter: And yet too, he as evidently alludes to the first Creation, Gen. 2. 7. The Lord formed man of the dust of the Ground, and breathed into his Nostrils the breath of Life, and Man became a living Soul. Now in this New Creation, we being dead dead in Sins and Treſpaſſes, it is the Spirit of God that giveth Life; 2 Cor. 3. 6. Who as in reſpect of giving us this new Life, is called the Spirit of the Living God, v. 3. And in the Old Teſtament, Ezek. 37. 13, 14. I will bring you out of your Graves, I will put my Spirit in you, and you ſhall live; which you find in the 36 Chap. v. 27. And it is obſervable that the firſt viſible giving the Holy Ghoſt, which was after Chriſt's Reſurrection to enable them to be Miniſters not of the Letter, but of the Spirit, which ſhould give Life to them, and to others by them, was by the ceremony of breathing on them, And he ſaid, Receive the Holy Ghoſt, John 20. 22. We had his Blood that ran in his veins, firſt, and it is efficacious to waſh away the guilt of ſin. We have his Breath next, which comes out of the inwards, of him, which conveys his Spirit, which conveys himſelf into our inwards as 'tis in the Prophet, and gives us life. And as Life comes with the breath God breathed at firſt, and goes away with it; ſo doth Spiritual Life upon the going or coming of the Holy Ghoſt upon us. Book I.

2. It is the Spirit that converts, and Regenerates us, and forms the new Creature in us, in a Conformity to our Head Chriſt. The Holy Ghoſt was, 1. The immediate Former of the Humane Nature of Chriſt, in the Womb. 2. The Uniter of that Nature to the Son of God. 3. The Sanctifier thereof, with all Graces dwelling therein, above all meaſure.

1. He was the Former of the Humane Nature of Chriſt in the Womb. Mat. 1. 18. She was found with Child of the Holy Ghoſt, and v. 20. That which is conceived in her, is of the Holy Ghoſt. Which was in his forming and fitting that matter into a Man, which the prolifique vertue, uſeth to do.

2. He was the Uniter of it to the Divine, and Sanctifier of it with all Graces, both which you have expreſſed in another place, Luke 1. 35. And the Angel anſwered and ſaid to her, The Holy Ghoſt ſhall come upon thee, and the Power of the Higheſt ſhall over ſhadow thee: Therefore alſo that Holy thing that ſhall be born of thee, ſhall be called the Son of God. Now we being to be made as conformable to Chriſt as is poſſible, it was correſpondent, that the ſame Perſon who was deſigned to form Chriſts Body for the God-head to dwell in all his fullneſs, ſhould form Chriſt in us, that God and Chriſt may dwell in us, 1 Cor. 3. 16. Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God; and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? That ſame Perſon that made that happy match, the Perſonal Union between Chriſt's Humane Nature and the Divine, the ſame Perſon makes the Union between Chriſt and our Souls; and ſo we become one Spirit with the Lord, 1 Cor. 6. 17. The ſame Perſon that made the Man Chriſt Partaker of the Divine Nature, maketh us alſo. There is an higher correſpondency yet: The Holy Ghoſt is Vinculum Trinitatis, the Union of the Father and the Son, as proceeding from both by way of Love, and who ſo meet to be the Union of God and Man in Chriſt, of Chriſt and Men in us, as he that was the Bond of Union among themſelves?

3. In reſpect of ſanctifying that humane nature of Chriſt, It was the Holy Ghoſt who made him Chriſt, that anointed him with himſelf, and all his Graces, Iſa. 11. 2. The Spirit of the Lord ſhall reſt upon him, the Spirit of Knowledge and the Fear of the Lord: the Graces of Chriſt, as Man, are attributed to this Spirit, as the immediate Author of them; for although the Son of God dwelt perſonally, in the humane Nature, and ſo advanc'd that Nature above the ordinary rank of Creatures, and raiſed it up to that dignity and worth; yet all his habitual Graces, which even his Soul was full of, were from the Holy Ghoſt; The Holy Spirit is therefore ſaid to be given him without meaſure. And this inhabitation of the Holy Ghoſt did in ſome ſenſe and degree concur to conſtitute him Chriſt, which as you know is the Anointed One of God. Acts 4. 27. Thy Holy Child Jeſus whom thou haſt anointed: Anointed with what? Acts 10. 38. God anointed Jeſus with the Holy Ghoſt. Now then if the Spirit Book I. made him Christ, and concurred in this respect to make him the Anointed of God, much more is it he that makes us Christians.

4. Consider what this Application of Salvation unto us is: It is the Revelation of the mind and love of God and Christ unto us, and the things of both. He that doth this must take of mine, says Christ, and in doing so he must take of my Fathers also, for all the Father hath or doth is, Christ's. You have both in one place, John 16. 14, 15. He shall glorifie me, for he shall receive of mine and and shew it to you. All things that the Father hath, are mine. Great Persons woo not by themselves, but employ Embassadors, and Ministers of State, and so doth Christ. Now who should do this but the Spirit, who knows the heart and mind of God? 1 Cor. 12. We have received the Spirit who is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given us of God; that is, by our having him from God, who knows all that is in God, which is the reason there given, v. 10 God hath revealed them to us by his Spirit, for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God; which he confirms and illustrates by a Similitude fetcht from our own Bosoms, v. 11. For what man, that is, what other man, knows the things of a man (that are in his own breast) Save the spirit of a man which is in him? Even so, the things of God knows no man, or Angel, but the Spirit of God; who being the Spirit of Counsel (Isa. 11. 2.) even to Christ himself, helpt him to all God's secrets, and he also being privy and over hearing as (John 16. 13.) All that the Father and Christ have intended to us, and spoken about us, was only fit to reveal them unto us. And thus by him we come to have the very mind of God and Christ. The Grace of Christ, and the Love of God the Father, are revealed to us by the Communion of the Holy Ghost, 2 Cor 13. 14.

CHAP. VIII.

How the Holy Ghost is the Gift of God the Father to us, in and by Jesus Christ. That this inestimable Gift is bestowed freely by the pure Mercy, Grace and Love of God.

TIT. III. 5. 6.

Not by works of Righteousness, which we have done, but according to his Mercy he saved Us, by the washing of Regeneration, and Renewing of the Holy Ghost, Which he shed on us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour.

WE have seen in a short, but Comprehensive View, the Operations of the Holy Ghost, in the great work of our Salvation. The next Prospect of him is, as he is the Gift of God, conferred on us for this End, and Purpose. To open this to your sight, I offer these following considerations.

1. That it is God the Father, who is the Donor, or the Bestower of Him on us. This is plainly expressed by the words of the Text, which declares, that he sheds the Spirit on us. 2. This Gift of the Spirit is in, and through Jesus Christ our Saviour, and Mediator. 3. This Gift of the Spirit is bestowed, not according to the Covenant of Works, but of Grace, and Free Love.

Love. For thoſe Words, Not according to Works; and the other words of the Text, which ſpeak of the appearance of the Love, and Kindneſs of God, refer as well to this rich ſhedding forth the Holy Ghoſt upon us, as unto ſaving us through Regeneration, and Renewing us. 4. the Condition of the perſons to whom he is given is altogether unworthy. When we were in our diſobedience, ſerving our Luſts, the Holy Ghoſt was poured out, and renewed us. Chap. 8

1. The Donor or Beſtower of the Holy Ghoſt, is God the Father through Chriſt. As the Father is the Original of the Perſons in the Trinity, ſo of this great Gift. Therefore Chriſt (John 15. 26.) when he ſpeaks of ſending the Spirit from the Father, adds, as the reaſon why he ſhould be ſent from the Father, That he proceeds from the Father (his Subſiſtance doth) naming him as the Fountain both of himſelf and the Spirit alſo. He is termed the Spirit of God τοῦ Θεοῦ. 1 Cor. 2. 11. in the ſame ſenſe that we ſay the Spirit of a man (as in the ſame verſe) for as God is a Spirit, Iſa. 48. 16. THE LORD GOD AND HIS SPIRIT, ſays the Prophet there: But the Apoſtle further adds, v. 12. the Spirit ἐκ τοῦ Θεοῦ, who Perſonally is from God, whom therefore we have and receive from God, 1. Cor. 6. 19. The Holy Ghoſt which we have, ἀπὸ Θεοῦ. This Gift is therefore eſpecially attributed to the Father, and termed by Chriſt, the Promiſe of the Father, Acts 4. Luke 24. 49. The Spirit of the Father, Mat. 10. 20. from whom Chriſt, as God-man, received the Spirit firſt. The Holy Ghoſt was ſent down by the Father upon Chriſt, as a Dove in his Baptiſm. God anointed Jeſus with the Holy Ghoſt Acts, 10. 38. and when Chriſt aſcended into Heaven, he received him from the Father, Acts 2. 33. and ſo he ſhed him forth on us. And therefore Chriſt alſo, as Mediator, was to pray the Father to give the Spirit, John 14. 16. I will pray the Father, and he ſhall give you another Comforter, &c.

Yet ſo as 2*ly*, Even the Father himſelf ſends him not, but in and through Chriſt, John 14. 26. The Holy Ghoſt whom the Father will ſend in my Name. Through Chriſt our Saviour, ſays the Apoſtle Tit. 3. 6. Which imports not barely the Son's Concurrence, as Second Perſon, in ſending him as well as the Father, even as his Perſon proceeded from both, (as Joh. 15 26. Whom I will ſend unto you) But further, That Chriſt as a Redeemer, had a virtual meritorious influence or hand herein; ſo as for his ſake, and thro' his Purchaſe and Interceſſion, the Father ſends him. Chriſt purchaſed not only all the Graces of the Spirit for us, but the Spirit himſelf, (whom we had forfeited) to dwell in us. We have an expreſs Scripture, Gal. 3. 13, 14. Chriſt hath Redeemed us from the Curſe of the Law, being made a Curſe for us: For it is Written, Curſed is every one that Hangeth on a Tree. That the Bleſſing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jeſus Chriſt; that we may receive the promiſe of the Spirit through Faith. Where there are two ends adequately and alike, made of Chriſt's being made a Curſe for us: 1. That we might receive the Bleſſing of Abraham. 2. That we might receive the Promiſe of the Spirit. And for as much as the Gift of the Spirit comes under a Promiſe, as well as other Bleſſings, It muſt needs come under the purchaſe of Chriſt's Blood, which confirmed all the Promiſes. And this, as all the reſt of the Promiſes, are Yea, and Amen in Him. And to this end it is obſervable, That he breathed not the Spirit until after his Reſurrection, But then he did, John 20. 22. And when he had ſaid this, he breathed on them, and ſaith unto them, Receive ye the Holy-Ghoſt. He had not ſhed his Blood until now; And therefore breathed not the Holy-Ghoſt until now. But Chriſt having dyed, and having as the Lamb ſlain, purchaſed the Spirit, and being aſcended up to the Throne of God; He, as the Lamb now ſheds forth the Spirit. John 7. 38, 39. He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath ſaid, Out of his Belly ſhall flow Rivers of living Water. But this ſpake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him, ſhould receive: For the Holy Ghoſt was not yet given, becauſe that Jeſus was not yet Glorified. He compares the Spirit, as Communicated to us, to a Spring of living Water. But not as then broke forth, as afterwards it should, because Christ had not dyed, and so entred in- to Glory. Now compare with it, Rev. 22. 1. And he shewed me a pure river of water of life clear as Christal, proceeding out of the Throne of God and of the Lamb: This water of Life issues, you see, from the Throne of the Lamb, who in the 5 Chap. v. 6. appeared at the Throne of God as the Lamb slain, and Redeeming us with his Blood, and as such doth shed forth the Spirit upon us; And is even there also said to have all the fulness of the Spirit on him, Who hath the seven Spirits; that is, the Holy Ghost in all the varieties of his Gifts and Graces, called seven from perfection. For that the seven Spirits, are taken Metonymically for the Holy-Ghost, is evident by Chap. 1. v. 4. John to the seven Churches of Asia, Grace be unto you, and Peace from him which is, and which was, and which is to come; And from the seven Spirits, which are before his Throne. Hence also when we receive the Cup in the Lords Supper, which is term ed the Communion of Christ's Blood (1 Cor. 10.) We are yet said to drink into one Spirit; For that Blood is Vehiculum Spiritus, the Spirit runs in and with this Blood. We therefore know whom we are beholden unto for the Spirit; and whom to go unto for the Spirit, even to the Father, and to Christ, and to his Blood; and to the Father thro' Christ, who gives Commission to the Spirit to work such and such measures of Grace, at such times to fall upon us, and at such and such times to withdraw.

Hence 3*ly*, The Spirit is given us from meer Grace and Love, and not according to Works; so in the Text those words, Who not according to Works, but Mercy, &c. refer as well to this shedding forth the Holy Ghost, as to his saving us by Regeneration. You may therefore Observe, 2 Cor. 13. 14. That the Grace of the Lord Jesus, and the Love of God the Father, are put before Communion of the Holy Ghost, as that which proceeds from both. The Grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Love of God, And the Communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all, Amen. Therefore in Scriptures, both the Law, the Preaching of it, and the Works of it, are in expres words excluded and shut out from having any influence to convey the Spirit to us, that we may never so much as think to obtain the Spirit thereby: Jer. 13. 32. I will make a New Covenant, not according to the Covenant I made with their fathers; but this shall be my Covenant, I will write my Law in their inward parts: Which Compared with Ezek. 36. 26, 27. is renewed with this Addition, I will give you a new Heart, and put my Spirit within you. And you may compare with both 2 Cor. 3. 3. Ye are manifestly declared to be the Epistle of Christ, ministred by us, written not with Ink, but with the Spirit of the living God, not in Tables of Stone, but in fleshly Tables of the Heart: Which clears both. Yea, so far forth, as they in the Old Testament had the Spirit (as they had, Neh. 9. 20. Thou gavest them thy good Spirit to instruct them; and Hag. 2. 5. According to the word I Covenanted with you when ye come came out of Egypt, so my Spirit remaineth with you:) So much Gospel was even then mingled with it, and runing in the veins of it. It was Fœdus mixtum, and so in the vertue thereof, the Spirit was (tho' in a lesser measure) given. Therefore when the Gospel came to take place, then the Preaching of the Law, or Ceremonies of it, did not convey the Spirit; to shew that it was purely upon the Covenant of Grace, that the Spirit is given, 2 Cor. 3. 6, 7, 8. Who also hath made us able Ministers of the New Testament; not of the Letter, but of the Spirit: For the Letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth Life. But if the Ministration of Death, written and Engraven in stone, was Glorious, so that the Children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses, for the Glory of his Countenance, which Glory was to be done away; how shall not the Ministration of the Spirit be rather Glorious? You see that the old Covenant is the Ministration of the Letter, and of Death; and the New Testament, in exclusion of that old, hath alone obtained this more Excellent Name, The Ministration of the Spirit.

As

As not the Preaching of the Law, gave the Spirit; ſo, nor can any Works of the Law obtain the Spirit at God's hands. The Text is as expreſs for this, as for the other, Gal. 3. 2. This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit by the Works of the Law, or by the hearing of Faith? Paul uſeth that as Argumentum Palmarium, againſt the Law, as alone ſufficient evidence. This one thing (ſays he) I would learn of you, and let that decide it, Received ye the Spirit by the Works of the Law, or by the hearing of Faith? By Spirit, he here means the Spirit of Regeneration and Sanctification; for v. 5. He ſpeaks of extraordinary Gifts afterwards, and v. 2. he ſpeaks of that receiving which was general to all Believing Galatians, even common to all Saints, to whoſe Univerſal Experience he appeals, if ever any one of them had received him upon their doings. Now Extraordinary Gifts were not common to all Saints, no not in thoſe days. And by the hearing of Faith, he means the Doctrine of Faith, the Goſpel; and therefore v. 14, 15, 16, 17. he aſſerts the Spirit to be given freely by the Covenant of Grace, which God afore the Law did Eſtabliſh with Abraham, and in him together with Iſaac (as the Type) with Chriſt. Gal. 3. 14, 15, 16, 17. That the Bleſſing of Abraham, might come on the Gentiles through Jeſus Chriſt: That we might receive the Promiſe of the Spirit through Faith. Brethren, I ſpeak after the manner of Men; though it be but a Mans Covenant, yet if it be confirmed, no Man diſanulleth or addeth thereto. Now to Abraham and his ſeed, were the Promiſes made. He ſaith not, And to ſeeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy ſeed, which is Chriſt. And this I ſay, That the Covenant which was confirmed before of God in Chriſt, the Law (which was Four Hundred and Thirty Years after) cannot diſanul, that it ſhould make the promiſe of none effect. Yea, (to end this) he makes it an evidence of not being under the Law, if a Man hath received the Spirit, and be led by him, Gal. 5. 18. But if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the Law. And for this alſo it is, that he is called the Spirit of Grace, Heb. 10. 29. Becauſe given freely. He is the Gift of Grace, Eph. 3. 7. and ſo given upon the terms of the Covenant of Grace. Chap. 8.

Hence from both theſe, appears the difference betwen Adam's having the Spirit in that Eſtate of Holineſs, and the Saints under the ſtate of Grace. Adam had the Spirit as well as we, and the Holy Ghoſt was at the making of him, and wrote the Image of God upon his Heart: For where Holineſs was, we may be ſure the Spirit was too. The Holy Ghoſt was at that Conſultation, Let us make Man, and one of the Us ſpoken unto. Yea, and that Spirit that moved upon the Waters, who alſo is ſent forth to renew the Face of the Earth (Pſal. 104.) The ſame Spirit was in Adam's Heart to aſſiſt his Graces, and cauſe them to flow and bring forth, and to move him to live according to thoſe Principles of Life given him. But there is this difference between that his having the Spirit, and ours, apparent from what hath already been ſaid.

1. That he concurred with Adam, meerly as the third Perſon, who joined in all works, and ſo upon no further accompt then as he concurred in aſſiſting all Creatures elſe in their kind, to cauſe the Earth to bring forth Fruits according to their kind; and indeed he muſt neceſſarily have an hand in all works of Creation and Providence: Whereas we have the Spirit upon Chriſts accompt, in his Name, purchaſed by him, as whom he had firſt received; alſo purchaſed, as the Head of his Church. And therefore it is Ordinary in Scripure to term this Spirit as now dwelling in us, the Spirit of Chriſt, Rom. 8. 9. The Spirit of the Son, Gal. 4. 6.

And 2. Hence Adam retained the Spirit according to the tenor of the Covenant of works, (which is but that equal Law of Creation between God and the Creature) whereby he held a Continuance of the priviledges given him at the Creation, even as he did Life in God's ſight, upon works of Obedience, DO THIS AND LIVE.

And

Book I. And as by one Act of disobedience he forfeited life, (Cursed is he that continueth not in all things) And so in like manner the Spirit was forfeitable by him upon the same terms: Even as in a man that comes from Adam, one mortal Stab causeth the Soul to depart: So here, one act of sinning caused the Soul to depart; for the Bond of the union ceased. But as it would not be so in a man risen from the dead, and by the power of the second Adam made a quickening Spirit; No wounds would be mortal to such an one: So here the Gift of the Spirit to us is by promise,; as Gal. 3. 14, 15, 16, 17. the Apostle argues. The Gift of the Spirit, to a truly converted Soul, is an absolute Gift, and not upon Conditions on our parts; but to work and maintain in us what God requires of us: The Gift of the Spirit is not founded upon qualifications in us to continue so long as we preserve Grace in our Souls, and do not sin it away. I will give you my Spirit to preserve you, and prevent your departing from me, Ezek. 36. 26, 27. I will give you a new heart; but you would soon make it an old one, as bad as ever; to prevent this, it follows, And I will put my Spirit within you: and cause you to walk in my Statutes, and ye shall keep my Judgments, and do them, And so it is said in Jer. 32. 40. Ye shall not depart from me. He comes by virtue of Election on us, as he did on Christ, Isa. 42 1. Behold my Elect in whom my Soul delights; I have put my Spirit upon him. Gal. 4. 6. Because ye are sons, (by Election, namely as it is said Eph. 15. God having predestinated us to the adoption of Children) God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, And Matt. 10. 20. The Spirit [of your Father] is in you; that is, God having taken on him the relation of your Father, thereupon bestoweth his Spirit on you. And therefore it is that so few of many that hear the same Sermons, receive the Holy Ghost; for he comes on men by the Grace of Election, and so the Spirit picks and chooses (as God hath done) and rests on this Soul, and not on that; and so (as Isaiah says, Isa. 27. 12.) they are gathered one by one. It goes as it were by lott, as it is (Acts 8. 21.) spoken to Simon Magus, in relation to the Holy Ghost, v. 19. It hath the appearance of Chance, because this man is taken, and not that; When yet it is the eternal good pleasure of God that puts the difference; And the Spirit, that knows God's mind, seizeth on men accordingly; and is said to be as the Wind, that blows where it lists, which is spoken of Regeneration, John 3. 8.

Hence it is that he is given to us for ever, and not to depart from us; the reason is, because his Person is given without Conditions, and to work all conditions, he is so in us as to be with us for ever, John 14. 16, 17. I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever: Even the Spirit of Truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. He came in Christ the Head, to make his abode in him, John 1. 33. And I knew him not: But he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he which bapizeth with the Holy Ghost. Which was a fulfilling of that piece of the Prophecy, Isa. 11. 2. The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him. To which Peter alludes, speaking also of us, 1 Pet. 4. 14. The Spirit of God resteth on you; and to signifie this, when visibly he came upon the Apostles (Acts 2. 3.) It sat upon each of them. Christ's abode among us is compared to the dwelling in a Tabernacle John. 14. ἐσκήνωσεν He dwelt as in a Tabernacle amongst us; for he soon removed to Heaven: But the Spirit dwells in us as in the Temple, which was instead of that moveable habitation, a more fixed, settled abode, 1. Cor. 6. 19. Ye are the Temple of the Holy Ghost: I go and come, says Christ, (John 14. 18, 19.) but he shall be with you, and in you (v. 17) for ever. And therefore he is not only given as the Earnest of our Inheritance, (Eph. 1. 14. and 2. Cor. 5. 5.) a Certain Pawn that we shall have Heaven: But he becomes also from that time a Spring in us never to be dammed up, a living Fountain of water, springing up unto eternal life, as Christ himself speaks, comparing John 4. 14. with John 7. 38, 39. Now we do not say the Spring shall continue, whilst Water is in the Stream; but Water shall continue in the Stream, and bubble up whilst there is a Spring. If indeed the Spring could fail, the might fail. Now the Holy Ghoſt is given to become a perpetual ſpring, both of grace and glory. And accordingly alſo (1 Pet. 1. 23.) The Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to be The incorruptible Seed of which we are begotten, which ſome have underſtood to be meant of the Word: but that is put in beſides, as the inſtrumental cauſe, in the words following, By the Word of God. Nor is it the New Creature which is there meant, for that is the thing begotten in us: But the principal cauſe of whom we are begotten, is the Holy Spirit, John 3. 6. That which is begotten of the Spirit. Now he is called the incorruptible ſeed, becauſe he is caſt into the Soul with the Word, as the prolifique Vertue in the Word; which is the ſeed, materially, but the Spirit virtually. And this alſo ſhews the difference between this giving the Spirit by vertue of Election, and that Communication of him to temporary Believers that fall away, who are ſaid, Heb. 6. to be Partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, as Saul; The Spirit of the Lord came on Saul. (1 Sam. 10. 10.) but ſo as to depart away again, 1 Sam. 16. 14. Thus on Balaam he did, (Numb. 24. 2, 3.) and opened his eyes. The fundamental difference lyes in the differing Terms of the gift of the Spirit, inſinuated here in the text: That many receive the Spirit not from God as a Father by virtue of Election; or through Chriſt as a Saviour: They receive not, as Children, the Spirit of God as from a Father; as Rom. 8. 14, 15. as alſo Matt. 10. 20. And as Chriſts Speech alſo (in John 14 and 15 Chapters I will pray the Father, &c.) do import: But they receive him from God out of Dominion and Soveraignty, and from Chriſt as a Lord, who hath brought even wicked men to ſerve him, 2 Pet. 2. 1. This diſtinction of this double receiving the Spirit, the Apoſtle inſinuates both in that Rom. 8. and Gal. 6, 7. 8. In that Rom. 8. 15. He ſpeaks of a Spirit of Bondage, which as Servants, they in ſome meaſure or other had formerly received from God; look in what ſtate men ſtand to God, they anſwerably more or leſs have a portion of his Spirit on them: If they are only in the ſtate of Servants, they have a Spirit of Bondage working legally that fear of Death which is in all men, Heb 2. 15. And deliver them, who through fear of Death, were all their life time ſubject to Bondage. The one place interprets the other. Thoſe ſtirrings of Guilt and Condemnations which are in all men's hearts, are from workings of the Spirit in all men. The ſame Spirit that moved upon the waters (Gen. 1.) moves upon all men's hearts. Now if men live under the preaching of the Law and Goſpel, then the ſame Spirit falls with higher works upon the Spirits of men unrenewed, yet ſtill but upon the ſame account that is mentioned Gen. 6. 3. My Spirit ſhall not always ſtrive with Man, for that he alſo is but Fleſh. He had ſpoken of the Sons of God, (v. 2.) that were the Profeſſors of that Age, who lived under Noah's Miniſtry, a Preacher of Righteouſneſs, Heb. 11. 7. And he went with his Miniſtry in a way of ſtriving with, and oppoſing Mens Corruptions in their Hearts; of which Peter. (1 Pet. 3. 18.) having ſaid that Chriſt was quickned or raiſed by the Spirit, he adds (v. 19.) by which Spirit alſo he went and Preached unto the Spirits in Priſon, WHICH SOMETIMES were diſobedient, when once the long ſuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the Ark was a preparing, when few, that is, Eight Souls, were ſaved by water. Theſe Men were Corrupt, and remained fleſh, and yet received the Spirit, ſtriving with them from God, as the Lord and Judge of the World, who to men fallen, gives his Spirit, as at firſt he did to Adam, with a new ſtock of Gifts and Motions: But deals with them therein but upon a Covenant of Works. It is a Favour indeed to give him, as all outward Gifts of the Spirit are, but their Perſons being under the Covenant of Works, and ſervants, their retaining this Spirit is according to the terms thereof; and ſo it proves in the iſſue, and their improving that Gift is managed according to the diſpenſation of ſuch a Covenant: And ſo they, by oppoſing and reſiſting ſuch ſtrivings of the Spirit, God withdraws him: For he ſays, My Spirit ſhall not always ſtrive. He deals with them as with Servants, that are untoward and rebellious, John 8. 35. The ſervant abides not in the Houſe for ever; but as Hagar was turn'd out of Doors and inherited not, ſo 'tis here: But (ſays Chriſt) a Son abides

Chp. 8.

Book 1. for ever in the House, and therefore they, as Children, receive the Spirit of Adoption, to cry, Abba Father. And the Spirit of Christ, as their Head, remains in them, and they are overcome and led by the Spirit of God. These are Sons, and that they may abide in the House for ever, this Spirit abides in them for ever. You have the very same distinction of Men, Receiving the Spirit, as Servants and as Sons, Gal. 4. 6, 7. Because ye are Sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son, into your Hearts, crying Abba Father: Wherefore thou art no more a Servant, but a Son, an heir of God through Christ. The meaning is, they receive the Spirit as Sons, not as Servants, as others do. To which add, v. 22, 23, &c. Where Hagar and Ishmael, and Sarah and Isaac, are made the Types of these two conditions of Men living in the Church, as they did in Abrahams Family, and Christ, John 8. alluded evidently unto it, in that Speech fore-quoted, v. 33, 34, 35. They answered him, We be Abraham's Seed, and were never in Bondage to any Man; how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free? Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever commiteth Sin is the servant of Sin: And the Servant abideth not in the House for ever, but the Son abideth ever. Both these living under the means, had dealings with God; Gen. 21. v. 17, 18, 19, 20. And the Angel of God called to Hagar out of Heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? Fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the Lad, where he is. Arise, lift up the Lad, and hold him in thine hand; for I will make him a great Nation. And God was with the Lad, &c. But yet this was but according to the Covenant of Works, whereof they were types: And their Spirits used all Gifts, Motions, Visions, &c. in such a way, and so at last the Spirit was withdrawn from them.

And therefore let not that deceive you, that Men that fall away, are said to be partakers of the Holy Ghost, &c. for they may be so, when yet they are not Sons. The Holy Ghost comes to some as a wayfaring Man, for a night. But do you not feel that though he may withdraw many Effects, yet still his Person is in you, and works even amidst your sinnings to reduce you again to God, and suffers you not to be finally overcome; but frames your Hearts so as you give your selves up to be led by him, and you treat with God of his abode in you, and of your Salvation, not upon a Covenant of Works, but Grace. Look to your tenure, by which God guides your Hearts to seek the Spirit and Salvation. Every Man's Heart and Spirit (as a Pen in his hand) is guided to write his own Deeds and Terms he holds Salvation on. Dost thou treat with God, as a Son, upon meer terms of Free Grace, renouncing Ishmael's Covenant and Tenure, not daring to treat with God upon these Terms, If I walk thus, and thus, God will give and continue his Spirit to me: No, but thou sayest as David, Lord, give me thy constant Spirit to work all in me, to cause me to walk in thy Statutes, Psal. 51. 10, 11. Create in me a clean Heart, O God; and renew a right Spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me. In the Margent it is, a constant Spirit within me; and if this is thy dependance and thy Salvation, and if upon these Terms thou holdest and retainest the Spirit, thou art a Son. You esteem it in Lands as a matter of great moment, the Tenure, whether it be Free-hold, or Copy-hold. My Brethren, know there is a Free-hold of the Spirit, and a Copy-hold: And go over but thy Prayers, and the Workings of thy Spirit with God, and thou wilt easily see thy Tenure.

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

That we not only partake of the Effects of the Holy Spirit's Operations in us, but alſo of his Perſon dwelling in us.

THERE is a Gift of his Perſon, Firſt and Chiefly, or Primarily; but Secondarily of his Graces, to be wrought in us by him. And in this Gift of his Perſon doth conſiſt the greatneſs, the richneſs of the Gift. This is expreſſed in thoſe words, Whom he ſhed on us richly, Tit. 3. 6. This, I ſay, is intended of his Perſon firſt, and ſimply, and then of his Graces and Effects, as in the ſecond place intended to us, as thoſe which accompany the Gift of his Perſon, and as Hand-maids upon it, and do flow from and depend upon the beſtowing and gift of himſelf. Thus there is the Gift of the Perſon of Chriſt to us, and for us: And there is the Gift of all thoſe Benefits which he hath purchaſed; but the Gift of his Perſon is, of the two, greater infinitely than that of his Benefits; as the Perſon is more worth, than the Dowry. And thus you are to look at the gift of the Perſon of the Spirit more than all his χαρίσματα or Gifts. Let us hear how the Scripture ſpeaks to this great Point, and ſets a value and indigitation upon it, as in diſtinction from his Graces, Rom. 5. 5. The Love of God is ſhed abroad in our Hearts, by the Holy Ghoſt which is given to us. Here you may obſerve a ſet diſtinction made between this one Effect of the Spirit in us, viz. The ſhedding abroad the Love of God in our Hearts, and the Gift of the Perſon of the Spirit: And how there is brought in a manifeſt ſuper-addition of the Gift of his Perſon over and above that Effect of ſhedding Gods love. By the Spirit (ſays he) Which he hath given us. Thus he ſpeaks of the gift of the Perſon himſelf ſingly and apart, diſtinct from the other; yea, and as being the Foundation of it. Take this Inſtance and Compariſon. God having given a Wife to a Man, by whom he hath had ſuch and ſuch Children, ſuch and ſuch an Eſtate, Benefits and Priviledges, when mention is made of any one of thoſe good things that accrued by her, ſhe to heighten the Mercy of the Gifts by the conſideration of the Perſon by means of whom the Man hath them) might ſay, All theſe things are by the Wife which God hath given thee. The ſame import you have in other ſuch Appendixes and Additional Clauſes to the like purpoſe. Acts 5. 32. And we (that is Apoſtles) are his Witneſſes, (that is, Chriſts) of theſe things; and ſo is alſo the Holy Ghoſt, (which manifeſtly refers to his Perſon.) The Apoſtle adds, Whom God hath given to them that obey him; Thus notably holding up unto their veiw the greatneſs of this Gift. And indeed the pouring forth the Holy-Ghoſt, is all the Diſcourſe of the firſt Ten Chapters of the Acts. And therefore it is elſewhere called the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, Acts. 10. 45. It is not χαρίσματα (ſpoken of 1 Cor. 12.) Gifts, in the plural, as ſpeaking of his Graces; But it is the Gift, as one abſolute full and intire Gift, once given for all; his Perſon containing virtually all other parcels and particular Gifts which he after works. The like addition to ſignifie this, you may obſerve, 1 Cor. 6. 19. Your Bodies are Temples of the Holy Ghoſt, which is in you, whom ye have of God. This refers alſo manifeſtly to his Perſon, as I ſhall have occaſion further to ſhew; and it comes in, to mind them of the greatneſs of the Gift, and the ſpecial Favour of the Do-

Book I. nor, whom ye have of God. Again you have it, 1 Cor. 2. 13. We have received the Spirit which is of God, that we may know the free Gift of God to us. Here is a double Gift, and both from God, distinguished: 1. The Grace or Gifts of God and his Spirit bestowed on us, τα χαριθέντα or χαρίσματα: and 2. The Gift of the Person of the Spirit, distinct from these; whom we receive (says he) as given by God first, and so received by us. And he is Given (as to other ends) so that we may know these things he gives us, or works in us, the Gift of which is distinct from that of his Person, which is set out further by this τὸ πνεῦκα τοῦ Θεοῦ. The Spirit is out of God himself, and proceeding from him, and he is in God, as the Spirit of a Man in a Man. v. 11.

The reason of this is, Because the Spirit is given us by the Covenant of Grace, which Covenant makes freely over all that is in God unto us, and for our good; All, both Attributes and Persons in him; the donation thereof running thus; I will be thy God, and thou shalt be my People. I use to say that the Covenant of Grace, is in all the Transactions a Covenant of Persons. Consider that of Election in the Fathers Hand, He pitch'd not on Qualifications but Persons, afore they had done good or evil, Rom. 9. 13. And therefore so long as the persons remain, his Love remains; and thence he works that in the Person, which may make him Comely, Eph. 1. 4. He hath Chosen us in him, before the foundation of the World, that we should be Holy, and without blame before him in love. And Christ when he comes, he gives his Person, He gave himself, as every where it is said, both to us, and for us; And he dyed not for abstracted Propositions, but Persons. I lay down my life for my sheep, and I know them by name. And when he applyes his Blood to us, he gives us himself, and the Soul in the end seeks his Person also. As Paul did, Phil. 3. 8. Thus answerably in the third Person, the Gift of the Holy Ghost is the Gift of his Person to dwell in us.

The next thing to be considered is his coming upon us, and his dwelling in us. I have two Assertions to add concerning this.

1. Concerning his coming upon us, and God's shedding him forth: My Assertion is, That the first coming of the Holy Ghost is immediately upon us, as we are in our natural Condition, in our uncleaness and pollution, without any preparation to make way for his coming upon us, or into us. He doth not work Grace first, and then come into a man; but he comes first and seizeth on a man, then works Grace in him. and this the Text in Tit. 3. 6. insinuates when weighing the Mercy thereof, the Apostle says, He shed his Spirit upon us: On us; how qualified? The fourth verse tells us, Us, when disobedient, serving divers Lusts and Pleasures. And he then sent him, to renew us, v. 5 Such were the vessels when this precious liquor was first poured into them, and upon them. And his coming first thus on men, when in their natural state, is exemplified in the Corinthians; yea, and pressed on them as a great point, which the Apostle would have them seriously to mind and consider, to the end they might ascribe unto the Holy Ghost his due Glory, 1 Cor. 12. 1, 2, 3. Now concerning Spiritual Gifts, Brethen, I would not have you ignorant: Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carryed away unto those dumb Idols, even as ye were led. Wherefore I will give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God, calleth Jesus accursed; and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost. Being to treat of Spiritual Gifts infused into the People of God, He prefaceth this, I would have you (says he) know and consider these things about them. 1*st.* That the Author of them is wholly and intirely the Spirit of God. No man can say, or confess out of Conviction of Judgment, that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost. And the embracing of this Foundation of Christian Religion, was before any further Spiritual Gift was Communicated unto you, but was indeed the foundation of bestowing it, for no man, speaking by the Spirit, calleth Jesus an Execration. Then 2. Says he I would have you remember the Condition you were in, when the Spirit of God began first to teach you this; you were all Idolaters, led away as bruit beasts beaſts after dumb Idols, when alſo you execrated and abomiated our Jeſus, (as to this day the Jews and Heathens do) When it was certain therefore, that you had not the Spirit of God in you; for no man that hath the Spirit calleth Chriſt accurſed, as ye then did. So then, who was the firſt Beginner of this great Change and Alteration, but the Spirit of God? And 3. If this were your Condition, (as it was) what did or could the Spirit find in you, as preparatory and inviting of him thereunto? Abſolutely nothing at all. The loweſt and firſt ſtep which can be ſuppoſed to be out of Heatheniſm into Chriſtianity, viz. The Thoughts and Profeſſion that our Jeſus is the Lord and Chriſt, even this firſt thought, which is the introduction to all, you, ſays the Apoſtle, had from the Spirit of God firſt, as well as you have been enlightned by him ſince. 4. He would have them further conſider, That they, when they were thus Idolatrous, were acted and poſſeſſed by another greater Spirit than their own, who inviſibly was in them, and yet effectually wrought in them, and had poſſeſſion of their Minds, Fancies, and Affections (which unleſs he had been in them he could not have) Even Satan, that evil Spirit, the God of this world, who (as it is ſaid 2 Cor. 4. 4.) blinded theſe Heathens. This he clearly inſinuates to them (and puts it in, as in oppoſition to their now having the Spirit of God) in theſe words, Ye were led after Dumb Idols. Led, even as Bruit Beaſts are at the pleaſure of them that poſſeſs them; And led by ſome other Spirit then their own. It had been impoſſible elſe that ſo many wiſe Heathens ſhould have worſhiped Dumb Idols (as on purpoſe he terms them) themſelves having reaſonable Souls, that thought and ſpake, which thoſe Idols, that had eyes, and ſaw not, wanted. Now then the Apoſtle would have them conſider that ere their Judgments could be led to own Chriſt as Lord, this evil Spirit muſt be diſpoſſeſſed; and another Spirit, even the Spirit of God, come in his room; and and poſſeſs their hearts, and ſo lead them into all the truth they then poſſeſt; without which they had never embraced the firſt Element or Principle of Chriſtian verity. From which inſtance and experiment in the Corinthians, I infer, That the Spirit of God, when he converts men to things Spiritual, comes upon a man (when an Heathen (ſuppoſe, as then the World went) or on us) when unregenerate. And it is confirmed by this, that the Holy Ghoſt reveals not any Truth, or works any ſaving good, but a man firſt hath him ſent down into his heart. He is firſt ſent and ſhed upon us, ere we are led into all, or any Truth; as the 14, 15, 16 chapters of John ſhew. We receive him as an Unction firſt, ere he ſavingly teacheth us any Truth 1 John 2. 20. Ye have an Unction from the Holy One (which is the Spirit, Acts 10. 38.) And ye know all things, firſt and laſt. All that ye know in Spirituals, it is from him; yea, and by having him firſt. And as from having him firſt, it is that we begin to know; ſo that we continue to know and acknowledge Spiritual things ſavingly, is from his abiding in us. He in his firſt Perſon is firſt ſaid to abide, and ſo to go on to teach us. So v. 27. of that Chapter, But the anoynting which ye have received of him, abides in you; but, as the ſame Anointing teacheth you of all things, and is Truth, and is no lye: And even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in him. So then theſe Idolatrous Corinthians, when they were converted to God, had firſt the Spirit communicated to them, caſting out that evil Spirit, and poſſeſſing his room in them, ere they could be taught the firſt letter in this School. Which agrees with what Chriſt ſays of the caſting out Satan, in order to men's Converſions, (unto which Chriſt's ſcope extends) Matt. 12. 27, 28. If I by Belzebub caſt out Devils, by whom do your Children caſt them out? Therefore they ſhall be your Judges: But if I caſt out Devils by the Spirit of God, then the Kingdom of God is come unto you. with which compare Luke 11. 20, 21, 22. &c. It is ſaid by Mathew, that it is the Spirit, by Luke the finger of God, by whom Chriſt profeſſeth to caſt out Devils, in men to be converted, as well as out of men poſſeſſed. This Spirit he compares there to a ſtronger then Satan, that comes upon him immediately as he is in his houſe, or place, binds him, and overcomes him; And ſo himſelf enters in, as Mathew's and Mark's phraſe is. For it is Entry and Poſſeſſion the Holy Ghoſt aims at; and it is the firſt thing he doth, after he hath pulled forth Satan that was in poſſeſſion, and bound him;

Chap. 8.

Book I. him; and then being entred, he throws out his Goods and Weapons, mortifies Corruptions, and ſanctifies the Heart, and leads the Soul into ſaving Truths. And this is it which Paul inſinuates, That he came upon theſe Corinthians, caſt out the Spirit that led them into Error, entred himſelf, and led them into Truth. And it was as neceſſary he ſhould firſt come on them, ere they could Spiritually aſſent to the firſt or leaſt Truth, as it is neceſſary he comes on us, and abides in us, to lead us into all Truth elſe. And therefore it evidently follows, both 1. That the ſhedding forth, or entring in of the Holy Spirit, is the firſt foundation to all wrought in us; and 2. That therefore this his coming upon us and entring into us, is immediately without any preparation, when men are unregenerate. When Chriſt indeed comes to dwell in our hearts by faith, as Eph. 3. 17. there need be preparation in our hearts for that his coming, and there is a preparing the way of the Lord. For he is to be received by our Faith as a Saviour and Redeemer, and therefore we cannot receive him as ſuppoſed to be ſuch, until we ſee our ſelves ſinners. But our receiving the Spirit is not Objectivè, as we receive an Object into our Underſtandings or Hearts, and ſo needs no preparation on our parts; for he himſelf muſt firſt come to work all Apprehenſions and Affections in us, from firſt to laſt, Gal. 4. 6. He ſends his Spirit into our hearts, crying, Abba Father, and he Cries as he comes along.

There are two or three Objections which I will anſwer.

Obj. 1. Can we imagine that the Spirit of God, who is ſo Holy a Spirit, will come and enter into and poſſeſs hismſelf of an unclean filthy and defiled Heart, in the fulneſs and ſpring-tide of it's filth and uncleanneſs? Doth he not rather firſt make the Heart Holy, and then by that Holineſs dwell therein, ſeating himſelf in the new Creature which he firſt creates? Thus indeed ſome have Evangelized, and thereupon diſtinguiſhed between his coming upon us, as at firſt, and his dwelling in us.

But I anſwer.

Anſ. 1. I. That if the Spirit could be defiled in ſo doing, he would not do it; but this Earth mudds not the Water that gets into it to become a Spring, no more then the Sun Beams are by ſhining into a dunghil.

Anſ. 2. II. The ſubſtance of the Soul (which he comes to) is his own, and comes to make it clean, which he cannot do, unleſs he gets within it. It is well for us he is ſo Holy; for no other Water but of this Preciouſneſs, would have Virtue and Power to cleanſe us. And this is no more abſurdity than to ſay, That pure Water is poured firſt into a Veſſel to take away the filth of it; Or that fire gets into, and fills the pores of Metals in the Ore, whilſt full of droſs, to burn out, and conſume, and ſeparate it from them, Now theſe are the Compariſons the Scripture uſeth Ezek. 36. 15. I will ſprinkle clean Water upon you: An is not that pity, you will ſay, that not only Water, but clean Water, ſhould be poured upon defiled Hearts, utterly defiled? God prevents the Objection, in telling us that he thinks not much at this coſt. The cleaneſt ſweeteſt Water that Heaven affords, he chooſeth, viz. His own Holy Spirit: But the Water is ſo clean, as it receives no Tincture whileſt it runs through you, and cleanſeth you; as it there follows, And ye ſhall be clean from all your filthineſs; and from all your Idols will I cleanſe you; and a new Heart will I give you. And this is interpreted to be the Spirit, verſe 27. I will put my Spirit within you; not upon you only; that will not ſerve to cleanſe; he therefore puts him firſt into you. And what is this, but what you read, 1 Cor. 6. 9. Such were ſome of you; but ye are Waſhed; there is the Genus, or in Common the Spirits work; the particulars follow: But ye are ſanctified, but ye are juſtified, in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God. The Spirit muſt do both: And it is no ſtrange thing ye should receive the Spirit, and he come into you to do all these e're ever you are sanctified or justified. That other comparison of Fire, I need not insist on: You have it Isa. 4. 4. When the Lord shall have purged the Blood of Jerusalem by the Spirit of Burning. You know how the Holy Ghost in this respect is compared to Fire up and down the New-Testament. Now what is it to the Fire to enter into what is drossy and defiled to eat it out and consume it? Such Fewel is proper for it to seize on, and shew it's power upon. And what is it to this rushing Wind, to enter into the middle of a rotten House (the old Man) and blow it down; and rear up a new one in the room of it? And what is it for this strong man to enter into Satan's House, whilst he is in it, and throw him out; and spoil and rifle all his Goods, and throw them out after him? He will not stand without doors to do it, as Christ also tells us. Chap. 9.

A Second Objection is out of John 14. 17. Where Christ speaking of the Spirit, says, Whom the World (or Men Unregenerate) cannot receive, because they see him not, neither know him; but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, &c. Object. 2.

The Answer is clear. That promise of the Spirit there is meant of him as a Comforter, and Assurer of Salvation; so v. 16. I will pray the Father, and he will give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever. Now, as such, he can never come first on an Unregenerate Man; but he must be a Spirit of Bondage first to him, and (as Chap. 16. 8.) Convince the World of sin: And therefore they in that condition are not capable of the Spirit as a Sealer; for they must have Regeneration first; and Faith first wrought, Eph. 1, 13. After ye believed, ye were sealed with the Spirit of Promise. So as Christ's plain meaning is this, you that are already Believers, and have already experimentally felt the workings of this Spirit in you, you know him; (says he) and to you, and to others that know him, by having been already wrought upon, I will send him as a Comforter, to fill your Hearts with joy in believing, unspeakable and glorious. But unregenerate Men are utterly uncapable of this Priviledge, for they know him not in these first effects of Regeneration, and change of Heart; and therefore, as a Comforter, they see not nor know him. He must be a Regenerator, ere a Comforter. Receive him they may, to convert them; but not thus to assure them, until he hath wrought Regeneration in them, as he hath done on you. Answ.

I shall now discourse about the in-dwelling, or in-being of the Spirit in us, after he is thus come: Concerning which, my Assertion is this,

That the Indwelling of the Spirit also is of his Person Primarily and immediately, and by his Graces secundarily. And although it be with his Graces, yet it is not primarily by his Graces, but his Person is given to dwell in us immediately and for ever; and his Graces secundarily. Our Persons (Bodies and Souls) are the Temples of his Person immediately; his Graces are the hangings, the Furniture, that he may dwell like himself: ut habitate decore; that he may dwell handsomely. He is an Holy Spirit, and Holiness becomes his House, as the Psalmist speaks; and so tho' he comes first into bare Walls, yet he afterwards adorns them. You have a parallel made in the Scriptures of this point of his indwelling, with that former, of the Gift of him. That as his Person hath been shewed to be the great Gift, and his Graces the secundary Gift; so his indwelling is primarily added to his Person, and to his Graces secundarily. Because sometimes in Scripture the Spirit is used to express his Graces, the Cause being put for the Effect; therefore, it hath been generally almost asserted that he dwells no otherwise in us, then by having wrought such and such Graces. But my position is, That as the Person of the Spirit is primarily given, so his Person doth primarily dwell in us; and his Graces secundarily. And this I hope to make clear by parallel Scriptures to those other.

I. That

Book I. I. That text in 1 Cor. 6. 19. (which I said I should have recourse to again) shews it, Your Bodies (and therefore much more your Souls) are the Temples of the Holy Ghost who is in you. It was not sufficient for him to say they were as his Temples, for him to be worshipd in, by and through the Graces he puts in them, but h adds, Who is in you, whom ye have of God: Besides what afore was said, it appears further thus: For as he heightens their sin of Fornication, in the former verse, that it is against the Person of Christ, in respect of their relation to him as an Husband; so in like manner in this verse, that it is against the Person of the Holy Ghost, an Indweller in them. Ye are the Temples of the Holy Ghost, who is in you. It is therefore made a distinctive property of the Holy Ghost, as in relation to the Saints, (Even as Procession is proper to him, in Relation to the Father) That he is the Indweller in us, 2 Tim. 1. 14. That good thing which was committed unto thee, keep by the Holy Ghost, which dwelleth in us. You may observe that in the place before cited, how still there came in this super-additional Clause, By the Holy Ghost which is given to us. So in like manner that other Clause, the Holy Ghost which dwells in us, where the Person of the Holy-Ghost, as thus dwelling in us, is spoken of as abstracted and severed from his Grace by two Characters, 1. That he exhorts Timothy to keep the truth in faith and love, v. 13. as also v. 14. That whole frame both of Grace and form of Truth, which he calls that good thing committed to him by the Holy Ghost: For evidently severing the Holy Ghost's Person as the Conservator of Faith and love of the Truth, and of all that is good within us, or committed to us. He distinguisheth him (I say) from these Graces, as the things that are to be preserved by him: For else he should exhort to keep these Graces by these Graces themselves, if he meant, that they were these Graces by which the Holy Ghost doth only dwell within us. Secondly, His Exhortation to Timothy runs not thus: By the Holy Ghost who dwells in thee, which yet had been more proper, if he had intended the Indwelling of those Graces in him, but he speaks generally by the Holy Ghost who dwells in thee and us; all in Common.

II. It may be observed, that whereas both God and Christ, those other two Persons, are also in Scripture said to be in us, and to dwell in us; Yet this of Indwelling is more special, and immediationi suppositi, attributed to the Holy Ghost: Which as it serves to give him an honour peculiar to him, so when set in such a Comparison, even with them, must needs be meant, and understood of his Person immediately, and not by his Graces only. Yea the other two Persons are said to dwell in us and the God-head it self, because the Holy-Ghost dwells in us; he being the Person that makes entry, and takes possession first, in the Name and for the Use of the other Two, and so bringeth them in. I shall but name the place, which looks this way, Eph. 2. 22. Ye are an habitation unto God by the Spirit: 1 Cor. 3. 16. know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, namely the Father, or (if ye will) the God-head it self. And it follows by a speciall addition, And that the Spirit of God dwells in you. So giving the original foundation or ground how we came to be Temples of God, Because the Spirit of God dwells there: Or, as afterwards, Chap. 6. The Spirit which ye have of God: Likewise, 1 John 3. 24. He that keepeth his Commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. Take it either of God the Father, or the Son, for he had spoken of either, v. 23. And hereby we know that he abideth in us by the Spirit which he hath given us, whom we feel dwelling and working in our Hearts; And therefore our Divines have generally affirmed it, that Christ is said to dwell in us, because first his Spirit dwells in us, from Rom. 8. 9, 10. compared. Now to me it were strange, to interpret such speeches that God and Christ dwells in us, because their Spirit dwells in us; and then by the Spirit mean only his Grace, or the Spirit only by his Grace; for the Spirit of God being a third Person, must needs be acknowledged an Indweller, as well as the other two; yea, and to come in between them and his own Grace; seeing their dwelling in us is attributed to his. The truth is, that it is in this Union of ours with God, as in that of Christ: That look as in the Union of the man Jesus, unto the Son of God, and in the Indwelling of the Son of God in that hu-humane Nature, the Son of God firſt and originally dwells there, and he dwelling therein, the Father is in the Man, and the Spirit is in him, and he in the Father: So is it here in this ſubordinate Union of ours, that the Third Perſon comes as the firſt Inmate in us, and he taking poſſeſſion, the other Two come in, and take up their abode alſo. Chap. 9.

Or if you will, you may view it in the Spirit's comforting of us, which holds parallel to this. Chriſt firſt promiſeth to ſend the Spirit, as our Comforter, into us; And when he is come, (ſays John 14. 16, 17.) I will pray the Father, and he ſhall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; Even the Spirit of Truth, whom the World cannot receive, becauſe it ſeeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and ſhall be in you. And in that day (v. 20.) ye ſhall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. If any man love me, (v. 23.) my Father will love him, and we will come to him, and make our abode with him. So the Spirit comes firſt. And thus it is even in their Indwelling alſo; So as indeed it may be rightly urged to the point in hand; that if it be thus, that God and Chriſt dwell in us, becauſe his Spirit dwells in us; That then much more it muſt be granted, that his Graces are ſaid to be, and to dwell in our Hearts; becauſe the Spirit firſt and primarily, who is the Author of them, doth ſo: As the Beams do therefore dwell in this viſible World, or the Heavens, becauſe the Sun doth firſt and originally dwell there, whoſe Emanations and flowings forth they are. I might bring an invincible Argument from this, That he firſt comes ere he works Grace, but I refer it to the next head.

I obſerve that Gifts and Graces are called the manifeſtation of the Spirit, 1 Cor. 12. 7. that is, an outward Demonſtration or Manifeſtation in Men of that Spirit that dwells and abides within the Heart, and is inviſible. The ſeeing of the Eye, the hearing of the Ear, the Acting of the Fancy, and Speech in the Tongue, are the manifeſtation of the Soul that dwells in the Body; and dwells not there by theſe, but with theſe; and in order, the Soul it ſelf is that ἐντελέχεια that actus primus of theſe, as actus ſecundi. And ſuch is the Spirit to our Souls, and his Grace; he dwelling firſt in us himſelf. And therefore as animalis homo is a man that hath no more but a Soul in him, that informs him, and acts him, without the Spirit of God; So oppoſitely, he is a Spiritual man (you have the oppoſition, 2 Cor. 2. 15.) that hath received into his Heart the Spirit of God, (read all the verſes afore) that he might know the things of God.

The Objection which hath diverted Men from this Aſſertion, is, That the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt is every where, Pſal. 139. 7. Whither ſhall I go from thy Spirit? Or whither ſhall I fly from thy Preſence? If I aſcend up into Heaven, thou art there, &c. And in that reſpect his Perſon is as much in a Worm, as in the Saints, and in all alike; therefore how can his Perſon be ſaid to dwell more in the Saints, then elſewhere, otherwiſe than by his Effects and Graces?

1. According to the ſeverity of this reaſon, the ſecond Perſon, the Son of God, ſhould not be ſaid to dwell otherwiſe in the Humane Nature of Chriſt, then by Effects and Graces, which Col. 2. 9. He is ſaid to do, for in him dwelleth all the fulneſs of the Godhead Bodily; in diſtinction from Saints and Angels. For eſſentially, as he is God, he is alſo in the meaneſt Creature; and yet the Perſon of the Son, and the God-head it ſelf, dwells perſonally in that Nature, and not the Graces only. Now what is it makes that indwelling to be more than by Graces and Effects, and ſo puts that vaſt difference? All acknowledge that it is becauſe he takes up that Humane Nature into a nearer relation to his Perſon, ſo as to be one Perſon with it immediately; and ſuch an Union Graces alone work not, nor gives Foundation unto: And ſo he dwells in him upon that accompt.

Book I. Well then 2*ly*, 'Tis true that into ſo Near and High a Relation, the Saints are not taken up; They are not made one with the Spirit, nor doth the Spirit dwell in them upon that accompt. The Spirit dwelling in a Saint, is not ſaid to be made fleſh, as the Word is, John 1. 14. for then what Good or Evil the Saints do, would perſonally be accompted the Holy Ghoſt's; Our Prayers his, ſubjectively; yea, and our Sins, his; as the Blood and Obedience of that Man Jeſus, was the Blood and Obedience of God, and the Son of God. Therefore our Relation to the Holy-Ghoſt's Perſon, is not ſo near by God's Ordination. Yet, 3*ly*. (as to the point in hand) We are capable and are made partakers by the like Ordination and free gift of God, of a Relation, or Propriety rather, to the very Perſon of the Holy-Ghoſt: Which tho' it be lower then that of the Son of God, to humane nature, in Chriſt God-man; yet it is not founded upon Graces, but is beyond them, and before them, even by God's free and abſolute Gift and Donation of his Perſon to us, in order to ſuch Graces, and the working of them in us! So as that this Perſon ſhould indeed dwell in us, in reference to Graces as the final cauſe, but not the Inſtrument at all, or means of his Indwelling. It is Unio Perſonarum, an Union of two Perſons immediately, us, and him, remaining two Perſons ſtill: As that of Marriage is of two Perſons immediately, in order to ſuch and ſuch ends, And 'tis not unio perſonalis, to become one Perſon, as that of the two Natures Chriſt, the Humane, and the Divine. Which is unio duorum Naturarum, but not unio naturalis, of two Natures, but not into one Nature, but one Perſon. And this difference was exemplified in Chriſt himſelf our Head, in the Man Chriſt Jeſus, in whom the Spirit of God dwells not perſonally, for then Chriſt would be one Perſon with the Holy-Ghoſt, as well as with the Son of God; nor doth the Father dwell perſonally in Chriſt, for then all three Perſons ſhould have been ſaid to be incarnate. And yet I ſuppoſe none will ſay that the Perſon of the Spirit, nor of the Son, dwells in the Man Jeſus only by means of his Graces. But further the Perſon of the Spirit firſt reſts on the Man Chriſt, which Perſon he hath a right unto, that he ſhould dwell in him, becauſe that Man Chriſt Jeſus is now united to the ſecond Perſon perſonally; and ſo to his Graces ſecondarily. So as if we ask whether in order of nature the Perſon of the Spirit dwells in him firſt, or the Spirit by his Graces; we may without any heſitation anſwer, The Perſon of the Spirit primarily, and then his Graces. Unto which, ſeems to me, to accord that in Iſa. 11. 12. Where it is firſt ſaid, The Spirit of the Lord ſhall reſt upon him; namely, the Perſon of the Holy-Ghoſt, ſimply and abſolutely conſidered; Then relatively, as in order to endowing him with ſuch and ſuch particular Graces, viz. The Spirit of Wiſdom and Underſtanding, the Spirit of Counſel and Might, the Spirit of Knowledge, and of the Fear of the Lord.

Now for the manner of the Indwelling of the Holy-Ghoſt's Perſon; it is no Error to affirm that it is the ſame in us and the Man Chriſt Jeſus. Sure we are capable of it, and therefore ſhall have it, we being to be conformed to his Image and Likeneſs (as he to ours) in all that is poſſible, as he was to us, ſin only excepted; ſo we to him, the perſonal Union, and the Priviledge of it, excepted. Only indeed we differ herein from him, in two things. 1. In the Meaſure; for he hath the Spirit given him without meaſure, in his Effects. 2. In the Right to this indwelling of his Perſon in us, and in him. He holds it as a Royalty, and one of the greateſt, from his Perſonal union with the Son of God. We hold it in his Right, and by vertue of the Covenant of Grace, and free Donation; for becauſe we are Sons adopted in him, He hath ſent the Spirit of his Son into our Hearts, Gal. 4. 6. But the Modus, the manner of the Indwelling, is one and the ſame.

Theſe things long ſince ſatisfied me in this great point; and I ſubmit them to Judgment.

CHAP.

CHAP. X.

The Uſes of the Foregoing Doctrine.

USE 1. LET us view with Admiration the Riches of this Gift of the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt; 'Tis the word which the Apoſtle uſeth here in the Text, whom he ſhed upon us, πλουσίως, Richly. Let us value him accordingly. You value the things (every one of them) which God hath given us: Then value the Spirit much more, who is the Author of the moſt, and Diſcoverer of them all. Take the moſt pretious of Graces, like pretious Faith (as Peter calls it) Aſſurance of the Love of God, which is the earneſt of Glory; the Gift of the Spirit that works this Faith, and the Shedder abroad of this Love, is infinitely greater. And therefore in Rom. 5. 5. After the enumeration of Faith, and all the Fruits of it, Peace with God, Rejoycing in Hope of Glory, Patience, Experience, ſhedding abroad the Love of God in our Hearts; it is ſuperadded, as more then all theſe, being the Root, the Spring of all, The Spirit which he hath given us. Yea, and as in verſes 6, 7, 8. He ſets out the greatneſs of the Love of God, that gave Chriſt to dye for us: So in thoſe verſes aforeſaid, He would in like manner inſinuate the greatneſs of that Love, that gave us this Holy Spirit to work all theſe Graces in us, and reveal the Love which God hath ſo Commended. Inſomuch as this hath been ſtarted as matter of debate, and moſt ſerious Conſideration, by ſome Divines; Whether Filius datus, (Iſa. 9.) To us a Son is given, or Spiritus datus, The Spirit given, (Rom. 5.) be the richer Favour? Whether the Incarnation, God manifeſt in the Fleſh; or the diffuſion, or pouring forth of the Spirit upon all fleſh, be the greater Mercy? From Heaven they both came down; The Spirit as well as the Son, 1 Pet. 1. 2. and from the Boſome of the Father both: They are both of them Pawns, and Earneſts, and Witneſſes alike, of one and the ſame Love. It is alſo a diſpute among Interpreters, whether the Gift of God, which κατ' ἐξοχὴν (as tis call'd) is predicated ſo much, and held at ſo high a rate, John 4. 10. be Chriſt, or the Spirit: Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, If thou kneweſt the Gift of God, and who it is that ſaith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldeſt have asked of him, and he would have given thee living Water. It is queſtioned whether, as the ſole ſufficient ſatisfying Object of our Deſires, is the Gift of the Son, or the Gift of the Spirit? Whether Chriſt means himſelf, or the Holy Ghoſt, as given to us? Many carry it to Chriſt, but the Context more clearly carries it to the Spirit: For 1. The Gift of God (as there) ſeems to be diſtinguiſhed from, rather then explained by, that which follows. Who it is that ſaith to thee; and give me drink, ſeem as two things, not one and the ſame. And 2. That Gift is clearly, that living Water, which God and Chriſt give, and that is the Spirit, v. 14. being compared with John 7. 38, 39. In the Old Teſtament you hear of it, as more then all the Mercies of Giving the Law, or bringing out of Egypt. Thou gaveſt them thy good Spirit to inſtruct them; So Nehem. 9. 20. 30. It is Twice Expreſſed, As alſo Iſaiah 63. When he Profeſſeth to mention the loving Kindneſs of the Lord, according to all he hath beſtowed upon us, v. 7. Where you may ſee how he heaps up and multiplies words to ſet out the Riches of God's mercies by: And this he reckons the greateſt of their Sins, that They rebelled and vexed his Holy Spirit, as the greateſt mercy of all, and therefore he fought againſt them v. 10. And then himſelf remembers what his Book I. kindneſs of old had been, and how doth he expreſs the height of it? v. 11. Where is he that put his Holy Spirit within him? And when the Temple was built again, and they delivered out of Babylon, what is the greateſt Promiſe God could make, till Chriſt ſhould come and give a greater meaſure of his Spirit? You have it, Haggai 2. 5. According to the word I covenanted with you, when I came out of Egypt, ſo my Spirit remains among you, as the greateſt Pledge and Pawn of my Favour; fear you not. But in the New Teſtament, there you hear of it again, and again; as in the Old, Thou gaveſt them thy Good Spirit; So in the New, He hath given his Holy Spirit, is written almoſt in every Every Epiſtle. It is almoſt all the talk, and fills their mouths throughout all the Book of the Acts; eſpecially the firſt 15 Chapters, it was all their talk and Speech. The firſt Queſtion they asked, when they met any that profeſſed Chriſt, was, (as Acts 19. 1, 2.) Have ye received the Holy-Ghoſt, yea or no? So tranſcendant a Priviledge is it, that it is recorded as the Emulation of the Jews againſt the Gentiles. The Jews had wont to make Meſſiah their Glory, (as Simeon hath it, Luke 2. 32. The Glory of thy People Iſrael.) But when they had received the Holy-Ghoſt (Acts 2.) They would have run away with it alone, as the richeſt Prize, till God Confuted them, by pouring forth the ſame Spirit equally, and as much upon the Gentiles, thereby giving both Sorts his Children an equal portion in him, as being the whole of his Eſtate now left to beſtow, having given his Son afore, Acts 11. 17. For as much as God gave them (ſays Peter) the like Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, as he did unto us: which argued the utmoſt of his favour, to the one, as well as the other; as that of the Prophet alſo ſhews, Ezek. 39. 29. Neither will I hide my face any more from them, for I have poured forth my Spirit upon them, ſaith the Lord. Nay then (ſay the Jews there) let them take all, as well as we. God hath with-held nothing from them, for then hath God granted the Gentiles Repentance unto life (v. 18.) and eſtated them in all Promiſes, in all Priviledges of Life, for he hath given them his Spirit. Who dares deny to Baptize them? Who dares to ſhut them out from any Priviledges? For they have received the Holy-Ghoſt, as well as we, ſays Peter, Acts 10. 41. And in that hot diſpute in Acts 15. about the Gentile's Salvation, Peter Silences all with this (v. 8, 9.) God, who knows their hearts, hath given them witneſs, giving them the Holy Ghoſt, as he did to us, and put no difference between them and us, (ſo v. 11.) They and we are Heirs alike of the ſame Salvation. and God (ſayth Paul an Apoſtle, and a Jew, unto the Gentile Corinthians) hath eſtabliſhed us with you, and you with us; hath anointed us, and ſealed us, and given us the earneſt of his Spirit in our hearts, 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. That as the Apoſtle argues, If he hath given us his Son, how ſhall he not with him, give us all things? So the Sum of theſe Agitations is, That if God hath given us his Spirit, how ſhall he not give us, I do not ſay, with him only, but in him even in that one Gift of him, give us all things? In this one gift of the Holy-Ghoſt (as it is termed, Acts 10. 47. and often elſe where) not Gifts, as of many; but Gift, as of one; is contained all the whole both of Grace and Glory; Tanquam in Fonte, tanquam in Semine; As in the Seed, and Fountain of both.

USES II. Is the gift of the Spirit, that great and rich Gift, which God vouchſafes to the Sons of Men? Then how miſerable are they, that have not this Spirit in them, nor have had any workings from him, in order to their Salvation, to this very day. That live a Life of Senſual Pleaſures, in enjoying Meat, Drink, Marriage, Beauty, great Houſes, Riches, fine Cloaths; and then ſay (as in Revelations 3. 17.) I am rich, and have need of nothing; and knoweſt not that thou art wretched, and miſerable, and poor, and blind, and naked; for why, thou wanteſt the Spirit. When Jude would expreſs the miſery of theſe ſenſual wretches, his words are v. 19. Not having the Spirit. And indeed (Rom. 8. 5, 6.) They that are after the fleſh, do mind the things of the fleſh; but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded, is death; but to be Spiritually minded, is life and peace.

Let

Let me instruct your hearts accordingly, to direct your prayers hereafter with answerable Intentions and vehemency, for the Gift of the Spirit himself: You pray in the Spirit, and you bless in the Spirit: Let me exhort you to pray for the Spirit above all, and to bless God for this Holy Spirit, as one of the greatest Blessings of all. When the Apostle saw the Corinthians eager after Spiritual Gifts, his care and skill was to pitch their Aims and Desires upon what was most excellent, (1 Cor. 12. 21.) Covet the best Gifts; and yet I shew you a more excellent way. Thou seekest after particular Mercies, and some one particular Grace thou at present findest thou needest; To be humbled for sin; To be emptied of thine own Righteousness; To have the right Way, and Art of Believing particularly discovered to thy heart, or to have power against such a Lust, &c. And thou dost well, for thou art to branch thy Prayers into all particular Wants: But yet let me shew thee a more excellent way: Pray for the Spirit himself to be given thee; and whilst thou seekest for the Stream, forget not the Fountain. For when God gives thee him, more and more to dwell in thee, and fill thee, and mingle with thine heart, he brings with himself all these unto thee. Is thine heart hard? If God pour this water on thee, it will soak into it, and soften it. Wouldst thou see thy sinfulness, the most Spiritual Wickedness of Unbelief, &c. in thee? When he is come, he will convince of sin, because they believe not in me, saith Christ. He that searcheth the deepest things of God, is much more able to search and discover the shallows of thy Heart. Wouldst thou have no Confidence in the Flesh, but be purely carried out of thy self, to seek the Righteousness of Christ alone, and be found therein? Read, Gal. 5. 5. We through the Spirit, wait for the Righteousness of Faith. Wouldst thou have Joy and Peace in Believing? Joy unspeakable and Glorious? The love of God shed abroad in thine Heart? Pray for the Spirit, Rom. 15. 13. Now the God of hope fill you with all Joy and Peace in believing, that ye may abound in Hope through the Power of the Holy Ghost. Wouldst thou have thy lusts mortified? We through the Spirit mortifie the deeds of the flesh, Rom. 8. 13. And ye through the Spirit have purified your hearts, 1 Pet. 1. 22.

Chap. 9. USE III.

Our Saviour Christ, both in his own Practice, and Direction to us, hath guided us to this, as the great Request, 1. By his own example; for what is made the greatest and most professed Subject of the Flower of the most raised Prayers that our great high Priest eternally puts up for us? Yea, and upon what occasion did he first promise that he would pray for us? It is even this; I will pray the Father to give you another Comforter, even the Holy Ghost. Joh. 14. 16, 26. You may judge what things your own, or others Judgments and Apprehensions are raised up to, as most excellent, by what your Prayers and Desires therein reach forward to, as the Mark of your eye. Therefore in Christ's Judgment, that knows best what is to be prayed for, this is the most excellent: Yea, and you may take this further estimate of it, that he promiseth to spend his prayers now in Heaven (and if ever his heart is wound up to the highest strains, it is there) Yea, his Prayers and Intercessions there, are spent most upon this Subject. And though he may be supposed, to pray for other things we stand in need of; yet I am sure, this in particular is mentioned, and perhaps the first, and chiefest.

And as his own Practise, so his Direction pitcheth us upon this also: And he cites his Fathers Judgment also of this, to be the best Request we can put up. That if ever we were confined to ask but some one thing, he would advise us to ask this. In the 11*th* of Luke, Christ himself had been praying, and was upon that occasion desired to teach them to pray, v. 1. and he gives them many particulars in that we call the Lords Prayer, and then makes a parable to provoke them to importunity, v. 5, 6, 7. and bids them, Ask, and seek, and knock, all being several degrees of more urgency, vehemency, and importunity. (so v. 9.) with Promise that such shall in the end receive, v. 10. But then what is the most eminent thing, the best he would direct you to pray for? Though he had given the particulars in the Lords Prayer, he singleth out this of the Spirit, v. 13. If ye then being evil, know

Book I. know how to give good gifts unto your Children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him? He wrapps up this direction in a Promise, and delivers it by way of promise for their greater Encouragement, and he calls in his Fathers Judgment to poore that this is the best and greatest request: If you that are evil, know how to give good things to your Children: According to your Judgment you use to give the best, and use to exercise your best Judgment therein; Then take your Heavenly Fathers Judgment which is most excellent and desireable, Even his Spirit. And therefore Mathew 7. 11. expresseth it thus; How much more shall your Father in Heaven give good things, even all good things (for such the Spirit summarily is) to them that ask him? This is the Fathers Judgment, you see, and 'tis Christs; And you may be sure it is the Spirits. You cannot honour him more than to pray most for him, that makes all your Prayers; and he takes it kindly to see himself most desired by you, that is the Author of all your Desires. You may observe also how Christ pitcheth our thirstings upon this great Sea and Ocean of Goodness, able to supply us with whatever we desire. He had taught them (Matt. 5.) to hunger and thirst after his Righteousness, and Holiness therewith, with a promise of Blessedness. But in the great day of the Solemn Feast, he maks this Proclamation, John 7. 37, 38, 39. upon this last day of the Feast, he brings forth his best Wine (Be filled with the Spirit, and not with Wine) He proclaims his best Commodity at the end of this Assembly: And you may observe he says but in general, He that thirsteth, he names not what; because let it be what good soever the Mind of Man could be supposed to stretch its desire to, That Spirit which he spake of, v. 39 was a compleat satisfaction to it, and so as they might thirst no more. And he directs them to two things: 1. To believe on himself, and come to him, who was to give the Spirit: And then 2*ly*, To come to his Spirit as given by him, whom we are also said to drink, 1 Cor. 12. 13. Our Prayers are the most precious Actings of our Souls, and it is the greatest Advantage that can be to us, to have the Aims of our Prayers set to the best and highest Marks: And upon all accompts you have seen this to be it; To pray for the Spirit. And therefore learn hereafter in your Prayers not to deal or traffique in particular, or small Wares only; but put in for the whole Stock, of the Spirit, as wise Merchants use to do, and as Christ himself (as you have heard) in his Intercession doth. And observe it in Experience, when the Holy-Ghost comes upon you, and fills your hearts as another Spirit, sensibly mingling with yours; Then if you go over all the Promises and find them yours, You can then apply this, or that, or any one. And why? Because you have the great Promise, the Spirit of Promise. You may (let me say it with Reverence) at such a time make use of the Spirit to any thing whatsoever. You may fall upon your lust's by him, and do more at such a time for the destroying of them, than in many Prayers after. You may By the Spirit then, at such a time, mortifie the deeds of the flesh. At such times improve your opportunity: For having the Spirit, you have all good things; And you may ask what you will, and have it: And yet even then ask still for more of himself.

USE IV. If the Holy-Ghost be the great Indweller in us, and Graces but the manifestations of him; Then let us shew forth the vertue of him that dwells in us, and be holy as he is holy; as 1 Cor. 3. 16, 17. Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God; And that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defileth the Temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the Temple of God is holy; which Temple ye are. You see what an hainous thing it is to defile the heart or Soul, because his Temple: But elsewhere the Apostle holds forth a stronger motive; Even that the Spirit dwells in us as the Soul doth in the Body, and the life we lead, is his, not ours; as the life of the Body is not of the Body, but of the Soul in the Body. This is the purport of that, Gal. 5. 25. If we live in the Spirit, we walk in the Spirit. The question first is (for opening of it) what is meant by bythat prhase, If ye live in the Spirit. And how it is to be distinguished from walking in the Spirit? If to live in the Spirit, were meant to be active; lively or ſtriving; in Actions of ſpiritual life; to walk in the Spirit would be all one: It would be but Idem ex eodem; for to live, in that ſenſe, is to move and walk: But the genuine Notion that interprets this, is, That he intends a compariſon Chap. 10

1. Between the Souls Indwelling in our Bodies, as a Principle of life; and the Spirit's like Indwelling as the Fountain of Spiritual Life: Which that in the Prophet alſo inſinuates, Ezek. 37. 14. I will put my Spirit into you, and ye ſhall live. 2*ly*, That as walking, or Actions of life ſpring from the Souls indwelling, ſo ſhould an anſwerable walking from this of the Spirit's like indwelling. And ſo this expreſſion, if ye live in the Spirit, is a Perſwaſion drawn from a Common Profeſſed Principle: His inference runs thus: Conſider who you have in you; The Spirit; and how? Even as a Conſtant Principle of Spiritual life. And to that end he doth dwell and abide in you, as your reaſonable Soul doth in your Bodies: If you profeſs this, then live, and act, and walk, and ſhew forth Graces worthy and ſuitable to ſo great and holy a Spirit; that hath vouchſafed and condeſcended thus to dwell in you, and become a Fountain of ſuch a life in you and to you. Every living thing acts according to that Soul that is in it, according to the degree of vigour and activity, and kind of life communicated thereby. If you then profeſs to live in the Spirit, walk in the Spirit. As if you ſhould ſay to a ſottiſh man (Cui anima inſervit tantum pro ſale) If you be a man, have a reaſonable Soul in you, Act and carry your ſelf as a man; And be not like a beaſt that periſheth.

The only Inqueſt will be, Why, if he intend this Similitude of the Soul's indwelling (as 'tis evident he doth) he ſhould expreſs it thus: If you live in the Spirit.

The Anſwer is, Tis true, that we indeed, in common Speech, rather uſe to ſay, The Soul lives in the Body, than that the Body lives in the Soul; though in reality it be true, that the Body rather lives in the Soul, than the Soul in the Body: The Soul being a Principle of Life unto the Body, and not e contra. The Apoſtle thereupon, to expreſs perfect and real dependance of life Spiritual upon this great Spirit, chooſeth rather to ſay, Live you in the Spirit, thereby importing this Spirit to be the ſame to us in reſpect of all Grace and Spiritual Life communicated to us by Union with, and dwelling in us, that the Soul is to the Body. And yet of Chriſt, Paul uſeth even that other phraſe alſo (though only when he ſpeaks of the activity of a Chriſtians life) That Chriſt lives in us, Gal. 2. ult.

Grieve not this Holy Spirit: That Expreſſion imports the higheſt motive: Superiours uſe to be offended; Familiar Friends grieved: The Spirit conſidered as a Superiour therefore, to reſiſt him is termed Rebellion, Iſa. 64. They rebelled againſt his Holy Spirit. But becauſe he vouchſafes alſo, to become a familiar Friend, (as hath been declared) therefore he is alſo ſaid to be grieved. And if you have love in you; that will move you more (when you think him you grieve is God) Iſa. 27. 13. To grieve not Man only, but God, is load enough) more then to ſay you offend him. Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, is comparatively guarded with a trinity of Articles τὸ πνεῦμα, τοῦ Θεοῦ τὸ ἅγιον, They ſhew his Greatneſs and his Goodneſs; His Greatneſs, that he is the Spirit of God: His Goodneſs. 1. The Holy Spirit in himſelf. 2. That hath ſealed you. We would not grieve a Brother, Prov. 23. 19. Much leſs a Father. Your would not grieve a Miniſter that Watcheth over Mens Souls, as a Subſtitute under the Holy Ghoſt (Heb. 13.) much leſs himſelf. If thou haſt done ſo, there is no way but to be grieved too, and as fire beſt takes out fire; ſo thy Grief that of the Spirit's.

I ſay no more but this to my ſelf and you; There is a day a coming, in which you will need him and all his Cordials: Therefore I ſpeak to you in the words of Eccleſiaſticus (which is the voice of that bodily Self-Love in us, And let it be of Spiritual ſelf-love alſo, Honour thy Phyſitian. So treat this Holy Spirit, as thou wouldſt one from whoſe preſcription thou art in a continual Courſe of Phyſick, and none have skill but he. For when thou comeſt to dye, his Cordials muſt alone ſupport, for none of any others making will do thee any Good. It is Theſe, and theſe alone, muſt Comfort, and Carry thee to Heaven.

OF THE

(THE Third Perſon of the TRINITY)

BOOK II.

That there are two States or Conditions through which God carries the Elect: The ſtate of Nature, and the ſtate of Grace. That the New Birth is the Paſſage between them; which evidenceth the Neceſſity of the New Birth, or Regeneration. The Reaſons why God hath ſo order'd it, that the Generality of the Elect, who live to Riper Years, ſhould for ſome time remain in that State of Nature, before he Renews them: The Uſes of the Doctrine.

TIT. III. 4, 5, 6, 7.

But after that the kindneſs and love of God our Saviour towards man appeared;

Not by works of Righteouſneſs, which we have done, but according to his Mercy he ſaved us, by the waſhing of Regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghoſt:

Which he ſhed on us abundantly through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour:

That being Juſtified by his Grace, we ſhould be made Heirs according to the Hope of Eternal Life.

CHAP. I.

The Words of the Text explained; from which, and other Scriptures, it is proved, That the Elect are in a State of Sin, and Wrath, before they are brought into a State of Grace.

THis Text doth afford theſe Heads to be treated on:

I. That there are two different States or Conditions, which the Elect of God, that are ſaved, paſs through; between which, Regeneration is the Paſs.

Book II.

1. The one is their firſt ſtate in which they were born, A ſtate of Bondage to Sin, and obnoxious to inſtant Damnation whilſt they remain in it. This is clear in the words, and is premiſed to celebrate the Mercy of it; for having mentioned all Men, in the very Words afore, in exhorting to ſhew meekneſs to all Men; it follows, for we our ſelves, whom God hath now ſhewn Mercy unto, and ſevered and called out from the reſt of Mankind, were alſo ſometimes, diſobedient, Serving divers Luſts and Pleaſures: Theſe words, We alſo ſometimes, both import, that as the reſt of Men remained in this woful ſtate, ſo themſelves, tho now ſaved, were once in the ſame ſtate of Bondage to ſin, ſerving divers Luſts, and thereby obnoxious to Damnation.

2. The other ſtate is of Grace and Salvation, therefore oppoſitely to that former ſtate; he ſaies, He hath Saved us, Juſtified us, and made us heirs of Life; Us, who in the former eſtate had been heirs of Hell, and Children of Wrath, as the oppoſition ſhews.

II. Hence it follows, That the new Birth is the Tranſitus, or paſſage between thoſe two ſtates; and the neceſſity thereof from thence, may be demonſtrated.

III. And Thirdly, that God to Magnifie his Grace, Mercy, Love, Kindneſs (for all theſe are named) the more, leaveth many, or moſt of thoſe he ſaveth, to remain and continue for ſome time, in the firſt Eſtate, before he doth Regenerate them. For Paul ſpeaking of the Communalty and bulk of them in diſtinction from all other men, ſaies, We our ſelves were ſometimes diſobedient and ſo remained and continued in that Condition as well as other men. But at length, after, the love of God appeared towards us (ſays he) he ſaved us by Regeneration, and it all tends to ſhew as well the neceſſity as the mercy of it.

IV. Hence then it is evident, that the eminenteſt mercy that God doth, or which may be judged to be vouchſafed us in our whole lives, or to Eternity, is the laying the Foundation in his firſt renewing, and regenerating us by his Spirit as being the Tranſitus, or the paſſage, between both, by which we become tranſlated from the one, and actually admitted into the other of Salvation: According to his mercy he ſaved us, by the waſhing of Regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghoſt, which he ſhed on us abundantly through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour. That being juſtified by his Grace, Wee ſhould be made Heirs according to the hope of eternall life.

V. Further to ſet forth the Mercy of it, there is preſented here, as great a ſolemnity at this buſineſs, as ever was, or ſhall be found in any work done for us, namely, a joynt concurrence and yet diſtinct appearance in a ſet and ſolemn conjunction of all three Perſons, Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt. A happy Conſtellation or conjunction of the Planets falling out at the inſtant of the birth of ſome great Prince (eſpecially if you ſuppoſed it one of thoſe greateſt conjunctions whereof but ſix have been ſince the Creation) how wonderful a prognoſtique would this be accounted by Aſtrologers, of great and glorious Events to follow and accompany him ſo born, and thus honoured and mark'd forth at his Birth. But lo, a more glorious Conjunction of the three glorious Perſons in the Heaven of Heavens, of the three Witneſſes in Heaven, as John terms them, ſolemnly meeting and appearing as Witneſſes at this great Baptiſm, the only true Baptiſm, the new birth of every Believer; called therefore the Laver or waſhing of Regeneration, and renewing of the Holy-Ghoſt. 1. The Father is implyed in the 4*th* v. After the love of our Saviour, he Saved us by renewing us: for God our Saviour in the 4. v. is clearly made a diſtinct Perſon from Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour, v. 6. ſo then the Father is meant. 2. the Holy Ghoſt is mentioned, for it is called, the renewing of the Holy Ghoſt, was then ſhed on us abundantly. 3. Jeſus Chriſt is nam'd in thoſe words, through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour. All this diſplays the greatneſs of the mercy of our regeneration, which Peter had only in general words expreſſed (1 Pet. 1. 3.) but Paul, you ſee, doth it more particularly here. Tho' Peter indeed doth alſo expreſs the Authors of this work. For there is firſt God, as in oppoſition to all created cauſes, Bleſſed be God who hath begotten us. In God all three Perſons are included, having a diſtinct and proper hand it it, Tho' of all the three Perſons, the Holy-Ghoſt more eminently and ſpecially; His name is taken into its very denomination. It is termed and denominated by the Apoſtle the renewing of the Holy-Ghoſt, as elſewhere the thing begotten, John 3. that which is born of the Spirit. Laſtly in Chriſt, who is κατ' ἐξοχὴν our Saviour, of all tranſactions of his for our Salvation, his Reſurrection hath the moſt eminent influence into our New Birth as the Inſtrumental Cauſe; and for that I muſt have recourſe unto Peter, and fetch it out of him, who hath begotten us again by the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt. Chap. I.

That there are two vaſtly differing Eſtates, of Sin and Damnation, of Grace and Salvation; which the New Birth is the paſſage between, and the Tranſitus from the one to the other: This I muſt premiſe, as the Apoſtle doth, in order to ſhew both the abſolute Neceſſity of Regeneration, and greatneſs of the mercy of it. Not this Scripture alone, but all the Epiſtles give eminent evidence to my Aſſertion, and under ſeveral metaphors and expreſſions (wherein each delights in its variety) ſet forth Maps and Deſcriptions of theſe two Eſtates, which argues this matter to have been, in the preachings of the Apoſtles, a point of greateſt moment. And this diſcrimination made, is not to be underſtood as the ſetting out two ſorts, or ranks, or deſtinies of men; as if the one ſort conſiſted only of Perſons that were Reprobate, the other of Elect, or as if none but Reprobate ſhould be underſtood to be in the eſtate of Nature; and the Elect to be ſuch as were always in no other eſtate but the eſtate of Grace. 'Tis true indeed that all Elect ſooner or later are in the end tranſlated into the eſtate of Grace, or they could not be ſaved. And on the contrary, thoſe whom God paſſeth by, are left to continue and perſiſt in the ſtate of ſin and damnation to their deaths, and they die in their ſins, as Chriſt ſpeaks. But theſe two differences in mankind, are to be lookt upon as two eſtates or conditions, whereof the one hath Salvation, the other Damnation, actually belonging to them, at the preſent; whilſt any, either Elect, or they who are paſt by, are reſpectively the ſubjects of either. And therefore we find this different condition exemplified in one and the ſame Perſons themſelves of the Elect, take them in ſeveral times of their Lives in that Eſtate we uſually Call of Nature; but afterwards through being renewed, they are in the Eſtate of Grace. Only what the Apoſtle ſpeaks in another, yet the like Caſe, that by God's ordination holds in this, That is not firſt which is ſpiritual, (or the Eſtate of Grace) 1 Cor. 15. 46. but that which is firſt is Natural, and afterwards that which is Spiritual. His reaſon (v. 49.) holding alſo in this, that we are to bear the Image of the Earthly, the firſt Adam, firſt; and then the Image of the Heavenly. This almoſt every Epiſtle to all the Saints they wrote to, doth more or leſs indigitate. Thus Rom. 16. 17, 18. But God be thanked, that ye were the ſervants of ſin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of Doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from ſin, ye became the Servants of Righteouſneſs. And 1 Cor. 6. 11. Such were ſome of you; But ye are waſhed, but ye are ſanctified, but ye are juſtified, in the Name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God. And Gal. 4. 8. There was a time, (then) when ye knew not God, And a Now: After that now ye have known God, or rather are known of God. And Eph. 2. 1, 2. And you hath he quickned, who were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, wherein in time paſt ye walked &c. and ſo he goes on to deſcribe their natural condition. And Coloſ. 1. 21. And you that were ſometimes enemies in your minds by wicked works; yet now hath he reconciled, And Ch. 2. 13. And you being dead in your ſins. and the uncircumciſion of your fleſh, hath he quickned, having forgiven you all treſpaſſes. Neither do they exemplifie this in the ſame perſons of the Gentile Converts, but in the Jewiſh alſo; who came in troops to John; to eſcape the wrath to come: And though himſelf was ſanctified from the womb (Luke 1. v. 15.) tho' conceived in the ſtate of ſin, for that which is born of the fleſh, is fleſh; yet, the multitude of the reſt of the Elect lived in diſobedience until riper years, v. 16, 17. And many of the Children of Iſrael, ſhall he turn to the Lord their God, and he ſhall go before Obſerv.

Book II.

him in the Spirit and Power of Elias, to turn them, namely through his Miniſtry. And accordingly our Peter writing to the Jews, that had lived in the Boſom of that Church, ſpeaks of them as of thoſe who before this their Generation had a former eſtate which he terms their vain Converſation, v. 18. and (v. 14.) calls that eſtate the former Luſts of their Ignorance; ſo terming their former eſtate from the want of ſaving knowledge, when their luſts ruled, which now having eſcaped, they were made partakers of a Divine Nature, 1 Pet. 1. 4. having now purified their hearts, being born again of incorruptible Seed, v. 22, 23. And more expreſsly he ſays of them (v. 2. 13.) that they he thus wrote to, (who were by outward Character the People of God) in time paſt were not a People, but are now the People of God; which had not obtained mercy, but have now obtained mercy. It was a ſtate wherein actually, and before God as a Judge, or according to the Judgment the Word pronounced of them (by which God will judge, or according to that Judgment the Word pronounced of them (by which God will judge all the World) they were not a People; though before God, as God, they were elected, and his choſen People. The other is a ſtate of Grace and mercy, but now (ſays he) have obtained mercy; and ſtill Regeneration or Converſion is ſet out as the Paſſover, as the Equinoctial Line to be paſt, that divides between both Climates, the one of Darkneſs, and the ſhadow of Death; the other a contrary Climate of Light and Glory; ſo the words juſt afore intimate, who hath called us out of Darkneſs into his marvellous Light, And as Peter ſpeaks thus of the Jews as well as Gentiles, ſo Paul alſo having ſpoken (Eph. 2. 1.) to the Gentiles (compare v. 11.) you were dead in ſins, wherein in time paſt ye walked: He turns his ſpeech from them to himſelf, and his Country men the Jews, and ſays of all the generality of the Jews then converted, Among whom alſo we all had our Converſation in times paſt, in the luſts of our fleſh, fulfilling the deſires of the fleſh, and of the mind, and were by nature the Children of wrath, even as others. By thoſe others he means the Gentiles, and he evidently ſpeaks of what they had been in their Converſation unto riper Years.

Divines uſually term the one, the ſtate of Nature, as the other; the State of Grace; and they give them theſe terms warrantably from the Scriptures.

1. For the terming a mans condition after Regeneration the ſtate of Grace, the Apoſtle doth it expreſsly, Rom. 5. 2. By Faith (ſaith he) we have acceſs into this Grace wherein we ſtand; that is, into this ſtation. It is a perpetual and ſtanding Condition of favour; when once we have admiſſion or acceſs into it, which by Faith there, and by Regeneration (here in this Text, of Titus) we are ſaid to have; he ſpeaks as we do, or rather we as He, calling it a ſtate of Grace. And ſo oppoſitely the other a ſtate of Nature, which you have as fully and as expreſsly mention'd, Eph, 2. For when he would ſum up what was that eſtate of both Jews and Gentiles fore-ſpoken of, He as in a general concluſion ſpeaks thus, We were by nature Children of wrath as well as others; his meaning is not only that both were alike in ſuch an eſtate when born, as reſtraining that Phraſe by nature, meerly unto what they had been by Birth, and ſo only to their birth-ſin (tho' that muſt be intended, as the ſource or ſpring) but he ſpeaks too of that race and whole time of their converſation, and courſe run, wherein they fulfill'd the luſts they had by nature (as is evident) until quickened and ſaved. He termeth that whole Stage they ran, and that ſcene of life, A condition of Nature, as acting all that while according to the Principles and Swinge of Nature; and having nought but Nature in them, afore Grace came and wrought in them. And therefore as Eraſmus hath well obſerved, it is oppoſed to that which follows (v. 5.) By Grace ye are ſaved, ſhewing in the former what naturally, without Grace, and until Grace; their condition was, for ſin and wrath. And this interpretation, that ſtile of the Apoſtle given to every man in that eſtate, confirms; terming him (1 Cor. 2. 14.) a natural man, in diſtinction from a Spiritual, till made a Spiritual man by Regeneration. That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit, During all which time they remain (till New-born) children of wrath; that is, whoſe portion is wrath, and they expos'd to it, during ſuch their condition. And ſimularly to this ſenſe that this phraſe by nature, ſhould involve involve the whole time from the birth, as well as the sinfulness of our birth itself, do other Scriptures speak, when they would describe and set forth that natural condition, Psal, 58. 7. They are gone astray from the Womb. And it is the natural condition afore and without Grace, the Psalmist there speaks of: For he not only says they were corrupt in or by the womb, but all along from the womb, thereby expressing their whole State. The like you have Gen. 6. from their youth. Chap. 2.

Now when we say mens condition afore Regeneration is all that while a state of sin and wrath, of as that Grace is the contrary; I desire all men to consider what that imports. Guilt of sin is one thing, (the Best are guilty) but a state of sin, is a further thing: Corruption of Nature to be in a man, is one thing; the state of Nature is another: To be worthy of death, is one thing, so every man in sinning is; but to be in a state of death, is another; it is to be sentenced and adjudged to die, or as Christ speaks, condemned already, John 3.18. He that believeth on him, is not condemned; but he that believeth not, is condemned already; because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God: which is all one to say, He that hath not such a faith as renews the heart (for of regeneration Christ had discoursed v. 3, 4, 5. of the chapter) is in a state of condemnation, so that he needs no other sentence. There wants nothing but Execution; for which how soon a Writ will come out, he knows not. As in the Canon Law, for some transgressions a man stood excommunicated ipso facto upon the committing, as Murther &c. It depended not upon a new Sentence: Here his state makes him instantly and immediately obnoxious to death; Every sin he sins, not only deserves death, but it is unto death; not only the thing is worthy of it, but by reason of his state, it redounds to the Person; and binds him over to death, which is the true import of that phrase, A child of wrath by nature: As a man that stands sentenced, and adjudged, condemned to die, is by a Jew termed a child of death: 2 Sam. 12. 5. This man is a child of death. For David as a King did at that time pronounce it of him, as we translate it, that he should certainly die. And Christ, on the contrary, is termed a Son of love, Col. 1 13. we translate it, his dear Son, but it is υἱὸς ἀγάπης, noting forth a perpetuated state of grace and favour born to him, which Christ calleth abiding in his Fathers love, John 15 2. That is he remains in a perpetual state of Grace and Favour; and in the like sense these are termed Children of wrath, as abiding in it.

CHAP. II.

That it is by the New Birth that an Elect Soul is translated from a state of Sin and Wrath, into a state of Grace. That it ought therefore to be our earnest Enquiry, Whether we are regenerated or no. That tho' we are by Nature the Children of Wrath, yet our Case is not desperate, because this state is alterable.

I shall now evidence the Assertion, That Regeneration is the only alteration of this estate of death, and so make way for application.

A state is a permanent fixed condition, whether of good or evil, continued without cessation or interruption, until the Legal Terms of that Condition be altered: This might be in many instances exemplified: I will only take such as the Book II. the Apoſtle, diſcourſing of theſe two ſtates (Rom. 6. 7.) hath illuſtrated them to us, by: Which do withal directly concern the doctrine in hand. The Romans they had Servants which were Slaves to them, and ſome by birth, over whom they had the power of life and death. The condition of ſuch was a permanent condition, and ſo is that of Apprentice-Servants among us, till the terms of that condition are altered. If they ran away, yet their condition altered not, they might take them wherever they found them: The terms of that alteration were either Manumiſſion, or Expiration by death. Now Paul profeſſeth by this inſtance of this outward condition among men, to ſet out thoſe other we are now upon, v. 19. I ſpeak after the manner of men, ſaith He; that is, I uſe this alluſion to expreſs the difference of thoſe two ſtates, you once were, and now are in, v. 17, 18. You were the Servants of ſin, but now made free from ſin, ye become the Servants of Righteouſneſs. Now then to ſee how upon Regeneration the terms of this ſtate and condition are altered; The Apoſtle tells us, that their hearts having been new moulded, caſt into that mould of doctrine of the Goſpel, (τύπον διδαχῆς εἰς ὃν παρεδόθητε) into which they were delivered (ſo v. 17.) and they being ingrafted into Chriſt, and the likeneſs of his death and Reſurrection (v. 3, 4, 5. &c. whereby they became dead to ſin, and were made men new riſen again) therefore by the law of Nations, the terms of that condition were altered. And he that is dead, ſaith the Apoſtle, is freed from his maſter v. 6, 7. Our old man being crucified with him, that the Body of ſin might be deſtroyed, that hence forth we ſhould not ſerve ſin; For he that is dead is freed from ſin: And we being now raiſed from the dead by Chriſt's Reſurrection. Look then as if you could ſuppoſe a Roman Slave had been killed and Dead, and then raiſ'd again to a new life, the Law muſt have freed him from that former ſtate, for he was now a man of another world: So a man being freed from ſin, is alſo freed from a ſtate of death, and he is ſaid to paſs from death to life, as it is expreſſed once by Chriſt, John v. 24. He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that ſent me, hath everlaſting life, and ſhall not come into Condemnation, but is paſſed from death to life. And as it is expreſſed by John, 1 John 3. 14. which is a ſecond alluſion to the ſtate of a man adjudged to die in one Kingdom, in which is abſolute Tyranny, and no pardon to be had, but certain death; wherein whilſt he remains, he is perpetually in a ſtate of death; which every moment may befal him, and in the end certainly will: Now what alters the terms of ſuch a mans condition? Do but ſuppoſe there is another Region where Grace and Mercy only reigns, and which invites men to come over to it, with promiſes of life and pardon; when he arrives there, his ſtate is changed. Theſe are the two eſtates (Rom. 5. 21.) That as Sin hath reigned unto death, even ſo might Grace reign through Righteouſneſs unto eternal Life, by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Take a man that is a ſervant to ſin, ſin is ſaid to reign over him unto death; and whilſt he remains in it, he is a ſon of death, a ſubject of death; and that Kingdom ſhews no mercy. But Regeneration, and ſuch a Faith as regenerateth, is a Bridge or Ship to carry him over into another Dominion of Grace, where Grace reigns through Righteouſneſs unto Eternal Life; and welcomes all that that will come into its Dominions, and takes them for ever into its Protection. And if Grace means to ſave a Man, it prepares this Ark for him, even the Waſhing of Regeneration, whereof Baptiſm is the Seal, 1 Pet. 3. 20, 21. As in the days of Noah, when the Ark was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight Souls, were ſaved by Water: So the like Figure unto it, viz. Baptiſm, doth now ſave us (not the putting away the filth of the Fleſh, but the anſwer of a good Conſcience towards God:) by the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt. It is not the outward but the inward Baptiſm ſaves; and ſtill by the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Cor. 6. 11. Ye are Waſhed, ye are Sanctified, ye are Juſtified in the Name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of God: Sanctified by the Spirit, and Juſtified by the Name of Chriſt; and being thus, wafted over to the other ſide of the Shore, the Devil, Sin, and Hell, and Death, cannot reach you. You are not under the Law, the Covenant of Creation, by Vertue of which Sin and Death Reigns in the firſt Eſtate (for the ſtrength of Sin is the Law) but under Grace, that is, the Dominion of Grace, Rom. 6. 14. Where Chriſt alſo Reigns, Ch. 5. 21.

5. 21. The like you have Colos. 12, 13. Speaking of their Conversion, and giving thanks to God for it; Giving thanks (says he) unto the Father which hath made us meet to be partakers of the Inheritance of the Saints in light. Who hath delivered us from the Power of Darkness, and hath Translated us into the Kingdom of his dear Son, where we are safe for ever; and to the same purpose he speaks, Rom. 6. 9, 10, 11. Knowing that Christ being raised from the Dead, dieth no more; Death hath no more Dominion over him: For in that he died, he died unto sin once: But in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also your selves to be Dead indeed unto Sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. He would have them reckon and account themselves as for the Permanency of that new state, in that very same Condition Christ is in, but then to take heed to walk accordingly. v. 12. Let not sin therefore Reign in your Mortal Bodies, that ye should obey it in the Lusts thereof. This is the Natural supream Law in the Hearts of the Subjects of that Kingdom, and which Regeneration hath written therein. Chap. 1.

There is another Similitude whereby the Apostle sets out these two states in their fore-mentioned fixed settledness, and this alteration from the one to the other (Chap. 7.) and it is that of Marriage, which with us, you know, is a setled fixed condition for Life, till by Death the terms of that condition be altered. Now what says the Apostle? Rom. 7. 2, 3. The Woman who hath an Husband, is bound by the Law to her Husband, so long as he liveth; but if the Husband be Dead, she is loosed from the Law of her Husband. So then, if while her Husband liveth, she be Married to another Man, she shall be called an Adulteress: But if her Husband be Dead, she is free from that Law; so that she is no Adulteress, though she be Married to another Man. By the Covenant of the first Creation (under which a Man for ever stands till Married to Christ) the Heart of Man was Married to the Law, and so subjected to the power of it, as to it's natural Husband; as the Wife by the Law of Creation is said to be to the Husband (Gen. 3.) and among other things to beget Children according to his likeness on her. Man falls from God, yet still the Marriage holds, but through the disease of Nature, and Perverseness of the Wife, Children that are contrary to the Holy Law, are brought forth by her, and no other, which together with her self, are subjected to the Punishment of that Law, Thou shalt dye the Death. But now says he, if either we dye, or the Law dye, then we may marry another, and so the terms of that condition and estate of subjection alters; and thus says he, it is here, v. 4. Wherefore, my Brethren, ye also are become dead to the Law by the Body of Christ, that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the Dead, that we should bring forth Fruits unto God. So then Regeneration which consists in the Mortification of Lusts, and quickning us with Christ, and Faith that marries us to him, makes the alteration, and the Resurrection of Christ follows us still.

Let me, ere I go off from this point, apply it a little. We are all here in the presence of God, and it is certain that we all stand under one of these Estates before God this Day. We are all Subjects belonging to one of these Dominions of Death or Life: And it is as certain that we all once were in that condition of Nature, and so of Wrath, as sure as we are Men. And it is also sure, that nothing doth or can make the alteration out of the one, into the other, but true Regeneration; which alone by Gods Ordination alters the Condition of Sin and Death, as it is a permanent Estate. For to add this reason to the former, As the first Birth alone was the Foundation of that first Estate, so this second Birth alone is the entrance and access into this other Estate of Grace.

And now then whether Regeneration be savingly wrought in us or no, is a Question the best Man may ask his own Soul; for God will not be mocked, or be put off with any thing outward or inward, that is below it. As Rom. 3. 23. For we all have sinned, and come short of the Glory of God. And it is as certain, that if we dye without obtaining of it, we are undone, and lost for ever, and go to Hell, as sure as we are now alive.

Now.

Book II. Now then firſt, for Examination of our Eſtates: Conſider that this being ſuch a permanent condition, both that no change, but into true Holineſs, makes the alteration; and withal corrupt Nature will bear many Elevations and Refinements which are not the Divine Nature; it concerns us to make a very ſtrict enquiry: It is certain God tries in ſeveral Degrees how far Corrupt Nature will be refined, and yet fall ſhort of the Glory of God. You know what Elevation Socrates was of, among the Heathens, and Paul among the Jews, by the addition of the Light of the Law, Phil. 3. and how ſtrict the young Man in the Goſpel was, in Phariſaical Obſervances: And how far advanced above theſe, thoſe are among Chriſtians, who are enlightned, and taſte of the powers of the World to come, and yet fall ſhort, Heb. 6. 4, 5, 6. Now ſuppoſe any one Man ſhould be by God gradually Refined, and run through all ſuch alterations, as corrupt Nature remaining ſtill, is capabable of. Suppoſe a profane Epicure were turned firſt a Stoick or a Socrates; then with all his Heroick Vertues turned a Jew, and embraced that Religion, yet Chriſt hath ſaid it of the one and the other, Except your Righteouſneſs, exceed the Righteouſneſs of the Phariſes, ye cannot go to Heaven, yea, de facto, many devout Heathens did turn to the Jewiſh Profeſſion (in which was Salvation then, John 4. 22. as in the Chriſtian Faith now) and yet of them Chriſt pronounceth (Mat. 23. 15.) that they are twofold more the Children of Hell than before. If in like manner the moſt Devout and Righteous Turk, ſhould now turn Chriſtian, meerly in outward profeſſion, and embrace all the Articles of that Profeſſion, his condition would be but Parallel to the former: Well, but then let this Man be elevated further, let him receive the Word with Joy, as the ſtony Ground; yea, let him caſt off all outward Evils, as the Thorny Ground did the the tops of all its Thornes that grew above Ground, only the roots remaining not pluckt up; let him eſcape τὰ μιάσματα the groſs Defilements of the World, (2 Pet. 2. 20.) through the Knowledge of Chriſt: Let him eſcape the Corruptions that are in the World through Luſt; and in a word let him further, (as in Heb. 6. 4, 5.) be inlightned, and taſte of the Heavenly Gift, and be made partaker of the Holy Ghoſt, and taſte the good Word of God, and the powers of the VVorld to come; yet if he is not partaker of the Divine Nature (ſpoken of, 2 Pet. 1. 4.) whereby he mortifies the inward Luſts themſelves: If he have not the Divine Image ſtampt on him, and made a Nature in him, and Child-like diſpoſitions of Love to God wrought, 'tis certain the terms of that Condition he was born in are not altered: Like baſer Metals, Corrupt Nature will ſuffer many Sublimations, and yet be baſe Metal ſtill; and until it comes to be turned into the true Elixir, that changeth it into Gold, the ſtate of Man is not changed. Men may run away from their maſter-ſins, (as Servants from their Maſters) when their Luſts are not Crucified, their Indentures not cancelled; and ſo long the termes of their Eſtate is not altered, but ſin fetcheth them again. Men in Priſon, may be taken out of the Dungeon, and put into more open rooms, and there have their Bolts knockt off; and from thence be brought to the Grate to look out abroad, and ſee the Happineſs of them at Liberty, and have Communion with them; and ſo not be far from the Kingdom of God (as Chriſt ſaid to the Scribe, Mark 12. 34.) Yea, in ſome Priſons, as in the Tower, he may have liberty, to walk abroad in the Walks, and open Air, and yet ſtill be a Priſoner. Yea, ſuppoſe he makes an eſcape, yet ſtill the terms of his Eſtate, as Priſoner, is not altered; till he have that to ſhew for it, which gives him a Diſcharge by him that is the ſupreame Judge or Creditor; and ſo tis here in this Caſe. Again, take Ice, and melt it, when it is Water heat it, from thence Boyl it, through Fire, or put hot Irons into it; yet ſtill 'tis Water, and retains its form in Predominancy, and will return to its coldneſs again. So will Corrupt Nature, if the Divine Nature be not begotten in it. But if thou findeſt the leaſt ſpark of that Divine Nature ſtruck out of thy Heart, it will in the end enkindle the whole Man, and convert all to its own Nature, and Chriſt will never Quench, but bring it forth to Victory.

When,

ſtate of Sin and Death, is a fixed ſetled continued Eſtate, without interruption untill the change ſpecified be wrought: And go home, and think how formidable a thing it is to be found therein, or continue in it but one night longer. For thou fool (ſays Chriſt, Luke 12. 20.) this night may thy Soul be required of thee. And that it is ſuch a permanent Eſtate of Sin and Wrath, is that which, when a man's eyes are opened, ſtrikes the terrour into him, And thus the Apoſtles in their Writings repreſent mens conditions to them. They ſpeak not to them only of the guilt of ſuch and ſuch ſins, but of a State of ſin and death; which language the primitive Chriſtians were moſt ſenſible of, as that which ſtill rouſed and awakened them to conſider their Eſtates; for the danger thereof was of common apprehenſion. See how the Apoſtle expreſſes it, 1 Cor. 15. 17. If ſo, then ye are yet in your ſins. He ſpeaks of it, as of a fixed eſtate you are in your ſins; and you are yet in them; to this hour, as being a continued eſtate, and that wherein the extremity of all evil lyes. It is as if you ſhould ſay of a man tyed to a Stake in the midſt of ten thouſand Barrels of Gun-powder, He is in the fire (as Jude alſo ſpeaks) and ready to be blown up every moment: And thus Chriſt alſo expreſſeth it; Ye ſhall die in your ſins, John 8. 21. Thus alſo Peter ſpeaks to Simon Magus, Acts 8. 21, 23. I perceive (ſays he) that thou haſt neither part nor lot in this matter; no intereſt in this Common Salvation, whereof we profeſs our ſelves partakers. I perceive that thou art in the Bond of Iniquity, and in the Gall of bitterneſs; that is, thou remaineſt fixt in it, as in a permanent condition. And to the ſame purpoſe John ſpeaks, when he ſays (1 John 5. 19.) the whole World lies in Wickedneſs, as in its proper ſtate and Element, And 1 John 3. 14. and ch. 2. 9.) his phraſe expreſſeth, a continuation or running on of it from the firſt. He that hates his brother is in darkneſs until now. And v. 11. He that hateth his brother, is in darkneſs, and walketh in darkneſs, and knoweth not whither he goeth, becauſe that darkneſs hath blinded his eyes. That Phraſe, until now, is as if he had ſaid, Let that man conſider, that he is not only in an eſtate of Death and Darkneſs at the preſent, that it is his preſent condition; but that it hath been the condition he hath continued in, without interruption, all along the whole ſpace of his life hitherto: And how dreadful muſt that be? If there were a narrow Bridge of Ice made over the vaſt ocean, and no Iſland or ſpot of dry ground all along, and a man from his birth had been ſet upon it, and had ſlid and furiouſly run upon it in the dark, and for twenty, or thirty years made a continued journey on it even till now, and were now in the midſt of it; and at length light ſhould riſe and come upon him, to ſee how far he had advanced hitherto, and how he was in the height of continual danger of falling into the Sea, either by the Bridges breaking under him, or through his own ſtepping aſide: Imagine what dread would ſtrike that man! And yet this is the caſe of many that hear me this day. Now John uttered that ſpeech to ſtrike their hearts, who had been Profeſſours of the Principles of the Chriſtian Religion in thoſe times; of which Religion, the moſt frequent and familiar Principle was the infinite difference of theſe two Eſtates of the Sons of Men; The ſenſe and apprehenſion of which, (he knew) they who were now apoſtatized, and hated thoſe Godly Perſons who continued to profeſs it, carried in their Boſoms and Conſciences along with them. Inſomuch as they had this abiding conviction, That if they were found to be in an unregenerate condition; they were, not withſtanding their profeſſion, in the moſt deſperate and deplorable eſtate, and darkneſs until now. And however they were apt preſumptuouſly to bear themſelves up with this, that they once were enlightned, and had a Saving work upon them, when firſt they entred into this Profeſſion, and therefore muſt have ſo ſtill; he plainly tells them they had remained in this darkneſs until now; for they never had a true work of regeneration to make an alteration of their condition, and ſo the diſmal Account of that Eſtate had run on to this very day. And a great Scripture this is with me, for its holding forth, That whoever is found in an unregenerate ſtate at any time, hath ever been in it; and ſo conſequently there is no inter-

Book II. ciſion of Grace, nor falling from it. Of ſuch as fall away, the Apoſtle profeſſeth that they never had true Grace; but though enlightned, yet falling away, do ſhew, that they have been, during all their time, unregenerate. To this alſo the 19*th* verſe accords. They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: But they went out, that they might be made manifeſt, that they were not all of us. As it is a true ſaying, If once in a ſtate of grace, then ever ſo, for the time to come; ſo it is as true, That this man who is in the ſtate of nature and wrath, hath ever been in it for times paſt, even until now. So as ſuch a man (and let every man conſider it) Though he may have many changes in the time of his pilgrimage, and may take up himſelf, and commit fewer and ſmaller ſins in his middle age, than in his youth; or in his middle age, than in his old age (for it is not neceſſary that to continue in that eſtate he ſhould every day wax worſe and worſe) yet if he be not truly regenerate, he is ſtill in one and the ſame hold, and ſo all the ſins that he hath, or doth commit, or ſhall continue to commit every moment, they all ſhall center in him, as being ſtill in ſuch an eſtate wherein an obligation ſtands in force againſt him for every ſin he hath at any time put his hand unto. The power of Corruption puts him on to ſin, and then the guilt of ſin binds him over to death. Every motion of ſin from his Cradle, belongs to that Eſtate. He is in the Bond of Iniquity, go where he will, whether he ſleeps, or wakes, and all his ſins are as freſh to God, as if they had been this moment committed. Time wears not out the guilt of any, but rather helps to make up the treaſure of wrath greater, (as in Debts, Time adds an increaſe) and all that time alſo the wrath of God abides upon him, and is ready to fall upon his head every moment; and God is angry with him all that time. He is angry with the Wicked every day, as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, Pſal. 7. 11. And this brings Eternity upon a man; and all put together will amaze the ſtouteſt heart that ever was; And yet who almoſt conſiders theſe things?

USE III. And this may alſo diſcover ſome uſual deceits even of the wiſeſt men. They flatter themſelves, that all are Sinners, and they are only Sinners as well as others: But they conſider not a ſtate of ſin, which themſelves and moſt of men are in. And if they hear the ſtate of Nature mentioned, they underſtand it only of that condition they were in when conceived or born, but they think that it is done away at Baptiſm; and never imagine that it ſtill runs on, In omne volubilis ævum. They alſo ſet themſelves to repent, and turn from this or that ſin, but ſeek not a change of ſtate, a General and Univerſal Change. And ſo they think they may deal with Mercy well enough for any particular Sin they live in, acknowledging themſelves worthy of death for it, as all are for the leaſt ſin; but conſider not that they remain adjudged to death, and abide in death for every ſin, and that Damnation ſleeps not, but is coming upon them. The great Inqueſt at latter day will be, What ſtate thou wert found in? Whether found (as Pauls Phraſe is, Phil. 3. 9.) in Chriſt, or found in thy ſins?

USE IV. The only comfort to the Sons of men that find themſelves in that ſtate is, That though it is a continuation of ſin and wrath upon man whilſt he is in it, yet it is alterable. It is not therefore ſaid to be a ſtate, becauſe it is unchangeable, as that of the Devills is, who are kept in everlaſting chains, who abode not in the Truth, but left their firſt eſtate, as Chriſt and Jude ſpeaks) And who are now in irrecoverable miſery: No there is grace and mercy in this Text. Tit. 3. 4, 5, 6. There is alſo an Holy Spirit ſpoken of, that may yet renew thee, and alter this eſtate of thine. But know aſſuredly nothing elſe will alter it.

There are two Pleas upon which carnal Men build the hopes of their Salvation, though they go on in the ſinfulneſs of their own Hearts, and dye without this work wrought in them.

I. They plead Gods infinite Grace and Mercy. Who (ſay they) ſhall limit his Mercy? He may pardon me however, if he pleaſeth.

II. They

II. They say Christ hath dyed, and perfectly wrought Salvation for them, and they cast themselves upon his Death to be saved by it.

Well but here are two things (in 1 Pet. 1. 3.) that do answer both these deceitful reasonings of carnal Hearts.

1. God is merciful, 'tis true; yea more, the Text tells you he is abundantly Merciful; but withal, it tells you, That when he shews Mercy he begets a new Nature, (who according to his abundant Mercy hath begotten us) so that if ever he means to shew thee Mercy, he will shew it herein, and hereby, even in begetting thee anew, that so he may shew the Mercye according to the Wise Counsel of his Will. Thus also in Tit. 3. 5. According to his Mercy hath he saved us (but how?) by the renewing of the Holy Ghost. And in Jer. 3. 19, 20. God himself professeth, how that else he cannot save them. Men think that for God to save them, is no more but only to put forth a prerogative Act of Pardon and shewing Mercy; as a King doth when he pardons a Traytor; but God always does more; for when he pardons any one, he makes a Friend and Favourite of him. a Son and Heir, in whom he may delight; therefore together with pardoning him, he also renews him.

2. And for Christs Death; even that also will not save thee, without this new begetting; and the Text, 1 Pet. 1. 3. will warrant this too. For consider but this, that he rose again, as well as dyed. Now as he dyed for the pardoning of your Sins, so he rose again to Regenerate and beget you again. Therefore says the Text, 1 Pet. 1. 3. Who hath begotten us again by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. If you will have the benefit of his Death, you must find the power and vertue of his Resurrection in Sanctifying you, as Paul speaks, Phil. 3. 10. And you who are dead in sins and trespasses, must be quickned with him, unto a new Life of Grace, if ever you be saved. Both these you have in Eph. 2. 4, 5, 6. God who is rich in Mercy, hath quickned us together with Christ, even when we were dead in Sins and Trespasses, and hath raised us up together, &c. And this new Birth, or Holiness, necessarily accompanies Pardon, even as Christs Resurrection followed his Death; and his Death extends to save no more, then his Resurrection puts forth a power to beget. As, if Christ had not personally risen, we had been still in our sins; so if Christ be not risen in thee, thou art still in thy sins, and wilt dye in them, Rom. 6. 12, 13, 14. Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lust thereof: Neither yield ye your Members as Instruments of unrighteousness unto Sin; but yield your selves unto God, as those that are alive from the Dead, and your Members as Instruments of Righteousness unto God. For sin shall not have Dominion over you; for ye are not under the Law, but under Grace. And Chap. 7. 4. Wherefore, my Brethren, ye also are become Dead to the Law, by the Body of Christ. that ye should be Married to another, even to him who is raised from the Dead. that we should bring forth Fruits unto God. Which last place confirms that former reason given, that we being to be Married to Christ, and he being to be risen from the dead, we must be made like him in a new Resurrection.

CHAP. III.

That all Gods Elect do not indeed before their Regeneration, remain in that ſtate of Sin and Wrath, as is evident in the Caſe of Infants.

THE Great GOD, for Holy and Glorious Ends, but more eſpecially to give demonſtration, or to make appear his Love and Kindneſs, his Mercy and Grace, hath ordered it ſo, that the Generality of the Elect that live to riper Years, ſhould for ſome time remain in a Condition of Sin and Wrath, and then he renews them, and turns them to himſelf. I have in the former Chapters prov'd the matter of Fact.

My preſent buſineſs is to conſider the Deſign of God herein, and to what Ends and Purpoſes, and for what Reaſons he hath thus appointed ſuch their condition.

I muſt premiſe ſomething by way of Limitation, and Explication, to prevent Exceptions againſt this Truth.

I. My Meaning is not, that God Regenerates none but ſuch as are grown up to riper Years, I ſhould be injurious to multitudes of his Elect, if I ſo aſſerted: But as Infants are capable of all the Eſſentials of Regeneration; ſo de facto, it is evident that he Regenerates multitudes of them whilſt ſuch: For in the Old Teſtament the promiſe being indefinitely uttered for Time or Age, as well as Perſon, I will be the God of thee and thy Seed, Gen. 17. 3. And I will Circumciſe thy Heart, and the Hearts of thy Seed, Deut. 30. 6. And Circumciſion (which was the ſign and ſeal of that Circumciſion of the Heart mentioned in the promiſe, and ſo the Seal of that Promiſe it ſelf, and of the performance) being by Gods Command applied to Infants, whereof multitudes whilſt ſuch, dyed, neceſſarily imports that there are ſome of that age, whom God had in his Eye, whom he inwardly Circumciſed; or elſe the promiſe and ſeal to them had been in vain. And if it had took place in none but thoſe that lived until they grew up to riper Years, then Circumciſion would have been deferred unto that age as that wherein Gods ordination had only been to Regenerate Mankind, namely all when come to ſuch or ſuch an Age, grown up, and not before. And Circumciſion is the the ſeal of that Righteouſneſs, the ſame Righteouſneſs which Believers grown up, have imputed to them, (as Rom. 4. 11. The Apoſtle, inſtancing in Abraham, ſaies) He received the ſign of Circumciſion, a ſeal of the Rigbteouſneſs of faith. Which words do not aſſert Circumciſion to have been a ſeal of Faith or Righteouſneſs only unto them that actually do believe, but the purpoſe of them was to ſignifie and exemplifie what Righteouſneſs it was that Circumciſion was the ſeal of, which he exemplifies in Abraham, ſaying, that it was the ſame that Abraham the Father had imputed to him, and which Believers lay hold on, which is called the Righteouſneſs of faith; becauſe revealed from faith to faith, and ſo apprehended and made known to us that are of riper yeares by Faith. And ſo hereby he gives us to underſtand that elect Infants circumciſed, the ſeed of Abraham, dying had, and might have the very ſame Righteouſneſs which we and Abraham had by Faith, and which Circumciſion did ſeal up to his Faith; even as well as they have the actual Application of that outward outward ſeal, as much as Abraham had. And indeed the half of Mankind dying whilſt Infants, it may be well ſuppoſed that as great a portion, at leaſt for number, are found amongſt the ſeed that dye, as experience ſhew'd, was found among them that lived, and ſo were inwardly circumciſed. And thoſe Promiſes, I will be the God of thee and thy Seed: And I will circumciſe the heart of thy Seed, being ſpoken (as they are apparently) indefinitely of any Age, one as well as another, who ſhall dare to limit them to Years of Underſtanding only? And if indefinitely for Age, then it may as well be ſuppoſed, that there is no Time, or Age, in the whole Series of Mans Life, but there will be found inſtances of ſome of Abraham's ſeed that were therein regenerated, ſome in one, ſome in another; even as there is not the leaſt moment in the thred of Mans Life, but ſome or other have expired therein. And again, Shall we limit it to Infants of eight days old, to exclude all Infants dying before eight days? Surely no. The real intent was otherwiſe. As Women were not excluded from the promiſe, though not Circumciſed perſonally; to whom yet the promiſe held, as well as unto Males; and the Female Sex were repreſentatively Circumciſed in the Males; ſo Infants (take it ſtill indefinitely of what Age, yea of what moments ſtanding you will, from their Conception) were repreſented in the Circumciſion of thoſe infants of eight daies old. This deferring and ſtaying of it then, and this repreſentative Circumciſion at eight days old of ſome, was ordained typically to hold forth that Repreſentation of all the elect which that גבר, that ſtrong Male Child Chriſt, the firſt born of them, was to bear of all the ſeed, he ſtanding in their ſtead. Chap. 2.

And it is to no purpoſe to ſay that Circumciſion ſealed up to them only the promiſe of Canaan: For beſide that the promiſe to Abraham, and his ſeed was one and the ſame, alſo Infants that dyed (as half of Mankind dye when Infants) enjoyed ſo little, ſome not at all, the benefit of that promiſe, that thy days may be long in the Land which the Lord thy God hath given thee, as it were ridiculous to aſſert Circumciſion was applied to them to ſeal up that promiſe only.

In the new Teſtament, we find that Grace, and all the priviledges thereof, are now more extendible, as to Nations, (Go teach all Nations, not the Jews only) ſo in like manner unto all ſorts of Perſons, more then theſe, to whom the Grace and diſpenſations of Grace in the Old Teſtament, could be ſuppoſed to extend; and therefore if to Infants then, ſo now. And 'tis Obſervable that the firſt in the Catalogue of the New Teſtament (both according to Chriſts account, Matth. 16. 16. and alſo that of Zacharies) was John, who as the firſt Fruits to Sanctifie in a more ſpecial manner the lump of Infants, was filled with the Holy Ghoſt in his Mothers Womb, Luke 1. 5.

Chriſt himſelf who ſanctified our Nature, to the end that we might be ſanctified, (John 17. 19. Heb. 2. 11.) repreſentatively ſanctified every Age of man he went through, as well as thoſe Ages, or years of Mans Life he fell ſhort of. Now therefore he was ſanctified in the Womb, to ſanctifie ſome Infants in the Womb. He was Holy when born, even becauſe ſome Infants when firſt born, might be then Sanctified. And the ſame Lord Jeſus pronounceth of Infants, That of ſuch is the Kingdom of God.

Nor can it be ſuppoſed, that he ſanctifies only ſuch infants that in his decrees he had appointed to dye when Infants; for when Chriſt ſpake that laſt fore-cited ſpeech, it was upon occaſion of ſuch Infants being brought to him, who might be ſuppoſed to have lived up to riper Years, and it being intended a direction to the Apoſtles as Miniſters, with reſpect to Infants coming or being brought to them, to be ſure they were not firſt to Judge who were to Live and who were to Dye, and to regard the latter only, therefore Chriſt ſpeaks indefinitely. And add to this, John Baptiſt who lived to riper Years, was yet when an Infant ſanctified.

And

Book II

And if we take a great lump of Chriſtians that are grown up, ſome few will be found Sanctified from their Infancy, in ſo much as they dare not ſay but they had workings of Grace on them ever ſince they can remember, and that they had gracious diſpoſitions (though proportioned to that Age) mingled with the dawnings and ſpringings of Reaſon in them. This experience ſhews, and therefore you muſt not take this Doctrine Univerſally true, that of theſe that live to Years of diſcretion, none are ſanctified when Infants.

Yet in the Text it is more Generally and Ordinarily true concerning thoſe Elect who live, that God (in whoſe hands are the Times and Seaſons of Regenerating Men, as well as of all things elſe, Acts 17.) hath appointed and ordered their Month (as the Prophet ſpeaks) or times of bringing forth to be, when grown up to Years of Diſcretion. And beſides inſtances out of the Apoſtles Epiſtles, many paſſages in the Old and New Teſtament evidence that thus it was even in thoſe that lived in Zion, and were well educated in the Church of God, and yet needed Regeneration, and were Regerated when of Years of diſcretion, or grown up.

In the Old Teſtament, David (Pſal. 51. 12.) deſires God reſtore to him the Joy of his Salvation that he might teach Sinners God's ways, (not Heathens only, but Sinners among whom he lived) and that they might be Converted unto him. v. 13. And though Men ſcoff to hear of Converts in the Church, yet Iſaiah tells us of Converts in Sion, Eſa. 1. 27.

In the New Teſtament we have the Example of Timothy, who though brought up by good Parents, and taught the Faith by his Grand-Mother, and Mother (2 Tim. 1. 5.) and who, tho' he was one who knew the Scriptures from a Child, yet for all this his Converſion was afterwards by Paul's Miniſtry. Who therefore calls Timothy his own Son, (1 Tim. 1. 2.) not only as Nouriſht up by him in the words of truth, (as 1 Tim. 4. 6.) but as truly begotten (in reſpect of Regeneration,) as ever any other was, of whoſe Converſion he was an Inſtrument; and therefore elſewhere alſo he ſtill calls him his Son, 2 Tim. 1. 2. 1 Cor. 4. 17. upon the ſame account that he calls Oneſimus his Son, Phil. 10. My Son Oneſimus; and he gives the reaſon why he ſtyles him ſo, Whom I begat (ſays he) in my Bonds. And accordingly elſewhere, he diſtinguiſheth between Spiritual Fathers and Inſtructors in the ſame, 1 Cor. 4. 15. Though you have, ſays he (that is, might be ſuppoſed to have) Ten Thouſand Inſtructors, yet not many Fathers; that is, that Converted you; none was an Inſtrument thereof but I: For in Chriſt Jeſus I have begotten you through the Goſpel. And (Acts 18.) he ſhews he was the Converter of thoſe Saints at Corinth; and as of them, ſo of Timothy, whom in the very next words he terms his Son, (which always ſpeaketh relation to a Father) and he having thus in the words afore diſtinguiſht between a Father and an Inſtructor, and having ſtyled himſelf a Father to them, for his having begotten them, that He ſhould ſtyle Timothy his Son, with the ſame breath, muſt neceſſarily be underſtood in one and the ſame ſenſe. And when he ſays (1 Cor. 4. 17.) For this cauſe I have ſent unto you Timothy, who is my Beloved Son; There was ſomething of an Argument in it to move them to receive Timothy, as ſent them by him, being their natural Brother as it were, begotten by the ſame hand they had been. So then Timothy, though a towardly Child, and well Educated, as any can be ſuppoſed to be; yet after he was come to Years of Diſcretion, it was, that he was converted. And truely the Additions of that Word, Begotten you through the Goſpel, God having appointed as then, ſo now, the Goſpel, and that, as Preach'd to be the ordinary ſtanding means (though not with excluſion of other means) for begetting Men to Chriſt, as well as building Men up) argues Gods ſecret Ordination of thoſe Elect that live to riper Years; and yet becauſe a great part of his Elect dye when young, he hath appointed Baptiſm as a

Nett

Nett for them (as he did Circumcision of old) and for the other that live, he hath reserved the Word to catch them, Rom. 10. 17. Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the Word. That is the ordinance of God to that end, as it is also Milk to nourish, 1 Pet. 2. 2. As new Born Babes desire the sincere Milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby: It is seed to begett them, 1 Pet. 2. 23. even the same Word which is Preached to them, v. 25. And therefore one of the first Encomiums David gives the Word (Psal. 19. 7.) is this, The Law of God is perfect, converting the Soul. And God appointed the Tribe of Levi in the Church of the Jews to this end, Mal. 2. 6. Though they had Circumcision then, as we have Baptism now, yet Levi was appointed to Convert and that many which is the same Speech that is spoken of John Baptists Ministry, Luke 1. 76, 77, &c. And now God hath ordained Pastours and Teachers, as for the building up, so for the joynting in of the Saints; that is, for the Conversion of them, Eph. 4. 16. Chap. 4.

CHAP. IV.

The Reasons why God suffers his Elect, grown unto riper years, to continue for some time in a state of sin. The Glory of Gods Mercy and free Grace is the more Illustrated by this Dispensation.

THis Explication and Caution premised, I come now to give the reasons why it hath pleased God so to order it, that the Generality of his Elect, who live up to riper years, should for some time remain in a state of sin, and wrath.

You meet with a strange thanksgiving, Rom. 6. 17. God be thanked that ye were the Servants of Sin: Had the Apostle ended here, you would have deemed it Blasphemy: But he thanks God, not simply for their having been the Servants of sin; yea, nor meerly for this, that now they were converted (which follows, that ye have obeyed from the heart, that form of doctrine which was delivered you; that is, become men Holy, both in heart and life) but he blesseth God complexly, with respect to both, namely for this change wrought in them, as it is set forth and illustrated by their having been the Servants of sin formerly. No man likes or commends the shadow in a Picture, if you take that alone; but it is the likeness thereof unto the life it self, which makes both the Piece and the Workman to be esteemed and praised: And yet the shadow sets off the Picture, and gives a livelinesse unto it. He in the next words shews how the Image of God had been faintly stamp'd upon their hearts, as this similitude of being cast into a mould, there used, imports. And that is the main thing he blesseth God for; yet withal he admires and extols Gods Workmanship and Art in taking the advantage of so great and dark a shadow as an estate of sinning is (which themselves had first drawn) to be a foyl to this bright image of his holiness. God had let them alone a long while to draw the dark part (for sin was their work, and not God's work) who is only the Father of Lights, and with him there is no shadow (as James speaks) and no darkness at all (as John hath it) and they had many years been Apprentices at this work (ye were the Servants of sin) and God all this while having had his work in his Eye; he suffered them to go on unto a full measure, (for the sins of Elect men have a fulness before God converts them, as well as wicked men before God destroys them) and then God fell to work. And He that brings Light out of Darkness, made that Chaos and Abyss of Darkness which they had been been so long a creating, the ground-work whereby to set out his new World and Workmanship of Grace, more than if at first he had made all perfect, and begun it, by sanctifying them in the Womb. And therefore, says the Apostle, God be blessed, that ye were the Servants of sin; which you are to take together with that which follows; But ye have obeyed from the heart, &c. For sin, or an estate of sinning, cannot in it self alone, be made the matter of God's praise; but yet it may serve the more to commend the Grace of God unto us. So says the Apostle, Rom. 3. 5. If our unrighteousness commend the Righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous? If God who is the Judge of all the World, (as *v.*6.) will suffer the creature to go on in sin, which it was justly born in, and for which he damneth millions of Souls, and is not unrighteous in taking such a vengeance (as follows v. 5.) then if also he will suffer an elect Son of his to go long on in sin, even unto a fulness; and then, instead of damning him, converts him, justifies him, and sanctifies him, (such were some of you, says the Apostle, 1 Cor. 6. 11. but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, &c.) He cannot be said to be Unrighteous.

In a word, This is such a phrase of speech, as in the like case, is usual in the Scripture; so in Luke 15. 23, 24. says the Father of the Prodigall, Let us eat and be merry, for this my Son was dead, and is alive again; was lost, and is found, &c. Merry they were, not simply for that he was dead and lost; but that having been lost and dead, he was now found and alive: The mercy of his finding and life, being heightned by this, that once he was dead and lost; and therefore it enlarged their Joy that he was now found and alive; and that (as that Parable shews) more than if he had never plaid the Prodigal. Now nothing is more the Object of thanks and praise to God, then what proceeds from Love and Mercy.

And so I come to that which at first I propounded, to shew the Ends God hath in this dispensation of his; to give an illustration and demonstration of

1. His Love or Kindness.
2. His Mercy.
3. His Grace. All distinctly mentioned in the Text.

I shall first, in a word, distinguish these three.

1. Love is the foundation of Mercy, whereby God peremptorily and unalterably pitcht upon some men, and set himself to love them in all estates and conditions whatsoever. Who shall separate us from the love of God in Christ? Now I joyn Kindness and Love together in one, for they differ but thus, that Kindness is when Love strives to express it self in the most taking way, and to set a lustre upon what it doth.

2. Mercy is a continuing to love them when they are in Misery, for Mercy properly respects Misery.

3. Grace imports the freeness of both these, his loving freely; and shewing Mercy freely, founded upon no respects in the creature moving him thereunto.

Now that which I am to speak to, is not simply that God hath put forth all these his Attributes towards his children in their Salvation in general; but particularly that he eminently doth it, in this dispensation of his, when having left them to an estate of sinning, he yet at length quickens and saves them.

Again 2. by way of general premise to this discourse about all these three, Whether God first pitch his love upon us simply considered, as creatures or creabiles in massâ purâ, in that pure mass, without the Consideration of our being sinners, I will not dispute; for in relation to this point, it comes all to one. For if he first set not his love upon men considered as fallen into sin, but purely as creatures; yet his wise counsells pitcht on this course that we should be left to this condition only of having sin in us, (as in the mixt estate of sin and grace after regeneration) but also to an estate of sin and death, to the end he might shew the more Love: That it might appear he took up so great a Love, that tho we were Sinners, it continued the same; and not only so, but stirred up mercy cy to pity us therein, and thus all our ſinfulneſs comes to magnifie his love. And although God might have communicated himſelf to us without letting us have fallen into ſin, tho' he might have communicated (I ſay) himſelf to us, as he will Heaven, immediately and directly, when the World ſhall be at an end, when Sin ſhall be remembred no more, when God ſhall be all in all, as he is to to Chriſt, and he might have in this eſtate yet made us apprehenſive of mercy, in this reſpect, That when he might have left us to ſin, and to ſuch a condition of ſinning, yet he in mercy would preſerve us from it; thus he ſhews love and mercy to the elect Angels. But becauſe the Creatures are apt to receive the ſtronger Impreſſion by ſenſe and real experience, and his end was to take our hearts in a rational and moſt taking way, ſuited to our apprehenſions. And then it is the Underſtanding of Man is taken and ſtruck with admiration, when one contrary is ſet againſt, or brought forth of another, which exceedingly ſerves to illuſtrate it: And alſo becauſe God would ſuit his way of Acting, to the experience of man (by which Chriſt himſelf learnt obedience) and in common experience, what a man really falls into, and is then delivered out of, this affects more, then what is altogether prevented: Therefore God ordained this courſe rather, ſo to commend his love and mercy to us. Chap 4.

1. His Love. The Apoſtle John doth in this argument make a great matter of this one conſideration, that we do not begin to love God, but he loved us firſt. Herein is the love of God (ſays he, 1 John 4. 19.) not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and (as in v. 19) loved us firſt And thus it may be greatned as to Angels. But Paul goes farther, and upon the conſideration of this our unregenerate eſtate, winds this Argument of God's love up to a higher pin; not only by the negative, that we loved not him firſt; but by aggravation poſitive, that we hated him, we were enemies to him, ſo in Rom. 5. God commended his love, when we were Sinners (v, 8.) yea when Enemies (v. 10.) Chriſt died for us. And to ſet out his love herein, he makes four degrees of miſery we were in, two Negatives, and two Poſitives.

He deſcribes us to be without ſtrength, (v. 6.) unable to help our ſelves; yea, dead, and utterly dead; for ſo of the Body, the ſame word is uſed; when it is dead, it is ſaid to be ſown in weakneſs, 1 Cor. 15. The word is the ſame word that here he deſcribes us to be.

A good natur'd man is moved to pity a poor weak Child or Beaſt without ſtrength, but it muſt then have life in it; but we were dead. This you have (Ezek. 16. 5, 6, 7.) ſet forth to the end to greaten God's love unto us. He compares that eſtate of ours afore to that of a dead Child, ſtill born, caſt forth on a dung-hil, all in gore blood, its menſtruous blood, and none Eye pitied thee; Then ſays God, I paſs'd by thee, and ſaid unto thee, Live. I therefore ſay a dead child, becauſe the mercy ſhewn was to bid it live, ſo putting life into it: 2. Not only ſo, but ungodly.

2. Ungodly, (v. 5.) and empty of that Goodneſs he at firſt ſaw in us, ſo as what by the Law of Creation, might more move him, was loſt and forfeited: As Salt, when the ſavour, the goodneſs is loſt, is fit for nothing but the dunghil. Yet in that caſe now he is moved to pity. But further there are two Poſitives added.

1. We are ſaid to be Sinners (v. 8.) that is, that had diſhonoured God, and tranſgreſſed his Law: But yet that might be pardoned, if it were not out of malice and in-bred enmity.

Therefore 2. he heightens it by this alſo, even when we were Enemies. A Love, by all theſe circumſtances manifeſted to be ſuch, and ſo great that much water cannot quench it (as Solomon ſpeaks) is Love to the height of admiration.

And as hereby the greatneſs of his Love, ſo the unchangeableneſs of his Love, and peremptorineſs thereof, is declared and made conſpicuous.

Is it not an unheard-of wonder, that ſo ſtrong a ſtream of infinite Love ſhould run under ground for ſo many years; and that ſo many rebellions all that while ſhould not dam it up, but that it ſhould hold on its courſe uninterrupted, and work out all that had ſo long obſtructed the current of it, and at laſt bub-

Book I. ble up at a time deſigned, and ſave, and waſh, and purifie the wretched, defiled Creature. Doth the Earth bring forth ſuch a wonder? Have Mothers love enough to hold out thus? Other things may manifeſt other properties of his love, as the giving of his Son ſhews the greatneſs of it, (and yet even that too is ſet out by our natural eſtate.) But nothing more argues the peremptorineſs and unalterable Reſolution of God's love, then its holding out againſt all the provoking oppoſitions in us, againſt all the ſins committed before he had broke his mind, and declared his love unto us, or any open way ingaged it, Jer. 3. from v. 1. to the end of the chapter. It is uſual with you (ſays God there) and according to the principles you walk by, that though your ſelves caſt a wife off, and not ſhe you; yet if ſhe becomes another man's, (as then ſhe may) you will then never own her more: Ay, but (ſays God to his betrothed Spouſe, his Church) Thou haſt voluntarily plaid the Harlot, and run after other lovers. And (v. 5) Thou haſt done as evil as thou couldſt, haſt ſinned as it were to the utmoſt, and yet I cannot part with thee, and yet return thou unto me, ſays He. He ſtill loves her and allures her unto him; and why is it? He gives the reaſon at the 14. v. For I am married unto you, &c. There was knit ſo faſt a love-knot between God and them, a ſecret pre-contract on his part, tho' unknown to them, made by himſelf, even from all eternity, that no whoredomes, no continued ſins whatever of hers, could untye. Well therefore might the Apoſtle ſay, Who ſhall ſeparate us from the love of God in Jeſus Chriſt? yea, and challenge Angels, Devils, Afflictions, and all Creatures elſe to do it, Rom. 8. 3, 4, 5, 8, 9. For ſurely if a continued courſe of ſinning could not diſſolve it, then nothing elſe can.

II. The ſecond thing which God eminently manifeſteth hereby is Mercy. And though God's mercy be abſolutely in God, or in his Nature; and he had been merciful, although we nor any Creature had ever been, or never had been miſerable, yet the manifeſtation of that his mercy hath reſpect unto miſery; whereof ſin and death being the greateſt that can befall the Creature, the freeing it therefore from an eſtate of both, muſt needs be the fulleſt manifeſtation of that his mercy, and pity towards them. Thus (Rom. 11. 32.) The Apoſtle ſays, God hath ſhut up (or concluded) all under unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all, both of Jews and Gentiles, of whom in the 30 and 31. v. he had diſcourſed how in their ſeverall viciſſitudes firſt the Gentiles, then the Jews had been ſhut up under unbelief. And lockt up, they both were under the ſureſt Lock and Key that could be, Unbelief; and whereof God alone keeps the key; who openeth, and no man ſhutts; who ſhutteth, and no man openeth. The key of the door of Faith (as Acts 13. it is call'd) is in God's hand alone, for it is the Gift of God. And Unbelief is as a Grave-ſtone roll'd over men, when already dead in ſin, to keep them in that eſtate. Now unto thoſe that have lain longeſt under it, the greater mercy is ſhown. God hath lockt up the Jews under unbelief for ſixteen hundred years, ſince Chriſt's death, as he had done the Gentiles for above two thouſand years before Chriſt. And the deſign in this diſpenſation unto either, was that he might have mercy upon both, who between them make up the All of Mankind; for theſe two divided the World. Now this which he doth unto theſe two Bulks and Bodies of Mankind, the more in the end to illuſtrate his mercy unto them, the like he doth to the particular perſons of his Elect. He ſhuts them up a long time, under unbelief, that in the end he may have the more mercy on them. Whom likewiſe doth the Apoſtles call Veſſels of mercy, Rom. 9. 23. but thoſe who once were not his people? As appears by v. 25. and 26. Veſſels of mercy they could not be, till they had firſt been fill'd up with ſin and miſery. And that ſome them are greater, and of a larger ſize then others; this comes to paſs by how much they have been fuller fill'd with ſin. Even as a bladder is more capable, and will hold more of a precious liquor, by how much at the firſt it hath been diſtended with wind. So theſe are enlarged to contain the more mercy, by how much they have like a wild Aſſes Colt, ſnuffed up the wind, (as the Prophet ſpeaks) and have walkt on in the vanity of their minds (as Paul ſays) and in a vain converſation as Peter's words are. God's Children, as well as Reprobates, have a meaſure of iniquity, iniquity, and a stint of sinning; which when they are once arrived to, and have fill'd their measure, God begins to empty them, and to fill them up again with mercy. Chap. 4.

III. The third Attribute, the glory whereof God doth hereby advance, is his Applying Grace, which is the Grace he here speaks of, and which super-adds to his love and mercy a freeness, as being extended to us upon, no Motives or Incentives in us, but ex proprio suo motu. So Rom. 3. 24. Being justified freely by his Grace. Now nothing can be supposed to illustrate the fulness thereof more then this kind of Dispensation. For there can be supposed fewest Motives for God to shew mercy to those, who have done nothing but offended and provoked him in a continued course of sinning. After we are regenerate once, tho' we continue to offend him, yet then he is ingaged to be reconciled to us. And therefore (Rom. 5. 10.) it is made a greater matter to reconcile us to himself at first when we were Enemies, then to keep us Friends being once reconciled. For to the upholding of our Friendship many Motives may fall in, from which at least God may take an occasion to back one kindness with another: But in this case there are none at all. Now both the Riches of his justifying Grace, and also of his sanctifying Grace, are illustrated by this Dispensation. And I mention both, and upon this very occasion you have both these distinctly mentioned, 1 Cor. 6. 9. where the Apostle having spoken, of their condition before they were converted, he says, Such Sinners were some of you; but now you are justified, now you are sanctifyed.

I. Gods Justifying Grace is hereby, 1. Cleared, and, 2. Exalted, and that more then any other way.

1. Hereby is cleared to us that our Justification is wholly of and by Grace. Now in the point of Justification, the great Competition is between Grace and Works. Grace looks upon Works as its only Enemy, and Compere herein; which are therefore always set in a direct opposition throughout the Epistles. This is in the Text, and this Dispensation it is the strongest Conviction that could have been, that Works are no ingredients to the Justification of us. Take for Proof of this, the course the Apostle holds in the Epistle to the Rommans to clear this to them. After in the two first Chapters he had proved that both Jew and Gentile were in the like natural corrupt estate, He says (Chap. 3. 9.) We have proved both Jewes and Gentiles that they are all under sin; not sinners only, but under sin; that is, the Dominion of it. And this natural Condition, and the Corruption of it, he describeth from the 10 v. to the 19. and then at the 20*th*, infers this as a Corolary from it, Therefore by the deeds of the Law shall no flesh be justified in his sight. And v. 23. repeats his reason, for all have sinned, and come short of the Glory of God; and therefore he concludes; (in v. 28.) that a Man is Justified by Faith without the Deeds of the Law. This is so strong an Eviction of this saving Truth, that the Papists themselves (to do Bellarmine, and their Doctrine it self, this right) do acknowledge that works done afore Regeneration, though never so outwardly righteous, are excluded from that first Justification (as they by distinction call it:) yea he confesseth that that Justification then is therefore only in and through Christ's Blood. But then after Conversion, they say there is a second Justification whereby a man is judged worthy of Eternal Glory, and such and such degrees of it; and this they attribute to good Works after Conversion dipt in Christs Blood. A Man in and by Regeneration being made inherently righteous, and set up a new, begins with a new stock, and so Trades for Eternal Life. And that is their Errour. But yet, even to evince that Works are excluded from that their second Justification, as well as from the first, the consideration of a Mans Unregenerate Estate doth most aptly serve. The total Corruption of that Estate hath spoyled and disabled all the Righteousness, that shall anew be bestowed, for ever being fit to justifie us. And this not simply, because it hath defiled the Person, and made him a Traytor to God, and so nothing can ever as from him (as in himself considered,) be accepted. Nor is it the cause why Works after Conversion cannot justifie us, because they are Imperfect, and stained as a menstruous cloth (though that is a reason ex abundanti) but if we could suppose them as undefiled as after the Resurrection they shall be; as perfect as in Heaven they shall be; and if God should upon the first moment of Conversion make any one so perfectly Holy, yet they would not then serve to justifie (if I know nothing by my my self, says Paul, yet I am not thereby justified) and what is the true and utmost reason of this, Yet? Because he had known so much by himself in his former Unregenerate Estate. This you shall find to have been the Apostles scope and way of reasoning (in the 8, 9, 10, 11. verses of the second Chapter to the Ephesians) why Salvation is of Grace, and not of our selves, nor of works, neither afore nor after: For by Grace are ye saved, through Faith; and that not of your selves; it is the Gift of God: Not of Works, lest any Man should boast: For we are his workmanship Created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. That is, these very works are given by Grace, of which this your former condition enough convinceth you; for then you were nothing but Sin, dead in Sins and Trespasses, not able to think a good thought, so as God was out of his Grace to give you a new frame of Heart on purpose created, or you had never come to have had the least good Work. And if so, then you are not saved by these good Works wrought by you, through this new Workmanship in you, no more then by those afore, for they all are the meer free gift of God, and of his Grace; and that Righteousness that comes of Grace, and holds of that Tenure, can never come to justifie. For the works that must justifie, must some way challange that Justification by debt or a due, not merited indeed (for so even Adams could not) yet by a natural due through that first Covenant of Nature, Rom. 4. 12.

2. As the Doctrine of Justification is hereby cleared to be by Grace; so his Grace in Justification, is hereby advanced and extolled; and that in two properties thereof.

I. The Freeness of Grace.

II. The exceeding Riches thereof.

You have the one, Rom. 3. 24. The other, Eph. 2. 7, 8, &c.

1. The Freeness of Grace is hereby exalted; for if you observe it, upon what occasion is the mention of the freeness of Grace in justifying brought in, in Rom. 3. 24. but only upon his having said before, v. 22, 23. That they all had sinned, and there was no difference; that is, all were alike, in a state or condition of sinning. For those that are not Justified, are and remain in such an estate; now, says the Apostle, so do all those whom he means to Justifie, he Justifies them freely by his Grace. For then it is apparent it is Grace, out of its own meer motion doth it, and so puts a difference and, that a vast one: Who caused thee to differ from another says the Apostle? 1 Cor. 4. 7.

2. The exceeding Riches of Grace in justifying, is hereby advanced; for when a Man by sinning hath gone on to treasure up Wrath, adding every moment to the heap for so long a time, it requires a vast sum of Mercy treasured up by God to discharge, and buy out (as it were) that other. And it is certain, when after so long and so lavish an expence of sinning, as falls out in a mans Unregenerate condition, he comes first to God in the sight of all his sins; though afore he lightly took it for granted God was Merciful, &c. yet now he stands agast at it; and wonders where there should be Riches of Mercy enough to forgive so many Millions of Tallents of sinning. And it is infinite Mercy (God having such sums ready and lying ing by him) to forgive a Man all after all, upon one ſingle Act of Faith. It is infinite Mercy in God to ſuffer ſuch a poor and mean Ticket to take up upon pure truſt ſo much Riches, when as yet God hath had no experience neither of our good Behaviour. I will not now diſpute whether then at the firſt Juſtification God pardons all a Mans ſins to come, as well as paſt. For whether the one or the other be aſſerted, yet this muſt be reckoned the great Act and Time of Juſtifying, and of expending the Riches of Grace upon us, even when he firſt ſaved us by Faith, as Eph. 2. 7, 8. 9. And if then, all ſins to come, as well as paſt, are pardon'd, yet not till then; and then, after ſo long a forbearance, God at once doth it. Well might the Apoſtle triumph upon ſuch an experiment, and ſay, Who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of Gods Elect? It is God that Juſtifies: Shall ſin, that a man was born in, that lay as an old debt from the Womb? The Apoſtle cuts that off with an eaſie Anſwer, Not as the Offence, ſo is the Grace; it abounds much more, Rom. 5. 15, 16. Tho' ſins, continued in with full conſent, every one of which had made the corruption of Nature of a deep dye, have abounded; nay, throw on heaps of actual tranſgreſſions as High as Heaven, as Daniel ſpeaks, and theſe reaching alſo as low as Hell: Let Manaſſes come with his Fifty Years continued Rebellion, and Paul with his: Although theſe abound, yet Grace much more. Yea (v. 2. of that Chap.) The Apoſtle is bold to make the utmoſt ſuppoſition, that where ſin hath abounded, Grace hath abounded much more, and in the next verſe compares it to a mighty Monarch that rejoyces in the conqueſt of ſo many Enemies; Grace reigns, through Righteouſneſs. And the Glory thereof lies (as of other Potentates, as Solomon ſays) in the multitude of theſe its Subjects. Chap. 4

II. This conduceth to ſhew forth the power of ſanctifying Grace, or that renewing Grace in the Text, Eph. 1. 19. The Apoſtle attributes to this the greateſt power that ever God did or will put forth in any work unleſs in that of raiſing Chriſt from that low eſtate the Humane Nature was in, unto the higheſt eſtate of Glory. And how comes it that ſo great a Power appears? He tells us, (Eph. 2. 1.) Where he goes to proſecute it, You who were dead in Sins and Treſpaſſes, hath he quickned; Dead in the ſin of Nature, dead by Tranſgreſſions actual, whereof each gives a freſh ſtab; not only Twice dead (as Jude ſpeaks) but a Thouſand times dead. And though in nature there is but one meaſure of Death; One Man that is dead of one ſtab, is as dead as he that hath Ten Thouſand; yet if you were to raiſe a Man to life, it would require a greater power to raiſe a man to life, that hath a Thouſand ſtabs in vital parts, for every ſtab muſt be cured or he will be dead ſtill. Or rather to exemplifie it thus: To raiſe a man rotten in the Grave, is a matter of greater power than to raiſe a Man newly dead. Mary thought that Chriſt might have kept Lazarus from dying, whilſt any ſpark of Life had been in him (ſo twice it is ſaid John 11. 21, 32. If thou hadſt been here, my Brother had not dyed) But now (ſays Martha, v. 39.) he is not only dead, but ſtinketh. He hath been dead four days, v. 29. and indeed Chriſt had ſtayed away on purpoſe, to ſhew forth the Glory of God, v. 5, 6. compared with the 40*th.* In like manner thus Chriſt defers and ſuffers his own Children to be in a ſtate of Death. He defers his own not only four days, but many years. and before he raiſeth them up, lets them ſtink in their ſins. The vertue of Chriſts Death and Reſurrection is a Sovereign Remedy for any ſore, and God is a Skillful Phyſitian that intends to ſhew the vertue of it, and often drives ſo long, till as the Prophet ſays, the Wound is otherwiſe incurable and then applies and cures them.

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

Other Reasons why God suffers his Elect, who are Adult, to continue for some time in a state of Sin. That this Dispensation turns to their Benefit and Advantage in the Event. That it serves for the Conviction, and Judgment of wicked Men, and greater Confusion of Satan.

UNTO those Ends of God's suffering his Elect to remain for some-time in a state of Sin, which are the Principal and more Immediate, I may add others which are but Additionall, yet Ingredients into this his wise and gracious Dispensation. And as the ends before mentioned, related to himself: So these other regard all sorts of intelligible Natures, both Men and Angels, and all sorts of either Good or Bad.

I. They regard Good Men.

1. The Persons, themselves whom he after such a state converteth. He disposeth of a state of sinning afore Conversion for their Good, as all things else to work together for Good; namely for the encrease of their most pretious Graces afterwards. This Paul, in telling that Story of his Conversion which so much delighted him, holds forth, 1 Tim. 1. 14. The Grace of our Lord Jesus was exceeding abundant with Faith and Love which is in Christ Jesus. The sum of which is this;

1. He had shewn how much the contrary sins had abounded. I was a Blasphemer, (says he) a Persecutor, I did it in Unbelief.

2. How Infinitely Gods Grace in Pardoning him, had much more superabounded, ὑπερεπλεόνασε.

3. He had shewn how thereupon when converted, the contrary Graces and Gifts abounded in him, instancing in Faith and Love. As on Gods part, and in Gods Heart, pardoning and accepting Grace abounded; so on his part also, and in his heart, Faith and Love abounded also. the Grace of the Lord was abundant with Faith and Love; that is, with those effects of it in some proportionable Correspondency to the Grace shown him; and in these returns to God again his heart was answerably affected to the comparative measure of his former sinfulness and God's Grace. These were the Reverberations, the Reboundings and Reflections rising out of both. And it is observable, that he carries his discourse so, as to shew how, when he was converted, the Graces particularly contrary to those very sins he had most exceeded in afore, were wrought in him; and so that therein the abundance of God's Grace was to be observed. The sins which he instanced in are three. 1. Unbelief; I did it (says he) in unbelief, v. 12. oppositely, the Grace of Faith was afterwards abundant. 2. I was a Persecutor (says he) and injurious; but now Grace was abundant in Love to God and all his Saints; and his Love roſe higher then ever any ones but Chriſt's, he could have wiſhed himſelf accurſed for them, Rom. 9. 1, 3. I was (ſays he) a Blaſphemer, the fouleſt Throat that ever opened it ſelf againſt God and his Tabernacle, and the Saints that were on Earth. He had been a Wicked Saul, breathing out threatnings and ſlaughters againſt the Diſciples, Acts 9. 1. But now Chriſt counted him Faithful, and put him into the Miniſtry, and he proved the beſt Preacher that Chriſt ever had. He now Preaches the Faith he once deſtroyed, was the Bruit, and Character went forth of him, Gal. 1. 24. And how he laboured more then all the other Apoſtles, himſelf alſo reports. Chap. 5.

in

2. It proves an advantage alſo to other Saints, and that many ways.

1. It gives an occaſion of Glorifying God in the Converſion of ſome notorious ſinner, throughout all the Churches. So thoſe that never had ſeen Pauls Face (Gal. 2. 22, 23. I was unkown by Face to the Churches in Judea) and who had heard only, that he which Perſecuted them in times paſt, now Preached the Faith, Glorified God.

2. It gives them occaſion alſo of ſhewing forth the diſpoſition of Grace which of all other is moſt Noble and Natural to the new Creature, and that is a Zeal for, deſires to, Prayers and Endeavours after, the Converſion of others; which as in Nature, ſo in Grace, is the moſt natural Work. Which that they may have opportunity to exerciſe, God affords them through this diſpenſation, matter in their ſeveral Relations, and this not only to Miniſters but to all ſorts of private Chriſtians. God in his providence, marries a Wife (that after proves a Believer) to an Husband, that continues an Unbeliever long after; And what knowſt thou, (1 Cor. 7. 16.) O Wife, whither thou ſhalt ſave thy Husband? So then as God ordained it thus, to ſhew forth his own Love and Mercy the more; ſo withal he deſigned it, that we might give Demonſtration of our Love and Pity to the Souls of Men, as he hath in his Divine Providence left the moſt of Mankind in Poverty or Neceſſitous to give occaſion of that Grace of Charity, which he ſo delights in, as being the likeneſs of himſelf. To ſave Souls, was the tempting argument to Chriſt himſelf, (Iſa. 49. throughout, and Iſa. 53.) Now Chriſt having payed the Price, and ſo having perfected for ever them that were to be ſanctified, he went to Heaven on purpoſe to leave the Actual converſion of Souls unto us his Brethren. He would not do it himſelf inſtrumentally, becauſe he would not take that work out of our hands that believe. He knew they had the ſame Graecs and deſires for ſaving Souls himſelf had, and he would leave them matter for the ſpecifying of it: He withal knew, how great a joy it would be to a Father to win his Child, a Wife to convert her Husband, which often falls out, as the Apoſtle inſinuates, 1 Cor. 17. 16. What knoweſt thou? He knew that he could not uſe an higher and greater motive to indure much (as they did) from Heathen Husbands. The like he ſays, 1 Pet. 3. 1. So that as the Apoſtle ſays, he fulfilled the after Sufferings of Chriſt, that is, what he left for us after his example to bear; ſo I may ſay he hath left us this as the after work, which was properly his, and ſhould have been his, even to ſave mens Souls from Death, (James 5. 20.) but that he would have us have the Honour of it: Neither doth he employ his Angels (who are Miniſtring Spirits in all other the greateſt affairs in this World) in this Work, but reſerves it wholly for us Men. He gave the Law by them, but not the Goſpel. He knew there was no greater joy, next to joy in God himſelf, can befall a Chriſtian, than to convert a Sinner. That which ſatisfied Chriſt himſelf, and for which he thought himſelf well apay'd for all his ſufferings, was, that he ſaw the Travel of his Soul. Iſa. 53. 10. He ſhall ſee his ſeed, and the work of the Lord ſhall proſper in his Hands. He ſhall ſee the Travel of his Soul and be Satisfied. And he knew that to ſee the like in converting Souls, would in our proportion, of all things elſe,

Book II. moſt rejoyce us. 3 Ep. John v. 4. I have no greater joy than to hear that my Children walk in truth. Firſt to ſee thoſe he might call his Children; My Children (ſaith he) (as Iſaiah ſpeaks in Chriſts Perſon, Lo here am I, and the Children thou haſt given me.) And then to hear they walk in Truth.

II. This Diſpenſation regards Bad Men, and ſuch as God means to caſt away. God hath a deſign upon them alſo in this diſpenſation of his. God in this World as well makes way and prepares evidence againſt the day of Judgment, as for the Salvation of his own. This, as one great work to be done at the day of Judgment, Enoch held forth to the then ungodly world, Jude 14, 15. And Enoch alſo, the Seventh from Adam, propheſied of theſe, ſaying, Behold the Lord cometh with ten thouſand of his Saints, to execute Judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them, of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard ſpeeches which ungodly Sinners have ſpoken againſt him. As to execute Judgement, ſo to convince; and I obſerve it is ſaid, All ungodly among them, that is, that have lived among the Saints in this World, And of what in a more eſpecial manner are they to be convicted? Even of their hard ſpeeches ſpoken againſt him, that is againſt Chriſt, as appearing in the Saints. Thus Paul was convicted by that ſpeech from Heaven, Why perſecuteſt thou me? Now there is nothing of all paſſages of God's diſpenſations that falls out in this world, that hath more of conviction in it, then to ſee thoſe that lived once according to the courſe of this world, and in the ſame luſts with themſelves, to turn unto God, and become new men. Neither yet doth any thing uſually more provoke them to hard ſpeeches even againſt that conviction, than ſuch ſtrange accidents when they do fall out. Nothing hath more of conviction in it, and is therefore uſed as a moſt effectuall means of gaining men, even when the Word will not, nor the Doctrine of it. If any obey not the Word, they may without the Word be won by their converſation, 1 Pet. 3. 1. It ſetts home the Word, as an example of Judgment doth a Threatning againſt ſuch and ſuch a ſin. Hence Iſaiah ſays (Eſa. 29. 23, 24.) When Iſrael (ſpeaking of the Nation) ſhall ſee his Children the work of mine hands; anſwerably to Eph. 2. 10. (you are his Workmanſhip, created, &c.) in the midſt of him, they that erred in Spirit, ſhall come to underſtanding, and they that murmured (that were oppoſers of Religion) ſhall learn Doctrine. Such an example ſetts home many Sermons. They ſee the word verified; whilſt men ſhall ſee and hear, as Chriſt ſpeaks, ὅτι πτωχοὶ εὐαγγελίζονται, that the Poor are Evangelized, are Goſpelized, turned into a living Goſpel, the word of God taking hold of them, and they becoming an engrafted Word, as James ſpeaks. What the word ſays and ſpeaks of Converſion, is made true and good, and exemplified in them in their converſion. Chriſt ſpeaks it not of the bare preaching of it to the poor, for ſo it was to all, as well as the poor, but thereby expreſſeth the effect of it upon them, reckoning it among the miracles that accompanied the preaching of it. The blind ſee, &c. And therefore Chriſt there brings it in as a viſible object. Tell John the Baptiſt (ſays he) what you have ſeen and heard; namely theſe miracles accompanying the preaching of the Goſpel, and poor Souls converted by it, the greateſt of all the reſt. And theſe Chriſt alledgeth as a full conviction, That he was that Meſſiah to come into the world: For that was the meſſage, v. 19, 20. John ſent them about, to the end they might occularly be convinced of it. So then, my Brethren let me ſay this to you, This hath the reality and power of conviction in it, that miracles were ordained for. Now though all other miracles are ceaſed, yet God continues this ſtanding miracle. Men are apt to think with themſelves, if I had lived in thoſe times, when all thoſe miracles were wrought, I ſhould ſurely have believed. Oh adulterous Generation, do ye ſeek a ſign? No other ſign ſhall be given you, but that afore your very faces, your companions in evil, your Children, or Wives that once lived in ſin as you do, in that eſtate you continue in, are converted afore your eyes, and turn from their evil ways, profeſſing damnation to have been in that eſtate which they lived in before: And if you will not believe by this, if one were raiſed from the Dead, you would not believe, for a greater Reſurrection is here. And therefore such a real conviction shall be brought against thee at latter day (if thou also turn not) with greater evidence than the multitudes of Sermons thou hast heard. And tho' the Word of God must judge us, yet this will much more. And yet when men do thus turn to God, and see Converts live among them, they are enraged to speak evil of them, which serves to make up the full measure of that sinfulness and vengeance Jude speaks of. The Apostle Peter (1 Pet. 4. 1.) gives a definition of a Primitive Convert; 1. He is one, says he, that hath suffered in the flesh. He and his lusts have been on the Cross with Christ, and it hath had this effect, that he ceaseth from the common practice of known sins: He hath ceased from sin, and hath utterly left them, for the Salvation of his Soul, and this for ever: That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh, to the lusts of men, but to the will of God. To the lusts of men, that is the same lusts the most of men live in. This is his bent, this is his profession, and this is the work begun upon him. There was a time indeed, a time past in our lives (says Peter in the next verse, v. 3.) in which we wrought the will of the Gentiles (For whilst men live in the same lusts with others, they please them, they are as they would have them) when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable Idolatries. Well but now they had turned to God, what do the Gentiles among them think and speak of it? They think it strange, that is, it is a wonder to them, for it is as a kind of miracle they cannot tell what in reason or nature to ascribe it to. And they yet speak evil of them, and tho' they are convinced by nothing more, yet they are provok'd to speak evil of them upon no occasion more, for it brings their Consciences upon them, it publickly declares that the courses and state they still remain in are evil and wicked, and the way to destruction; and this makes them put the cause of this alteration upon ten thousand other pretences or grounds, as Hypocrisy, &c. Well, but says Peter, All this makes but work for the day of Judgment, and prepares Evidences of conviction for to help Christ to clear his Sentence of condemnation of them; for so it follows, Who shall give an account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead. So then, this is one of those Ends which God hath in his dispensation. And surely for a wicked man to see another that walk'd in the same way with him, begin to turn head on a suddain, run contrary ways so cross to flesh and blood, and which tends to reproach, and perhaps ruin in this world; this must needs amaze and awaken his Companion. Chap. 5.

II. This dispensation hath its influence also upon Angels, both good and bad, and produceth as great Effects, conjunct with God's Glory, as any other Dispensation of God's Providence whatever.

1. In the Good Angels, it proves the occasion of as Great a Joy as any we read of, that fills the hearts of those great Spirits. They are the most curious Spectators of God's works of wonder. And themselves are employed by Christ in the Greatest Transactions that belong to this World, in Wars and making Peace &c. and in what belongs to the preservation of God's Elect; and this is an inferiour work for them. But they are said in a more special manner to joy and rejoyce in what themselves have no hand at all, not the least, viz. To see and behold Sinners and lost Sheep converted unto God. Christ says expressly, There is Joy in Heaven at the Conversion of one Sinner; and as it would seem, this joy befalls them in a great part of a reward and recompence for their other so cheerful undergoing those other Employments and Services in this World which are below them: which yet, as it were by the by, God entertains them with, as the Roman Emperour did the People with their Spectacula, Sights and Shews to please and to delight them. Sure I am, we read of this to be matter of joy to them, who have God so much to rejoyce in; and not those other Employments of theirs because this of all other is so meet to, and more conjunct with, the Glory of God which they have made their Happiness. Thus also the glorious sufferings of Apostles and Martyrs are made a spectacle for Angels to feast their eyes withal, 1 Cor. 4. 9. So the preaching the Gospel, the sending down the Spirit, the Sufferings of Chriſt, the Glory that followed are rehearſed as things the Angels do pry into. 1 Pet. 1. 11, 12. And alſo that which was the end of Chriſt's death and, of ſending down the Holy Ghoſt, and of preaching the Goſpel, namely the Converſion of Souls.

2. This diſpenſation of God hath a deſign upon Bad Angels. I obſerve it, that next to mans *S*alvation, Satans confuſion is that which God on Chriſt's behalf purpoſes with moſt vehemency and edge of Spirit, to contrive how at once to ſave Men, and together confound Satan in the moſt exquiſite and artificial way. You may read and obſerve it, how God gave forth that firſt and great Promiſe of Chriſt the promiſed Seed, and of Mans Salvation by him, not firſt and directly to Adam and Eve themſelves (whoſe Salvation yet it concerned) but in his Speech unto, and in his curſing of the Devil, Gen. 3. 5. I will put Enmity between thee and the Woman, her Seed, and thy ſeed. It ſhall break thy Head, &c. It was ſpoken in their hearing indeed, but immediately directed to the Devil, and the point of it levelled point blank at his breſt. He gave it I ſay, with a Vengeance, uttered it, with the higheſt indignation, it anſwerably being matter of pleaſure and delight to him to diſappoint that Enemy. Now of all contrivements which God in his Wiſdom ſharpned with revenge hath ſought out, even next to the ſending his Son into the World (Non macies invenit tormentum) God hath not invented a more exquiſite rack and torment to that evil Spirit, then that an elect Child of Gods, having continued many Years in a ſtate and courſe of ſin, and in the Devils full poſſeſſion, ſhould be pull'd forth of his clutches, and converted unto God after ſo long a time. And that he was in his poſſeſſion, is the thing that vexeth the Devil: Had a Man been regenerated in the Womb, it had been far leſs vexation to him. It is the uſual Deſcription of Converſion in the New Teſtament, that it is the turning of a Man from the power of Satan unto God, (Acts 26. 18.) a delivering us from the power of darkneſs, (which is Satans) and tranſlating us into the Kingdom of his Son, (Col. 1. 13.) 'Tis certain that afore Converſion, the Devil Rules and Reigns as fully in one that is Elect, as any other Man, and finds no difference, Eph. 2. 2. Now conſider what a confuſion it muſt needs be to the Devil, that when for Ten, or Twenty years, he hath poſſeſs'd a Man in peace, (as in the Parable Chriſt tells us, Luke 11. 21.) and like a ſtrong Man hath fortified his Houſe round, in ſo much as he is in Peace and Security, that he is his own, and that he ſhall have him to Hell with him, (he is called his proper Goods and Chattels, in that Luke 11. 21.) that when he hath fortified his Underſtanding, the Tower of the Souls, (2 Cor. 10. 4, 5.) with ſtrong holds and high imaginations, when he hath caſt up Mounts and Bulwarks, and environed and moted the ill Ground again, and again, with corrupt Affections, that there is no acceſs to move it; inſomuch as he Glories in the poſſeſſion of a Man (as Nebuchadnezer did in his Palace, and to ſhew the Devils like Boaſt and vain account herein, Chriſt uſeth the very word in that Luke 11. 21. εἰς τὴν αὐλὴν ἑαυτοῦ, he termeth the Mans Soul, his Court, his Palace,) That when the Devil is walking up and down, and in the midſt of Glorying, Is not this the Man I have poſſeſſed ſo long? Is not this the Babel which I have built for the Glory of my Majeſty? In an inſtant a word comes from Heaven, Thy Kingdom is departed from thee, and the Holy Ghoſt ſeizeth upon all, and none of Satans Fortifications can keep the wind of the Spirit out, which blows where he liſteth as Chriſt ſays, John 3. And the Holy Ghoſt binds this ſtrong Man (as Chriſt ſpeaks) in an Hour, throws down, and in a great meaſure ſlights all the works which this Spirit had been a rearing all that Mans Life time hitherto. Oh how muſt this needs ſtill that Enemy and Avenger, when he hath had a Man ſo long as it were in a ſtring, (2 Tim. 2. 26.) taking him Captive at his Will. He knew how, and where to lay Traps and Gins for him, and take him as the Fowler doth the ſilly Birds. To have this poor forlorn Man pull'd out of his Jaws, when he had in his thoughts drunk him up (as Peter ſpeaks) and in Peace poſſeſt him: What an infinite confuſion muſt this be to him? In ſo much much as Chriſt concludes of him, that being thus caſt out, He walks in dry places, like one Baniſh'd, that is melancholy, and ſeeks Solitarineſs, an Heath, or a Wilderneſs, as being aſhamed to ſhew his Head. Chap. 6.

Thus you have ſeen all Creatures reaſonable, and of all ſorts of them, affected with the thoughts of Gods Diſpenſation to his Elect, all having an intereſt in it: That as at Chriſts birth all the City of Jeruſalem is ſaid to have been moved at it; ſo are all ſorts both in Heaven and in Hell, at the New Birth of one that hath been a loſt Sinner; which is that which putteth the notice upon it. Whereas the Regeneration of Elect Infants paſſeth ſilently. They are ſtill born, and no ſuch noiſe made of it.

CHAP. VI.

The Uſes of the foregoing Doctrine. That they who are brought into a ſtate of Grace, ſhould always bear in their minds a remembrance of their former ſtate of Sin and Miſery. That it will have an Influence to promote, and ſtrengthen their Faith.

YOU have ſeen God's Ends and Deſigns in his Diſpenſation toward the Elect; and they are great and holy Ends, and of as large an Extent in their Tendency, as in any other Diſpenſation of God to us.

I come now to the Uſes to be made hereof on our part, which muſt be ſuch as may anſwer thoſe Ends on God's part. And withal what Uſes may be made of ſuch a Time ſpent in ſinning afore Regeneration, may alſo fitly be turned upon the Spirits of thoſe that have had great fits of ſinnings in any kind, after Regeneration. They will ſerve for both, but I will ſpeak more directly, as in relation to the firſt.

You that have run out many years in great ſins, or few years in many, Look back, and now learn to make an improvement of that waſte time in your lives. Men are apt to think that there is no uſe to be made thereof, eſpecially of ſo long a time as that of Unregeneracy was, in which we all lay. Now the Apoſtle, he would never have exhorted the Epheſians (as you ſee he doth, Eph. 2. 2.) to remember what once they were, if there were not many moſt fruitful and profitable improvements of the conſideration of that Condition. It is called our vain converſation (ſo Peter calls it, 1 Pet. 15.) And the Apoſtle Paul ſaith (Rom. 6. 2.) What fruit had you in thoſe things whereof ye are now aſhamed? But my Brethren, aſſure your ſelves of this, that God would not have left many, yea moſt of his children to ſo long a time of ſinning againſt him, in which they brought forth no fruit unto him, if that after they were turned unto him there were no ways whereby they ſhould improve, and improve with intereſt and advantage, all the Experiences they had of their ſinfulneſs in that Condition. God could have ſaved you cheaper then by letting you fall into ſin at all; it was not for his profit in a proper and direct way, that thoſe whom he went to to ſave, ſhould continue in ſin, though but for one moment. He could have Book II. ſaved us, as he did the Angels, a Cheaper way. He loves his Children ſo well, that he would never have it ſaid, that they had ſo and ſo diſhonoured him, if he had not meant to have more honour (in an indirect way, in the event and iſſue, when all is ſumm'd up) by all that Condition of ſinning, in which formerly they had lain.

This general Exhortation, which is as a foundation to the reſt, is to bear all your days in remembrance your ſins, and the Condition of ſin in which you ſometimes were. In Epheſ. Chap. 2. the Apoſtle had at large diſcours'd of the State of Nature they had been in, and the Cloſe and Concluſion he makes of all is, Wherefore remember that ye were ſometimes Gentiles in the fleſh &c. There are two things which in the New Teſtament we are call'd upon in an eſpecial manner to remember; firſt, the Death of our Lord and Saviour Chriſt, which the Sacrament calleth upon us to remember, Do this in remembrance of me. And the ſecond is, Remember what once ye were, what your Eſtate and Condition was, and forget it not. There is a third, which is, that thou ſhouldſt Remember whence thou art fallen, and repent, which is coincident with this Second. Remember, it had need be urg'd, for we are apt to forget it, and yet it is a duty lyes upon us. Ezek. 16. 22. he had diſcourſed there in the former part of the chapter, what their condition was, before God took them to be his People. Thy Birth and thy Nativity is of the Land of Canaan; thy Father was an Amorite, and thy Mother an Hittite. v. 3. and ſo he goes on to mind them of their Abominations, When thou waſt (ſaith he) in thy Blood, I ſaid unto thee, Live. Now after he had took them to be his People, when they had gone a whoring from him, what is it he lays to their Charge, eſpecially at v. 22. that in all their abominations and whoredomes they had not remembred? In all thine abominations and thy whoredoms thou haſt not remembred the days of thy Youth, when thou waſt naked and bare, and waſt polluted, &c. And the not remembring of this, as it is made a great ſin, ſo it is made a ſpecial reaſon why they had fallen from God ſo much, and ſo often, after they were his People; Even becauſe they remembred not. Every place thou comeſt in, where thou haſt lived before, may put thee in mind of ſome Sin or other, Jer. 3. 2. 13. Every Member of thy Body hath ſin written on it. The Tongue is a world of evil, thy Feet have been ſwift to carry thee to vanity. The whole Body is not able to contain the ſtory of it. As of Chriſts holy active Life, it was ſaid, That all Books in the world could not contain the Hiſtory of them; So the ſame may be ſaid of thy ſins.

But in making the Uſe, or Application, I ſhall chiefly confine my ſelf unto thoſe Ends which God had, as in relation to us in this diſpenſation. I inſtanced in two eminent Graces in Pauls example, 1 Tim. 1. I ſhall now preſent them particularly.

1. The Conſideration and remembrance thereof may help and further thy Faith. 'Tis true, the guilt of many and great ſins, is in a direct way an Oppoſite and Hinderer of Faith; it ſtrikes the hand off, and diſcourageth from laying hold on Chriſt: Yet by God's diſpenſations that turn Darkneſs, into Light, this may prove a Provocative thereto, and an Inlarger of it many ways.

1. Unfeigned Faith of the operation of God, is founded upon Self-emptyneſs, and Poverty of Spirit. If I would ſeek to move and ſtir my heart to kindly Godly Sorrow, I would take into Conſideration my ſinning after Converſion, as being committed againſt ſo much Love, not only born towards me, but either brought home to my heart, or on which my Soul depends alone for its Salvation: Alſo againſt the Blood of ſo gracious a Saviour, not ſhed only, but relyed on, and to which I have dayly recourſe to have it ſprinkled on my Conſcience: Alſo againſt that Holy Spirit that dwells in me, and bears with me with an unwearied patience. But if I would work my Soul up to Self-emptyneſs, I would with the help of the Spirit conſider my Natural Condition, and that in two reſpects.

There

1. There I am ſure to find a perfect Emptyneſs of Works of Righteouſneſs, for it afforded none; no not in any imperfection. This (when the ſinfulneſs of ſuch an eſtate is fully diſcovered) the heart needs not be taught, it is ſo apparent. Theſe words (Tit. 3. 5.) Not by works of Righteouſneſs which we had done, come in not here only, but elſe where, upon this occaſion, as taken for granted by all Believers that had any inſight into that eſtate, of which the Apoſtle hath pronounced this concluſive Sentence: So then, they that are in the fleſh, cannot pleaſe God. Rom. 8. 8. Chap. 6

2. A man looking back thereon, may ſee the vileneſs of his nature to the full, for it was then that the power of ſin remained in its full ſtrength (or to uſe, Pauls Phraſe, Rom. 7. 5.) had force, its full force in his members to bring forth fruit to death, which force is now in part broken and ſlain. A man then laid the reins upon his luſts neck: A man then committed uncleaneſs with greedineſs, πλεονεξία, ſuch as his Soul could never have enough of. And it is the greedineſs, the unſatisfiedneſs, and eagerneſs of a man's Luſts in ſinning, humbles more than the outward action. A man may by the courſe he then held, ſee what a Dragon that Serpent would have proved; but now Chriſt hath troden on his head to keep him from ever growing again.

3. A Man conſulting that, may be convinced of his utter Inability to help himſelf, and of his want of Power to believe. Take any man, and he will eaſily be brought to acknowledge that he hath ſo much guilt of Sin, as needs a Mediatour to God for him; and that it is neceſſary that he go to him, if he will have benefit by him. But yet ſtill he flatters his Heart with this, that he hath power to believe, and lay hold on him, otherwiſe men would not dare to defer to believe aud repent, if they took not this for granted, and were not encouraged by ſuch an Opinion. But when a man comes to ſee his Natural Condition, he ſees himſelf without ſtrength, plunged into Miſery, and unable for ever to help himſelf, and that there is not only need that God would Graciouſly provide a Mediatour, a Sacrifice for him (as Abraham ſaid, Gen. 22. 8.) but that God muſt as well give him Faith to go unto Chriſt, as give Chriſt himſelf, and muſt find him hands to lay hold of him withal. And this alſo the Apoſtle regards as a granted Principle in Believers Hearts, from a ſight of their Natural Condition, Eph. 2. For having ſaid they had been by Nature dead in Sins, he concludes, v. 8. By Grace ye are ſaved, through Faith; and that not of your ſelves, it is the Gift of God. After converſion a Man finds himſelf quickned, through the Spirit, and the New Creature ſtirring in him; but he was afore utterly dead in Sins and Traſpaſſes. There is nothing gives a more perfect experience of this Inability, then that Eſtate; let the Soul remember but that, and he muſt needs remember he wanted all Ability to any Good.

4. This, and this alone, Teacheth a Man one Leſſon (and it is one of the higheſt in Faith's School) which but for the Experiences hereof, a Man would hardly, if ever learn; and that is, That whenever a Man puts forth an Act of Faith for Juſtification, and comes to Chriſt for it, he ſhould look upon himſelf as an Ungodly Perſon, and to be ſo in himſelf for ever. This is made the very Genius, and the Spirit of Faith. Rom. 4. 5. But to him worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his Faith is counted for Righteouſneſs, and no other. Now after a Man is once converted to God, altho he a is ſinful man in many reſpects, yet in that ſtate he is not an ungodly but really and truly a Godly Man. Doth the Apoſtle then intend this ſpeech of the firſt Act of Faith which a Man puts forth when he firſt believed only, that then indeed his acting Faith, was ſuch as wherein looking upon himſelf as an ungodly Perſon, in reſpect of all his former condition, he then came to Chriſt and God under ſuch apprehenſions of himſelf to be juſtified, notwithſtanding looking on himſelf as a Perſon utterly ungodly. Now ſuppoſe the Apoſtle had ſpoken it in reſpect of that firſt act of Faith only; a Man could

Book II. could not have had an experimental ſenſe of his being, or having been ungodly, but by means of having lived in ſuch an eſtate, wherein he had been both a ſinner, and alſo ungodly. But further, the Apoſtle here ſpeaks of the Faith of a Believer, which he continues to put forth from firſt to laſt, and his Scope is to deſcribe the whole of that Faith all along, which in point of Juſtification a Believer lives by: Which is evident, both

1. By the inſtance he is alledging for his Proof, which is the inſtance of Abraham. Abraham was not juſtified by Works (v.2.) therefore not we. For what ſaith the Scripture? Abraham Believed God, and it was counted to him for Righteouſneſs, v. 4, 5. as ſhewing and expounding, what manner of act of Faith that was, which Abraham our Father put forth. It was clearly this, he believed on him, or on God, as juſtifying the ungodly; and ſo in believing look'd upon himſelf, under the conſideration of an ungodly Perſon. Now if indeed this Act of Faith in Abraham, which the Apoſtle hath recourſe to, had been that which at his firſt Calling and Converſion he put forth, then this Speech of the Apoſtle concerning this Faith, muſt have been limited to that firſt act of Faith: But if it prove that that act of Faith the Apoſtle quotes of Abraham, was that Faith he put forth many Years after He had firſt Believed, then it muſt neceſſarily be underſtood, that Abraham after he was converted, in believing for Righteouſneſs, look'd upon himſelf as ungodly. He had no Eye to Works, no more than at the very firſt. Now it proves to be thus indeed; for it is in the 15*th* of Geneſis, that you find this firſt ſaid of Abrahams Faith, whereas Abraham had been Converted and a Believer many Years before, for in Gen. 12. 1, 2, 3. You read of Abraham's call out of his own Country, when yet he believed Heb. 11.8. By Faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place he after received, Obeyed. So then Abraham in believing for ever lookt on himſelf as ungodly.

2. The Apoſtle's ſcope all along is, to aſſert the Doctrine of Juſtification by Faith only, as well after Converſion, as in Converſion, and how that in believing a man looks not at work, or in himſelf as working; but eyes God under this Conſideration, as one that juſtifies a perſon, though ungodly; and upon thoſe terms cometh to God for Juſtification. And therefore Juſtification (ſays he) is not by Works, for they are a contradiction to the very formale ſubjectum, or that formalis ratio of a perſon to be juſtified, which true Faith hath in its eye: For it both conſiders the perſon to be juſtified as not working, yea, as ungodly. And the formal conſideration it hath of God, or under which it eyeth him is, that he is a God juſtifying the ungodly. Now if this be the nature, the tendency of Faith, as juſtifying; then ſays the Apoſtle, it is impoſſible to be Juſtifyed at all by Works, but if we are juſtifyed, it muſt be by Faith. For by this, Faith excludes Works in the very formalis ratio of the ſubject to be juſtified, who is one that worketh not; and in the formalis ratio of the Object it eyes, the Perſon juſtifying, God juſtifying the ungodly. And therefore we may be ſaid to be juſtifyed by Faith all along, after Converſion, as well as before we are; for the Juſt live by Faith, And the Righteouſneſs of God is ſtill revealed from Faith to Faith, as he had ſhewn in the beginning of his diſcourſe, Chap. 1.17. For therein is the Righteouſneſs of God revealed from faith to faith; as it is written, The juſt ſhall live by faith. Then it muſt be after Converſion, as well as before, that the Faith of a Believer doth in ſome true and real perſpective or other look upon himſelf as ungodly, and as having no works at all: And for every apprehenſion of Faith, the Believer muſt look on himſelf as ungodly. Faith and Truth are the neareſt of kin of all things elſe, therefore That which God would have me believe, muſt have the greateſt and cleareſt truth in it. Therefore this muſt remain a certain and irrefragable truth, That after converſion a man may be ſaid to be an ungodly perſon. And how can this be? Why it is no way ſalvable, but by this, that a man having once been an ungodly perſon, and in ſuch an Eſtate, he is to look upon himſelf as in himſelf, for ever as ſuch, when he comes to be juſtified, in the 2 Cor. 12. 5. You have Paul diſtinguiſhing concerning himſelf, I knew a man in Chriſt, of him I will glory, yet of my ſelf I will not glory; yet this man was himſelf, that ſame one individual Paul. So then Paul in Chriſt is differing in his own eye, from Paul in himſelf. Thus here a Believer is taught this ſtrange diſtinction, to acknowledge himſelf as in Chriſt to be a new Creature, a perſon godly, but yet to turn the other end of the proſpective, and view himſelf as in himſelf, to be an ungodly perſon, utterly ungodly. And if he will at any time preſent himſelf afore God's throne for Juſtification, he muſt plead ſub formâ Impij, as our Law ſays in another caſe, ſub formâ Pauperis: He muſt appear in his unregenerate rags or rather nakedneſs, as a perſon abominable, caſt out, and weltring in all his blood; for God as juſtifying regards nothing at all that difference which yet himſelf hath made, of Godly, and ungodly; Godly ſince regeneration, and ungodly afore: But looks upon the Man as environed with the guilt of both Eſtates; and ſo having been once godly, as one that is in that Court to be adjudged, reckoned ſo ſtill. It is not a man's new godlineſs takes away the guilt of his ungodlineſs; but it is only God's imputing a Righteouſneſs to him, that is none of his own. Now look how God, as juſtifying, looks upon things; ſo will God have Faith, as juſtifying, to view things alſo. And therefore when faith comes afore a Juſtifying God, it muſt lay aſide the thoughts of its own works, though it have never ſo many to plead in its own Court; yet it muſt fall down and acknowledge (as they at the Altar did) A Syrian ready to periſh was my father; and an ungodly perſon I was once, and am ſtill, as in the guilt thereof ready to periſh, and as in thy ſight (oh Lord) I preſent my ſelf afore thee as ſuch, and I caſt my ſelf upon thee to juſtifie me, not as now Godly and Converted, but as ungodly, for ſo I was once, and am ever ſo to be reckoned, in my ſelf conſidered. And this is clearly the Faith we firſt brought to God, when we firſt believed; this is the Faith we live by, and this is the faith we are to dye in. And ſo as Juſtification in God is one uniform Act, Actus individuus, as Divines ſpeak, ſo hereby it comes to paſs that Faith (take it as it juſtifies) is alſo an Act of one kind, uniform, Conſtant, and like its ſelf, both at firſt, at laſt, and all along, it is A believing on God that juſtifies the ungodly. Chap. 5.

Now Faith would not have a ground for ſuch an apprehenſion, unleſs a man had been ſometimes in ſuch a Condition, wherein he was utterly ungodly, and experience of that eſtate by having paſt ſome time of a man's life therein, helpeth Faith to think, yea formeth in the heart, the thought of this Condition. Take John Baptiſt ſanctifyed in the Womb, who grew up to actual faith after, yet he apprehended, though not by experience, yet from the word, as David alſo did, that in his Conception he was utterly nngodly, nothing but fleſh. But if a man hath found himſelf to live in ſuch an eſtate ſome years, and hath been Convinced of it, then experience helps Faith, and teacheth it this ſo hard Leſſon, than which there is none harder in the School of Chriſt. And this Abraham was taught by occaſion, that himſelf had lived in ſuch a Condition afore his Call, having been brought up in Idolatry in his fathers houſe, for they ſerved other Gods (ſaith the Holy Ghoſt, Joſh. 24. 2. ſpeaking conjunctively of Terah Nachor and Abraham) And therefore in God's Call of him, the words run thus (Gen. 12. 1.) Get thee from thy fathers houſe; that is, leave their ſins and ways, as (Pſal. 45.) in God's ſpeaking to the Church, that phraſe is in like manner included. Now hence it was, that Abraham ever after, when he came to believe, firſt look'd upon himſelf, as in the guilt of this Eſtate. I was an Idolater, might Abraham ſay, and would have been ſo ſtill: Therefore I believe on thee, O Lord, who juſtifieſt not Abraham as Religious, but Abraham the Idolater: I reckon not my ſelf by what through thy Gtace I am; but what, but for thy Grace, I ſhould have been. Paul ſpeaks of himſelf, I was a Blaſphemer once, and I reckon my ſelf ſo ſtill: And all the Sermons I have made, it was not I, but the Grace of God in me. Take the [I] and put nothing but Blaſphemy, Perſecution, and all Concupiſcence to it, for this [I] conſiſteth of nothing elſe: And the ſenſe of this cauſed Paul to ſay, I know nothing by my ſelf, yet I am not hereby juſtified

Book II. fied (1 Cor. 4. 4.) that is, suppose I did know nothing by my self since Conversion, yet I know so much by my self before, as it would never justifie me: But as to that point, the Faith I live by, is to believe on him that justifies the ungodly. So then the experience of such a former estate of sin, helps that part of Faith, which consists of Self-emptiness.

2. As this dispensation of God layeth a Foundation for that private part of Faith, Self-emptiness; so it is sanctified by God, as an help and promoter of Faith in its positive Acts.

1. Faith, as ye know, lies in a confidence (as the Apostle expresseth it) in an adventuring to cast my Soul on Christ for Salvation. Now if a Man hath adventured upon some uncouth doubtful way, and found success and issue therein, he is emboldned to attempt the like with more resolution, especially in some special desperate Case; he made such or such an attempt, and it succeeded. Now, when thou at first Conversion saw'st thy self, (I speak especially to such) as to the time past of thy Life, to have continued in a lost and undone condition, and foundest thy self hopeless and helpless in respect of any power or qualification in thy self, that might stand thee in any stead: Tell me, was it not a bold adventure to begin, first to believe? It is certain the first Act of Faith that any man doth put forth (and every man had a beginning) was the boldest adventure in the World. That thus thou a Soul, guilty of nothing but Ungodliness, and so much ungodliness for time past, shouldest stretch forth thy impure hand (perhaps trembling when thou didst it) to touch him that is the Holy One of God; to dare so much as to think with thy self, he may yet love me, pardon me, and be my Husband, was the boldest adventure, which thou couldest make: And yet God drew, and perswaded thy Heart to come to him with such a purpose and aim of Spirit: Which venturous act of thine, he seconded with easing, quieting, and pacifying, thy Heart; stilling, and Commanding the Waves that were coming in upon thy Soul to be quiet for the present; yea, perhaps owning thy Soul with leaving some impressions and intimations of his Love and Grace inclining towards thee. Now then, here is the improvement of this experience, I would have thee (the greatest venture being already born) be bold to reiterate the same Act of Faith continually, which thou mayst now do with more steadiness and freedom of Spirit, than when thou didst first believe. 'Tis a phrase peculiar in the Epistle to the Hebrews, (Chap. 3. 14. To hold fast the beginning of our confidence, stedfast to the end. As if he had said, Your first Onset, and Attempt, your beginning to venture upon upon Christ, was an act of Daring; do but hold fast and renew the same, which you have greater encouragement to do, if by no other, even by this, that you know what it is to begin. Consider thy Faith at first Act of believing had no experience of it's own to hearten it, as Adam and Eve had not when the promised Seed was, first preach't; but now Faith hath had some experience, if never so small, at one time or other, then believe again, and again, and hold fast thy Confidence unto the end.

2. Yea the consideration of this may help thee in the worst and highest Temptation, that can befal thee, for usually the Devils worst, or the worst he is permitted to speak of thee to thy self, is to terrifie thee with this, That thou art still an ungodly Creature, in thy natural Condition; and he well knows how terrible the fear of that is to a poor believing Soul. Well but yet such a desperate plunge is not usual with thee; if thou wouldest speak truth, thou art seldom brought so low, thus conclude, or to sit down so perswaded of thy self, though full of doubts and suspicions. Yet usually when thou hast cast up all, thou darest not say, God hath wrought nothing yet saving, on thy Heart. Well but suppose Satan hath overthrown thee in all suits and pleas, and thou art reduced to this, I am yet after all this an ungodly Person; do thou but yet strengthen thy weak Knees, and if thou canst not walk, creep to Jesus Christ, and say, what I was bold to do at first, I will do ſtill, if I be driven back to that point from whence I lanch'd forth into the vaſt Ocean of free Grace at firſt, having neither Sail nor Compaſs, I will to Sea again; and as I ventured then, I will do ſo ſtill. And though I have miſſed hitherto, yet there was a time when ungodly Abraham, ungodly Paul, &c. began firſt to believe, and to believe on God, as one that juſtifies Perſons ungodly. It is not diſproportions of greater or leſſer ungodlineſs that makes any difference. If thou wert more ungodly then thou waſt at firſt (which yet thou art not) it matters not with God. Chap. 6.

3. In the Tentation about fears of Perſeverance, or falling away, the Conſideration hereof may help thee. Thou haſt Corruptions break forth within thee, and thou feareſt they one day will undo thee, and art apt to think, will God bear with me to the end? Well, but remember how diſobedient thou once wert, committing ſin with greedineſs, which now thou canſt not do, a ſeed of God remaining in thee, which God upholds in thy Heart, as a ſpark in the Sea, that thou canſt not ſin as thou wert wont. It is certain thou art not worſe in that reſpect, then thou wert in that eſtate of ungodlineſs once. Then reaſon thus with thy ſelf, If God then loved me ſo, and loves his People ſo whilſt in that condition; as he in the end pull'd me forth of that eſtate; will not this his Love more eaſily be induced to preſerve and keep me in this Eſtate I yet ſtand in? Yes ſurely, Rom. 5. 10. For if when we were Enemies, we were reconciled to God by the Death of his Son; much more being reconciled, we ſhall be ſaved by his Life. Do thou now then but make the Compariſon between the one eſtate and the other. Thou never cameſt at him then, nor didſt any thing for him, and yet he received thee; but now thou comeſt every day to him, and he reduceth, and brings thee back again. And conſider further, that God during all the time of thy unregeneracy, had all that while thou wert running on in ſin, a time in his Eye, in which he would bring thee home unto himſelf, and relieved himſelf (as it were) with this, Well, let him now take his ſwinge, I ſhall have him ſhortly on his Knees for all this, and he ſhall come home by weeping Croſs, and ſeek unto me for Grace and Holineſs with the ſame eagerneſs he now purſues his pleaſures. So now conſider, though thy Spirit by fitts runs out into bold evils againſt him, and Corruptions break forth in thee, that yet God doth, and can much more eaſily relieve himſelf about thee now, than he did before. He ſays with himſelf, Well, there is a time a coming ſhortly, in which I ſhall take him up to my ſelf, and ſanctifie him fully, and preſent him without ſpot and wrinkle afore my ſelf, (Eph. 5. 26.) 'Tis but bearing with theſe trifling miſcarriages and breakings forth a little ſpace: I did forbear him much more afore, when he did nothing but ſin; and never ſonght to me in earneſt or ſeriouſly, nor had I one jot of ſervice from him all that while: But now tho' he thus ſins, yet I get now and then a lively broken Prayer of him, I ſee his heart is with me notwithſtanding, and he is never quiet till he comes to me again, and but half his heart and conſent is in the ſinning; and my free Grace is honoured in him, in pardoning of him; and though I honour not my ſelf, ſo much in keeping him altogether free, yet he never comes to be as bad as afore Converſion, in reſpect of the frame of his Heart in ſinning. Surely then, ſaies God, as I bore with him then, and ſaid his day of Converſion is a coming; ſo I will bear with him now as a Father doth with his Son that ſerves him: for I ſee a day of his being made perfectly holy, is a drawing near: And it is but my waiting till that change ſhall come. Do thou relieve thy ſelf with theſe thoughts too, and help thy faith with this alſo, that he that gave at firſt ſo great and fatal a blow to thy Corruptions and ſo ſenſibly deaded all thy deſires to the World, and the pleaſures of ſin, that thou foundeſt them as dead Drink to thy Stomach which had loſt its Spirit; and wrought ſo great a change in thee then: The same God will at the day of thy Death, which is the next great day when thy change shall come, give all thy sins a final blow, and an eternal Death's Wound. Thou hast found the one in part, and trust him thou shall find the other. Wait (as Job says) till this great change shall come, whereof that other was a beginning and a pledge, and of the two the greater.

4*th. Lastly*, The remembrance and consideration of such an estate may serve, and is sanctified by God, to quicken a Believer, to take the faster hold of Jesus Christ. And although the strength with which we believe, is wholly and intirely from the Spirit, and put into the Soul by him, who is said to strengthen us, in the Inner man, (Eph. 3. 16.) Yet he useth apt, and suitable, and fit motives, by and with which he conveys it; and conveys it answerably to the fitness, strength and force, that is in such motives to work upon an intelligent Nature. Now among all the considerations that are like to thrust and push on a Man's Soul to take hold on Christ with violence, and that may quicken him in his way to the City of Refuge, even when his knees would else grow feeble, that which is very powerful, is the view and prospect of an Unregenerate Condition, and the sins thereof, like an Army sent out to attach him, to course him, and to make him throw and plunge himself into the water-brook, as the hunted Hart more furiously, when standing still and lifting up his ears, he winds, and hears the cries of all his sins that trace his Blood. When a Man shall see and consider, if I be not found in Christ, then not only all the sins I have committed since I knew God, but all the bold and Bloody Transgressions of my youth, the sins which I have vomitted up, shall call me Owner and Authour of them, and I am then still the miserable Subject of them; the vast and through prospect of all this, ever and anon taken in, drives the Soul with the more eager vehemence upon Christ. Or as a Man hanging upon an high Tree or Pinacle, having underneath him a gulf of all miseries, as suppose heaps of Toads, and Serpents, or Ravenous Beasts, that lye gaping in a deep Pitt, ready to prey upon him, and devour him, if he should let go his hold, and fall down again amongst them; (of which he is sensible, having lately scrabled forth of it, and got up upon that Tree of Life and Preservation) the frightful view and prospect will cause him to make as sure hold as possibly he can, and to renew his hold again and again, and not to hold with one hand, but with both, entwining his Arms and Leggs and his whole Body about that Tree, embracing it for preservation, as well as for the pleasant fruit that grows upon it: So tis here in this case too.

CHAP.

CHAP. VII.

The Second Uſe we ſhould make of the Reveiw of that wretched ſinful ſtate out of which God removes us by the VVork of his Grace, is to have our Hearts affected with the ſenſe of God's extraordinary Love Manifeſted herein, and to excite, and heighten our Love to God, by the conſideration of this his great Love to us.

A SECOND main Improvement of the remembrance of thy former condition, is to intend and heighten thy Love to God. This is that ſecond particular which Paul inſtanceth in (1 Tim. 1.) as the redown'd, and conſequent of having been injurious in his former condition. Grace was abundant in Love, (ſays he) that is, Grace made this advantage thereof, to cauſe me to love God the more. And this is alſo the Spirit of that ſaying, Mary loved much, becauſe much was forgiven her, Luke 7. 47. Chriſt founds his reaſoning upon two things,

I. Gods uſual Diſpenſation, which is, that where he leaves one to many ſins, and long to continue in them, when he Converts him, he works in him more love to himſelf: And on the contrary, where fewer ſins have been, there is leſs love. For to aſſert the truth of this, Chriſt turns it both ways; for it follows, To whom little is forgiven, the ſame loveth little.

II. Chriſt founds his reaſon upon This, That where God ſhews more love, he works and draws forth more love to himſelf again. God choſe us to be holy afore him in love. 'Twas the end of his Choice and the Aim of his love. And as he makes it an Argument that he loved us firſt, ſo he will not bate the leaſt grain, degree, or proportion of Love, but he will have uſe for it; and thoſe whom he loves moſt, he will cauſe their Hearts to love him more in the end. Now God ſhews love in this Life, in no Diſpenſation more (I do not ſay only, or moſt by this, yet in none more) for as I ſhewed you, his end in it was to ſet forth Grace, Mercy and Love: And therefore when he hath effectually wrought upon a Soul, that had lien in ſuch an Eſtate, he makes the Heart ſenſible of more love, from himſelf, and ſo draws love forth out of the Heart again; Eſt Magnes magni magnus Amoris Amor: Love is the Load-ſtone of Love, and draws according to the meaſure of the vertue and Spirit that is in it. When did Chriſt ask Peter Loveſt thou me? John 21. 17. &c. But then, when he had denyed him, when he firſt met with him after it. And 'tis obſerved that as Peter had denyed him thrice, ſo Chriſt asks him thrice, Peter doſt thou love me? Chriſt expects a proportion of love from Peter to his own love ſhewn in pardoning of him. And as for this converting love of God, when fully conſidered, whom indeed would not ſuch a love move? Think how, during thy unregenerate condition, God lay in ambuſhment for thee, to in-viron thee about, and then overcome thy Heart with loving kindneſs. Book II. Think how during all that time thou hadſt not one good thought of God, (Pſal. 10. God was not in all thy thoughts) that yet God's heart and thoughts continually have been upon thee, thinking nothing but thoughts of Peace to thee, and not of Evil, Jer. 29. 11: Thou wert written upon his Heart, and the Palm of his hands, all that time thou didſt nothing elſe but write and ſcore up ſins againſt him. You may obſerve (for 'tis worth it) how out of this diſpoſition of Heart in God, the Holy Ghoſt cannot forbear bringing in the mention of Saul in the Hiſtory of his Life, and Actions again and again before his Converſion, as one he had his Eye upon, whilſt he was a Perſecutor, Acts 7. 58. The Witneſſes, knowing his Zeal, laid their Cloaths down at a young Man's feet called Saul, who was conſulting Stephens death (Acts 1. 8.) his hand was in the murther of the firſt Martyr. I ſaw thee then, ſaid God to him when he converted him, and if he tells us of it, he told himſelf much more. And again, You have it again repeated in v. 3. of that Chapter, As for Saul, (he ſtood in Gods eye more, and God all that while took more notice of what he did, then of all other Men) he made Havock of the Church, entring into every Houſe, and haling Men and Women, commited them to Priſon. And as he ſaid of Senacherib (2 Kings 19. 27.) I have known thy abode, thy going out and coming in, and thy rage againſt me: So he ſhews he did take notice of Saul all that while; but with a differing intention. As he relieved himſelf againſt Senacheribs rage and tumult, that he would put a Hook in his Noſe, and a Bridle in his Lips (And I will turn thee back by the way which thou cameſt, v. 29.) So God did all that while pleaſe himſelf with the thoughts of his purpoſes towards this Saul: That the time would ſhortly come, that he ſhould have him come in as faſt, and with as much holy violence to ſeek mercy from God, as ever he had gone forth againſt him: That he ſhould ſee him in the Pulpit preaching the Doctrine he now deſtroyed: That he ſhould have an hook, a Cord of of love to ſtrike into his heart and draw him back again: And that he had appointed the inſtant moment when he would throw it at him, juſt when he was going to Domaſcus. And God out of his love pleaſed himſelf as much with the thought of this aforehand, nay more, then he did at the thought of his turning back Senacherib, whom you may perceive that God makes ſport at. And as God is ſaid to laugh at the wicked ſeeing his day a coming (Pſal. 37. 13.) God pleaſeth himſelf with this thought concerning an Elect Soul, Well, let him play on; the Line, the day of his Converſion is at hand, and then I ſhall have him. Well, this time draws near, and to ſhew how much Gods thoughts were on it, as ours uſe to be on ſome great occurrence, for which a ſet time is appointed, God is ſpeaking of it a third time Acts 9. 1. And Saul yet breathing out threatnings, &c. You ſee the Holy Ghoſt puts in a Yet, as if God began now to think the time long; or was then thinking with himſelf his time is but ſhort, which I have alloted him to continue in ſin, it is almoſt out, he yet breathes out threatnings: But his threatnings now ſhall breathe out their laſt. Now the ſame Heart and Affection God had all that while towards thee, whileſt in thy natural condition, and when thou wert committing ſuch and ſuch a ſin, God ſaw thee er'e thou didſt him (as Chriſt told Nathaniel, I ſaw thee under the Figg-Tree) loving thee all that while, with the ſame love, with which he loves thee now; though then concealed, as Joſeph was to his Brethren. And as he had appointed a fulneſs of time for the coming of his Son into the World: So he had appointed a ſet time to have Mercy on thee, as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, Pſal. 102. 13. And Oh how did God long all that while until that time ſhould come, as Jer. 13. 27. When ſhall it once be? And when that day was come, you may ſee how his Heart rejoyced, in the Parable of the Prodigal, Luke 10. 20. When he was yet a great way off, his Father ſaw him. It expreſſeth his Longing, how he look'd out aforehand; his Love ſending forth forth his Eyes, as Meſſengers, to feed him with that News he ſo delighted in. And after thou beganneſt but to utter thy Heart to him, he could not hold long, but fell upon thy Neck and kiſs'd thee; ſo v. 20. He broke up that Treaſure of Mercy, he had from Everlaſting laid by for thee, under Lock and Key of his everlaſting Purpoſes, and which he had reſerved and kept for thee, as thy portion; Though Millions in all Ages had paſt afore him, and might have been Heirs of it, yet he reſerv'd the rich Robe for Thee, and fetched it out for Thee. Luke 15. 22. And when thou beganneſt to melt towards him, for having Offended him; and to Bemoan thy ſelf (as Jer. 31. 18. the Phraſe is) more out of Love to thy ſelf, and ſenſe of thine own Miſery, than love to him; yet he fell a Weeping too, as faſt as thou, and his Bowels were ſtirred for thee; What, ſays he, Is Ephraim, my pleaſant Child, come Home to me? And is Ephraim, the wickedeſt of all the Tribes, become pleaſant to me? God ſpeaks it wondringly, as indeed admiring at his own Affections, how enlarged they were, how his Love was guſhed forth, and therefore well mayſt thou. What Heart is there that proves the Subject of theſe Glorious, yet true Occurrences, that will not, is not moved at the Remembrance, or the Rehearſal of them? They ſo took Paul's Heart, that the Love manifeſted therein would never out of his mind: I was (ſays he) a Blaſphemer, but I obtained Mercy. If we had been in Paul's Heart, to have diſcerned the mixtures of the ſtrange Affections which met when he put theſe two together, I, and Mercy, whoever would have thought theſe two ſhould meet, that were as diſtant as Hell, and Heaven? Who would not (thought Paul) have made a But of Exception at me? Who would not have entred a Caveat againſt my ever having mercy, of all men elſe, if there had been no more in the World? Ananias puts in a Demurr, (Acts. 9. 13.) when Chriſt did but ſpeak of him; Lord, I have heard by Many, how much Evil he hath done to the Saints at Jeruſalem. And it is ſaid, v. 21. That all that heard him were amazed, v. 21. But yet this Saul obtained MERCY; and ſo haſt thou. Oh let this Grace of our Lord be abundant with Love in thy Heart towards him again, as it was in Paul's. Paul could never think of theſe paſſages, but a Sea Love broke into his Heart, and overflowed it.

Chap. 7

CHAP.

Chap. VIII.

That the thoughts of God's Excellent Love in bringing us out of this woful, ſtate of ſin, into a ſtate of Grace; ſhould enkindle in us ſacred Zeal, and Fervency of Spirit, to Live in all holy Obedience to him. And what a dreadful condition they are in, who make an Ill Uſe of the Doctrine of Grace, by abuſing it to an Encouragement of Careleſneſs, Negligence, or Licentiouſneſs.

AS the Conſiderations of God's Love in changing our ſtate may thus enflame Love, ſo they may enlarge Obedience, which ſprings from Love, and may excite thee to Fruitfulneſs, and abounding in the work of the Lord, and to be wiling to do, or ſuffer any for him. It enflamed Paul's Zeal, inſomuch as none of the Apoſtles laboured ſo much as he. His Spirit was never at reſt, he thought he could never do enough. Peter denies his Maſter, its true, and he did it thrice, and you know how Chriſt came upon him for it, with an higher care of work and labour from him, Feed my Lambs. He ſays it thrice too, in the fore-mentioned John 21. So as indeed Chriſt in that place to which I have recourſe again, would have Peter make theſe three Commenſurable. 1. That as Chriſt had loved him more, in pardoning more than to the reſt; ſo 2. He expected, that he ſhould love him more; and that proportionably to that love, he ſhould give demonſtration of it in his Care over his Lambs. To move Peter the more to be willing to do and ſuffer for him the laſt of his days; Chriſt gives him a little touch, as I underſtand it, of ſome wildneſs, and youthfulneſs that had been in Peters Spirit, afore Chriſt had to do with him. v. 18. of that Chapter: Verily I ſay unto thee, When thou waſt young, thou girdeſt thy ſelf, and walkedſt whither thou wouldſt, but when thou ſhalt be old, thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thine hands, and another ſhall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldſt not. Peter had had his Vagaries, and lived as he liſted; and further, as may ſeem, had given an inſtance lately of what kind of Activities (as I may call them) his youth had delighted in, as many young men do in Bodily exerciſes and ſhewing their ſtrength and vigour that way, with too much exceſs of delight and pride in them, in the 7. and 8. verſes. He being in a Ship (v. 7, 8.) and ſpying Chriſt, girds his Fiſhers Coat about him, and makes no more ado, but Caſts himſelf into the Sea. The other Diſciples were of a more ſober Spirit, and came into the Ship by land, which he might have done as well as they, being not far off Land, But as it would ſeem, he gloried in ſuch Feats and active Pranks, and would ſhew his Maſter one, who was now riſen from the dead, and was not taken with ſuch things; and yet there was ſome love mingled with this. That which moves me to think Chriſt had a purpoſe to mind Peter of the way of his Spirit wherein he had ſo much delighted, is that he ſeems to ſpeak of the whole Courſe of his youth, wherein he had taken liberty to do what he liſted. When thou wert young, thou wenteſt whither thou wouldſt; that is, didſt live to thine own luſts. Which Peter in his Epiſtle, involving himſelf with others, acknowledgeth: He was as a looſe unruly Heifer. And indeed many such things in themselves innocent, and lawful, young men are addicted unto; yet when there is a Pride, Vanity, Vain-glory, Excess of delight with expence of time, they are in God's eye great sins. As also is the Vanity of those Scholars who adore Learning too much, and too inordinately love it, from a desire to gain Reputation and Esteem. This was Lipsius his confession in a great Fit of Sickness. I have not been (said he) Covetous nor Vitious, Sola mihi placuit dulcis pellacia Musæ; only the Harlotry of Learning took his heart. Christ you see, makes this use to Peter of his former Wandrings, to move him to be the more willing to be carryed whither God would have him, even to the Cross, as that whereby God ordained to glorifie himself in him. And seeing he had delighted himself in such Activities, as a man of Metal and Courage, God therefore would serve himself of this Spirit of Resolution in him, in a way of tryal contrary to the way of his Spirit. He was to be hung up by the heels upon a Cross (the worst of Crucifyings) to be bound to his good behaviour thereon. And Peter (says Christ) See, that thou, remembring what thou wert when young, shew thy Valour, thy Resolution, when thou comest to that Conflict; and Peter remembred it, and was moved by it, 2 Pet. 1. 14. If this Conjecture should not hold, sure I am, I find Peter himself in his Epistles urging this as a most provoking argument to quicken to future obedience: And he puts himself in among the number of those that had so walked in vanity and sin, for which the Popish Commentators would find Excuses. He speaking of the genius and Spirit of a Christian, (he says 2 Pet. 4. 23.) he is one whose heart this Principle hath taken hold of, and prevails upon him, That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but the will of God: For the time past of our lives may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles. The strength of this perswasive lyes in these two things: Chap. 8.

I. They had a long time of their lives already lived in the sins of such an Estate. They had served their lusts, and done nothing for God all that while, and there is but a remaining remnant of it left. τὸν ἐπίλοιπον ἐισάρχι; which is as a brand pluckt out of the fire. Oh bestow that wholly upon God, with grief and sorrow that so much is spent and burnt out in sinning. Do as much for God, as ever you did for the Devil: As you have yielded your members servants to Uncleanness, to iniquity, unto iniquity, adding one iniquity to another, and thinking you had never done enough for your lusts, and growing worse and worse: So now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness; and if there were any thing higher then holiness, they should reach at that too. And 2. he edgeth it with this; That the time past might suffice to have served their Lusts, if they could suppose it to be lawful for any space of time to neglect God's service, and please and indulge their lusts; yet those lusts had had sufficient time of their lives already, and indeed too great a share, and therefore it may well suffice. If a lust of thy former ignorance tempt thee, is it not an answer, a sufficient answer, You have been served already, you have your time out, and too much, and if it urgeth thee to take a little pleasure for a moment, and then to serve God again; yeild not, no not for a moment, as Paul speaks, Gal. 2. Your Lusts have had too many moments spent upon them, and your whole time was due to God, and he hath too little left. For as the Apostle reasons (Rom. 1. 12.) We owe nothing to the flesh, to live after the flesh. We have no reason to do the least kindness for it, nor to give it a Crum, tho' it were to save a lusts life: So nor to afford it one moment of our time, but to give the whole unto God. Now therefore it behoves you, to redeem the time remaining to the utmost, to live much in a little, to do all for God, from an holy grudging that Satan hath had so much. The Apostle Paul makes this of it self an Argument to more Holiness, that by how much less of a mans time is left in the flesh, he should, be the more holy, Heb. 10. 25. So much the more, as he sees the day approaching. And Peter adds this to it: By how much of the time past hath been lost to God, we ought ought to take our meaſure, that the more of what is to come, be conſecrated to him: And in 2 Pet. 1. 15, 18. his ſcope being to exhort to Holineſs (as that is the main drift and Errand of his Epiſtles) He ſetts together in oppoſition, and in view, their vain Converſation (v. 18) with that holineſs of Converſation, which God now expected (v. 15.) Be holy in all manner of Converſation, for ye are redeemed from a vain Converſation. He ſets Converſation to Converſation, and holy, to vain. Be holy in all manner of Converſation, for you have been altogether vain in your former Converſation; let the total Corruption that was in the one therefore provoke to a total Sanctification in the other: And indeed Such grounds as have lain long fallow, you expect the greater Crop from them.

IV. The laſt advantage which we may have by occaſion of ſuch an Eſtate of ſinning, is to remember it, to keep our Spirits low and humble for ever, after Converſion wrought; and the like uſe ought to be made of any great fit of ſinning. You ſhall therefore find that the Apoſtle Paul who had as high manifeſtations of God as ever man had, for no man ever ſince or before him had the like, (Our Lord and Saviour Chriſt himſelf, though he was transfigured upon the Mount, yet he had never been rapt up to Paradiſe, nor into the third Heaven, as Paul was, but lived by Faith as we do) yet that which kept him low all his days, was the remembrance of what he had been. You find two expreſſions to this purpoſe. The one in 1 Cor. 15. 9. I am (ſaith he) the leaſt of the Apoſtles, that am not worthy to be called an Apoſtle: Though he doth profeſs elſewhere, that he laboured more than they all. But if you look into Eph 3. 8. which is the next Text, he goes lower; To me (ſays he) who am leſs then the leaſt of all Saints. The one Phraſe (viz. that which he uſeth in the Corinthians) is a diminutive expreſſion ἐλαχίστερῳ, the leaſt of the Apoſtles and yet there he compareth himſelf with Apoſtles: But in that place of the Epheſians he Compares himſelf with Saints, and uſeth a more diminutive expreſſion, if there be any thing lower then the leaſt, he humbleth himſelf to it, and that not in relation to Apoſtles: but in relation to Saints. Now what was it that kept Paul, that had all this Grace in him, and all the cauſe in the World to be rapt up above the reſt of Saints and Apoſtles in Priviledges vouchſafed to him? You ſhall find it in that 1 Cor. 15. 9. (that which I quoted even now) where having ſaid, I am the leaſt of all the Apoſtles, that am not worthy to be called an Apoſtle: In what follows, you find it was the remembrance of his former Condition, and of what he had been, perſecuting the Church of God, that mov'd him to ſuch humble thoughts and words. You know when he ſpeaks of his unregenerate Eſtate, in 1 Tim. 1. 11. I was a Perſecutor (ſaith he) and injurious, &c. This was it, he bore the Scars of, in his own Spirit, to his dying day. And you may obſerve how he did grow up into this humility and into this lowneſs in his own eyes. When he wrote that Epiſtle to the Epheſians, he was an aged man, he ſtiles himſelf there Paul the Aged; he had written to the Corinthians long afore; you ſee he grows to a deeper ſenſe, he was the leaſt of the Apoſtles then, but now the leaſt of all Saints. And what was it that did make him thus low, and that he did grow up into a dayly ſenſibleneſs, the more God loved him and revealed himſelf to him? Even his own vileneſs, the Conſideration of what once he had been: Becauſe (ſaith he) I have perſecuted the Churches. Why Paul, he had thought of that ſin a thouſand times, but ſtill the older he did grow, the more it did ſink into his Spirit, and humble him the more. Haſt thou had any Manifeſtations of God to thy Spirit? Haſt thou prayed well to day? And art thou proud of it? Hath God lifted thee above others in Spiritual Priviledges? Come, take but a turn in thy unregenerate Condition: Let me bring to thy remembrance thy old walks; what wert thou ten, twenty, or thirty years ago? And what wert thou doing of then? Doſt thou not remember? Suppoſe a man had liv'd with Nebuchadnezar after he had come out of the Wilderneſs from amongſt Beaſts, and ſhould have heard him talkt as preſumptuouſly as before, Is not this great Babel I have built? If one ſhould but have minded him, and bad him go to the Wilderneſs where he was two or three yeares ago; It would have prickt his bladders and let out the wind: ſo it will have the ſame effect in thee. Chap. 8.

I have made many Uſes, you ſee, of this great point for you; there is one Uſe more (it is a bad one) which I am affraid ſome of you will make for your ſelves. It was Paul's fear, alſo his Care to prevent it; And that is, That ſeeing a man who hath lived in a ſtate of ſinning, often hath, and may have this event, to be converted at laſt, I will even continue in ſin, that Grace may abound; or at leaſt I will preſume ſtill to continue as I am.

1. I will give the Apoſtles anſwer, Rom. 3. 8. Let us do Evil that Good may come; whoſe Damnation is juſt. He throws Hell-fire back again upon them, and that is all the anſwer; That if God upon ſuch an arguing of thine, ſhould pronounce ſuch a Sentence on thee, and ſwear againſt thee in his wrath, thy Damnation were juſt, and this God often doth againſt many. For in thus arguing, beſides thy abuſe of the ſweeteſt attribute of Mercy, thou aſſumeſt to thy ſelf God's higheſt Sovereignty and Prerogative, which if ever in any thing, lyes in this, That he can bring ſo great a Good out of ſo much Evil, and yet in ſo doing, he barely permits the Creature to go on, leaving them to their own ways. But thou art active in all thine, and by this proclaimeſt thy ſelf (ipſo facto) the greateſt Rebel that God hath on earth. You know that great and terrible place, Deut. 29. 18, 19, 20. God was tendering that day the Covenant of Grace, as is clear by Paul's application of that Sermon, Rom. 10. and by the firſt verſe of that Chapter: And he bids them take heed, leaſt there be a root of Bitterneſs, an evil heart in any one, that ſays I ſhall have Peace though I walk on in the imagination of my heart, and add drunkeneſs to thirſt, that is, to ſatisfie my Luſts: The Lord will not ſpare that man, but then (even whilſt he is thinking ſuch a curſed thought) the anger of the Lord ſhall ſmoak againſt that man, and all the Curſes in this Book, ſhall lye upon him, and the Lord ſhall ſeparate him unto evil, ſingle him forth of all the Tribes, &c.

But ſhall I cloſe with thee now at laſt? Doſt thou begin to be ſenſible thou haſt gone on in ſuch a condition to this Hour, Go home and tell God of it; there is no remaining in it, no not for an Hour, for the Wrath God abides upon thee: Yet ſay not there is no hope (as they in Jer. 2.) for you have heard, it is one of Gods greateſt deſigns to exalt Grace, Love and Mercy upon Men by and in that way. Let all that is in God encourage thee. Thy way out of it hath been made plain before thee, it is Regeneration, that paſſage from Death to Life. Oh begin to ſeek to obtain it; if thou haſt a mind to Chriſt, aſſure thy ſelf, he hath much more mind to thee. Art thou wambling, art thou Whimpering? I aſſure thee he is gone forth to find thee, Luke 15. 4. He goes out to ſeek that which is loſt, long before he finds it. He will meet thee half way (as you have it in the ſame 15*th* Chapter of Luke, v. 20.) Only let me perſwade thee to turn now to him. Thou art not only perhaps undone elſe, but if ever thou doſt hereafter turn, thou wilt repent thou did'ſt it no ſooner. Yea thou wilt repent for nothing more, than that Sin had ſo much more time after God had moved thee. It is the Ingenuity of true Grace (which is love to God) ſo to work. Come, it may be a Match between Chriſt and thee before Midnight yet; 'twas ſo to the Jaylor, Acts 16. in a leſs ſpace. Come I have ſpoke thy Heart, and have hold of it. I will not let thee go. What thou and God will alone together make out of it, I know not, there may be but an Inch between thee and eternal Glory; wilt thou defer? Oh unkind! If thou hopeſt to go to Heaven, ſhall God have no Glory out of thee, in amends to what is paſt? Shall thy no longer to live to the Luſts of Men, be thy no longer to live? Tell me how many Years haſt thou lived in ſin? What's Thirty, or Forty Years? May not that ſuffice to an Enemy that will deſtroy thee? In a word, I have told you a long ſtory of God's deſign in ſuffering the bulk of his Elect to go on to years of diſcretion, ere he converts them: and that his deſign therein is glory to himſelf: But it is meet for me withal, to tell you,

Book II. yea, indeed end in telling you it, that as God's deſign is to ſhew Love in it, ſo Wiſdom alſo. And therefore ordinarily his deſign is ſo to Convert, after ſuch a time of ſinning, as providently to have ſuch a time in thy years remaining, as to have a glory out of thee in thy Fruitfulneſs and Obedience. There are but few inſtances of late Repentance. All the Epiſtles of the Apoſtles ſpeak of men that had formerly been in ſuch a Condition of ſin, but they were yet written to them, whilſt alive, and now turned, and as remaining ſurviving Subjects of Exhortations to all Holineſs, and left to give demonſtration thereof. My Brethren, God is ſo wiſe, as he will compaſs and graſp both ends: As he will leave a time, in which you may have experience of ſuch an eſtate; So he will ordinarily ſo convert, or not at all, as there may be a time to ſhew forth the contrary Graces, for his Glory, which is made the end of Converſion, 1 Pet. 2. 9. And of the two, you may well give God leave to project the latter for the longer time, for a little of the other ſufficeth. I obſerve it in this Epiſtle to Titus, that this Grace and Love (which Paul ſays appeared to us who were ſometime diſobedient, in this third Chapter, is in Chap. 2. 12.) ſaid ſo to appear, as that men may afterwards give demonſtration of their living ſoberly, righteouſly, and godly, according to that grace, even in this preſent World: For otherwiſe whilſt they are in the World, God would loſe his deſign.

BOOK III.

The Neceſſity of REGENERATION Demonſtrated by this Argument, That all that God and Chriſt have done towards their Reconciliation to us, will profit us nothing; unleſs we be reconciled to God. And how Converſion is ſet forth under the notion of Reconciliation, as on our part.

2 COR. V. 18, 19, 20.

V. 18. And all things are of God; who hath reconciled us to Himſelf by Jeſus Chriſt; and hath given unto us the Miniſtry of Reconciliation.

V. 19. To wit, That God was in Chriſt, reconciling the World unto Himſelf, not imputing their Treſpaſſes unto them; and hath committed unto us the Word of Reconciliation.

V. 20. Now then we are Embaſſadours for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you by us, we pray you in Chriſts ſtead Be you reconciled to God.

CHAP. I.

That notwithſtanding what God and Chriſt have done for their Reconciliation to us; it is by Gods Ordination neceſſary, that we be Reconciled to God, if ever we be ſaved. This prov'd from Gods deſign in his Reconciliation to us, to Glorifie his Holineſs, &c.

OUR Apoſtle profeſſeth to declare in theſe, and the foregoing Words, the whole ſubſtance of the Miniſtry of the Goſpel; which He, and his fellow Apoſtles, were intruſted to deliver to us: v. 18. God hath committed to us the Miniſtry of Reconciliation; which Meſſage, or Miniſtry conſiſts of two parts.

Book III. 1. A Reconciliation wrought on Gods part towards us; in the effecting of which, Christ was concurrent with him; for God was in Christ, reconciling the World to himself.

2. The other business is a Reconciliation on our parts; enforced from what God and Christ had done; and this is equally necessary unto Mans Salvation, as that Reconciliation on Gods, and Christs part is, v. 20. Now then, we as Embassadours for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christs stead, be ye reconciled to God: Now as these are the two parts of the Ministry of Reconciliation; that is, of the Gospel; so they must be understood to be two Essential Requisites, to make our Salvation compleat; and both alike essentially necessary thereunto, and without which we shall never be saved; as those obliging words of God, and Christ beseeching us, v. 20. shew. Now under the notion of our being reconciled to God, He intends, and involveth both, the whole of what is requisite on our parts, from first to last; both that work of Reconciliation effected in our Regeneration, whereby we enter into that Estate; and which is required of those to whom this Gospel comes, to estate them into Salvation; and also a daily proceeding to perfect that Reconciliation (after it hath been begun) by Faith, and Repentance towards God and Christ.

For He applies this Doctrine to the Corinthians that had been reconciled already: And yet (says he) Be ye reconciled.

Observ. Notwithstanding what God, and Christ have done towards our Reconciliation on their part; (which is the first of the Message;) there is a necessity, by Gods Ordination, of our being Reconciled to God; If we be partakers of Salvation. For the Apostle having distinctly declared both Gods care in it, and Christs; He from thence presseth this on our part; as that without which the other would be in vain to the attainment of Gods Intention, and Aim in both; which is, our Effectual Salvation. And to impress this the more effectually upon the Spirits of Men, the Apostle tells them that himself and other Apostles and Ministers, to whom this Ministry is committed, are ordained Ambassadours of God, not only to proclaim, and declare to us this fore part of the Message, That God was in Christ reconciling the World unto himself; and that Christ was made sin for us: But that himself and the other Apostle were Ambassadours of God, and Christ, to beseech us to be reconciled: v. 20. Now then we are Ambassadours for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you in Christs stead, be ye reconciled to God. Which beseechment denotes, not only their Gracious Condescention, or meer desire to us, but loudly speaks the absolute necessity of our being reconciled by Gods appointment; as without which, if not performed by us, God should lose what he had wrought towards it; and Christ should lose his Labour, and Reward; and the design of his having been made sin for us. And that this is Gods resolved ordination, He further enforceth from the end of Gods having set set up, and established such a Ministry of his Apostles, and their Successors, in the World: Whose Office is an Ambassage from the great God, by Preaching, and then by writing their Epistles, to reduce and bring in the Elect, fallen into a Rebellion against him. Which Reconciliation of them, if it had not been necessary, this great Institution of of God had been in vain, and to no purpose. I might say of this matter, what the same Apostle on behalf of the Resurrection argues, 1 Cor. 15. 14. If Christ be not risen, then our Preaching is in vain. Thus I might say concerning your Reconciliation, If what God and Christ have done, had alone perfected it; and no more had been to be done in us; then is our Preaching the Scriptures of the new Testament, vain, Rom. 10. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17. For whosoever shall call upon the Name of the Lord, shall be saved: How then shall they call on him, in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe on him, of whom they have not heard? And how ſhall they hear without a Preacher? And how ſhall they Preach, except they be ſent? As it is written, How Beautiful are the feet of them that Preach the Goſpel of Peace, and bring glad Tydings of good things? So then, Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God: The Word of God is Gods Ordination, and Appointment; without which none of us of Years ſhall be ſaved. Here the neceſſity lies; it was Gods pleaſure ſo to order it; if therefore our Apoſtle makes a neceſſity of his Preaching the Goſpel to men, (a neceſſity (ſays he, 1 Cor. 9. 16.) is laid upon me to Preach the Goſpel) then there is a greater neceſſity that thoſe that hear the Meſſage of it, ſhould obey it, if ever they be ſaved. For the neceſſity of his Preaching the Goſpel, was the Foundation of the neceſſity that is layd upon all other Embaſſadours like to him. All this is farther illuſtrated by Rom. 10. v. 13, and 17. compar'd. Let us now conſider how God hath threatned (2 Theſ. 1. 8, 9.) finally to deſtroy them, who obey'd not the Goſpel, who came not in to him, and entertained not this infinite Love and Grace with all acceptation; in humbling themſelves, believing on him, and his Son, and turning unto him: And it will be manifeſt that God is more engag'd to puniſh thoſe his Enemies for their refuſal of his Entreaty by his Ambaſſadors who are in his ſtead, than the greateſt Kings on Earth are, or can be thought, oblig'd to avenge an affront offered to their Ambaſſadors. Read the Parable of the Vineyard, Luke 20.

Chap. 1

Let us next conſider the Intereſt which God the Father, and Chriſt his Son, have; and the part which they act in this our Reconciliation. God the Father's part was to contrive the whole of our Salvation; Chriſt's part was to purchaſe it. God was in Chriſt reconciling the World to Himſelf, &c. I have elſewhere diſcourſed of God the Father's Original Tranſaction with Chriſt about this; which I will not repeat, only I caſt in the ſingle conſideration of it in the Text, to enforce the thing in hand. In the 28 v. His Preface to all this is, All things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himſelf by Jeſus Chriſt. The Spirit of which connexion I extract into this; That the great God, of whom all things elſe are, hath made this his Maſter-piece; and his Heart was in it, above all other things (and therefore he ſets it againſt all things elſe) and his Wiſdom, and all his other Attributes were eſpecially at work about this; who works all things according to the Counſel of his own Will: As the ſame Apoſtle ſays upon the ſame occaſion: Eph. 1. He therefore hath been moſt conſultive about the effecting of this, and for the bringing it to its performance, according his own deſire. And therefore He, who hath contriv'd to effect all things elſe, in ſuch a manner, wherein they ſhall be moſt for his own Glory; (All things are of him, and for him, Rom. 11. 36.) hath above all other contriv'd this buſineſs of Mans Salvation. And therefore we may be ſure, he was moſt regardful, and heedful that it ſhould be effected upon ſuch termes, as ſhould be for his own high Honour and Glory, as well as our Salvation: That he might have Glory by it, as well as we have Peace. When that great Proclamation of Peace, and good will to Men, was made by the Angels at the birth of our Lord (which contains the whole of Reconciliation on Gods part) it runs thus; Glory be to God on high, that's firſt; and then it follows, Peace on Earth; Good Will towards Men. This was to ſhew, that he had ſo ordered it, that our Peace and his Glory, ſhould run along together. Now if we ſhould have Peace and Pardon from him on the account of what Chriſt hath done; and we ſhould remain unreconciled to him both in Heart and Life; then here were diſhonour to God the moſt High, and a violation of Peace on Earth too. But ſurely he hath diſpoſed matters ſo, that as he would ſhew himſelf a Friend to you, and manifeſt good Will to Men; ſo withal he would appear a Friend to himſelf, and true to his own intereſt; which is his Glory: This is indeed but a General, and yet it comprehends all his Attributes; all and each of which are his Glory. I ſhall inſtance particularly in the Glory but of one, or two of them.

1. As to his Holineſs, when I diſcours'd of thoſe Tranſactions of the Father with Book III. with Christ, I * shewed that God meerly to give satisfaction to Justice, ordained the sacrificing his Son: And it was (as we have it, Rom. 3. 26.) That He might be just, and the Justifier of him that believes in Jesus. Now if to be true to that Attribute, He spared not his own Son; so then here, he having another Attribute as near and dear unto him, viz. Holiness; that must be complied withal to vindicate it's Honour. And therefore as God will be Just in saving, which cost Christ his Blood; so he will be Holy in saving us too. Therefore as He that called you is holy, so you must be Holy, and called with an holy calling: 2 Tim. 1. 9. 'Tis not his purpose of Grace towards you in Christ Jesus, will serve the turn: Because it is written, Be ye Holy, for I am Holy, 1 Pet. 1. 15. 16. He is resolved on it, And therefore without Holiness, no man shall see God, Heb. 12. Certainly He abated not his Son the least point that Justice demanded. If he would not that the Cup should pass at his then so earnest entreaty; 'Then if twere possible to suppose, Christ would supplicate him now, to let Regeneration, or Reconciliation pass off without effect, in saving any of you; God would not.

* In the Discourse of Christ the Mediator, Vol. III. of his Works.

2. A Second Attribute he intended the Glory of, in the matter of Reconciliation between him and us; was principally the Glory of his Grace. He design'd to set forth his Love so, as to attain the Ends of Loving. It is not to give forth Peace only, but to manifest good Will, and Kindness; as that speech of the Angel, shews, Luke 2. 14. Yea, the ground of His shewing Mercy, is his Love: Eph. 2. 4. God who is rich in Mercy, for the great Love wherewith he loved us: And although on our part, our Love and Friendship to God, is not the ground of his; yet it is the End, or Aim of his. Tho he did not Love us because we loved him first, yet he loved us that we might Love him again, for He chose us that we should be Holy in Love, Ephes. 1. 4. Therefore in those he saves, if there there were not wrought an inward principle of Love, and Friendship, and good Will, mutual again to him, that might answer this his Love; His Love would not have it's End: And would be finally cast away; for so we reckon Love to be given away in Loss, when it is not answered in it's Kind, that is, with a true Love again. God would have his Love valued, and esteemed by those he saves; for Love is the dearest thing that any one hath to bestow; because whosoever hath a Mans Love, hath all he hath, for it commands all; And therefore God, who is Love, (1 John 4. 8.) will not cast away his Love, especially not such a Love as this. And yet this Love were lost, if not esteemed by us; and if esteemed by us, it will work Holiness in us; and we shall be Holy before him, in love, Ephes. 1. 4. These Arguments to prove the necessity of our being reconciled to God, have been drawn from the part which God the Father hath in our Reconciliation.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

The Neceſſity of our being reconciled to God, evinced from Chriſts Deſign in his Work of Reconciliation.

THE next Argument ſhall be fetched from Chriſt, and his part in Reconciliation, of whom it is here ſaid, God was in Chriſt Reconciling, &c. Chriſts intereſt was conſidered by God; and Chriſts Concernment is ſuch in this matter, that I may without any ſcruple of diffidence, pronounce, That Chriſt would rather loſe all he hath on his part done, or ſuffered for us, than that we ſhould be ſav'd without being reconciled to God by a true work of Regeneration.

In the foreſaid Tranſaction of God with Chriſt, about the Reconcilement of us; I ſhewed there was a Covenant made between God and Chriſt in our behalf. And therein God the Father meant not, to put ſuch upon Chriſt, as ſhould continue wholly averſe in diſpoſition towards him; for Chriſt by Covenant was to be an Husband, as well as a Redeemer from Sin; and the agreement between him, and his Father was; (as Jacob's with Laban,) to purchaſe his Wife to Himſelf; Epheſ. 5. 25, 26, 27. Husbands Love your Wives, even as Chriſt alſo loved the Church, and gave himſelf for it: That he might ſanctifie and cleanſe it with the waſhing of Water, by the Word; That he might preſent it to himſelf a Glorious Church, not having Spot or Wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; but that it ſhould be Holy and without Blemiſh. It is but reaſon then, and what he deſerv'd, that he ſhould have ſuch for his Spouſe, as ſhould love him again. This Covenant between God the Father, and the Son, is rehearſed in Pſal. 110. The Lord ſaid to my Lord, &c. And he took an Oath to it; that He ſhould be a Prieſt, v. 4. which was a great word; God the Father therein expreſſing the Call he gave him: But then withal, his Father engageth, and promiſeth That his People ſhould be willing in the day of his Power. Thus the Father acts in his part of the Covenant with Chriſt: And then Chriſt on his part reſolved, and agreed to ſee thoſe he would ſave, to become His Seed, and to be born of him; or he would never have been ſatisfied, Iſa. 53. He ſhall ſee his Seed, and be ſatisfied. He reſolv'd that they ſhould come to him, as his Father promiſed they ſhould; which as that Speech of his ſhews, John 6. All that the Father hath given me, ſhall come to me. The Father not ſimply gave them to Chriſt, to ſave them; but promiſed withal that they ſhould come to Chriſt: And coming, be ſubject to him in all things: Epheſ. 5. as the Law of the Marriage-Covenant requires: And there is a promiſe on Chriſts part, to raiſe them up at the laſt Day; And to that end he ceaſeth not, till he preſents them to himſelf, a Glorious Church, without Spot or Wrinkle, Epheſ. 5. 26, 27. Yea I may not ſtick to ſay that Chriſt otherwiſe would be content to loſe all he now hath done, rather than that any one ſhould be ſaved, and not reconciled to God his Father. And the reaſon is manifeſt; for otherwiſe he ſhould be the Miniſter of Sin, which he abhors. Thus the Apoſtle argues, Gal. 2. 17. And it is the full and direct Scope of the Apoſtle there: For treating of the Doctrine of Free Juſtification, or Salvation, in that Epiſtle, which the Adverſaries thereof Branded for a Doctrine of Licentiouſneſs; The Apoſtle abhors it with the greateſt indignati-

Book III

Indignation, in saying that this were indeed to make Christ the Minister of Sin, if he should have died to procure the Justification of any that are not sanctified. And from Heaven Christ himself declared to Saul, that He sent him to open the Eyes of the Gentiles, to turn them from Darkness to Light; from the power of Satan unto God; that they may receive forgiveness of Sins, and an Inheritance among them which are sanctified, by Faith that is in me: Acts 26. 18. That is, to be a means of their Regeneration: And otherwise he should but have tyed Gods hands from hurting us, or destroying us; whilst we should have a License left us to provoke him, and continue in Sin. No, Christ is more tender of his Fathers Glory then so; and though he is a Saviour perfect, yet he becomes the Author of eternal Salvation, but unto those who Obey him; Heb. 5. 8, 9. which none will do, until born again.

Lastly, The Demonstration is drawn both from God the Father, and Son jointly. This great design of their reconciling Sinners, as agreed on by them, became matter of the greatest delight to them; and which, when Concluded, their Hearts were infinitely taken up with; as in Prov. 8. Wisdom, that is Christ, exults in the remembrance of it, as 'twas in his own, and Fathers Heart, afore the World: Yea, and Gods end in Loving us, and Christs end in dying, was to delight in our Persons; as Zephan. 3. 17. He will rejoyce over those he saves, and will rest in his Love towards them, as thinking his Love well bestowed; and being abundantly satisfied, and contented in it: And he promiseth Christ, that he should greatly delight in the Beauty of his Queen: Psal. 44. And Christ accordingly in that Love Song declares his infinite Delight in his Spouse, and Cant. 7. 6. How fair and pleasant art thou, (Oh Love,) for delights? (Tis Christs Speech) Now if to delight in those he saves, were one great end of both in their counsels about us: Then of necessity there must be wrought a Reconciliation, in us, unto them, as well as a Reconciliation for us by them; there is no way for them to attain Deilghts in us, unless our Hearts were won to them, to Love, and delight in them again: Tis true, God, loved us when we were Enemies; Rom. 5. Yet delight in us he could not, unless we be made Friends to him. All the sweetness of Love lies in the Reciprocation: There is nothing more grievous, more hateful, than to Love and not to be beloved: As out of his own Heart, and experience he expresseth it: 2 Cor. 11. 15. Dulce est amare, et amari: At least otherwise there is no rest in ones Love; no contentedness, or satisfaction in it. If Gods end in saving us indeed, were principally to pardon us, then he need do no more than Kings do, when they pardon Traytors; pass such an Act upon the party, and there's an end: But God is also to make Friends and Favourites of them whom he pardons; and so to delight in them, and to have communion with them, graciously to accept of them, as well as pardon them, Eph. 1. 6, 7. To the praise of the Glory of his Grace, wherein He hath made us accepted in the Beloved: Over and above, that In Him we have also Redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the Riches of his Grace. And therefore He changeth the Inward frame of Men's Hearts, and makes of Enemies, Friends of them to himself; Otherwise he could not rejoyce in them: For can a man delight in a Toad or a Serpent? (between which Creatures, and us, God hath put an enmity?) what Fellowship, and Communion, can Light, and Darkness have.

The Conclusion of this matter discoursed is, that although God the Father hath transacted All these things from Eternity, and that Jesus Christ hath long since performed All that which might pacifie, and reconcile his Father; and procure our Attonement with his Father; according to the Command and Request of his Father; yet it was withal agreed mutually then by them, That not a man, no not an Elect man, should have Benefit by either, until they come in to be reconcil'd. And that State of this affair, I explain by this Instance or Similitude grounded upon Scripture, That suppose one oweth a great Sum, and the Creditor to whom he oweth it, Is willing to forgive it unto this Debtor, upon payment made by another, whom the Creditor tor doth under hand Himſelf procure to pay it, at his requeſt; yet withal unknown as yet unto the Debtor: But with this Compact, of the Surety and Creditor, that when this tranſaction ſhall come to be made known by them to the Debtor, of what they have ſecretly done, He, upon effectual notice thereof, ſhall come in, and acknowledge the Debt; ſeeking the remitting of it unto Him, and acquitment of Him; with profeſſ'd ſubjection to them both for ever. Until this be performed by Him, the Bond, though by agreement Cancelled, as in reſpect of any other payment; yet is ſtill to lie and be kept in the Creditors hands; who obligeth Himſelf not to give a diſcharge, or releaſe to the Debtor, or Deliver in his Bond as cancelled, until He makes his Addreſs, and humbly acknowledgeth the Debt; ſeeks for an Acquittance, yea, and gets the party who paid it, to go along with him to the Creditor, to mediate, and plead for him his Satisfaction given Him; and ſue forth the Acceptation of that payment of his, for him in particular; undertaking the Party's heartieſt, and ſincereſt engagement of future Love and ſervice to both for ever. And thus does Chriſt's Righteouſneſs, and our Debt, lye both in God the Father's hands, the Creditor, until the Sinner for whom the payment was made, ſhall thus Come in; And if we could ſuppoſe that Chriſt had dyed ten thouſand Deaths, (which was but one Sacrifice once offered) for one man; yet both Father and Son have and are reſolved that this man ſhould never be the better for it, till he comes in. Chap. 4.

And in Expreſſion ſimilar unto this management, and ordering of this matter, you ſhall find the Scriptures ſpeaking in both the Old and New Teſtament, Compared. There is to this purpoſe a paſſage in Job. 33. 22, 23, 24, 25, 26. His Soul draweth near to the Grave, and his Life to the Deſtroyers: If there be a Meſſenger with Him, an Interpreter, One among a thouſand, to ſhew unto man his uprightneſs: Then he is gracious, and ſaith, Deliver Him from going down into the Pit; I have found a ranſom: His fleſh ſhall be freſher then a Childs; He ſhall return to the days of his Youths: He ſhall pray unto God, and He will be favourable to him, and he ſhall ſee his face with joy; for He will render unto man his Righteouſneſs. They are the words of Elihu, which taken together with the foregone, from verſe 15. and then with thoſe which follow after; do ſet out a fair Pattern, or draught of the workings of ſaving Converſion, at the rate they went in thoſe Ancient times, collected by the Obſervations of Elihu, upon divers Perſons in his view; and ſet afore Job, to provoke him to Conform himſelf unto them (as his only courſe to take) with encouragements of mercy from God, that in like manner God will be gracious to Him, to reſtore Him to his favour, and that He ſhall come to ſee his face with joy, v. 26. And together with the works or operations, He ſetts forth the means, which God then often did uſe to work upon men's Hearts: As firſt, Viſions, and Dreams, v. 15, 16, 17. (for there this his diſcourſe of converſion begins) In a dream, in a viſion of the night, when deep ſleep falleth upon men, in ſlumbring upon the Bed, then he openeth the Ears of men, and ſealeth their Inſtruction, That He may withdraw man from his purpoſe, and hide Pride from man: And this diſpenſation was the more ordinary means in thoſe times, (although to us now extraordinary. Then Secondly, another means were great ſickneſſes even unto Death: v. 19. He is chaſtned alſo with pain upon his bed, and the multitude of his bones with ſtrong pain. And thirdly, the awakenings thereby are followed by the Seaſonable Inſtructions and Directions of a Teacher, one skill'd in Soul-ſaving work: An Interpreter of God's mind, to ſhew what that is, for which God ſaves man, as alſo what a Sinner is to do, v. 23. &c.

And that ſuch a ſaving work of true Converſion is intended, the whole ſenſe of his Diſcourſe, from the aforeſaid v. 15. doth plainly manifeſt: And firſt, This his diſcourſe at the Entrance ſhews, at the 16 and 17 verſes; Then he openeth the Ears of men, and ſealeth their Inſtruction; that he may withdraw man from his purpoſe, His reſolved Courſe of ſinning, and hide Pride from man: That is, truly to humble Him, and break the ſtaff of the pride of his Heart. 2. His more full and ſpeciall Inſtance He gives in the middle of his Narration; the ſick man's Caſe, in the verſes afore: Taken together with this Inference He draws from it for inſtruction unto All men v. 27, 28. He looketh upon men, and if any ſay, I have ſinned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not; He will deliver his Soul from going into the Pit; and his Life ſhall ſee the Light: And 3. The Concluſion of all in the 29 and 30 verſes, as much doth declare, where Elihu ſets a remark upon it; [Lo] All theſe things God worketh often times; (twice or thrice,) with man: To bring back his Soul from the Pit; and to enlighten him with the Light of the Living: That is, with the ſaving Light of Life: As John 8. 12. ſpeaks of them that Live by faith: And this Speech is the general cloſe unto theſe Inſtances foregone, and gathers in All he had ſaid, from the 15. v. downwards: And ſignifies all the outward ways and means, with many other the like, which God had then a foot, to work ſavingly upon men: As alſo all thoſe particular Inward Operations which had been Inſtanced in, and which might be drawn forth out of one or the other of theſe paſſages.

And thoſe Particulars are, 1. Conviction, and Confeſſion of Sin, with brokenneſs of Heart, v. 27. If any man ſay I have ſinned, and perverted that which was right, &c. 2. A Laying hold by Faith on Chriſt's Righteouſneſs and Ranſom. For His own Righteouſneſs and Redemption, when he is affected with that ſenſe of his ſin, and own Un-uprightneſs, which was and is the greateſt Point which That Interpreter ſhewed, or diſcovered to Him: Inſtructing Him where and in whom the true and perfect Righteouſneſs of fallen man doth lie, which this humbled Soul deſires, prays, and ſeeks for, and to be made His; and God to be Gracious to him, and accept Him Therein; which God accordingly delivers, and renders to him: Theſe are ſummarily in verſe 23, 24, and 26. And this is accompanied with turning from ſin, in uprightneſs of Heart, and Holineſs of Life; for time to come, in a courſe utterly oppoſite to His former perverting that which was right, which v. 27. He confeſſed He had run into. And there is a moſt comfortable Iſſue of all theſe upon this Man, which begins at v. 24. Then He is Gracious, and ſays, Deliver Him. Then, namely, when the Interpreters Inſtructions, (whereof ſome are Implyed others expreſſed) have had their due Courſe, and Effects (in all ſuch Gracious workings ſpecified) in the man's Heart; Anſwerable to the matter of His meſſage; which ſhewed this man what is man's Uprightneſs: which in a ſummary, contains Directions unto All theſe; and which being Impreſſed on his Soul, as the Wax is with the Seal: For 'tis with a ſealing the Inſtructions, (as the word afore was, v. 16.) He muſt neceſſarily be ſuppoſed to have had theſe proper Prints conformable thereunto. Now the Iſſues, or conſequential Priviledges hereof are two.

1. That God doth then, or thereupon, out of his Grace, Abſolve, and pronounce the Juſtification of him. The Lord is Gracious, and ſaies, Deliver him: The word Deliver, ſignifies Redeem him, that is, from the guilt of his Sin, and Hell, or Gods wrath: Thus Forgiveneſs of Sins is ſtyled, Epheſ. 1. 7. In whom you have Redemption through his Blood, the forgiveneſs of Sins, through the riches of his Grace: The word Deliver him, here ſignifies Redeem him: And he, that is, God, ſays it within himſelf: For Juſtification is an immanent act, in Gods breſt, and Heart, and that is that Juſtification we call, in foro Cœli, in the Court of Heaven. He ſays it, before and unto Chriſt the Mediator. He pronounceth the ſentence, as in Heaven, as the ſupream Law-giver, able to Save, and to Deſtroy. Yea, he often ſays it, and applies it to the Mans own Conſcience; and by a word of his Meſſengers declares it. And then he adds the Ground for and through which he doth it; for (ſaies he) I have found a Ranſom; and thus he applies it to this particular Sinner. And then,

2. God further cauſeth this juſtified Soul, to ſee his Face with Joy, verſ. 26. God lifting up the ſight of his Countenance, and cauſing his Favour to ſhine upon his Soul, with Joy, greater than when Corn, and Oyl increaſe. Which Diſpenſation, after great Humblings, deep Repentings, long and much ſeeking of his face face, God is wont to gratifie sincere new Converts with; Rom. 4. 5, 6, 7. and Rom. 5. 1, 2, 3, 5, and 11. Chap. 3

II. And 2ly, That initial Conversion wrought at first, which is called Regeneration) is specially intended, and that the words are not meant only of Men renewed, or Converted already: but declined (tho they are indeed included) the words of those 27, and 28, verses, evidence He Looketh upon Men, and if any say, I have sinned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not; He will deliver his Soul from going into the Pit, and his Life shall see the Light; He lays two things together: 1. That they are a general Invitation, and Incouragement given to all Men, who shall in like manner come in, and apply themselves to him, that God will be likewise Gracious, and Pardon, and receive any of them into Grace, and Favour, and deliver his Soul from going down into the Pit; as he had done this sick Convert; and so General, and indefinite a Declaration, must necessarily respect, and take in men unregenerate; the bulk of Mankind, shall hear this; who mostly lie in Unregeneracy in all times, especially did in those. Thus John saith of his times, 1 John 5. 19. Hence, therefore that Exhortation, and incouragement to Repentance, (If any Man say I have sinned, &c.) must in a special maner intend the first work of Regeneration, and Initial Repentance. The second thing is, that this General Proclamation is brought in, as a Corollary, or Inference from the Example of this sick Convert: And comes in upon it, as Elihu's deduction out of it. And therefore the case of that sick Man proposed, must involve, and extend to a first Conversion, which we call Regeneration: And it is not to be limited only to such as had been converted already: And truly the Tenor of those words, To shew to this Man His uprightness doth argue him to have been one Ignorant afore, of what course to take for him to be saved, till taught by this Instructor.

But Lastly, The final Conclusion of all, puts it out of exception, v. 29. Lo all these things worketh God, often times with Man; and tis a General one too, comprehending these, and all the blessed Operations, or Effects, that God doth work upon any, to save any of the Sons of Men (who at any time are saved,) from Hell; and not to be limitted, to restoring of those Patients, that are sick, from bodily sickness, or of Men who had had a work of Regeneration already, and had gone astray. But speaks to all, of all sorts, and to the Unregenerate in a special manner.

CHAP. III.

That we may be Reconciled to God, it is neceſſary for us to be Convinced, that we are Enemies to God: That our Eſtate is Dangerous. That yet God is Appeaſable: That there is a Mediator by whom the Soul may come to God, that we muſt alſo ſeek God and his Favour in Chriſt; and ſeek him with Confeſſion of, and Mourning for Sin.

THE particular Paſſages which a true and ſincere Reconcilement doth require, are either ſuch as prepare the Heart to be willing to be reconciled; or ſuch wherein the Subſtance or Nature of Reconciliation it ſelf, or wherein the frame of an Heart Reconciled, doth Conſiſt.

1. For the preparing us to be reconciled, it is neceſſary that we be convinced that we are Enemies to God, and that he accounts us ſuch. And that ſo long as we remain in that eſtate, he is alſo an Enemy to us, and can be no other. This what God in Chriſt hath done, gives Demonſtration of. He would not ſave us upon Chriſts bare Intreaty, but he would have Satisfaction, and have Chriſt feel what it was to ſtand in the room of Sinners. Yea, one end why God ſaved us by way of Satisfaction to his Juſtice, was that Sinners pardoned might in what Chriſt ſuffered ſee, and throughly apprehend what Sin had deſerved. And is it not then requiſite that they ſhould at leaſt lay to Heart and be ſenſible of their own Treaſons and Rebellions, and that God and they are at odds. Traytors muſt be Convicted and Condemned, ere they are capable of a legal Pardon, as Sentence muſt be pronounced ere a legal Appeal can be made. It is ſo in Mans Courts, and it ſo in Gods proceedings alſo. Neither indeed will men be brought to ſue out for his Favour and prize his Love, till then; for it was never heard any Man did heartily ſue to one for Pardon and Peace, with whom he did not firſt apprehend himſelf at variance.

2. It is neceſſary alſo that Men apprehend the danger of going on in this Eſtate, for though one ſhould know another and himſelf to be Enemies, if he thought his Enemie were either careleſs or weak, he would ſlight Reconciliation with him, and though ſought unto, would not ſeek it. He who is mention'd, Luke 14. 31, 32. ſate down and conſidered if he were able to go out and meet his Enemy, elſe he would never have ſought conditions of Peace: So the Soul, until it apprehends and conſiders (finding God and it ſelf Enemies) what a ſore Enemy he is, and what a fearful thing it is to fall into his hands (Heb. 10. 30, 31.) will not till then care to ſeek out to him.

3. If one apprehended God implacable, not inclinable to peace or hard to be intreated, he would never come at him neither. Thus David when Saul and he were at odds, ſuborned Jonathan ſecretly to obſerve what mind Saul bare towards towards him, 1 Sam. 20. and when at the 33 verse, he found him bent to kill him, David came not at him. So the Jews came away from God, as a wild Ass from its owner, Jer. 2. Because there was no hope. Chap. 3

4. The Soul comes to be perswaded better things of God, and things that accompany Reconciliation, and conceives hopes that Reconciliation is to be had, and had for it: And therefore in all whom God means to reconcile to himself, after he hath humbled them, he fixeth a secret perswasion on their Hearts, that he is ready to be reconciled to them, if they will be reconciled to him. God gives them a secret hint of his intended good will to them. He reveals what a gracious God he is, and how freely he Pardons. And because that all acquaintance begins with Knowledge, and is the ground of it, therefore God, when he brings any into this Covenant, the first thing he doth, is, He teacheth them to know him, Jer. 31. 34. And gives them a new Spirit, that they may be able know him after another manner then ever before. He teacheth them to know him especially in his Mercy, in those vast thoughts of Mercy laid up in him, (Jer. 9. 24.) To know him to be a God, that ever hath loving kindness in the Earth; though not in Hell to Devils, yet in Earth to Men, and that therein he delighteth; he enableth him also to see what happiness is to be had in Communion with him, by reason of those glorious Excellencies which are in him, and makes such Representations of himself to the Soul, as allures the Heart, Hos. 1. 14. God draws the Heart, John 6. 44. for in the 45 verse it follows, They shall all be taught of God referring to hese places of Esay, and Jeremy; for saies Christ; It is written in the Prophets, They shall be taught of God. And the Lesson is (as hath been said) to know God; and God doth this in a peculiar manner, working another kind of knowledge of himself than a man had before, or than other men have. For it is a knowledge that enamours their Hearts with him, and allures them with his good will. And (saies Christ) every man that hath thus heard, and learnt cometh to God. Though all hear the same message of Reconciliation; yet God whispers something to a Mans Heart, that he doth not to every man. The same God who from everlasting spake unto his Son, and wooed him for us, doth speak likewise secretly to a Man's Heart, to allure and woo him to come in to him.

5. And yet Fifthly, If the Soul should look upon God alone, as he is in himself, a God, Just as well as Merciful, he would thereby be discouraged to come alone into his presence, who is a consuming fire. The Glory of Gods Justice would dash him and confound him: And as Adam trembled, so would he, and could do no otherwise. 'Tis the Instinct of Nature (witness the Heathen Sacrifices, and lesser Gods, as Mediators to the great God) to seek out a Daies-Man, Job 9. 33. Yea it is the way of Man seeking Friendship with another, to use the Mediation of some other, that is great with him that is wronged: Therefore God teacheth such an one, to whom he means to be reconciled, to know his Son also, whom he hath sent as his beloved Son, in whom he is well pleased with others too. God holds and sets forth him as a Propitiation, That in his Blood he may both be Just, and the Justifier of us, Rom. 3. 25. And he causeth his Glory to shine, and appear in the Face of Jesus Christ, and secretly points and directs the Heart with an instinct to go to Christ: Every Man that hath heard and learnt of the Father, cometh to me, (John 6. 45.) As the Beasts were taught to go to the Ark. And we thus coming to Christ by Faith, and taking hold of him by the hand thereof, Christ then leads us by the hand to God Eph. 3. 18. We have προσαγωγὴν, Conduct, and Entrance and Access to God, having such a Person with us, and his Interest in God to plead for us, and whose Blood and Satisfaction we may plead; we have free Liberty of Speech παῤῥησίαν, to plead his Righteousness and Satisfaction, and that with bare-facedness and boldness, as the word signifies: Not to stand as Condemned Prisoners with our Faces covered, but as Persons acquitted in Christ, pleading Pardon with Confidence. And this is necessary, for as God intended to shew us no favour without Satisfaction, so no more can we apprehend that his Favour, but in and through Christs alone Satisfaction, Rom. 3. 25. God hath therefore set forth Christ a Propitiation piliation by Faith in his Blood, that he might be both Just, and a Justifier of him that believeth in Jesus. And how God should be Just, and a Justifier of a Sinner, no man could ever apprehend, till he bottoms his Faith on Christs Righteousness alone, which only can stand before Justice, and break through it unto God.

And yet 6thly, When all this is done, the man must be set a work to seek, as a Condemned man, God and his Favour in Christ, and Peace and Reconciliation through him for life, Job. 33. 24. He shall pray to him, and he will be gracious, and say, Deliver him; I have found a Ransome. God himself first sought to Christ, and sought him with all earnestness and vehemency to become a Mediator to him for us, and therefore reason it is that he should stand upon it to be sought unto, ere we obtain Peace with him. Yea, and though his own Son hath performed it, and he Covenanted with him that He should see his seed, yet God expected that his Son should seek to him for the acceptation of his Mediation, who yet hath merited it, and who undertook it at his request. And therefore you see what a Long prayer he puts up, John 17. Tho he says at the 4. and 9. verses, He had finished the work he gave him to do, yet he prays for the persons redeemed, and the acceptation of the redemption wrought, throughout that Chapter. God had told him (Psal. 2. 8.) he must ask the Heathen for his Inheritance; and tho they were his Inheritance, as he was his Son, and whom besides he had purchased and bought with his blood, yet he must ask them. Yea that Glory which was his own before the World was, he seeks to his Father for, v. 5. And if it were thus between God and his Son, in the business of Reconciliation for us, and that in what he might challenge as his own, then surely much more it must be so between God and us, whom this Reconciliation most concerns. He therefore pours upon a man a Spirit of Grace and Supplication, Zach. 12. 10. That is, A Spirit to supplicate for Grace.

And the same is evident from the Nature of the thing it self. God is the party Superiour, and it is fit the Inferiour should seek to the Superiour: And also he is the Person wronged; and though he be willing and desirous to be reconciled more than ever, yet he will have his favour prized. David longed to be reconciled to Absalom, yet he would be sought unto, for he would have his Favour prized to the utmost, and not cast away.

Yea and to be in Favour with God being better than Life, God will be sought to with more earnestness, contention and constancy, then a Condemned man seeks for Life, Jer. 29. 13. They shall find me when they seek and search for me with their whole heart. And Matt. 11. 12. The Violent take it by force; Though God be most willing to part with this great Blessing, yet that it may be prized and sought, indeed he doth as it were hold it fast in his hand, and will have it wrung from him by force, as it were, Matth. 11. 12. And from the Days of John the Baptist, until now, the Kingdom of Heaven suffereth Violence, and the Violent take it by force. And in Luke 13. 24. Strive (saith he) for many seek. The word in the original signifies an eager violent contention and wrestling of mind. And there is reason, from what God did in Christ for us, for this also: For how earnestly did God seek to his Son for us? He expressed all the earnestness that might be, laying his command upon him; and he added an oath to it, &c. And doth he not expect earnestness at our hands? Yea how did Christ also, in the days of his flesh, put up an Atonement, seeking to his Father with strong cries and tears? And shall we think to be heard with dull and faint Cries? Nay, look as God himself was more earnest in this matter of reconciling us, then ever in any thing else, so He will have us seek to him with more Earnestness and Contention, than ever we sought any thing, even Life its self. And surely, if God hath bidden us seek peace with men, yea, and to ensue it, (as in Psal. 34. 14. 1 Pet. 3. 11.) that is, though it fly away, yet to follow it; much more are we then to seek Peace with God himself, and though he seem to reject us, yet to follow him, and press upon him as it were from one room to another, that is, from one performance to another, and and so to follow hard after him, as David says Psal. 63. 1, 2, 3. to verse the 8th, My Soul followeth hard after thee: Thy right hand upholdeth me.

7. He will be sought unto with Confession of, and mourning for offending him. For being in bitterness, (Zach. 12. 10.) and mourning, is joyned with Supplication for Grace.

And this is necessary to Reconciliation, because an acknowledgment is to be made, Jer. 2. 13. God would be sought humbly unto by us, as those that are Traytors and Rebells. And God will have men know when he pardons, that he knows what he pardons, and therefore will have them acknowledge what they deserve, that Every mouth might be stopped, and become guilty, and obnoxious in their own acknowledgment before him, Rom. 3. 19. As if a man will become wise he must become a fool; so a man that will become a Friend to God, must turn Enemy against himself, and judge himself worthy of destruction. And God will have the Freeness and Glory of his Grace acknowledged in pardoning. And therefore will have us Confess our evil ways and deservedness of destruction. In the 36th of Ezekiel, when at the 31 verse, he says that when he pardoned them they should remember their evil ways, and acknowledge themselves worthy to be destroyed: the reason follows in the next verse; Be it known to you, I pardon it not for your sakes; I do it freely: And that ye may know so much, remember your evil ways; be ashamed and confounded for your ways.

And there is good reason also that mourning should be joyned to all this, from what God did in Christ when he reconciled us to himself.

1. For first, Was not Christ, who never knew the pleasure of Sin, put to grief? Yea, all the Sorrow and Smart was his. Isa. 53. 4. Surely he hath born our griefs, was a man of Sorrow, &c. Which Sorrows were put upon him by his Father also, ver. 10. He put him to grief; and therein indeed put himself to grief. And if they both were thus put to grief and afflicted, for our reconciliation and peace, then surely the least that we, who have tasted of, and enjoyed the pleasures of Sin, can do, is to grieve also, for that thing, which made both Father and Son to grieve. God required of Christ to bear our Sorrows: Now the Sorrows of Death, and of his Wrath, God exacts not of thee; but the Sorrow of a Friend, the Sorrow of Kindness, which causeth not Death as other Sorrows do; but Peace and Joy in the very performance of it; Repentance never to be repented of. He requires thee only to mourn kindly for thy Sins that pierced him: And such a mourning the nature of Reconciliation requires. For,

2. Secondly, Where mourning for Offending God is wanting, there is no Sign of any good will yet wrought in the heart to God, nor of love to him, without which God will never accept a man. For the least thing, wherein good will towards a Friend whom we have injured, can be shewn, is to mourn and be sorry for it: As the least requital for a Kindness is to be thankful. And this all that have Affections in them do, when they can no way else make amends.

3. Else there is no hope of amendment. God will not pardon till he sees hope of amendment. Now until a Man confess his sin, and that with bitterness, it is a sign he loves it, Job. 20. 12, 13, 14. Whilst he hides it, spares it, and forsakes it not, it is sweet in his mouth, and therefore till he Confess it, and mourn for it, it is a sign it is not bitter to him, and so he will not forsake it. A Man will never leave sin, till he finds bitterness in it, and if so, then he will be in bitterness for it, Zach. 12. 10. And Godly sorrow works Repentance, 2 Cor. 7. 10.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

How our Reconciliation to God consists in renouncing all Friendships and Interests which stand in Competition with his! and in choosing him for our alone Friend, and Portion; in resigning all to him; in having a Disposition and Nature Like to God: And also in all our Addresses to God proceeding from an Inward Principle of pure good will unto God.

EIGHTLY. He that will be reconciled to God, must part with, and forsake all other Friends and Lovers; renounce and break off all Interests and Correspondencies with them, and choose God for his Sole Friend and Portion. And he must choose God for ever, to cleave to him with full purpose of heart.

1. He must renounce all other Friendship, James 4. 4. Ye Adulterers and Adulteresses, know ye not that the Friendship of the World is enmity with God? Whosoever therefore shall be a Friend of the World, is the Enemy of God. As God will not have us serve other Masters, so not to have other Friends: Whosoever doth not forsake Father, Mother &c. is unworthy of me, says Christ, Luke 14. 26. And still what God hath done in Christ for reconciling us, will perswade to it.

First, God was content to part with his Son, a Friend, an Old Friend, and a Bosom Friend, brought up with him; and yet he was content for a time to forsake him: Witness that speech, My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me? And Christ was content to part with and leave his father for a time. That speech, For this cause a man shall forsake Father and Mother, is in Eph. 5. 31. applyed to Christ in his giving himself to the Church, as the context shews.

And he came down from Heaven for to make such Friends: And thus each of them parted with their old Friends to get new. So do you, and be content to forsake the dearest you have delighted in, and have been brought up with. The Church forsook her Father's house.

2. The nature of reconciliation requires it. For Friendship with any thing else is enmity with God, Jam. 4. 4. A Friendship not only with proclaimed Enemies, open sins, but with all the things the world hath, is vanity with God. A Believer may have a Lordship over them, but not Friendship with them. He may use them as Strangers, and Servants, but not as Friends, so they must not have his heart. He that hates not Father and Mother is unworthy of me, says Christ, that is, not worthy of my Friendship, and such a Friend as I am and mean to be.

3. Choose him alone for your God, to betake your selves unto him for ever. Friendship is entred into by Choice. Kindred indeed is not, for I chose not who was to be my Father; who shall be the Son of my Mother is not in my choice: But friendship goes by Choice: So Jonathan chose David, 1 Sam. 20. 30. Thou hast chosen the Son of Jesse (saith Saul) So the Church, Hos. 2. 7. She shall follow after after Lovers, but ſhe ſhall not overtake them, and ſhe ſhall ſeek them; but ſhall not find them: then ſhall ſhe ſay, I will go and return to my firſt huſband, for then was it better with me than now. She forſakes all other Lovers, and betakes her-ſelf to God; and what ſays God? Ver. laſt, I will ſay, They are my People; and they ſhall anſwer my Love again, and ſay, Thou art my God, ver. 16. Which place ſhews the reaſon, whence it may be enforced: For God, you heard, choſe you and gave you to Chriſt before you were, and he choſe Chriſt for you to be your, Mediator, and ſaid concerning him, Thou art a Prieſt, and that he would not repent his choice. Now in like manner as God did Chooſe you, ſo muſt you alſo chooſe him. As God chooſeth you freely (Hoſ. 14. 14.) out of Good will, and pitcheth his choice upon your Perſons, ſo muſt you chooſe him freely, and chooſe him as Jonathan choſe David to be his Friend, tho' to the loſs of a Kingdom, as Saul told him, 1 Sam. 20. 30. So do thou chooſe God, though to thy undoing in the world; and as he choſe you for ever, never to caſt you off, making an everlaſting Covenant with Chriſt for you, giving him a Charge to ſave you, chooſing you out of an everlaſting Love: So you are to chooſe him, to be your God for ever: And, as Jonathan's heart cleaving to David, he ſware to him, and entred into Covenant with him; ſo muſt you do with God. I have ſworn (ſays David) and I will perform it. Pſal. 119. And as no difficulty could put God by from his purpoſe, he had took up towards you, as you heard; ſo ſtrong was he in it, ſo bent and ſet upon it: So let nothing, that can fall out in your way, Loſſes or Croſſes, that you meet with for him, alter your purpoſe towards him: As nothing can ſeparate you from his love, ſo let nothing ſeparate him from yours. Chap. 3

9. Ninthly, Let thy heart reſign up it ſelf, and all that it hath, and devote it all unto God, for ever, to be commanded and uſed by him. Thus Friends uſe to do, and thus God did for you: For if he ſpared not his own Son, how ſhall he not with him give you all things elſe. Let all you have be God's, giving up your ſelves firſt unto the Lord, as they in 2 Cor. 8. 5. Let God have all thy Underſtanding. Will, Affections, and whatever elſe: Let all be his, to command in any thing as he pleaſeth, and ſtudy how to ſet all a work for him; for he ſet the Infinite Depths of his Wiſdom a work, to find out a way to be Friends with you; and choſe that which would ſhew moſt love; And ſo do you chooſe the things that will moſt pleaſe him Iſa. 56. 4. and 44. 5. Subſcribe with your Hands to the Lord, and ſay I am his, even as Friends uſe to ſay, Yours to Command, and All I have is at your Service. God wrote with his own hand your Names in Heaven (Heb. 12. 23.) in the Heart of Chriſt: And he wrote it down in the Books of his Decrees, and made Chriſt ſubſcribe to it, that he ſhould be a Prieſt: And ſo ſubſcribe you, that you will be for ever his to Command and Uſe.

10. And Tenthly, ὁμοίωσις or Likeneſs of Diſpoſition, is the only ſure laſting Ground and Foundation of Friendſhip, and is the Soul of it; ſo as it is impoſſible two ſhould long be Friends, unleſs they agree in their minds and Affections, loving and liking the ſame things; Can Two walk together and not agree? Amos. 3. 3. Therefore you muſt get ſtamp'd upon your Hearts, a Likeneſs to God in Holineſs; whereby to hate where God hates, and to love where he loves; ſo as to become an Enemy to his Enemies, and a Friend to his Friends. And in this reſpect David is called a man after God's own heart; that is, whoſe Mind and Diſpoſition was faſhioned to the Lord's in all things. So Pſal. 119. 127, 128. I hate every falſe way; but thy Law I eſteem aright concerning all things. So do you love and approve Holineſs in all things, in the Abſtract and Concrete; in the word as it is delivered, and in Men's Lives and Hearts, as it is practiced and appears. And ſo the Believer alſo hates ſin in himſelf and others, and counts God's Enemies as his own. Thus David did, Pſal. 119. 21, 22, 23. And this in Scripture is termed a True Heart, Heb. 10. 22. True as a man to his Friend; as to his own ſelf. True and Faithful, as a Spouſe to her Huſband: True and Loyal, as Subjects to their Native Prince. Job. 22. 21, 22. Acquaint thy ſelf with him (there is an Exhortation to Friendſhip with God) and be at Peace. Receive, I pray thee, the Law at his mouth.

Book III. 11. Eleventhly. Accordingly, A man that is thus reconciled, muſt endeavour to walk, and behave himſelf as unto a Friend. The Nature of Reconciliation requires it; Pro. 18. 24. He that hath Friends muſt carry himſelf Friendly. And Chriſt hath ſaid, If ye be my Friends, then keep my Commandments. John 15. 14. Therefore you muſt endeavour ſo to do, and to do it upon that motive chiefly; and to walk with God as Enoch did, obſerving all God's Carriages to you, and yours, to God-ward; as one that is reconciled, obſerves him in all his Dealings, interprets all in Love, depends on him, truſts on him, &c. And alſo watch over your ſelves in all your ways, and be Fearful to diſpleaſe him and his Goodneſs, Hoſ. 3. 5.

12. Only in the laſt place, All theſe Addreſſes tending to Reconciliation, muſt proceed from an Inward Principle of pure good will unto God, which is the Soul of Reconciliation; and which therefore God regards and requires above all things elſe: Not only in reſpect of his own Greatneſs and Sovereignty (which exacts all in the Creature to be for him, Rom. 11. laſt, and to be wholly referred unto him) but alſo in a way of Ingenuity. He is the Superiour, yea Sovereign, in this Friendſhip. The Nature of true Reconciliation requires it, eſpecially with reſpect to ſuch an one, who being ſo infinitely above us, doth condeſcend to this Relation of Friendſhip with us: Yea, and ſubjects himſelf to all, even the loweſt Laws and Expreſſions of Love and Friendſhip, which any, the meaneſt Friend on Earth can be ſuppoſed to do. Ariſtotle indeed denies That the true Law of Friendſhip can hold between one too much Superiour, and an Inferiour: For the Intereſt of one riſeth ſo high to Sovereignty, as excludeth pure Good Will; and in the Inferiour it falls ſo low to Subjection, as it admitts too great a mixture of by-ends. And ſo true Friendſhip is excluded on either hand: But this Philoſopher never knew our God, nor yet the power of the Divine Nature in us. He could not have imagined that God, who is ſo great, could be ſo good; and ſtoop unto ſuch low Carriages and terms towards us (as to Inſtance in one out of the text) to beſeech us to be reconciled.

But above all, this is expected by him, whoſe Friendſhip is wholly free. The Title of it is free Grace, meerly out of pure good Will; The good Pleaſure of his Will, and can have no other ends. And all, without ſuch ſincere Obſervance of God, is but plain flattery: And God, who alſo is ſo wiſe as not to be mocked, accounts it ſo; for ſo he judgeth and pronounceth of thoſe, that yet earneſtly ſought him, Pſal. 78. 34, 35, 36, 37. They ſought him, and ſought him early, that is, diligently. When he ſlew them, they ſought him, and they returned and inquired early after God. And they remembred that God was their Rock, and the high God their Redeemer. Nevertheleſs they did flatter him with their Mouth, and they lied unto him with their Tongues. For their Heart was not right with him, neither were they ſtedfaſt in his Covenant. But God is not mocked, for tho' men cannot ſee and diſcover thus much often in thoſe they deal with; yet God doth, who ſearcheth the Heart, takes notice of it, you ſee, and deals with men accordingly. Now, flatterers are diſtinguiſhed from Friends by this; That a Flatterer is one who ſeeketh indeed Friendſhip, and abounds in offices of Friendſhip for his own ends, and chiefly out of by-reſpects; but a true Friend is one, who beſides by-reſpects, doth things out of good-will to the party: God doth indeed give thoſe who ſeek Reconciliation with him, leave to have a reſpect to themſelves, their own Safety, and Recompence of reward; for elſe he were not a true Friend to them, if he did not ſuffer them to look to their own Good, which as he ſubordinately profeſſeth to have aimed at in their reconciliation to himſelf, though contrived chiefly for his own Glory, ſo may they; and therefore ſays Chriſt, Luke 12. 4, 5. I ſay to you my Friends (to ſpeak in the language of the Text) Fear him that can kill Body and Soul. So as to fear God, as one who is able to caſt us into Hell, may ſtand with Friendſhip. I Say to you my Friend, There is the fear of Hell allowed thoſe who are in Communion with him, and alſo hopes of Heaven. So God ſaid to Abraham whom he calls his Friend, I am thy exceeding great reward. And one Eye he had thereto, Heb. 11. 16. But now they deſire a better Country, that is an Heavenly. Wherefore God is not aſhamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a City. And Moſes too (v. 26.) Eſteemed the Reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the Treaſures in Egypt, for he had reſpect unto the Recompence of the reward. And this Moſes, God treated as a man doth his Friend, Exod. 33. 11. And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes face to face, as a Man ſpeaketh unto his Friend. But yet, if there be no further principle of Good-will predominate, it is but flattery; and though I confeſs, that happily in one newly ſcared out of his natural eſtate, this principle is not ſo ſoon and ſo eaſily diſcerned, yet after a while it may; which, becauſe it is the main, and Soul of all the former Acts, I will therefore a little more inlarge upon it. And herein I will not attempt to affix a different Character of Friendſhip and Flattery, upon each and every of thoſe particular acts and paſſages of Reconciliation formerly mentioned; nor keep punctually unto all thoſe Acts ſpecified in the 78*th Pſalm*, though this is feizeable, and might be done, as for example: It is here ſaid, when He ſlew them, then they remembred he was their Rock and Redeemer. A Traveller in fair Weather paſſeth by a Rock, minds and regards it not; but in a Storm he runs for Shelter to it; but yet dwells not there: But one truly wrought on, though he firſt run to God in his diſtreſs, and after often doth ſo; yet ever after he makes him his Houſe and Dwelling place, Pſal. 90. 1. Tis the Voice of the whole Church, Age after Age, Lord thou haſt been our dwelling-place in all Generations. And in the next Pſal. 91. verſe 1. He that dwells in the ſecret place of the moſt high, ſhall abide under the ſhadow of the Almighty. I obſerve,

1. That it is the Deſcription of a Man truly Godly, to be one that Dwells in God; yea, and in the ſecret place, the Heart, the Boſom of God, and hath intimate Communion with him: He affects that room; and if he cannot get in, is ſtill knocking at it, takes it up for his conſtant abode. And 2. A ſhelter in it, and from it, comes in it ſecundarily as to his aim; for it is the promiſe made upon it. He ſhall abide under the ſhadow, that is the Protection, of the Almighty. It is the Love of God he principally aims to dwell in, 1 John 4. 16. God is Love, and he that dwells in Love, dwells in God, and God in him.

I might ſecondly obſerve the like upon that other paſſage, They flattered him, in running then to him, but only as a Redeemer. The Holy Ghoſt is exactly punctual in expreſſing the bottom Differences of their Flattery. A Man is like to Dye, he ſends to the Phyſitian, but as a Phyſitian only; he never did, nor doth now regard the Friendſhip of the Man. Pharoh ſends in all haſte ('tis ſaid) for Moſes and Aaron, Exod. 10. 16. when he never cared more to have ſeen them: So, verſe 28. See my Face no more. But yet in his diſtreſs he ſays unto them, I have ſinned, forgive, and intreat the Lord your God to take away this Death only. What need was there for him to put in this Excluſive, this Death only. He was an Ignorant Heathen, and ſo ſpeaks out his Heart plainly. He knew not how to flatter this God. (For God was a ſtrange God, whom he profeſſed not, he ſtill ſtiles him your God) he ſpeaks as indeed it was, he profeſſeth to care for God no further. But thoſe very Men (of whom the Pſalmiſt here ſpeaks) that were brought out of Egypt from under this Pharoah, profeſſed God to be their God, and to have been their Redeemer out of Egypt. And they, in their Speeches, when they return to God, carry it otherwiſe; yet their Hearts at the bottom were the very ſame; and therefore of them tis ſaid, they flattered him with their Tongues. And thus Men profeſſing Chriſt in the Church, do not ſay unto God, when they pray to him; or unto Men, when in diſtreſs of Conſcience, Sickneſs, &c. Take away this Hell only: They do not ſay it, but God, that knows the Mind of their Spirit in them, knows it is all, and the whole they would have with him; yet they give good words, conceal this to be all or the main of their intentions; yea themſelves, out of ſelf-flattery diſcern it not. But yet ſtill they think and mean the very ſame, though Pharoah only ſpake it out. And therefore they are ſaid to flatter him. But what doth a godly Mans Heart ſay, in his Diſtreſs? He runs to God indeed as a Redeemer, but coming to him, he finds Eſt aliquid in Chriſto formoſius Salvatore. The Lord is my Portion, ſays the Soul, Lament. 3. 24. And it was ſpoken in as deep diſtreſs, as ever Soul was in, as is apparent from the Chapter. What ſaith David from the very bottom of his Heart in his ſickneſs? Not take away this Death only; No, but David being Sick, firſt comforts himſelf with this promiſe, Pſal. 41. 3. The Lord will ſtrengthen him upon his Bed of Languiſhing, and make his Bed in his Sickneſs. And then adds, v. 4. I ſaid, Lord, be Merciful to me, and heal my Soul; that is, deſtroy my Luſts, which are the Diſeaſes of my Soul, Lord; and heal my Soul, and renew Life and Communion with thee, which is the Health and Strength of my Soul. Do not take this Sickneſs and Death only away, but this ſin away, that hath diſhonoured thee, hath ſeparated between me and thee: Heal my Soul, for I have ſinned againſt thee.

I need not ſo punctually purſue the reſt of theſe Inſtances of their flattery, that follow in the 78*th Pſalm.* I choſe rather to ſingle forth ſome of the eminent Acts contrary to the forementioned Particulars, in which I ſhewed Reconciliation to God to conſiſt, and I muſt inſtance but in a few of them, and in them make forth the difference between Flattery, and true Friendſhip, and Good Will.

1. The Firſt is that of ſeeking God, (which I have been large upon before) and even that alſo is mentioned in the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 78. 34. When he ſlew them, then they ſought him, and enquired early after God; that is, diligently: As what a Man riſeth betimes to do, he may be ſaid to do with earneſtneſs and diligence. They ſought him, but ſtill as a Redeemer only, as was obſerved. Now let us bring it to the buſineſs of Reconciliation, which is the point in hand, and the difference will appear, what ſeeking of God is only out of Flattery; what alſo out of Friendſhip.

1. Firſt then, there are two things in Reconciliation, which the Goſpel propounds, Luke 2. 14. Peace and Good-Will. Firſt Peace, quiet of Conſcience in regard of the pardon of Sin. Secondly, Gods Favour and Acceptation, ſo that God Receives us, Loves and Delights in us. Now to ſeek Peace only, and to aim at Peace alone in ſeeking God, may be in a Flatterer, as in thoſe (Pſal. 78. 34.) who ſought him whilſt he was a ſlaying them; who were earneſt that God would be pacified towards them, but that was all; Enemies to a Prince may earneſtly ſeek Peace, and their Pardon, who yet care not whether ever they ſee the Kings Face any more, and whether they live in his preſence and ſerve him, and attend him all their daies. But now one that hath good will to God in him, though he will ſeek Peace alſo, yet that alone doth not content him; for he ſeeks, as a Favourite ſeeks to his Princeas; a Lover or Mover, to one he is in Love withal; whom nothing but Love and Good Will again will ſatisfie, Jer. 2. 2. I remember (ſays God) the kindneſs of thy Youth, The Love of thine Eſpouſals, when thou wenteſt after me in the Wilderneſs. They went after him, and wooed him, as a fond Lover doth. So doth he that ſeeks aright, he ſeeks to God for Favour, as a Friend doth to a Friend, to be anſwered with Love, and to live in his ſight, and preſence for ever. To ſuch an one therefore who thus ſeeks God, and hath ſuch an aim in ſeeking him; if half the News were brought to him, that God would Pardon him indeed, and not throw him into Hell, but let him enjoy the World, but yet that he can never love or delight in him again; this would grieve him more then the other would rejoyce him. That which Abſalom but feigned, they can and do ſay in truth, 2 Sam. 14. 32. Let God kill me, rather then not ſuffer me to ſee his Face; for 'tis his Face they ſeek. And ſo the Generation of them who ſeek the Lord, is diſtinguiſhed. Pſal. 24. 6.

2. Secondly, It will appear whether Good-will be in your ſeeking God, from the Iſſue and Event of it, for either God withholdeth his Face from a man in seeking him, and seemeth to reject his suit, keeping him so in suspence, as he knows not whether he will save him or no: Or he gives him some Evidence and Assurance of it. One of these two Cases will fall out, and in either of them will pure good will to God discover it self, when a man seeks aright. Chap. 4

1. If God withholds himself and his Face from a sincere Soul, yet still that Soul is enabled to cast himself upon him and his free Grace, and to refer himself and his Case to his meer Good Will and Good Pleasure. He can still put himself into his hands, as David did, 2 Sam. 15. 26. Here I am, if he hath not Pleasure in me, let him do what seemeth good in his eyes. Thus Job also did; Job 13. 15. If he kill me, yet will I trust in him. If he dyes, he resolves to dye seeking at his feet: And it is the good will he beareth unto God, which causeth him to do thus, because he cannot leave God. But one whose heart is not right with God in seeking him, when he hath sought a while, and seeking amiss obtains not, he leaves off his suit, and withdraws himself, and will not trust his Soul with him; this seems express by comparing that Speech of the Apostle Heb. 10. with what you find in Habakkuk, whence it is cited. The words of Paul are, Heb. 10. 36, 37, 38, 39. For ye have need of Patience, that after ye have done the Will of God, ye might receive the Promise. For yet a little while, and he that shall come, will come and will not tarry. Now the Just shall live by Faith; but if any man draw back, my Soul shall have no Pleasure in him. But we are not of them, who draw back unto Perdition; but of them that believe, to the saving of the Soul. Patience in waiting and believing, is made the Character of a true Believer; and withdrawing, is the Character of Impatience in one whose heart is not upright within him. Hab. 2. 3. 4. For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the End it shall speak, and not lye: Though it tarry, wait for it, because it will surely come, it will not tarry. Behold his Soul, which is lifted up, is not upright in him: But the Just shall live by his Faith.

2. Secondly, One that seeks out of good will, when he obtaineth any Glimps of God's Favour, he rejoyceth in it, and in God more than in Life and the Hope of Heaven, Rom. 5. 2. and 11 verses compared. The Apostle, you may perceive, proceeds by way of Gradation in the Effects of Faith in a Good and Sound Heart. He hath first Peace, v. 1. then 2*dly*, he rejoyceth in hope of Glory, v. 2. then 3*dly*, not only so, but (v. 3.) we glory (says he) in Tribulation, and not only so, but (says he v. 11.) we joy in God, even in God himself. To rejoyce in hope of Glory, speaks something of Good Will, as hope imports: But it is a strain yet purer and higher, to rejoyce in God himself. And therefore if the Soul hath not outward things, yet God is enough; and if he hath them, he rejoyceth more in them as they are Love-tokens of his God, than in the things themselves: And he is more fearfull to displease him out of fear of his Goodness Hos. 3. 5. When God speaks Peace, he returns no more to Folly, Psal. 85. 8. It works more strength, hatred, and loathing of sin. But the unsincere Soul, if he conceives any hope (as often they do feed themselves with ungrounded hopes and shadows of Assurances) grows the more securely Presumptuous, turns that Grace into Wantoness, as self-love is apt to do, 3. Jer. 4. Thou calleſt me Father, and yet doeſt as evil as thou could'ſt. But when God truly works, he says in opposition to that former, Thou shalt call me Father, and shalt not turn away from me. Even as Absalom sought to be in Favour with his Father, but rebelled the more. So it proves in the Issue with a Soul unsincere; for though the Assurance of God's Love is the surest motive to work upon a Principle of Love and pure Good will, unto God in the Heart; (The Love of Christ constrains me, saith the Apostle) yet when there is nothing but self-love in the heart, it abuseth that Grace it seeks for, and thinketh it hath attained, for it hath not Ingenuity in it to God.

2. The Second Particular I would Instance is, Confession of Sin with mourning; which I instanced in, as one Eminent Ingredient into Reconciliation with God.

Book III

God. This Flatterers also may seem seriously to do. So Ahab mourned and went softly; and (Isaiah 58. 5.) They are said to hang down their Heads like Bull-Rushes. But if the mourning be out of Good Will,

1. Then first, a man's Heart will not only mourn for sin, as having brought misery upon him, or as that which hath cast him out from God, which whilst a man doth, he indeed lamenteth but himself: As a Traytor at the Gallows lamenteth that he should come to such a miserable end, and deserve such a death; as Cain mourned; when he cryed out, My Punishment is greater than I can bear. It was the Punishment pinch'd him. Thus to mourn for sin in relation to misery, though we do it thus before God, is not mourning but howling, Hos. 7. 14. Or as David terms it, roaring Psal. 32. 3. But in true Mourning, which comes out of Good will, they are said (Zach. 12. 10.) to mourn for him whom they had pierced, as a Mother for her Only Son. In which, Two things are Observable for our Purpose, (which is to distinguish Mourning) first, that they are said to mourn, not so much for sin, much less their Misery, as for Him; that is, for sin in Relation to him; as it is an Injury, provoking, wronging, and piercing him. As David in Confession, Psal. 51. sets this Accent upon his sinning, in saying, Against thee, against thee have I sinned. In the verse afore he says, his sins were ever before him, as that which is a man's greatest and heaviest Affliction useth to be. David had other things enough to have had afore him, as the shame &c. But these things, though when Sin fell light, they were heavy, yet now are vanished and disappear; And the sin, the sin is ever afore him: And what was it in the sin? Even this, that against God he had sinned. Wherein I observe, 1. That he considers it, not only as done in God's Sight, in his Presence, and afore him only, and he looking on, though he aggravates it by that; but chiefly, that the sin was committed against him, as the object: And 2*dly* He repeates that twice, as in Sorrow we use to do what most deeply affects us: As David on another Occasion cryed out, Oh Absalom, my Son, my Son; So here he says twice, against thee, against thee &c. And 3*dly* as not content with this, he adds only (against thee only) As the only Consideration that at present moved him; though he had sinned against Bathsheba and Uriah too, and all the People of God. And hence, because God is the Object, the terminus of such Sorrow, it hath therefore its denomination from God; and is called, Sorrow according to God, 2 Cor. 7. 9, 10. κατὰ Θεὸν λύπη, as Acts are denominated from their Tendency.

2. And Secondly. The comparison the Prophet useth, Zach. 12. 10. argues it sprang from pure goodwill: For his Words are, as a Mother Mourneth for her only Son: What else moveth a Mother to Mourn for the loss of a Son, especially of an Infant, but Good-will to it? You know how David took on for his Son Absalom. Children are in dependance upon their Parents, and may Mourn out of self Love; because when they are gone, they are left Orphans, and helpless. If therefore he had instanced in the Mourning of a Child, Self-love might at least have been supposed the principal Motive; but when he says as a Mother for her Child, he can mean nothing more, than that out of Love they do it. It is one thing to come and Mourn for Sin before God, and bemoan our selves to him, and another to Mourn for him, and for Sin, as done against him. A flatterer may do the one, but an ingenious friend only the latter, Ezek. 6. 9. They that escape of you shall remember me among the Nations whither they shall be carryed Captives, because I am broken with their Whorish Heart, which hath departed from me, and with their Eyes, which go a Whoring after their Idols: And they shall loath themselves for the Evils which they have committed in all their Abominations. This also is spoken of the true and kindly Sorrow of heart wherewith the Godly come unto God.

Now 1. As afore you heard, they mourned for him: So here, says God, they shall remember me. And upon the thought of him, whom they have so sinned against, shall loath themelves. Now that which must cause self to hate hate it ſelf, muſt be pure good will to God above a man's ſelf. To remember God, is to think of him, with the deepeſt Affection of Love, as the words of Chriſt in the Inſtitution of the Sacrament import, do this in remembrance of me. Chap. 4.

2. What is it concerning God in ſin, that makes them loath themſelves? Even this, That it hath broken God's Heart. The Godly look upon ſin as God doth; ſee that to be the evil in ſin, which God doth; Yea, they look upon it alſo with God's Heart; And what affects God in it, affects them. 'Tis ſaid (Num. 11. 10.) God was angry, and Moſes was diſpleaſed alſo. Yea they mourn for it, becauſe it affects God's Heart, as true Friends, that have but one heart and one Soul: Thy Friend (Deut. 13.6.) that is as thine own Soul: So God and the Saints have as it were one Heart, which conſiſts in pure good Will. And therefore, God that knows the temper of true Hearts to him, propounds this as the object of their Sorrow, that the thought that his Heart was broken, was the chief thing that breaks theirs. And this motive no Principle in man, but love, can apprehend and take in. A Sincere Soul conſiders this as the Eminent Evil in his ſinning; that God's Heart is broken with the unkindneſs of it, as an Husband for the departure of a Wife whoriſhly from him (to which that place alludes) and ſo mourn for it.

3. The laſt words (in Ezek. 6. 9.) do import ſome ſuch thing; for they run thus: That they ſhould Loath themſelves for the Evils Committed in their Abominations. Not for their Abominations ſimply, in the groſneſs of them; for Wicked Men mourn for their Abominations when outwardly groſs: But this Expreſſion imports there were certain ſpecial Evils in their Abominations (the greateſt of the Evils therein) which they ſpied out to mourn for, as their unkindneſs to God, falſeneſs in them to God, &c.

3. Thirdly, The ſincerity of this Mourning will appear in the iſſue and event, in the Caſes forementioned. For,

1. If God forbear to ſpeak Peace and Pardon to him, and rather ſeems to be an Enemy, and to fight againſt him, (Iſa. 63. 10.) in that Caſe he joyns with God in Self-Revenge. Thus, (2 Cor. 7.11.) Godly ſorrow (among other things) worketh Revenge, on ones ſelf (as they had done on a Church-member, of which 'tis principally ſpoken) ſo as he hates and loaths himſelf, and turns Enemy againſt himſelf, (Ezek. 36. 31.) Judgeth himſelf worthy to be deſtroyed. So the old Tranſlation renders it. He finds it in his Heart now that at the latter day, his Heart would of it ſelf ſtep out the firſt, before ever it were accuſed, and ſay, Here am I, that have deſerved thy utmoſt deſtruction. And if he thought he ſhould be Deſtroyed, he finds ſome little Relief in this, that God is avenged on one of his Enemies.

2. If he hath aſſurance that God will Pardon him, then the more Aſſurance or Hopes, (that riſe to any greatneſs) he hath of Pardon, the more he Mourneth. Aſſurance broacheth Godly Sorrow, ſets it a Working, and giveth vent to it. Ezek. 16. 61. Thou ſhalt remember thy evil Ways, and thy Doings, which were not good. And remembring them, (v. 63.) ſhalt be Confounded and never open thy Mouth any more, becauſe of thy ſhame, when I am pacified towards thee for all that thou haſt done. Then cometh in the greateſt Confuſion; Shame and Grief overcoming the Heart moſt, when God is pacified. God overcomes when he Pardons, as well as when he Judgeth: And hath a greater Victory over the Soul whom he Pardons, then over the Damn'd in Hell. And there is in ſuch a Soul as true a Confuſion of Face, though of another kind, that ſo no Fleſh may Glory in his preſence; but the more hope an unſincere Soul, who ſeeks out of Self-Love, and Mourns only out of ſelf-Love, hath, the leſs he mourns: Like a Traytor, that when he hath got what he would have, and is in hope to obtain his Pardon, his eyes are dry:

4. Fourthly,

Book III

4. Fourthly, There muſt be good Will in acts of Obedience alſo, and in chooſing the things that pleaſe God. You know what Chriſt ſays, John 15. 14. If you be my Friends, do what I Command you. Now if there be good Will in the Heart, it will appear: A Man may Diſcover it one time or other by the Diſpoſitions of his Heart, either, 1. Sometimes before the Obedience performed. 2. In the Performance. 3. After the Performance, or the doing any thing for God.

I. Firſt, Before the performance by two things.

1. Inaſmuch as the chiefeſt aim of his Heart in it will be to ſhew forth and expreſs his good Will to God. As he does it as a Friend by way of requital to a Friend, whoſe utmoſt end is to ſhew his Love to the Party: So the chiefeſt things he deſires is, that God would but accept it for ſuch; and take it in good part, and take notice of his Love in it; which Love of his is more then the thing, though he grieves it ſhould be ſo little. And therefore a Godly Mans Obedience is termed Thankfulneſs. When Mary came and beſtowed that Coſt upon Chriſt, and Waſhed his Feet with Tears, Her utmoſt end was but to ſhew Her Love; Which therefore Chriſt took notice of, and ſpeaks of, and accepts of, above all elſe: She Loved much, becauſe much is forgiven her, ſays Chriſt. As if he had ſaid, All this is but to teſtifie Her Love, and Godly Sorrow, which I take notice of, and will therefore have recorded to the end of the World. Therefore it is called, Heb. 6. 10. The Labour of Love. And hence often-times (perhaps not always) the greateſt and ſtrongeſt Motives that can be uſed before, to perſwade and prevail with the Heart to Obedience, is taken from Loves Topicks, from God's Love, as appeareth by Chriſts dealing with Peter, whom when he would effectually perſwade to feed his Church, he telleth him not of Livings and Preferments by it, nor of the Woe if he Preached not, but he uſeth a Motive of another kind, ſtronger then all theſe; Peter, Loveſt thou me? I am perſwaded it broke Peter's Heart to hear Chriſt thus queſtioning with him, and to think that he had given him occaſion, by his Denial to make a Queſtion of it. He modeſtly Replies, Lord (ſaith he) thou knoweſt, that tho I have dealt Unthankfully, and falſely with thee, that yet I Love thee, and am willing to do any thing for thee: Whereas another performs his Duty, but at beſt, as a Servant doth a buſineſs for a Maſter, and ſo he may do it even becauſe he is Commanded, but yet his utmoſt aim is not as a Friend to ſhew his Love; But what ſays Chriſt, If ye do whatever I Command you, that is, out of love, then henceforth I ſhall call you Friends, not Servants. John 15. 15. Or elſe the Man doth his Duty as a Bribe to a Judge, to buy off his Puniſhment, Mich. 6. 6. Where withal ſhall I appear before the Lord? What ſhall I give him? His manner of ſpeaking bewrayes, he did it to Bribe the Lord, to get his Pardon: An Enemy being in an Enemies lurch, may do as much for his Enemy, and for one he regardeth not.

2. Secondly, The good Will that is in the Heart will appear before the performance of any Divine Service in a readineſs to do it. As if a Man truly loves a Friend, his Love to him is a Preparation in his Heart; and makes it ready to do any thing before he asketh it. And therefore (1 Pet. 5. 2.) They are ſaid to do what they do (if they do it as they ought) out of a ready mind. And though they cannot do always what they would, as Paul complaineth; Rom. 7. yet (ſays he) at the 18*th verſe*, To will is preſent with me. And therefore it comes off Willingly, Frankly, and Freely, 1 Cor. 29. 14. Whereas another, though he goes about it yet it is out of Conſtraint, as Peter ſpeaks, 1 Pet. 5. 2. And that is not only when Worldly and by-endsmove a Man, but when Conſcience alſo pricks a Man on to it by legal Motives only: And when the Heart is put upon it, it is ſorry, and wincheth, it is ſorry that it is propoudned So as when it is propounded and urged by Motives drawn from God; That of all Love between him and us, we would do ſuch a Duty; as ever we would do him a kindneſs, or ſhew our Love to him: As ever we have received Mercy from him, or look for Communion with him as a Friend; we ſhould obey him in this or that particular, yet the Heart ſtirs not for all theſe, comes not off, until ſelf-Reſpects ſtrike in; God in this Caſe thinks himſelf Denied. Chap. 3

3. Good Will appeareth in the doing of the ſervice to God, 1 John 5. 3. This is the effect of Love to God, that his Commandments are not grievous; and a Man goes about his Work, as about a Friends buſineſs; as Jacob went about Laban's buſineſs; when Love to Rachel ſet him on work, it was not grievous to him; he thought not the time long, becauſe he Loved Her. So any thing we do for God, Love ſweetneth to us, 1 Chron. 29. David offered, and he offered willingly, and rejoyced with great Joy in the doing of it, v. 14. And who am I (ſays he) that I ſhould do it? He thought it a Mercy God would uſe him, and accept it.

4. It will appear after the performance by two Diſpoſitions. Firſt, Thou wilt think every thing too little that thou doſt; as when a Friend ſends Preſents to one who is a Friend indeed, ſtill he thinks that they are not good enough, and wiſheth they were better for his ſake. There are two Companies of Men, who ſeem to have done much for Chriſt, who ſhall appear before him at the latter Day: The one thought they had done ſo much, that they ſpeak of it themſelves, Have we not propheſied &c. But the other that had done much more, and out of Love to him, were ſilent; and not only ſo, but when Chriſt took notice of their Love, they were Modeſt; Wondred at it, were aſhamed, as it were; That ſuch poor Services ſhould be ſpoken of, as not worth the owning. And the reaſon is, becauſe he that hath Good Will in his Heart to God, ſtill his Heart exceeds his Actions. He doth them out of the Abundance of his Heart, as Chriſt ſpeaks. As the Woman that gave her Mite, emptied her Purſe, but not her Heart, being (as 'tis likely) ſorry ſhe had no more to give. And ſuch an one alſo doing it out of love, and that as anſwering, and requiting an infinite Love, meaſuring what is done by both, finds it infinitely too little, not big enough to expreſs his own Love, but much leſs to anſwer Gods: And ſo he is ſorry and aſhamed it is no better: Whereas, one that doth not do things out of Good Will, thinks every thing enough, that he thinks will but ſave him. His Heart is leſs then his Actions, and though by reaſon of Convictions of what he ought to do, he cannot think it too much, knowing it to be his Duty; yet when he doth it, and afterward, his Heart thinks it much, and grudgeth it.

5. Laſtly, In Caſe of Tryal, when in Temptation poor Souls think all they have done is in vain, this Good Will, will appear, in that they repent not of whatthey have done, 2 Cor. 7. 9, 10. It is therefore called Repentance never to be Repented of: There can no Caſe befall them, wherein they do Repent, or are ſorry for what they have done; but ſtill wiſh it had been much better for Gods ſake. If he hath had any Glory by it, and if they ſhould be Damned, and not Rewarded, they are contented to give him ſo much in. Whereas the other, as Suitors when they are out of Hope, ſend for all their Tokens again, though they pretended much Love; ſo they did in the Prophet, It is in vain (ſay they) to ſerve God, and wherefore have we faſted, and thou ſeeſt it not?

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

The Application, or Uſes of the Foregoing Doctrine.

I SHALL now ſhut up this Diſcourſe with what is the Apoſtles chief Scope in the Text, 2 Cor. 5. 18, 19, 20. Viz. An Uſe of Exhortation, to beſeech Men to be reconciled to God; becauſe Reconciliation imports an having been formerly Enemies; and in that caſe, it is (as I ſhewed) neceſſary for Men to apprehend themſelves in a ſtate of Enmity with God, ere they will ever ſeek out unto God for Peace and Reconciliation, or liſten to the true terms of it.

I. I ſhall therefore in the Firſt place earneſtly beſeech all Men to Conſider whether yet ſuch a work of Reconciliation be wrought in them, yea, or no. And this is a Queſtion the beſt and greateſt Man living, may without offence be intreated to ask his own Heart; and it concerns every Man that will have Reconciliation with God, to do it. To this end I beſeech you to Conſider that we were once Enemies, that is, in a ſtate of Enmity, and it is not Chriſts having dyed that altereth that State. You ſee that the Text ſuppoſeth Gods having been in Chriſt Reconciling the World, when yet the World remaineth unreconciled to God; for upon that ſuppoſition he foundeth this Exhortation. Tis true, Chriſt dyed for us, when we were Enemies, and therein his Love was ſhewn, Rom. 3. 8. God Commendeth his Love to us, that while we were yet ſinners, (and Enemies, as it follows) Chriſt died for us: Yet withal it is as true, that we remain notwithſtanding in that ſtate, until a work of Reconciliation to God is wrought in us, through Chriſts death, Col. 1. 22. And you that were ſometimes Enemies, yet now hath he Reconciled. Nothing is more ſure then that we were all once ſuch: And it were well if we had good Reaſons to be as ſure that now we are not. And the Apoſtle every where ſtands upon the important Now, of every Man's Condition; as putting every Man upon the examining his preſent Condition.

2. And Secondly conſider, that this Enmity is ſeated in your Minds and Natures. You are Enemies in your minds. Rom. 5. 8. Whence therefore it muſt be acknowledged that there muſt needs be ſome great Alteration wrought in your Minds, if God and you be Friends: And thence Conſider that therefore it is not Education, or Outward Priviledges, or Deportment in the Church, that either doth alter, or argues your Condition altered. As take a Wolf, a Cubb, that is newly fallen from the Dam, which is as we know in its nature an Enemy to a Lamb, tho' you put it into a Lambs Skin, and bring it up with the Sheep in the ſame Fold, and feed it with the ſame Food, yet ſtill it will remain a Wolf, and an Enemy to a Lamb: Such is our woful Caſe, being born in our Natures Enemies to God, though immediately when we fell from the Womb, we had a Chriſtians Ear-mark given us, were trained up in a Chriſtian Profeſſion, and have been ever ſince fed with the ſame word, &c. yet we are Enemies ſtill, if there be no more alteration in us. It was the Caſe of Simon Magus, Acts 8. 23. I perceive thou art ſtill in the Gall of bitterneſs. And v. 21

Thou-

Thou haſt neither Lot nor Part in this matter, Though he had been Baptized &c. And tho' an Innocent and harmleſs Carriage in the World be added to this, yet this will not argue your Eſtates to be altered, for a Wolf may be ſo tamed, that it ſhall not do much hurt: For every Beaſt hath and may be tamed, as James ſaith Jam. 3. 7. Every Kind of Beaſts and of Birds, and of Serpents, and Things in the Sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of Mankind. And if Mankind can tame Beaſts, their Inward Natural Diſpoſition remaining, but reſtrained; God can do the like, and much more, to the Hearts and Spirits of men, without changing of them. Thou mayſt be a tame Wolf, be Chained up from ranging and devouring, and yet ſtill remain an Enemy: For remember that this enmity is ſeated in thy Mind and Nature. That your Hearts are not filled with ſo much Gall, as to carry you on to evil works, doth not argue you Friends and reconciled; if withal they be not ſeaſoned with ſo much good will to God, as to make you Zealous of good works. Tit. 2. 14. Meer Neuters (if you could be ſuch) are no Friends. God accounts them Enemies, Matt. 21. 30. He that is not with me, is againſt me, ſays Chriſt, our Supream Judge. Chap. 5

3. Neither, Thirdly, is it a forward Profeſſion of what is outwardly good, added to your Inward Carriage, which will argue you to be Friends; for Flatterers may abound in outward Kindneſſes, as well as Friends, Iſa. 58. 2. You ſee a Company there to mention Kindneſſes to God, whom God regards not: For 'tis with God herein, as with great Men, who have many Flatterers, but few Friends, as Solomon expreſſeth it, Prov. 19. 6. Many intreat the Favour of the Prince &c. becauſe of Gifts, and will be Friends (that is ſeem to be) to him that giveth Gifts. And thus alſo God having great gifts in his hand to give away, Heaven &c. and the Keys of Death and Hell at his Girdle; he hath many who do ſeek and earneſtly entreat his Favour, out of ſuch reſpects and ends; and apprehenſions ſtrongly ſet on upon their Hearts, who yet do but flatter him. Therefore truſt to none of theſe, but love to have ſuch a work of true Reconciliation wrought in you, as hath been ſpoken of. Which, if there be, The before mention'd diſpoſitions of pure good will, will be ſooner or later bubling up in your hearts. In brief therefore, take the help and benefit of all thoſe particulars to examine your Eſtates by, and try whether ſuch a work hath been wrought in you.

1. Conſider, whether thou, having firſt apprehended thy Enmity againſt God, thou wert therewithal brought to know God anew, and his Son; and knowing him, didſt fall in love with him, (and All that ever yet have known him, have loved him) not with ſuch a Love only, as we bare to ſome Hero, that doth great and noble things; Or to our dead Founders, whom we ſpeak well of, and Commend their Doings, although we never knew them but by Tradition. (and ſuch at beſt is the Common Love to God and Chriſt, which men bear to them) But ſo to know and love him, as to be enamoured with him, As one in Love uſeth to be with the Perſon he ſets his Affections on. Doth thy Heart burn after him, when thou ſeeſt a Glimpſe of him but paſſing by thee; or to uſe the Phraſe in Job, Art acquainted with him? Job 22, 21. Hath he imparted any Secrets to thee as to his Friends he doth, John 15. 15? Hath he ſhewed and manifeſted himſelf to thee, (John 14. 20.) if not in aſſurance of his Love to thee, yet in the Goodneſs that is in himſelf? Tho' thou haſt ſeen him but as through the Lattice, (as the Church did Cant. 5.) yet canſt thou never be at quiet till thou ſeeſt him again? Hath thy Heart been divorced from all other Lovers upon acquaintance with him? Haſt thou choſen him, and doſt thou ſeek him for ever? And for what haſt thou choſen him, and why doſt thou ſeek him? Good-Will looks eſpecially at the Perſon, not the Fortunes (as you call them) I ſeek not Yours, but You, is the Language of a Friend. Alexander had Two Friends, the One he called Φιλοβασίλευς, A Lover of the King; the Other Φιλαλέξανδρος, A Lover of Alexander; as being a Lover of his Perſon and Diſpoſitions. So many profeſs to love Chriſt, yet do it only as he is a Saviour, And their Judge, and King of Heaven and Hell. They love him not as Chriſt, not for that which God chiefly loves him for, namely, becauſe he is his Natural Son, his Image, the Expreſs Image of his Perſon. Nor do they love him as Chriſt, that is, as anointed with the Spirit, and all the Graces thereof, full of Grace and Truth above meaſure. For which yet the Virgins are ſaid to love him. Cant. 1. 3. Becauſe of the ſavour of thy Oyntments, they love thee: And that, as Virgins, with a pure and chaſte Affection to himſelf, with a Savour of his Graces, Sweetneſs, and Perfumes thereof. Is it the Holineſs, the Amiableneſs, the Love, the Goodneſs, that is in him, which draws thy Heart unto him? What ſays Paul, Phil. 3. 7, 8, 9. But what things were gain to me, thoſe I counted loſs for Chriſt. Yea doubtleſs, and I count all things but loſs, for the excellency of the Knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus my Lord: For whom I have ſuffered the loſs of all things, and do count them but Dung, that I may win Chriſt, and be found in him, not having mine own Righteouſneſs, which is of the Law, but that which is through the Faith of Chriſt, the Righteouſneſs which is of God by Faith. Obſerve it, he had ſuffered the loſs of all for the Excellency of the Knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus his Lord: and Counted them droſs in Compariſon of the Knowledge of him. And his great deſire was, that he might win Chriſt and be found in him, his perſon firſt: And then to be found in him, not having his own Righteouſneſs.

Again, Of all the things, which he hath to beſtow, or that is in him, what is the thing thou eſpecially ſeekeſt for, and ſhalt never reſt ſatisfied or contented without it? Is it his love, his Favour, to have his Heart towards thee, his delight ſet upon thee, to enjoy his Preſence, his Face, to live with him for ever? And deſireſt thou to be happy thy ſelf, that he may greatly delight in thy Beauty; and that thereby thou mighteſt be ſuited to him, and ſo mighteſt come to delight in him; and this in ſuch a manner as nothing elſe will ſatiſefi thee, neither pardon, nor Chriſt's death, with addition of all the World, if it could be ſeparated from the Favour of God, wouldnot Content thee?

Again, Doſt thou Chooſe the things that pleaſe him? And what pleaſeth him moſt, doſt thou chooſe moſt? As a man uſeth to do his Friend, whom he affects to pleaſe: As becauſe thou heareſt Faith pleaſeth him (Heb. 11.) becauſe a broken heart pleaſeth him (Pſal. 51.) glorifying him more then thouſands of Rams (Pſal. 50.) becauſe private prayer pleaſeth him (as himſelf declared, Let me hear thy Voice, it is pleaſant, Cant. 2. 14.) Becauſe Thanksgiving pleaſeth him more than thouſands of Rams (Pſal. 69. 31.) Do all theſe things therefore, delight thy Soul? Becauſe the Sabbath is his delight, and honourable to him, that is, for his honour; is it therefore thy delight, and doſt thou call it Honourable? Iſa. 58. 13, 14. Becauſe the Saints pleaſe him, and are his delight; are they therefore thine? Pſal. 16. 2. In a word, take all Ordinances, doſt thou uſe them as Back-doors to let Chriſt thy private friend in, to the end to ſpeak with him, and to enjoy Communion with him? Doth thy heart upon that Account value the word thou readeſt or heareſt, as a private Letter ſent from a deareſt Friend? Doſt thou think of going to the Sacrament, as of going to a Friend's houſe to ſupper Rev. 3. 20.? In like manner doſt thou regard Private Prayer, as an opportunity of ſpeaking privately and alone with a Friend in Secret?

And again, in thy doing what pleaſeth him, what is it ſetteth thee in thy conſtant Courſe awork? Is it his Love that ſetts thee a work, and Conſtrains thee, 2 Cor. 5. 14. Or if not the ſenſe of that, yet is it a deſire to pleaſe him? And when thou doſt it for him, doſt go about it, as about a Friends buſineſs, not coldly, but ſo as to do it to pupoſe with all thy Might, ſerving him with all thy ſtrength? Grudgeſt thou if thy Luſts or corrupt Affections do get any of thy Spirits, ſo that they are not ſpent for him, and upon him? Thinkeſt thou all this to be no trouble to thee? Art glad when thou canſt do him a kindneſs, that is, any thing, which he may be pleaſed to accept? Thinkeſt thou that day beſt ſpent, wherein thou canſt do him moſt Service? Yea, moſt of all thankeſt him, that thou haſt a Heart to do it? As David did, 1 Chron. 29. 14. And when thou haſt done all, thou yet ſtill fall'ſt down as an Unprofitable Servant, and unuſeful Friend. Thinkeſt thou that 'tis all too little, and confeſſeſt ſtill, this and that is not good enough, ſo as thou couldeſt find in thy Heart to do over all again? Waſt never yet (and that out of Love, not Conviction only) ſatisfied with the beſt Prayer that ever thou madeſt? Art aſhamed of the performance in any kind? Yet becauſe it is thy beſt he hath enabled thee to do, thou deſireſt him to take it in good part; but not at, or in thine own Name, becauſe of thine Unworthineſs, but for his Sons, thy Chriſt's ſake. Doſt thou not find that thou hateſt alſo, where he hateth? Whether it be Sinners, or Perſons as cloathed with Sins. Doſt thou hate thoſe that hate God? Pſal. 139. 21, 22. Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee? And am I not Grieved with thoſe that riſe up againſt thee? I hate them with perfect hatred. I count them mine Enemies. And as for ſins, canſt thou ſay (as David) I hate every falſe way? And that (as he ſays there) out of prizing all Gods precepts in all things to be right, Pſal. 119. 127, 128. And when it falls out that thou doſt ſin againſt him that is ſo good, can'ſt thou yet in truth ſay, I do what I hate, Rom. 7. And then what is it in ſin thou hateſt moſt? Is it becauſe thou feeleſt thy Heart turned (as it were) within thee? Saying, as 2 Sam. 16. 16. Is this thy kindneſs to thy Friend? Shall I do my God, my Friend this wrong? Shall, or ſhould I ſo evilly or unthankfully requite God? Or doſt thou hate ſin, becauſe it breaks Communion betwixt God and thee? And when thou haſt thus ſinned, art thou never quiet, till thou haſt returned, and God and thou art Friends again? And returneſt thou again to him, not as healed by Conſcience, into his preſence; and ſo ſtayeſt not till an Arreſt come forth for thee, or be ſerved upon thee. And until thou art fetch'd in by Terrors, or Afflictions only (though ſometimes theſe are needful) but returneſt thou out of a Longing and Lingring after him; as one without whom thou canſt no longer live, no not in this World, where thou haſt ſo many things to comfort thee? From whom to be eſtranged, is it bitter as Death to thee? So that during all that ſpace of diſtance from him, when thou but heareſt or thinkeſt of him, thy Heart glows within thee, burns after him, and in the End thou reſolvedly comeſt to ſay, I can no longer bear this Life, I muſt return to him again whom my Soul Loves, for then it was better with me than now, Hoſ. 2. 7. I never enjoyed good hour, ſince I wickedly and fooliſhly forſook him. And then when thou comeſt again into his Preſence, what is it broacheth thy Heart, and makes it guſh? Is it thy Unkindneſs to him, doth that Diſſolve and Melt thy Heart, confound and overcome thee, ſtop thy Mouth, ſo as at firſt thou canſt do nothing but ſit in ſilence with thy Mouth in the duſt, laying that moſt to Heart which God lays moſt to Heart. If it had been an Enemy he could have born it: But that thou his Friend, καὶ σὺ τέκνον, doſt it, is intolerable. Thou who waſt once a perfect and utter Enemy unto him as ever was, and yet ſeeing the Miſery and Danger of that Condition; and having heard of his Loving Kindneſs, Grace and Mercy, wa'ſt ſweetly drawn in, won, and allured, by himſelf too, to ſeek his Favour and Friendſhip more then Life: And he as Graciouſly alſo Condeſcended to entertain a Treaty with thee about it; gave thee many Hopes and Evidences of his Favour, which thou haſt prized more than Life; and thou waſt even then when this unhappy Luſt betrayed thee, and carried thee Captive, upon the very point of obtaining the aſſurance of his Love from him. Or ſuppoſe (I ſpeak to one who hath obtained aſſurance from him) That thou wenteſt as Saul, ſeeking after Aſſes, a World of Vanities, and yet even then haſt found thy ſelf in the Ambuſhment of an Infinite and Everlaſting Love, ſurrounding thee without the poſſibility of Eſcape from it. That thou who haſt received all this, ſhouldſt uſe God thus, what baſe ingratitude is it? Well and yet further, when thou haſt come in to him again, and again, (for this is not the firſt or ſecond time that thou haſt ſerved him ſo) and when thou didſt expect nothing but Frowns, if not Rejection by him; Lo, he hath fallen upon thy Neck, ere thou hadſt half ſpoke out thy requeſts unto him with trembling Heart and Lips; and lo, he fell upon thy Neck and kiſſed thee, and Wept Love, Eternal Love, and the Blood of his deareſt Love into thy Boſom, faſter than thou couldſt pour Tears into his. And inſtantly he bid fetch the beſt Robe in all his Ward-Robe, that never yet was put on upon Angels Backs,

Backs, Woven by his Son, and appointed by himſelf, and told thee he had reſerved it by him for thee, from Everlaſting, and that all were Friends again, and 'twould be ſo for Ever. And he left only this kind Sting behind, that he told thee, that thou wouldſt yet ſin again as thou hadſt done before, and ſo thou haſt. And hath not, doth not this yet more melt thee, and cauſe the Tide of Godly Sorrow, to ſwell yet higher as it did in Peter? A good Look of Chriſt made him, go out, and Weep bitterly. And when God hath uſed thee thus kindly, only bid thee take heed of returning to Folly any more. Didſt thou, after that, fear his Goodneſs more then ever thou didſt his Anger? Weepeſt, if others do ſee thee, or thou ſeeſt others ſin? Do, or have Rivers of Tears fallen down thine Eyes, becauſe Men keep not his Law? as David ſpeaks, Pſal. 119. But how remote are ſuch Diſpoſitions as theſe from the Hearts of the moſt of Men, even of thoſe, who yet profeſs themſelves as great and good Friends to God, as any? And if for want of ſuch or like diſpoſitions to theſe, ſo many will be found Enemies (for Chriſt hath ſaid it, he that is not with me is againſt me) where ſhall you that are oppoſers of God and Goodneſs, and mockers of Holineſs; you that are ſecret Maintainers and Flatterers of Boſom-Sins, of Uncleanneſs and Worldlineſs in your own Hearts, ſtrangers from God and the Life of God; not ſubject to the Law of God; and to the multitude of Duties he requireth; Not calling upon God (as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks) where will you appear? I have ranſackt your Hearts; let me now proſecute my begun Exhortation afreſh. I beſeech therefore all thoſe, that ſhall have the leaſt beam of Light darted into their Hearts by theſe Conſiderations, to Conſider with themſelves what to do.

For Conſider; how nearly it concerns you to be reconciled to God. For know that He is angry with you every day (Pſal. 7. 11.) though he ſays nothing. And if thou turn not, He will whet his Sword, and prepare Inſtruments of Death. Unhear'd of Tortures are a preparing; Therefore it behoves us to enquire in what terms we ſtand with God. That King in the Parable (Luke 14. 31.) hearing that a Foreign Prince provoked, was making war againſt him, ſat down and conſidered whether he were able to encounter him. And I beſeech you ſo to do. Whoever went on againſt him and proſpered? Do we provoke the Lord to Jealouſie, are we ſtronger than he? 1 Cor. 10. 22. If I ſpeak of ſtrength (ſaith Job) there is no dealing with him, ſubmitting to him, for he is ſtrong Job 9. 19. What is weakneſs in God, is ſtronger than the ſtrength of men, 1 Cor. 1. 25. What is weaker then a man's Breath, which can ſcarce blow away a Straw; and yet by the breath, of his Countenance we are Conſumed, Job 4. 9. It was but a word, but a breath that made the World; and we are but as the duſt of the Ballance (Iſa. 40. 15.) ſoon blown away. He is wiſe and alſo ſtrong (ſo Job ſaith) And therefore conſider withal, that there is no way of eſcaping, but by ſending out for Conditions of Peace: So in the Parable (Luke 14. v. 32.) That was the Iſſue of that Kings Conſultations; That when he found that his Enemy had prepared againſt him, and would be too hard for him, He ſends out his Conditions of Peace. And withal, let me tell you this for your Comfort, have any of you a mind to make Peace with him? Then be aſſured he will be at Peace with you. The Text 2 Cor. 5. 18. brings the news of it; God was in Chriſt (hath made it his buſineſs) reconciling the World. And contrary to the Uſe and Cuſtom, ſends Embaſſages to us to be reconciled unto him: And lo his Earneſtneſs; All things are of God who hath reconciled us to himſelf. If ever God was earneſt or ſerious in all or any thing, he is in this, Iſa. 27. 4, 5. Fury is not in me: Who would ſet the Briars and Thorns againſt me in Battle? I would go through them, I would burn them together. Or let him take hold of my ſtrength, that he may make Peace with me, and he ſhall make Peace with me. Tho' he be ſtrong, yet as it is there, Let a man take hold of his ſtrength. Take hold of that Arm, which if lifted up in fury, all the whole Creation cannot ſtay, or Rule it. And he ſhall make Peace with me, (ſays God.) Yea all the Power which is in him ſhall be turned for you, and ſhewn in pardoning you. Only let the Bryars and Thorns, (Heb. 6) Sinners that go on in their Sins, and ſet them-themselves in battle-array against him; let them look to themselves, for I will go through them (says God) and burn them together. v. 4. Cap. 4.

And therefore, take Amos his Counsel, Amos 4. 12. That seeing he will surely do thus unto thee unless thou turn, prepare to meet thy God, as that King did in the Parable: And as Abigal did, when She heard that David was coming on in Fury. Throw away your Weapons; Cast away your Transgressions; why will you die? Do as Shimei to David, seeing he will overcome; Go forth to meet him, and put your selves into his hands; 2 Sam. 19. 20. Thy Servant knows (saith he) that I have sinned; So I am come to meet the Lord my King. This overcame David, though Egg'd on by Servants for to kill him. David was overcome by it, being an Ingenious man, much more it will prevail with God, a God of all mercy. The truth is, he desires but to be acknowledged to be God, both in Damning and Saving: To overcome and to be justified, when he is judged; which he is, when he is submitted unto. Do I not know that I am King this day? (saith David) Giving a reason why he pardoned him, v. 20. Thus also, when Benhadad was in Ahab's Power (1 Kings 20.) his Servants advised him, to send Messengers unto him, with Ropes about their Necks, and to put on Sackcloth; thereby to acknowledge, he might hang them up if he pleased; for they, and their King were in his Power, if so it pleased him to deal with them: Only they knew the Kings of Israel, were merciful Kings; and so they came, and put themselves into his hands, and humbly sought him, running by his Chariot side, waiting if any word of hope and encouragement might fall from him. And thus they obtain not of a David, but of an Ahab; an hard hearted Ahab: And if this King of Israel (the worst of them) were thus merciful; what is the God of Israel? The God and Father of mercies!

Go home therefore, and fall down upon thy Knees; and with a Heart broken and dissolved to Water, acknowledge thy Treasons, Rebellions, and Injuries against him, who never did thee Hurt; Yea, who hath never ceased to do thee good; Yea, who hath striven with an unwearied patience, to soften and overcome this strong and stout Rebellion. Lay open all thy sins, and spread all thy bold and bloody Transgressions, as a Scrol before him; set over each their Accents and Aggravations. Point every Confession with tears, and sighs: Rip up thy Heart and Life: Say it is Thou who hast polluted the Earth; Sinned against Heaven and Him that sits therein; And art altogether unworthy of the name, much more of the priviledge of a Son: That thou hast forfeited thy Creation, and deservest not to be called a Creature. Acknowledge thy crime with self loathing and self Condemnation, as with a Rope put about, and ready fitted to thy neck by thine own hand, as Benhadad's Servants did. Say to God, that if he will destroy thee, he may: And if he doth, he shall need no other Judge to Condemn thee, but thy self: No other Indictment then this thy free Confession, made of thine own Accord. And to shew that he needeth not to send for thee, and hale thee to Execution, say, Thou freely presentest thy self to him. And referring thy self to him, say, as David did, 2 Sam. 15. 26. If thou hast not Pleasure in me, do with me as seemeth good to thee. Yet withal, bemoan thy self to him, as Ephraim is said to do, Jer. 29. Confess thou hast perverted that which is right, and it hath not profited thee at all: That thou hast wearied thy self in the ways of sin, and hast run away from him days without number, who is thy Fountain of life: And that it was never well with thee, since thou didst forsake him. Yea, that thou hast destroyed thy self, to do him Injury, in whom alone thy help is to be found. And falling down yet lower, tell him, That now thy life depends upon his breath: That he is that Law-giver who alone is able to save thee, or condemn thee. A word of his saves Thee, and it may condemn Thee. And above all, get thy heart to melt for thy unkindness to him: Say, that though thou hadst never been the better for the Goodness that is in him, or shouldest never hope to be, yet to wrong him, Who is a God, that is so great, and yet withal so good, that hath Infinite Glory joyned with Holiness, Riches of Grace, Mercy with so much

Book III much power; that is ſo able to deſtroy, and ſo willing to forgive; is that moſt grieves thee. That thou ſhouldeſt kick againſt him in whom thou liveſt, and moveſt, and haſt thy being: At whoſe Expence and Charges it hath been, thou haſt hitherto been maintained: And yet to no other end, but to ſin againſt him: ſay to him, That 'tis this thought which wounds thy Soul, Acknowledge that thou haſt already ſpent him Millions of Riches of Patience, and Long-ſuffering, and all to no other fruit or purpoſe but to offend him: And of all which, thou canſt give him no other Account, but Millions of ſins and Injuries returned againſt him. And beſides this vaſt Expence of the Common ſtock of Mercy, common to others with thee, thou haſt neglected and deſpiſed the offer of as much Mercy as were ſufficient to ſave all the Devils (if they were capable of it) And if he yet pardon thee, thou muſt coſt him yet much more, than thou haſt already ſpent him; the Mercies of Eternity, the Soul-blood of his Son, which Blood and Mercy is what thou art now a ſuing for. And after all this, thou muſt be beholden to that free Grace, thou haſt all this while been ſinning againſt and deſpiſing; or thou art undone: And none but everlaſting, unchangeable, and ſure Mercies will ſerve thy turn. Thy Tranſgreſſions and Rebellions and Corruptions are of that extent, that leſs Mercy will not reach or hold out to pardon thee, but fall ſhort of what thou oweſt; which Mercies if yet thou obtaineſt not, it is not for want of good Will in God, but from hardneſs of heart in thee to Him, yea to thy Self. And let this Conſideration further make thy heart to guſh and bleed, and ſtrike thee down into the deepeſt Confuſion, never to look up again, but with Shame and Sorrow; but yet tell him, that if thou couldeſt yet find in thy heart truly to turn to him, he can find enough and enough (to an overflowing) in his heart to be at Peace with thee.

Thus goe and take words unto thy ſelf, as He himſelf directs thee, in Hoſ. 14 2. He will be ſought to, and he loves to be entreated. It is Melody in his Ears to hear a poor Soul bemoan it ſelf unto him. Soft Words pacifie Wrath, (Pro 15. 1.) much more ſtirrs Bowels of Mercy. His heart cannot hold out againſt ſuch Vollies of Tears and Cries from a Heart that is broken. Turn all thou haſt heard or read about Reconciliation on his part, into Motives and Arguments to move him to ſhew mercy unto thee. Tell him it is true, it is in his power to ſhew his Juſtice on thee if he will, and that thou art freely come to preſent thy Naked Breaſt to him as a Butt that deſerves to be ſhot at, and he might ſpend his Arrows on thy hateful Soul, or ſheath his Sword in it, only deſire him to remember, before he doth it, that it is the ſame Sword which he once thruſt into his Son's Bowels, when it pleaſed him to put him to Grief, and make his Soul an Offering for ſin. And when thou haſt ſaid it, ſhut thine eyes and truſt him. And oh! waſh, bathe and plunge thy Soul in that Fountain which he then opened. Beſeech him to Conſider, that He himſelf found out a way to pacifie himſelf for ſin; ſuch a way as thou and all the Angels ſhould have trembled to have thought of, and couldeſt not have believed, but that himſelf hath done it and revealed it: Yea, and that he himſelf, unbeſpoken to by thee, or any of us of Mankind, ſought to his Son to be Mediator, when thou hadſt no being. And ſay to him, Lord, wilt thou not now accept it, when He hath performed it at thine own requeſt, and when it is ſought for at thy hands? Further tell him, that as the motion came firſt from himſelf to his Son, ſo from himſelf firſt to thee: That thou ſhouldeſt never have had the Face or Heart, or Will, to have ſought him thus; but that he firſt ſet thee a work, ſpake to thy hard heart, won, and allured thy Soul to truſt, by what thou heareſt of his love, which hath ſo taken thy heart, that now thou canſt never part with it. He doth beſeech thee by us to be reconciled to him; and though he doth it by us, yet he would have come himſelf, but that he is to appear in Heaven to intercede. Urge him, that there are but a few in the World, that do ſeek to be reconciled to him, and if he ſhould turn any away that do, he would have fewer. Who would fear him if there were not mercy in him, and plenteous Redemption? And thou mayſt wax yet bolder, according to what you heard out of Job 33. and other Scriptures. Thou haſt heard by his Meſſengers, thoſe who have been ſent to thee by himſelf, of an Infinite and all-ſufficient Righteouſneſs in his Son, laid up in him alſo by his own procurement, and be truſted with him for the beſtowing of it upon thoſe that ſhould Come to him for it: Whereupon he hath ſaid v. 26. I will render to man his Righteouſneſs. Put this in ſuit, for it is but as in truſt Committed to him; and plead that he received it to that very end to, give it forth to them that ſue for it. And he hath therefore ſaid that when any one Soul draws nigh unto the Grave (as thine doth now) and a Meſſenger from him ſhews to him, and gives him this Righteousneſs (Job 32. 23.) and that thereupon if he pray unto him, he will be favourable, and he ſhall ſee his Face with joy: And that he will ſay, Deliver him, I have found a Ranſom, for he will render to man his Righteouſneſs, v. 26. Go ſue for it therefore as thine; pray, and plead thou thus, and he cannot deny thee. Chap. 3.

But if it be objected againſt thee, that 'tis true theſe things are in him, but thou art a Sinner, an Enemy: Say thou then that if this Objection ſtand good, his Son muſt be in Heaven alone, and none of Mankind muſt be there with him, No Man muſt ſtand in his ſight. Say, Thou haſt heard, that to take away Sins was the main Deſign of the Covenant of Grace; and had it not been that he meant to ſave Sinners; he needed not have pitcht on the Courſe of ſaving men by his Son; for he might have Created New Friends cheaper: But that he knew the ſaving an Enemy would ſhew more love. If the greatneſs of thy ſins be urged upon thy Conſcience, Say, All Fulneſs dwells in his Son; A fulneſs, and all fulneſs of merit above what thy ſins can reach to. If, that theſe ſins have been Continued in by thee, theſe many years: Urge that this Fulneſs dwells in his Son, and hath done ſo, longer than ſin hath done in thee. But if he ſay, Yea, but thoſe I do ſave, believed, and repented: Ask him, Who gave them that Repentance, and that Faith? Didſt not thou, O Lord? By Grace ye are ſaved, through Faith, Eph. 2. 8. And that Faith is not of our ſelves neither; It is the Gift of God; Which beſeech him therefore to work in thee.

Come thus with a true heart to him; for thou muſt draw near to him, as with Confidence of being accepted, ſo with a true heart; for both are joyned together, Heb. 10. 22. Wherefore I take the meaning to be (in oppoſition to a falſe diſloyal and trayterous heart) to ſignify ſuch a heart as for the future reſolves to be true to him, even as one Friend would or ought to be to another; or as thou wouldeſt be to thy ſelf: A heart truly loving him, reſolving to keep thy ſelf chaſte and true to him alone. Even as the Spouſe that had played the Whore with many Lovers in former times, and now returns woing and ſuing to her Huſband, not only for to pardon her, but to love her, and to receive her again with a Conjugal Love, and to let her enjoy Communion and Fellowſhip with him, as a Wife doth with a Huſband, from whom ſhe had been ſo long time eſtranged. Do thou ſeriouſly and truly reſolve to let go all Whoriſh and Carnal Friendſhip, with other Lovers, as the World, and all things therein, which had enticed thy heart away from God. Come alſo with a true heart, reſolving to be Loyal and Faithful to him, as a Subject to a Lawful Prince; ſubmitting to all his Laws for ever, hating and ſtanding out againſt every ſin as an utter Enemy: Being for him and for his Glory: having reſpect to him in all your Actions (as you would have ſuch a regard to one you love more dearly than your ſelves, whom it grieves you to diſpleaſe, and in Compariſon of holding whoſe Friendſhip, you count not your Life pretious or dear unto you) fully ſubmitting to his Commanding and Condemning Will: Standing out in nothing, Reſolving to give up thy ſelf in the deepeſt Services of doing or ſuffering whatſoever he ſhall ſet thee about: Reſolving to be nothing for thy ſelf, but to be all to him, and true to him as thou wouldeſt be to thy ſelf. All this, I take it, is meant by a true heart: And this it is, to be reconciled. Now ſue thus, and continue ſuing, and all the Saints in Heaven muſt yet be Condemned, if ever thou art; for they came thither no other way than thus. But without this, though not for this (for God accepts freely) an Huſband would never accept his Adulterous Wife (though ſhe ſlubbered never ſo much) except he ſaw ſhe reſolved to live now true and chaſte to him: No more will God receive, except he ſees in thee ſuch holy Reſolutions. And though man may be deceived, yet God ſearcheth the hearts, and cannot be deceived.

Book III

Only in the laſt place, as the Concluſion of all; ſee thou doſt this preſently, and not defer it a whit; and this the nature of Reconciliation requires of thee. For that Reconciliation which ſhall be accepted, muſt proceed out of good will to God, as hath been ſpoken. So as when a man returns, he mourns that he hath ſtood out, and been an Enemy ſo long: And that he came in no ſooner. And therefore if thou ſayſt now, after all this urging, that thou wilt reconcile thy ſelf hereafter, it argues thou intendeſt not to do it in truth of heart, ſo as God ſhould accept thee. For if thou afterwards comeſt out of neceſſity, tho' thou ſueſt (as Eſau did) with Tears, yet thou ſhalt not be accepted, as he was not. If a bare ſubmiſſion would ſerve thy turn, though unfeigned, thou mighteſt defer, and make thy Peace afterwards: But it being to be Reconciliation, it requires abſolutely the preſent time. No time ſo fit as now, deferring argues Enmity. An Enemy will ſubmit to an Enemy, when he is caſt into a ſtrait as Shimei did; but a Friend will return of himſelf.

And beſides, ſecondly Let this thought move you, Shall God and Chriſt have buſied themſelves about your Reconciliation from Everlaſting; and ſpent an Eternity of Thoughts upon it, and will you defer to think of it till the hour of Death, or Sickneſs? Hath God made this his firſt work, and Maſter-piece? And do you make Repentance to be your refuſe work, to be done at your caſt-away leiſure? Hath it took up the delights of the great God, hath he been ſo forward in it; and muſt you be haled and forced to it? And if that will not move you; Conſider the danger of Delays. Agree with thine Adverſary (ſays Chriſt) while thou art in the way. God now in this Life, offers to deal with thee upon terms of Friendſhip, but if once thou comeſt before the Judge (as Chriſt ſays) and ſo before God, as a Judge, will he regard any Ranſom? Will he then come to any Compoſition? No, he will not reſt Content (as Solomon ſaith) though thou giveſt him many Gifts. Or if thou ſhouldeſt then obtain thy Peace, yet it would be upon harder Conditions than now, ten thouſand times. Learn Wiſdom of him in the Parable (Luke 14. 31.) who when he ſaw he was not able to encounter with his Enemy, he ſent to him for Conditions of Peace, whilſt he was yet afar off (the Text ſays) for he knew that if he deferred till the Enemy came nigher, with his Armies of thy ſins and his wrath, and ſat down before the Walls, he would hardly be brought to remove his Siege; and if ſo, yet upon harder Conditions, if at all. Now his coming againſt thee may be nigher than thou art aware. This night, (it may be) the Judge ſtands at the door, ſays James. Yet ſuppoſe Judgement be deferred, and the Judge to be afar off, yet it is the ſafeſt way, to ſend out ſpeedily, and to ſue for Conditions of Peace. For when God's wrath hath begirt thee round about at the day of Death or Sickneſs, it will be more difficult by far, if at all thou doſt obtain it.

God may ſhoot at thee ſuddenly, and at one ſhoot, at one blow, kill thee as he did the Sons of Ely, and cut thee off, ere thou haſt time even to do that which thou thinkeſt will ſerve the turn, which yet will not. For it is not bare Submiſſion, but Reconciliation; not neceſſitated, but free, and voluntary, proceeding out of good will, that muſt be the Condition of thy Peace. Obſerve Shemei's Policy, and follow his Example; who when he heard that David was Setled in his Kingdom, and ſo knew he had Power to cruſh him, he being Conſcious of his Rebellion, came in voluntarily, and was the firſt of the Rebells that ſubmitted, and ſo got his Peace. So do thou, do it now, and be glad and thankful if God will yet, after this long time of Rebellion, accept thee again.

OF THE

(THE Third Person of the TRINITY)

BOOK IV.

Of the Work which the Holy Spirit Effecteth in us, as it is Expreſs'd under the Notion of our being Begotten unto God, and of a New Birth; from which the neceſſity of Regeneration is farther demonſtrated. Of the nature of the thing Begotten in us, as it is ſet forth under the Notion of Spirit. John 3. 6.

CHAP. I.

The Neceſſity of the New Birth demonſtrated, and the Nature of it deſcrib'd, from the Notion of our Being begotten unto God, 1 Pet. 1. 3, 4, 5.

1 PET. I. 3, 4, 5.

V. 3. Bleſſed be the God, and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, by the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the dead,

V. 4. To an Inheritance Incorruptible, and Undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reſerved in Heaven for you.

V. 5. Who are kept by the Power of God, through Faith unto Salvation, ready to be revealed in the laſt time.

THE Believers whom Peter Wrote to, were ſtranger-Jews, caſt out and diſperſed from their own Land and Inheritances (as v. 1. inſinuates) and he being the Apoſtle of the Circumciſion, and ſo the Jews being committed to him, as his proper Flock (as Paul was the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, or Uncircumciſion, Gal. 2. 7.) To comfort them againſt this their diſperſion, he puts them in mind of another and greater Inheritance, which also by a Birth higher and diviner than that of theirs from Abraham, who gave them right to the other Inheritance in Canaan, was estated on them. Who (i. e. God, saith he) hath begotten us to an Inheritance, &c. The Carnal Jew boasted of his birth from Abraham, as that whereby also they challenged God to be their Father, John 8. from the 33. to the 45. And when they had occasion to bless God for any Eminent Mercy, their Form of Blessing was, Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, &c. Psal. 72. 18. But Peter, under the New Testament, instructs them, that instead of glorying they had Abraham to their Father, they should rejoyce and glory in this, that they were begotten again of God, and of the Incorruptible Seed, the Spirit of God, v. 23. And so John Baptist the Son of that Zachary in the early Times of the Gospel taught them, John 1. 12, 13. Compared with Luke 3. 8. and by that Birth they became a Choice Generation indeed, as our Peter speaks in his Second Chapter.

Again, Instead of entituling God by the name of God of Israel, Peter in the New Testament teacheth them to entitle and bless him now as the God and Father of Jesus Christ, and to view him upon that account, as become a God and Father unto them. And Lastly, instead of boasting of their Canaan, their so Antient Inheritance, from which these Saints of that Nation were now cast out, and the whole Nation was to follow them soon after his Death; He Instructs them to solace themselves with a Lively Hope of an Inheritance far better seated and conditioned: An Inheritance Incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in Heaven for you: Which their New Birth had given them right unto. And this is the more special Aspect and Coherence of those words.

I have no further design upon this Text in the opening of it, then what it offers to us concerning Regeneration; which done, I shall leave it, and pass to another that speaks of other things about it. This Text will put us upon the Consideration of Two things concerning it:

1. Why it is termed or called a Begetting, as elsewhere a being born again, and what that Metaphor eminently imports, and instructs in it about it.

2. The Necessity of it, as without which God shews us no Mercy; we can have no hopes or title to this Inheritance.

1. Why is it called Birth, or being Begotten? I shall not prosecute the Metaphor, but chiefly insist on it to shew the Nature of the thing Begotten.

I. It is called a being born again, to shew that it conveys an Image, or Likeness of the Begetter. Men are said to make many things, which are not like themselves; as Artificers do: But they are not said to beget any thing which bears not in specie their own Likeness. The first Adam had an Image to convey to his Seed: Therefore Gen. 5. 3. it is said Adam begat Seth after his own Image and Likeness: So Christ, the Second Adam, hath also an Image to convey unto them that are his (1 Cor. 15. 49.) therefore the way of conveying it is called a Birth, and he a Father, Colos. 3. 10. The New man is renewed after the Image of him that created him, namely at first, it being for substance the same, which (as it follows) is to be like God and Christ in those Gracious Dispositions which he shews to be in himself in his Dealings towards us: So v. 12, 13. Put on therefore, as the Elect of God, Bowels of Mercies, Kindness, Humbleness of Mind, Meekness, Long-Suffering: Forbearing one another, and Forgiving one another, if any man have a Quarrel against any; even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye. As if he had said: As the Elect of God, and chosen of God to be his Children, be like unto him; and Christ, So also be you: Or (as our Peter expresseth, it 1 Pet. 1 15. 16.) Be Holy as he is Holy. Now God's Holiness lieth in Two things: 1. In the things he willeth and Commandeth us. 2. In making his own Glory his own End: Therefore the Image of God in us, must lye in these Two things:

1. A Conformity, or Frame of Spirit, suited unto the things he Commands or willeth; as the Piece is to the Pattern. 1 Thes. 4. 2, 3. For ye know what Commandments mandments we gave you, by the Lord Jeſus. For this is the will of God, even your Sanctification. That is, your Sanctification lies in a Conformity to his Will, and that Will of his as expreſſed in his Commands. Chap. 1

2. In having God's Glory ſet up in our hearts as our own utmoſt End, and as the Square, and Meaſure of all our Affections, and Actions, &c. (as ſelf-love was before, in us) and the one to be made as Co-natural to us, as ſelf-love once was. This is Holineſs, and it can be no other or further thing, even as in God himſelf it is not: It being that in him, which forms, orders, diſpoſeth, guides, directs, acts all for himſelf, and ſwallows up all into himſelf. Now in the Creature, Holineſs the likeneſs of what is in Himſelf, and ſo it is a diſpoſition to be for God, even as God is for Himſelf, Therefore what ever is good or excellent in the Creature, of what kind ſoever of Gifts of Righteouſneſs, it falling ſhort of the Glory of God, it becomes ſin. So ſaith the Apoſtle (Rom. 3. 23.) ſetting forth in a ſummary concluſion the ſinfulneſs of man's nature as fallen from God, to which he had ſpoken v. 10, 11. As it is written, There is none Righteous, no not one. There is none that underſtandeth, there is none that ſeketh after God; that is, there is none that aimeth at or ſetteth up God as his chiefeſt End, or ſeeks after him as his chiefeſt Good; and ſo they fall ſhort of the Glory of God, and his Image, in which at firſt they were created. To be born again and to become a Chriſtian, is to make God's Intereſt my own for ever. It is the fundamental Law of Regeneration, and the firſt enacted in the Heart, and is general to all Believers, that are truly ſuch: So Paul ſays, Rom. 14. 7, 8. For none of us liveth unto himſelf, and no man dieth unto himſelf. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: Whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lords. None of us, that is, of us, that are true Chriſtians, though other men are guided by other Principles. Yea, and obſerve his Infererence, it is therefore that we are the Lord's, becauſe we are in both Life and Death for the Lord. Thus it is the Image of God that is Begotten, and although the New Creature may have many other Workings and Stirrings of heart divers ways, in humblings for ſin, ſight of a man's Natural Condition, which are as the Films in which the New Creature is enwraped, yet this is the Birth, the ſubſtance of what is Begotten, and all the other tend unto it. It is the Image of God's Holineſs Limb, for Limb.

II. This work of Grace, and the Image of God wrought in us, is termed a Begetting, to ſhew that it is made a Nature in us, as that Image ſtampt on us by Birth is ſaid to be, and as all Diſpoſitions which we have by Birth, are ſaid to be Natural. To have a thing by Birth and by Nature, is all one in Phraſe of ſpeech; ſo to be blind by Nature, ſignifies that which is ſo by Birth. Hence this work, which in the Scriptures cited hath been termed the Image of God, is by our Peter termed the Divine Nature, (2 Pet. 1. 4.) Nature, for its manner of Inherency, as Natural Diſpoſitions uſe to be inherent in us; Divine, for its tendency and Quality, as that which bears a likeneſs to God's Nature, and which carries the Soul up to him as Nature doth us, unto what is ſuitable thereto. And that by Divine Nature, which ſome would raiſe up to a higher Sublimation of Participation of the Eſſence of God, there is meant ſuch Divine, Holy Diſpoſitions wrought in us, is clear by it's Oppoſite there mentioned by Peter, in thoſe words, Having eſcaped the Corruption that is in the reſt of the World through Luſt. Corruption through luſt, is that which is deſtroyed: And as you uſually ſay, that Corruptio unius eſt generatio alterius; ſo here, the Corruption of this Corruption, is the Production of the New Creature. Now the Corruption that is in all Mankind through Luſt, is the Corrupt Diſpoſitions and Inclinations to evil, which are natural unto us; this is Corrupt Nature, as we uſe to ſay. The Divine Nature is the contrary hereto, which becauſe freely given, is indeed called Grace, but yet becomes a New Nature to a man begotten, and according as the Spirit acts it, it puts forth it ſelf in Diſpoſitions in manner like to thoſe which are natural, as will appear by bringing Jame's words to Peter, Chap. 2. 5, 6. The ſpirit that is in, us luſteth to envy; but God giveth more Grace. That is, whereas the Natural Spirit that is in us, puts forth it ſelf in luſtings, and Diſpoſitions to envy, and it doth it naturally: God gives Grace or Holineſs, to luſt after Meekneſs, Humility: And the one after a man is regenerated is as natural, as the other afore. And accordingly, as the fleſh or Corrupt Nature is ſaid to have its Luſting to evil things, ſo the Spirit of Regeneration is ſaid to have its anſwerable Luſtings to things holy, Gal. 5. 17. ſo as a man may come to underſtand, and withal take an Eſtimate, whether he have the Spirit of Regeneration, or no. Every man knows by Experience what it is to have Luſtings to Evil, Diſpoſitions to Envy, Ambition, Uncleanneſs, Pride, and finds they are his Nature. Haſt thou found the like Diſpoſitions of Love, Ingenuity to God, to ſeek his Glory, to love the Communion of Saints, &c? I need not write to you, ye are taught of God to love one another, ſays Paul, 1 Theſ. 4. 9. The Oppoſition ſhews heſpeaks of it, as ſuch an Impreſſion as by nature God puts into the Creatures, and ſo they are ſaid, to be taught of him; ſuch is this Divine new Nature. Therefore, meaſure that Good that is in thee, by the Evil; I ſay, not for the Degree (thou mayſt find Corruption working more ſtrongly) but for the kind, the one works as naturally, as to the Innateneſs of workings, as the other.

Uſe 1. We read much in Scripture of men greatly enlightened, receiving the Word with joy, made Partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, that yet fall away: Yet among all the Great and Glorious things ſaid of them, you have it no where ſaid, that they are Begotten again, or born again, as likewiſe no where that they are juſtified: And the reaſon is evident, 1. Becauſe Juſtification is the Act of God towards His, pardoning and accepting of them to Life. And therefore if God doth it at all, he doth it truly and really, or not at all; it can have no Counterfeit: So in like manner, to be Begotten again, notes a ſtate of Sonſhip, a being truly made a Child; for if God Begets, he begets genuinely, it proves always a true Child of his begetting; and whoever is born of God, hath his Image, his Nature, or as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, True Holineſs, Eph. 4. 24. And that you put on the New man, which after God is Created in Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs. They are ſaid to be ſanctified, Heb. 10. (for that may have a Counterfeit) namely, a ſetting apart to outward Service by Gifts and Enlightenings: But to ſhew it is not True Sanctification, or after God in True Holineſs, they are never ſaid to be born of God. They as Servants live in the Family, are put into Offices and Services, and to that end do receive Gifts and Graces to lay out as Talents Mat. 25. which not improved they loſe: But being not made Children, therefore it is they abide not always in the Houſe, as Chriſt ſpeaks, John 8. 35. And the Servant abideth not in the Houſe for ever, but the Son abideth ever. They are hired Servants, not Begotten Children: They have Gifts from him, as a Lord; but not his Image, as from a Father; and ſo are never ſaid to be begotten. Now, take then the pooreſt Soul, whoſe heart hath Child-like Diſpoſitions running in his heart to God, good Nature, Ingenuities; for Grace is but good nature to God, and works toward God, as good nature doth to them we love. Take a Soul whoſe heart is taught of God, to apply it ſelf unto God in all his Dealings, ſo as ſtill his heart works Good naturally and like a Child towards him; if he frowns or ſmiles, loves or chides, whips or gives Favours. He fears his Goodneſs more than his wrath, finds the Glory of God in ſome degree naturalized in his Soul, as the Supremeſt Law, as ſet once next in him before. And though perhaps his Faith cannot call God Father, or challenge him as ſuch, yet his heart utters it, his love cries it: He finds love to God and his People working as kindly in a meaſure, as he hath found ſelf-love working to and for himſelf; his Affections of Fear, Joy, Deſires, hatred, riſing and failing according as the Glory of God is intereſted. The leaſt of theſe are better and ſurer Evidences, than many of thoſe Glorious Incomes you hear ſpoken of, that come and viſit men's Souls at times, as flaſhes of Lightening do a houſe, tranſiently and away: Whereas 'tis a new nature; a holy frame of heart, that is conſtant; a Seed of God abiding, that makes man ſaid to be born again. This is regeneration, and without this all other will come to nothing. After the Apoſtle had ſpoken ſuch Glorious things of men that fall away, Heb. 6. A man then reading v. 9. that there are better things than theſe these, that accompany Salvation, would expect some Seraphical manifestations, exceeding all these, to be those better things. But the Apostle instances in Love to the Name and Glory of God, and his Truth and Children, as one of those things that exceeds all these; which is a Child-like Disposition of one begotten and born of God. Chap. 5

2. The Second thing to be Considered, is the Necessity hereof to Salvation, which is demonstrated out of the Text thus. All do, and will acknowledge that without God's being merciful to a man, there can be no Salvation: But God's mercy (suppose it as abundant as it is, as you are able to conceive of it) can nor never will save any man without Regeneration; for it is clear in the Text, that herein it is that God shews the Abundancy of his mercy, even to beget again those he means to save, as without which he could not save. This is clear also from Tit. 3. 5. According to his mercy hath he saved us, so then we are saved by mercy only, as the moving Cause; but yet how doth Mercy save whom it will have mercy upon? It is, By the renewing of the Holy Ghost. Yea, in the 4th v. herein is made the great appearance or manifestation of the Love and Kindness of God born to any Soul, that he renews it. After that the Kindness and Love of God appeared, not by Works of Righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of Regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost. So then, if God means to manifest Love and Mercy in the Salvation of any, he doth it in and by this, or which is all one, if he loves any, it appears in this. Herein is the Love of God manifested, as John upon another occasion speaks. Now for the Demonstration of this, take such Reasons as are congenial to the Text.

1. Without Regeneration God bears not the Actual relation of, nor becomes a Father to us. God owns no Children but such as are like him, and begotten of him after his Image. If you call on him as your Father (says Peter in the same Chapter, v. 17) then as Obedient Children you must be holy, as he is holy (v. 14, 15, 16.) not fashioning your selves according to your former Lusts; that is, you must be new cast, new fashioned, and so become holy, as he who called you is holy. All are ready to challenge God to be their Father; as the Jews (John 8. 40.) did with a bold and Impudent fore-head Challenge God to be their Father, when yet they were full of Envy and Malice towards Christ and his Disciples. No, says Christ, Ye are of your Father the Devil (and his Image you bear) and his Lusts you will do, v. 44. In the 3d of Jeremy, God, (as Christ doth in John) upbraideth the Impenitent Jews for the like Impudence; Wilt thou not from this time (he speaks what had been their wont from time to time:) come and cry to me, My Father? When, as it follows v. 5. thou hast done evil things as thou couldst. And thinkest to call me thy Father, or that I as a Father will ever own such. But seeing God will become a Father even to such Sinners, how comes it to pass that in the 19. v. God is brought in as consulting with himself how to save these Rebels, and how to come to own them for his Children? And he brings it in by way of objection: But I said, (God makes a stand at it) How shall I put thee among the Children? Come to enroll thee into the Catalogue whom I will own as such. And 'tis an objection God himself can never well answer without turning and regenerating them, and causing them not to depart from him. So it follows, Thou shalt call me My Father, and shalt not turn away from me. There is the answer, and the only answer can be given to it. So then, God is no Father nor owns any among his Children without it.

2. Without this work wrought in us, Christ becomes not our Lord and Husband. When Adam was to be married, God look't over all the Beasts of the Field, and finding never a fit Match for him among them, he made one like him of his own Ribb, and in the same Image with him. Now if thou hast the same Image wherein thou wast born, thou art a more unfit match for Christ, than Beasts for Adam: Would any of you be content to have no other Wife but a Beast, a Cow or a Sow,

Book IV

Sow, or a Devil-Succubus? God would not have Christ unequally yoaked; Now what Fellowship can Light have with Darkness, Christ with Belial? 2 Cor. 6. 14. He speaks it to us in the name and person of Christ, that we should not be unequally yoked; and therefore he would not have Christ much more. God would have his Son have a wife that should please him, and have a Beauty suitable to his Mind; Christ loves Beauty as well as you, as you may see Psalm. 45. 11. Where Christ is set forth as one who hateth Iniquity and loveth Righteousness, v. 7, 8. and therefore God gives his Daughter the Church Commandment to forsake the sins she was born and brought up in. Hearken, O Daughter, and Consider; incline thine ear; that is, to my Son's Commandments; and forget thy Father's House, so shall the King (Christ) greatly desire thy Beauty.

3. Without this, we can have no title to, no hope of enjoyment, or possession of that Inheritance, 1 Pet. v. 5. We can have,

1. No Title. Heaven is an Inheritance, and as Inheritances go by Birth, so doth it also. Who hath begotten us again (saith the Text:) to an Inheritance incorruptible. If no Son, no Heir: And if no New Birth, no Son. Kingdoms upon Earth have two ways of Succession; First, by Choice or Election: Secondly: by Birth; and this latter for a Monarchy is held the best way of Succession. Now God (who takes into his Dispensations all the Rules that men go by) hath ordained to settle and establish Heaven to all that shall be saved by both these titles: 1. by Election, but that is secret to himself. The Lord only knows who are his. Therefore 2. To declare it to Men themselves, and to others, he hath ordained a Heavenly Birth openly and actually to entitle them unto it. Whom he hath predestinated, them also hath he called, Rom. 8. As God gave the Earth and all things in it unto Adam, and all that should be born of him; so hath he given Heaven and all the Promises unto Christ, and unto all that should be born of him also. And as such as was the earthly man, such are the Earthly men; so such as was the Heavenly man Christ, such are all his to become, even Heavenly as he is.

2. Without being converted there is no hope of this Inheritance, Thou mayst have a dead hope, a false hope, that will deceive thee, but not a lively hope. Is any man so fond as to hope for a Crown, that was not born to it? How then can we hope for Heaven, if we have not the New Birth, God's Image, to shew for it.

3. We cannot otherwise possess it. If a reasonable Soul so created by God, would come into this World and possess the good things in it, it must necessarily be put into a Body, and cloathed with flesh, which is to be had from Adam, by a fleshly Generation: (it could else never come to see the Light of this Sun, it could else never see this World, nor possess any thing in it) so nor can Mens Souls ever come to set a foot into the other World the Kingdom of Heaven, if they be not cloathed with God's Image, and so born of Christ. In 2 Cor 5. 3. there is a Parenthesis which bears this sense; If so be that being cloathed, we be not found naked. He is a speaking of the Souls being cloathed with an House from Heaven when separate from the Body, and discoursing thereof he casts in this as a Caution for all Christians, that they loook to it their Souls be cloathed upon with the New Man; which is the Begotten of of Christ; for if they be found devoid thereof, and naked, they cannot expect the enjoyment or possession of the house that is above. This is Calvin's Interpretation, and it is a true one. And hereof Christ himself useth this Expression, That unless a man be born again, he cannot (so much as) see the Kingdom of God, nor peep into it; and much less can he enter into it, or set a foot in it.

3. I may add Thirdly, though he could enter, yet he could not enjoy it. Heaven would not be Heaven to him. Heaven is an Inheritance of Light, says the Apostle, Coloss. 1. 12. and therefore we that are naturally Sin and Darkness, must muſt be made meet for it. Who hath made us meet to be Partakers of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light, having Delivered us from the Power of Darkneſs, v. 13. Chap. 3. Heaven is an Inheritance Incorruptible, 1 Pet. 1. 4. Now if fleſh and Blood (that is, frail mortal fleſh) cannot Inherit the Kingdom of God, nor Corruption Incorruption (as 1 Cor. 15. 50. the Apoſtle ſpeaks) then much more not fleſh; that is, that ſinful Defilement which we were born in. If the Body muſt be changed ere it can be Glorified, then much more the Soul: For this Glory in Heaven is an Inheritance undefiled, and no unclean thing can enter in, Rev. 21. 27. Without Holineſs no man can ſee God; that is, ſo ſee him as to be happy in him. Bleſſed are the Pure in heart, for they ſhall ſee God; and ſo be bleſſed in the ſight of him.

Let us ſee, and make this neceſſity of the New Birth. We are faln into times in which the thing and Doctrine of it is forgotten and laid aſide: In which there are multitudes of Profeſſors, but Few Converts: Many that ſeem to walk in the way to Life, that never came in at the Strait Gate. There is a Zeal amongſt us to advance this or that Reformation in Religion: And it hath been all the Cry: But my Brethren, where is Regeneration call'd for or regarded? We have ſeen the greateſt outward Alterations that ever were in any Age, Kingdoms turned and Converted into Commonwealths, the Power of Heaven and Earth ſhaken: But men, although they turn this way and that, from this or that way, from this opinion to that, yet their Hearts generally turn upon the ſame Hinges they were hung on, when they came into the World. In this Univerſity of Oxford we have had puttings out and puttings in, but where is putting off the Old Nature and putting on the New? Where do we hear (as we had wont) of Souls carrying home the Holy Ghoſt from Sermons, of their being changed and altered, and made new, and of Students running home weeping to their Studies, crying out What ſhall I do to be ſaved? This was heretofore a wonted Cry. Converſion is the only ſtanding Miracle in the Church, but I may truly ſay theſe Miracles are well nigh ceaſed; we hear of few of them.

With whatever Advances in Religion, and Incomes from God, or Purity of Reformation, we may flatter our ſelves; I am ſure that Regeneration and Converſion is it that muſt make Chriſtians in this Age, as in all the Ages afore us. As take the Whole Generation of Mankind, though Mankind in one Age hath grown up in ſtature, and in duration of years of Life (as afore the flood:) more then in Another: and may be more Civilized in manners, more raiſed in Parts and Abilities in one above another: Yet the Propagation of the race of men on Earth, is one and the ſame in all; by being born, begotten, formed in the Womb, in all Subſtantials of Being: If they be men they muſt be born. So in the Church, of whatever progreſs in Truths or Holineſs one Age may excell in above another; yet if Regeneration, the thing it ſelf, and the Doctrine of it, goes not on, the Church is not encreaſed, nor is there a multiplication of Inhabitants of the other World.

CHAP. II.

That by Spirit, John 3. 5. is not meant the Indwelling of the Spirit. Nor that in the New Birth, the Holy Ghost produceth in us the same Nature which himself hath.

JOHN III. V.

That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit.

YOU have here the Thing begotten in us by the Spirit of God at the New Birth, set forth in the whole and the general Nature of it, expressing what is most sublime in it. 'Tis Spirit, which denotes the Supreamest kind of Being. I say in the whole Nature of it, that which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit. 'Tis all and the whole of it Spiritual; and this gives us a general Nature common to all the parts of the New Birth. All, and every Grace, tho' Diversified by the special Objects they are exercis'd about; yet agree in this common and general Nature, that they are Spirit, or Spiritual Graces. Sorrow for sin, and Humiliation, is such a sight and sense of sin as is Spiritual. And thus justifying Faith is a Spiritual Faith in all the Acts of it.

I. Let us enquire what is meant by Spirit here, by considering what it is not.

1. It is not the Communication of the Holy Spirit himself, which is here meant; For tho' indeed he himself is given to us as the Author of our Regeneration, and tho' himself dwelleth in us immediately, and not by his Graces only (as I have before proved) yet the giving of, and the Indwelling of the Holy Ghost in us, is in no wise to be term'd our being born of the Spirit, nor is it any where in Scripture so styled. Our being born of the Spirit, notes out an Effect, or Work of the Spirit in us, as that which is born of Another is: And as the conception of the Humane Nature of Christ is said to be of the Holy Ghost, Mat. 1. 18, 19.

2. It is not the begetting of a Nature, or being the same that the Spirit himself is of. It is not a Communication of the God-head to us, making us God of God, (as some have Blasphemed) nor Spirit of Spirit; In which sense Christ's God-head is termed Spirit, (Heb. 9. 14.) and very God of very God. But this Spiritual Nature in us is not a Spark of the Divine Nature, struck or shot forth into our Souls: But it is for the Kind of it a Creature, which is for ever distinct from the Deity, as the Apostle severs them (Rom. 9. 5.) when he speaks of God as Blessed for evermore. And indeed the God-head in the Indivisible Whole of it is eternal (Rom. 1. 20.) but this Spirit, or Spiritual Nature (of which we are now speaking) is born in time, for it is produced after a man's having been first born Flesh. And besides, it is not only styled a Creature, but the New Creature, and therefore if it were the Divine Nature, or God, there would be as many New Gods, as there are men regenerate.

2. We

2. We are now to conſider what This Spirit, which is born of the Spirit, is. One way, and a ſure one, is to conceive of it by the oppoſite to it, and which is ſet by it on purpoſe to explain it. That which is born of the Fleſh is Fleſh, ſaith Chriſt.

Now what is Fleſh in Scripture ſenſe, as it is oppoſed unto the New Creature? It is plainly not the ſubſtance of a man's nature, or any other ſubſtance a man is transform'd into, but the Corruption, the natural ſinfulneſs and defilement of man's Nature. And therefore the Spirit, or that which is born of the Spirit, is in its kind and proportion to be underſtood in like manner. I ſhall not name many places, but only one which is appoſite, in Gal. 5. 17. The Fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh; and theſe are contrary the one to the other, ſo as you cannot do the things you would. That by Fleſh here, he means not the Eſſence or Subſtance of man's Nature, much leſs, as Created by God, is evident; becauſe in v. 19, 20, 21. he ſays, The works of the Fleſh are manifeſt, Adultery, Fornication, Uncleanneſs, Wantonneſs, Idolatry, Witchcraft, Hatred; and ſuch like; whereof I tell you (ſays he) that they which do ſuch things ſhall not inherit the Kingdom of God. What is meant therefore, is man's corrupt degenerate Nature, the old man which is ſaid to be corrupt through deceitful Luſts, Eph. 4. 22. And as all men are born Fleſh, they are in the Fleſh (Rom. 7. 8.) until born again.

Now together with this, he repreſents the contrary Principle of Spirit in a regenerate man; whereof the one luſting after the Spirit, the other after the contrary, even before the conſent of Man's Will, they diſtract the Will of a Man ſo as he cannot do what he would. Now then hereby two Inherent Principles in a regenerate man's Nature muſt neceſſarily be denoted.

1. For as the Fleſh (which all acknowledge to be man's Nature by Birth) luſts againſt the Spirit: So the Spirit is in like manner ſaid to luſt againſt the Fleſh; And this naturally, for it is before a conſent of the Will one way or other, as well as after ſuch conſent: Now to luſt (one way or other) is the proper and immediate Product of the inward Inclinations of a man's Heart and Nature: And from theſe Principles, as inherent in our Nature, each of theſe Luſtings draw the Will ſeveral, yea, contrary ways. They work a Contrariety of Will in us alſo: You cannot do what you would. And therefore Spirit muſt be underſtood to be a Principle in man's Nature, as well as Fleſh or Corruption is.

Neither muſt it be ſaid that the Holy Ghoſt is that Spirit that luſts in us, in the like manner as the Fleſh doth luſt againſt the Spirit. He may be ſaid to work in us indeed this luſting againſt the Fleſh, as he is ſaid to make interceſſion for us in ſtirring up Groans in us, &c. Rom. 8. 27. yet ſo, as we are ſaid to groan and pray: So here to luſt againſt the Fleſh, is our Act and not the Holy Ghoſt's: And therefore is from a Principle oppoſite to Fleſh in our Souls, and inherent in us, as Fleſh is, and ſo made a contrary Nature in us unto that Fleſh.

2. Theſe two are ſaid to be contrary and therefore are as two contrary Qualities in man's Nature. For Qualities only, not Subſtances, are contrary. And if then Fleſh be ſuch that luſts after Evil, then Spirit is alſo ſuch that luſteth after good. Theſe are as Heat and Cold, Sickneſs and Health, in the ſame Subject, ſtirring and acting one againſt the other.

3. They are to this purpoſe compared unto two Roots or Seminal Principles ſeated in the Soul, producing contrary Effects and Fruits: For he ſays, v. 22. But the fruit of the Spirit (mark that alluſion) is Love, Peace, Joy, Long-ſuffering, Gentleneſs, Goodneſs, Faith, Meekneſs, Temperance; when as he ſays on the contrary, The works of the Fleſh, the Fruits of the Fleſh, are Envyings, Murthers, Wrath, Strife, &c. And this place alone is ſufficient to confute thoſe that would have the Holy Ghoſt's Indwelling only, without his working, an Inherent Root or Principle of Grace by which all Acts of Holineſs ſhould become properly ours ſubjectively, as well as his ſufficiently, as he alone acteth that Grace in us to bring forth every good work.

Obj. Thoſe of the forementioned high-flown Perſwaſions will interpoſe here, That Fleſh in Scripture is put for the whole of man's Nature, Subſtance, and Exellencies of any Kind; yea and the whole Creation is denominated Fleſh, and ſo even man's pure Nature as it was at firſt created in Adam, and all the Glories of it, are termed Fleſh. He was a Fleſhly, Earthly man. And therefore not only Corrupt Nature, but all thoſe Holy Qualities created in Adam at firſt, or that is of the like created Nature or Rank, though never ſo excellent above them, are here to be underſtood by Spirit: For elſe that which you call Spirit (ſay they) is ſtill indeed but Fleſh, as the whole Creation, whether New or Old, is to be Accounted.

I thus anſwer the Objection.

Anſw. 1. Be it ſo, That Fleſh imports in ſome Scriptures all created Excellencies in their utmoſt Perfection; yet in this Text, and multitudes of Others throughout the New Teſtament, it is taken not in that general Notion, but ſtrictly for the Degeneration of man's Nature by the Fall, conveyed by Generation Fleſhly; out of which, if Mans Nature be not reſtored by a New Birth Spiritual, He is eternally loſt. Well then in this place, and the other places now cited, Fleſh is ſtrictly taken for that Corruption of man's Nature; and Spirit likewiſe oppoſitely for the Principle reſtored, in it, contrary thereunto: For it is that Fleſh that is deſtroyed by this Spirit, as it is contrary.

2. It is true that the beſt and higheſt Excellencies of Adam's Nature were but Fleſh, taken as compared with the Nature of God himſelf. I can give you Scriptures that even the humane Nature of Chriſt, which was the Glory, the Head, the Sum of the whole Creation, Old and New, is but Fleſh with all its Prerogatives; yea, and profits nothing, as in oppoſition to the Godhead in him. What elſe is the meaning of John 6. 63. The Fleſh profiteth nothing, it is the Spirit that quickeneth. And further, that in reſpect of glorying in God's preſence, all the Grace in a renewed Man, termed Spirit here, is but Fleſh in that reſpect, and comes within the Compaſs of that ſaying, 1 Cor. 1. 29. That no Fleſh ſhou'd glory in his preſence. For when he adds, For of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who is made Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, Sanctification, Redemption, He there inſtancing not only in all the glorious Graces that are wrought in us, as Wiſdom and Sanctification, but alſo all the Benefits beſtowed upon us, as Juſtification, and the Glory of Heaven it ſelf, expreſſed by Redemption; he doth thereby plainly call all theſe Fleſh, as in themſelves conſidered, and as they are Exellencies for us to glory in, the Glory of which God hath in that reſpect rob'd them of and deflowred, for as much as God hath made Chriſt all theſe to us, which otherwiſe in themſelves would be but Fleſh in us, as the Old Creation at firſt was. And God doth this, that ſo we might in all theſe glory in the Lord only, and not ſo much in them thus given us.

Our Souls, by Chriſt's Reſtauration of them, do remain created Subſtances ſtill, He doth not Tranſubſtantiate them into the Being of the Divine Nature: And when it is ſaid He brings Things that are, unto nought, or nothing, his meaning is not that God deſtroys them in reſpect of their Being or Exiſtence, they muſt have that ſtill. For if by Fleſh were meant all that is created by God, differing from himſelf, then the Subſtance of the Soul, yea, the whole of the man, would be deſtroy'd by Grace; ſo there would be no Subject left capable of having this Spirit begotten in it, no nor would Salvation be the Salvation of our Souls. If they ſay, there is ſome new thing created in the room thereof, which they would call Spirit; yet ſtill concerning that new Thing I ask, 1. Either it is a Creature made by God, and diſtinct from him, and then I urge upon them, it is Fleſh, even as well as the former Soul: For in compariſon pariſon unto God, ſo it is; and ſtill within the ſame Sphere and Rank of Beings that are created. Or 2. It is God, and the Godhead. If that be their meaning, let them but ſay ſo, but then I will not argue it, but rend my Garments. And the truth is, they can mean no other thing, if they will ſpeak otherwiſe of theſe things than we do. Chap. 1

3. The third anſwer to the Objection made, is This. I grant that this New Spirit begotten of the Spirit, is of a more Divine Temper, Genius and Aſpirement than the Image of God in Adam was; which though holy, yet but in a natual way; in knowing God in and by the Creatures and by the Covenant of Works, and ſo only according unto what is naturally due unto a Creature reaſonable, as he firſt falls out of the hands of his Maker. And I ſhould not only grant that this New Divine Nature born of the Spirit, is Supernatural, in compariſon to Corrupt Nature and the Diſpoſitious thereof, but alſo in compariſon of pure Nature. Inſomuch as Adam was but an Earthly Natural man comparatively to that which is born of the Spirit, which is the Image of the Heavenly, and is ordained in the end to ſee God in himſelf, and will be raiſed up thereto; and at preſent hath ſuch a way of knowing and enjoying God, and ſuch Objects Spiritual ſuited to it, as Adam's ſtate was not capable of. Now therefore although all the Old and New Creation are Fleſh to God, as was ſaid, yet the New being of our higheſt Aſpirement, may be termed Spirit in compariſon of its fellow-creatures; and ſo this new Creature in Regeneration wrought, may perhaps be ſtyled, in compariſon of Adam's Image.

The Uſe of all in brief is this, That men ſhould take heed of being ſeduced and drawn into Opinions under the pretence and allurement of ſtill more Spiritualneſs, and Spiritualizing ſtill All that the Scripture ſays, or can be ſaid of true Spiritualneſs, till they loſe all Spiritualneſs. It may be truly ſaid that many that ſeemed to begin ſoberly in the Spirit, whilſt they have affected to go ſtill a note higher then the Goſpel allots unto the Creature, as the Portion of it, intruding into things they have not ſeen, they have in the end come round, and ended in the Fleſh, even where they were before they did begin. You muſt not think to Spiritualize the Soul of man beyond what can conſiſt with its being a Creature, and beyond what, in a lower rank of union with God, than Chriſt hath, it can bear. The nature of Things muſt not be deſtroyed, God muſt alone be God, and that Eternal Spirit. The Soul muſt be the Soul, enjoying God as ſuch, remaining diſtinct from him; then attribute what Spiritualneſs you can lower then what Chriſt and the Eternal Spirit is ſaid to have, as being God, and the Son of God. And alſo withal ſtay but a while to have that addition of Grace, and Glory which our Doctrine gives and proclaims to Spirits made perfect in Heaven, where God is all in all; and yet ſtill he and the Creature are diſtinct, tho' the glorified Creature enjoys a fulneſs and immediateneſs of Knowledge in him, as in himſelf face to face, and in a love raiſed up and proportioned thereto. Theſe diſtances being kept, let men urge what Spiritualneſs they can, and our Doctrine will riſe as high as they can do; yea, (which is the glory of our Doctrine) they cannot ſpeak beyond it, but are forced to cant their own wild Notes in our Expreſſions. If men will go higher, it falls out here as with Chymiſts going about to ſeek further Spirits out of Spirits already extracted, out of Wine or Metals ſublimated as much as the things will bear. In ſeeking to ſublimate them yet further, in the end they all vaniſh, and all ends in ſmoak.

So then, That which is Spirit here, is metaphraſed elſewhere by Paul, 1 Cor. 2. 15. and is all one as to ſay That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit, and that the Soul of a man born again, is Spiritualized ὁ πνευματικὸς, that is, a Spiritual man; and thereby fitted to receive and take in (as the word v. 14. is) τὰ πνευματικὰ, Spiritual things, πνευματικῶς, Spiritually, or as Spiritual.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

That by Spirit, John 3. 5. is meant all thoſe gracious Diſpoſitions in the Soul, which do ſuit it unto things Spiritual, as Spiritual.

I NOW come to the explanation of the thing it ſelf in the general Nature of it, what is meant by Spirit.

I give this diſtinction of it. Spirit is all thoſe Gracious and Heavenly Diſpoſitions and Habiliments wrought in the whole Soul, eſpecially the Spirit of the Mind, which do elevate and raiſe it, fit and ſuit it unto things Spiritual, as Spiritual. I ſhall give you an Account of this definition as it is extracted and drawn out of the import of the very word Spirit: And then come to the examination of it in ſeveral particulars.

1. In the General, Common Nature of it, I term it a New Diſpoſition or Temper of Spirit. The Acception and Uſe of the Word in the general in Scripture, warrants the word Spirit being put to import a Diſpoſition or Temper of a man's Heart, whether it be applyed to what is good or bad therein. The Spirit that dwells in us (ſaith James) luſteth to Envy, James 4. 5. He termeth the very Inclination and Diſpoſition to Envy that is Natural in us, the Spirit that is in us: Although again in reſpect of its Corruption it be Fleſh and Fleſhly. So Luk. 9. 55. Chriſt rebuking James and John for their zealous wiſhing that Fire might devour thoſe of that City that did not receive Chriſt, ſpeaks thus, You know not what Spirit you are of; that is, what a fiery Diſpoſition is in your Hearts, which you have declared by this wiſh. Thus too an Inclination to Whoredom is termed a Spirit of Whoredom, Hoſea. 4. 12. A Jealous Diſpoſition, a Spirit of Jealouſie, Numb. 5. 14. On the contrary, Diſpoſitions unto what is good, are in like manner termed Spirit, the Spirit of Meekneſs, Gal. 6. 2. The Spirit of Love and Fear, 2 Tim. 1. 7. As alſo any Habiliment that elevates and enables the Underſtanding to diſcern the difference of things Spirituall (as acquired Habits by reaſon of uſe are ſaid to do, Heb. 5. 14.) is denominated Spirit, Iſa. 11. 2, 3. The Spirit of Wiſdom and of the Fear of the Lord, ſhall reſt upon him, and make him quick of Underſtanding in the Fear of the Lord. So as if you would run over all Graces particularly, they are Heavenly and Divine Principles put into the Soul, and each faculty of it, carrying it forth to ſuch and ſuch Spiritual actings towards ſuch or ſuch Spiritual Objects, Zach. 12. 10. A Spirit of Prayer, of Supplication, and of Grace, that is, to ſeek after Grace and the Favour of God, and the ſame may be ſaid of all other graces whatever.

2. I add, Gracious Diſpoſitions, to diſtinguiſh this work of the Spirit from Gifts; which though common to Reprobates; yet we find them called Spiritual Gifts, 1 Corinthians 14. 2. Which in the 12*th* and 13*th Chapters*, he diſtinguiſheth from Graces, True love to God and the Saints, &c. Thus alſo when the Apoſtle James (James 4. 9, 10.) had ſaid The Spirit that is in us, luſteth after envy, he adds theſe Words, but God gives more Grace, i. e. A contrary Spirit of Grace to overcome it. It is there termed in the oppoſition Grace; tis therefore a gracious diſpoſition. The Abilities of Mind are termed Gifts, χαρίσματα, becauſe freely Given; and Spiritual, becauſe they impower the mind to take in the Notion of Spiritual Truths, ſo far as to do good to others, but not to a Man's own Soul ſavingly, which Grace doth. True knowledge hath vim plaſticam in it, a Formative Vertue.

Nei-

Neither do these gifts raise up the mind to things Spiritual, as Spiritual, which is the great difference to be attended in this matter. Chap 3

3. I call it Heavenly, that is, which is wholly Divine, and carries the Soul up to, and fits it for things Heavenly. Adam, (1 Cor. 15. 47, 48.) is in his best Estate termed an earthly Man. 'Tis evident by the saying, which the Apostle cites out of Genesis, that he speaks of him and his Graces when first Created. But God hath fitted and prepared for this Spiritual Man, (of whom we speak) things Heavenly; farr above the reach of Adam's Estate. I Observe, 1 Eph. 3. That the Apostle when he speaks (Eph. 1. 3.) of the whole lump of Blessings with which in Christ we are Blessed, termeth all and the whole of them Spiritual Blessings in Heavenly things ((say I) and not Places only; and such Adam's were not. And the Reason is, because, these are all Blessings in Christ, who alone is that Heavenly Man, the Lord from Heaven. 1 Cor. 15. 47, 48. But Adam but an Earthly Man, and so Christ alone is the Founder of Spiritual Blessings in Heavenly things; and therefore this Spirit coming from him, the quickning Spirit (as Christ is there termed in opposition to Adam's being but a living Soul, v. 45.) is wholly Heaven-born, is an optique Glass, set to the Eye to see into things Heavenly, which Adam's sight fell short of. Spirit here, is the Foundation and Beginning of all those Glorious Enjoyments of God in the other World, and shall be raised up thereto. And in this Life the Spiritual Man hath, an Aspirement thereunto, and could never be satisfied without it. And in this Life, where this Spiritual and Heavenly Temper compleats no degrees, as Adam's Primitive Holiness of Nature was, it would raise a Man up to Infinitely higher proportions of Communion with God and active Holiness then Adam's state was capable of: But alas! our Life here is hid with Christ in God, through our Imperfection, and the like. And indeed this very word Spirit, That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit, speaks a Sublimated Work, the most Refined and most Raised Work that Mans Heart in this Life is capable of: For the Extract, the Quintessence of things (leaving the gross parts behind them as severed) you still call Spirits. I need not give you Chymical Instances. Also in the Creation, those things which are of the highest Rank, Strength and Excellency, and neareſt God himself in their Natures, are termed Spirits: Who maketh his Angels Spirits, Heb. 1. 7. And the Substance of his own pure Nature, is set out by this, God is a Spirit, John 4. 24. Yea, take an Estimate from Hell, the height, the Quintessence of all Wickedness, is, as you know, found in the Devils, and how is it expressed? It is nam'd Spiritual Wickedness, Eph. 6. 12. And they are elsewhere termed Wicked Spirits, Mat, 12. 45. Because the Substance of their Nature or being is Spirit, and they are filled with Wickedness. But here the Wickedness they are filled with is further termed Spiritual; that is, it is a Wickedness of the highest kind, which exerciseth it self in opposing and contradicting things Heavenly, as it follows there about things Heavenly, which are the things this Spirit (in the Text, John 3.) is raised unto, and contends for, and aspires after; and therefore as their Wickedness is termed Spiritual; so the Nature of this is termed Spirit or Spiritual, as pursuing after those very things, Heavenly, which their Wickedness sets it self against.

4. These Heavenly dispositions have for their seat, the Spirit of a Man. This is the immediate Subject in which it resides, in which it was chiefly and first implanted, and from thence diffused to the whole Man, and so is justly denominated Spirit from its Subject, the very Spirit, Quintessence, and Center of the Soul, Eph. 4. 22. 23. Be renewed in the Spirit of your Minds; by infusing into it Spiritual Principles of Heavenly Light and Dispositions. The new Man is there said to be put on. And to the same purpose speaks the Apostle, 1 Thes. 5. 23. The God of Peace sanctifie you throughout, or wholly, your whole Spirit, Soul, and Body. Body is the exteriour part, and Soul is the inward part of Senses, Affections, &c. but Spirit is the top, the highest

Region

Book IV

Region of the Mind which is capable of an higher intuition of things Spiritual, and this is ſanctified firſt and chiefly, and therefore firſt named, and the Sanctification hereof is termed Spirit. The ſeat of the powerful workings of ſin, and of the firſt Sugeſtion uſually thereunto, is the lower Faculties, which Intice and Allure, and propound the Pleaſures of themſelves to the Will and Affections; which being corrupt, and knowing no better, yield, and approve them ſuitable to the outward Man; and therefore it is termed the Law of the Members. But the Workings of Grace are perfectly contrary. The ſeat of Grace, and its chief Dominion, is the Spirit of the Mind, termed therefore the Inner Man, the Hidden Man, the Law of the Mind: Which giving forth Laws and Impreſſions to the Outward, rules and commands it. And becauſe the ſtrength that muſt ſway the man lies there, therefore it meets with more Difficulties than the Dominion of Sin doth, for it hath all the Affections to ſubdue, by Spiritual Light, and freſh comings in from Heaven.

CHAP. IV.

What it is to have the Heart Elevated, and Suited to all things Spiritual, as Spiritual.

BUT the laſt and main thing in this Definition to be moſt attended unto is, What it is to have the Heart elevated, and ſuited unto all things Spiritual, as Spiritual.

There are Three things to be enquired into, for the Explanation hereof.

1. What thoſe things are which are Spiritual.

2. What it is to have the Heart Suited to theſe Spiritual things.

3. An Account why this ſhould be added, To Spiritual things as Spiritual

1. what are things Spiritual? It needs not long be inſiſted on, the Particulars are become known to us all, if we have Hearts unto them; they are the things of God, which the Spirit reveals, The deep things of God, 1 Cor. 2. 10, 14. and Rom. 8. 7. They are things of the Spirit, Rom. 8. 7. They are an other World, or Syſtem of things, oppoſed to things of the Fleſh; which Fleſh, or corrupt Nature, is ſuited unto, which are manifeſtly Fruits of the Fleſh, (Gal. 5. 19.) downright ſins, or things of this World abuſ'd by our Luſts, 1 John 2. 16.

1. Firſt, and Primarily, God himſelf and Chriſt are the chiefeſt Spiritual Things and Bleſſings; They are the firſt Original of all things Spiritual, and ſo are the moſt Spiritual, and have all and only true Spiritualneſs in them. God is a Spirit, it is his pure Nature ſo to be, and therefore he is to be worſhipt in Spirit by us: Even as it is ſaid God is Holy, therefore be ye Holy; ſo God is Spirit, therefore be ye Spiritual: And therefore all things elſe are Spiritual as they refer unto him. As God only is good (as Chriſt ſays) ſo God only is Spirit; and as the Sun only is Light, ſo God only is the Father of all Light that is truly Heavenly; God is the meaſure, the Standard of all things Spiritual. And thus alſo Chriſt, who is ſtyled The Lord is alſo ſaid to be be that Spirit, (1 Cor. 4. 17.) who puts all the Spiritualneſs that is in the Goſpel, into our Minds. Chap. 3.

2. There are things that are Spiritual derivately from God and Chriſt, which are the things of God, and which are not otherwiſe, no nor further Spiritual, than as they relate unto God and Chriſt, and partake of them, and redound to their Glory, who is the meaſure of them. And of this diſtinction we ſhall have great uſe in the Sequel; for in all the Benefits beſtowed in our Salvation, there is no further a Spiritualneſs to be found, then as God ſhines in them, and his Excellence and Glory are Illuſtrious. And that, and that alone, puts every other thing into the being and rank of things Spiritual.

1. All Bleſſings, Adoption, Forgiveneſs, Redemption, Fellowſhip with God, and Heaven it ſelf, are termed Spiritual Bleſſings, Eph. 1. 3. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all Spiritual Bleſſings in Heavenly Places in Chriſt; and theſe Bleſſings conſiſt not in Houſes, Lands, &c. but in things Heavenly.

2. Thus all Graces of the Spirit are alſo Spiritual. Col. 1. 9. True ſaving Knowledge is ſtyled, σύνεσις πνευματικὴ, Spiritual Underſtanding.

3. All the immediate Duties of Gods Worſhip, when God is Worſhipped in Spirit in them, are termed Spiritual. Prayer, Hearing, &c. all are termed Spiritual Sacrifices, 1 Pet. 2. 5. which become ſuch, ſo far as God is Sanctified and cloſed withal in them and by them.

4. Every Duty of the Moral Law, as it is directed unto God, is a Service in Spirit, Rom. 7. 6. And the whole Moral Law, and every particle of it, in this right Tendency, is Spiritual, Rom. 7. 14. The Law is Spiritual.

2. What is it to have the Heart made ſuitable to theſe Spiritual things?

You all know by Analogy from Nature, what it is to have the Soul in the Power and Faculties of it ſuited unto the Object of it; as the Eye is ſuited and fitted to Colour, and the Ear unto Sounds. I ſhall give you ſome Philoſophical Inſtances, which the Scripture makes, Eccleſ. 11. 7. Truly the Light (ſaith Solomon) is ſweet, and a pleaſant thing it is to behold the Sun. Here is an Heavenly outward Object, and the viſive or ſeeing Faculty, declared, ſuited, or fitted, one to the other. The Apoſtle Paul alſo (1 Cor. 6. 13.) ſpeaking of the Preſent Condition of the Bodies of Men, The Belly (ſaies he) is for Meats, and Meats for the Belly; that is, they are by God ſuited and fitted one for another in this preſent State. And conſider the purpoſe of his mentioning this: 'Tis to Illuſtrate how in a proportionable manner, and in a Spiritual way, even the Bodies of Men after the Reſurrection, when they ſhall be made Spiritual (1 Cor. 15.) ſhall then be ſuited unto Chriſt, ſo it follows, v. 14. And God hath both raiſed up the Lord, and will alſo raiſe us up by his own power: And it is ſaid too, in v. 17. He that is joyned to the Lord, is one Spirit. Now then to make up the Analogy, as will ſuit ſpiritual Senſes to Spiritual things, after the Reſurrection, ſo he doth ſuit mens Souls and Spirits aforehand in this Life, unto the Spiritual things manifeſted in the Word, afore the Reſurection of Body and Soul into a greater Glory. And this the Scriptures alſo ſpeak, as expreſsly to this point of Regeneration or Grace, as it doth to that other point of Nature, 1 Cor. 2. 9. Eye hath not ſeen, nor Ear heard, nor hath it entred into the Heart of Man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. The things prepared, &c. are manifeſtly here the things of the Goſpel in this Life Revealed; and not only thoſe in the World to come, as by the Context hath been long ſince obſerved. And the only uſe at preſent I make, lies in theſe Words, Prepared for thoſe that Love him; that is, afore-hand ſuited and fitted by God unto the new Creature, or unto thoſe into whoſe Hearts he puts his Love. And if it be not an allusion intended by the Apostle, yet it may well be Represented by the Correspondency that is between the story of the first Creation, and the new Creature, which the Apostle intends by those who Love God. The Apostle in those words, of his, As it is Written, refers us to Isa. 64. 4. Since the beginning of the World, Men have not heard, neither perceived by the Ear, neither hath the Eye seen, &c. Now consult the story of Mans first Creation, to which this is a manifest allusion, and it stood thus. God made and prepared a World consisting of, and filled with variety of Creatures; the making of which cost him six Daies work. There were Delicacies of Fruits for the Taste, an Entertainment for the Eye in all sorts of Colours, Light, Ornaments, and Tapestry which Heaven and Earth affordeth to this Day. There was a brave World, and richly furnished, as the Apostle speaks of it, 1 Tim. 6. The Angels stood by, and wondred all the while for whom all this should be prepared; for they had not Senses to be affected with them. God after all, at the latter End of this his work brings in Man; and sets Adam down in the Centre of this World; and Lo he had at the first of his Creation an Eye to see and to be taken with all the Beauties God had scattered up and down throughout the whole. He had an Ear to Hear all the Musick which the Melodies of Birds Singing, or the Murmurings, and Warblings of Rivulets, could afford. He had a Taste and Belly suited to take pleasure in all these Varieties of Fruits, or whatever else God had provided as a Banquet for him; insomuch as there was not any one thing which God had made, but he had some Sense inward or outward, to take in a pleasure from it; or some facultie in his Mind, to close with, and make use of it. Whence it was apparent unto himself and the Angels, the Spectators, that God had first prepared and set out all these for the Man, and then created the Man, in like Manner prepared and fitted for all these things. He had an Ear and an Eye (as both the Prophets and Apostles words are) to receive and take in what was thus made for him. Thus the Apostle tells us it falls out in this new Creation; God hath been from Everlasting contriving, and ordaining, and in the fulness of time preparing all those Glorious Truths and things which the Apostles (to whom was committed the News and Tidings of this World to come, Heb. 2. 5.) by the Holy Ghost, have given us in their Writings a full Discovery of. And whenever God Regenerateth any Man and Constitutes him a New Creature; Lo the Man hath a new Eye to to see, an Ear to hear, and all sorts of new Senses to take in all sorts of Spiritual things, as the Spirit shall be pleased to reveal them to him. He no sooner opens an Eye, but he finds himself to be come into a new World, and to be invironed with new Objects. Thus they are prepared for him, and he for them; and hence it comes to pass that he hath an Eye to see, and an Ear to hear, and an Heart to understand, such things as never from the beginning of this World entred into the Heart of Man; no not of Adam in his first Creation. Now the Principle by which he is enabled to this, is called Spirit.

If you will have another Scripture that speaks this suitableness between this Spiritual Man and these Spiritual things, look into Rom. 8. 5. Those that are after the Flesh, do mind the things of the Flesh; but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit. You have here the suitableness between Spiritual things and a Spiritual Man, Illustrated by its contrary, namely the like of a carnal Heart towards carnal things; that so all Men, whether Carnal or Spiritual might be equal and just Judges, out of experience whether they had as yet Flesh only, or further, Spirit, begun in them. For all mankind have experience what it is to mind, to savour, and find an Heart suited to things fleshly and outward. We feel every Day how our Bowels work, and our Affections are enflamed after things fleshly, as Beauty, Pleasure, &c. Now saies he, Descend into your Hearts, and be righteous Judges; if ye be after the Spirit, if that supernatural frame of Heart be in you and predominant, you will in like manner be taken with the things of the Spirit: For both stand upon like just and equal reason; for as Flesh is suited unto things Fleshly; so Spirit is suited unto things Spiritual, even as 'tis here, John 3. That which is born of the Flesh, is Flesh, so that which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit.

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

That this suitableness of the Mind to Spiritual things, is the great distinguishing Character of one that is born of the Spirit John, 3. 5. from others who are not so.

I SHALL now give an account why I put in this restriction, A suitableness of the Heart unto Spiritual things, as Spiritual. The truth is, herein lyes the Spirit, or the formal Constitution, and Difference of that which is here termed Spirit. The meaning whereof is, that Spiritual things are to be considered barely, and meerly as they are in themselves, and their own Nature, abstracted from all other Considerations and Concomitants adherent to them, and abstracted from such Benefits as are accidental, external, and foreign to them. Spiritual things may indeed be view'd as wrapt up in Worldly Conveniencies, the avoidance of Punishment, or the obtaining something which a man apprehends good to him, which occurs by them or with them. But Spiritual things as Spiritual, are the things themselves, which are represented in their own real Nature, in their native hue and proper Colours to a Spiritual man.

In other things, the formal reason of any Objects is that which puts the difference between Sciences, and Arts, yea, and the Senses. Bodies natural are the Subjects of a multitude of Arts and Sciences, but take it as a natural Body, and simply so considered, it is the proper Subject of Philosophy and makes an essentiall difference between that and other Knowledge: So it is here, Spiritual things are the proper Objects of that true genuine Heaven-born Spirit, begotten by Regeneration.

2. The Apostle is my Warrant for putting in this distinction: For he setts this fatal and eternal difference between a Natural Man and a Spiritual Man, 1 Cor. 2. 14, 15. But the Natural Man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him: Neither can he know them because they are Spiritually discerned. But he that is Spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man. To say, Because they are Spiritually discerned; and to give this as the reason why a Natural Man cannot therefore receive them, is all one as to say, that if they be rightly discerned, they must be discerned in their Spirituality, that is, as they are in themselves, Spiritual things, as Spiritual. Thus the Soul, whilst in the Body, cannot see or discern the Angels that dayly attend us, nor the Devils that hourly tempt us: Why? Because they are Spirits, and are Spiritually to be discerned, and so can be view'd only by Naked Spirits like themselves. They may be seen if they will thicken and condensate the Air or take a Shape, inclose themselves in a Body; but still as Spirits, and in their own Substance and Nature, they are discerned by none but those of their kind. And (as he here speaks of a Spiritual Man, v. 15.) They can see all we do, but themselves are not discerned by us; we see not their Motion nor their Actings. I know this Similitude, as none other, will hold in all; for our Souls stript of our flesh, would thus see Angels; but not so an Unregenerate Man; he would not discern Spiritual things, tho he were stript of flesh, if he was not also Spiritualized. And by this Natural man, is not barely understood a sensual man, sensual for Lusts and bodily Pleasures, but a man endowed with the greatest Gifts of Knowledge and Wisdom, such as were the Scribes and Pharisees, and the Disputers of this World, 1 Cor. 1. 7, 8, 20. And for the discerning of these things Spiritually, a man must not simply have the Spirit of God to reveal them objectively (v. 10, 11, 12.) but he muſt ſubjectively be made by that Spirit a Spiritual man, and have Spiritual Senſes given him, elſe tho' the Spirit ſhould reveal them, he could not receive them. The Natural man receives not the things of the Spirit of God; for quicquid recipitur, recipitur ad modum Recipientis. As a blind eye receives not the Light of the Sun: Neither can he know them; which words ſpeak an impotency or an incapacity in the Subject; for there is a diſproportion between the Objects, take them in their Spiritual Nature and the Subject. For, ſays he, they are Spiritually diſcerned; and therefore the man muſt be made Spiritual, or he cannot take them in: As a Beaſt muſt be made rational, ere he can underſtand or take in the things of a man: That look as now this Natural Body of ours (as 1 Cor. 15. the Apoſtle calls it) cannot diſcern an Angel or Spirit, as he is a Spirit; but when God ſhall make his Natural Body a Spiritual Body (which how he will do it, we know not) then we ſhall ſee Angels and Spirits, even as we are ſeen of them; but a Spiritual Body it muſt be made firſt; ſo 'tis a man muſt be Spiritual, before he can ſee Spiritual things.

3. A Third ground why I ſay that a Spiritual man muſt diſcern Spiritual things as Spiritual, is, Becauſe otherwiſe he receives not the things at all, which the Apoſtle hints. This is a great truth, that if the Soul of a man does not arrive at, and cloſe with, and embrace the things themſelves, as they are in themſelves and in their own nature, it knows them not, it receives them not at all; but only Ideas, and Notions, Shadows and Clouds, inſtead of them. God will be known as God, and glorified as God (Rom. 1. 29.) or he accounts it no Knowledge. Then we know and affect things as they are, when our Knowledge and Affections towards them are ſuch as the Nature of the things requires. If the Knowledge of Chriſt in my Heart be not anſwerable, Similar to what is in the thing it ſelf, I do not know it: As I am not ſaid to know a man, if I know him but by hear-ſay, or have ſeen but his Picture. And therefore the Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth as I do Eph. 4. 21. If you have been taught as the Truth is in Jeſus; that is, to know Chriſt in himſelf, and the Truths about him, which are Beams of him, as they are in their true and naked hue. Thus alſo Affections to any Thing or Perſon is not true Love, or a genuine Affection, if it be not ſuited and carried out to the thing and the Perſon it ſelf: You call it Harlotry Love elſe, Luſt not Love. And therefore of neceſſity if our Knowledge of Spiritual things be true, and ſuch as it ought to be, if our Affections unto them be genuine, our Hearts muſt be ſuited to the thing as Spiritual. Yea, otherwiſe the things whatever they are in themſelves, do become to us but things of the Fleſh, as the Law was to the Carnal Jew, and all Spiritual Priviledges are to an Unregenerate Profeſſor.

4. This is the great difference or conſtitutive diſtinction of Men Regenerate from the Unregenerate, though never ſo much enlightned, elevated to the taſting of the powers of the World to come. Thoſe that are truly renewed are made Spirit, or Spiritual in all things, ſo not the other: Altho raiſed up and elevated to be exerciſed about things Spiritual, yet not about the Spirituality of the things, and to be carried out to them as ſuch. This will appear in the particulars of the Work of Grace all along. There is a carnality about Spiritual Objects, elſe the Apoſtle would never have termed the Corinthians Carnal, in compariſon of other Chriſtians, and not Spiritual, 1 Cor. 3. 1. Now that which which was in a great meaſure remaining in them is predominantly in temporary Believers. It is in them as that which conſtitutes their Eſtate without any genuine principle of Spirit at all. It is no where ſaid of any Temporary Believer, or Perſon that fell away, that he was born again, nor is it any where ſaid of any ſuch that they are Spiritual Men, or begotten of the Spirit.

The main Uſe I intend is of Examination of our Eſtates, whether we are ſavingly Regenerate or not? Conſider what the Frame, the Poſture, the Vergency, your Spirits are of unto things that are Spiritual, as Spiritual. I ſpeak now only unto Men that are or have been ſome way or other affected with things Spiritual ritual; for as for ſuch as are not, but live wholly in things Earthly and Senſual, ſuch need not a Jury to paſs upon them to Condemn them. Towards our help in this Examination, let us take theſe two things. Chap. I

1. Take Inſtances of ſeveral particulars of Spiritual things, and ſearching out wherein the Spiritualneſs of them lies, bring them and your Hearts together, to put you upon conſidering how your Hearts and they agree, and ſuit each other.

1. Learn to underſtand in your own Hearts what theſe two things mean, and what a vaſt difference is between them. 1. To have Heavenly natural diſpoſitions and inclination ſuiting the Heart to things Spiritual, as Spiritual: And 2d, To have accidental and forced Elevations or ſtirrings of Heart towards things Spiritual, and thoſe but upon Conſiderations that are but accidental to the things, or are but Appurtenances of them, Attendants and Hang-bies to them, and are not of the nature of the things themſelves.

You will ask me, What do you account but accidental Affections in Mens Hearts to things Spiritual; and what is it that is accidental in the things themſelves?

1. That is but an accidental affection in the Heart it ſelf, which is forced and ſtrained in reſpect of what the whole ſtream of thy Heart otherwiſe doth naturally carry thee forth unto, whereas that which is born of the Fleſh doth wholly and naturally mind and ſavour nothing but what is Earthly, Worldly, &c. Rom. 8. 5. and the whole propenſion and pondus thereof, would of it ſelf for ever run that way; yet ſo as look as ſtreams that naturally run but one way, yet are capable of a turn, and to be diverted a contrary way by Winds, or Stoppage, or the overflowings of Waters, &c. without having a new and natural Spring or Fountain to feed and carry it on, that contrary Current: So the natural Mind may ſometime flow in another Current, than that in which its own Inclinations carry it. But now the Apoſtle Peter ſpeaking of the Hearts of Men Regenerate, expreſſeth it thus, 1 Pet. 5. 2. That what they did was not out of conſtraint, but willingly, and out of a ready Mind. The great and Predominant Principle in us is Self-Love; it is the Spirit the Quinteſſence of Original Sin. Now this Spring or Fountain of all Luſts in us naturally cuts forth a Channel to it ſelf only towards things Earthly: And the poyſe of it (as it is the predominant Principle in Mans Nature, as by Nature it is) doth lie clean another way then to fall in at all with any of the things which are Spiritual, or to have any thing to do with them; but it ſecretly and cloſely enjoys it ſelf, in cleaving and adhering unto things Earthly and ſinful: Yet ſo, as if it be ſtormed with the noiſe and conviction of the things of the other World, as with what is the dreadful conſequent of Sin, viz. Wrath and Deſtruction; and of what is the Deliverance out of it; even to leave ſin, to ſeek after pardon, &c. The Enlightnings of theſe things coming powerfully in upon Self-Love in Men, that other natural Stream and Current to things Earthly may be ſtopped, yea, and (as is ſaid of Jordan) turned backwards and the Affections run that way; and yet all this be but accidental and violent, in reſpect unto the natural tendency thereof, which remains ſtill one and the ſame.

2. There are anſwerably alſo accidental or conſequential reſpects or conſiderations that are but Appendixes to things which in themſelves are the moſt Spiritual, which are foreign and extrinſecal to the things, and yet are revealed in the word together with thoſe things with the apprehenſion of which, a natural Man that hath nothing in him but only ſelf-love, may be ſtirred, moved, and affected. As take ſin for one inſtance, there is the evil of ſin as ſin; that is, the Spiritual Evil in it as Spiritual, and as it is contrary to God; and there is the wrath of God, &c. which is the conſequent of Sin, that is an accidental evil to it, as it is ſin: As there is the Charcoal in its foulneſs, and there is the

the Fire in the Coal. Likewiſe there is Chriſts Righteouſneſs as it is a Satisfaction to God for ſin, and the Glorious way of ſaving Sinners by it, above all ways elſe, this is the Spiritualneſs of it; and there is the freedom from that wrath thereby; the one is the thing in it ſelf, the other is the Conſequent or accidental appendix of it. Now (you know) like will ſtill find out its like, ſuit and conſort with it. Hence my Exhortation is, That you would in ſearching your ſelves, narrowly obſerve what your Spirit doth match withal; that is, what it is in Spiritual things which your Hearts are taken with in them, whether with what is accidental chiefly, or chiefly with what is truly Spiritual. The Apoſtle hath an Expreſſion (1 Cor. 2. 13.) which may alluſively help me to convey my meaning, comparing (ſaith he) Spiritual things with Spiritual. He ſpeaks there indeed of the delivery of Spiritual things to be Preached of by us; and it is as if he had ſaid (comparing the words afore and theſe together) if you be to make Orations about things Civil, Politique, Scholaſtical, then uſe all your Flowers of Rhetorick and Art to ſet them out with, for Fleſhly Worldly matters are beſt dreſt up in Cloathings and Ornaments that are ſuitable to them; but if you be to make Sermons, take and ſeek out ſuch Words and Expreſſions as may be ſavory and Spiritual and ſo ſuited to the matter. In like manner (ſay I, in alluſion to it as to the point in hand) if you be to examine your Hearts, compare Spiritual things with Spiritual, or elſe Accidental with Accidental: Lay things of a ſort together; that is, obſerve what kind of Affections in thy Heart, are ſtirred, and to what ſort or kind of things, and upon what Conſiderations. If therefore thy Caſe be ſuch, that only tranſient and accidental Affections are in thy Heart (accidental I ſay to the natural whole Current of thy Heart) finding out and conſorting with the like accidental conſiderations in things Spiritual; here is no genuine true Spiritual Regeneration, here are plainly but two Baſtards married, two ſlips of each Family, accidental Affections, to accidentals in things Spiritual; and their Brood will be anſwerable, they will not inherit with the Sons of the free Woman; that is, Spirit here. But on the contrary, if there be a new Spring and Fountain ſet open in thy Heart, that works forth it ſelf a natural Current and Channel contrary to that other, whoſe poyſe was to each, which doth withal find out that in Spiritual things which are truly Spiritual, ſuits and complies with the things themſelves as in themſelves, and pours out its ſtreams upon them and runs into them, here is a noble match between two Offſprings, of two Heaven-born Families, which will never be parted, but as a noble Plant will bring forth Fruit unto God, and unto everlaſting Life.

Another Conſideration I would premiſe, as both uſeful to prevent a miſtake in Examination of our ſelves hereby, and which alſo ariſeth from, and is the natural Corrolary of this part of my definition, ſuiting the Heart to Spiritual things. The premiſe is this, That the Spiritualneſs of our affecting of Spiritual Things, lies not in a total oppoſition or excluſion of what ſuiteth ſelf-love in us, or aiming at our own Good; but if it be rightly ſtated, it takes it in the moſt naturally that can be. Some good Souls, when they hear of ſuch Doctrines as theſe, That Spiritual Things are to be affected for themſelves, and as Spiritual, have preſently made this Interpretation of it, That if the Heart be truly Spiritual, then it muſt affect them in oppoſition to themſelves altogether, and to their own good: And that therefore they muſt wholly renounce and caſhier all thoughts of a man's ſelf therein, thinking that if they at all intermix them, they do unſpiritualize all the reſt.

Or when they hear that there is an accidental goodneſs in Spiritual things which will take ſelf-love in a Carnal Heart, they then preſently judge that therefore true Spiritualneſs lies in this, in having no affection of ſelf-love working or ſtirring at all to any thing in things Spiritual. Theſe are both miſtakes: And the very terms of this latter part of the Definition I have given, duely underſtood, clears and ſtates this great Caſe, and is preventive of theſe miſtakes. Mark it, It ſuiteth the Heart unto the things; now if the Heart be made ſuitable to the very things themſelves, it is certain that a man muſt and doth at once affect both the things for themselves, and for his own good also. For why? Let the things be the most Spiritual that ever were revealed; wherein doth a man's own good lie but in the enjoyment of what is comfortable to him, and which he most desires? And what is it that is most comfortable, and yeilds most content to any man, but the things that are suited to him, and he unto them? If therefore the being and end of Grace lie in this, to suit the mind to Spiritual things themselves, and for themselves, then it must needs most happily fall out and come to pass, that at once in affecting the things in themselves, the Believer pursues his own Good and Happiness. Chap. 8

The General truth of this Assertion, That mens Comforts, and so that which they account their chiefest good, do lie in the suitableness or frame of their minds as it stands unto the things, is so evident in Experience, as I need not insist on it. What is the reason that trahit sua quemque Voluptas, One man is pleased with one thing, another with other things? It lies in the several humors, and suitableness of dispositions to such or such things. You use to say, That which is one mans Heaven, is another man's Hell; what otherwise is the reason that carnal Men mind the things of the Flesh, or Earthly things, naturally, but because they are suited to them? Else they have a Light within them which tells them that they are not the best things. You see in Nature it is not every stone, though good and pretious, that will draw Iron after it, or unto which Iron will greedily run or clasp with, but with the Loadstone it will; and again, no other Metal but that, will close with a Loadstone. What's the reason? There is a suitableness. Now then take a carnal Heart, and change the Inward radical disposition of it, make and render it suitable to God, and Christ, and all other Spiritual things, as they are in themselves (and the power and efficacie of Saving Grace must lie in this, or differs not from Flesh) and instantly that Soul is taught, and hath an Instinct for its own good, and greedily and Naturally (according to the measure of Grace given) runs out unto, and after these Spiritual things as Spiritual, and placeth its Happiness and Good in them, as truly as ever it did in the other.

You will say, Wherein then is the difference between a carnal man's affecting these things and a Spiritual man's doing so? For it is out of self-love in both. I answer, out of the Principles already delivered.

1. That the Fundamental and Original difference lies not in this, as if that were a carnal Heart that with respect to its own good, or with love to it self, did affect Spiritual things; and on the contrary, he only were truly a Spiritual man that did not at all out of self-love affect them. No: God forbid; but that which puts the difference is, what that goodness is, which in Spiritual things the Heart of a man doth thus affect, and find his good to lie in? If it is only that which is the accident of all goodness, and but the consequent of the other, as Ease of Conscience, Freedom from Wrath, Judgment, &c. And the man not affected with the things as in themselves, there being no suitableness at all to the things if they could be nakedly represented to him, and in their Spiritual Hue; this Heart is a Carnal Heart; and thou that weareſt it, art not a Spiritual, but a meer Outward and Accidental Christian: For as a man affects, so he is. The usual comparison I give to express the difference between these two, is this: Take two men, whereof the one is in perfect Health and Vigour, and as Hungry as Esau was, when he came out of the Field; and take another who is Heart sick; set meat or drink before these two, the one falls to eat it (and that as it is meat) out of appetite, and suitableness to the thing in it self: For God hath Ordained the Belly for meats, and meats for the Belly: The others Stomach nauseates the thing simply in it self considered, and the native Scent overcomes him: But yet rather then he will dye, he will take down something, and yet by his good will he takes that only when it is so sauced, as the natural Scent is not discerned: So it is here. If God, and Christ, and his Righteousness, and the Graces of his Spirit, could be represented in their native naked Hue, a Natural man could not receive them, as the Apostle speaks; but take them as dipt, and ſauc'd with eaſe of Conſcience, hopes of freedom from Wrath, &c. carnal men take them down: In a word, they make uſe of them as Phyſick, not as Meat. Here in this Caſe a man affects not the thing, hath no mind, or ſuitableneſs to the thing it ſelf, but to the conſequent of it, and a meer accident belonging to it, which is freedom from Pains, &c.

2. Another difference is, Where only thus the accidental goodneſs of Spiritual Things affect a man, there is ſelf only, or love to a man's ſelf only, that is the root of ſuch Affections; yea, and ſuch a carnal ſelf, as of its ſelf would pour out its Affections to other things much rather, to which only it hath an inbred Suitableneſs. The whole Heart of it ſelf would run that way, and no other, by its good will. But being over powered by the Power of the World to come, there is a ſtop put to ſuch Affections, and the Current of them turned another way. But take a Spiritual man who is in his Inward man ſuited to things Spiritual, and Spiritually Naturalized, or Naturally Spiritualized to them; and though the accidental Conſiderations might have firſt mov'd him (for alas at firſt a man hath no other Principle but ſelf-love to be wooed and courted) and in their rank lawfully continue ſtill; yet he now, being come unto them, and himſelf Spiritualized, he cloſeth with the things themſelves as in themſelves, and as beſt and moſt excellent, Phil. 1. 10. He finds ſo much in the things themſelves that he wiſheth no greater good, yea, no other good, than what ariſeth from the things, and from Communion with them and enjoyment of them. He finds his good lies in them, which (as was ſaid) ariſeth out of a ſuitableneſs. So that now the ſtate of the Caſe is not whether thou affecteſt them out of ſelf-love, or for thine own good, yea or no; but whether the things themſelves have been made ſuitable to that Inward man, and ſo withal unto that ſelf in thee. The root of all that which we call Hypocriſie, or counterfeit Grace, though wrought by the Spirit, doth lie in this defect, the man hath not an Heart to the Things, but chiefly to the Appurtenances of them, and ſo is ſaid in Scripture to have an Heart, and an Heart, and to be a double-minded man; becauſe he purſues not the things for themſelves, but for what accompanies them; when all the while, as to the things themſelves, he hath an Heart againſt them, if they were repreſented in their true Spiritualneſs. And this is the true meaning of that Phraſe: For otherwiſe it were far more proper to ſay of a regenerate man, that he hath had an Heart, and an heart in him, for he hath really two Principles, Fleſh, and Spirit, two men, two Springs and Fountains in him; of Fleſh, ſuited to things Fleſhly; of Spirit, ſuited to things Spiritual: But yet becauſe his Heart is truly ſuited unto theſe Spirituals, therefore he is ſaid to affect them with his whole Heart, and not to have an Heart, and an Heart. But the other in their moſt over-flowing Affections that ſeem as a Land-flood to carry the whole ſtream that way, as in the Peoples Hearts when the Law was given, We will (ſay they) obey the Voice of the Lord. Oh (ſays God) would there were ſuch an Heart in them.

As a Corollary from what hath been ſpoken, I ſhall a little further enlarge on this Queſtion, Whether a regenerate man, as ſuch, may and doth affect Spitiual things for his own good, and how far? Briefly,

1. Take ſelf-love as it is a natural Principle, and annexed to Being or Entity it ſelf, if Grace will have a Subject to reſide in, it muſt have this for part of it, for it is the adjunct of Being. If you think to Spiritualize your Affections ſo far as nothing of love to your ſelves ſhould remain, then you muſt deſtroy the Subject of thoſe Affections. If you cut off this Nail entirely, you cut off the Finger too: Pair it you may, and muſt, as to the inordinacy of it; thus to the Captive Woman taken to Wife, was done by the Law, Deut. 12. 11, 12.

2. If Grace ſanctifies us throughout, and every Faculty and Principle in us, (1 Theſ. 5. 23.) then it ſanctifies ſelf-love in us: For of all things in us, it is moſt a part in our ſelves: And if there be a ſanctified ſelf-love, then part even of our Holineſs muſt lie in loving our ſelves. But then withal, obſerve that this Sanctification of ſelf-love is eminently ſeen in this, that the Heart being made and suitable to Spiritual things, it is enabled and made so truly happy, as to find its own greatest good in those things, and is carried forth towards them with the greatest contentment to it self. And so it comes to pass, that when a man's Soul is perfectly sanctified, he loves these Spiritual things with a stronger love to himself, than any carnal man can do, or ever did, carnal things. And hence these two make but one stream; I at once love my self, and Spiritual things themselves, and all comes to be reconciled by this, that the Heart is made suitable to them. Yea, upon this ground I will go yet higher; The more I judge God, Christ, and all other Spiritual things to be the best, and chiefest good for my Soul (and this when considered in the highest Spiritualness that can be supposed to be revealed by the Spirit, and discerned and apprehended by me) when they rise up in the most Spiritual Spirituality, the Holy Ghost himself can or doth represent them, then for my Soul to be most able to say, These are the best for me, and to have Spiritual Affections rise up as these other apprehensions of the Spirituality of the things do rise, this argues still that my Heart hath the greater degree of Grace. And the reason of it is clear from this Principle, That Grace suits the Soul to Spiritual things; and therefore those actings of my Heart argue it still to be the more Spiritual, as being so suited that still I find my highest good to lie in the highest and utmost Spiritualness of them: Even as the more a Man's Stomach affecteth and relisheth meat, the strongest meats, yea, and the more sweetness it finds therein, the better Stomach it is. David's Heart hath in a great degree decided this in few words, Psal. 73. 28. It is good for me to draw near to God. He found Communion with him, out of suitableness, to be his greatest Good. Chap. 6

CHAP. VI.

How we may discern, value, and love Spiritual things, purely as Spiritual, and yet view them as Blessings to us: And regard, and affect our own Interest, and Benefit in them.

IF any do yet understand me so, as to have this Objection still in their thoughts (putting it by way of supposition) That if any man should love Spiritual things as Spiritual, chiefly for his own Good, would not this be Hypocrisie, and he be a carnal man?

I answer, Yes: And even this will also follow from that Principle I have insisted upon. For if a man's Heart be carried out suitably to the things, that is to God, and Christ, &c. as they are in themselves, then he cannot but prize, adore, value, and love them above himself. For if his Heart be not suited to the things, as they are proportionably in their own worth, his Knowledge and love of them is not such as the things require, and so are not suited to them. And (as I said) it is a false and a Counterfeit Knowledge of, and Affection to them, as was afore observed. So that, it is a Contradiction to say a man's Heart is suited to the things, and to say, That he affects them as such, chiefly for himself. For if he knows God as God, or Christ, as the truth is in Jesus; Then (as John says in another Case) he finds these to be infinitely greater then himself, and himself to be but as a Mote flying in the Beams of the Sun. And if he did not accordingly prize and affect them and their Glory, His Affections would not be suitable to these things. (Therefore self falls down, and gives up it self most to exalt the things above it self, when it finds them most suitable to it) Yet still notwithstanding, this on the other side falls on with the highest consistency, That a man never loves himſelf more, yea and never finds he doth it more, then when he finds he loves them above himſelf, and not for himſelf chiefly.

If you ask me how far theſe two may ſtand together? I anſwer, they are conſiſtent in a due Subordination of Self unto God, and the things of God. All men muſt acknowledge this, That true Grace is the Image of God's Holineſs, Col. 3. 10. And it ſo long continues to be his Image, as it keeps a due and anſwerable proportion unto that Holineſs that is in himſelf, the great and only Architype, and Maſter Pattern of all true Holineſs. Therefore it is conſiſtent with ſo loving God, and our ſelves, in ſuch a ſubordination as God loveth himſelf and us. Now if we conſider God; he as God loves himſelf above all, and works all things for his own Glory; and therein lies his Holineſs, in chooſing his Elect nuto Salvation; for he did it for his own Glory, Eph, 1. 5, 6. Having predeſtinated us unto the Adoption of Children by Jeſus Chriſt to himſelf, according to the good pleaſure of his Will: To the praiſe and glory of his Grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved. And yet every where the Scripture alſo doth aſcribe God's Electing us and Redeeming us to his Infinite love born unto our Perſons (God ſo loved the World &c.) And that not comparatively only as to others (Eſau have I hated) but ſimply, as he bore an Affection to our Perſons, Deut. 10. 15. Only the Lord thy God had a delight in thy Fathers to love them. You ſee then, that in God's Heart our Salvation, and his own Glory, love to himſelf above all, and infinitely above any reſpect to us, had a great place, and yet a true real and ſpecial love and affection born unto us, did ſweetly meet together, and run in one Channel ſubordinately to the other. And this hath been to many a great help, and inducement to their believing God's real intention and heartineſs to ſave Sinners and themſelves, that it is a deſign which falls in with the utmoſt manifeſtation of his own glory: Yea, and God in effecting it, or bringing it about, hath contrived all the means of Salvation ſo as to repreſent at once to us an intermixture of tranſcendent love to us, and a prerogative reſpect of his own Glory. Look one way, and you think he loved us, as if he regarded nothing elſe: Look on the other ſide, and the glory of his Grace doth ſo appear, that we ſeem to be forgotten, and God's glory, alone ſhines in it. Are theſe two then ſo reconciled in God's heart, love to us, and himſelf? Come we now then to the heart of a man ſaved and regenerated Spiritually, and certainly they may conſiſt alſo there. And the ſaving Faith of both theſe reſpects, and Affections had by God to his own Glory, to us, and our Salvation, may alſo work both ways in our Hearts. And indeed God in commanding us to love him above all things, yea our ſelves, hath withal given leave to us to love our ſelves in ſo doing, in an anſwerableneſs to his own loving us, whilſt yet he aimed ſo eminently at his own Glory, as if nothing concerning us had moved him. For Grace in us is the Image of what is in himſelf: And all this (ſay I ſtill) may juſtly be enforced by this Aſſertion, that Grace in the Heart is a Principle that elevates, and ſuits the Soul unto the Spiritualneſs of things Spiritual. Now the Glory of God above our Salvation, being the moſt Spiritual of Spiritual things (it is Spiritual in ſummo gradu) then if the Heart be ſuited to the thing, it muſt in the end exalt and ſet this up, as it is in this its Spiritualneſs, and ſo ſet it in this its high Throne above it ſelf; it were not Grace elſe, nor ſuited to this Object. And becauſe it is a Principle that ſuits the Heart thereto; therefore it withal muſt have the greateſt delight when it finds it can do ſo; therefore the greater Happineſs conſiſts therein, and therefore the Believer enjoys his own good moſt, in being ſo affected. Grace is the ſtrongeſt Creature and Principle that ever God did, or ſhall make. It comes upon the Heart when it is an utter ſtranger unto God, and when it is full of ſelf-love, and is as contrary to God, as any one thing can be to another, and yet it comes and begets an inſtinct in that Soul to make its own higheſt Good to lie in the Good and Happineſs of that God aimed at and delighted in, above its own. I will end this. This Love to God ariſeth not out of ſelf-love (tho' it is ſo in a carnal man) but it may more properly be ſaid to be joyned with it, ſelf-love to take it into it ſelf.

3. When

3. When we ſay that Spirit here, in John 3. 5. is a ſuiting the Heart to Spiritual things themſelves, the meaning is not, That the cloſing with God himſelf, and with the Perſon of Chriſt abſtractly conſidered, is all and the whole of true Spiritualneſs, or which are the only Objects of a Spiritual Heart: But there are many Benefits by Chriſt, and that come within the Souls cleaving to God, which are Spiritual alſo, and ſo are truly and Spiritually the Objects of the Affections of a regenerate man, as Spiritual. This I add, to prevent a miſtake alſo.

Many when they hear of ſuch a Doctrine as this, that Spiritual things are to be affected as Spiritual: Take it in thus, That therefore all Affections to any thing but to God, and to the Perſon of Chriſt, ſimply for themſelves, and not at all for any Benefit or Bleſſing with them, are Affections of an Heart that is Carnal.

'Tis true indeed, that thoſe before mentioned Diſpoſitions are in a Spiritual Heart, raiſed up unto an intenſe degreee (for theſe only are Spirituals in ſummo gradu, as we uſe to ſpeak of other things, as of Heat in Fire, &c.) yet withal, the Benefits that flow from adheſion to the Perſons of God and Chriſt, are in their degree Spiritual alſo. Thus you have it expreſly pronounced, Eph. 1. 3. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all Spiritual Bleſſings in Heavenly places in Chriſt. Here you have mentioned the Perſons of God the Author, and of Chriſt the Conveyor, diſtinguiſht from the Bleſſings, and yet the Bleſſings themſelves are termed Spiritual, as well as God and Chriſt elſewhere are. And Adoption, (v. 5.) and Redemption through his Blood, and Forgiveneſs of Sins through the Riches of his Grace (v. 7.) are ranged among the Number of them. So that even in theſe Bleſſings themſelves there is a Spiritualneſs to be found, and Spiritual Conſiderations about them, for which a regenerate Heart Spiritually affects them, and ſeeks them. The eye that loves to behold the Sun's Light, and to behold the Beams of the Sun, doth certainly love the Sun it ſelf the Fountain: For thoſe Beams are High and Heavenly, as well as the Sun it ſelf is an Heavenly Body. And thus it is with reſpect to all Spiritual Bleſſings. Juſtifying Faith, which is as Spiritual a Grace as any, hath not immediately the Perſon of Chriſt in its eye, abſtracted from its Righteouſneſs or Forgiveneſs, but as arrayed with them. There is therefore a Spiritualneſs in Chriſt's Righteouſneſs to be found, for which we muſt value it, and to cloſe with it is as truly Spiritualneſs, as to cloſe immediately with the Perſon of Chriſt. Paul deſires (Phil. 3.) to be found in Chriſt, not having his own Righteouſneſs, &c. So is it in all Graces, they are Spiritual things: Only I add this, That all theſe are Spiritual but derivatively, and as they relate to God, and Chriſt, and unto their Glory. If you cut them off from that Relation, and value not their worth, as in that Relation, they loſe their Spiritualneſs: As the Sun Beams have a glory in them; why? Becauſe they are Beams of the Sun, as rooted in it, flowing from it; which if you could cut off, they would loſe. Now carnal Hearts in valuing and affecting theſe Benefits, cut them off from God, and Chriſt. A dark cloud of ſelf interpoſes, and they do not moſt value them on the account of their relation to the Perſons of God and Chriſt.

This alſo is farther to be conſidered, that many Believers, eſpecially when young in Grace, may not have thoſe Principles and gracious Diſpoſitions, ſo far ſtirred, and acted (although the things are in them) as to be able eminently to diſcern that high ſuitableneſs to God and Chriſt in its true Spirituality with difference from what is from carnal ſelf. That is, they may not preſently find that love to the things themſelves, for themſelves, budding, and ſhooting up, ſo as to overtop that other remaining Principle of regard unto their own ſelves.

1. It is therefore to be conſidered, that Believers at firſt having carnal ſelf ſtirred towards Spiritual things (even as Temporary Believers have) as well as Spiritual ſelf, they are in reſpect of this mixture termed Carnal, rather than Spiritual, becauſe that Principle is, if not predominant in acting, yet ſo vigorouſly, and perhaps more ſenſibly, acting in them, than the Spiritual part, purely as such is found to be. When Paul wrote to that Church at Corinth, he writ to Saints, yet professeth he writ not to them as to Spiritual, but as to carnal (1 Cor. 3. 1.) that is, as to Babes in Christ, whose workings are to sense more carnal then Spiritual, tho' they afterward do grow up to be more Spiritual. Thus in the first Birth, a Child first lives the life of a Plant, then of a Beast or sensitive Creature; and last of all springs up Reason, and yet the reasonable Soul was the root of all these, and so was the Principle of them there from the first: So it is in the New Birth often. Therefore let none be discouraged though the present actings of their Spirit have been low, and not risen up eminently above carnal self (as to their sense) for true Grace or Spirit may be in them carried out with the mixture of the other, and that genuinely (as to the thing it self) unto what is Spiritual.

2. In the main and whole ordinary Course of a Christian, these two streams run together in one Channel, and have no occasion of parting; but they find that loving their own selves, and their affecting Spiritual things for themselves, do concurr: insomuch as whether they affect themselves most, out of love to themselves, or most affect the things themselves, they cannot discern: As when all the Bells strike at once, it is hard to discern distinctly the sound of the loudest above the rest. So as although a man's Heart truly affects the things most, yet so much of self, carnal self, is mingled with it, that which is most eminent is not perceived. Only this they find, that their Affections are still carried on one way or other to things that are spiritual; and in this Case, the Constancy of the stream (though at some passage of a man's Life more shallow then at another) is that which doth best evidence the Holy Ghost to be the Spring of all, and that a Fountain of spiritualness is sprung up in that Heart, which feeds it thus to Eternal Life. The truest Issue therefore, which in examining our selves we are to bring our Souls unto, is ultimately to search, taking the help of those Cautions given along with us, and not to rest satisfied till we have found some Dispositions in our Souls naturally matching with, and suited unto, what is spiritually good in things that are Spiritual. And although in the mean while till this is some way discerned, the Soul may support its self with the thoughts, that those Affections that have been drawn forth to things spiritual revealed in the Word, perhaps in present sense, only out of self-love, may yet in the Issue prove to have true strains of spiritualness running along with them. But yet still thou canst not have an undoubted, or infallible evidence of thy Regeneration, till thou findest thy Heart carried forth to, and closing with what is truly spiritual in those Blessings.

CHAP. VIII.

That the Blessings which we have by Christ are purely Spiritual, Proved by an enumeration of them; How a Spiritual Heart considers and affects them in their pure Spirituality.

I COME now to reduce this Inquisition unto Particular Instances, that is, to view over some things Spiritual, and to single forth in them what is truly Spiritual, severed from what is accidental, and so to bring them, and your Hearts together, and to see how they will and do match and agree.

I will begin first with such things as may seem less Spiritual because suited unto what is in our selves, such are the Benefits that come by Christ. Now in each of these there is something that is purely and truly Spiritual, towards which which for the Heart to be suitably carried forth argues Spiritualness in the Heart. Now to clear our Understandings in this, Take this for a true, and certain general Rule, That all the Spiritualness that is in every such Spiritual Benefit consists in its relation and reference unto God himself, who is that great Spirit, and the Fountain and Measure of whatever is Spiritual. Neither Grace, nor any Spiritual Benefit, is further Spiritual then as it is a Tenant of his, and holds of him, and both issues and flows from him, and returns again unto him, as redounding to his Glory. So as it is the Shine, the Lustre, the Reflexion of his Glory on these Blessings, some way or other, which alone makes them Spiritual, as they are Streamings down of God upon us, and are Rebounds and Reverberations of Glory back again to him: Which is more eminent in those Blessings, then their being Benefits unto us. And without this aspect unto, and conjunction with God, they, if simply considered as Benefits, would lose their Spiritualness. So as although because they are truly Benefits, and for our good, and do make us happy, therefore Self-Love is admitted to partake of, yea, and to embrace them for its own good (for they were also ordained thereto) yet unless that self-love be taken with what is of God, and tends unto God in them, so as really to find its own good to lie therein, it would not be Spiritual Love. Chap. 7

And the truth of this Notion (That you may not think it a meer Imagination) discovers it self in things that are humane, and in the professions of men, concerning things that are found amongst men.

1. A great thing in bestowing his Benefits putts the worth of them upon what is from himself, and redounds to himself. That story of Alexander illustrates it. You know the great King Alexander when he thought fit to give a Gift, he professes to give as a King, and so gave a City as a reward for a mean Service; justifying it thus, I give as a King (as the Scripture Phrase also is, 2 Sam. 24. 23.) as becomes a King to give, and not as becomes the man to receive: So as in that Gift or Benefit there shined more of Honour and Glory to Alexander, than there did of Good and Benefit to the Person on whom it was bestowed. The same strain was in Ahasuerus, Thus shall it be done to the Man whom the King delighteth to honour. Thus it is in the Spiritual Benefits we have from God: God hath set them out unto us infinitely more by what is in them of benefit to us, and would have us accordingly entertain and embrace them; And when the Heart is answerably thus affected, then it is Spiritual.

2. The Heart of an ingenuous man, though carnal, may understand how it is in this respect with a regenerate man's heart, so as to be convinced of it by what they feel, at least often pretend unto, in humane Affections. If a Person be far your Superiour, or a Friend very dear, and you are either Suitors to him for a Gift, or Place, by reason of which you shall be near to him: Or if you be to return Thanks and Obligations, or if you have a Token given in remembrance of a near Friend, your Hearts prompt you, or your Wits, at least, counterfeit such strains as these, Non tam dono (Lector) quam abs te dato, I rejoyce not so much in the Gift, as because it is by so noble a Hand, and so noble a Mind. And what you must profess to regard is, that he who gave it would cast an eye upon you, or that you might come thereby to have a nearer approximation to him. For instance, will you take one of Paul's Realities? (I must not term them Complements) in Phil. 4. 14, 17. He Celebrates and magnifies their Gift (v. 14, 15, 16.) more then any, from any Church, and concludes (v. 17.) This I speak not, that I desire a Gift, but that Fruit may redound to your account. He considered the Benefit as it was to himself apart, and also as in its tendency it redounded unto the Givers again whom he valued. Thus also you value a Medal, or a piece of Gold, or the Picture of a Friend not by its worth or weight, but as it relates to him, a thousand times above the value of it in its self. Now bring but the Analogy of such things as these on to God, and his Benefits or Graces bestowed on you, and Judge righteous Judgement; and ask your Hearts this Question, For what it is you do affect them, and what is in them takes your Hearts?

Run over thoſe particular Benefits, celebrated (Epheſ. 1.) All which the Apoſtle pronounceth to be Spiritual Bleſſings (v. 3.) And particularly obſerve wherein the luſtre of their Spiritualneſs lies.

1. What greater Benefit, or Honour can be to us, then to be the Sons of God? v. 5. Is it a Small matter to be a Son in Law to a King? Oh what honour is it to be a Son to God! There you ſee is the Benefit; well, but ſee what are the Beams of Spiritualneſs that irradiate this, and ſhine every way through it?

1. That the Original of it was the good pleaſure of his Will.

2. That this is beſtowed by Jeſus Chriſt.

3. That it is beſtowed to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace. Take this Benefit as it is thus Spiritualized, and there is no Heart that can truly prize and affect it as thus conſidered and circumſtantiated, but it muſt be a Spiritual Heart.

1. That Heart is Spiritual, which values it in reſpect of its Original, viz. The good pleaſure of his Will. This took Chriſts heart in Gods ſaving of his People (which Chriſt is perſonally intereſted in, aſmuch as we) more than the Salvation itſelf of them, Mat. 11. 25 Father, I thank thee, even ſo Father, it ſeemed good in thy ſight. Chriſt ſets his Seal, his own concurrency of Will with God's, as that which above all pleaſ'd him alſo in it, namely, that ſo it ſeemed good in his ſight. What is it the Beloved Diſciple in like manner calls up Believers to behold and value their Son-ſhip by? Even this Original of it, the love of God, 1 John 3. 1. Behold what manner of love the Father hath beſtowed upon us, that we ſhould be call'd the Sons of God. Herein lies the Spiritualneſs of their value for the love of God in reſpect of its Fountain in God's Heart, his love therein is valued more than the thing.

2. That Heart is Spiritual which values the Priviledge of Son-ſhip on the Account of its being beſtowed by Jeſus Chriſt, and that it is poſſeſſed by virtue of a relation to Him. This alſo holds forth Spiritualneſs above what our Son-ſhip is otherwiſe in its ſelf. Adam was a Son of God's by Creation, Luke 3. 38. But to be a Son of God by Chriſt, this is an higher thing, and puts the Spiritualneſs upon it, which an holy Heart values. For it is to be a Son in Law by marriage unto, and union with, the Natural Son of God. So then the ſpirituality of our Son-ſhip lies in that relation it hath unto Chriſt. Now bring a Spiritual Heart unto it, and though it cannot but infinitely rejoyce, that it is become a Son of God; yet that this ſhould be ſuch a Son-ſhip as is founded upon relation to Jeſus Chriſt as an Husband, this makes his joy greater. To which of all the Angels hath he ſaid, My Son is thy Husband, and thou art his Spouſe, and ſo thereby becomeſt my Son? To as many as received him, He gave Power to be the Sons of God, John 1. 13. This infinitely adds more unto it in a Spiritual Hearts eſteem.

3. A ſpiritual Heart rejoyceth that this ſhould tend to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace: That God ſhould take Sons, who at beſt were ſuch but by Creation, and then by the Fall were made Sons of Wrath, Children of Hell, Sons of Satan, and make ſome Perſons Sons, and Sons by Chriſt. And this rebound that it hath unto the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace, is the Spiritualneſs of this Benefit, the Apoſtle being Judge. How hath or doth thy Soul cloſe with it?

2. Then take the Second Benefit inſtanced in (v. 6.) which is, To be graciouſly accepted; And ſtill it holds of God and of Jeſus Chriſt. Therein lyes the Spiritualneſs of it. Firſt, There was mention of the free Grace of God in it juſt afore, and then follows, Wherein he hath graciouſly accepted us. This David valued above all, when he ſaid Thy Favour is better than Life; yea, even above the Life he had by it, or through it, whether Spiritual, or Temporal. Gods Grace and Love ought to be more valued than the Benefit that occurrs thereby.

3. A Spir-

3. A Spiritual Heart conſiders, That this acceptation is in the Beloved. If God would profeſs to love one man immediately, as he is conſidered in himſelf alone (as ſome ſay he doth ſtill the Angells, or to be ſure, as he did Adam at firſt) and to love another Man in Chriſt, who is the primum Amabile, his firſt and naturally Beloved, his only begotten Son: Oh how would the Heart of a third man ſtanding by, that is Spiritual, ſay, Oh Lord, love me in the Beloved with that love thou loveſt thy Son! John 17. 23. What love is it that Paul values and triumphs in? When (Rom. 8. 37, 39.) he had firſt ſaid, In all theſe things we are more than Conquerors, through him that loved us; What love was it, he had in his eye, that he thus valued, and which cauſed him to triumph? He tells us (v. 39.) that it was The love of God which is in Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Take this away, and all other love is but a common love, a Providential love. But herein lyeth the Goſpel Spiritualneſs of God's love, that the favour of God is tranſmitted through Chriſt, who firſt hath contracted all the Beams of God's love into himſelf, and ſo diffuſeth them unto us. This takes, and enflames the Heart more than if in Common, and immediately, the divine Love was caſt down upon us: As in a burning glaſs you ſee the Beams of the Sun to be more contracted, and ſtrengthened. Chap6.

4. A ſpiritual Heart conſiders the other Benefit (v. 7.) Redemption and Forgiveneſs of ſins. This all men will readily, and greedily liſten after: Well, but a ſpiritual Heart takes it in thoſe rays of Spiritualneſs Paul hath ſet it in. 1. In whom we have it, namely, Chriſt. 2. Through his Blood. 3. According to the Riches of his Grace. Juſtification and Pardon of ſin through Chriſt's Righteouſneſs is the Glory of our Religion: And take it in all that doth ſurround it, it is as ſpiritual a point as any other. And indeed it is too ſpiritual not for Papiſts only, but for many in theſe times to cleave to. There are thoſe among us who begin to be weary of it; though formerly, out of reverence to the Reformation of Religion, even carnal Hearts entertain'd it: But take it in its true ſpiritualneſs, and then to be ſure only ſpiritualized Souls will value it.

1. A ſpiritual Heart regards Juſtification by Chriſt's Righteouſneſs as it relates unto God's Glory, that is, the glory of his Grace. If ever God contrived any thing for his Glory, he did this. Inherent Grace in us juſtified us once, but though it was the love of God the Creator, and the due of innocent Nature, yet God had no great liking to it; for as (Rom. 4. 2, 4.) man had thereby whereof to glory; and the greateſt Reward was, by that way, reckoned of Debt and not of Grace: So man falling, God was willing to take that Eſcheat and Forfeiture, and for ever to diſpoil inherent Grace (though he meant to beſtow ſuch Grace ſtill, out of Grace, anew) of its firſt ancient Priviledge, and hath pronounced his Sentence againſt it, That whatever it might avail and ſerve for, in man's primitive innocent ſtate, to be ſure it ſhould never juſtifie him that hath it more. The glory of his own Grace entred upon this, and hath ſequeſtred it as his own Prerogative for ever, To the glory of his Grace. And he valued this one thing ſo much, as he hath given it away, and entituled his own Son to it, on purpoſe to magnifie his Blood; that this might be his eminent title, Jehovah, the Lord our Righteouſneſs: And he hath put him into the poſſeſſion of this Honour, as won by his Sword and his Bow; as Jacob ſaid of a Plat of ground he gave to Joſeph.

Now to bring this home to our Hearts by Application: The News of Forgiveneſs, Juſtification, Redemption, all men run away with: But I beſeech you conſider wherein the Spiritualneſs of this Benefit lyes; and whether ever your Hearts have been taken at all with it: Indeed they ſhould be moſt taken with it. USE.

1. We ought to adore this way of our Salvation, as it brings in ſo great a Glory to God's Grace, and to Jeſus Chriſt: So as we re weto chooſe, we would have this way. This was the diſpoſition of the Heart of Abraham our Father as appears in Rom. 4. Compare but the Beginning and the concluſion of the Apoſtles diſcourſe about our Father Abraham: Whereas (v. 2.) it is ſaid, that if Abraham had been juſtified by Works, he had had whereof to glory (which was contrary to God's deſign) and whereas he made Abraham's Faith the Subject of his diſcourſe in the reſidue of that Chapter, at laſt he concludes (v. 20.) that He ſtaggered not at the Promiſe through Unbelief, but was ſtrong in Faith, And gave Glory to God, and Therefore (v. 23.) it was imputed to him for Righteouſneſs. This his giving Glory to God (though withal he commends the ſtrength of his Faith he did it with) hath a reſpect to v. 2. Where, in oppoſition to Abraham's glorying (if he had been juſtified by Works) he had had whereof to glory, but not afore God: So then by comparing each, the meaning is, that Abraham fell down afore God upon the revelation of this way of Juſtification, which he perceived much to tend to glorifie God and his Grace, that willingly upon that account he gave up all his own Works (a greater Sacrifice than that which he intended, namely, the Sacrifice of his Son, which is celebrated as a noble Work proceeding from Faith, James 2.) and laid them upon the Altar of God's Glory. And he was glad that his Heart had light upon ſuch a way as did ſo highly glorifie God by the Spirit, being the more ſtrengthened (as it is ſaid) to ſeek Salvation by this way, becauſe it gave all to God, and nothing to man. Hath this in Juſtification taken thy Heart, which took our Father Abraham's? Perhaps thou wouldeſt ſerve thy ſelf on God, and take the Benefit of this his pardon, but hath it ever been done with giving the Glory to him, and to his Grace?

Thus alſo when thou comeſt to have recourſe to Chriſt's Blood, and Righteouſneſs for Juſtification, (which is the Second thing Paul puts in to Spiritualize this Benefit unto us) is it the glorious Relation to, and the Influence that Chriſt and his Blood hath upon Juſtification, that cauſeth thee to value it, looking upon it not only as a thing thou muſt have, or thou art loſt and damned, but oh! doſt thou deſire to be cloathed with it, to be found in it? For what doth a Spiritual Heart value it, What! is it only that becauſe their own Righteouſneſs is as filthy rags, therefore they throw it away? No: But that if it had the Righteouſneſs of Adam, yea, that which all the Angels had at firſt, yea all the Inherent Grace and Glory which both Angels and Saints have now in Heaven, it would gladly take the Occaſion to throw it away, and make a Trophy and Spoyl of it to glorifie this Righteouſneſs of Chriſt. It was the Apoſtle Paul's deſire to be found in Chriſt, not having his own Righteouſneſs. He ſpeaks like a man afraid of being taken tardy in that place of reſidence, and runs away from it as far as ever he could. Unto me (ſays Chriſt Iſa. 45. 23. for it is ſpoken in his Name, as appears by the Apoſtle's citation *Rom.*14.11. Phil. 2.10.) ſhall every Knee bow. And what ſpecial Glory is it, that the Saints ſhall give to him? The 24. v. tells us, Surely one ſhall ſay (as the greateſt thing they could ſay, and they ſay it with greateſt aſſeveration, as if they were to utter but one thing, they would ſay this) In the Lord (Chriſt) have I Righteouſneſs, Ah how feelingly is it ſpoken! And they give it to him as a matter of Glory, for ſo it follows, v. 24. In the Lord ſhall all the Seed of Iſrael be juſtified, and ſhall Glory. And truly the Conjunction of theſe two in that place, In the Lord I have Righteouſneſs for Juſtification (as it is interpreted v. 25.) and in the Lord have I ſtrength for Sanctification, makes me conſider Auguſtine's interpretation of that Paſſage in Pſal. 71. 16. which an hundred times he celebrates to this very ſenſe (though our reformed Interpreters reject it) I will go in the ſtrength of the Lord God, I will make mention of thy Righteouſneſs, even of thine only.

This relation that forgiveneſs of ſins hath unto Chriſt's Blood, as the Price, how doth it raiſe the price of it unto an Holy Heart? How do the Apoſtles ſpeak of it and thereby teach Believers how to eſteem it, and the Benefit by it, as it is by his Blood, and that as having a relation to his Perſon, that gives the value to it? We are redeemed, (ſays Peter) not by Gold or Silver, &c. but by the pretious Blood of Chriſt, 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. Oh value your Redemption by this great Price of it. And to this, Paul alſo directs us when he ſpeaks (Acts 20. 28.)

of the Church, which God hath purchaſed with his own Blood. Mark it, the Blood is valued as it hath relation to the Perſon whoſe own it is. And again John ſpeaks to the ſame Purpoſe, Rev. 1. 5, 6. From Jeſus Chriſt who hath loved us, and waſht us from our ſins in his own Blood. To him be Glory and Dominion for ever and ever. How was the thought of Forgiveneſs of ſins (as it is a meer Benefit to us) ſwallowed up into an adoring, and giving glory to him, who ſhed his Blood for that Benefit? When the Apoſtles ſpeak but of Faith as in this its relation to Chriſt's Perſon, Oh! How do they ſingularly term that Grace above all others precious in that reſpect, and call upon all Generations to call it Bleſſed, becauſe it is that Grace, which thus adores, glorifies, and magnifies the Blood, and the Righteouſneſs of God, and of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. 2 Pet. 1. 1. To all that have received like precious Faith ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ, on the Righteouſneſs of God and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Faith may have a thouſand other Vertues and Properties in it, but the Glory it gives to Chriſt and his Righteouſneſs in point of Juſtification, is that which makes it precious Faith indeed. This ſtone ſet in it ſerving to make the Luſtre of this Righteouſneſs to ſhine forth, is that which makes the Ring ſo rich and precious. I ſhall name one general concluſive place more, in 1 Cor. 1. 29, 30, 31. That no Fleſh ſhould glory in his Preſence; but of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who of God is made unto us Wiſdom, and Righteouſneſs, and Sanctification, and Redemption; that according as it is written, Let him that glorieth glory in the Lord. The thing I quote this now for, is, That it is not Juſtification or Redemption alone, and ſingly taken, nor Chriſts being made Righteouſneſs and Juſtification to us, and our Sanctification, being accepted in him, which the Heart ſhould alone glory in, but the Heart ſhould rejoyce in the Honour which Chriſt hath by all his, or it is not truly Spiritual. Chap 8.

CHAP. VIII.

That a Spiritual Heart deſires Heaven, as it is a Spiritual Happineſs: Deſires, and prizes Inherent Graces as Spiritual Ornaments of the Soul, and a Divine Likeneſs, in which God is pleaſed: Takes pleaſure in holy Duties on the account of his having Converſe and Communion with God in them.

YOU have hitherto ſeen how all the Benefits reckoned Eph. 1. are Spiritualized.

Now take Heaven it ſelf, which he there alſo mentions, v. 11. In whom we have obtained an Inheritance, &c. If any Benefit ſeems to be deſired and affected by the Generality of Men, it is Heaven; becauſe it is conceived to be the ultimate Happineſs that will fill up the natural deſire of the Soul to the full: Yet if men did take in true and genuine notions of it, what that Happineſs is, and wherein it lyes in the Spiritualneſs of it, and we could ſuppoſe their Hearts remained ſtill carnal, nothing would be more unſuited to them. If (as Chriſt ſays to the Sons of Zebedee) you knew what you asked, or knew what 'tis to be there, none but an Heart truly, yea ſublimately Spiritual, can find in its Heart to deſire it. The Apoſtle Paul (Eph. 1. 17, 18.) prays for theſe Epheſians that they might have a Spiritual Knowledge of the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in theſe words

Book V.

That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of Glory, may give unto you the Spirit of Wisdom and Revelation in the Knowledge of him: The eyes of your Understanding being enlightned: That ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the Riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints. Elsewhere it is called an Inheritance of the Saints (Col. 1. 12.) as the Possessors of it: here (in Eph. 1. 18.) he speaks, otherwise of it, as an Inheritance αὐτοῦ of him. It is translated, his Inheritance in the Saints. The signification of it is, that it is what the Saints have, by inheriting himself. I would but ask who, or what in Heaven is the Inheritance of the Man Jesus? It is said (Rom. 8. 17.) that we are Heirs of God, joynt Heirs with Christ. Now what is Christ's Inheritance? It is God himself, Psal. 16. 5. Thou art the lott of mine Inheritance. 'Tis Christ's Speech. 'Tis not an happiness only from God as the Author, but it is in God himself, who is there to be enjoyed. In Heaven God is set afore us to pick all Happiness out of: And so all that Happiness must arise from suitableness of Heart to him: And therefore the Saints are said (Col. 1. 18.) to be made meet to be Partakers of it. And here in this Place of Eph. 1. 11. it is added, In the Saints, for none else can take Comfort or Joy in God, Rom. 5. 11. Come now, canst thou say, and say it Heartily, out of a taste how good the Lord is, Whom have I in Heaven but thee? Canst thou out of a taste (I say) declare, there is nothing on Earth which thou hast enjoyed, in Comparison of him: So as thy Soul saith with it self, If God be in Heaven, and if all hold good which the Word says of him, and I have him there, though I should have nothing but him, I find I should be happy enough: Canst thou say this? It is a sign thy Heart is Spiritual.

5. Take Grace inherent in us, what is it draws out thy Heart to desire it, but the Spiritualness of it?

1. 'Tis certain that Grace hath the greatest Dowry that any Creature whether in Heaven or Earth hath. Godliness is profitable to all things, (1 Tim. 4. 8.) having the Promise of this Life, and a better belonging to it: But these simply are but Additionals unto it: And it may be thy Heart is only willing to match with so rich an Heiress.

2. Vertue hath an Ornament in it, as it adorns the Soul, and is the Perfection of it: And so the Philosophers, Plato, Hercules, and others, judged it: But wherein doth the Excellency, the Spiritualness of Grace lye? 1. That it is the Image of God and Christ, and so is allied to him, of Kin to him, as being divine Nature. 2. That it fits thee for, and carryeth forth thy Heart unto Communion and Fellowship with God, and is a Principle that enableth thee to Sanctifie him in thy Heart. 3. That it makes thee in these respects Beautiful, Amiable, yea Glorious in God's Eyes, and Esteem, whose Favour thou valuest above Life. It makes thee such, that Christ greatly delights in thy Beauty, Psal. 45. Doth God there move the Church to get much of Grace (Eph. 5. 26, 27.) That he might Sanctifie and cleanse, it and present it glorious to himself, that is, for his own delight, and rejoycing in her as his Spouse? And doth Godliness thus alone consider'd, or (as the Apostles own Phrase is 1 Tim. 6. 6.) in its own self-sufficiency, μετ' αὐταρκείας, take thy Heart to seek it as great gain? Here is Spiritualness.

6. Take Duties of Obedience, as Prayer, Reading the Word, partaking of the Holy Ordinances of God; there is a spiritual part in all these; which is, to meet with God in them, to Sanctifie him in the Heart, whilst we are conversant in them. The Law of these Duties is to have to do with God; and if with God, then to glorifie him as God in our Hearts and Affections, that is the Spirit of them. And therefore (1 Tim. 4. 8.) Godliness is opposed unto Bodily Exercise, that is the outward performance only, for Godliness is the Spirit of Obedience; which is,

1. When God is Sanctified as the end of thy Duties. 2. When

2. When he is regarded as the object matter of them, and as one with whom we converſe in them, then they are Spiritual Duties; when God is Sanctified in the Heart; and then God is Sanctified, when either, the motives for Duties, are fetcht from Conſiderations of God, and he is made the matter of them, and the converſe we have with him is from ſome ſuitableneſs of Heart unto him. But that which cauſeth carnal Hearts (or any Heart ſo far as carnal) to neglect them, or to be weary of them, or wiſh they were over, and done, is, that the Law of them is to have to do with God all that while, who to a carnal Heart is burdenſome Company: And ſo carnal men perform theſe Duties to him, as Complementers do viſits to Perſons, whoſe company they regard not. Will the Hypocrite pray always (ſays Job) And why will he not? Becauſe he will not delight himſelf in the Almighty, Job 27. 10. that is, the Law of the Duty, and he, cannot conſort with God but overly, and ſo his Prayers grow overly, and in the end he gives over. To pray, or read, to eaſe thy Conſcience, and to keep all quiet there, what is it? That is not the eſſential part of the Duty. Paul conſidered the Law and Duties of it in its Spiritual Nature, Rom. 7. 14. The Law is Spiritual and good, and (v. 22.) He tells us that he delighted in the Law of God (in the Inner man) and in every Duty of it. Now delight is out of ſuitableneſs; and why? Becauſe his Inner man, that delighted it ſelf in God, was aſſimulated to God. (Rom. 8. 7.) The carnal Mind is ſaid to be Enmity againſt God firſt, and therefore not ſubject to the Law; and ſo the reaſon men delight not in theſe Duties of the Law, whoſe tendency is to carry the Soul up to God, is becauſe they delight not in God. But the ſtate of the Caſe is quite contrary in a Godly man. Pſal. 103. 10. Teach me to do (ſays David) thy Will, for thou art my God, thy Spirit is good, lead me into the Land of Uprightneſs. None but a Spiritual Heart could Experimentally and Feelingly have moved God, with this, as being firſt moved thereby it ſelf. He had found the Spirit of God coming upon him in Duties, teaching and leading, acting and quickening him, v. 88. and was ſo good to him, that he loved theſe Inward Influences and Effluxes of his heart to God therein; and they were ſo good to him, ſo ſuited, that he prays for more, and could not be content without it. Oh! (ſays David) thy Spirit is good! Oh therefore give me him, act me by him in all that I do.

7. To mention no more; take God, and Chriſt, and the Holy Spirit, which are (as I ſaid) Prima Spiritualia, the Firſt, and chiefeſt Spirituals, what ſuitableneſs haſt thou had unto theſe, abſtractly conſidered in themſelves, cutting off what accidental Goodneſs is annexed to them, as repreſented in the word? Doth thy Soul ſay at times, yea at any time, The Lord is my Portion? Lam. 3. Doth thy naked Soul ſay it of the naked Lord, and ſay it heartily from the Soul? Loveſt thou him by all thou haſt heard of him, or knoweſt of him by his Attributes, Laws, Decrees, and Diſpenſations? Thus alſo for Chriſt, Doſt thou love him for himſelf, and not only as a Redeemer? Though to love him as ſuch, he doth allow thee; for therein he hath ſhewn and manifeſted Infinite love unto thee: But yet there is Aliquid in Chriſto formotius Salvatore; there is that in Chriſt that is far more amiable then his being a Saviour. Doſt thou love him as thy Head and Husband, more than as thy Saviour? So a Wife unto a Phyſitian, if ſhe loves him, will really do all for him, although ſhe be never ſo diſeaſed and needs his help (both theſe relations of Head and Saviour in Chriſt, are diſtinctly inſiſted on Eph. 5.) or doſt thou love him for what God moſt loveth him, (and that is, that he is his only begotten, and therefore Beloved Son; and becauſe he pleaſed his Father in all things) as well as becauſe out of love he did work thy Righteouſneſs? God therefore lov'd and exalted him, becauſe he was obedient to Death (Phil. 3.) Becauſe he loved Righteouſneſs and hated Iniquity. (Pſal. 45.) therefore God exalted him, and anointed him with the Oyl of Gladneſs. There are and have been Souls that have found their Hearts drawn forth in love to Chriſt chiefly, becauſe in doing (though for themſelves) he expreſſed ſo much Obedience to his Father, and thereby ſhewed he loved them (John 14.

Book IV

31.) having that in his eye more than their Salvation. And doſt thou reckon withal this as thy chiefeſt good, and deſire of thy Soul, to be and live for ever with him? Oh to be with Chriſt is beſt of all, ſays Paul. Doſt thou value the Indwelling of the Spirit? Canſt thou ſay to God, Thy Spirit is good, who helps me to all that ſweet Communion with thy ſelf, and takes of Chriſt, and gives it to my Soul: Oh take not thy Spirit from me, for thy Spirit is good &c.

Objection. You will ſay, theſe are but Notions, and ſuch as are invented to expreſs in the abſtract Spiritualneſs by.

Anſwer. I anſwer, They are ſuch Notions as will diſtinguiſh one day all your Souls into Heaven, or into Hell; and they are ſuch real Notions, as holy and happy Souls feel them and live upon them. Paul, you ſee, writing to them that were Spiritual, Spiritualizeth all theſe things in this manner as I have now done, and thus ſetts out theſe things, as taking it for granted they (as ſo repreſented) would take with Spiritual Hearts, as ſuited to them. And therefore he provoketh theſe Epheſians to bleſs God for them as Spiritual Benefits, Spiritual in theſe reſpects, as he had ſet them forth; ſo he writ, ſo he preach'd, and ſo were their Hearts ſuited to them. I conclude (as the Apoſtle doth 1 Cor. 14. 37.) If any man think himſelf to be Spiritual, let him acknowledge theſe things to be Spiritual; and then ſee how they (as ſuch conſidered) and his Heart, do agree.

USE. You learn hence what is the true meaſure of judging of our Spiritual growth: It is to grow up in what is true Spiritualneſs, which is a raiſing up all in the Soul unto things Spiritual in their Spiritualneſs. It is not a growth in reſpect of Bulk either of Duties or Knowledge of, or Affections unto things Spiritual, but ſtill they muſt be diſcerned and lov'd in their Spiritualneſs: And by this character is growth in Grace, with difference from younger Chriſtians, ſtill expreſſed, Gal. 6. 1. If any be overtaken in a fault, you that are Spiritual, reſtore ſuch an one: That is, you that profeſs to have more Grace, and are more deeply acquainted with Temptations, as is in the next words inſinuated. Thus alſo the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 1 Cor. 3. 1. I could not write unto you, as unto Spiritual, but as unto Carnal, even Babes in Chriſt. Spiritual men he oppoſeth to Babes, and therefore underſtandeth by thoſe Spiritual Perſons, grown Chriſtians, that are raiſed up to diſcern of things that differ, and to approve the things that are Excellent.

SALVATION.

BOOK V.

Of the VVork of the Holy Ghost in us, as it is represented to us under the Notion of a new Creature. That besides the Holy Spirit's Indwelling in us, and his Motions, and Actings of our Spirits, there are permanent, or abiding Principles wrought in our Souls, which dispose them for holy Actions, and give spiritual Abilities for the performance of them. That this new Creature is a Change of the Heart. That it is a Conformity to the Image of our Lord Jesus Christ.

CHAP. I.

That exciting and moving Grace is not all that the Spirit doth for us, to enable us to the performance of Holy Actions: But he works Grace inherent, which is an abiding Principle in us. The Opinions of the Popish Doctors, of the Arminians, and of some Enthusiasticks, considered.

JOHN 3. 6.

That which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit.

I HAVE proved from this Text of Scripture that the thing wrought in us by the Spirit, is Spirit, and makes us spiritual: I now resume the same Text to demonstrate from it this Assertion, or Doctrine:

Doct. That over and above exciting, and moving, and aiding Grace unto Acts, there are Inwrought, and infused in the Soul at Regeneration, inherent and abiding Principles of Spiritual Life; by which the Soul is inwardly fitted, capacitated, inclined, and quicken'd unto the Operations of a spiritual Life. 1

Book V. I shall first consider, and refute, some Opinions that are contrary to this Assertion. Tho' the Papists very much speak of Habitual Grace as a Principle by which the Soul acts: Yet they assert that the first and only Grace that actually turns the Soul is no more then exciting and adjuvant Grace: And that so to Conversion it is sufficient that we be aided and assisted by divine Grace, without receiving a new Principle of Life from it. But yet they say when a man hath turned to God out of free Will, excited by an internal motion of Grace at first, then God infuseth an Habit of Grace as a Root, or a radical Principle of good Works. But then observe the Reason, and to what end they thus state it, and affirm, how that then, and not before the Souls first turning to God, the habits of Grace are infused by God.

1. Because in plain terms according to their Doctrine of Sanctification, or inherent Grace, or the infusion of a new Principle of Life, is Justification, or that for which God adopts, and accepts a man to eternal Life, as that which renders a man amiable and acceptable to God, and constitutes him Righteous.

And 2. They assert that a man being at present made Righteous, or justified thereby, then those Habits infused further becoming the Roots and Principles of good works, these good works come accepted in order to the meriting eternal Life, and are habitual Graces, given as the Foundation of Merit: But so as still the first Acts of turning to God are carryed on by exciting Grace; and therefore they say the Understanding and Will are but as of a man in the dark that can see imperfectly, or of a man fettered or sick, that can stirr of helped. And they therefore call all these Acts of turning to God by the Names of Attrition and Contrition, and the like, as pre-dispositions if the Soul to the infusion of this Form or Principle of Grace: Even as fire or Flame is introduced into the Wood, when it hath been heated and hath smoaked. This is the Papist's Doctrine. See Bellarmin, de gratiâ, lib. 6. cap. 15. per totum. And so Bishop Davenant in his Determinations, Quest. 9, and in Perkins his Reformed Catholick, do state their Opinion, and refute it.

How Alvarez states it out of the Writings of many Modern Papists, you may read in his Book De Auxilis. Lib 7. Disp. 66. Num 1. whom yet he opposeth, as we do see also Suarez. Lib. 8. de Gratia Cap. 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 14, &c.

And though I know many of them say, that to every supernatural Act of exciting Grace, an habit at least, or an inherent disposition infused is required; yet I retort this as a contradiction in their Doctrine, which is that Justification after a man is so turned to God in the infusion of Habits, which therefore they must necessarily thereby deny to be afore Conversion, or else why is not the man justified thereby, or else acceptable afore. Bishop Davenant also, in that before cited Determination of his retorts it further thus upon them: Some Papists (says he, citing Suraez) overcome by force of Argument, do yeild, That unto the bringing forth of Spiritual Acts, there is always infused by God a quality which supplies that which an Habit serves for. Yet to salve that other Principle they withal say, That it differeth from an habit only in this, that it is not permanent, but passeth away together with the act, when that ceaseth. To what end (saith he) are these evasions? Why do they not acknowledge these kind of Infusions into the Powers of mens Souls, to be the vivification of them, and that to continue as permanent, and to be encreased.

Others, who are not Papists, putting our Justification upon Faith in Christ alone, and not upon habitual Grace at all: Yet withal falling in with the Popish Doctrine of free Will and exciting Grace, as sufficient to the first Conversion, they professedly and utterly deny any infusion of Habits or Principles abiding in the Soul, necessary to Conversion; but that it consists altogether in acts stirred up by Supernatural motions, by which the Will is strengthened to accept or refuse: And so all of our Conversion, according to this Arminian Opinion, lieth in such acts of our parts excited by extrinsecal Motions and Enlight'nings on God's part. Hereby it comes to pass (as they would have it) that the whole of Conversion is parted between the Will, nakedly considered, and the adjuvant Grace of God assisting or elevating the Will by way of motion and perswasion, without any working or infusion of a new Heart and Spirit unto us, for they being not neceſſitated to embrace ſuch Habits for Juſtification as the Papiſts do, and yet falling in with the freedom of Man's Will, and ſupernatural exciting Grace only, as the Papiſts do, they reject all ſuch Infuſion of Habits, and wholly deny any part of Regeneration to lie therein; and ſay it is Figmentum Scholaſticum, an Invention of the Schoolmen. Only indeed this they own, That the Soul being thus once turned to God by exciting Grace, by its multiplying ſuch acts through that grace acquires an Habit or facility to act graciouſly, as by the often repeating of other acts men uſe to do, in Arts or Faculties acquired, (as in playing on the Lute, &c.) which indeed ſuppoſeth (as their Principles do) an imperfect inochate Power already in man's Will to act graciouſly which through aſſiſting Grace ſtirred up by crebrous and frequent acts, grows up into an Habit or facility of working. But the Doctrine of Regeneration which we profeſs, is differing from both. We deteſt that Doctrine of Infuſion of Habits for Juſtification, or as a Foundation of works, to make them meritorious. But we ſay they are ſimply required for man's acting holily, and for the pleaſing of God by good works, which good works declare and aſſert withal that in our Regeneration from the firſt acts to the laſt, and ſo throughout our lives, there are infuſed ſupernatural Principles of Life and Grace, which remain and are inherent in us: And ſo the works thereof, nay the workings of Grace in us, are not meerly from motions and excitations of the Holy Spirit in us; Which is the full Scope of the Apoſtle Eph. 2. 10. We are ſaved (that is juſtified and made Heirs of Life) through Faith; not of works, for we are his Workmanſhip created unto good works; which God hath before ordained that we ſhould walk in them. Here are good works as the fruit, and here is a workmanſhip created in us as the Principle whence works proceed, We are his workmanſhip created to good works, and there are no good works without it: But yet inſtead of good works being ordained to juſtifie us, He is the adequate and full end and Ordination of Gods Workmanſhip in us unto good works, which is only, that we ſhould walk in them. Chap. 1

Spirit,

There is another Opinion of ſome high-flown People, who reject and deſpiſe all Habits, and Effects of Grace, eſteeming ſuch a Participation of the divine Nature (and of which the Apoſtle ſpeaks 2 Pet. 1. 4.) to be meerly by Accidents and Qualities, which they Contemn. This Notion is too Low for them, and therefore they boldly Aſſert that they are Partakers of the Divine Nature by being Tranſubſtantiated into God, and that tho' they be no more then Creatures in appearance, yet the Being of God is in reality the Subſtance of their Being. And tho' this Opinion is veil'd under the notion onely of higher Union with God; yet it is Demonſtrable out of their Writings, that they rejecting all that our Divines ſay of our Bleſſed State in Heaven it ſelf, and of Gods being all in all, as to the Communications of himſelf to us there; and rejecting alſo the Hypoſtatical Union of the Humane Nature to the Perſon of the Son of God, they cannot feign any higher Union above thoſe, than that which conſiſts in this, that the Saints ſhall become God. And their believing themſelves to be God, tho' in appearance Creatures, is the Fundamental in which all their Religion centers, and indeed they need no more. So then as God ſaid upon occaſion of the fall of Man, Man is become as one of us. So ſay they of Man reſtor'd, that he becomes God. And therefore they profeſſedly cry out againſt two things eſpecially in our Divinity, becauſe they lie in the way of this high imaginary preferment of the New Creature, to which they profeſs to advance it. One Truth decryed by them is the Perſonaly union of our Nature with the Divine in Jeſus Chriſt: Which tho'it be the higheſt advancement any Creature is capable of, yet falling lower than this, which they aſpire unto, they deſpiſe it, as not high enough for them: All the Saints being (as they ſay) rais'd up to the Form of God, and transform'd into God.

Among many other grounds of this bold Aſſertion, there is one more plauſible, which is this, That by our Opinion we make all our Communion with God to be but Accidental, by vertue of Accidents, or Qualities in the Soul, and not real, or ſubſtantial.

But I anſwer, It is true, that as the Soul it ſelf and its Faculties of Underſtanding and Will, are but Creatures: So Graces are but Qualities in it, and ſtanding

Book V. that Knowledge, and Love which remain in Heaven are no more than Qualities: But yet if they will allow the ſubſtantial Soul of man to be a meer Creature, and to remain a Creature for ever, diſtinct from that divine Eſſence and Being, then it cannot otherwiſe be Partaker of the God-head than by ſuch Communion with him as our Perſon with another Perſon, who never become one in Nature and Eſſence, but continue two ſeveral Beings. The Communications therefore of God to us, and our Communion with him, are tranſacted no otherwiſe, than by our knowing God, Loving him, and enjoying him for ever. A created Underſtanding and Will in a Creature not united to one of the Perſons Hypoſtatically, can come no otherwiſe to be capable of Communion, and Intercourſe with God. And yet to ſay that this is but an accidental Enjoyment of God, or the divine Nature, is utterly falſe: For as we acknowledge and profeſs that it is God himſelf, and all the Bleſſedneſs of him Objectively, that is both known and lov'd of us: So we profeſs to enjoy as our Happineſs the Divine Nature as it is in it ſelf: For ſuch will our enjoyment of him be in Heaven, where theſe inherent Principles of Communion with him, viz. the Knowledge of God, and the Love of God, will continue, and be perfected. And withal we affirm, That the Soul is ſwallowed up into the Enjoyment of God, as its all in all. But as for eſſential Participation; viz. ſo to enjoy him, as to be made one Being with him, that can never be. The manner of the enjoyment is by means of Accidents indeed, but the thing enjoy'd is the Divine Nature made known to us, and beloved of us, as moſt bleſſed in himſelf. But withal we ſay that if the Soul had not theſe Faculties of Underſtanding, and Will, which are but Accidents, tho' Eſſential Properties of it: And likewiſe if it had not thoſe infuſed Qualities of Grace not Holineſs ſuperadded, it could not have this Participation of God Look as the Eye when it beholds the Sun, hath an immediate Communion with the Sun; yet if it had not a viſive Faculty, a Power of ſeeing, and were but a meer Ball of Fleſh (ſuch Fleſh as other parts of the Body are) the eye could not be a receptive of the Sun. So it is here; the Underſtanding could not ſee or know him as God, nor the Will glorifie him or love him as God, if it were not inſpired, and endowed with thoſe new Principles for which we are contending: Much leſs would it be capable of taking in the Glory of God (as in Heaven it doth) to be its ſelf glorified thereby. And look as when the eye beholds the Sun, it reflects not on its ſelf, it thinks not of, nor regards to boaſt of this that it hath ſuch a Power of ſeeing in Aſpect, but 'tis wholly taken up with the Glory of the Sun it ſelf, which is all in all in ſuch a View. So is it in Heaven, when God is all in all to the bleſſed Souls there. Only if there were not a new Eye given the Soul to ſee with, and an Heart to love him; or a Divine Nature like unto God's, it could never have to do with him, nor were it capable of it, nor meet for it. Take Lead, yea Gold it ſelf; and the Loadſtone will not draw it, nor will it follow the Loadſtone nor cleave unto it; but let the divine Power turn that Gold into Iron which hath Qualities like to, and aſſimulated to the Loadſtone, and then you ſhall ſee the new made Iron in motion, as the Loadſtone moves to it, yea if the Loadſtone doth touch a peice of Metal, it infuſeth a magnetick Vertue to draw Needles unto it, and yet that vertue is but a new Quality, or Accident. So it is herewith Souls; it is not the beſt or largeſt or moſt refined Soul for the Subſtance of it, with all its eſſential Faculties, nor the largeſt or greateſt Underſtanding Faculty in any ſuch Soul, that is fitted for this Communion with God: But take the dulleſt Soul, and meaneſt among all the Number of Souls, and let God infuſe his Likeneſs unto it, that is, give it a divine qualified Underſtanding to know him, and a diſpoſed Heart to love him, and inſtantly it runs after him, and doth it naturally and ſuitably.

CHAP. II.

That the Holy Ghoſt, when he makes us New Creatures, works in us fixed and abiding Principles of a Spiritual Life, proved; 1. Becauſe it is a New Birth, which ſuppoſeth a Principle of Life given. 2. Becauſe this New Creature is called Spirit. 3. Becauſe it is called ſo, in Oppoſition to Fleſh. 4. Becauſe the Apoſtle ſpeaks of our being Born of God, and ſo having received a Seed of Divine Life, which cannot Sin. 5. Be*cauſe he ſpeaks of Eternal Life, abiding in us.* 6. Be*cauſe,* 2 Pet. 1. 3. We are ſaid to be Partakers of a Divine Nature, and this is ſomething which is continually growing in us. 7. The ſame is proved from the Parable of the Sower, and his Seed, Mark 4. 17. And of the Ten Virgins, Mat. 25.

I HAVE in the foregoing Chapter given an Account of thoſe Opinions which allow no other Work of the Holy Spirit, than to move and excite us to Holy Actions; and which deny his Influence to produce in us Living and Abiding Principles, from which when Regenerated, we have ſome Inherent Abilities, (tho' in dependance ſtill on his renew'd enlivening us, both to Will, and to Do, Phil. 2. 13.) to perform them.

I ſhall now prove the Doctrine which I propounded in the beginning of that Chapter, which is this.

Doctr. That the Holy Ghoſt doth not only move and ſtir us up to all good Actions which we do, but that in the Work of Converſion, he produceth in us Living, and Laſting Principles of a conſtant Holy Life.

Firſt, I ſhall firſt Explain this Doctrine.

Second. I ſhall prove it by ſeveral Arguments.

I. For the Explication of the Doctrine. All Men may Underſtand the difference between an Inherent Power in the Soul, or Principle wherewith to Act; and the Act, or Operation it ſelf, be it Inward or Outward, proceeding from it, as the effect thereof. In the Body, we ſee an Hearing Ear, (to which that Speech of Chriſt's concerning Spiritual hearing, alludes, He that hath an Ear to Hear, let him Hear) which is made by God, and endowed with a ready Diſpoſition, and ability to hear ſounds: And this Power is inherent in the Ear, and is ordained for Hearing, as the Act. The ſame we may underſtand of the Eye; there is a viſive Power reſiding in it, and enabling it actually to ſee Colours when laid afore it: Which are the Objects ordained and fitted by God unto it. The Neceſſity of which permanent Power in either, we ſee by experience; and is mainly underſtood by the Example of thoſe whom Chriſt Cured (that were Born Blind and Deaf) if we conſider the different Condition of the Perſons, afore and after the Cure: As alſo that there was an Almighty Power put forth, firſt, to give an Inherent power to their Ears and Eyes, to hear and ſee, ere their Soul could put forth the Acts of Hearing, or Seeing. And of both theſe, the Blind young Man Cured, was ſo ſenſible; that he Proclaims it to Chriſts Praiſe, John 9. 25. One thing I know, that whereas I was Blind, now I ſee: And he knew too, that it was Extraordinay, and a work of Omnipotency: v. 32. Since the World began, was it not heard, that any Man opened the Eyes of one that was Born Blind.

And however there were a Capacity, and remote radical power in his Soul; yet it could never have produced an Act of ſeeing any thing in this World, which it was in the midſt of, without a new bodily Eye; or a new endowment of it with a new power of ſeeing.

Now there is in the Caſe of a Man Unregenerate, and Regenerate, a further diſtinction to be made. 1. Of a Natural Faculty in the Souls of Each. 2. Of a Principle in the ſaid Faculty, in order to Act. 3. Of the Acts both are ordained for.

Take the Soul of a Man Unregenerate, it hath naturally and eſſentially an Underſtanding Faculty in it (he were not of Mankind elſe) and that Underſtanding hath a Capableneſs, and a remote Faculty to have Spiritual Objects taken in by it; and ſo to Act towards them. For when it ſhall once come to know them in a ſpiritual manner, it muſt be ſaid that it is the underſtanding Faculty, which is Eſſential to the Man that doth Underſtand them. Indeed before a Spiritual Light induc'd into it, it ſtill remains as one Born Blind, as to thoſe Spiritual Objects; And it cannot receive them, for they are Spiritually diſcerned, (1 Cor. 2.) but muſt be ſuper-endowed with a new Ability, and Principle infuſed into it by a New Birth; or it cannot Spiritually Eye, nor at all Underſtand them, as they are in themſelves, and although through Adjutories of Light, &c. Men may ſee them in the Painted Glaſs, and Literal Notion of them; yet not as they are in themſelves, in their true Spiritual Nature: No, no more then our Bodily Eyes can ſee Angels, that are of that other inviſible World, an higher world then Ours, unleſs they do aſſume Viſible Shapes, or we ſee them Painted with Earthly Colours. Anſwerably Chriſt ſays, John 3. 3. Jeſus Anſwered and ſaid unto him, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, Except a Man be Born again, he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God. They cannot ſee them: And thus alſo God pronounceth of the Jews in the Wilderneſs, after Forty Years experience of Gods Wonders, and giving the Law; Deut. 29. 34. Yet the Lord hath not given you an Heart to perceive, and Eyes to ſee, and Ears to hear, unto this Day. Eyes they had, and Underſtandings they had, as Men; but not as Spiritual Men; and ſo had not the true ſight of Spiritual things to affect their Hearts towards them, in their Spiritual Nature; without which God regards not any other Apprehenſion of them.

Now tho' this new Spiritual viſive Power, with which the Underſtanding is endowed, be for the kind of its being but a Quality; and a Super-additional Accident introduced into the Underſtanding, and not a Faculty, as the Underſtanding is, Eſſentially inherent in the Soul; yet as it is planted in the Soul in order to receive, and take in things Spiritual, (which are of an higher order of Beings unto our Natural Underſtandings, and are Infinitely Tranſcending things Natural, and Worldly, which are the Objects of our Natural Underſtandings; and by which, or like Terms, the Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth thoſe two differing both Objects, and Powers of a Regenerate, and Unregenerate Man) ſo this new Divine and Heaven-born Power, Elevating and Empowering the Soul to diſcern them, hath juſtly the name of being enſtiled a new Underſtanding, 1 John 5. 20. And we know that the Son of God is come come, and hath given us an Underſtanding that we may know him that is true, that is, truly to Underſtand him that is true. Chap 2.

Thus the Bodily Eye of Man after the Reſurrection, Elevated to ſee Angels, (which now are inviſible unto it) may be enſtyled a new Eye, yea, and a Spiritual Eye; even as the whole Body then ſhall be a Spiritual Body; (as it is called, 1 Cor. 15.) And yet that change will be but the Superinduction of new Spiritual Qualities ſuiting the Eye, and whole Body unto ſuch Spiritual Objects as Angels, &c. are: The ſubſtance both of thoſe Eyes, and of thoſe Bodies remaining the ſame that now. And yet thoſe new Spiritual Habilities then are ſaid to conſtitute their Bodies Spiritual, and Transform and raiſe then into Bodies of an higher Rank and Order, like to Angels, as Chriſt ſays, and he ſpeaks it of what manner of Perſons in reſpect of our Bodies, we ſhall then be. In like manner the whole of a Man new Born, ſo endowed with this Divine Quality of Spirit; (though it be but a Quality) is ſtyled a New Man, a Spiritual Man. It gives a new Name to the whole Man, And doth as truly Conſtitute him ſuch, in that Sphere of Spirituality; and deſerves to be ſo ſtyled being the Principle of this New Spiritual Life; as much as the Soul with its natural Faculties, ſimply conſidered, hath the name of, and Conſtitutes the Man to whoſe Body it is joyned, in the rank of a Living Soul: For though Grace be but an Accident, yet 'tis ſuch as is worth all Mens Souls in the Subſtance of them, devoid of it.

And Further; If the Soul were not by the Infuſion of this new Spiritual Quality Elevated, and admitted into that Order of Spiritual Agents, having Spiritual Life, it would want that Eſſential property (in Common to all ſorts of living Agents in their kinds) to act from within it ſelf: But muſt be acted meerly by a Principle Extrinſecal to its ſelf.

And Further; The Neceſſity of ſuch a new Spiritual Hability to be infuſed into our Souls, to Conſtitute them Spiritual, and Agents of that kind, is, that both Act and Principle may be of one and the ſame Kind and Nature; a Spiritual Acting, Proceeding Suitably from a Spiritual Principle; which had firſt Conſtituted the Man in whom it is, a Spiritual Man; as good Fruit is from a Tree, firſt made Good, as Chriſt ſays; without which it cannot bring forth good fruit.

And as the Bodily Eye at the Reſurrection, cannot exert the leaſt Spiritual Act to thoſe Spiritual Objects ſpecified; nor thoſe Bodies put forth any one Exerciſe that is proper unto Spiritual Bodies, until at the Reſurrection the Body be Conſtituted a Spiritual Body; ſo is it here.

And Laſtly; This endowed Spiritual Principle in the Soul, is abiding; and permanently inherent in the Soul, when thoſe Spiritual actings ceaſe; as the exerciſe of our preſent Senſes do in Sleep; or when they are diſturbed, and hindered.

2. Having thus explain'd the Doctrine, I come now to prove it by theſe following Arguments.

1. In the words of my Text (John 3. 6.) the work of the Spirit in us is expreſſed to be a Being, or thing born, which implyes Principles of Life given it, in order to Acting, and Operations; or Works of Life. All other Births, do this; They give a natural Being: And ſo this gives a Spiritual one, and both according to their Kind. In Scripture it is not the Acts of Faith or Love that are ſaid to be born of God, or a man to be born of God thro' thoſe Actings; but on the contrary they are made Signs of a man's being born of God. As Effects are of their proper Cauſe. As a Child's crying, which is an Act of Life, Is in Law made a Sign of a Child's being born alive: So Faith is made a Sign of a man's being born again, 1 John 5. 1. Whoever believeth that Jeſus is the Son of God, is born of God. And this our Regeneration doth contain in it many more Graces beſides Faith: And this Expreſſion, To be born of God, ſignified in the Language of the Primitive Church a Fundamental common General Character, denoting a Christian truly and savingly wrought upon by God. Of which New Birth, this one act of believing Christ to be the Son of God, was an Evidence. Deus posuit in Corde Fundamentum Fidei; says Prosper: God putts in a Foundation of Faith into the Heart, and then draws forth the Acts of Faith. So John 1. 12. 13. They who believed in his Name, which were born not of Blood, nor of the Will of the Flesh, nor of the Will of Man, but of the Will of God. They were born first: The like is spoken of the Act of Love, 1 John 4. 7. every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God. The Act of Loving God, is alledged as the Effect, and the note of a man's being born of God. That which is added, and knoweth God, shews that act of loving God, dependeth likewise on an act of Knowledge and of Acquaintance with God perswading it, but both of them depend on our being Born again. The Act of the Understanding in knowing God, depends upon being born of God as the Foundation of it, as well as the act of Loving. Unless a man be born again, He cannot see the Kingdom of God (says Christ, John 3. 5.) nor know any thing belonging to it. The Scripture speaking suitably to this Allusion, compares these new Powers and Abilities, unto natural Faculties, and Powers, themselves in the Soul; which are the Principles of Acting; such as is the Faculty and Instrument of Seeing, where Seeing denotes the Act. And the Scripture speaks of giving Eyes to see; Ears to hear; and an Heart to understand; Deut. 29. 4. Yet the Lord hath not given you an Heart to perceive, and Eyes to see, and Ears to hear, unto this Day: Now that which is properly said to be given by ones Birth, is the natural Faculty and Ability of any thing to act so and so, according to its Kind. So then, like as the natural Birth, brings a man forth with all the Powers of Sight, Hearing &c. So doth the new Birth the like. The Child exerciseth not these in the Womb at the first, yet hath them all in the Principle. 'Tis Basil's comparison, As the Power of seeing in a sound Eye; As Art in him who hath acquir'd it; Such is the Grace of the Spirit in him who receives it; always indeed present, but not perpetually operating.

De Spirita Sancto, Cap. 26.

2. A Second Argument to prove the Doctrine, is, That this work of the Holy Ghost is termed Spirit, here in John 3. 6. and a spiritual man, 1 Cor. 2. 14, 15. and that in order to discerning Spiritual things. This Argument will be farther strengthened, if the Analogy be considered between this new Birth of the Soul and the Resurrection of the Body (which is called the Regeneration:) of the Resurrection of the Body, it is said (1 Cor. 15. 44, 45, &c.) That the Body is sown a natural Body, but it is raised a spiritual Body. I would ask what is that new Spiritualizing of the Body, but an endowing it with such new Qualities and Abilities as shall fit the Body unto a spiritual Condition and Actings: It shall be endowed with such new Qualities, namely, as Incorruption, Glory, Agility &c. and perhaps with new Senses, which we cannot now guess at, which are differing from, yet answering unto these natural Qualities and Powers our Bodies now, as natural Bodies have; unto which the character of these spiritual Bodies is opposed; the Change then is not barely of new Acts, but of new Powers and Endowments, enabling us to Act. Therefore Verse 50. he speaks of our present Bodies as those that are incapable of the Objects and Acts we shall have then; Flesh and Blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God. They want Powers to bear and sustain the Objects of spiritual Glory, and they want Qualifications to take them in. And therefore 'tis said of those that do not then die, that they shall be changed, Verse 52. and these vile Bodies shall be changed and fashioned like to Christ's glorious Body, Phil. 3. 21. which is spoken in respect of new inherent Powers and Endowments, which are Qualities, and are stiled the Image of the Heavenly man 1 Cor 15. 42. As is the Earthly, such are the Earthy, viz. Adam and his Sons in their Bodies; for so endowed are ours from him. And as is the Heavenly namely, Christ as risen, and in Heave such shall our Bodies be. All import likeness in Qualifications, &c. Now then look as the Body is at and by the Resurrection made Spiritual in those Respects; in like sense it is that the Soul is made spiritual by Regeneration, which is termed a Resurrection to the Soul as the other ther is the Regeneration of the Body; as commonly in Scripture they are enterchanged. The Reſurrection is termed a Regeneration, Mat. 19. 28. Col. 1. 18. where Chriſt is call'd the Firſt-born from the Dead. And this day (ſays God, Acts 13. 36.) have I begotten thee. And ſo Regeneration is termed a Reſurrection, Eph. 2. 5, 6. Even when we were dead in ſins hath quickened us together with Chriſt (by Grace ye are ſaved) and hath raiſed us up together. And Chriſt is as powerful, yea and a greater Benefactor to our Souls now, than he will be then to our Bodies: He will therefore be a quickening Spirit to both. And therefore in making our Souls ſpiritual, he doth as much for them, and works the like things, viz. new Powers in the Soul to ſee the Kingdom of God (as the Phraſe is in this third of John) as well as he will work new Qualifications in the glorified Body, that it may inherit the Kingdom of God. To give our Bodies ſuch Eyes as ſhall ſee Angels, who are Spirits, and are not otherwiſe the Objects of our Senſes, is but in Analogy what is done to our Souls in giving them Eyes to ſee and an Underſtanding to know God and Jeſus Chriſt, as they are in themſelves. Chap. 2

3. A Third Argument from what is in the Text for this, is the Oppoſition (in John 3. 6.) between Fleſh and Spirit. Fleſh is evidently evil Diſpoſitions, and Inclinations unto Evil, which dwell in a man, and which is a Root hath Fruits: And purſuing that Similitude, the Apoſtle enumerating the Works of the Fleſh, which are manifeſt, termeth them the Fruits of the Fleſh, Gal. 5. and in oppoſition thereto, Spirit (in the 17. v.) is uſed in like ſenſe. And when Paul (Rom. 7.) ſpeaks of that Sin that dwells in Him; he expreſſeth it to be a Sin that, by occaſion of the Law, wrought all Concupiſcence; v. 7. mark that word wrought, It was a Sin which was diſtinct from the works of ſin, and therefore it was an active Diſpoſition, and Inclination, diſtinct from thoſe Acts, as the cauſe of them: Which ſin is alſo called an indwelling ſin in the man: And ſo notes out, what is permanent. And in this Senſe doth this Apoſtle up and down in Rom. 7. ſpeak of it, terming it Fleſh (as v. 5.) and Himſelf, in reſpcte of this Sin, Carnal (v. 14.) and in my Fleſh (ſays he) dwells no good thing. And in that very Speech of His there, which He ſpeaks by way of Explanation, or Limitation;) In me, that is, (ſays he) in my Fleſh, dwells no good thing; He implyes that he had another Self, or me, wherein All good did dwell; (even as in himſelf, as He was Fleſh, no good thing did dwell) and wherein the contrary good did dwell; that is, an Inclination to what was truly good, and ſpiritual. And therefore it follows, To will is preſent with me: To will what? Any thing that is good; which yet he was not able to perform; as it follows: But how to perform that which is good, I find not: as if he had ſaid, Yea, but yet I have ſo much of Good too, continually dwelling in me, oppoſite to this Fleſh, as is ready to put forth, and doth put forth, though but an imperfect Act or Will (for the Principle is but imperfect and Læſa Principia habent, Læſas Operationes) unto what is good, when it is preſented to it: Now what is an inward Readineſs, and Preparedneſs to Good, and that Spiritual good, as the Law is, but an habitual Principle, indwelling? And therefore, as of that wicked man it is ſaid, He was ready to all evil; Acts 13. 10. So of a Godly man it is in like manner ſaid, He is ready to every good work: Tit. 2. 1. meet, and prepared, as a Veſſel is for his Maſters uſe, both by its habitual faſhion and make, as we ſay, which are inward Diſpoſitions that fit it, by the cleanneſs of it from defilement, as 1 Tim. 2. 21.

4. A fourth Argument is drawn from what the Apoſtle John ſays, 1 John 3. 9. Whoſoever is born of God, doth not commit ſin; for his Seed remaineth in him: And he cannot ſin, becauſe he is born of God. He ſpeaks of our being born of God, and that there is a ſuitable Nature, a Seed of divine Life in us which cannot ſin, or be touch'd with Evil, for it cannot act contrary to its own Nature, and Being: As Fire being preſerv'd cannot act contrary to its Nature. It may indeed be put out by ſubſtraction of Fuel, yet if it be kept up, and and remain Fire, it cannot either moiſten, or cool. This in Analogy is the force of the Apoſtle's reaſoning that every Believer by his new Birth receives ſuch a Seed of ſpiritual Life, ſuch an Heavenly Nature, which cannot ſin; for to do ſo, would be to act contrary to its ſelf. It is the Soul it ſelf which is endowed with this Seed of Life, and is the Subject, and intrinſecal Principle of Action. The Holy Spirit, tho' he is in us, and dwelleth in us, yet is not this Seed of God here mention'd by the Apoſtle, for he is extrinſecal to the Soul her ſelf, as to the Actions which ſhe doth. Now it is the property of all things that have Life, to have in their ſeveral Kinds of Life; a Principle by which they bring forth Actions of that Life. And thus free, and Intelligent Agents in their Kind have a Principle of Life and Action, beſides that firſt, and ſupream Mover of all, in whom we live, and move, and have our Being: Who tho' he be in us, and Acts us, yet he is but extrinſecal to the Act. For we our ſelves being endowed with Principles of Action, are moved by him, And therefore the Actions which we perform, as Praying, &c. are not attributed to the Holy Ghoſt as the Subject of them, but only as the Efficient. We muſt not ſay that they are the Holy Ghoſt's Prayers ſubjectively, but only efficiently. He makes them in us, and for us, and helps our Infirmities in Praying (Rom. 8.) but that which conſtitutes us in the Rank of ſpiritual Actors in the Duty, and the Subjects of it, is a Principle of a ſpiritual Life inherent, and ſeated in the Mind, and Will, and quickening us thereunto. And this is the Seed convey'd in the new Birth, and communicated from God who hath Life in himſelf. And that a man, thus born again, becomes thereby an Agent from a new vital Principle within him, is evident from a Parallel Scripture in the ſame Epiſtle of John, 1 John 5. 18. We know that whoſoever is born of God ſinneth not; but he that is begotten of God, keepeth himſelf, and that wicked one toucheth him not. He ſpeaks it indeed of the unpardonable Sin unto Death. But when he adds, He that is born of God, keepeth himſelf, he means that the regenerate man is an Agent in the Buſineſs, and acts from what is within Himſelf: And his ſaying that he is born of God, implies, that he hath receiv'd, and doth retain the Seed of God within him.

That the Holy Ghoſt is not the Seed meant in theſe two Places, 1 John 3. 9. and 1 John 5. 18. is evident, as by what hath been ſaid, ſo by this farther reaſon: Becauſe it wou'd be improper to ſay that therefore the man born of God cannot ſin, becauſe the Spirit of God in him cannot ſin. This were utterly improper, but to ſay (as aforeſaid) that the man who is born of God, and hath his Seed, cannot ſin, is a Speech, which is conſonant to the Voice of Nature. It implies the Voice of an inward Diſpoſition, which cauſeth a man to ſay, he cannot do thus, or thus, contrary to his Nature, ſo remaining: It is Nature ſpeaks, but the Holy Ghoſt himſelf becomes not the new Nature in, or unto any Soul.

And that other Speech, He who is born of God keepeth himſelf, doth moſt properly ſhew, that though the Holy Ghoſt in us be the great Conſervator, and Keeper, and Actor of us; yet by means of our being born of God, and and receiving a Seed of God within us, our Underſtandings and Wills do act, tho' actuated by him. So that the holy Actions, tho' the Spirit excites, and ſtirrs us up to them, are our own, and we are the intrinſecal Agent of them, and conſtituted to be ſo by vertue of a divine Seed convey'd to us in our ſpiritual Birth. And the Metaphor of Seed remaining is (As Thomas Aquinas out of Auguſtine explains it) an Alluſion to what God doth to his other Creatures bearing Seed according to their Kind. He hath communicated to every ſuch Creature a ſeminal Principle ordained to encreaſe and grow up to ſuch, and ſuch Effects of bringing forth Fruits, as we ſee in Trees, &c. And ſo in the Second Creation, God, in like manner, puts in a ſeminal Vertue, which as the Seed of Muſtard, the leaſt of Seeds (as Chriſt ſays) is yet to grow up to a Tree the greateſt of all other: And therefore look what Proportion, and Ordination that natural Seed, with its Vertue ſown in the Ground, hath unto natural Fruits, and Effects, the Like hath this Seed of God ſown in the Soul of the Heart unto ſupernatural Acts. Seed is the Communication of a Principle of Life from things that live, ordained to grow up, and act according to its Kind: And in a ſimular manner this here is the Seed of all that Holi-

neſs which after follows in our Lives, and which ſprings from it, yea, and it is the Seed of Glory it ſelf. Chap. 2

Nor is this Seed meerly the Word of God heard, or read by us, and remaining in our Minds, and Memory; as what we have heard, our Minds are ſaid to retain. 'Tis true if the word heard become ἔμφυτον an ingrafted word in the Heart, changing that Stock into its own Nature, then indeed it is all one with this Seed of the new Birth: As the Apoſtle ſpeaks, James 1. 18. Of his own Will begat he us with the word of Truth, that we ſhould be a kind of firſt-fruits of his Creatures. Wherefore ſays he v. 21. Wherefore lay apart all Filthyneſs, and ſuperfluity of naughtineſs, and receive with meekneſs the engrafted word, which is able to ſave your Souls. This ingrafting of the word, is in Subſtance the ſame with Regeneration its ſelf, being a Similitude to illuſtrate it. But tho' the Word be ſown, the meer ſowing, it is not Regeneration, if it doth not take Root in a good and honeſt Heart (Mat. 13. 18. &c.) and therefore the meer receiving the good Seed of the Word, as the Stony and Thorny Ground did, regenerateth no man. For if it be ſo, that the Letter of the word falls either carelelly into mens Ears, ſo that the Underſtanding is not ſo much as poſſeſs'd with a notion of divine truth: It is no more then Seed laid up in the hard troden high-way-Ground: Or if it falls into the Underſtanding, yet ſo as not to affect the Heart, the Devil ſoon takes it away, as the Fowls pick up looſe Seed, which hath not taken root in the Ground: Or if it works ſo as to ſtir the Affections, yet ſtill if it wants depth of Earth to take Root, it is not the inherent abiding Principle of Regeneration, which we treat of, and indeed ſuch a bare receiving of the Seed regenerateth no man.

That therefore which is meant by the engrafted word, is the Law of God written in the Heart (as God hath promiſ'd in his new Covenant to do it) utterly differing from the Work of the Law in the letter of it, which the Heathens had, Rom. 2. For it is ſuch a writing of the Law as God had written in Chriſt's Heart, Pſal. 40. 8. I delight to do thy Will, O my God: Yea, thy Law is within my Heart. It is this engrafted Word, the word or Law written by the Holy Ghoſt (2 Cor. 3. 12.) and therefore is diſtinct from that Holy Spirit himſelf) that is the abiding Principle wrought in us by Regeneration. And as Chriſt had this Law written in his Heart (Pſal. 40. 8.) So we hereby are conformed unto Chriſt's Image, Rom. 6. For what is that, but an inwrought ſtrong Diſpoſition in the Soul, conforming, and inclining it to what the Word and Will of God directs unto? Grace is the Word of God concocted, and digeſted into the Heart, and made of one Nature with it. In which Senſe, and for which cauſe, the Word is ſaid to abide for ever in the Souls of men converted, 1 Pet. 1. 2, 3. And that Phraſe of writing the Law in the Hearts, imports no leſs than ſuch an abiding Principle. Words ſpoken are Tranſient, and vaniſh into Air, but Litera Scripta manet: what is written, abides, and is extant to be ſeen and read.

5. I draw a fifth Argument to prove that the Holy Ghoſt in regenerating us, works an inherent permanent Principle of a ſpiritual Life, from what the Apoſtle John farther ſays of eternal Life abiding in us. It is not only that eternal Life abides upon us, (as it is ſaid John 3. 36. that the Wrath of God abides upon him, who believes not) but it is ſaid to abide in us. Eternal Life muſt have a Beginning, as well as Accompliſhment. And we all ſay that the Life of Grace is the Beginning of a Life that is eternal, and will be perfected in Glory, and abides in the mean time in him that hath obtain'd a Right unto the Life of Glory to come: It is not only ſaid that a man hath Eternal Life, in that ſenſe as a man is ſaid to have an Eſtate, an Inheritance he hath right unto, but a Regenerate man's Condition is expreſſed by this, that he hath Eternal Life abiding in him; as an unregenerate man's Condition is expreſſ'd by the contrary, 1 John 3. 15. He that loves not his Brother hath not Eternal Life abiding in him, that is, in ſhort, he hath not Grace. 'Twas a Phraſe in thoſe times to expreſs a man's ſpiritual State by Book V. By that Character, that He was One that had Eternal Life abiding in him, which Phraſe I urge. Now, ſays the Apoſtle, I hope you will all grant that a Murtherer whoſe Heart and Spirit is full of Blood to the Saints, as Cain's was to Abel (in whom the Apoſtle had Inſtanced) ſuch a man cannot have Eternal Life abiding in him, as not being conſiſtent with ſuch an Heart and inward Diſpoſition which his Soul is fill'd withal. He argues from the ſame Topick and Principle that he had done v. 9. that inherent Grace, that is, eternal Life that abides in the Soul, cannot conſiſt with ſuch a Frame of Heart as to hate the Saints as ſuch, and to ſeek their Death and Ruine. The act of Murther, and that of a Saint, (as it may ſeem Uriah was) may with a right to eternal Life conſiſt in David, but an Heart at enmity with the Saints (which is John's Scope) cannot, for it is a contradiction to that Principle of eternal Life which is begun in him and abides in him. You heard afore that Grace is call'd a Seed becauſe it is the Seed and beginning of Eternal Life; and this Place confirms it, theſe both in like manner being ſaid to be abiding in a Chriſtian, and the Apoſtle alike arguing from both.

6. Further to prove my Aſſertion, that by Regeneration an inherent and abiding Principle of Life is wrought, I argue from 2 Pet. 1. 3. According as his divine Power hath given unto us all Things that pertain unto Life and Godlineſs, through the Knowledge of him that hath called us to Glory and Vertue. He ſpeaks not of thoſe external Priviledges and Benefits of Juſtification and Adoption, &c. which are given us; which is evident by two Arguments, 1. Becauſe they are ſuch things as are wrought in us by Power. The giving Juſtification and Adoption is aſcribed to his Grace, &c. towards us; and ſo Works done upon us, and out of us, and yet beſtowed on us, are uſually ſaid to be to the Glory of his Grace (Eph. 1.) But what are done in us are the proper Objects of Power.

2. Again Secondly, It is added that God, or Chriſt, in giving us theſe, is conſidered as he that hath call'd us to Glory and Vertue. Now you know the true Maxime is, that God's calling any Perſon unto any Employment or Dignity, is joined with the giving him Abilities, and an Heart ſuited with Principles anſwerable. So then his meaning is, That God having by Regeneration and Faith called us unto a Poſſeſſion of Glory hereafter, and the Prelibation of it here, and in order thereunto the Exerciſe of Vertue and Holineſs in this Life, he hath anſwerably by the working of his Almighty Power in us, given us a Spirit fitted thereto, that is, ready furniſh'd with all things that are the Beginnings of, and Preparation to that Life (which you heard termed Eternal Life abiding) as alſo to all the Duties of Godlineſs, which we are to walk in here. He hath fitted us in ſome meaſure for that Calling. And you ſee that he ſpeaks in the time paſt, that his Power hath (in time paſt and already) given us all and the whole of them, as to the ſeveral Vertues, Seeds, and Principles of them.

7. Add to this Seventhly, as another Argument, What is that divine Nature which is ſpoken of there in the fourth verſe? Not the Divine Being of God, for that cannot be made Common between God and us, or divided. It is therefore Inherent Grace which is oppoſed to Luſts in the Words following, Having eſcaped the Corruption that is in the World thro' Luſt. Nature is an abiding, permanent Principle, carrying on the things which it is to act accordingly. We are not Partakers of God's Nature eſſentially, therefore not as a Nature, otherwiſe then by having his Likeneſs or Image in divine Qualities ſtampt on us, and ſo becoming like to him, to be holy as he is Holy, which makes us fit to have Fellowſhip with him, and ſo to take in his Glory, and to be made happy by it, which unleſs we agree in an holy Nature, and Holy Diſpoſitions with him, we cannot do. And this new Nature denotes a ſtable and permanent Being in the Soul, As alſo a Principle of working or it were not truly a Nature. Dioniſius has rightly expreſs'd it, Nothing can come to work or act till it hath received a Nature and a Being as the Principle thereof: So nor to act divinely or ſupernaturally till it hath a Being of ſuch a Super-natural Nature given to it; and this is ſtill the ſame with the Seed of God, and Eternal Life abiding in us. We have by the new Birth a ſupernatural Being, as by the firſt a natural. Chap. 4

8. It is a Seed, a Nature, a Life, &c. for it is ſaid to grow up in us, or elſe what is meant by growing in Grace and renewing the inner man, and the like? How can this be meant but that as a Seed, which is an imperfect communicationofLife, grows up to a Stalk, and Blade and Ear, ſo this of Grace in us? 'Tis ſuch as all other growths are, and ſubſiſts therefore by the encreaſing of thoſe permanent Qualities and Vertues. A living man is not ſaid to grow as ſuch, or as a living man, otherwiſe then as he adds one act of Life to another. A man is ſaid to grow rich by adding to an heap, but a living man grows in ſtrength and Bulk anſwerably to the Principle of Life at firſt received.

Learn what is meant by thoſe diſtinguiſhing Characters in the Parable of the four Grounds, and in that of the wiſe and fooliſh Virgins. The ſtony Ground's defect was this, they had no Root in themſelves Mark 4. 17. Which ſpeaks the very Language of inherent Grace, which is that which is properly in a man's ſelf inbred and implanted. And Job calls it the root of the Matter, Job 19. 28. The fooliſh Virgins wanted Oyl in their Veſſels, when that they had Oyl in their Lamps. The wiſe on the contrary had Oyl in their Veſſels when yet their Lamps were out, as in Mat. 25. you read. Let any give a more rational interpretation than this, That the Oyl in the Lamps is ſuch aſſiſtances by Motions and Enablings, as ſerve to hold forth an outward Profeſſion, and to perform the ſame Duties, and to give the ſame light to others which the fooliſh Virgins had, but they had not Grace in the Heart, Oyl in the Veſſel, as a Stock or Treaſury abiding in them, when that in the Lamp might be out. But the wiſe Virgins had that abiding in them when themſelves were aſleep, and their Lamps clean out. It uſes to be made an Argument in this Caſe or Point, That if there were not abiding Principles of Grace, that then when a Believer is aſleep he ceaſeth to be an holy man, or a Believer. If Life lay only in the Actings and ſtirrings of Life, then when they ceaſe, there would be no interciſion of Life, and ſo Eternal Life, as ſuch, ſhould not abide in a man, as you have heard. And the Argument is ſtrong as to the Point: But it is more ſtrengthned by this Scripture (Mat. 25.) ſpeaking the ſame, or the like to it. There are Chriſtians not only aſleep as they are men but even as Chriſtians alſo, and their Lamps go out; their profeſſion and actings in a great meaſure ceaſing, and yet they have Oyl in their Veſſels, Grace in their Hearts, ready to be drawn up into the Lamp and to become matter of a new ſhining forth in good works.

It is alſo urged, that if it were not for ſuch inherent Principles abiding, an holy man could not be denominated holy, but when he acts holily: As a man's Countenance is not denominated Ruddy for bluſhings or fluſhings, but from the conſtant Conſtitution and Complexion. And here you ſee a confirmation of the foregoing Argument alſo, for they are denominated wiſe Virgins, when yet their actings ceaſing, they were as fools and not wiſe: Even as Solomon ſays of himſelf, that in the midſt of his decay, his Wiſdom that is, his Grace remained with him Eccleſiaſtes 2. 9.

Yea, This Oyl in their Veſſels, or Hearts, did they carry with them into Glory with the Bridegroom, and were made Veſſels of Glory as you read there. Yea and it is ſaid that our Souls are thereby, made meet for Glory, Col. 12. 3. and prepared for Glory Rom. 9. 23. Even as well as thereby they are prepared for every good work; as Veſſels meet for our Maſters uſe, 2 Tim. 2. 21. And when we dye, not only our Works doe follow us (Rev. 14.) as a man's Treaſure, which he hath wrought and gotten, but alſo the Soul it ſelf is wrought by God here for this very purpoſe, to be made capable of a further degree of Glory, as it brings Grace with it into the other World, 2 Cor. 5. 5. Now he that hath wrought us for the ſelf-ſame thing is God. Not only have we actively wrought but we our selves are here passively wrought by God, having our Fruit the Encrease of inherent Holiness (Rom. 6.) and the end everlasting Life. And therefore (2 Cor. 5. 3.) he had said we shall be cloathed with Glory if we be not found naked, that is, devoi'd of the Image of God, but cloathed upon with it, as the Apostle elsewhere also speaks.

CHAP. III.

That the Holy Ghost in Regenerateing us, works in us an abiding Principle of a Spiritual Life, Demonstrated by other Arguments deduc'd from the Nature of the Work wrought in us.

I HAVE thus far prov'd, by direct Scriptures, that by Regeneration we receive an Inward Principle of Life. I shall now use other Demonstrations of it.

1. If in Regeneration there be a mortification of that Flesh in part, which (as we heard) is an inherent Corruption, then there is an habitual Principle of Grace that cometh in the room of that inherent Corruption that was destroyed. That in Regeneration there is a mortification of an inherent Corruption is evident, because the Subject of mortification is that Flesh that dwells in us: For if there be such a Body of sin in us, it must be destroyed, Rom. 6. 6. And therefore the Subject hereof is call'd the old man, the Body of sin, the earthly Members, throughout the Scriptures. And also it appears by this, That if mortification were but a deading the Soul to a present act of sinning, then it were no more but restraining Grace. Well then, if this mortification be a destruction of an inherent Corruption, then there is also an habitual Principle of Grace comes in the room of it. This is evident;

1. Because Vivification, or quickening, is of as large an extent as mortification can be supposed, for they are commensurable. The Spirit of life that comes into us is proportioned, and is as large and ample as the death of sin, and God's work in quickening is no less then what is seen in mortifying.

2. And Secondly if it were otherwise, this also would follow, that so much of the Soul in which sin was afore, and in which, sin is now mortified, should remain (as the Apostle speaks) naked and uncloathed upon with Grace, and have neither Grace, nor Corruption in it. And so whereas still a part of the Soul remains corrupt habitually, this other part would remain unsanctified habitually. The State and Condition of the Soul would have this disadvantage in it, that unto evil it hath a Bias, a Poise, or (as the Apostle expresseth it) a weight continually to pull it down, but it would have no inherent Quality of Grace to carry it God-ward, in that other part in which Corruption is destroyed, but remain naked and neutral, and volatile, to be tost with the very Wind. And yet (according to those mens Opinions that held the contrary to ours) this man must be said to be regenerate forsooth, in as true a Sense as the part remaining corrupt in him is said to be corrupt. Which indeed is in effect all one as to affirm, That a man is as truly alive, that hath not a Soul remaining in him, as he is dead whose Soul is not only gone out of him, but expelled.

3. Yea Thirdly, this would necessarily follow, that so much of the Soul as had a corrupt habit expell'd and not a new contrary habit introduced, would be just in that Condition which the Papists feign to have been due to man in Innocency, even in pure naturals without supernatural Grace, which they say was added but as a Bridle unto Nature, or Sin. I speak this to those that know this Opinion which our Divines detest, viz. That the restoring of us, is but to such a Condition, and that this is all our Gospel Regeneration: And yet this will follow upon the Assertion that natural Corruption only is mortified, and not habitual Grace restored.

4. Add

4. Add to all theſe a fourth Argument, If Grace wrought in us be the perfect curing and healing of Corruption, then if Fleſh be a corrupt Principle inherent, ſo muſt Grace likewiſe be an inherent Principle. There is an habitual Averſion from God and a Converſion to the Creature, a frame of Heart ſet and inclined that way: And it is not exciting Grace will proportionately cure an habitual Diſtemper, for as in the bodily, ſo in Soul-Diſeaſes Contraries are cured but by Contraries. If therefore Chriſt comes with ful healing in his Wings and ſanctifies throughout he doth cure habitual Corruption with habitual Impreſſions on the Mind and Will. Chap. 3

2. A Second Demonſtration is taken from the parallell of the new Creature to the Image of God which at and with man's firſt Creation was given to him, and which he hath now left. It is evident it conſiſted not in bare acts of Holineſs, for he is ſaid to be created in it: It was therefore as well produced by Creation, as the Soul of man, and concreated therewith: And he is ſaid to be created in it before he put forth any act of Knowledge, or Righteouſneſs; and yet he loſt it by ſinning. What can that be, but ſomthing that is diſtinguiſh'd from the Soul and the Faculties of it, for it was loſt: And diſtinct alſo from all acts of the Soul or actings upon him, for an Image notes a thing permanent and inherent? I ſay what could this be, but habitual Inclinations and and Diſpoſitions unto whatſoever was holy and good, inſomuch as all Holineſs radically dwelt in him. The Apoſtle informs us, That the Image of God at firſt was in Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs. Eph. 4. 23. and Col. 4. 10. Now the ſame Holineſs and Righteouſneſs is required of us, when we are called to turn to God. God calls for his old debt, yea and it is as expreſsly ſaid That this New Image is created after God, in Anſwerableneſs unto God's creating that Image at firſt. And ſurely to confirm this, I may add 1. that if original Righteouſneſs be ſtill reqnired in us, then habitual Holineſs, elſe the want of it would be no ſin. Again Secondly Chriſt in being a quickening Spirit doth as much for us in reſpect of God's Image as Adam ſhould have done if he had not fallen. Adam would have conveyed it, to his Children long before they could have put forth any act: Therefore ſure in quickening us Chriſt muſt convey at leaſt the ſame, if not higher: Elſe God doth not ſo much for us in reſtoring his Image, as he did at our firſt Creation: Yea Adam had in conveying it, if he had ſtood, done more then Chriſt doth for us. Yea and therefore when the Creation of this Image is ſpoken of it is not only in one place ſaid to be εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν for Knowledge, that is, to enable to know; and therefore notes a new created Power, but it is expreſsly termed a Workmanſhip created to good Works Eph. 2. 10. It is a whole Frame of new Powers to enable a man to act that, for which good works are ordained.

Yea further, if the New Creature be truly the Image of God's Holineſs, then there is a permanent Holineſs of Nature, or divine Nature as it is call'd: For God is firſt holy in his Nature and in himſelf, and then is Holy and Righteous in all his ways and works ad extra. He is good, and ſo doth good Pſal. 119. 68. and the thing is undeniable as to his tranſient actings, for if God had never made or done any good to the Creatures, or given his Law, or ſent his Son, yet he had been as good in his Nature and was ſo from everlaſting. Yea ſome Attributes which yet were in him, as Power, Mercy &c. had never put forth acts &c. had there not been Creatures.

3. A Third Demonſtration of it is drawn from what is ſaid of ſome Infants, when it is expreſsly ſaid of ſuch, That they are ſanctified in the Womb. So it is ſaid of John the Baptiſt Luke 1. 15. That he was filled with the Holy Ghoſt as ſanctifying of him even from the Womb. He puts that in emphatically, And to be fill'd with the Spirit hath a reſpect to that great meaſure of the fruits of the Spirit wrought in him then; they were not actings holily, therefore habitual Holineſs. And becauſe there was that in him which was born a Spirit of the Spirit, in relation thereunto it is ſaid of him (v. 80.) That he grew and was ſtrenghened in Spirit, that is, in that Inner man begotten at firſt which now grew up and was actually strengthened and enlarged. And there is this further Confirmation of this, that there is in Infants a capacity of this habitual Holiness.

For First in the state of Innocency, they should have had that Image of God (spoken of afore.) conveyed by Birth, which Adam had by Creation, for he was to beget in his likeness.

2. They have, now man is fallen, the Image of inherent Corruption conveyed: And they should not have been capable of sin inherent upon Adam's fall, if by the Law of Nature they had not been capable of having inherent Holiness conveyed by Birth. For sin and the evil is conveyed but upon the equity of that Law, that the contrary good should have been conveyed, if Adam had stood. And it is with all as certain, That so far as they are capable of sin, whilst Infants they are so far capable of the contrary Holiness; and therefore of habitual Holiness, as well as of habitual sin, the venom of which we all feel in our Bowels from the Womb.

CHAP. IV.

That it is necessary, and congruous to the Nature of things, that such inward permanent Principles should be wrought in us by the Holy Ghost, to enable us to live Holily.

I SHALL now give the Reasons for this, both from the Congruity and Necessity of the thing.

1. It was meet and congruous, if not necessary, That God should proceed by the same Law in the work of his new Creation, that he doth in his first Creation. Now take the Law that is common unto the whole Creation of God, and it will be found true upon a particular Survey, That all acts or workings of any kind, in any Creature, have an inbred Principle suiting and enabling the Creature that acts or works thereunto. God moves all his Creatures to their ends by inbred Principles put into them. God in the whole Creation (qui disponit omnia suaviter) not only or barely assists or concurs with his Creatures, by a moving of them unto all their Actions, but furnisheth them with Powers and Vertues inbred, that are the Principles of such motions, by which they are enclined to such and such things, that so their actions may be connatural to them. If a Stone moves downward, it hath a Natural Poyse: If the Soul understand it is not barely by Light shot into it, but there is an understanding Power, Faculty, or Ability inbred, which Beasts want; of whom it is said they have no understanding. If the Soul joyned to the Body sees, it is by an eye endowed with a visive Faculty; and so it is in hearing too. Again, in other Creatures, You see an inherent instinct put into them, guiding and swaying them to such or such a particular action; as you see in Bees in framing their Combs, and in Birds building their Nests, and bearing love to their Young: By which also (as the Prophet says) the Stork knows its appointed time. It is something inbred, and interwoven with their Nature: Even in Arts and Sciences acquired, there are imperfect Abilities in Nature perfected by use, yet still so, as there are Principles, though imperfect, which are the Foundations of them. He that invented Painting first, or that hath attained the Art of it, had Images in the Fancy, disposing him to begin to draw the Pictures. And this also is the reason that some are excellent in one Trade, more than in another. In like manner, If a natural man performs any Action morally good, he hath an inbred Principle of light of Conscience, impressions of moral Vertues, and the Law written in his Heart, that moves and instigates him thereunto; and it is an abiding Principle in him, Rom. 2. 14, 15. Men do by Nature the Things of the Law, which shews the Effect or Subſtance of the Law written in their Hearts. Now it might be ſhewn, that the new Habiliments of the new Creation are aſſimulated unto all theſe, the Holy Ghoſt having regulated and reduced the new Creature, to this common Law. Chap. 4

1. It is like to the natural Powers of Seeing and Underſtanding.

2. It is like to an inſtinct put into irrational Creatures who are taught of God to love their Young. As concerning Brotherly love I ſhall not need to write unto you, (ſays the Apoſtle 1 Theſ. 4. 9.) for you your ſelves are taught of God to love one another. It is oppoſed to external teachings, and referred to the rank of inſtincts, or endowments: As when God teacheth a Brother to love his Brother, the Mother to love the Child; or as God is ſaid to teach the Plowman Diſcretion and Skill, Iſa. 28. 26. In like manner, all that come to Chriſt are ſaid to be taught of God (John 6. 44, 45.) by an Impreſſion on their Spirits; ſuch as the Beaſts had that came to the Ark. He parallels it alſo with the Law written in the heart by nature, yea makes it infinitely the greater work, when he ſays, I will write my Law in their Hearts and put it into their inward parts: Jer. 31. 33, 34.

But although theſe are of themſelves, Arguments, yet they are remoter Confirmations unto that which I intend to make forth, viz. That the reaſon of the Congruity or Neceſſity is the ſame in the New Creature, as in the Old. Yea that there is a greater neceſſity in this, than in the other, and that the Soul ſhould be no leſs enabled and furniſhed to Spiritual Things, then all other Creatures are unto their actings, which generally, and univerſally, is by having an internal Principle enabling them ſo to act.

1. There is as much reaſon and neceſſity it ſhould be thus in the New Creation, as in the Old.

1. Becauſe this rule holds both in the Second Creation and in the firſt, That every thing that acts, ſhould act according to its kind; and they are differing inbred Principles that put the difference of kind between one Creature and another: Every Creature hath a proper, ſpecial Nature that doth conſtitute its kind, and then the Fruits and Effects are anſwerable thereto. You have this Law (Gen. 1. 21. and 24.) concerning Fiſhes, and Beaſts, and Plants; Trees bring forth differing Fruits becauſe of differing kinds given them, and that depends upon inbred Principles which are exiſtent in them, even in Winter, when they do not bring forth. Our Saviour Chriſt bringeth this very Law of the firſt Creation into the Second, and urgeth it upon the Phariſees, Mat. 7. 17, 18. Every good Tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt Tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good Tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt Tree bring forth good Fruit. And then in Mathew 12. 23. Chriſt ſays; Either make the Tree good, and his Fruit good, or elſe make the Tree corrupt and his Fruit corrupt; for the Tree is known by his Fruit. Wherein (although Chriſt urgeth not Regeneration, but Conviction) make the Tree, &c. that is, acknowledge your ſelves to be bad, when your Fruits are bad, and ſo on the contrary: Yet the ground of his Conviction lies invincibly in this Truth, That ere a man can bring forth a good work, he muſt be made inwardly, and radically good, For Acts follow Nature. Alſo in another place he ſays, Can you gather Grapes of Thorns, or Figgs of Thiſtles? Can you that are evil ſpeak good things?

2. It is ſo, Becauſe to have inbred Principles of actings maketh the Creature to act con-naturally and ſweetly. Thus though a Mother (as a Woman) hath love in her, yet to act the more naturally in the loving her Child, a ſpecial inſtinct is requiſite. The Sun rejoyceth to run his race: And ſo all Creatures rejoyce to keep Gods Ordinances to this day (Pſal. 119.) becauſe God hath put inbred Principles in them ſo to do. Now of all actings of his Creatures God would have it ſo, that this of Souls in gracious actings ſhould be moſt connatural, and done with the greateſt alacrity, and That his People ſhould be a willing People (Pſal. 110.) and be acted by a free Spirit, (Pſal. 51.) not by conſtraint, but of a willing Mind. God would have the New Creature ſo to move it ſelf in its actings as to be the inward ward formal principle of that work, that it might in that reſpect be termed its own: And therefore as all other Creatures have to their Actings inbred principles to inable them unto their Actings, ſo it was moſt meet that the Soul of Man and eſpecially the Will ſhould have a Bias clapt on it, a poyſe, an Inclination, or (as the Apoſtles Phraſe is) a Readineſs whereof God accepts more then of the Deed, 2 Cor. 8. 10. 11, 12.

2. There is a far greater neceſſity for the Soul to have new Principles, and Abilities given to act Holily, and Spiritually, than at the firſt Creation to act Naturally. And the Reaſon is far more ſtrong, becauſe the Acts are Spiritual and Supernatural, and ſo are the Objects. God and Chriſt as they are Revealed in the Goſpel are Supernatural unto the Natural Powers, and Faculties of the Soul, and there is no proportion between them. There is not only ſuch a Diſproportion as the Batts Eye hath unto the Sun, but as a Blind Mans Eye is to the Sun. In Mans Corrupt Eſtate, yea, and at Mans beſt Eſtate in Innocency, tho' God as Revealed in the Creature, and in outward Effects was the Natural Object of Mans Underſtanding, that is which was Naturally ordained for it by the due of Creation, yet God, as in himſelf to be Revealed, had that Diſpropotion unto that Eſtate, that a Spirit, or an Angel, not appearing in ſome outward Effect hath to the Eye of a Seeing Man. The moſt quick ſighted in that Caſe muſt have a new Eye, a Spiritual Eye made, or the ſame Eye endowed with New Spiritual Power. And therefore the Scripture ſpeaks of this as giving a new viſive Power, as Eyes to See, and Eares to Hear, and (1 John 5. 20.) it is ſaid, He hath given an Underſtanding to know him that is true, ſpeaking both of God and Chriſt. It is not meerly to relieve the weakneſs of natural Sight, as when one is to ſee an Object far diſtant by the help of an optique, Or as when Stephen was enabled to ſee and behold Chriſt's Body in Heaven, which of it ſelf is viſible, as the Sun is tho' diſproportioned in Excellency: But 'tis ſpiritual Sight given wholly to enable the eye to ſee it, the Spiritual Objects, and to take them in. And therefore the Phraſe which the Scripture every where uſeth, is, that elſe Men cannot ſee them, nor know them, nor receive them, as hath been ſaid. And therefore there is a neceſſity of infuſion of ſuch Spiritual Abilities, for there are no Principles in man for him to begin with, by which they ſhould be acquired.

But here a further queſtion hath been made; Whether the neceſſity of ſuch Inherent Principles as theſe is ſuch, that God by his abſolute Power might not raiſe up, and draw forth out of the Soul ſupernatural ſpiritual Acts without infuſing ſuch new Principles as Powers into the Soul firſt: Whether Gods motions and excitations, and actings upon the Underſtanding and Will might not elevate them unto ſuch acts, as Stephen's eye without a new power of ſeeing was elevated and Raiſed up to ſee Chriſts Body in Heaven.

I anſwer this that it is not for the underſtanding of us poor Creatures to forge Shackles or ſet limits to the abſolute power of God, or to ſay he can work this, and not that. Yet I think this may in the firſt place ſafely be ſaid, that as to the privative part there muſt at leaſt be a deſtruction of that habit of Sin, in reſpect of the ſtrengh and the Impreſſion which it had in the Soul afore. For if the Soul be naturally, full, and all over poſſeſs'd with nothing but Fleſh (according to what is in John 3. 6.) That which is born of the Fleſh is Fleſh: Then whilſt it doth ſo remain it can never be brought to act the contrary, no not in the leaſt ſpiritual act, for there is ſomething within that hinders. Whilſt the Mind inwardly remains fleſhly it cannot be ſubject to the Law of God Rom. 8. 7. That word ſpeaks the common Language of Nature; That whilſt ſuch a Form remains, and fully poſſeſseth the Mind, it cannot be brought to act the contrary. God indeed can change Fire into Water in an inſtant, and ſo that which was Fire ſhall moiſten, but whilſt it remains Fire and is continued to be ſuch, we may ſay that it cannnot do ſo. Indeed it may be kept from acting as Fire, as the Fire of Nebuchadnezzar's Furnace was, but it cannot be brought to do the contrary. And thus the Scripture pronounceth of the Fleſhly Mind remaining such, that it cannot be Subject to God, and that those who are in the Flesh cannot please God, Rom. 8. 7, 8. Yea, even of a Regenerate Man, so far as Flesh is in him, so far as he is still possest with Flesh, the Apostle saies he cannot Will, or do Good, Gal. 5. 17. It is not only that he wants an Ability, but he hath an Habitual contrariety, an Enmity, as one contrary Form hath to another and that contrariety therefore must necessarily be destroyed and expelled, that the Soul being so far freed from it may be capable to act Holily. So then at least we may say, That that part of Regeneration we call Mortification, or (as it is expresst in Ezekiel) the taking away the Heart of Stone, is an Habitual permanent work absolutely necessary. Chap 2

If it be said (as it is by some) that if Adams Soul being wholly fill'd with Holiness fell into an Act of Sin without a Principle of Sinning first in it, therefore a Soul possest with nothing but Flesh and Enmity to God may be elevated to a supernatural Act.

I Reply, First, That when Adam's Soul fell into that Act of Sinning, the Holiness that was in him, was that very Moment Expeld and so then the Parallel here must be, That at the same Instant the Soul is raised to Holiness, the Contrary Corruption must be so far expel'd also: And as in the Act of Sin, Adams Soul slipt the Coller of its Habitual Grace and so ran away from God: So must the Heart as it is Acted Holy slip from so much of its inbred Corruption at the same Instant. But if you will suppose that Corruption doth remain in its full Strength and Possession, it is such an uncircumcision as keeps the Soul in an impotency to any such Act.

But 2. The fuller Answer is this, That there is not the same Reason of Raising up Man to Act Holly, as there is of his falling into Sin: For the Possibility of his falling into Sin lies in his Deficiency, and Mutability as he was a Creature, and in his aptness to fall, which his Will was Subject to meerly as it is a Creature made out of nothing, and so it's Habit of Grace doth Perish by that Deficiency, when it falls out. Solum Liberum Arbitrium Sufficiebat ad malum, was Augustines constant Cry, The Deficient Will of Man need no innate Principle to Sin, its Frailty was Sufficient, or rather Insufficient to it. But it is not so in the Power to do Good, as it is in the Transgression, as in another like Case the Apostle speaks. To Sin the Soul need not be first made Sinful to constitute it formally an Intrinsical Agent in it, for this may arise from a Defect, but if Man will become a Supernatural Worker, and as an Intrinsecal Agent formally produce a Good Gork, he must have such a Divine Form, or Nature first infused in him, or it will not be Natural in him, and Genuine; nor is he capable to do it.

2. As to the Positive part: Viz. The Necessity of the Infusion of a New Principle: There are many that deny that any more then a help and a Supernatural Assistence is absolute needful: Because the Almighty power of God can and doth (say they) supply the Room of such an inward Principle, and so raise up and actuate the Understanding or Will without it. For (say they) in the Soul God finds a Faculty of Understanding capable of that Spiritual Knowledg of him: And the Habit, or the New Principle you call for (say they) serves but to enable, or Elevate that Understanding to take into it God in a Spiritual manner. Now that which your suppos'd Habit contributes hereto, why may not (say they) the Power of God supply by a meer Acting of that Understanding, and raising it up to such Acts by an Almighty Motion of his joyning with it, and overpowring the Soul to it. There is this Difference (say they) between the necessity of an Understanding Faculty, and of this New Spiritual Principle: That if we suppose that first wanting, then all must say, the power of God doth not supply the Room of it. God doth not Understand for us, but Man understands only with his own Understanding, nor without an Understanding can he Understand; as a Beast remaining a Beast cannot. But now for that other case of an Habit, that being (say they) but an help Book V. help to the Underſtanding may be ſupplied: For what help a Second cauſe affordeth, that the power of God alone can, if he pleaſe, ſupply without it.

But 1. If the Scripture it ſelf, and the Spirit that wrote it, and alſo works all Grace in the Heart, and knows beſt the proportions of things, do ſpeak of this new inward Principle of habitual Grace, in the ſame Language that it doth of this Power of the natural Underſtanding it ſelf, or as it doth of the viſive Faculty whereby we ſee, terming it an eye to ſee, an ear to hear, an Heart to underſtand, terming it alſo an underſtanding given, that we may know: Then even that alſo is to be judged to be to the Soul, in underſtanding ſupernatural things, of the ſame nature and neceſſity, that an underſtanding it ſelf is to know natural things. Yea if it be a Principle of life unto the Soul of one that is dead, as a new Life to a dead eye, as in Scripture it is termed, (Eph. 2. 5. compared) and if it is expreſsly termed eternal Life it ſelf inherent in a man (1. John 3. 15.) which doth conſtitute him formally a living man, in reſpect of that kind of Life which is Spiritual and ſupernatural: If this be ſo, then upon the ſame neceſſity, that an underſtanding faculty is required to a natural act, this new Underſtanding, Power, or Spirit (as my text calls it) this new Heart and new Spirit to underſtand things ſupernatural withal, is as abſolutely required. All grant this, that though God can give to this ſtone an Underſtanding; yet he cannot be ſuppos'd to make a Stone to underſtand without an underſtanding Faculty. Now in order unto an act of underſtanding Spiritual things, this new Principle infuſed is ſo ſtyled, and is really in its Proportion ſuch: So as without it the Soul is ſaid to have no Underſtanding, but to be blind, yea dead, as to theſe things that are ſpiritual. God can, and did take a Body of red Earth and breathed into it the breath of life and cauſed it to live; but it was not poſſible to have made and conſtituted it a living Soul, as the Scripture terms Adam without having a living Soul put into it, and united to it, for a thing cannot be cauſed to live without a Spirit of life: Now ſo 'tis here, as thoſe Scriptures clearly ſhew. We muſt not call theſe new Principles, Powers, or Faculties in the Soul, in the ſame reſpect, or ſenſe, that the Underſtanding is in and to the Soul: For the Underſtanding is one and the ſame underſtanding Faculty, and ſo is the ſubject of that ſpiritual act, after Regeneration, that it was afore; and it is the ſame Underſtanding that underſtood other things afore, or that doth now underſtand other things beſides ſpiritual things after Regeneration: But by Analogy it is affirmed to be a new Power and a new Underſtanding, in this reſpect, becauſe the Soul which hath but one and the ſame Faculty of underſtanding muſt be enlivened with this Grace as another life to it, e're it can ſpiritually underſtand. That Grace puts a new ability into the Underſtanding, as neceſſary as the Underſtanding it ſelf is to underſtand withal, as all the Scriptures ſhew.

If indeed ſuch Principles as acquired Habits do ſerve to give only facility or eaſineſs in working, or ſerve but as Spectacles to an eye that can ſee already, only to help it to ſee better and more clearly, or to ſee what elſe at ſuch a diſtance it could not ſee; then the work might be ſupplyed only with God's external Actings. But theſe Principles of Grace do give Potentiam ſimpliciter, as ſome Schoolmen ſpeak, Power ſimply and abſolutely. Yea, and ſay I, it is not only analogous to a new Power; but it is to the Soul more then a new Power, and of a ſublimer Nature, and greater worth then all mens Underſtandings devoid of it. It is Spirit, (ſays the Text) which is more then a Power: It is a divine Nature, which is more then a natural Power. It is indeed as the Soul is to a dead eye, when it comes to enliven and inform it, which is more than to give an eye ſimply or barely organized, and fitted to ſee: Or at leaſt it is, if not as the Soul, yet as the life it ſelf, by which, as diffuſed from the Soul, the Eye is made a living eye, and ſo immediately capable of that vital or living act of ſeeing; and by reaſon of which it is a ſeeing eye, a living eye, when yet it ceaſeth to behold any thing, as when cloſed, and in ſleep. It is the Seed of God, which (as the Seed of any other thing) hath the vertue of that which it cometh cometh from, in such a manner as the Soul it self hath not, though it cometh from God.

That which hath much conduced to misguide the Schoolmen in this great point, hath been

1. Their Addictedness to the natural Power of mans Will and Understanding, that in supernatural Acts it should share with the Grace of God. They have therefore easily been led to judge that these natural Principles strongly assisted and only extrinsecally acted by God as an Efficient and Mover with them, might produce such acts: And that such divine Habits as Grace are only required to make them more natural to the Powers of the Soul.

Aquinas distinguisheth the necessity of a a Principle of Grace, and that of ordinary habit thus: Of the first, ut intellectus fiat potens: Of the other, ut intellectus fiat potentior. 1. par. quæst. 12. Artic. 5.

Suarez, when he comes to the decision of this, treads upon Ice; and is loth to deny these Principles of Grace to be potentiæ, because they give new Power to the Soul; and yet he must have the natural Power of the Soul it self to be a Sharer with them in their motion, supernaturally, and therefore concludes it thus. Quod si quis de nomine magis quam de re contendens dicat hos habitus quatenus dant Potestatem agendi vocandos esse potentias; respondebimus saltem non esse potentias integras seu completas; imo nec dare inchoationem ut sic dicam, & radicalem potestatem: At dare quasi complementum potestatis. Lib. 6. de grat. C. 5. Num. 12.

2. The Schoolmens mistake in this point ariseth from their Opinion, that the natural Understanding and Will in the Soul are the Root or Principle of whatever Life or Act either spiritual or natural, the Soul produceth as a living Agent. So that it is the natural Understanding, and other Faculties in the Soul which (as they speak) are the sole Principium vitale, that is, the living Principle, or Seat and Subject of all Life. The Soul and the active Faculties and Powers thereof, are those that live and have that life in them, and so live this supernatural Life. And this is proper to that which lives, that it intrinsecally moves it self: For so you know all living Things do, and not from an extrinsecal Force or Power acting them, as Stones are mov'd.

And therefore (say they) the Soul and its Powers having an inward Principle of self-Motion, there is nothing more required than that God should move, and act them. But if they consulted the Scriptures they would find, That that, which is termed the vital or Life-Principle of this kind of Life Spiritual and Eternal, in the Soul, is not the natural Powers of the Soul: But that all the Life-Principle the Soul hath in Understanding or Willing, is naturally deadness unto this Life: And that the Grace infused is called Eternal Life, &c. 'Tis true indeed the Subject or Root upon which this new Principle, or Power of Spiritual Life is engrafted, is the Soul, and thereby it is diffused to the Faculties of it, and so the natural Soul is in that respect absolutely necessary as the Subject of this new Spiritual Life (of which a Beast, remaining a Beast, is not capable) and so the natural Soul and its Faculties are as the Root and Foundation, or as the Stock that the other new Principle of Life is engrafted upon. But still that which is the formal next compleat Principle, or Power of active Life Spiritual, as such, is that Grace which God engrafts upon that Stock, yea, and the whole of the Souls Principle of Spiritual Life doth lie and consist therein: Though still if this Grace were not in such a Subject viz. a reasonable Soul, that Spiritual Principle of Life, would not be a Life at all. Thus far indeed the natural Powers do contribute unto it. So then in producing those supernatural Acts of knowing or loving God, there are three Principles to be considered.

1. Principium quod, The Principle which; that is, which is the Seat and Subject of all; and that is the Soul, and its natural Faculties as they have a natural Life in them.

2. There is Principium quo, The Principle of Life by which, the Soul acts, and from which, as it acts Spiritually, it hath a Spiritual Life; and that, say We, is Grace infused, which is termed Eternal Life in a Man.

3. There is God who is the Fountain and efficient Cause, and Worker both of that Principle of Life in the Soul, and then of all the acts from it by his Motions, Influences, and Helps, and Elevations, and Raisings up of that Life to act according to its kind; which Actings, notwithstanding this infused Life in us, do depend upon Gods power to work them in us (Phil. 2. 13.) as much as the infusion of Life it self doth.

Book V

This being thus explained, herein lies to me the neceſſity of ſuch an inward Principle of Spiritual Life to be infuſed (beſides what Life of underſtanding or willing the Soul hath of its ſelf, as alſo beſides God's aſſiſting Motions and Strenghnings) that if any Soul be ever brought to put forth any Act of Spiritual ſupernatural Life, that Soul muſt be conſtituted, or made firſt a ſupernatural living Agent, or Worker: It muſt be put into that order or rank of Agents or Workers, and thereby ſo be fitted to move from, and within it ſelf, as a ſupernatural living Agent or worker, that ſo all ſuch acts of Life as proceed from it may come to be denominated, or call'd its own, as acts of a Creature that now lives ſuch a ſupernatural kind of Life, and ſo that every Holy Action may be termed the Act of its own Life, when it ſo works. And the reaſon is clear from the Analogy or like proportion of any other living Agent in any Kind: For if any Act of any Creature be accounted a living Act, or a Life-Act, that Creature muſt firſt be a living Creature endued with that kind of Life which the Act it ſelf is of, which it doth put forth, if it be an Act of Natural or Senſitive Life (as to ſee, hear, &c.) as in a Beaſt, neceſſarily the Beaſt muſt be a living beaſt, or Creature; living, I ſay, within it ſelf that kind of Life, it putteth forth in that Act, or that Action cannot be a living Action. Now then by the ſame reaſon and proportion (for ſuch as the Act is, ſuch is and muſt be the Principle that works it, which holds in this and other kinds of Life whatever) If the Soul come ever to produce a ſupernatural-life-Act (as I may call it) it is abſolutely neceſſary it be conſtituted, and put into the rank of a ſupernatural-Life-Agent, to have a Principle of ſupernatural-Life, wholly a new Communicated unto it, over and above its being in the order or rank of Nature's Catalogue, a life-Agent. And tho' Men talk that the Soul, with its Faculties, is a living Principle: Yet ſtill it is not a living Principle ſupernaturally, otherwiſe then Life. Eternal Life; and the Soul, with all its Faculties remaining purely natural, is Dead, in reſpect to that Life.

Another thing that deceived many of the Schoolmen is, That they take the Similitude of acquired Habits and make them the meaſure by which to judge of theſe infuſed Habits, and ſo imagine that the natural Faculties are the immediate Subjects of the infuſed Principles of Grace: And not the Soul it ſelf: Even as thoſe natural Faculties are of ſuch acquired Habits; and ſo they thought theſe infuſed Habits of Grace ſhould be no otherwiſe required in order unto working, then thoſe other acquired. Now it is certain and granted, that God's power extraordinary, can in an Inſtant, ſupply the Defect of ſuch kind of Habits only by aſſiſting Acts, without infuſing any new Principle. Thus whereas Man's Tongue is apt to learn, and acquire by pains and uſe; any Tongue or Language in uſe, Yet God in the primitive times did, without infuſing the ſettled, permanent Habit of ſpeaking ſuch or ſuch a Tongue, aſſiſt a Man's Mind for that preſent, whilſt the Spirit acted him, to ſpeak or interpret any Language, as if he had learnt it by uſe. Thus ſome ſpake with Tongues who did not underſtand the Tongue, and ſome interpreted a Tongue, that were not able to ſpeak it: As might ſeem by ſome paſſages in 1 Cor. 14. Now indeed if thoſe ſupernatural Principles we ſpeak of, were at the higheſt ſuppoſition, but the infuſion of ſuch Abilities as theſe, that might be otherwiſe acquired in time, by the natural Powers of the Soul by uſe, then indeed the oppoſite Aſſertion might paſs, that God could (by his aſſiſting power alone) ſupply without ſuch a Principle, what the infuſion of the Principle ſerved for: Becauſe the natural Soul as ſuch, did hold a proportion to ſuch Acts, if it were acted and aſſiſted by God; for as it is a natural Soul, it might acquire them of it ſelf. But it is not ſo in the Principles of Grace, for they belong wholly to another Rank, and Order, and Kind of Life, as hath been ſaid. They are not ſuch ſuperficiary, waſhy Tinctures, or additional Impreſſions on the Soul, ſuch as are thoſe other Habits which are ſeated but finger deep (as when a man's Fingers, Fancy, and Memory have acquired a Skill to play on muſical Inſtruments, muſical Tunes, which have no deeper Subject then the Finger, Fancy, and Memory) but this Heavenly Tincture goes deeper. It is not as an ordinary Accident ſeated immediately in an Accident, that is, the immediate ſubject of Graces are not the Faculties of the Underſtanding and Will, as they are powers and Accidents themſelves in the Soul: But this Heaven born Image and Likeneſs of God (which is more worth then all men's Souls) is immediately by God diffuſed into the Soul it ſelf; and the Soul is as immediately the Subject of it, as of thoſe powers themſelves. It is not in the Soul only as Paint or white in a Wall, in the outward Superficies of it; but as Light in the Body of the Sun, and as the Glory that is in the ſpiritual Bodies of Men at the Reſurrection. The God of Peace Sanctifie you throughout (ſays the Apoſtle) in Body, Soul and Spirit, yea it ſeizeth on the Spirit of the Mind it ſelf (Eph. 4.) that is, if there be any thing pure, the Soul is thoughout immediately ſteep't and dyed in it; it hath it by Infuſion (as the School word is) or it is ſhed abroad in the Heart, as the Scripture ſaith. It is in the Soul as a new Soul or Life to it, and it then diffuſeth it ſelf to thoſe powers that are therein: And in the Underſtanding it becomes a ſpiritual Underſtanding, and the light of Life: In the Will it becomes Love, an Infuſion of Love to that God above it ſelf, whoſe Image it is. And ſo it is indeed a thing (which I have all this while pleaded it to be) that deſerves as much to be ſtyled a new Power, and Life in the Soul, as thoſe natural Faculties themſelves are ſaid to be. Neither is it beholding to them for its Intereſt and Station in the Soul, but can vye with them for immediateneſs of Inherency: Yea, it enſpiriteth and teacheth them, and actuates them with new Powers of an endleſs Life, which they had not afore. And ſo by this means, this new Principle of Grace, becomes an Ear to hear, an Eye to ſee, an Underſtanding to know Spiritual Things, as Spiritual, in as real a manner as theſe other natural powers of Underſtanding and Will are in their kind of Life able to perceive Natural Things. Chap. 4

CHAP. IV.

That the New Creature wrought in us by the Spirit of God, is a Change of Heart.

EZEKIEL XXXVI. 26, 27.

A new Heart alſo will I give you, and a new Spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the Stony Heart out of your Fleſh, and I will give you an Heart of Fleſh. v. 27. And I will put my Spirit within you, and cauſe you to walk in my Statutes, and ye ſhall keep my Judgements, and do them.

THE Glory of God's Grace, in the Application of Salvation unto us, in this Life; and the Commitment of it to the Holy Ghoſt; you find put together in this one Scripture: Here is

1. A creating, and infuſing new Abilities, and vivifick Principles of Spiritual Life; whereby the Soul is quickened, and enabled to act as a Supernatural Agent, or Worker, of all ſorts of Spiritual Works and Operations; which is here in Ezekiel ſaid to be the giving a new Heart, and a new Spirit; together with taking away the Heart of Stone; which is as truly a work of Omnipotency, as to turn a Stone into Fleſh, into living Fleſh; or to transform Stones into Bread, (upon doing which the Devil himſelf would have believed Chriſt to be the Son of God) Or of Stones to raiſe up Children to Abraham; whereby John the Baptiſt celebrateth God's omnipotent Power.

2. Here is ſet forth the Holy Ghoſt's effectual drawing forth, and efficaciouſly working every ſuch Spiritual Act; cauſing us to walk in his ways, both by his giving Τὸ θελεῖν To will, and to do, of his good Pleaſure, Phil. 2. 13.

Book V

3. Here is the giving this Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt, unto our Perſons; to dwell in us for ever, as the Author of both theſe, which is expreſſed in thoſe words, I will put my Spirit within you; which comes in between the former two. It is he who gives us the new Heart at firſt, and having prediſpos'd, and prepar'd us thereby, cauſeth us to walk, and do, that is, draws forth that new Heart into Act.

The words of my Text *Ezek.*36.26,27. are Promiſes of the Covenant of Grace, concerning all that is wrought in us by God, from firſt to laſt, unto Salvation; ſumm'd up to Two Heads. 1. The giving a new Heart, &c. 2. The Intent of that Gift, viz. To enable us to do, and to walk; which is a continuation of doing. The firſt is the Principle of doing, placed firſt in order, and accordingly given firſt, as the Foundation of ſubſequent Doing, and Walking, ever after. There is alſo the Spirit of God, over and beſides that new Spirit promiſed, given to them, to cauſe them to act, and do; when once the new Heart, and Spirit is given. And although the Holy Spirit of God is promiſed, to cauſe them to do, as without whom the new Heart alone would not produce thoſe new Actions; yet ſo as withal the Spirit Himſelf doth not cauſe us to do, without a new Heart firſt given; and unleſs the old Heart, the Heart of ſtone, (the Principle of the former contrary walking, and doing,) be removed, and taken away; as being that contrary Principle that Letteth, and would Let for ever; if it continued in its old full Being, and Strength. The Holy Ghoſt is the extrinſecal Cauſe of the Operation, therefore ſaid to be put; but the new Heart is the Intrinſecal Cauſe of our Doing; though as acted by the Holy Ghoſt.

And theſe Things are conſonant to Reaſon, and Scriptures.

1. The Heart doth in the Language of Nature, ſpeak the primary Intrinſecal Cauſe of Motion, and Action; being the firſt ſeat and forge of all the vital Spirits, by which we act, and move: And ſo in the Soul there is That anſwers to it; which is the Spring, and Actions are the Streams that iſſue from thence. Above all Keeping keep thy Heart; for out of it are the Iſſues of Life; that is, the Courſe, and Actings of a Man's Life, which are as Iſſues from the Heart, as a Fountain; the walking and doing here, are not the New Heart it ſelf, for that (as was noted) is a new Gift, and Benefit diſtinct therefrom. Nor is the Spirits acting our natural Faculties, and Principles already in our Hearts; the whole or ſole work on God's part in us. Nor conſiſts it only in actings (which the promiſe of the 27. verſe is wholly ſpent upon) but that verſe afore, (the 26) is taken up as much with the promiſe of giving a New Heart, and removing the Old, and is a promiſe of as much Grace as this Latter, in verſe 27.

2. 'Tis true that the natural Faculties of the Mind, and Will, and Affections; are in Scriptures termed the Heart; or connotated at leaſt when the Heart is ſpoken of: And therefore they muſt be taken in, and ſuppoſed here; for they are the Subject, and Intrinſecal Principle of all the Actings of a Man, in doing what ever is done; be it good or evil. And this is common to all Men, whether Regenerate, or Unregenerate; in their doing Good, or Evil; to do it with their Hearts. And therefore Solomon admoniſheth, Prov. 4. 24. Keep thy Heart, for out of it are the Iſſues of Life, which reaſon in general concerns all Men, that ſuch as the Heart is, ſuch is the Courſe of Life. He compares the Heart to the Fountain, and the Actions to the Streams, that iſſue out from it. A good man, ſays Chriſt, Mat. 12. 35. Out of the good Treaſure of the Heart, bringbringeth forth good things; and an evil Man, out of the evil Treaſure, bringeth forth evil Things. So as an Heart to do, is aſcribed to either of them.

3. I ſhall confirm this by other Scriptures. You have a Workmanſhip, ſaid to be created unto good Works: Eph. 2. 10. For we are his Wormanſhip, created in Chriſt Jeſus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we ſhould walk in them. Here is an whole Frame, or ποίημα created, and wrought in us; in order unto our Working, or Acting; God having ordained the one for the other;

viz. those works for us to walk in, (as it follows) And this Workmanship, to bring forth those Works. You read in like manner of the Image of God, created εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν unto Knowledge; for it is wrought to that end: And it is more expresly said, 1 John 5. 10. He hath given us an Understanding, that we may know him that is true. Chap. 4

Another Scripture is, that passage, in 1 John 3. 9. Whosoever is Born of God, doth not commit Sin; for his Seed remaineth in him: And he cannot Sin, because he is Born of God. The words I lay hold on for my purpose, are what that Seed of God that Remains in a Man Born of God, should be. I might annex this Argument to be drawn from the Interpretation of these passages, unto the first Argument I drew before from John 3. 6. That it is a Birth, a thing Born; And this which I shall now urge, you may well put to that, for it Seconds it; and they do mutually confirm each other.

The Scope is, to set out the difference between an Unregenerate Man, and a Regenerate; (under the Dominion of Grace) in point of sinning: Yea, and it may be extended to the differing Case of Adam, in his first sinning. He mentions indeed only the Case of a Regenerate Man, but asserts concerning Him; 1. That a Man Born of God commits not sin; that is, persists not in any constant track or course of sinning; for committing sin here, is meant in the same Sense, as that in the words afore, He that doth Righteousnes is Righteous, is meant: Which Position is further amplified that He cannot Sin. 2. The Reason of which is resolved into this, Because he is Born of God: He hath by, and from that his Birth, a Seed of and from God remaining in him; that is, He hath a new Principle of Holiness, a Divine Nature, and Indoles; which God that begat him, and formed anew for himself, maintains in his Heart, out of his Gracious Favour towards that Grace, so as to continue the station, and residence of the substance and matter of it in the Heart; whilst yet its Activity may be, or is weakned, and abated by the prevailing of the contrary Corruption (that is in the Soul) through the Wills indulging to it: And yet so far as that Seed and Principle, in the solid Substance of it, thus remains; this corrupt Will, nor all a Man's own Lust that tempts him, cannot employ, or draw this Seed to close with that sin; but it stands off, and is averse; and co-operates not (It is not I, but sin that dwelleth in me) yea, more or less it lusteth against it. But it is not thus with an unregenerate Man's Will, nor was it thus with Adam in his first sinning. But all his Principles, and concreated Habits of Holiness inherent, were by one single Act of sinning, through the meer Mutability, and vertibility of his Will, (suppose his sin had been the least Sin) utterly driven out of his Heart, and destroyed at once. The Reason whereof lay in this, The Terms of his State then, being the Covenant of Works, the Curse of that Law in threatning, In that Day thou sinnest thou dyest the Death; took hold of his Soul, and began to have its full Process, and Execution against all that Spiritual Life that was in him: And rased out the whole of what was holy in Him, which was the best of his Lives; to whose keeping the whole Stock of his Grace was committed, and betrusted; and he was no more able (when he sinn'd) to keep the least Mite thereof, to remain still in him, then a Man that is stab'd to the Heart, is able to keep his Soul in his Body. But a stronger Law is now under Grace in force over Men that are born of God; who are not under the Law, but under Grace; which Law is, That the Strength of this inherent Grace, is the Gospel of Grace; which preserves this Seed in the Heart, in the midst of sinning; so as that Grace in the Soul is not wholly expelled upon every sin the Will consents to; As it is acknowledged by All. And who can set, or put the Limits of the difference; That in some sins to which the Will yet consents, sin should not totally expel that Seed, for that present; And in other sinnings, perpetrated by the Will's Allowance and Consent, Grace shoud be destroyed for that present? Now the preservation of this Seed, is because it remains upon that Gospel-Account specified, in such a man, and that is; the τὸ κατέχον the thing that Letts, or hinders, that he cannot sin, with fulness of Consent: And whilst this Seed upon this account remains, so much of it as remains, and hath possession and residence in the Heart, cannot be made use of, or be drawn to be a party with its Contrary; or to Act the ſame thing which its Contrary doth Act. Nor will we grant that the Activity of that principle although preſerved in being, may be retunded ſo, as to put forth no acting; for the Apoſtle affirms (Gal. 5. 17.) that it is never ſo, but in ſome degree it makes reſiſtance; though ſo weak as it is not diſcernable by his Heart in whom it is; as there is ſome motion of the Pulſe, though not felt; whilſt there is Life. This that holds invincibly true, that whilſt this Seed of Life remains in the Will at all; (and that it remaines, is the Apoſtles word, and aſſertion;) It, to be ſure, cannot ſin, no more than Sin whilſt it remains in the Heart, can act holily: Sin and Corruption ſo far as it remains, cannot become an Actor of true Holineſs; you may much ſafelier affirm that Fire, as Fire, may cool, and moiſten. 'Tis true, God may, and once we read of, did retund the Activity of Fire; whilſt it remained Fire; ſo as not to burn; or ſo much as ſinge, as was ſeen in Nebuchadnezar's fiery Furnace; but that Fire, remaining Fire, ſhould cool, and moiſten; this were utterly contrary to its Nature. And the truth of this Maxime the Apoſtle confirmeth, and applies it to this very Caſe of ſin, and Holineſs in us; bottoming it upon this very Reaſon; viz. that a Thing contrary in its Nature, whilſt it remains contrary, cannot be brought to co-operate in the ſame Act, with that which is contrary to it ſelf. Gal. 5. 17. For the Fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh; and theſe are contrary the one to the other; ſo that ye cannot do the things that ye would. And the ſame is the bottom ground of that other Aſſertion of his; in Rom. 8. 7, 8. The carnal Mind is Enmity againſt God; for it is not ſubject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be: So then, They that are in the Fleſh, cannot pleaſe God. And let no man ſay, it is in the power of the Will to cauſe it ſo to do; the Apoſtle ſays the contrary; ſo as ye cannot do what you would, neither in ſinning with your whole Will, nor in doing good, with your whole Hearts, and whole Souls: And although Corruption that is in us, may ſo far prevail over the Will, againſt the active power of Grace in the Will; as often exert for the outward Act to commit a ſin, yet ſtill ſo far as a Principle of Grace exiſts; and God cauſeth it to continue and abide; and whilſt God upholds it ſo to do in the Soul, and Will; that part of the Soul and Will cannot be prevailed with by the corrupt part to joyn with it in ſinning; for they are Contrary. Our Apoſtle John in this his firſt Epiſtle, expreſsly ſays that it doth remain. And how ſhould that be, if God did not maintain it by his Grace; for that Sin is ſtronger than created Holineſs: take it in its own Efficacy, and as in it ſelf, we have found by Adam's ſinning; And it is in Effect ſaid, in that verſe, that it is God that cauſeth it to remain, Even becauſe it is born of God: And is therefore ſo beloved of God, that he ſays Deſtroy it not, there is a Bleſſing in it.

And what is the thing that doth remain but a Seed; And as all muſt grant, diſtinct from Fruit? Now every Fruit muſt have a Root to grow upon: And therefore gracious Actings proceed from a Seed let in by a Birth, and that Birth is from our being born of God, whoſe Seed it is called. Which fully makes good the Aſſertion, that in Regeneration not meerly our Actions are altered, but there is a Change of Heart.

Uſe 1. We ſee then that one fundamental difference between them that fall away, and others that perſevere in Grace; is, That in the firſt there is not a Change of Heart, nor a new Principle, a Seed from God that remains: Many glorious Things are ſpoken of temporary Believers; but it is no where ſaid in all the Scripture, (that I can find) that they are born again. This aſſigned difference is congruous to the works that are wrought on them. In the one there is a ſtirring, an elevating what is in Nature; As of vertuous diſpoſitions, and ſelf-love; by ſuch Motives as ſuit ſelf, laid down in the Goſpel; which Motions, when they ceaſe, thoſe Actings in their Hearts, which Men take for Grace, do ceaſe alſo. It was the Caſe of the ſtony Ground, who received the Word with Joy, but immediately (as the word is Mark 4.17.) they fall off from it, whereas in the other it becomes new; new acts towards new Objects; ſo new Principles: 2 Cor. 5. Old things paſs away, and all things become new. And though Operations may Ceaſe, or be weakned, and overborn with the contrary Corruption; so far, as to prevail unto the outward acts of sin; yet there is a constant abiding Principle which Lusts unto the contrary. Chap. 4 And this difference is found by experience in the one sort, and the other; And you find also this difference in Scripture; in that Parable of the Sower, of the Stony Ground: Mat. 13. 21. Mark 4. 17. 'Tis said they have no Root in themselves; which Phrase expresseth the proper Language of inherent Grace; habitually seated in the Heart. There might be, and was a springing up, from an external Principle moving them; As the Holy Ghost stirr'd them by the Word; but they had no Root in themselves. And thus Job expresseth the difference between himself, and the Hypocrites; in the Number of which, his Friends went about to perswade him that he was; Job 19. 28. The Root of the Matter (says he) is in me; that is, Truth and Sincerity of Heart towards God; whence my profession hath risen: And the Apostle (Gal. 5.) alludes to the same comparison, where he calls Adultery, Fornication, and so forth, Works of the Flesh; But the Fruits (says he) of the Spirit, (the New Creature in us) to which Flesh is opposed; As also in that Text (John 3.) are Love, Joy, &c. And in this Sense they are opposed in the 17 verse of that Chapter, The Flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the Flesh; and these are contrary the one to the other; By Spirit he means not the Holy Ghost in us; for it must not be said that the Holy Ghost lusteth against the Flesh; But it is that Spirit which he begetts, and then Acteth; which is contrary to the Corruption in us, As two contrary Qualities use to be. And that Metaphor of Fruits of the Spirit, and Works of the Flesh; doth congruously argue this Spirit to be a Root, whence these Fruits arise:

The like Difference I observed from the Parable in Mat. 25. between the wise Virgins, and the foolish: The Foliſh had Oyl in their Lamps, for a Profession; They had present Assistance for what they did, by Motions, and the like; They had Heat, and Warmth from rubbing, and stirrage; but they had not Oyl in the Vessel, which remain'd; as Principles of Grace do, when Men are asleep; as these were; They had not Warmth, and Heat from a Principle of Life.

Use 2. Let us therefore examine our selves. Acts and Motions will not save us, without a spiritual new Frame of Heart, which is acted, and wrought upon; whereas when these other Motions are off, Mens Hearts remain as bad as ever: Heb. 12. 28. The Apostle useth this Argument, that seeing by the state of Grace in which we are, we have a Kingdom that cannot be shaken, perpetual and abiding; we should have Grace correspondent, and answerable: Let us therefore have a fixed, and abiding Principle thereof within us; that we may serve God acceptably, seek unto God to work this in you, as well as the Act, and Deed: Turn me O Lord! (saith the Convert Ephraim, Jer. 31. 18.) and I shall be turned.

Use 3. When a Lust stirrs, and ariseth in thee; either from Satan's Temptations, or from thine own Heart; and the Mass of Corruption that is in Theee; seek thou unto God to give Thee the contrary Grace; and to act that Grace in Thee, that it may lust against that Corruption, and overcome it; James 4. 6. The Spirit that is in us lusteth after Envy, but he gives more Grace, wherefore He saith, He giveth Grace to the Humble: And for this especially the Apostle frames his Prayer for the Thessalonians 1 Thes. 5. 23. And the very God of Peace, sanctifie you throughout; And I pray God your whole Spirit, and Soul, and Body; be preserved blameless, unto the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. And bless God if thou dost find such an abiding Principle so wrought in thee, a Seed of God, that Thou canst not sin, or do what thou wouldest; in the Sense before explained Bless God for it, for this is a great Work: As in Adam at first there was the Image of God, as a Principle concreated with Him; which was the Foundation of All.

Use 4. And then again, Rest not in having sleeping Habits: The Wise were saved, having Oyl in their Vessel; but being asleep, they were frightned out out of that ſleep, or they had not been ſaved neither: Matth. 25. And therefore endeavour to exerciſe every Grace upon every occaſion it is ordained to Act in, and that is the end of it; Let Patience have her perfect work. Patience as the Grace given Habitually, let it have its perfect work that it is ordained for. And ſo do as to every Grace elſe; that every Grace may be able to ſay at your Death, I have done the work, thou gaveſt me to do.

The Apoſtle (2 Pet. 1.) Having exhorted to add Grace to Grace, as to Faith, Vertue, &c. both by increaſing the Principle, and Acting accordingly; he Concludes (v. 8.) If theſe things be in you, and abound (the Root of them in bringing forth Fruit) they make you that you ſhall not be Barren, nor Unfruitful in the Knowledge of Jeſus Chriſt: As thou mayſt have every Sin in thee; though yet thou haſt not Acted it, ſo thou haſt every Grace in thee, in the Root, which thou haſt not yet experience of: And therefore (as Paul ſaith) as in other Graces, ſo ſee you abound in this Grace alſo, for Grace is ordained to Act. It is the Image of God; and as God is pure Act, ſo Grace, in Imitation of Him, ſhould be.

CHAP. V.

That the New Creature in us is a Conformity to the Image of Chriſt.

2 COR. III. 18.

But we all with open Face, beholding as in a Glaſs, the Glory of the Lord; are changed into the ſame Image, from Glory to Glory, by the Spirit of the Lord.

THAT you may know the Scope and Coherence of theſe Words, our Apoſtle does in this Chapter throughout ſet forth the Excellency of the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt, whereof he was made a Miniſter: Tho, as he himſelf ſaies at the beginning, he needed not to have done it unto them, becauſe they had ſufficient experience of the Power and Glorious efficacy of it, even in their own Hearts, God having uſed his Miniſtry as a Pen to draw forth even his own Image, and the Image of his Son, in their Hearts, by the Power of the Spirit, accompanying it. I need (ſaies he, verſe 3.) no Letters of Recommendation, for you are made manifeſt to be the Epiſtle of Chriſt, Miniſtred, or Written by us, not with Ink, but the Spirit of the Living God; not in Tables of Stone, but in Fleſhly Tables of the Heart. And from thence he falls upon a ſet and large Commendation of this Miniſtry, to the end of the Chapter; and for that purpoſe makes a Compariſon between the Law and the Goſpel, the Miniſtry of Moſes, and of Jeſus Chriſt. The Sum of which is this: The Law indeed (ſaies he) had Glory in it, For it revealed the Glorious Will of God, ſetting before Mens Eyes that Image wherein they were Created: For the Law was the Copy of it. Which Glory was ſhadowed out by the ſhining of Moſes's Face when he came off the Mount. But yet alas it was but the Miniſtry of Death, (as it is call'd at that 7. verſe) to the Hearers and Beholders of it: For though they beheld it, yet it changed not their their Hearts into the Image of it: Nay it dazled their Eyes so, that Moses was fain to put a veil over his Face, in Token that his Ministry did not change Mens Hearts, or open their Eyes, but a veil lay over all Mens Hearts, in the rending of it; but now the Ministry of the Gospel doth exceed every way in Glory. v. 9. Chap. 4

1. It is as the Glass, or Mirrour, which represents unto us a far more excellent Glory, even the Glory of the Lord Jesus Christ, He being (Gal. 3. 1.) Pictur'd, Described, and set forth therein to Mens Eyes in all his Glorious Properties of Life and Death, being Crucified before Mens Eyes. So that the Gospel sets forth the Image of Christ, who is the Image of his Father, Heb. 1. 3. and the Brightness of his Glory, Heb. 1. 3. So that in the Face of Jesus Christ revealed in the Glass, doth shine the Glorious Image of God the Father, and that more clearly then it did in the Law, or in Man at his first Creation, 2 Cor. 4. 6.

2. There is not only a brighter Discovery of the Glory of Christ in the Gospel, but Believers have a clearer View of it, in the Dispensation of the Gospel, then they had, who liv'd under that of the Law. We behold with open Faces (says the Apostle) the Glory of the Lord, not Veil'd, and Obscur'd, but in the cleareſt Light.

3. We do not barely behold it, and view it, but it changeth us into the same Image. The Law was a dead Letter, and tho' it shewed us the Will of God, yet it changed us not into the Image of it; but the Gospel reveals the Glorious Image of Jesus Christ to true Believers, and Changeth them into the same Image; (yet so as by degrees) from one degree of Glory to another; this Glorious Image being perfected by little and little, till we come to the full stature of Christ.

4. Then Lastly, is shewn the ground and true reason why the Gospel thus changeth those that look into it by Faith, because (v. 6, 7, 8.) The Gospel is the Ministration of the Spirit; but the Law is a Dead Letter. The Spirit accompanieth the Ministration of the Gospel, and we are changed into Christs Image, by the Spirit of the Lord.

In all true Believers, that have their Eyes opened to see Jesus Christ in the Gospel by true Faith, there is a most blessed change wrought in them into the same Image of Jesus Christ; as he is revealed in that Gospel. Obser.

1. I say all Believers; for we all (says the Apostle) that do behold Christ by Faith, are thus changed. He doth not speak only of Ministers and Apostles, but all true Christians; for the comparison stands between true Believers and the People or Children of Israel, who could not behold the Glory of Moses Ministry. But they are Believers that in that Gospel with open Face behold the Glory of the Lord. Compare the 13, 14, and 15 verses with this 28 v.

2. They are changed thus in this Life; for it is by beholding Christ in the Mirrour: But after this Life is Ended, the Glass shall be taken away; and we shall see him as he is.

3. They are changed into that Image of Chriſt which is Revealed in the Goſpel; for being changed by beholding him therein, therefore ſo far as they Behold of Chriſt in the Goſpel, ſo far are they changed. The Doctrine having ſo good ground in the Text, ſo as you cannot look on the Text, but it preſents it ſelf to your Conſideration, I will omit other Scriptures that be alledged for it, and give you ſome Reaſons of it, and and ſo come to the Uſes. I ſhall give only one place in this Chapter, 2 Cor. 3. 3. The Apoſtle Affirms of the Corinthians, to whom he Wrote, that they were made Manifeſt to be the Epiſtle of Chriſt, which was Written in their Hearts: What doth he mean there by the Epiſtle of Chriſt, but Copies Written out by the Spirit, even Word for Word, line for line, ſo that in their Hearts and Lives might be read the Grace of Jeſus Chriſt in ſome meaſure, and the likeneſs of his Death and Reſurrection; they were his Epiſtle, but Chriſt's Image was the matter of it.

1. The Firſt REASON of the Doctrine is drawn from that ſpecial and ultimate End that God hath Predeſtinated us to: I do not ſay the end he choſe us for, but that which he did Predeſtinate us to: For that is the difference between Election and Predeſtination, the One is for an End, his own Glory; the Other is to an End, that is, what he means to do with his Children and Choſen Ones. Now if you look into Rom. 8. 29, 30. You ſhall find the Apoſtle ſays there, That thoſe whom he fore-knew, he alſo, or withal, did Predeſtinate; that is, Appoint to this Eſpecial End! What? To be Conformed to the Image of his Son, the Apoſtle Adds withal the Reaſon, That he might be the Firſt-Born among many Brethren. The Scope of the Apoſtle, why he brings the General Propoſition there, is to arm Believers, againſt Afflictions; for it was Chriſt's Portion before us, and God hath Predeſtinated us to the ſame Image, and yet not only to Afflictions, for an Image implies a Conformity in every part, it is not otherwiſe an Image or Likeneſs, and ſo he brings in this General Propoſition for their Comfort, that as they are like to Chriſt in ſuffering, ſo ſhall they be in all things; elſe. He brings it in for their Comfort, that God had ordained them in all things to be like unto his Son, and to be couformed to the ſame Image, both of Grace, Sufferings, and at laſt of Glory, thereby to arm them againſt theſe Afflictions, that ſo they might be content to be like unto Chriſt in this, as well as in the reſt; as knowing aſſuredly they ſhould be like him in Glory, as well as in Suffering, conformed to the ſame Image: 'Tis a General Propoſition brought to this particular purpoſe; and as an Image is not an Image of another, unleſs it be Conformable in every part, ſo we are not Conformed to Chriſt's Image, unleſs we be made like him in all things.

1. Tis the End to which we are Predeſtinated, containing the full Purpoſe and Intention of God, in his Decree, that we ſhould in all things be made like to Chriſt, in this Life, like to him in Grace and Afflictions, in our Meaſure, and after in Glory.

2. There is the Reaſon and meaſure of this Conformity, That he might be the Firſt-born among many Brethren.

1. Foraſmuch as all are ſaid to be his Brethren, it implies it. God had many Children to bring to Glory, and he would have them all alike as Brethren, all to reſemble him and one another: And therefore Conformed them all to the Image of his Eldeſt Son. God ſet up Chriſt as the Maſterpiece; firſt Patern, and Draught of his Decree, Predeſtinating all his, To be like unto him, that what Graces and Glory he had, they in their Meaſure ſhould have alſo. And as (Heb. 2. 11.) the reaſon why he took our Nature on him (being made like unto us by taking the Similitude of ſinful Fleſh) is given that he might call us Brethren, ſo alſo that we might be able to call him Brother; He conforms us in all things like unto himſelf, that he might be the firſt born born of many Brethren : And this too in reſpect of the Sanctification of our Nature, that he who Sanctifieth, and they who are Sanctified, might be all of one ; yet ſtill ſo as he might be the firſt Born among all thoſe Brethren, were they never ſo many. In the Old Law, the Elder Brother had the Preheminency and therefore tho' we ſhou'd be made like to him in Grace, and Glory, yet he would have the Dignity, the Priority, and the Preheminence in all thoſe things wherein we were made like him, both in Grace, and Glory, and alſo in Sufferings. There are none equal to him, they are but like him. So that out of this place you ſee, that howſoever God Created us in his own Image at the firſt immediately ; yet his intent was to reſtore it by another way : He having a Son, that was the Image of himſelf, reſolved that he ſhould take our Nature upon him, that he might be therein made like to us, that ſo filling his Nature with all Grace and with all Glory, he might conform us again unto the Image of that his Son, that we might all be Brethren, all alike Conformed unto him. The ſame Apoſtle tells us, (Col. 1. 19.) That it pleaſed the Father that in him ſhould all fulneſs dwell ; and God ordained him as the Store-Houſe, and Treaſury of all that Grace and Glory which he means to beſtow on his Children. Adam loſt all, and all is now in Chriſt the Second Adam, that ever the Elect Sons of Men ſhall have ; and this Fulneſs dwells in him. (Col. 2. 9.) that we might be made compleat in him. 'Tis principally there meant in regard of Sanctification, as appears by what follows there : Now how are we therein ſaid to be compleat in him, but when we do partake of that his Fulneſs in a compleatneſs ſuiting with our Meaſure, and Conformity unto him, ſo as no part of likeneſs to him is wanting, as the word compleat implies. And therefore the Apoſtle (in the 11, 12, 13, and 14 verſes) ſhews wherein it conſiſts, viz. in being Circumciſed, as he was, and in being Buried as he was, and in being raiſed up as he was. Therefore all Fulneſs is in him, and therefore alſo he is called the Sun of Righteouſneſs, becauſe as all Light is gathered up into the Body of the Sun, and dwells there in the fulneſs of it, and of it the Moon and other Stars do partake ; and the Sun ſhining on them makes them in their meaſure light as the Sun it ſelf is, ſo is it here. God hath appointed Jeſus Chriſt as the Perſon in whom ſhould remain, in the Fulneſs of it, the Glorious Image of God, and all Believers upon whom he ſhines are Transformed into the ſame Image ; and the nearer they come to him, the more are they Transformed. This you ſee is the Decree of God concerning all his : To be Conformed to the Image of Chriſt ; and it contains fully all that can be ſaid of what we were ordained to. Chap. 4

A Second Reaſon of the Doctrine is this, When God doth call any Man, then he begins to Execute that his Decree, and ſo to renew the Image of Chriſt in him. For whom he hath Predeſtinated, them alſo he hath Called ; and Calling is nothing but the Conforming us to his Image in this Life, in regard of Grace ; and therefore ſays Paul, (Gal. 15. 16.) When it pleaſed God to call me, and to Reveal his Son in me. That is, when he began to manifeſt this Image of Chriſt in my poor Soul. What then is the New Birth, but the forming and Faſhioning the Image of Chriſt in us ? I Travail in Birth again (ſays Paul, Gal. 4. 29.) until Chriſt be formed in you. What is the meaning that Chriſt ſhould be formed in them, but that the lively and real Image of Chriſt ſhould be imprinted on their Hearts ? And in the word Formed there is a Metaphor taken from the ſhaping of a Child in the Womb, that look as the Natural Parents communicating matter of their own Bodies, it is framed and ſhaped by the Spirits into the lively likeneſs of themſelves, Limb for Limb, anſwerable to themſelves, ſo likewiſe is Chriſt appointed by God as a Second Adam, (as 'tis in 1 Cor. 15. 45, 46, 47, 48.) and an Everlaſting Father (Iſa. 9. 6.) who Communicates to us the Seed of his word (1 Pet. 1. 23.) to be ſhed into our Hearts, and the Spirit of Chriſt Enlivening it, frames it, and faſhions it in every Limb, like unto himſelf ; and as the Firſt Adam begat a Child in his likeneſs (Gen. 5.) ſo doth this Second Adam in his likeneſs. And though indeed the full Conformity to him ſhall be in Heaven, yet ſo far as Chriſt is Revealed, ſo far are we made like him ; we ſee him but as he was upon Earth, revealed in the Goſpel, and unto that Image are we Conformed here in the New Birth. As we ſee him in Book V. the Mirrour, we are made like to that Image in it; but when we see him as he is, we shall also be like him in Glory, 1 John 3. 1, 2. And therefore (Isa. 53. 10.) we are called his Seed, which do prolong his Daies upon the Earth, for though he be ascended up to Heaven, yet he begets Daily those that are like to him as he was on the Earth; so like him, as they are said to prolong his Days on Earth: As you use to say of a Child like his Parent, that so long as he lives, his Father will never dye, he is so like unto him: So the Resemblance of Christ in us doth prolong his Days on Earth; and therefore Christ is said to prolong his Days on Earth; Christ is said to be in us (2 Cor. 13. 5.) to live in us, (Gal. 2. 20.) And we are said to put on Christ, even in regard of Sanctification (Rom. 3. 14.) that is, we cloath our Hearts and Lives with his Image, fashioning our selves to him. Will you have all in a Word? The Church, the Body, the Members of Christ, are called (1 Cor. 12. 12.) Christ; if you read the whole verse, and consider it well, you will find it so; and that both in regard of Union to him, and Communion with him in his Image, and likeness, and therefore also have the same common Name with him, as Brethren and Members use to have. For the Name Christ signifies Anointed and he is indeed Anointed first as our Head with the Spirit and the Grace of of it above measure, even above his fellows: But yet so that as from Aarons Head, that Oyl ran down and anointed his Cloathing and all his Body, so do the Grace and Vertue of all that Christ did, or suffered, descends to them that receive the anointing of him. 1 Joh. 2. 27.

Use 1. The first Use may be a Use of Tryal or Examination, whether we yet belong to Christ or no. Let us examine whether we have his Image renewed in us. We are predestinated (as you have hear'd) to be conformed thereunto And in our Calling also, God begins to renew this his Decree on us. If that therefore we would make our Calling and Election sure, (as the Apostle speaks 2 Pet. 1. 10.) we should labour to try and examine whether Christ his Image be in us or no. Let me therefore Exhort you in the words of the Apostle, 2 Cor. 13. 5. To Try and Examine your Selves, whether Christs Image be in you. Know ye not your own Selves, how that Christ is in you, unless you be Reprobates. That is, in the same state with them; for those that are Predestinate, are Predestinate to be Conformed to the Image of his Son, which if it be not in you, ye are as Reprobates. My Brethren, we profess our selves Christians, whence is it that we have our Name, but from our Conformity unto Christ, as you heard out of 1 Cor. 12. 12? And therefore those that have not the Image of Christ in them begun in some measure, are but Bastard Christians: We plead we are Baptized, and by it made Members of Christ; and did not we read that those that are Baptized truly into Christ have put on Christ, his Graces, his Image, in Sanctification, as well as Justification, as you heard out of the 12*th* of the Romans, and the last Verse. We profess our selves also such as Christ hath Dyed for, and in the perswasion of this we labour to sooth up our selves daily. Well if he hath Dyed for us, he hath Dyed in us; if he hath Lived for us, he also Lives in us, by his Grace and by his Spirit. Thus Paul, when (Gal. 2. 20.) he says, Jesus Christ gave himself for him, put this before it, I am Crucified with Christ, and Christ lives in me; we all also profess our selves to be the Children of God, and call God Father, and Christ Brother; and have you not heard out of the 8*th* of the Romans, that God Predestinates his to be Conformed to the Image of his Son, that he may call them Brethren; and if you do not in some measure resemble your Elder Brother Christ, you are none of the Children of his Father. Have you not also heard that Christ begets them in his Image How will you be able to ask your Inheritance at his Hands unless you be his Son? and my Brethren, howsoever we may pass currant here for good Christians, And think our selves so, yet God at the latter Day, and Day of Death, when your Souls are brought to him, either to own, or to refuse; The very first things that he will enquire into, will be, as Christ did when he saw the Penny, Whose Image is it? And as he said, What is Cæsars to Cæsar, and what is Gods to God, so will God say; if it hath the Image of Christ on it, give it to Christ, for it belongs to him; if of the Devil, (for one of these you must have,) then give it to him, for it belongs to him. Nothing will pass current Coyn with God, but what hath the Image of Christ on it; none will be taken for his Sheep, but those that have his Mark, and then he will raise it up at the last Day, as he himself speaketh. All this, my Brethren, I press upon you to stirr you up seriously, to lay your Hearts to what shall be spoken, by way of Tryal: For to help you therein, my intent is to shew you the Particulars wherein the Image of Christ doth Consist, to which we are Conformed in this Life. And these take along with you. First, That tis not Perfection, but Truth therein, that God accepts. For the best are but imperfectly changed into this Image; for 'tis from Glory to Glory, that is, from one Degree to another; if therefore thou canst discern the Prints of his Image, and Superscription on thy Heart, tho they be but as rude and imperfect Stamps, and thy Evidence be but as the Prints in a blurr'd Sixpence, yet if thou beest sure thou findest them there, thou mayest have Comfort; God will not deny any such imperfect Coines. Chap. 4

Now this Image consisteth especially of Two Parts, First, In a Conformity to his Graces. Secondly, To his Example; I speak of that Image which in this Life we are changed to; there is also his Image of Glory, which in the Life to come we shall be Conformed to, and that of Suffering, which is here in this Life, neither of which are Pertinent to this Text. For only that Image of him as here on Earth is revealed to us in the Gospel, we see him not as Glorious in the Heavens, but his Grace, his Work, his Death, his Restoration and other parts of his Mediation, which are the Objects of Faith, unto these here must we be Conformed; for as the Apostle says (1 John 4. 13.) Even as he is, so are we in this World.

1. The Image of Christ in us is a Conformity to all his Graces: The like Graces in us must be renewed that were in him, (John 1. 16.) of his Fulness we have all received Grace for Grace; Christ was said to be full of Grace in the former Verses, and of his Fulness do all we (says the Apostle) that Believe in him, receive Grace, and that Grace for Grace; as you ought to say when you Copy out one thing out of another, that tis done Word for Word; so do we of Christ (says John) receive Grace for Grace, that is, look what Graces are in Christ are derived to us, Grace for Grace, and therefore (John 15. 5.) He is compared to the Vine, and we to the Branches, because he conveys the same kind of Sapp of Grace to us, that are in himself, so as we bear the like Fruit unto that he did, pleasing through him unto the Father. (Joh. 17. 19.) For their sakes Sanctifie I my self, that they (even all that thou hast given me) may be Sanctified through the Truth. Christ Sanctified our Nature, that by it he might be made Sanctification to us; and the place here implies, that to that end he received the Graces of Sanctification, that he might Sanctifie us with the same kind, reciving it to that End, and therefore there is no Grace in Christ but is renewed in his Children; otherwise that Grace in Christ were in vain, for he received all as a Fountain to convey his Store to us. And why else is it that Believers are Exhorted to be Holy for he is Holy, (1 Pet. 1. 16.) who are said to be Righteous as he is Righteous, that is in the same kind not measure, (1 John 3. 7.) why are we called to shew forth the Vertues of Christ, (1 Pet. 2. 9.) if we had not received them? my Brethren, let us be exhorted to Examine our selves by this. It is not enough to have Gifts from Christ (as Reprobates had) Judas and others, an abundance of swimming knowledg, common enlightning, natural Wisdom, Learning, Abilities to express a mans self; All which I confess came from Christ. But yet are not part of that his Image; but are endowments flow from him to the Sons of Men. For he is thus the Light that Enlightneth every Man that comes into the World (John 1. 8.) And as the Sun, in the Heavens, so the Sun of Righteousness with his common Gifts shines both on good and bad. But his Image is his Graces, and those not civil Vertues only; for they are but

Book V. common Gifts; but Chriſt was not only a Civil Man; no, he call'd for more Righteouſneſs than the Phariſees had. Except your Righteouſneſs, ſays he, to his Diſciples, exceeds that of the Scribes and Phariſees, you cannot enter into the Kingdom of God; and yet they were civil men, and lived ſoberly and juſtly, were no Adulterers. And yet who greater oppoſites to Chriſt than theſe were? Truely methinks the conſideration of this Truth, ſhould amaze all civil Juſtitiaries in the World, and deliver them from reſting in their glittering Sins; Mark, but of what ſtrain Chriſt was, look into the State, marke and obſerve his Steps in the ſtory of him; he made the duties of Holineſs his chief Trade, he lived not only civilly but holily; 'twere Blaſphemy to ſay the contrary; and if that men were begotten of him, in his Image, thoſe Vertues they would ſhew forth moſt; Chriſt you heard is our Father, we his Seed, begotten by him, and he formed in us: Now as in a Father thoſe Limbs that are greater, are proportionably ſo in the Child, or elſe it were a Monſter, ſo all theſe Graces which were moſt in Chriſt, would be moſt in us, if we were his Children. When as a Man makes a great ſhew of all kind of civil Vertues, of Sobriety, Chaſtity, and the like; but none of Holineſs, 'Tis a ſign he is a Monſter, and Chriſt begets no ſuch: Let Men but conſider that theſe Vertues are found in thoſe that never heard of the name of Chriſt, as the Antient Heathen and the Turks at this day, who are not Chriſtians, not ſo much as in Name; and therefore thoſe that go no further deſerve the name leſs than they. Wild Trees do bring forth Bloſſoms, that grow in Wilderneſſes as well as thoſe in Gardens. But thoſe that are Ingrafted with Chriſt, do bring forth Fruit alſo according unto its kind, and the Root they are Ingrafted on; but what are Moral Vertues only but Bloſſoms? And though indeed it is true, that even thoſe were in Chriſt, and ought to be in Chriſtians, yea and are; yet if you would make them ſigns of a good eſtate, you muſt diſcern them as growing from Union with Chriſt, and then they will be of another kind then meer Moral Vertues are; differing aſmuch as ſweet Marjorum from Wild, the one a Weed; the other an Herb; your Meekneſs will proceed, not from ſoftneſs of Nature; but from a Heart humbled, Tamed, Sweetned with the apprehenſion of thy Injuryes done to Chriſt which now thou findeſt forgiven, and from this ground thy Spirit is calmed and ſubdued. In the 11. of Matthew, Learn of me (ſays Chriſt, Mat. 11.) for I am Lowly and Meek; the Civileſt, the Meekeſt Men by Nature muſt learn of Chriſt to be Meek and Humble: And ſo alſo that Love, Sweetneſs, and Ingenuouſneſs of Nature, would reach higher than it doth or can do in civil Men, it would extend it ſelf to thy Enemies for ſo Chriſt loved thee when thou wert an Enemy: If you Love them that Love you, the Gentiles do ſo, ſays Chriſt, there is but one good turn for another. Good Nature and Love in a Gracious Heart will alſo burſt out and be ſeen, eſpecially to the Saints and thoſe that excel in Vertue. Indeed when Chriſt met with that young Man that was but a civil man, 'tis ſaid he looked on him and loved him; but when he ſpoke to his Sheep, to his poor Diſciples, to Mary Magdalen and others, he opened himſelf to them, expreſſed bowels of his Love unto them, countenanced them, cheriſhed them, comforted them! And when they told him of his Brother, and Siſter, and Mother, he ſhewed that they that were Spiritually akin to him were dearer to him. Alſo our Mercy and Pity would ſhew it ſelf to the Souls of Men eſpecially; he was good to their Bodyes for he Healed many, fed five Thouſand out of his Compaſſion; but, twas to pluck their Souls out of the jaws of Death, that was his chiefeſt aim; ſtronger it was in him than Hunger to Convert a Soul; for when as he came an Hungry to Samaria, and they went to buy Victuals, he met with the Woman of Samaria and forgot his Dinner; 'twas Meat to him to convert her ſelf; and therefore whereſoever he came, he went up and down inſtructing of Men; prayed for his Enemyes Salvation, even at the laſt gaſp; Wept over Jeruſalem when he went to be Crucified in it; and if we had any of his Compaſſion, our Bowels would Yearn within us, to ſee Men lye in the Fire, and would move us to labour to pluck them out; for alas that is Mens greateſt Miſery. And ſo our Humility would not be that proud Humility the World is ſo full of. When his kinsfolk came to him (in John 7. 3, 4, 5.) and ſpurr'd him on to go ſhew himſelf; If thou doeſt theſe things, go ſhew thy ſelf to the World. Alas he ſuppreſſed it, ſhewed it no further than it might be for the Salvation of his choſen, and that they might believe in him, (Joh. 5. 34, 44.) Denyed himſelf, Emptyed himſelf of the Glory that was due to him (as from the beginning of the World) regarded it not if his Father might be Glorified; and when it came to that diſmal hour of Crucifying, and encountering with his wrath: Not my Will, (ſays he) but thy Will be done. How content was he to bear any condition of Hunger, Nakedneſs, the Taunts, Reproaches of his moſt baſe Enemyes; and when he was Reviled, Reviled not again. How did he expreſs his contempt of the World, in having an Eye to that Glory which was ſet before him, that though he had all the World offered him at once, yet he refuſed it all? What Zeal and Courage did he expreſs in his Fathers Cauſe, Whipping the profane out of the Temple, withſtanding the corruptions of thoſe Times; oppoſing the Phariſees, calling them Hypocrites to their very Faces; what hatred and deteſtation did he expreſs againſt their Sins? Chap. 4

World

Uſe 2. By this we may learn how much the Image of God in us is Advanced and Emproved above what was in the Heart of Adam, in Innocency: As alſo above, that which the Image of God is, in reſpect of Conformity to the Law and Will of God; For tho' Holineſs in all States, is one and the ſame, the ſame for Subſtance; for Holineſs is to aim at Gods Glory, and that runs through all States, both in Innocency, and in the State of Grace, and in Heaven. Yet that Holineſs which Chriſt works in us under the Goſpel, and by which we know God and Jeſus Chriſt, and God in him; hath far more Elevated Strains, of a more excellent Genius, and far higher, Nobler, and Heavenlier than what was in Adam's Heart, or his Heart ever knew; for inſtance, I'll go over but ſome Graces, which are all but Chriſt in us. Adam had Humility, he muſt needs have it, as he was a Creature; the Angels they have Humility in them, for they cover their Faces when they behold the Glory of God, they have Wings on purpoſe to do it. But the Humility that Adam had, whence did it ſpring? Why by ſeeing himſelf to be a Creature, made out of nothing, and that there was an infinite diſtance between God that was the Creator, and himſelf. But now take that Grace of Humility that is in the Heart of a Believer, and it is of another make, and Springs from another, and more Noble Riſe; for was Adam ſo Humble as to be laid ſo low as to ſee himſelf a Creature, and God the Creator? Why Sin lays a Believer lower, far lower, and Humility in a Believer riſeth thence. It riſeth likewiſe from this, that he that was God himſelf was Humbled, and therefore ſhall Man be proud? Had Adam ſuch motives to Humility? That Humility and Self-emptineſs that is in a Believer, makes him not value his own Graces, they are all as nothing to him, and Jeſus Chriſt is all in all to him. It lays him not only low, ſeeing himſelf nothing, as a Creature, but it makes him account himſelf worſe than nothing, a Creature deſerving Hell it ſelf. Adam though he was Humbled as a Creature, and knew his diſtance, yet he could ſtand upon Terms, Terms of Creation, with God; he might challenge a Juſtification that was due to him, for ſo the Covenant of Works doth, which he was Created under. Look into (Rom. 4. 4.) and ſee what the Apoſtle ſaith there, Now to him that worketh is the Reward not reckoned, of Grace, but of Debt; And verſe 2. If Abraham were Juſtified by Works, he hath whereof to Glory; but Abraham had not whereof to Glory before God, therefore he was not Juſtified by Works, that's the Apoſtle's Argument; he clearly in that place holds forth the difference between the Covenant of Works, and the Covenant of Grace; the one he ſaith is κατὰ τὸ ὀφείλημα it is according to Debt, or Due, but the other is κατὰ χάριν, according to Grace. Now is it not a ſtrange Speech, that he that ſhould have been Juſtified by Works, (as Adam ſhould have been) had whereof to Glory, had ſomething that was a Debt, which in ſome Reſpect he might have challenged, and have ſtood upon Terms with God

God about it. Here now is the Humility of this Adam, that he knew himſelf to be a Creature, made out of nothing, and that God might Annihilate him when he would, tho being under the Covenant of works, while he did continue ſo, there was a Juſtification that was his due, that was his natural due, that God ſhould account him, andpronounce him Righteous. I confeſs I have often wondered at the Expreſſion of the Apoſtle in that Rom. 4. for we read in Rom. 11. 34. Who hath firſt given to the Lord, and it ſhall be Recompenced unto him again? Therefore that is not the Apoſtles meaning, as if Adam could have given any thing to God, and therefore he might challenge a Recompence from God, but the meaning is only this, that in the way of a dueneſs and of a natural Juſtneſs, ſuch as is between the Creator and the Creature, whilſt the Creature remaineth Holy, God ſhould aecording to that Law juſtifie him according to hisWorks,and ſo he had whereof to Glory. It is not a Debt of Retribution (that is the Diſtinction) it is not Debitum Reſtitutionis, as if he could in a mercinary way procure any thing of God, yet it was Debitum Conveniente, it was meet that if he wrought,and remained Holy, God ſhould Juſtifie him. So that Adam's Humility was joyned with what was a natural Due which he might have challenged if he had continued Holy. But what is our Humillty we have from Chriſt? Why inſtead of ſtanding upon Terms, the Wages of Sin is Death: The Reward (ſaith he) is reckoned of Debt, and he receives it as Wages; but all the Wages we have now, it is but the Wages of Sin, and that is Death. and the Heart of a Believer acknowledgeth it, and doth not only ſubmit himſelf to the Soveraignty of God, as he is a Creature, ſo Adam muſt do, but he laies his Neck upon the Block, tells God that Hell and Deſtruction are his due, puts his Mouth in the Duſt, and Walketh humbly with God; and if God gives him Life, oh it is the free gift of God, the Wages of Sin is death, but the Gift of God is Eternal Life. Secondly, Conſider the Juſtification that Adam had, and that which we have by Chriſt. The Juſtification of Adam was Natural. It was plainly this, if he did continue Righteous, which Righteouſneſs was preſerved and conſerved by working according to the Rule,and the Principles in his own Heart; he thus obeying God, and remaining Righteous, it was a natural Due to him a meet thing for God upon this to approve him and pronounce him Righteous, becauſe he did act and continue as God had made him, and he walked according to the Law of a Creature toward his Creator. Now what was it for God to give him this approbation and ſo to juſtifie him? It was only this, that he pronounced him to be good in his kind, even as he pronounced all the other Creatures to be ſo,in their kind. Gen. 1. ult. God viewed all In the Creatures that he had made,and ſaid they were very good;he viewed Adam ſo too, for this was before Adam fell, and he pronounced him good as he did the reſt only good in his kind, which was the goodneſs of Righteouſneſs, Holineſs and Integrity, which he yet ſtood in. So that indeed the juſtification of Adam according to the Covenant of Works, it was but an Approbation of him, that he continued Good, that he walked uprightly, &c. as he pronounceth of the Heavens that keep their Ordinances to this day, that they are Good; ſo he would have done of Man, if he had kept his Ordinances according to the Law of Creation. But alas all this Goodneſs, and Righteouſneſs he had, would not have ſtood out againſt the leaſt Sin; if he had but ſinned, all this had been Forfeited, all gone, utterly loſt. But now what manner of Righteouſneſs is it that we have by Chriſt,Revealed in the Goſpel? Why we are Juſtified freely by Grace,we are Juſtified by a Righteouſneſs which is Sin-Proof, by a Righteouſneſs which when it hath made a Purchaſe of the Forgiveneſs of all our Sins, gives us in Heaven too, by a Righteouſneſswhich Believers never can,never ſhall, out-ſpend, by a Righteouſneſs that Pardons all a Mans Sins, Pays all his Debts, the very firſt Hour that he believes and lays hold upon it, and which continues to Everlaſting,and would continue to Everlaſting,to Juſtifie him,though he ſhould remain in a mixt condition of Sinning againſt God,as we are in this Life by a Righteouſneſs which breaks through God's Juſtice to Gods Throne of Grace, and makes the Soul do ſo with a World of Confidence. Thirdly, Let us compare the Love that was in Adam's Heart to God, and the Love which Christ works in us. Adam loved God, its true, because he was a good God to him, and his Creatour; but he so Loved him, as that Adam withal knew that if he did but Trip, did but Sin, God would instantly Hate him, more than ever he Loved him, and his Wrath would fall upon him, and he must Die the Death; So that indeed the Term of Love between God and Man, then, what was it? I Love you, while you Love me. God had out of Love made Adam Holy, and given him power to Love; but then so long as he continued to Love God thus, and to Love God at such a Hight, so long God continued to Love him; so that indeed it was but a Temporary Love, as I may Express it; that is, a Love which might fail, and did fail as such. It is a saying that Seneca hath, and it is a true one, To Love one so, as a Man thinks with himself it may fall out so one Day that this Man may Hate me, This is the bane of Friendship there cannot be a perfect Love where this is; Perfect Love doth cast out all such Fear. But yet this was the State and Condition of Adam: Its true, he knew that so long as he Loved God, and Obeyed him, God would Love him; but yet so as he knew withal, that if he Sinned (and he knew not how soon he might Sin, for he was but a Creature) God would then presently Hate him. This was Clearly and Truly the Friendship and Love that was between God and Adam. But now what is the Love, what kindleth the Love now that is in the Heart of a Believer of a more Noble Flame? It is a Love that is Free, a Love that is not fixt upon us while we Love God, or because we Love him, but was eternally before we had done either good or Evil, as the Phrase is, (Rom. 9.11.) Not for your Sakes, but for my own Names Sake, do I this, saith God. Ezek. 36. 32. Indeed he hath chosen us in Christ, that we should be Holy in Love, but he hath not chosen us because we Loved Him, nor doth He continue His Choice therefore. Is it a Love which may prove but Temporary? No, It is a Love from Everlasting to Everlasting; it is a Love that is pitcht upon our Persons; I Love such a Person, saith God, be he Sinful, or Holy; and if Sinful, I will make him Holy. The Love pitcht upon Adam, was in Relation to his Graces; and the Love that God bare to Adam, was but single to him as to his Creature; but the Love that is in Gods Heart now, is through Christ his Son, Professing to Love us with the same Love he Loveth him. That Love he bare Adam, was such as he bare to any Creature, be they what they be, so long as they remaind Holy, and kept in their First State; but the Love that a Believer takes in, it is a Peculiar Love, it is a Love with Difference; I will shew Mercy, to whom I will shew Mercy, that's all the Reason of it; Jacob have I Loved, and Esau have I Hated, and he gives no Reason of it. The Love that Adam had in his Condition was such, that Sin took away all Gods Love, and turned it into Hatred; but here is a Love now that though we be Sinful, we are not Children of Wrath, when we are Believers; a Love which much Water cannot Quench; a Love which when we were Sinners and Enemies, it was the more desirous to manifest it self, because it should have more opportunity by giving Christ to shew the more Love, by how much the more we were Sinners. Now all this Love doth the Heart of a Believer take in under the Gospel, and doth Christ Work in us, therefore raiseth up this Love to a Height, to a Nobleness, to a Generosity, to a Heavenliness, such as never Adam's Heart was capable of. Perfect Love casteth out Fear; he knows God so Loves him as he will never Hate him, nor never can do it; a Love which is not Mercenary, doth not serve for reward; a Love which (when the Gospel once hath kindled it) will cleave to God though a Man's Heart knows not whether God Love him or no; a Love which will not only make a Man Submit to the Will of God, but makes a Mans Soul willing, if it were the Will of God, to be lost for him, so it was with Paul. Fourthly, take Self-Denial in a Christian, which is a New Grace. Not my Will but thy Will, was Christ's Motto. Alas Adam was put to Live, he was to keep within his Bounds which God Created him in, and it was fit he should be kept in them. But we are put to deny our selves, yea, sometimes when it comes in Opposition to God, to deny Friends, Father, Mother, Life, yea, a Man's own Graces.

No such self-denial was Adam put to, which is the most great and glorious Grace of all the rest. Fifthly, Go take all Motives to Obedience, and they are far more noble in a Christian than ever was in Adam. As in (1 John 2. 7.) Love is called not only an old Commandment, but a new; And why a new one? Because when the Gospel cometh, it brings new Motives, and urgeth the Commandment of love to our Brethren and fellow Creatures upon such Grounds, as the Law and the Covenant of Works never did. We have higher Motives to the smallest Duty than ever Adam could have, or his Heart was capable of. Are we to be kind to our Fellow Creatures? Saith the Apostle, Put on Kindness; but how? How doth he move it? As the Elect of God, holy and beloved, (Col. 3. 12.) as those whom God hath chosen with an everlasting Love in Jesus Christ, forbearing one another, and forgiving one another. And so you have the like in (Eph. 4. ult) Be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christs sake hath forgiven you. And so in (Eph. 5. 24.) The Obedience of Wives to their Husbands, and the love of Husbands to their Wives is urged upon such a Ground as Adam should never have had such a Motive run thro' his Heart; Let Wives (saith he) be subject to their Husbands in every thing, as the Church is subject unto Christ: And let Husbands love their Wives, even as Christ also loved the Church. Such Motives as these, in these common Relations, doth the Gospel give us. These old Commandments Adam had, of duties to his Fellow Creatures, and of love to his Wife, and the like; but they were upon lower Motives, infinitely lower than what the Gospel holds forth, he had no such example as we have in Christ for every Duty, no such Motives as we have from him. Lastly, The assistance which we have from Christ is of an higher kind than that which Adam had. How did God assist Adam in all the works of the Law that he was to perform? What was the Promise of Assistance? No other than to assist him in his kind (God having created him holy) as he doth assist other Creatures in their kind. I say his assistance was but the concurrence of a common Providence, so as to other Creatures, only it was applied to Adam in his kind, as a Creature that was holy. But now the assistance that we have under the Gospel, for every work we do is of an higher Nature, for Jesus Christ is our Covenant, he hath undertaken to fulfil all in us and for us, all that God would have us to do, he hath undertaken to work it in us, so far forth as to save us, or to bring us to that degree of Glory he hath appointed us unto. He works in us both to will and to do according to his good pleasure; I am able to do all things (saith Paul) through Christ that strengthneth me: So that it is not I (saith he) but the Grace of God that is in me, the Grace of God acting me, falling upon me, and over-powering my Spirit. A Believer, he is in the Spirit, and so he walketh in the Spirit. But this was not the Law of assisting Adam, which was only the Law of common Providence.

2. The Second Thing which we are conformed to, is Christ's Example, and so the Author to the Hebrews calls him the Captain of our Salvation, (Heb. 2. 10.) because like a valiant General he hath set us a Pattern; and left us an Example to follow his Steps (1 Pet. 2. 21.) and therefore, the same Apostle Peter following the same Metaphor (1 Pet. 4. 1.) says, Arm your selves with the same Mind. Nay, lay but aside the Works of his Divinity, as healing, fasting &c. and of his Mediation, and the like: And 'tis a sure Rule That whatsoever Christ did for a Christian, he doth in Him also, there being a Likeness and Proportion and an Assimulation in his Works of Grace in us and for us. He is Conceived, Formed, Born again in us; as you heard out of the Galatians; We circumcised with him, with the Circumcision made without Hands; are dead, buried, raised up again with him, as 'tis Col. 2. 11, 12, 13. So that the Convertion of a Sinner is but the acting over again of Christ's part. Now though I might go over many, yet I will insist, this time, only in these which are mentioned Rom. 6. 5. 6, 7, 8, 9. The Sum of which is in the 5*th verse. That we are planted with him into the Likeness of his Death and Resurrection.* For those two being the chiefest parts of his Mediation: The work of Sanctification in us, is assimulated and likened unto them. Mortification, or the killing of Sin, and Vivification cation or quickning us unto newness of Life; are assimulated to his Death and Resurrection; and that not only because they are wrought by the Power of them (though that be true, as appears by Phil. 3. 10.) But also in regard of a likeness that there is between the one and the other; and so we are said to be planted with him into the similitude of his Resurrection. I desire you to consider (Rom. 6. 3, 5, 6, 7. &c.) because I will ground the rest on what is there. In the 6th verse, you may observe how the Apostle puts upon the Mass of Corruption and Sin that is in us, the name of a Body; calling it the Body of Sin, not only because that it is compact and made up of innumerable Lusts in us, as Members of it. (As 'tis Col. 3. 3, 5.) Which, like Members, are knit together; but chiefly, in respect of this, that he might shew us the Likeness between Christ's dying, and our dying to Sin; that as he had a Body was Crucified, so we have a Body of sin to be destroyed: Yea, and in the same manner Crucified as his was. Such is his Phrase in the 6 v. That our Old man, or Body of sin, might be crucified with him and destroyed. Yea, and the Apostle Peter in (Epist. 4.) useth the two parts of Christs Crucifying to express this. Chap. 5

1. Christ was Condemned, and had Sentence of Death passed on him so are our sins Condemned, for we having resolved to leave and forsake them, to cherish them no longer, have past the Sentence of Death on them; and so a Christian hath Vowed the Death of his Sins, as of his known Enemies; and though a Man loved his Lusts never so well, though they have been his old Bosom Friends, he hath formerly had so much solace in, yet now when he hath discovered their Treason out, and apprehends how they are his Enemies, Enemies to God, to Christ, and that he must now either Kill, or be Killed, that they fight against his Soul (as Peter speaks) he seeks the Death of them by all means, accuseth, arraigneth them, by Confession, and pleading Guilty; his own Mouth Condemns them Daily, hales and drags them before the Judgment Seat of God; and because he cannot execute them, he crys, Lord, thou art able, to give this lust a stabb, and its Deadly Wound which is ready ever, and anon to overcome and to kill me; and how glad is he when he hears the Sentence of Death pronounced against it, in the word; lays his Heart open to the Ministry of it, the Reproof of his Sin, and suffers the Sword of the Spirit to have its full blow at it: Oh my Brethren, Examine your own Hearts, who among you have gon thus far in the Mortification of his Lusts, who is at Enmity, and Daggers drawing at them Daily, who is he that stand in Terms with them, as with an Enemy, nay, rather, doth not cherish them as dearest Friends, keeping them under their Tongues as sweet bits; how many are there that never made Prayer against any one Sin, that storm at the Word when it Condemns them?

2. As Christ, after he was Condemned, was brought to the Cross, and there Executed, Crucified; so also the Spirit of God in true Christians, comes with the power of Christ, naileth his Lusts to the Cross of Christ, (Gal. 6. 14.) and so (1 Peter 4. 1.) we are said to suffer in the Flesh as Christ did, and the Apostle Paul (Rom. 6. 6.) useth the same word of Crucifying to express the one and the other, both of Christs and ours; as Christs Body in crucifying was in every Member and Part put to pain, which in no Death scarce but that, falls out; not a Vein, not a Sinew, but was stretched, so also is every Member of the Body of Sin Crucified, it reaching to every Lust, great and small, (Gal. 5. 24.) they all now stretch for it; and Oh my Brethren, who knows the pains in parting with Lusts, but they that have done it indeed, and in truth; and tho some have stronger Hearts then others, to endure more pain, yet every Lust being as the strings of a Mans Heart, as dear as his Life, therefore the parting with these, the crucifying of these, must needs be as the breaking of the Heart-strings, and making the Vital Sinews crack. Examine your selves, how many is there of you, that never parted in earnest with one Lust yet, much less with all.

Book V

And then 3*dly*; as Jesus Christ being thus crucified, gave up the Ghost; so also doth the Spirit of Christ, in likeness unto this, take away the Life and Power of Sin; at the first Stabb it hath a deadly Wound given it at the Heart, and therefore the Apostle (in Rom. 6. 2, 3.) Affirms that Believers are Dead to Sin, Baptized into the Death of Christ, it having a deadly blow given it, and how shall we that are Dead Live therein? He argues 'tis Absurd and Impossible, how can it be? Can a Man that is Dead, or Deadly Wounded Live, that is, perform the Actions of Life with Delight constantly, for that is to Live; why he cannot; no more can we (says the Apostle) Live in Sin, that is we cannot with Delight, and in the Life of Comfort, continue in the practice of any of our former Sins in a full carier, that is, continue with Delight in the Actions of it: For to Live in Sin in the 2*d. Verse*, is all one as to continue in Sin, in 4. verse. My Brethren, let us all examine our selves hereby; we came all into the World Sinners, and with Lusts all as lively as our selves; and every Man also, till that he hath the power of Christs Death, thus conveyed to him; lives the life of his lusts, as well as that of his natural Life; performs the actions whereby he satisfyes them with as much life and delight, as he can do those of his Natural Life: (Col. 3. 7.) Now therefore Examine your selves whether that you have felt a thro work ever wrought in you or no, by which this power and life of Sin was killed; and thy Sins had, and hath a deadly wound given them, which will go with them to their Graves, and which they could never since recover; try this in thy Master Lust; doth a Lust Live in thy heart still, Live and is as Brisk as ever, when it is put in, or stir'd up in thee, Even, as a Fish in its own proper Element; then thou art not Mortified. But dost thou find a Deadness and Stifness to those Sinful Delights wherein formerly the comfort of thy Life consisted, so as that they are all as dead Drink to the Stomach, or as a Stone put into a Dead Mans Mouth, and thou cannot find the relish that Savours, the Sweetness and Fulness of Contentment in them that formerly thou hast done, so that thou art Crucified to the World, and the World to thee; this proceedeth from Union with Christs Dying unto Sin, which is likned to his dying for Sin but especially try it in regard of thy Course, (for the Apostle says) if that we be Dead to Sin, how shall we Live therein? If a Man were Crucified or Dead with Christ, he could not Live in his old Courses, (1 Pet. 4. 1.) He that hath Suffered in the Flesh, that is, whose Sinful Corruption of Nature is killed by the power of Christs death, hath ceased from sin; that is, the course and practice of any known Sin, for that is the most capable Interpretation can be given of it. My Brethren, pray consider, either that is not the Word of God, or this is not the meaning of it, or else any one that lives in the Practice of any known bosom Sin is not a Christian; how can then those that live in the Lusts of the Gentiles, as they are termed there in verse. 4, 5. in Wantonness, Chamberings, Drunkenness, Uncleanness, and the like excess of riot, be Termed Christians? In (1 John 3. 5, 6, 7, 8.) speaking of our Conformity unto Christ, among the rest he makes this as one, That as Christ had no Sin in him, so he that abides in him, continues not in Sin; for so the Word must be Interpreted for says he (verse 8.) Christ appeared to dissolve the Works of the Devil; that is in those that are his, to put an End to the Work or Deviliſh Trade of Sin in themselves If therefore we be dead with Christ, how shall we continue in Sin? When a Thief is hanged, doth he not leave the practice of his Thievery? And so should we break off our course in sinning, if we our selves had ever been on the Cross with Christ, and Crucified with him. Well my Brethren, this know, that none shall have the benefit of his Death for the forgivness of sin, that hath not a likeness to it in the death of it in himself. And least it should be thought that Sin is not thus truly kill'd with Christ, the Apostle goes farther in (Rom. 6. 4.) and says that we are Buried also with Christ. There is also a Conformity to his Burial; whereby is shewn that Sin is truly Dead; a living Man would not suffer himself to be Buried, and by the Conformity to his Burial, he means the progress of a Christian, in the farther, and daily daily Mortifying of his Lusts, that as a Body being laid in the Grave, Rots away and Consumes, till at length it be Destroyed; so doth the Body of Sin, (as 'tis at ver. 6.) being Crucified it is Destroyed also, and that is not till the day of Death, and therein indeed it differs from Christs Body, which remained Unconsumed in the Grave, saw no Corruption, and remains now Glorified in Heaven. And therefore Examine whether Sin Moulders and decays in thee, or no. Chap. 4

BOOK VI.

That the Work of Grace wrought in us by the Spirit of God in Regeneration, is a Different and Higher Principle than Natural Conscience in its greatest Elevation of Light. The Deficiency of Natural Conscience shewed, and the mistakes of Men about it detected.

CHAP. I.

That all Men being under a Covenant of Works, or a Covenant of Grace; there are Two Principles of Actions, viz. Conscience alone in its natural Light in the One, and supernatural Grace with its Light in the Hearts of the Other, who are Regenerate. The Two Texts, Rom. 2. 14, 15, and Jer. 31. 31, 32, 33. Explained. That the Principle by which the Law of God Reigns over Men is Conscience. What Notions the Philosophers among the Heathens had of it.

JER. XXXI. 31, 32, 33.

V. 31. Behold, the Daies come saith the Lord, that I will make a New Covenant with the House of Israel, and with the House of Judah.

V. Not according to the Covenant, that I made with their Fathers, in the Day that I took them by the Hand, to bring them out of the Land of Egypt, (which my Covenant they brake, altho' I was an Husband unto them saith the Lord.)

V. 33. But this shall be the Covenant that I will make with the House of Israel, after those Days, saith the Lord, I will put my Law in their Inward parts, and write it in their Hearts, and I will be their God, and they shall be my People.

HAving opened the Nature of the true Work of Grace; I shall now for the fuller and Larger Illustration hereof, subjoyn the Discovery of its Counterfeit, which is the Work of the Law, Written in the Heart by Nature, Nature, or the powerful Effects which a Natural and Enlightned Conſcience hath in the Hearts of Men remaining Unregenerate; Which Men in all Profeſſions of Religion do ordinarily miſtake in themſelves, for true and inherent Holineſs. The Uſe and Neceſſity of this Diſcourſe is to ſhew more clearly the Nature of true Sanctification, by the Detection of its Counterfeit. For things come to be diſtinctly known as well by diſcovering the difference of what uſually pretends to be, or is, Commonly and Generally taken, and goes for Currant among Men, to be ſuch or ſuch a thing, when it is not, as by defining poſitively what the thing it ſelf is, in the Genuine Nature of it. We Learn Truths with an Advantage (eſpecially Spiritual Truths) when we compare them with the appearance of Errors, and ſever them from, and extract them as Spirits out of that droſs, and mixture of a deceiving Likeneſs that cleaveth to them. It will alſo ſerve to remove practical miſtakes about Regeneration, which are of infinite moment, and yet generally incident unto Men.

Now as the Sum of our Religion is reduced by the Apoſtle, to theſe, two, Faith, and a Good Conſcience. (1 Tim. 1. 19.) Faith, which is Principium Credendorum, the Principle of things to be Believed; and Conſcience, which is Principium Agendorum, the Principle of things to be done by us; for as the Object Matter of all Religion is reduced to Credenda and Agenda, ſo the Principles within us, are Anſwerably thus Generally expreſſed by theſe Two, Faith, and Conſcience. Faith looks upward, to the Things of the Goſpel, and takes in all ſupernatural Truths, with Application to a Mans Soul. Conſcience looks both inward, to our own actings within; and outward, to the Law or Rule which is to guide us: And it alſo is the Spring to all the Wheels, and the Mover in all provocations to Duties, or Avocations from ſins. Now as theſe Two are the two Principles (when True and Good) of all true Religion: So all the imperfect Works, and Counterfeits of the true, which are to be found in unregenerate mens Hearts and Lives, muſt be reduced unto theſe two alſo, both as to the Principles thereof in their Hearts, and to the effects of them all in their Lives. As there is a falſe common Faith which Men do generally miſtake for true; (and therefore the Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth, terming the true, unfeign'd Faith. (1 John 1. 5.) So there is a pure Heart, and a good Conſcience in the ſame place alſo opened. It is a Conſcience good, with ſuch a Goodneſs as qualifies the Heart, and this by way of diſtinction, and difference from Conſcience, which is but natural, and the low effects thereof in Men unregenerate, which they ordinarily do in little matters miſtake for Sanctification. So then all counterfeit Religion, (I ſpeak of ſuch as is any way ſerious, and not groſsly and meerly hypocritical) are either, 1. The Effects and Workings of Conſcience, as it is a natural Principle, and tho' ſtill remaining defiled in an Heart unregenerated, yet elevated and enlightned by the Word and Spirit. Or 2. The effects of ſupernatural Light in matters of Faith joyned therewith, and ſhining into an unrenewed Underſtanding, and affecting ſelf-love, with what is ſuitable to it in the things that are revealed.

Again, all mens Conditions falling to be either under the Covenant of Works, or the Covenant of Grace, Hence all that are enlightned, and carried on with any powerful Effects in the profeſſion of Religion, are either acted therein by Conſcience, as the predominant Principle, which is the ſeat of the Dominion of the Law and Covenant of works; orby Faith, which is the in-let, or receptive of the Dominion of Grace.

That all men are under one of theſe Covenants is evident by the whole Current of the Apoſtles Writings, who ſtill diſtinguiſheth between Works and Grace as the only two poſſibly to be ſuppoſed ways Men take unto Salvation: Not of Works (ſays he) but according to Grace: And you are not under the Law, but under Grace Rom. 7. He makes this diſtinction as that which takes in, and divides the Whole of Mankind. And the reaſon is evident from (Rom. 7. 1, 4, 6.) For every man having been born under the Law, and Covenant of Works, the Law continues to have Dominion over him either in commanding, or inciting, yea often in acting and carrying him on unto what is commanded thereby, or elſe binding him over unto Condemnation.

2 Theſ. 1. 9. Epheſ. 2. Rom. 9. 10, 11, Chapters and no man is freed from this, until he is married to Christ, and so come to have a new Nature, together with the priviledge of being a Subject of Grace. Chap. 5

And therefore he continues under it, so long as he lives in that first Estate; for the Laws right over him was not forfeited by the Fall. Now suitably that every man might come to be subject to, and sensible of this several Dominion over him, according as his Condition is; There are two Principles planted within man, by God suited hereunto, and suscipient of each of these. The one is in every man by nature, (since every mans Condition is to be under the Law) and that is *Co*nscience: The other is a supernatural Grace, and that is Faith. (Eph. 2. 8.) By Grace you are saved, through Faith. Now Jews and Heathens were under the Dominion (as explained) of both these, and also ignorant Christians. But if man that remains unregenerate, be enlightned by the Gospel, and the Knowledge of the Grace of God, although it may be a while doubtful unto himself or others; unto which Covenant or Dominion he belongs, or is the Subject of, yet in the Issue and Event his Spirit doth fall, and will act or be acted according as his Condition is, and he will lean either to the one or the other, as his Lord and Sovereign. If a man that is under the Covenant of Works takes in the present over-powering Light of the Doctrine of Grace, and the truth thereof, which hath good and blessed News for every man to listen to; yet in the Issue and Event he will fall into one of these two Cases or Conditions. He will either come to abuse the Grace of God to Wantoness thro' self-love, which remaining unsubdued to the Dominion of Grace, makes use of the knowledge of Grace under-hand, to back and strengthen that Corruption in him, in which the power of sin doth lye: And so Self-love in a way of presumption (which hath the appearance of the strength of Faith in that man) eats out the active power of Conscience in him, and so he comes to fall under the Dominion or Stroak of the Covenant of works more strongly than ever; and the Law comes to bind him over to a deeper Condemnation, when Conscience shall come again to be awakened, and even the Gospel it self, which he knew, will be turned into a sorer Avenger than the Law of itself would have been. And this is the Case of such as swallow down the Gospel whole, and so make shipwrack of Conscience through their presumption on the Principles, about the Doctrine or Aplication of it to themselves.

Or 2. The Case of one that is enlightned will be, that his Conscience being enlightned and awakened by the Law, continues to act and provoke him unto doing in Religion in a legal strain and way, and carries on Duties upon the Wheels of legal Motives, and so the Law becomes the predominant Principle to over-top and over-sway Evangelical Faith. And that it doth so, is but suitable to the state of the man; for as he is still under the Covenant of Works (self not being broken, nor Christ having slain the Law to him) so answerably the best and most active swaying Principle in him, is that which is the Seat and Throne of the Laws Dominion, namely Conscience; and so the best of that mans Religion is but the actings of a legal Conscience: And how he compounds with the Gospel, and subordinates his apprehensions of it, is too long here to insert.

So then (that I may set out that Subject I mean to treat of) It is not my purpose here to treat of temporary Faith, the Counterfeit of true saving Faith. But singly and simply, an enlightned natural Conscience, and the Effects thereof, as they are or may be mistaken for true Sanctification, and the Effects of it. And the eminent distinction and difference between these two, is by these two Texts Rom. 2. 14, 15. and Jer. 31. 31, 32, 33, compared, clearly held forth both for the ὅτι and the διότι thereof: The one speaking of the Effect of the Law written in the Heart by Nature (thus Rom. 2.) the other (Jer. 31.) of the writing the Law in the inward parts, as the eminent and proper fruit of the Covenant of Grace, and that in distinction from the other.

The first Text Rom. 2. gives instance in the Gentiles (whom all acknowledge under Wrath and Unregeneracy) and their having the effects of the Law written by Nature and above all other effects of the Law. He inſtanceth in Conſcience accuſing, and excuſing: As that which of all other argues the Law written there; yea, and his Scope in bringing in this example of the Gentiles, is in the Coherence of it to convince the carnal Jews (whom he had taken to task to convince them in this Chapter, that they were unregenerate and in their natural Condition, as he had done in the former, who reſted in the Law, and the effects thereof upon them for their Juſtification and Acceptation with God: Thereupon making their boaſt of God, v. 17. Having proved the Gentiles to be under Wrath, Chap. 1. he then comes upon the Jew therewith, and improves their example as a ſpecial Engine to unſettle and overthrow the Jew in his carnal Boaſt by giving him to conſider,

1. That even the Gentiles whom they accounted unholy, tho' they had not the Law delivered by Revelation from God to them (for God dealt not ſo with any Nation &c.) yet had the effect or ſubſtance of the outward Precepts of the Law written in their Hearts.

2. Thoſe Letters of the Law were ſo powerful and prevailing in many of them, that the Prints of them were publiſhed and ſtamped in fair Characters in their Lives; that is, they acted according to it, v. 14. They do by nature the things contained in the Law. And (v. 15.) ſhew or give demonſtration that the effect of the Law is written there:

And 3. The eminent Principle or Seat of this effect of the Law, he makes to be their Conſciences, v. 15. For he gives that as the eminent inſtance of the Law written in their Hearts, that it did μεταξὺ ἀλλήλων excuſe and accuſe, that is, by Courſe and alteration between themſelves ſingly, or in their own Breaſt, (as the Margent alſo hath it) it did ſome while excuſe and approve, pronounce a Sentence of Abſolution and Juſtification both to their Actions and Perſons, when they do well; as alſo when they do ill, it again at other times accuſeth.

Now from this inſtance of the Gentiles, he would have the the carnal Jews themſelves reflect that they had indeed the advantage of having the Law, and Word of God outwardly revealed to them, over and above the bare light of Nature, and ſo more fully and clearly than the Gentiles had; and had alſo the more excellent things thereof, v. 18. Thou approveſt the things that are more excellent, being inſtructed out of the Law. All which came to paſs, becauſe they had the ſame principle of Conſcience (he had ſpoken of) which the Gentiles had; which Principle was apprehenſive of the Righteouſneſs of the Law, revealed to them of God, and ſo approved of it, and received it from God, and was apprehenſive of its ſubjection thereunto, and thereupon had ſet them a work to act according to that Eternal Word. But yet in all this (ſays he) thou that art a Jew acteſt, at the beſt, but in the ſame Sphere, and upon the ſame Foundation in Nature, that is found in the Heathens by Nature: And tho' thy Conſcience comes to know more excellent things by Revelation from the Word, and ſo to act outwardly more gloriouſly from thence, yet the inward Principle is one and the ſame in thy Heart that is in the others, namely, Natural Conſcience enlightned, for magis & minus non variant Speciem. Theſe are but further degrees within the ſame kind, and internally and ultimately it is but Nature in both that all is reſolv'd into.

Yea and 5*thly* He urgeth them from the 21 Verſe, Thou that art a Jew (ſays he) in thine Obedience and Conformity to that Law given thee, falleſt more ſhort, according to the compaſs of thy Principles and light of Conſcience, than the Gentiles do, according to what they know by the light of meer Nature in their Sphere. Yea, and oftentimes ſome things (which their Conſciences keep them from) thou ſinneſt againſt thy light therein. Now then his Concluſion is, Be thine own Judge, v. 26, 27. Therefore if the uncircumciſion keep the Righteousness of the Law, (that is within his Compass of light, so far as he knows, as really and as conscientiously from a Principle within him, as thou canst be supposed to do thy Law, whilst but from the same Principle) shall not he by the Analogy and Proportion of that Rule by which thou dost judge of thy estate before God, be also justified? And shall not his Uncircumcision be counted Circumcision, and so in his measure and proportion be accepted of by God as well as thou? It is not that Paul affirms this as if an Heathen should be saved; but he useth and urgeth it as a Conviction to the Jews, according to the Principles they judged of themselves by, leaving it to them to judge of themselves by analogous Reason. And therefore his last Conclusion and Resolution is (v. 29) That it is none of these Principles mentioned that is true Holiness, but Regeneration or Circumcision of the Heart, as the Apostle elsewhere termeth Conversion (Col. 2. 11.) In whom also ye are circumcised with the Circumcision made without Hands, in putting off the Body of the sins of the Flesh by the Circumcision of Christ. And He is a Jew (says he) that is one inwardly: And Circumcision is that of the Heart in the Spirit, which is a Principle beyond both natural Conscience in the Heathen, or enlightned Conscience in the Jew, and all the works or effects thereof in either: And this, says Paul, you will find all true, (as the 16*th* verse hath it, which comes after that Parenthesis of v. 13, 14, 15.) In that day when God shall judge the Secrets of men by Jesus Christ, who by discovering the Secrets of all Hearts, will make a full discovery of these things, and the practical differences between them, and thereupon difference in mens Estates. Chap. 4

2. The other place, Jer. 31. is most adequate to this general Scope of mine; for the full direct and professed intent thereof, is to hold forth this very distinction and broad difference that is between the entertainment of the Law in the Heart of a carnal Jew, with the effects thence ensuing, and the writing the Law in the Heart by Grace. And you may observe that he contents not himself nakedly with setting forth the effects of the Covenant of Grace, that it is a writing the Law in the Heart, but setts by it, for illustration thereof, the Consideration and Remembrance of the former Covenant by Moses in giving the Law, with the effects thereof, v. 32. Yea, he brings it in by expres distinction from this other, Not according (says he) to the Covenant I made with their Fathers in the day that I took them by the Hand to bring them out of the Land of Egypt. Now the effects of that Covenant upon the most, or on the generality of the Jews (tho' secretly, the new Covenant, which was conveyed with it in the Types did then work in many of the Elect you have lively deciphered at the very first giving the Law (unto which very Transaction Jeremy most aptly referrs, and sends us, to understand this difference) You have it Deut. 5. (where the Story of the giving the Law is rehearsed from v. 5.) at v. 24, 25, 26, 27. &c. you find how their Consciences made them sensible of the greatness and glory of God who gave the Law, v, 24, 25. And they said, Behold the Lord our God hath shewed us his Glory, and his Greatness, and we have heard his Voice out of the midst of the Fire. We have seen this day that he doth talk with Man and he liveth. Now therefore why should we die? For this great Fire will consume us; if we hear the voice of the LORD our GOD any more, then we shall die. And these Apprehensions of theirs did work up unto Resolutions to do whatever God should say. I have heard (says God thereupon, v. 28.) the Voice of the words of this People, which they have spoken unto thee; they have well said all that they have spoken. And yet at v. 29. you read how the main was wanting, Oh that there were such an Heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my Commandments always, that it might be well with them, and with their Children for ever. Now the thing that was wanting, was the Law written in the Heart, (as Jeremy discovers it to be) as that which, with respect to the more general and more apparent and professed workings of it in men, was reserved for the days of the New Testament, as the fruit of the Covenant of Grace. Now this writing the LAW in the Heart, spoken of by Jeremy, the Apostle (Heb. 14. 16.) doth genuinely interpret of the work of saving Sanctification, as it is distinct from that of Justification, and is peculiar to them that are justified.

So then upon all all accounts these Texts do fully warrant, and give bottom to the proposed subject; Namely, the distinction of the Effects of the Law in natural Conscience, from the writing of the Law in the Heart by Regeneration. The main and more substantial Difference it holds forth to be this: That God, in giving the old Covenant, came upon and took man's natural old Heart without renewing it, and gave the Law thereunto, and tryed how it would work upon it; but in this new Covenant He gives a new Heart, and a new Spirit, writing the Law in the very Inwards, and makes it the Ground-Work of all his other Workings.

Further ere I come unto these particular Heads which are to fill up the Bulk of this intended Discourse, I must premise one thing as introductory to what follows.

That which I premise, is this Assertion. That Principle or Faculty in the Heart of Man, which is the Seat, Throne, or Scepter; by which the Law of God comes to rule over, and to have these effects in the Hearts of Men, is Conscience, by means of which it is said, that the Law hath dominion over a man as long as he lives; that is, whilst he lives in his natural Condition, Rom. 7. 1. compared with v. 4. This Faculty is the Zion or Tower of David in the Soul, from whence the Law goes forth to the outmost ends thereof. To this purpose, you may observe how the Apostle here, when he speaketh of the Law written in the Gentiles Hearts, maketh especial, yea, only mention of this, and of no other Faculty; because this Faculty of Conscience is that first and most immediate Seat or Subject of this writing of the Law by Nature; and is also the great Officer of State, betrusted with the executive power of that Law, to see it done and performed: Which accordingly both urgeth the Heart of man thereto; as well as after that Actions are done, it hath the Office of a Witness under the great Judge, to accuse, or excuse, and to serve his Writs upon a Man.

You that are verst in the Writings of the wisest Philosophers for Morality, viz. Plato, and the Stoicks, Seneca, Epictetus, Hierocles, and Marcus Antonius &c. you find them still to cry up and magnifie in man, as his supream Guide and Judge. ὀρθος λόγος Recta ratio, Right Reason, which they term a Branch of God, and σκήπτρον τῦ Θεῦ the Scepter of God; yea, God in a man; and many such Elogies they give forth of it. Now by right Reason, they meant primarily that practical part of Reason in the Mind which guides a man in his Actions according to the eternal Law of God (as they speak) or the Mind of God; which they termed the principal and primary Law. * So Tully expressly speaks in his second Book de Legibus, in the name of all the wisest Philosophers. And Hierocles upon Pythagoras his Verses speaks answerably ὁ λογισμὸς τῶν Θείων νόμων ὑποδεξάμενος. It is Reason taking in the divine Laws of God: And so it is δικαιότερος ἄγρυπνος ἑαυτῦ γίνεται. It becomes the most vigilant Judge to a mans self. And although these Heathens sometimes used the word Conscience even as we Christians do, yet more sparingly; and when they did, it was usually intended by them of one part of its Office, viz. That after Actions are done by us, it doth accordingly torture, and disquiet or refresh, and rejoyce a man, as he doth good, or evil. Thus (a) Tully deciphers his sense of Recta Ratio, or right Reason, to be a true and certain Law within us which calls upon us to what is our Duty, and pricks us on to do well by commanding us, and restrains from evil by forbidding us with Terrors. Which (said he) the wisest of the Heathen took to be the mind of God himself, who by that Reason, in men did order men, by Commands, or Restraint, as by a supream or sovereign Law.

Hence therefore in their usual Language, to Obey God, and to Live according to Right Reason, were all one, which they also Termed, Living according to Nature, as they accounted Right Reason to be. And what is all this, but as the Learned

(a) Est quidem vera Lex recta ratio constans sempiterna quæ vocat ad officium jubendo a fraude detetret. lib. 3. apud Lactant: cap. 8.

Learned Selden makes the Interpretation of these and the like Speeches (citing of them) but that which in other Terms themselves, and we Christians do call Conscience. And Chrysostum afore him; When God formed Man at first, (saith he) he put into him a Natural Law, and what that Law of Nature is, Conscience hath Explained it unto us, and of it self hath made Manifest to us the Cognizance both of things Honest, and that are otherwise. Conscience is that only Principle in a Man, under whose Cognizance comes all that hath the notion of what is Morally Good or Evil: And which with one and the same Eye veiweth a Rule, or Law forbiding Evil, or Commanding Good, and together therewith do we take a Glance of God, as the Supream Judge, giving that Law, and backing it with Threatnings, or Promises of Rewards; and this the Etimology of the Name denotes, Conscientia, quasi cum alio sciens, viz. with God, and from this Knowledg of God, which it carries about with it, together with its Being a Rule, or Law, it is, that that Obligation, Power, or Force of it doth arise, which binds a Man (though no Creature doth look on, to be a Witness of his Sin) and so he becomes a Law unto himself. And Conformably to this, as being the Truth, the Apostle speaks, Be subject for Conscience sake, (Rom. 13. 5.) which is elsewhere rendred to Obey God. And hence also Paul termeth the Leading of a Good and Regular Life, a Living in all good Conscience before God, (Acts 26. 1.) The having done which, Paul doth Attribute to himself, even whilst he was under his Phariasaism, and he terms it Living in good Conscience, because this Conscience was that Principle which took in the Law from God, and so did provoke him to Act outwardly according to it, which hath a Goodness in its kind, and therefore is termed Good. And it is said to be Living in a good Conscience, because no Man doth make Conscience of any thing at any time, but it is with an Eye to a Deity more or less, as he is Enlightned, be he a Jew, or Gentile, or a Professour of Christianity. And in all these it is Conscience, whether truly, sanctified or not, which is that τὸ ἡγεμονικὸν, which (as Hierocles word is, is the suscipient of the Divine Laws. It is that Province of Reason, which lies open unto Light from God to come in at, and to Urge and Enforce Obedience, and which is capable and Apprehensive of what God shall in that kind speak. It is the Judge of Good and Evil Moral, not only of Right and Wrong, between Man and Man, (as Gallio spake) but of things Honest and Wicked. It is Communis Intelligentia, qua non solum jus & injuria dijudicantur, sed omnino omnia honesta & turpia, (as Cicero speaks) And it Judgeth of them with Application to all particular Actions, to direct, provoke, restrain, or if the Action be done, to excuse, or accuse according to it's Judgment, and that in the Name of a Deity, or of God. Insomuch as I may apply here what Paul says in another, though like Case, What things soever the Law says, it saith to them that are under the Law, Rom. 3. 9. I may add, Whatever the Law saith without us, is a Conscience within us, the Principle capable according to the light received from thence, to urge it upon the rest of the Faculties; so as these Phrases are æquivalent, to be under the Law, and to be under Conscience; to be concerning the Law blameless, and to Live in all good Conscience. And the goodness of Conscience there spoken of by Paul, is but a Conformity of his outward Conversation to the Light of the Law, in his Conscience.

And in his book de Legibus lib. 2. Ad recte faciendum impellens & ad Hanc video sapientissimam fuisse sententiam, illam principem Mentem dicebant aut cogentis aut vetantis Dei. λόγῳ δὲ ὀρθῷ πείθεσθαι τῷ Θεῷ ταυτὸν ἐστι. Hierocles in Pythag. Car.

Quibus verbis id quod ipsi Philosophij paganis aljis non raro, τὸν συνειδὸς in vita peragenda ratione, Dea Conscientia dicitur optime designat? Selden de Jure Naturali, &c. Lib. 1. Cap. 8.

And by the Way, let me add this, That those that say there is no use of the Moral Law to a Christian, may as well say that there is no more use of that Faculty of Conscience in the Soul of a Christian. Put out that Faculty out of Mans Heart, if you tear out that other, namely the Obliging part of the Law. Even as if God would annul Colours and Light, he must also take away, and close up the Sense of Sight.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

That the Natural Light of Conſcience in Unregenerate Men, hath a great Influence on their Actions.

NOW theſe Things being premiſed, there are Three Parts which fill up the Body of that Diſcourſe which I intend.

I. That in Men whom the Scriptures pronounce Unregenerate, this Principle of Conſcience hath had Great and Powerful Effects upon their Hearts.

II. That theſe Effects Men of all Profeſſions, Jews, Heathens, or Nominal Chriſtians, are apt to miſtake in the Judgments which they paſs, concerning their own State and Condition, when they think that an Obſervance of the Dictates of Conſcience will make them Acceptable to God. Yea, and if they be Profeſſors of Chriſtianity (that are Unregenerate) and ſo here of Grace and Regeneration, they take this to be True Holineſs, or Sanctification. I ſhall alſo herewith give the Reaſons, and Grounds of this Miſtake.

III. I ſhall make a Diſcovery of this great Counterfeit, and of its Deficiency, and of its falling ſhort of Grace in the light of it, and in the Effects of it, together with a Detection, and Conviction of thoſe Miſtakes.

1. In Diſcourſing of the Firſt Head, there are Two Things to be Treated of.

1. I ſhall prove that in Men whom the Scripture pronounceth Unregenerate, there are ſuch Powerful Effects of Conſcience to be found.

2. I ſhall ſhew what thoſe Effects particularly are.

1. To prove that in Unregenerate Men, there are Powerful Effects of Conſcience, I ſhall give Inſtance in Three ſorts of Men, in whom God hath given Demonſtration thereof, how far, and how high, this Principle of Conſcience may, and hath been Elevated, and what Effects it may have, and yet fall ſhort of the Glory of God, thereby more to Magnifie his Sanctifying Grace.

1. The Firſt Inſtance is of Heathens under meer Nature, which the Writings of the Heathens are Records of, and which are indeed the trueſt Comments upon this Treatiſe of Rom. 2.

2. The Second Inſtance is of Jews under the Law, whereof the Phariſees, and the Carnal Jews under the Old Teſtament, are Evidences. All the Scribes and Phariſees (whatever ſome of them might be) were not groſs Hypocrites, but many were ſerious in what they did, and their Conſciences being greatly enlightned in the Law, they Acted according unto Conſcience. We have an Inſtance, both of that Young Man, who ſaid he had kept the Commandments from his Youth, and alſo of the Scribe, Mark 12. 32, 33, 34. And the Scribe ſaid unto him, Well, Maſter, thou haſt ſaid the Truth; for there is one God, and there is none other but He; and to Love him with all thy Heart, and with all thy Underſtanding, and with all thy Soul, and with all thy Strength, and to Love his Neighbours as himſelf, is more than all whole Burnt-Offerings and Sacrifices. And when Jeſus ſaw that he anſwered diſcreetly, he ſaid unto him, Thou art not far from the Kingdom of God. He had in his light pitcht upon the firſt Commandment of duties to be directed immediately to God himſelf, and his Conſcience reſted not in outward performances, Sacrifices and Burnt Offerings, but the light in it had dictated to him further, altho' it was not able to mold his Heart thereunto; For he ſays expreſsly, That to love God with all the Heart, and with all the Underſtanding, and with all the Soul, and with all the Strength, and to love his Neighbour as himſelf, is more then all whole Burnt Offerings and Sacrifices. And Chriſt that diſcerned his Heart, gives him this approbation of him; Thou art not far from the Kingdom of God; which for that meer Notion, if this Scribe had been in his Life a groſs Hypocrite, Chriſt would never have given. But yet this man wanting that Love to God, whereof his Conſcience had the Light (for Conſcience never ſo much enlightned, will never work love to God) he fell ſhort (as the Word elſe where is) for otherwiſe there is not any that thus truly love God, who is far from the Kingdom of God, 1 Cor. 2. 9. Paul alſo giveth this Record of many of the Jews his Countreymen, Rom. 10. 2. I bear them Record, they have a Zeal of God, that is, a Study and Care to pleaſe God in keeping of the Law (of the Works and Righteouſneſs whereof he there ſpeaks, and had ſpoken Chap. 9, the three laſt foregoing verſes) which Zeal in their Affections, Conſcience had provoked and ſtirred up. But the eminenteſt inſtance of all other in that kind is Paul himſelf, whom God did ſet up, before Converſion, as the higheſt pattern in the Jewiſh Religion; as after Converſion, in the Chriſtian. Paul ſpeaking of himſelf whilſt a Phariſee ſtill, tells us how zealous his Religion made him, as to the perſecuting the oppoſite party, ſo to the obſervation of that righteouſneſs of the Law, Gal. 1. 14. and Phil. 3. 6. Concerning Zeal, perſecuting the Church; touching the Righteouſneſs which is in the Law, blameleſs: That is, I was ſo truly zealous for the Law, that I perſecuted what way was oppoſite to it. Now, what made him ſo? It was Conſcience, Acts 26. 9. He verily thought that he ought to do ſo. Now that Principle in us which convinceth that we ought to do a thing, is Conſcience. (Acts 23. 1.) That Apology which Paul, being ſet before the Council, was about to make, but was broke off by the high Prieſt, and the Tumult, runs thus, Men and Brethren, I have lived in all good Conſcience before God until this day. Many of you are not ignorant how moſt Interpreters do underſtand this ſpeech as relating to, and taking in the whole of his Life, not of Chriſtianity only, but even in Judaiſm alſo, for he doth not by any expreſs word date it from his Converſion. He doth not ſay, ſince I turn'd Chriſtian, or was converted to the Faith, but only ſays, until this day, which indefinitely includes the whole of his Life till then. And his manner was in telling the ſtory of his Converſion, to begin with his exactneſs in obſerving the Law before his Converſion, (which he was about to relate but that he is interrupted here) which outward Obedience, becauſe of its conformity to the Principle of it, is frequently termed a good Conſcience, that is, a good or regular Life conformed to, and ſpringing from Conſcience. And that which Paul here intendeth in reference to that part of his Life under Phariſaiſm, is all one and the ſame with what elſewhere he ſaith, Phil. 3. 6. Touching the Righteouſneſs which is in the Law, blameleſs. Chap. 1

But there were a third ſort in whom Conſcience enlightned may be ſuppoſed yet further improved in the effect of it, when yet it fell ſhort of Grace. There were thoſe who were ſupernaturally enlightned by the Goſpel, of whom Paul (Heb. 6.) and Chriſts Parables ſpeak. Such light the Underſtanding of man not renewed is capable of, and it lyes expoſed for God to ſhoot into it, without infuſing a new Habit, or ſpiritualizing that Faculty. It lyes expoſed alſo unto influences, and effects of the promiſes of the Goſpel working upon ſelf-love in the Will and Affections, with taſtings of the powers of the World to come. Now when the light of the Goſpel is added to the light of the Law, and when a ſupernatural light of things revealed in the Goſpel, is added to that of Conſcience in the Law, Conſcience cometh to have its Dominions enlarged, and is more ſtrengthned and backed hereby. Now in ſuch ſo wrought on by the Goſpel, and alſo the Law, and in whoſe Hearts both theſe meet, the effects muſt needs be ſuppoſed more powerful and vigorous, becauſe there is brought in a ſtronger light of God himſelf in

Book 6. the efficacy of knowing whom, more or leſs, the obligation and power of Conſcience lyes. An inſtance that mentions the Conjunction of both theſe in expreſs words, is hard perhaps to meet with all: Although where ſuch ſupernatural enlightning in things of the Goſpel falls out to be in ſuch as have fallen away, it muſt neceſſarily be ſuppoſed that there is a more vigorous actuating and ſtirring that Light and Principle of Conſcience that doth accompany the ſame; eſpecially conſidering that the workings of the Law upon Conſcience, is that which prepares mens Hearts (both that are ſaved, or otherwiſe fall away) for their liſtning after, and ſo receiving in, the ſupernatural Truths of the Goſpel. Howſoever thus much is evident to the thing in hand, that theſe Jews of all other who were of the Sect of the Phariſees, that made Conſcience of the Law, when they came to be enlightned by the Goſpel, became the Raiſers and Fomenters of that great oppoſition to the Goſpel, which was the ruine of many Profeſſors in thoſe primitive Times. Of theſe Phariſees mention is made (Acts 15. 5.) There roſe up certain of the Sect of the Phariſee who believed (and ſome, as in Charity we are to think, ſavingly, who yet were the Defenders of that great Error,) ſaying, It was needful to Circumciſe men that believed, and to teach them to keep the Law of Moſes; that is, the whole of it, which Circumciſion did oblige unto. As theſe men had Faith, ſuperadded, ſo I may ſay of them, as Paul of ſome Gentiles, they had a Conſcience of that Idol, the Law, to that day; and their Conſcience having been inured to that yoke, knew not how to diſcharge it ſelf ſo ſoon of that ſubjection (I ſpeak as to that ſenſe mentioned) and ſo by that addition of Faith, Conſcience was more provoked to be Zealous for the Law, and to obſerve it, that they might keep in with God. Now, what the eſtate of theſe particular perſons there mentioned was, we know not, nor the Iſſue of them as to God, yet this we are ſure of, that many of the Followers of that Doctrine which theſe there firſt did broach, and who had embraced the Faith upon a ſupernatural Light (for elſe none in thoſe times would eaſily have profeſſed it) did out of the ſame Principle of Conſcience urge and profeſs obedience to that whole Law of Moſes, and ſet out therein with the ſame Zeal in both (for the reality of it) that theſe Phariſees that were the firſt Authors of that Opinion did: It was the profeſſion of making Conſcience, and of their obligation to God's Command, which was the ground of that Zeal; and yet we are ſure that many of them are branded to have been Apoſtates to the Faith in the end. And I obſerve, that when Paul twice ſpeaks of this kind of Profeſſors (as he vouchſafes to name them, Titus 1.6.) who thus urged the obſervation of the Law, as well as Faith in the Goſpel; he ſtill makes mention withal, of Faith and Conſcience. For the latter was that, which theſe ſo much pretended; for the obligation of the Law (they contended for) did principally reſpect Conſcience as the Seal of it, and as ſubject to it, and over which it had Dominion in Men. Thus Paul writes (1 Tim. 1.) concerning ſome at Epheſus who preſſed the Law in the ſenſe theſe Phariſees had done, as well as they preſſed Faith, as appears by v. 7, 8. And becauſe they did urge this upon pretence of Conſcience, therefore in oppoſition to that Religion of theirs, which they made up both of Law and Goſpel in an untoward mixture, Paul profeſſeth the true Religion (or that part of it which relateth to the Commandments) to be this, v. 5, 6, 7. Now the end of the Commandment is Charity, out of a pure Heart, and of a good Conſcience, and of Faith unfeigned. From which ſome having ſwerved, have turned aſide unto vain jangling, deſiring to be Teachers of the Law, underſtanding neither what they ſay, nor whereof they affirm. He by theſe Cords intimates to us, that tho' theſe men did profeſs the ſame Faith in Chriſt; yet their zeal to the Law, for Chich they pretended Conſcience, was the Cauſe of their ſwerving from both; They never having had the true genuine or ſaving Principle of either. And therefore in his enumeration of the true and ſaving Principles of Faith, and a good Conſcience, he upon occaſion of them is forc'd to diſtinguiſh upon theſe Principles, as is evident by thoſe Cords, The end of the Commandment is Charity out of a pure Heart, of a good Conſcience, and Faith Unfained. And why is it, he should use this Distinction there, when he had occasion to speak of these Men, but to put the difference between Faith, and such a Conscience and Principle of Zeal in Religion, which is defiled? In Distinction unto which, he calls the Principle of True Holiness, a good Conscience, as he had charactarized true and saving Faith with this of her unfeigned Faith; and a pure Heart, as the effect of both these; for a purified Heart is expressly made the effect of Faith, Acts 15. 9. So then there is a Conscience zealous of Religion, that is, joyned with a pure Heart; and there is a Conscience that is joyned with a defiled Heart, and that in men enlightned in Religion, which Paul in his Epistle to Titus thus expresseth (in words near a kin to those he useth in Timothy of the same sort of Professors.) Unto the pure are all things pure, but unto them that are undefiled, and unbelieving (that have a Faith which purifies not the Heart, but leaves it still in its natural defilements, and so as good as no Faith, and therefore he terms them Unbelievers still) Even in their Mind and Conscience, which yet are the supreamest and purest part in them, even these remain defiled: However enlightned and what ever Conscience of the Law they do pretend. Now therefore, if their Consciences remain defiled (saith he) no wonder if in the end of their Profession their lives prove also such, (verse the last) for as Christ says, If the Light be Darkness, how great is that Darkness? But if the Eye be single, the whole Body is full of Light. And in these two Discourses compared, Paul discovers and rips up the Inwards of true Profession and false. In the practice of Religion mention'd in the one, viz. that of Titus, he resolves Apostacy and falling away, unto its true Causes: And in this other to Timothy, speaking of the contrary, sincere Obedience, that holds out to the end, he resolves his Perseverance unto its true Causes also. In the one, he tells us that their Consciences, which having been enlightned had been the ground work of their Zeal for the Law, and of obedience to it, had yet continued, and remain'd defiled, notwithstanding all that light: In the other, he tells us that they have obtained such a good Conscience and Faith unfeigned as had purified the Heart. Neither is his Scope in his Epistle to Titus, only to shew what at present their Consciences were become thro' sinning, but to resolve things into their Causes (as in that of Timothy he had done) shewing that this defect had been in their Profession from the first of it, in that their Consciences and Minds had remained in their natural defilement: And thence all their best Actions, as well as their outward legal observations, had become defiled to them, and in the End had wrought out that Light and Goodness, that had any impression upon them. Chap. 2

2. I come, now to shew what Effects a Natural Conscience may, and doth produce in Men unregenerate. The Instances I give of these Effects shall be only such as have been found in Heathens and Jews, of whom it must needs be Acknowledged that they were not Renewed. And such Effects, even in Professours of Christianity, who are not savingly Regenerated, are still but of the same kind, only are more heightned by the Addition of Gospel Light, more clearly Revealing God; and also perhaps in such Persons these Effects are Extended Objectively unto more Duties, than came to the Cognizance of either Jew, or Gentile. The Reason why this Addition of Gospel and Supernatural Light, must needs increase the same Effects more Powerfully, is, because (as I said) Conscience hath in all Men Two things still in its Eye: 1. The Law, or Rule. 2. God as the Judge, giving that Law; and from its Eying more or less, God as the Judge, doth arise that Authority that is in the Dictates of Conscience. And hence as the Conscience doth more Clearly and Fully take in Light from God, and is thereby Convinced of Him, and his Greatness and that the Rules given are from him; proportionably must these Effects of Conscience become more Powerful, and Work more strongly upon the Heart, yet so, as still this Light, and these Effects, are but of the same Kind with those that are found in Heathens or Jews.

Book VI

1. I shall give Instances of these Effects, in Respect of what is good.

1. Conscience in a Natural and Unregenerate Man, may and doth often pass an Act, both of Assent and Approbation, to what is a Good and Holy Duty, and to what the Law saies, or to the Duties and Commands thereof, that they are Good, and Just, and Right; otherwise it could not accuse a Man for what is Evil, unless it secretly approved of what is Good. Video Meliora proboq; (saies Medea in Ovid.) I see what is better, and approve of it; though I Choose and Pursue the worse. Seneca also speaking of the worst of Men, says that Vertue hath that Aimableness in it, that it is Ingrafted in those that are most Wicked, to approve the things that are Good and Best. They are Heathens that speak these things; and as for the Jews, Paul expressly says, Rom. 2. 18. Thou Approvest the things that are more Excellent, which is a Phrase suitable to the other, Probo meliora. And this is one Respect, for which they are said to be under the Law, and the Law to have Power or Dominion over a Man (as Rom. 7. 1, 2. Even because Men have a Principle in them capable of its Love, and Naturally subjected thereunto; which maketh them Acknowledg, and own it for their Lord. Now it could no way bring Men under that Subjection and Bondage, but by this, that there is something in this Principle of Conscience unto which this Law Approves its Equity and Justness, or to use the Apostles Phrase, 2 Cor. 4. 2.) Commendeth it self to every Mans Conscience. And thus the Law held forth in a Godly Mans Life, in the Concrete Approves it self to a Wicked Man: Saul could not but acknowledg of David, Thou art more Righteous than I. And in the Abstract it doth it much more. In the Story of the Acts, the Apostle Appeals to their Consciences (as Socrates before had done to his Heathen Judges) whether it were not better to Obey God than Men, for their Natural Consciences could not but so adjudge it.

Adro gratiosa est Virtus ut Insitum etiam malis sit probare meliora. Senec. Ep. 1.

2. Natural Conscience not only Assents to what the Law Commands as good, but it commends it to a Man as his Duty, and laies it as an Injunction upon him to do it. So says Paul, I verily thought with my self, that I ought to do many things, &c. Acts. 26. 9. Therefore it is called Conscientia by some, because it laies an Obligation upon a Man, and so it is quasi Concludens Scientia, which Binds him to his Good Behaviour.

3. It provoketh, yea, prevails with Men to do what it shews them to be Good, and their particular Duty. It is not a Sleeping Idle Principle, but Active; for so says the Apostle, of the Heathens, (Rom. 2. 14.) They did by Nature the things of the Law, as instigated thereto by Conscience. For he renders that as the ground of it, that they were a Law unto themselves. So Herod (as you know) DID many Things, which John the Baptist urged upon his Conscience out of the Word.

4. In these their Acting what is good, the Workings of Conscience are the main Engines which set them to Work, and not simply outward respects. Thus Paul resolves what he did in his Unregeneracy into this Principle, I Verily thought I ought to do it, (says he) And so did what he did, (Acts 26 9, 15.) It also appears in this, That a Man will go against all outward Respects, meerly to satisfie his Conscience, as Judas did, when he Confessed, and Restored the Money for which he had Betray'd Christ. Wherein he did, an Act cross to the dearest Lusts in him, his Credit, and his Covetcousness. Conscientiæ Satisfaciamus (saies Seneca) Nihil in famam laboremus: Let us satisfie Conscience, no matter for Credit.

5. Hence also Natural Conscience may in these Actions have a Real respect to God, to whom (as was said) Conscience looks, and from whom it fetcheth its binding Power; so as the Man takes his Command in, as a Consideration that moves him, John 16. 2. He that Killeth you, shall think he doth doth God good Service; that is, he shall look upon it as a Service done to God, and have some respect to him in it. And tho' this is spoken of such Actions as materially in themselves, were not Service to God, but the contrary, yet the inward Motive it proceeded from was, that they Judged it a Service unto God: And therefore when it falls to be in it self a Duty, which Conscience presseth it much more, and urgeth it upon this Motive (Rom. 10. 1.) The Carnal Jew is said to have a Zeal of God, or for God. Thus also we Read of Carnal and Wicked Men, who out of Awe, and Fear, and Respect to Him, do forbear some Sins: It is in my Power (says Laban to Jacob, Gen. 31. 29.) But the God of your Father spake to me saying, Take heed thou speak to Jacob neither Good nor Evil. God Commanded Balaam, also that he should not Curse the Israelites, and Balaam kept to that Command, and durst not go outwardly cross to it, although inwardly he desired leave to have done it, that so he might be rewarded by Balack: Yea, he therefore durst not do it, because of the word of the Lord, Num. 22. 18. So Cyrus says to Ezra, (1. 2.) That the God of Heaven had charged him to Build an House for him. Chap. 4

6. When a Man hath done what Conscience, and God in his Conscience, have Commanded, he hath much Peace in it, for it excuseth him as the Text (Rom. 2. 15.) saies. Thus a Heathen also could say, Recte feciſſe merx eſt; It is Reward enough to do well. Therefore Paul's Heart was kept Alive (Rom. 7.) in Joy and Peace, by doing what the Law Required. So also a Man will be Exceeding Glad when such a Sin is avoyded, or if a Sin take not full Effect, as Darius was glad when Daniel was Alive, (Dan. 6. 23.)

II. I shall give Instances of the Workings of Conscience, in Relation unto Evil, either Sins of Commission, or Omission of Duties.

1. Conscience in Natural Men causeth a Reluctancy and a Commotion of Affections against a Sin, before the Commission of it, and a Displacency in committing of it. Thus Darius, an Heathen, (Dan. 6. 14.) was so displeased with himself, when he was put upon putting to Death so just a Man, as his Conscience Hold him, that Daniel was. We may observe it in Herod, also (Mark 6. 26.) when John the Baptist's Head was required of him, you read what a Reluctancy he had, and Sorrow against it, he was exceeding Sorry, (v. 26.) And it was his Conscience that wrought that in him, for (v. 20.) it is said that he observed John, because he was a Just and an Holy Man; yet for his Oaths and Lusts sake, he Murther'd him; tho' to have parted with half his Kingdom would not have troubled him so much.

2. Conscience excites in Men an endeavour to avoy'd, and decline Evil. So Darius set his Heart to deliver Daniel, and he Laboured till Evening, (Dan. 6. 14.) So Pilat did all he could, a great while, to free his hands of the Guilt of Christs Death, by saving of him.

3. It worketh much Sorrow and Repentance after Sinning. So, of Darius, we Read (6. 18.) That he was Troubled all Night, could not eat his Meat, and his Sleep departed from him. (Rom. 2. 15.) And thus the Apostle says of the Heathens, That their Consciences do accuse them. Thus Judas also (Mat. 27. 4, 5. says) I have Sinned, in that I have Betrayed the Innocent Blood. And he cast down the pieces of Silver in the Temple, and Departed, and went and Hanged himself. And (by the way) here are all the Parts and Ingredients that the Papists Require in Repentance. 1. Contrition, He Repented himself. 2. Confession, I have Sinned in betraying Innocent Blood. 3. Restitution and Satisfaction, He cast down the Silver Pieces that had Betrayed him to that Sin. 4. He purposes never to return to it, as Saul resolv'd not to Kill David (his Conscience was overcome with his Righteousness) and as Pharaoh resolv'd to let the People go.

These things might be enlarged, and other Instances given; but I have given Instances of such, as all must needs Acknowledge to have been Unregenerate Men.

CHAP. III.

That men are apt to regard the natural Light of Conscience, and the influences of it to be the Effects of true Grace. The Reasons of their Mistake.

I Come now to prove all sorts of men unregenerate, have been, and are apt to mistake this light of Conscience in them, and the powerfull effects of it to be true Righteousness, which makes them acceptable to God. And if they be Professors of Christianity, they are ready to take it for Sanctification, and true Holiness.

There are three things under this Head, to be spoken unto.

I. That de facto, all sorts of Professions have mistaken it.

II. The reasons of it.

III. Some Grounds of the mistake.

I. All sorts have been apt to this.

1. Heathens have been so. It were infinite to Reckon up the Flesh-blown Conceits of the Heart of man in the instances of the Heathens (as they may be authentically drawn out of their own Writings) how they magnifie and cry up in themselves that which they call'd Right Reason forementioned, as their Diana; what divine Elogies they give it, and how they blessed themselves, when they lived conformably unto it, and the Decrees or Dogmata of it, as Epictetus calls them.*

*Una inducitur humanis Virtutibus Regula. Ratio recta simplexque: Nihil est divino divinius, cælesti Cælestius. Ratio autem nihil aliud est quam in Corpus humanum pars divini Spiritus mersa. Sen. Ep. 66.

1. For the Light thereof it self, they judged it Holy, Divine, Heavenly; yea, and nothing more Divine or Heavenly; not God himself; It being (as they say) a part of the Divine Spirit put and drencht into an Humane Body Thus Seneca speaks, and he speaks it not of the Soul it self, but of Reason or Conscience; for he speaks of that, which he terms the rule and measure of Vertues. Yea, and because 'tis Right Reason or Conscience that letts in the Light of a Deity into the Soul (as the word it self imports) as a Judge; therefore they call'd it not only a good Angel, or Daimon in a man (as frequently they do) but Seneca terms it Sacer Spiritus, a Sacred or holy Spirit. Sacer intra nos Spiritus sedet Malorum Bonorumque nostrorum Observator & Custos: Hic prout a nobis tractatus est, ita nos ipse tractat. There is a sacred Spirit that sits within us, which is the Observer and Layer up and Keeper of all the good or evil things in us (that is, which we do or are found in us who so deals with us as we deal with him. This eminently refers unto Conscience, for that is that Principle which letts God in upon us as a Judge of our Actions in our own Hearts. And you see it is spoken of that in us which is the Observer of all Good and evil in us; yea, and the layer of it up, and Remembrance of it for a long time after: And which, as we follow the light and guidance of it, so it deals with us, accusing or excusing us, as here in the Text Conscience is said to do. All which are evidently properties of Conscience (as in this Text) unto which he (as from his own experience) attributed a Deity: As indeed himself in the very next words says,† he knew not what God to call it, but a God it was (Quis Deus incertum est, habitat Deus) for his Conscience still represented a Deity unto him.

† ἀποσπάσμα ἑαυτοῦ οὗτος δὲ ἐστιν ἑκάστου ἡ λόγος Anto. lib. 5. de vitâ suâ. Cap. 6. κατὰ τὶ τὸν λόγον οὐδὲ χοῦρὰν τῶν Θεῶν οὐδὲ μικρότερος Es. Epict.

Yea,

Yea, this Light and Principle in them, they also accounted a thing equal unto God, calling it not only a Branch of the divine Nature, Antonius lib. 5. de vita sua Cap. 6. Epictetus also thus speaks. As for thy Reason O man! thou art not less, or inferiour to the Gods. Which they spake, as concerning the Nature of it; so in respect of its ability to guide and bring us unto Happiness in this respect equal to the Reason or divine Light that is in God: Tho indeed in him it was infallible, and supream; by which he govern'd and manag'd himself, and his Affairs. Thus Seneca expressly makes no other difference between Right Reason within a man and God, than between two Mariners that have like Skill to steer and govern their Vessels only the one*, viz. Reason, hath a less Ship to guide, God a larger Ship of the same fashion and make: Yet so as that Right Reason in a man is as supream in his Compass, as God in his, both had the same rules they steered by, and in that sense and intention they attend the usual Speech, that in following Reason they followed God. And so indeed I may in this respect make a Parallel, that looks as the Papists having sett up the Pope as the supream universal Judge of Controversies, tho' in pretence as Christ's Vicar to encrease his power, yet in the Apostolical interpretation of it (2 Thes. 2.) They Set him even above and against Christ, and all that is call'd God, for that which they attribute to him doth really arise to so much: So these Heathens, and the wisest of them, did set up Right Reason in a man, though in pretence as Gods Vicegerent, yet really and in effect as equal unto God in a man, and as mans supream Guide or Judge only dictating the same rule or δόγματα as Epictetus calls them which God did. Yea, to make the Parallel yet more full, they made it an universal Rule and Concern, (as Euripides calls it†) that had so full a power over all their actions, as to constitute them good, or evil. Thus they gave forth this Maxim (a) ni tibi concessit ratio, digitum exere, peccas. unless Right Reason gives Commission, even to the putting forth of a Finger, it is a sinful Action. They speak (you see) higher things hereof by far, than the Scripture doth of the New Creature, which yet it terms a participation of the Divine Nature.

Secondly, And 2. For the fruit and effect of this Principle upon their Hearts, and in their Lives; they judge themselves therein, according to that measure and esteem which we have heard, they had of the Principles of self. A good Life they termed an harmonious suitable living to the height and dictates of this Light, as that wherein the happiness of a Man lay. Now all that the Apostles attribute to a true Saint; or an Holy Man (in this respect) they attribute also to themselves in terminis.

1. They term it the Image and likeness to God ὁμοίωσιν τῷ Θεῷ so Plato; yea, and he putts it into the same division and in the same words the Apostles express the parts thereof. Plato's words are these, b A Likeness unto God consists in what is holy, and what is just or righteous, with Wisdom and Knowledge. The Apostles words are these, The Image of God which is in Knowledge created after God in Righteousness and true Holiness Eph. 4. 24. compared with Col. 3. 10. Only for distinction the Holy Ghost adds true Holiness, for theirs was not so.

ὁμοίωσις Θεῷ δικαιοῦ καὶ ὁσίου μετὰ φρονήσεως γίνεσθαι. Plato in Philebo.

2. Doth the Scripture call such a man a good man, ᵃ blessed man? c These are the ordinary Titles which they also usurp, and that with distinction from others ὁ ἀγαθὸς ὁ ὑδαιμῶν, The good, the blessed man and the like.

c τὸν ἀγαθὸν ἄνδρα τελεῖον εἶναι λόγουσι. Nec vum perifectum que non omnes virtutes habet, nec Actionem quæ non fiat secundum omnes Crysipus in Zenon

Yea 3. Doth James call a man grown up in Christianity a perfect man? And Paul use the same, I speak to those that are perfect? So do they. And as the Apostles said that all Graces go together: So they affirm of all Vertues, And that else a man is not perfect. Yea; they go higher than the Apostles did, for they assert that good men are impeccable, and cannot fall or transgress, and that a wicked man was one that had no Vertue in him, and they distinguish also of Proficients and of perfect men. Do the Apostles say that that a godly man hath Dominion and Fellowship with God, (Truly our Fellowship is with the Father and the Son) And Abraham was called the Friend of God. They will needs say the same of their blessed man, Unto whose Estate (says Seneca) when thou hast attained, thou beginnest to be a Companion with God himself. Another describes his wise man to be one who doth In mortali Corpore agitare Societatem Jovis, in a mortal Body pursue Fellowship with God. Yea, and herein they are bold to vye with God himself. Cum Dijs (says Seneca) ex pari vivit. He lives as blessed a Life as God; and differs from him (say they) but in duration, Passions and Mortality; but I will not trouble you, farther with their Notions. I shall only add, unto all these, one Scripture instance of an Heathen, who tho' in these first times of the World we find more modest, yet standing upon his Integrity and Righteousness before God himself, he says (Gen. 20. 4, 5.) Wilt thou also slay a righteous Nation? Said he not unto me, she was my Sister? And she, even her self said, He is my Brother, In the integrity of my Heart, and innocency of my Hands, have I done this. This Man was an Heathen, as also his People whom he was King over. The speech of Abraham, (v 11.) declares it upon the general observation of their manners. What didst thou see in us (says Abimelech) I said, (saies Abraham) Surely the fear of God is not in this place; that is, God is not Worshiped by or amongst this People, or there is no Religion amongst them. Parallel to which is that Speech of Davids, (Psal. 36. 1.) The transgression of the Wicked, saies within my heart, There is no fear of God before his Eyes. It is so apparent and speaks so loud; yet this Abimeleck, in the case of Sarah, having dealt therein according to his knowledge, and the principles of his Conscience commonly received amongst them in that Nation; says that for Conscience sake he would not have taken her, if he had known her to have been Abrahams Wife: In the Integrity (says he) of my heart, and Innocency of my hands, have I done this, v. 5. And this, he speaks not to Abraham, (and so as what he could pretend to before men) but to God, of whom he had some knowledge, though an Heathen, and whom he doth acknowledge to be the Judge over Nations, and to judge righteous Judgement. In the words afore (v. 4.) he makes his appeal to God the only Judge of his Conscience, professing not only in Innocency of Hands, as to matter of outward Fact, but of integrity of Heart, as having been sincerely conformable therein to his Conscience. And he speaks herein the very Language of an holy man, Even of David, whom you hear (Psal. 18. 24.) thus pleading with God, According to my Righteousness, according to the cleanness of my hands in his eye-sight. Now, what he says of one action, that in all other, (if conformable to his Conscience) he would make the same plea.

2. That the Jews did so mistake the natural light of Conscience, and the powerful effects thereof, to be true Righteousness, The old and the new Testament are so abundant in known Instances, as I need not mention any. They rested in the Law and made their boast of God, says the Apostle, (Rom. 2.) And the resting in the Law was by those that were the best of them, by reason of their Conformity unto it (These have I kept from my Youth, said that young man in Mat. 19.) for which, as they thought themselves righteous (as Christ speaks) so they judged it ordained unto Life and Justification, as Paul says, (Rom. 7.) And thus they went about to establish their own Righteousness, (Rom. 10. 4.) And what is all this, but to take the effects of Conscience for true Holiness, yea for Justification? So (as was said) this as the Principle was the suscipient of the Law, and the cause of all that obedience in them.

3. Christians also are obnoxious to the same mistake: What Pelagius did boldly and plainly in his Doctrine utter, that in application do the most of Christian Professors secretly rest upon for their own Salvation; Even what goodness is found to be in Nature. We have all Fibra Pelagianæ in us, We are naturally all Pelagians, and the great deceit of mens Hearts is, that what opinions they doctrinally nally Condemn in their speculative Judgments, those they practically approve in their Secret Transactions with God for their Salvation. We generally declaim against Pelagianism, as extolling Nature for Grace, and yet as generally we take the Fruits and Effects of it in our Selves for Grace: And I may say, as the Apostle doth, Blessed is the Man that blesseth not himself, in what he Condemns. Chap. 1

Now Pelagius in his Doctrine professed Conscience, and the Light thereof, to be Grace and Holiness. He hath a manifest saying to this purpose, There is in our Minds a Certain natural Holiness, which reciding in the Supream part and Tower of the Mind, doth give forth and exerciseth the Judgment of what is Good and Evil, which incourageth to and cherisheth Honest Acts in us, and Condems what are Evil and Wicked. Now what is this but that which we call Conscience? And to this purpose he would draw the very words (of Rom. 2. 14, 15.) to be intended of Abel, Noah, and all Just ones before the Flood, and before the Law was given, that by Nature they did what was acceptable to God. Et Justas illas Imagines, (says he) quis nisi injustus prohibet, a Regno Dei? Est in animis nostris naturalis quædam Sanctitas, quæ velut in arce animi residens, exercet Mali Boniq; Judicium, honestis actibus fovet & sinistra opera condemnat.

Secondly, The Reasons of this Aptness to mistake are these,

1. In General: It is Conscience it self that is the Judge; yea, in a Mans own Heart; The Highest and Most Supream, and there is no Higher Principle to control it: Yea, and no more of the Word prevails with a Man then this takes in, and the proper Office of it is to Judge what makes a Man acceptable to God, and what not. And next unto God (who is greater then our Hearts) all Appeals are made to this Court; and therefore no Man doth imagine, but that Conscience doth direct him Right; and that if the Dictates thereof were followed, and Obeyed, he should be a Just and an Upright Man. Conscience being the Supream Judge, hath this Opinion of its own Judgment, That if it were followed it would save a Man; and the rest of the Faculties have that good Opinion of it also, for else it would never be acknowledged as Supream. And there is no Man that doth, or will think himself so far off from Grace, as not to think he hath right Opinions about it. If therefore Conscience finds it's Judgment, hath any Sway, or stroke in a Man to over power the Heart, or the Actions, it presently applauds, both this its own Power for Grace, and also thinks well of the Man, so far as he is Conformable to it's Dictates: And Applauds him with a Well done Good and Faithful Servant: And this, because it doth think well of it self; even as we are apt to think the better of our Selves, when we see our selves Respected, and entertain good Opinions of those that do Respect us.

2. Secondly, The main Reason is, because all Men are under the Covenant of Works, or the Covenant of Grace, (Rom. 6. 14. Ye are not under the Law, but under Grace; Compare it with (Rom. 7. 1.) and the one hath Ever set up it's Righteousness against the other; and now that Man is fall'n, yet Corrupt Nature is so Conceited of it self, that it attempts to Vye, and out-Vye that Righteousness, that is of the Spring of Grace in us. The Genius in that Covenant is to trust in it self for Righteousness. It's strange to see how contrary to the way of Salvation, by Christ, the way of Nature is. Christs way is to cause all Men to distrust themselves, and be nothing in themselves, that he that Glories, might Glory in the Lord: But the greatest maxim of Nature among those of the Heathen, that professed to Live most Righteously, was Expressly, Sibi fidere, To trust in a Mans Self, and to what in and by Nature he was able to do. And Paul hath insinuated the Reason of it also in those Words (Rom. 10.) They went about to Establish their own Righteousness; and they did so, because it was their own.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, The Particular Grounds of the Miſtake are,

1. Men find Conſcience to be an inward Principle, as Grace is, Inherent, Seated and Rooted in themſelves, as they hear Grace is; and therefore if it hath any Power in a Man, they eaſily take it for Grace: Men would think otherwiſe indeed, if that which carried them on againſt Evil, and unto Good, were only and meerly outward, as Socrates his Genius, &c. Or if outward Weights and Enforcements of Worldly Reſpects hung on, only moved the Wheels; if only vain Glory, or fear of Superiours, or Conformity to others, acted them: But Men find ſomething here within them, over and beſides all theſe, which is Real and Serious for Good, and againſt Evil, and that ſuch a ſpring ſhould move, and have any ſtroke in them, as a part of themſelves, this they eaſily think to be Grace. Now ſuch a Principle is Conſcience, and the Light of it in Men, for the Effect of the Law, is Written in the Heart, as the Text ſays, and they are a Law to themſelves. It is not other Reſpects only that moved them, but a Law in themſelves, and to themſelves. Yea, and oftentimes, when a ſtream of outward Reſpects would carry them againſt what is Good, and unto what is Evil, yet this inward Principle, Conſcience, moves them contrary, to ſwim againſt that Stream: As in Socrates, and Brutus, and Fabritius, whom no Threats, or Intreats could divert; Of whom it was ſaid, That ſooner might the Sun be turned out of it's Courſe, than Fabritius be ſwayed by reſpects. And we have an Inſtance too in Balaam, whom an Houſe full of Gold and Silver (though himſelf was Covetous) could not perſwade, God having an hold upon his Conſcience within.

2. Again 2dly, That which helps forward this Good Opinion, is, That Men find it a Conſtant and Incorrupt Principle, and (as the School Men ſay) that it keeps it ſelf a Virgin. It dwells in them, as Grace is ſaid to be a Seed that remains: And it is incorrupt in this Reſpect, that it will not let Sin paſs Uncontroled, nor be Charmed to hold it's Tongue; but will talk and ſpeak againſt it, whilſt it hath a Tongue; which tho' it be Impriſoned, will Preach in Priſon. It keeping it ſelf thus incorrupt, Men are apt to think it is Grace in them.

3. The Fruits and Effects are ſo like to thoſe of True Grace, that no Wonder if Men miſtake them. The Phraſe uſed to expreſs both, are ſo nigh a kin, as a Man muſt Criticize to obſerve the difference. Grace is the Law Written in the Heart, the Light of Conſcience is the Effect of the Law Written there: The ſame outward Duties which Grace directs to, Conſcience enlightned doth urge unto, and ſpeaks againſt the ſame Sins. And at once to give you a clear Demonſtration both that the Effects are much alike, and thence Men are apt to miſtake: How comes it to paſs, that the 7th Chapter of the Romans, from the 14th Verſe, to the End, ſhould be ſo variouſly Interpreted, by Men of great Underſtandings, that one and the ſame Draught and Repreſentation, which Paul there makes of that Great Fight, between Grace and Corruption, The Law of the Members, and the Law of the Mind, ſhould be drawn by Arminius and others, as a Repreſentation of the Effects, and Conflicts of Natural Conſcience enlightned, and that he ſhould carry on every Phraſe and Particle therein, in all the Particulars, with ſo much ſeeming Appearpearance? This Argues the Effects to be alike. Yea, which is yet ſtranger, Auguſtine himſelf, who knew the Difference of the Effects of Grace, and Natural Conſcience; yea, and in his Confeſſions, Relates the Experiments of that Difference in himſelf, to have been the Firſt Evidence of Regeneration, or of that New Work of Grace upon him, in Comparing the then frame of his Heart, when New Converted, with his former, in his Unregenerate Condition: After this Work he Interpreted that Chapter of the Effects of the Natural Conſcience, tho' after he Retracts it. We alſo hear

Car-

Carnal People that apparently have no Grace, yet alledge out of that Chapter, Excuses for their grossest Sinnings, That they do what they would not; and it is not I, but Sin. That thus, one and the same Picture should seem two Several Pictures of Two Several Men, Argues there is a near Resemblance. That the Complexion and Lineaments of Natural Conscience should seem to one to be pourtrayed in this Chapter, and yet the Resemblance of Grace appears in it, to another, that hath Experience of what is Grace, Argues a great likeness, as indeed there is. But I will Discourse of this more Particularly. Chap. 2

1. The Grounds why Heathens were deceiv'd in their high esteem of Conscience, were these. They thought Reason, and Conscience in them, to be the same, that is in God himself. Orta est Simul cum mente divina; & Princeps Lex, est Ratio recta Summi Jovis, says Tully. And Hierocles also says, that it is the same thing to Obey Right Reason, and God; such a Mind Enlightned differs not from the Mind of God, but being intent on that Divinity, and Brightness, by which it is Enlightned, it comes to do those things which it doth, and the Heathens knowing no higher Illumination, and therefore thinking that it was thus Adequate and Correspondent unto the Light that is in God, whom whilst they glimeringly knew, they Judged altogether such an one as themselves, and Glorified him not as God in their Knowledge of him: They therefore knowing no higher, Judged nothing could be higher. And so look what pleased Reason in them, they judged it must fully please God also, of whom it was the Participiation. And altho' they could not but Acknowledge God as the Supream Judge (for Conscience still urged them with his Authority) yet they did in their Doctrines, do what they could to perswade themselves and others, that this Right Reason, or Law in their Consciences, was the Supream visible Judge, to which a Man himself only was to give an Account, and receive his Happiness, or Woe, from it, according as he lived after it's Dictates.

2. The Jews receiving the Law immediately from God himself, as a perfect Copy of his Mind, saw not the end of it, 2 Cor. 3. and Considered not that the end and intent of Gods giving it, was to discover to them now faln, their Weakness, and Contrariety to it, to drive them to Christ; but they thought that God prescribed the Law to them as the way to Life, by which they might Live in doing of it as they were able: And so their Consciences taking it from God, set them a doing it in the Letter of it, and this they judged must save them, because the Primitive intent of the Law to Man at first, was ordained to Life; this Paul speaks as his Thoughts, in the name of the rest Rom. 7. 9. But that which deceived them was, that Man was not as at first, tho' the Law in it self, was what it was at first.

3. We Christians that know the Gospel, yet remaining Unregenerate, do still verge in our Spirits to the way of the Covenants of Works, for 'tis Nature in us, and so we set up Conscience, and close with the Dictates of it for Religion rather then the way of Faith, and Rules of Believing. And further hearing, Religion expressed to us by such Phrases as these, of a Mans being a Conscionable Man, and the Integrity of a Mans Actions being expressed by doing things for Conscience sake (Rom. 15. 5.) and having all Religion also to be reduced to those Two, and so expressed to us, viz. Faith and a good Conscience (1 Tim. 1. 19. Faith being the Principle of all things to be Believed; Conscience of things that are to be done. Fides principum Credendorum & Conscientia Agendorum) therefore Faith to be a Common Assent to what they are Trained up in, and is delivered in the word; so look what Effects Conscience hath upon their Hearts, either for Good, or against Evil, they think must needs be what the New Testament means by the New Creature: Not Dreaming that there is a Defiled Conscience, which sets Men a work till Faith and Regeneration comes with Power, and Purifies the Heart.

CHAP. IV.

A Diſcovery of the Defects wherein Natural Conſcience falls ſhort of True Grace.

THE third and main Head is to make diſcovery of this deficiency, as alſo of the grounds of thoſe miſtakes fore-ſpecified.

1. I ſhall make inquiſition or ſearch into the Principle of Conſcience it ſelf, and into the Light with which the Conſciences of natural men are endowed: And I ſhall enquire alſo into the Nature, Seat, Condition, and Goodneſs of that Light, and this in many Aſſertions introductory unto what ſhall follow. For to be ſure the goodneſs of the effects of Conſcience cannot riſe higher than that of the Cauſe.

2. I ſhall conſider the grounds of thoſe ſeveral miſtakes forementioned, by which men unregenerate are induced to think the light of natural Conſcience to be Holineſs.

3. I ſhall particularly examine all thoſe effects of natural Conſcience which have been enumerated, and the deficiency of them from that holineſs which is in a man regenerate.

1. As to the enquiry concerning the principle of Conſcience it ſelf: Suppoſe that you had ſome Perſon that were counterfeit, that pretended to ſome great Inheritance, under examination, you would ſtrictly enquire into his Birth, Original, place of abode, and reſidence, and the like: Let us take the ſame Courſe here.

1. For its Original, I acknowledge that the light thereof is from God upon a new account, but this will make nothing for the Juſtification of the grand miſtake that therefore it is Holineſs. There are thoſe who would have thoſe ſparks of moral Light in Conſcience, as alſo of moral Vertues and inclinations in the Will and Affections found in corrupt Nature to be Relicks of the former Image of God: So that by the Stumps of Stubble remaining on the Ground you might know what Corn once grew upon that Soil, viz. the Heart of man, now laid waſte and deſolate. And indeed if the Caſe was thus, this Controverſy were at an end, for then theſe remaining ſparks of Conſcience muſt be of the ſame kind with that primitive Holineſs, as being the Stumps thereof, and ſo every man by Nature would be in part regenerate, which is the higheſt perfection here. But that which I would aſſert, is, That take theſe Seeds of light, &c. abſtracted from the natural Faculties, and they are new Plants rather in the Heart of man, tho' of another kind (as Herbs that are wild in Wilderneſſes are from thoſe in Gardens) which God thro' Chriſts general Mediation for all Mankind, hath planted there de novo, out of pity to the totally ruined Condition of man's Nature; out of which by the Curſe, all Stems were utterly rooted out and ſtubbed up: The Nature of man being left in the rigour and utmoſt extent of the Curſe, nothing but Fleſh, or as an abraſa Tabula, devoid of all good, (Rom 7. 18.) inſomuch as it would not have had the ſhadow or appearance of what is good: As Chriſts Curſe upon the Temple was, That not ſo much as a Stone ſhould be left upon a Stone. Inſomuch as in the execution of that Curſe, after that the Romans in Titus's time had razed and thrown down the upper parts and Walls thereof, even unto the ground, God in Julian's time gave the Earth a Vomit by an Earthquake, and it caſt up the very Foundations, that not a Stone was left upon a Stone. So it befel man's Nature upon upon the Fall, in respect of all moral good. And so tho' these sparks of light and κοιναὶ ἐννοίαι common Notions of God and Goodness are indeed the imperfect Shadow of that former Image created in true Holiness (as by distinction from these Paul termeth that original primitive purity) yet they are no way the Relicks or Remainders of it, but indeed are new Donatives over and above that Birth-right of nothing but Sin, and natural Faculties, the necessary Subject thereof, which Adam, and the Curse for his sin, left unto us. Chap. 4

For 1. Christ himself hath designed and set out the Pittance of that Birth-right Portion to be this, That which is born of the Flesh is Flesh. (John 3.) That is, there is not that thing which is born or derived to us by that Birth, and the dues of it, but flesh; and of that flesh Paul sayes again and again, That 'tis enmity to God, (Rom. 8.) And that no good thing dwells in it, (Rom. 7.)

Neither 2. Had the curse for Adams Sin any Eye to pity, or Commission to spare some good, whilst it stretcht out its Sword to cut off all. It alike struck at root as well as branch, and its devouring Jawes left no broken fragments. The Threatning was, That that day thou sinnest thou diest. Whatever good then is found, is from the mitigation of this Curse on another account, viz. of Riches of Mercy, though but common Mercy, such as the fourth verse of this (Rom. 2.) speaks of.

And truely, 3. The great inequality of the distribution of these moral lights or goodness which is found either in Conscience or any other Faculty doth evidence this. Socrates had more thereof than Epicurus; whereas the Curse of it self would work in all a like deprivation of moral light: And this to me is unanswerable, that so far as any one man's Conscience doth by Nature prove more dim in light than others, even to the lowest degree of glimmerings, such as is found in the meerest natural Fool that ever was yet in the World, unto that degree at least, (as it must be acknowledged) would the Curse of it self work in all men to leave them to the same proportion. For even that small proportion (in comparison of what others have) is from the same Curse; which of it self in Justice was to overflow to all, and as a sweeping rain would carry all away. And truly whilst we give the name of meer Naturals unto them, who have the lowest degree of light, and are but a nice distinction betweeen an elevated Bruit, and a rational Creature, we do thereby tacitly acknowledge that this least Pittance is the whole Dowry which meer Nature, as accursed and corrupt, would have left to any man: So as utter Darkness, Blindness in things, is Natures Legacy. Man is born (says Elihu in Job) as a wild Ass-Colt Job. 11. 12. And thus, tho' Conscience be a natural Faculty, and there is the Altar, yet the Fire and the light of it, and what is morally good, even to every spark thereof, is not raked up in the Ashes of our Nature, as remainders of that holy light which was there before; but as sparks struck into Conscience as the Tinder fully capable and recipient of them. In (Rom. 2.) you have one phrase makes for this, and another that makes against it, let us examine the force of either; Paul says it is the effect of the Law written in their hearts. Writing is opus Artificis, and notes out Characters imprinted by an exterior hand. Our Consciences are the Paper, that is all we bring, which the very renewal, or revival by the Law Typified. God at first form'd both by one immediate hand, in the State of Innocency; but after man had broken these Tables, man findes the Stone, but God the Letters, and Writing still. But Then how is it said (v. 14.) That by Nature they do the things of the Law? this on the other hand, seems to make against it: But the Answer is easie, Nature is opposed to God's outward Revelation of the Law, as the Context shews. The Gentiles that have not the Law, that is, the outward knowledge of it by Revelation, have yet a light derived with their Births and Nature (for the Sparks of this must be acknowledged to be therewith derived) according to the purport of that expression He enlightneth every man that is born into the World, and so it ac-panies our Birth : And more or less is made a Dowry common to the Nature of man, and made innate in man, yet it is still written there by an external hand. And all those other Scriptures convince me of this, in that when speaking of this Truth (whereof Conscience is the Seat) concerning God and Righteousness, which (Rom. 1. 18.) he says was with-held in Unrighteousness by the Genitles; and which (v. 18.) he calls that which may be known of God which was manifest in them; He is wary in a special manner to speak something of the sense or original of it, and how they being naturally (as we all are) so corrupt, came by it. For God (says he) hath shewed it to them; He by his secret instruction teaching them to spell those Characters of his eternal Power and Godhead written in the Creation (v. 20.) which without his teaching, and shewing them, as one doth a Child, they would never have understood. This they owed to God, and therefore this reflecting power in man that searcheth the inward Chambers of the Belly (Prov. 20. 27.) is called the Candle of the Lord: He speaks evidently of Conscience, which is that light and Faculty, which pierceth by reflections upon all Faculties, witnessing, accusing, excusing, discerning just or unjust, that is never so secretly done in any Room of the Soul. And why is it called the Candle of the Lord? But because we are all in the dark, and should have so remain'd, if God had not brought in and set up de novo that Candle within us, or at least lighted it and snuff'd it. And as a Candle is extrinsecal to the Room, at least the Light, is extrinsecal, in respect of its original, to the Candle; so here it is in this Case. And this assertion, that there is Light from God himself as the Enlightner (especially in things moral, and which concern himself) even in man fallen, is no new Opinion, even among both Jewish, Heathenish or Christian Writers : And by them it is judged to be that to the Conscience or Mind (which is the natural Faculty it self,) which an external Sun or Candle is to the eye of the Body. There have been large Collections out of all these, and references to them for the demonstration of it, made unto your hands: Now this Light, though extrinsecally from God, comes to be defiled, and to have a Tincture from the defilement of the Mind, as the Light of the Sun shining on, or thro' a Glass dyed green or red, useth to receive a Tincture suitable, for Quicquid recipitur ad modum recipientis. To which that of the Apostle accords, To Unbelievers all things are impure, because their Minds and Consciences are defiled, Tit. 1. 15.

See the Schoolmen on that Question, in their Tracts de Gratia. Also Seldinus de Jure naturali, Lib. 1, Cap. 9.

I added, in the Beginning of this Assertion, That the Light was vouchsafeed thus to all, more or less, thro' the mediation of Christ: By which I understand such a Mediation as he hath made for the upholding the whole Creation, which the Curse would else have pull'd about Adam's Ears. And truely that Scripture seems to look that ways, John 1. 9. He is that light which enlightneth every man that comes into the World. The Analysis of that Chapter might give light to this, if I could insist on it. The Apostle shews 1. What before the Fall Christ was to all Creatures (v. 3.) 2. What he was to man in Innocency. (v. 24.) 3. What is he to man fallen and become Darkness (v. 5.) And the light shineth in Darkness, and the Darkness comprehendeth it not. Which in this 9*th* verse he again enlargeth on. He is in himself that true Light, from whom all men born into the World have that Light, which accompanies their Nature. He shews what Christ was to the Jews in revealing the Law, and Gospel (v. 11.) And 5. what he is to Believers whom he regenerates (v. 12, 13.) And it is evident, that part of John's Scope is withal to distinguish this common light vouchsafed to every man in the World (v. 5. 9, 10.) from that of Faith and Regeneration, of which he speaks (v. 12, 13.) That common Light turneth not the natural darkness or Corruption of the Heart into Holiness; the Darkness comprehends it not. It changeth not the Heart into the same Image : Even as the light of Stars is such a light as serves to discover themselves, but they alter not the Air into light, as the Sun doth. And he speaks of that light specially shining into mens dark and corrupt Hearts as gives the knowledge of good or evil, and of God, because it is such a light as the darkness of man's Nature would avoid, and is some way contrary unto it, for it avoids it, receives it not, so as to have its full Effect on their Hearts, it discovering that Darkness that is found in the Chambers of the Belly. Now Natural Knowledge, in other things, Man's Darkness is not opposite unto. The drift then of what we have hitherto said hereof, is, That this Light of Conscience is not the remainder of the former Image, and so no part, or spark of the former Holiness, but a Light de novo, brought in by God and Christ, as in Common, a Mediator for all Mankind.

and

There is, or may be supposed, a Difference in the kinds, or sorts of Light, and so there is a Difference of this from what is Holy and Spiritual, altho' all be deriv'd from God as the Father of Light, as James in the Plural calls them, when he insinuates a Distinction of Gifts Perfect and Imperfect, yet it follows not that it should be Holy, no more then other Notions in the Knowledg of things meerly Natural, and Philosophical Truths are. It falls out in the Lights of the Mind, whereof God is the Father, as it doth in Bodily visible Lights, which Paul speaks of upon occasion of the Resurrection, and in setting forth the difference of the Qualities now, and after the Resurrection, 1 Cor. 15. 39. All Flesh is not the same Flesh, but there is one kind of Flesh, of Men, another Flesh of Beasts, another of Fishes, another of Birds. And v. 14. There is one Glory of the Sun, another of the Moon, and another of the Stars. Now by their Glory, he means their differing Light that is in them, and from them: So say I of these Lights vouchsafed by God, altho' they be from God, yet they differ both in their kind, and efficacy, and also according to the Tincture of the Subjects they are shed into. The light of the Natural Conscience is one kind of Light, which is as that of the Stars; the Light given the Jew from the Law, and the Light of Men that fall away (spoken of Heb. 6.) are as that of the Moon; and the Light vouchsafed the Saints in Regeneration, is as the Sun. Our Saviour Christ therefore in John gives this Note of Distinction of it from all Lights else, (tho' all be from God) in calling it the Light of Life. Joh. 8. 12. He that followeth me (saith he) shall not walk in Darkness, but shall have the Light of Life, viz. That which Converts, Saves, and only giveth Life. Which Elihu in Job speaking of (Job 33. 30.) names it a being Enlightned with the Light of the Living, which brings back a Mans Soul from the Pit. Which Distinction the Apostle John, that Wrote the Gospel, confirms (1 Joh. 2. 4, 5, 11.) when he says, (v. 4.) He that saies I know him, and keeps not his Commandments, is a Liar, and the Truth is not in him, and (v. 9.) is in Darkness even until now; that is, in his dark Condition, devoy'd of Light, and (v. 11) walks in Darkness: Now Consider that the Apostle (Rom. 1. 18.) calls that Natural Light the Heathens had, the Truth, and (v. 19.) says it was ἐν ἐυάτοις, manifest in them. And these Professors of Christianity which John speaks of, were certainly enlightned with that Light (Heb. 6.) which drew them in their Profession to say that they knew God, without which in those times Men had no encouragment, but all discouragments to profess him. How then doth he say that the Truth is not in them, and that in saying they knew God, they Lyed? This could not have been, unless there had been a Knowledge which is comparatively the only true Genuine Knowledge and Light of God indeed, and in Comparison of which, the other are but as Darkness. As the Light of the Sun is such a light, and so different from all other, that it alone bears the Title of the true Light, which only makes Day, and in Comparison of which, all other is but Darkness and Night, tho' one Night may be more Light then another, as we see when the Moon shines in its brightness: And some Star-Light-Nights are clearer then other, yet still a Man that knows the Difference may say, These all are not the true Light, not the Light which makes Day; for they overcome not the Darkness, when they Shine, as the least Beam of the Sun doth. Now Regenerate Men are call'd Day, as set in the Day light: And the State of Unregeneracy is termed Night and Darkness. Now as suppose a Man that had been kept in close Darkness all his Days, and from seeing any light, yet had heard some talk in General

Book V. of the Light of the Day, and the ſhining of Light that makes Day; and bring this Man into a Room. where a great and ſtately Lamp or Taper burns Oh this is the Light I have heard ſo much of, would he preſently ſay; and lo this is Day, and Oh how pleaſant a thing would he Affirm it, to behold this Light in Compariſon of that Darkneſs he had been Condemned too: So if we could ſuppoſe any one of the Sons of Men brought up in thoſe meræ tenebræ, meer Darkneſs which were only Natures Legacy, and on the Suddain God ſhould ſet up in the Lanthorn of his Braines the Light of the greateſt Magnitude, that Plato, or Socrates ever had, how would this Man bleſs himſelf, (as much as we heard they did) Magnifie this as the only Light, and the ſame which God himſelf hath, as they alſo did. Well, yet for Illuſtrations ſake, let us make a further ſuppoſition, and that is, that this Man were told, Oh but there is a further and higher Light yet, that gives Light to all the World, there is the Sun, which is placed in the Heavens, and not on a Candleſtick to give Light only to one Houſe, or one Room. And then let this Man be carried forth into the open Skye, and let any one ſhew him a full Moon, walking in her greateſt Brightneſs (as Job ſpeaks) Oh how would he kiſs his Hand to it, and paſſionatly cry out, Oh this is Light, this is Day indeed, and what a Miſerable Creature was I (would that poor Man ſay within himſelf) that have hitherto Lived in ſuch Darkneſs, and wanted this bleſſed Light of the World? Well, let this Man awhile enjoy his Fancy, and keep him ſtill in the open Air awake, and anon when the Day is Approaching, let him diſcover the Twinkling Stars to cloſe up their Lights and Vaniſh, and the Brightneſs to waſh off by degrees from his ſo adored Moon, which he verily took for the Sun, and her Face to grow pale and wan; and a far differing ſtronger Light to ſteal in by degrees, and he looks about him, and diſcerns not from what cauſe it ſprings, nor can at firſt imagine, till at laſt caſting his Eye to that Quarter of Heaven which is brighteſt, he diſcerns the Body of the Sun, beginning to peep up above the Horizon: Do but think with your ſelves upon the ſight hereof what this Man would ſay? This is Day indeed, this is Light indeed, the only true Light I have heard ſpoken of; and differs (though the other had the Name and Reality of Light) as much from the former as any ſorts of Creatures that are the Counterfeits of others that are genuine, can be ſuppoſed to do. This Man would acknowledge what John affixeth to Natural Men, enlightned not ſavingly, that he had been but in Darkneſs, and walkt in the Night all this while, until now; and that his Boaſts and Brags that he knew Day, and had Commerce with the Sun were miſtakes, and that the Truth of Life had neither been in him, nor in them, which hitherto he had ſeen.

Let your own Judgments, and Conſciences make the Application. For like Miſtakes there are about the Light of Life, and of Eternal Salvation. Neither is the difference of theſe ſeveral Lights, but only in and by the Effects, demonſtrable to any Man, but him that hath ſeen the true Light of the Sun ſhining on him. Other Men will walk and abide in Night and Darkneſs, and yet will ſay they have the true Light, and their Error can never be diſcovered to them but by the ariſing of the true Light. Only the Saints can ſay (as John in their Names there) with Difference from all others, We know we know him (v.3.) and the Darkneſs is paſt, and the true Light now ſhineth, (v.8.) and there can be no other.

The preſent Drift of this Diſcourſe hath been to ſhew, that a difference is and may be ſuppoſed between the light that God vouchſafes regenerate and unregenerate men in kind, as well as in degree. For if there be one glory of a Torch or Taper which is a light on Earth, another of the Stars and Moon, which is a light in and from Heaven, and yet another of the Sun, which alone deſerves the name of being a true Light, which difference, God the Father of all Lights hath ſet amongſt them: Why ſhould we not think that the ſame God can diverſifie and vary the Lights that he cauſeth to fall, and ſhine into mens Hearts, and make them of a ſeveral kind? Common Light in Heathens, is but as a Candle on Earth;

Earth; Light in Jews and Chriſtians, but as the Light of the Moon; and tho heavenly, yet not diſpelling Night. Altho' all theſe be Light, and repreſent in many things the very ſame Objects (tho' ſomewhat more imperfectly) as all theſe foremention'd Lights do, Yet ſtill the Light of Regeneration deſcribes only the name of the true Light, the Light of Life, and the other in Compariſon are Darkneſs, according to that of Solomon (Prov. 9. 10.) The Knowledge of the Holy is Underſtandeng, and that only. Chap. 3

The third Conſideration is touching the Seat of the Power and Dominion of the natural Light of Conſcience.

1. The Light of Conſcience hath a power over the reſt of the Faculties. 2. The ſeat of that power and dominion over the reſt of the Faculties is not the whole Heart, but Conſcience, which is but one Faculty. That a power and dominion it hath over a man's Heart, the forementioned effects do ſhew: And Paul's diſcourſe manifeſts it in his Epiſtle to the Romans, the 6th and 7th Chapters. In the 6th Chapter the Apoſtle treating of that Sanctification which is in a man truely regenerate, in the 14*th* verſe, expreſſeth his State thus, Ye are not under the Law, but under Grace. Wherein his ſtate is both negatively and affirmatively ſet forth.

1. Negatively, it is being not under the Law, which is on purpoſe inſerted in oppoſition to the contrary ſtate of men unregenerate, who are under the Law; and the Law hath a dominion over ſuch.

2. Affirmatively, it is ſet forth in thoſe words, ſo as Grace comes to have a Dominion over a Man's Spirit when Sanctified, and under theſe two Conditions are all men caſt.

Then in the 7th Chapter from the firſt verſe, he ſets out this Dominion that the Law hath over an unregenerate man in more expreſs terms, the Law hath dominion over a man as long as he lives. Where theſe words, as long as he lives reſpect not ſimply the term of a man's life in this World, but limitedly the time of his continuance in that eſtate wherein he was at firſt born into the World. For life there relates to the death, mentioned v. 4, and 6. Ye are become dead to the Law (ſpeaking of their regenerate Condition) that being dead wherein ye were held. Chriſts Body which was crucified for us, in vertue of it works a dying to a mans former eſtate by humiliation and mortification, whereof alſo he ſpeaks, Gal. 2. 19. I through the Law, am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God. He ſpeaks particularly with reſpect to the Law, as an husband that had power over a man before, as it is evident from v. 1, 2. You know, Brethren, how the Law hath dominion over a man as long as he lives. For the Woman which hath an husband is bound by the Law to her husband ſo long as he liveth, But if the husband be dead, ſhe is looſed from the law of her husband. And ſuitably in following this Allegory, he expreſſeth the change of their Condition in thoſe that are wrought upon, v. 4. Wherefore, Brethren, ye are become dead to the Law by the Body of Chriſt, that ye ſhould be married to another, even to him who is raiſed from the dead. So then, it is clear from this, that as Chriſt and Grace have a dominion over a Man after regeneration; the Law hath dominion over every man before Converſion. And to ſet forth this the more, the Apoſtle compares the unregenerate Heart of man unto the Wife, and the Law unto the Husband, who according to the Law of Nature hath dominion over the [illegible] whilſt both live. And that the Law was once the natural husband of mans Heart, (and God by it) you may obſerve out of (Jer. 31, 32.) God there ſpeaking of the old Covenant, and expreſſing the tenor of that Covenant of works which was the ſame with that of mans Creation, ſays, I [illegible] husband to them. And now that man is faln, God ſtill urgeth his Right, and (the Obligation which is upon a man whilſt under the meer Covenant of his Creation) and the terms of his Condition by

Book 6. by his Fall, are no way altered. Now further, it is the Law whether written by nature, or given by Revelation, which calls for this ſubjection to God, which it doth tho' men be departed, and gone a whoring from him. And urgeth all ſorts of duties Conjugal upon the Heart, and the Heart cannot deny but that it is her duty to be ſubject, for ſhe is conſcious of her primitive allegiance, which in that ſtate of nature ſhe can never ſhake off; but is an Adultreſs in every act of Diſobedience or Rebellion.

2. The Seat or proper Throne of this Dominion which the Law hath, and from whence the exerciſe of it comes, is the Conſcience of a man. The Caſe ſtands thus, The Husband and Wife are not wholly parted, altho' they live at odds, but the Husband challengeth to live under the ſame Roof with her; and ſo although the Heart would, and hath for her part caſt off God; yet God keeps poſſeſſion in one corner of the Houſe, by the light of his Law, that he cauſeth to ſhine into Conſcience, which (as I have ſhewn) is the ſuſcipient of God's Law. Sin in the Heart hath ſhut God out of all the reſt, and keeps it to its ſelf, and hath crouded him up into that narrow Corner, and grudgeth him that too; and if it could poſſibly, would throw him out of all: But God will ſo far keep and maintain his Right and Poſſeſſion as that the Heart may know and acknowledge his antient Right over it, and its ſubjection to his Law. Yea, and by means and vertue of its reſidence there, doth the Law continually provoke the heart to her dutie, and over rules her in many things, and tells her of her Adulteries and Departments from God, &c. But all that the Law ſpeaks, is contrary to the full bent, and inclination of her Heart. Her deſire is not to her Husband, for the Apoſtle (v. 5.) tells us that this Husband begets nothing but motions of Sins on her, thro' her perverſeneſs. I may otherwiſe expreſs it under the Similitude and Metaphor of a Kingdom, which the Apoſtle alſo uſeth (Rom. 5. 21. and chap. 6. 14.) All Mankind had clean ſhook off the ſweet and natural ſubjection of the Heart to God and his Law, and Sin and ſelf were become abſolute and ſupream, and had got the power, and had entred upon Gods Rights and Dominions,: And tho' in title Sin be but a Tyrant, yet in power and jurisdiction it is (now man is fallen) owned by the whole man as its natural Lord and Prince, giving forth Laws (Rom. 7. 23.) which Laws being mens own Luſts, are willingly and chearfully obeyed (Rom. 6. 12.) But ſhall Sin think to carry it thus from God, to enjoy a ſettled Dominion quietly, ſo that God ſhall have no remedy, no Law to take place? The truth is, God had before-hand made and placed over the Soul of man one Tower (for ſo Conſcience is termed by the Ancients, Arx Animæ) which is by the natural ſituation of it ſo unfortifiable by the utmoſt power of man, and lyes ſo open and expoſed immediately unto God, and Beams of Light from him, that let man revolt and become never ſo ſinful and rebellious, yet he cannot keep God, nor his Forces out of it. Man can never ſtop that paſſage, but God can bring in what Forces and what number he pleaſeth, and all the power in man can never hinder it. The Devil himſelf cannot keep God out thence, for they believe and tremble. This is the practick part of the Underſtanding, viz. Conſcience: Yea the truth is, that but for this Principle, which is natural to Men and Devils, and can never be demoliſhed by the Wickedneſs of either, God could never come to puniſh for ſin either of them in their Spirits. Yea the Devil would wholly have eſcaped; for he is not capable of bodily puniſhment in outward things. It is Conſcience, which is a tender part, and which is ſuch in man, as God hath made in wild Beaſts to tame them by, as a Snout in a Bear, and the Mouth in an Horſe. It is Conſcience that is only, or at leaſt primarily ſenſible of God's Wrath, and Hell-Fire could not take hold on the Soul but at this Corner. And ſo God created it for all Events, and for all ſtates, viz. to ſtop mens Mouths when he indulgeth; to execute vengeance upon them, when he puniſheth in Hell; and on Earth to rule and cut ſhort mens Spirits, and reſtrain them from Wickedneſs. There being being this difference between the state of Wicked Men, and Devils, that he doth not Rule the Devils by Conscience. It is not their Conscience that keeps them from any Evil, for they certainly make Conscience of nothing. He Punisheth them indeed by Conscience, and at that Channel lets in all the streams of the Lake of Fire and Brimstone into these Vessels of Wrath. Conscience, the Moderate Effects of which Men Magnifie so much, hath its fullest Dominion in Hell, and is in it's height of Power there. Chap. 5

But to return to the Similitude: God having thus afore-hand taken order to erect in Mans Soul this Out-work, this Castle upon an impregnable Rock, which can powerfully Command the Rebellious Town, and Malignant Inhabitants that dwell below it; plants his great Ordinance there, (namely the awful Knowledge of himself, of the works of the Law, and of his Wrath) Hangs out his Flags of Summons, sends out Proclamations with Sound of Trumpet, from this Mount Sinai, (as in giving the Law he did) often Thunders down with Fears, and Horrors, and Dreadful Punishments, in, and with which the Law of God is Revealed from Heaven against all Ungodliness, and Unrighteousness of Men, that withold the Truth in Unrighteousness (as of the very Gentiles the Apostle Prefaceth, Rom. 1. 18.) yet all this while the City, and the Towns about, and adjacent parts of the Heart of Man, are perfect Malignants, stand out in Rebellion, having set up a Contrary King and Kingdom, which they obey in the Lusts thereof, and will Obey only. From this sort God now and then sends out Parties that bring them to some Contribution, that prevail to make them take many Conditions, and bring them to much outward Conformity, even to the Laws of God, yet so are still the Seat, the place of Residence to all these Foraign Forces (as these are to the Heart) is but this one Faculty, from whence God commands the rest, tho' they are not brought into a Natural Subjection. Whereas Regenerating Grace where it comes, immediately plants it self in the whole Man, takes up every Faculty, one as well as another for God, and brings every thought into Subjection, 2 Cor. 10. 5. It wins the Heart of every Faculty that had Rebelled, unto it self, and unto God, sets up a new Kingdom in the midst of the Soul, alters all the State and Form of Government, insomuch as the Laws of that Kingdom are made natural, where Grace Reigns, (Rom. 5. 21.) And the Laws of God are become the Law of a Believers Mind (Rom. 7. 23.) and and if he were to choose, he would be Governed by no other. But the Condition of an Unregenerate Man is very different, for as in a State or Kingdom, a Forign Power may have much Quarter, and many Compliances, when yet the Laws of that Kingdom are still in Force: So in an Unregenerate Man, though the Law of God may, in the Light of it, be said to be in his Mind, and prevail much there, yet it is not become the Law of his Mind, which hath still a Contrary Law, and Governmenment that stands in Force. The Reason whereof is clear, for the Power of it being but the Power of the Law, therefore it can never Sanctifie; and tho' it may come to have much power, Stroak, and Command amongst the Subjects of this Kingdom of Sin, yet it can never pull down the Power of Sin, or put Sin from its Dominion. It is an Apostolical Maxim resolutely delivered Rom. 6. 14. Sin shall not have Dominion over you, for ye are not under the Law: Therefore whilst a Man is in such an Estate, as he is still under the Law, Sin will retain it's Dominion. Indeed the Law by Conscience may much interrupt, and impede Sin in its proceedings, and over-rule a Man unto much Good, yet it must be something stronger than the Law, to alter the whole form of Government, and Frame of the Heart, and subdue it to God, and restore to him his Kingdom again, Christ alone can do this. The Law as it can never Justifie, so nor Sanctifie; altho' indeed what is Written in the Heart in our Sanctification, is the matter of the Law, as also in Christ the performance of the same Law is the matter of our Justification; yet it is not by the Power of the Law that we are Sanctified or Justified. If there had been a Law given which could have given Life, verily Righteousness had been by the Law, (Gal. 3. 21.) But the Apostle hath en-

Book VI formed us, (Rom. 8. 3.) That the Law was weak through the Fleſh, and could not free a Man from the Law of Sin and Death, but the Spirit and Power, that is in Jeſus Chriſt muſt do this, (Rom. 8. 2, 3.) For the Law of the Spirit of Life, in Chriſt Jeſus hath made us free from the Law of Sin and Death. For what the Law could not do, in that it was Weak through the Fleſh, God ſending his own Son in the likeneſs of Sinful Fleſh, and for Sin, Condemned Sin in the Fleſh.

The Fourth Conſideration, or Aſſertion, is touching the Exerciſe of this Power, which the light of Conſcience hath in a Man; Concerning which, I Aſſert.

1. That the Strength and Force that is in all the Workings of it, whether in Motives to Duty, or Reſtraint from Sin, doe, lie in the Law, and the Weapons of it's Warfare, whereby it works it's chiefeſt Effects, are all fetcht out of that Magazine. The Great Artillery thereof are charged both with Powder and Bullets of the Law: As 'tis ſaid, The ſtrength of Sin is the Law, (1 Cor. 15. 56.) viz. in Reſpect of holding us under the Guilt of it, ſo the ſtrength of Natural Conſcience is but that of the Law, as to the Motive part thereof. And the Reaſon is clear from the Apoſtles forementioned Maxim, Ye are not under the Law, but Grace; therefore Sin ſhall not have Dominion. (Rom. 6. 14.) Hence therefore in whomſoever Sin hath Dominion, there the Law is the moſt prevalent Principle; and ſo whatever hath the Preſence of goodneſs in them muſt have its riſe chiefly from thence. Every thing is in working as it is in being. Now the Condition of the Perſon is to be under the Law, and he belongs to that Dominion, and therefore the ſwaying Principle of his Actings muſt be from the Power thereof. Inſomuch as if an Unregenerate Man be Enlightned, and Duties of the Goſpel be urged upon him, as to Mourn for Sin, to Believe in Chriſt, &c. yet the Motives that prevail with that Man are but ſuch as are of the ſame kind with thoſe of the Law. As Faith turns the Commands of the Law into Goſpel, in a Regenerate Mans Heart; ſo Conſcience, in an Unregenerate Man, turns the Goſpel into Law. As Faith Writes the Law in the Heart, and urgeth the Duties of it upon Evangelical Grounds and Motives, as the Love of Chriſt, Conformity to him, Union with him, and the Free Grace of God: So in a Man Unregenerate, Goſpel Duties are turn'd into Legal, through the ſway and influence of Conſcience, and that Dominion which the Covenant of Works hath over him. And if to ſuch a Man you uſe ſuch Motives as are drawn from Chriſt's Love, God's Free Grace, &c. they are but as Wooden Cannons ſet upon the Walls for ſhew: But thoſe that do Execution, make dints and impreſſions on the Heart, are at beſt in ſuch Caſes but the Threatnings of the Law. Conſcience, at beſt, is but a Legal Preacher: I call it ſo, becauſe tho' the Law laies down the Doctrines, and ſhews what is Mans Duty, yet Conſcience is that which makes the Application, and as occaſion ſerves, makes Uſes of Direction, and Exhortation to Good, or of Comfort, if a Man doth well, or of Reproof, if he doth Evil. And let the Doctrine be what it will, yet the Motives, with which it backs its Uſes are ſtill Legal, and ſo 'tis but a Legal Preacher. And therefore (Gal. 5. 18.) To be led by the Spirit, and to be under the Law, or Conſcience, (its Miniſter) are two differing things, and two diſtinct Principles of Mens Actions, Regenerate, or Unregenerate.

2. My Second Aſſertion concerneth the Kind or Condition of this Power, and the Exerciſe of it, which is plainly this. It is a Tyrannical and Forced Government, which Natural Conſcience Exerciſeth over the Heart: Whereas on the Contrary, the Government of the Grace of Regeneration in the Soul, is (ſo far as a Man's Heart is Regenerated) ſweet and intrinſecal, congenial, and connatural to the Heart, it being endowed with Diſpoſitions ſuitable; and changed into the Image of that Light; and ſo the ſubjection of the reſt of the Faculties, is ſuch as of Subjects to their Natural Prince; but on the other caſe, it is a Subjection as to a Foraigner, or Invader. And this Difference as to that part of it, (Conscience) viz. its Government is clear from what hath been said: For if one Faculty only rules over the rest, when their Bent remains contrary to its Laws, this Government must needs be extrinsecal, as also, if it be but a legal Government in the main and fundamental Constitution of it. I shewed (out of Rom. 7. 1, 2, 3.) that the Law in the Conscience is compared to the Husband, and the Heart of man to the Wife. Indeed for his title over the Heart, it is a natural jurisdiction, for it was once by Nature: But take the Condition of the Heart of such a man, now corrupt with Sin, it is a cruel Government. They are Man and Wife indeed, but so contrary, that there is a vexatious Life between this Couple. He offers to do his duty, and makes motions to this, and unto that, but she is averse, and the motions to the contrary often become the stronger thereby, (Rom. 7. 6.) The motions of sin which were by the Law, that is, begotten on the Heart as Children by an Husband, did work in our Members to bring forth fruit unto death. Conscience in unregenerate men finds all in the Heart arm'd against it, but Grace hath created an Interest in the Heart throughout, and made a party for it self, so as it fights not alone. Conscience in the end, as a severe Governour, comes to be imprisoned (Rom. 1. 18.) in Unrighteousness: For Men are all weary of its Yoke, and rise up against it, and are glad when it is stopt, or fear'd. Chap. 4

CHAP. V.

What Goodness, and of what kind, is to be acknowledged to be in this Light from God, vouchsafed to Natural Conscience, tho' it doth fall short of true Grace.

THAT Light which is in a natural Conscience being from God, who is the Father of all Lights, it must needs have a goodness in it. For as all that ever God made at first was good (Gen. 1. 31. God saw all that he had made was good) So all that ever God shall make, must be Good (1 Tim. 4. 4.) Every Creature of God is good. The very letters of the Law written on Tables of stone were good in this sense, much more the same, tho' but literally written, on men's Consciences. Let me say it, All the actings and stirrings of Conscience of Men in Hell, as they are from God and the Spirit of Bondage, they are good with this kind of goodness.

2. It hath that further goodness which the outward letter of the Law, considered as distinct from the spiritual part thereof, may be said to have.

Four things are to be explained.

I. That there is a literal part of the Law, and a spiritual part.

II. That it is the spiritual part that constitutes the Law holy.

III. That the Light of the Law in an unregenerate man's Conscience is but literal, not spiritual, and so is but the Shadow and Picture of true knowledge of the Law, as it is spiritual.

IV. It will be necessary to explain what goodness is in the literal part severed from the Spirit, above what is common to all other Creatures.

The three first I shall intermingledly handle together, because they are in a great part the subject of that 7th Chapter of the Romans, where he treats

Book 6 of the Light and Dominion of the Law in and over a man unregenerate, and the difference of it from that which is in a regenerate man.

1. You may observe Paul putting this difference between the Law as dwelling in his Heart or Conscience, when an unregenerate Jew and Pharisee; and in himself when renewed, and become a regenerate Christian, (Rom. 7. 6.) But now we are delivered from the Law, that being dead wherein we were held, that we should serve in newness of Spirit, and not in the oldness of the Letter. He sets forth the difference of the two states, and termeth the one, serving in the oldness of the Letter, but that of Regeneracy is in the newness of the Spirit. The oldness of the Letter, is not simply the Law of Moses in it self, as delivered to them of old (as some interpret it out of Mat. 5. 23.) But it is that Knowledge and Light of the Law, and a frame of Heart accompanying it in the old man, or in a man's unregenerate estate, which is called the state of old things (2 Cor. 5. 17.) which passeth away. And the newness of the Spirit is the light of the same Law, for the substance of it, and that frame of Heart accompanying it, as it is in the new man which is created in good works.

2. You may observe, the Spirit, or spiritual part of the Law, hath a more transcendent Goodness than the bare Letter of it; if you will suppose the one severed from the other, as in an unregenerate mans Light they are actually severed. This will appear from (Rom. 7. 12.) The Law is holy, and the Commandment holy, just and good. Here you have a goodness of Holiness; The Law is holy and good, that is, good with that kind of Goodness. Now, what is it in the Law that renders it good with this goodness of Holiness? It is the Spiritualness, the Spirit of it. Therefore (v. 14.) by way of Application, this other Epithite is added, The Law is spiritual, but I am carnal, sold under sin, Thus, in his regenerate estate he discerned and discovered the difference of things. He in these words comparing that spiritual Light (which he now when a Christian had) with his own old frame of Heart, and the remainder thereof in him in part. And all the excellency, or the best goodness thereof, he now brings to the spiritual knowledge, and Light of the Law, which as a Christian he now had obtained; which therefore by way of Emphasis and difference, he thus utters, We know the Law; that is, by the Light which is spiritual. We now have found that former estate and frame of Heart to be, and to have been but Flesh. And then he says in (v. 18.) I know (still he speaks in the stile of that his new spiritual Light he now had attained of the Law) that in my Flesh dwells no good thing; whatever I have judged aforetime of what was in my Flesh, in the state of Unregeneracy. And whereas it might be said unto Paul, Yea, but was not, and is not now the natural Light of the Law in your Conscience, and the impressions you have had from the Law then, were they not good things, and are not the remainders of them such still? Oh but (says Paul) They all fell short of the goodness of Holiness that ought to be in them, viz. of that goodness which the Spirit of the Law requires, The Law is Holy, Spiritual, and Good. But no such good thing was to be found in my Flesh. And the reason of this is, because that even the letter of the Law it self, as given by God (if you would suppose it severed from that wherein the Spirit of the Law, or wherein the holiness of it consists, and is as the Soul thereof) commandeth many outward Duties, as to pray, fast; yet if the spiritual part were taken out, and concealed, which is to perform them in a spiritual manner with holy affections of love to God, joy in God, and with holy Aims, and Ends for God and his Glory, so as to sanctifie him in the Heart: In this case, even these very Commandments alone, as so considered, could not be said to be good, with a goodness of Holiness: Nay, so considered, they are but the Carcass of the Law. And as the Body without the Soul is dead, so would these Commandments or Duties, performed thus only according to the Letter, be but the Dead, Letter of the Law, for the Spirit that should inspire them with that which is their proper Life, would be still wanting. So that as we may say of the Body when Dead, that it it is good indeed with the Goodness that is common to other Creatures, but not with that Goodness which is proper to a Man, much less, that is proper to an Holy Man, (the proper and primary Subject of which is the Soul of a Man, which is now gone, and departed) so is it here. And in Analogie to this Notion, the Works or Actions of Men, when they are Conformed but to that outward part of the Law, and the Duties thereof, are termed in Scripture, but the Carkass of Duties, (1 Tim. 4.8.) Bodily Exercise profiteth nothing, (so here he Compareth the outward performance) but the inward part, the Spiritual part, in the words afore, he termeth Godliness, in Opposition or Distinction from the other Godliness, and as that which is the Soul, the Life, and Form of Holy Duties, and constitutes them such. Yea, and in the like Allusion he termeth such performances Dead Works, which Men use to perform from that old Legal Conscience; and for the taking away the Guilt of which, and withal to inspire their Consciences, with a New Principle to serve the Living God, a Man needs the Blood of Christ, (Heb. 9. 14.) The Blood of Christ shall purge your Conscience from Dead Works to serve the Living God.

You see what Account the outward part of the Law hath (severed from the Spirit of it) in this supposition made. Now it is certain de facto, that that Light which is in the Consciences of Men in their Natural Condition, tho' never so much raised, doth fall short of, or is severed from the Spirit, or Spiritual Genuine Tincture, or Shrine of the Law (by the Rule of this Proposition) and so is not indeed the true proper real Light of the Law: And so can no more be called the Law written in the Heart, then as I said, Bodily Exercise, or a Carcass, can properly be termed a Man, or a Picture the Man himself, of whom it is the Picture. This is Evident from what Paul acknowledgeth of himself, whilst he was a Legal Illuminate, or a Pharisee in that same Chapter (Rom. 7.) Is it not strange you should hear Paul say of himself that whilst he was a Pharisee he was without the Law? But so he expressly speaks (Rom. 7.9.) I was alive without the Law once. He speaks of his former Estate under the Light of the oldness of the Letter, of which he had spoken (v. 6.) What! Is Paul without the Law? Why his Skill and Knowledge therein, was his greatest Excellency, and if he were versed in any thing, he was in the Law. Yea, but saies Paul, it was not the Law, 'twas but the Carkass of it, which lay Buried in my Understanding; And when the Commandment came (says he) the Commandment, that is, that which is only and properly the Commandment, and which is the Spirit of it, when it came, Sin revived and I Died. It is a like Phrase of Speech, as when 'tis said of a Dead Carkass raised from the Dead (1 Kings 17. 22.) That the Soul of the Child came in, or that the Spirit of Life entered in, (Rev. 11. 11.) so here a New Spiritual Light of the Law came in, and enform'd that former Light his Conscience had in the oldness of the Letter, and this he calls the Commandment, and then he saw the difference to be such as here upon he saies now, and not afore, the Commandment came, and now, and not before, (saies he) I know the Law is Spiritual, but I am Carnal, and there dwells no good in my Flesh, as in the following Verses he cries out.

3. The Light of the Law in an Unregenerate Man's Conscience is but litteral, the shadow, the Carkass of the true Knowledge of the Law. This I toucht on in the Former Assertions; but further, my Text here speaks Correspondently to this. He doth not say here of the Gentiles, that the Law is Written in their Hearts, but only the τὸ ἔργον τοῦ νόμου, the work, or rather the effect of the Law; but it is not affirmed that the Law is Written there, it is but the Carkass of the Law, and Conscience; whilst according to that Light it urgeth the Duty to be done, and yet by Motives short of the Spiritual End it bringeth forth but a Dead Work, a Dead Child, something only of the Law, as the Text hath it. As it self, and the best Light that is of, is but Dead a Letter, ter of the Law, ſo the Work or Birth thereof exceeds not the Life or Kind of the Principle or Work it came forth of, which the Apoſtle, if not under this Similitude, yet in the thing it ſelf, holds forth in that forementioned (Heb. 9. 14.) He ſhall Purge your Conſciences from Dead Works, to ſerve the Living God. Where 1. He conjoins theſe Two, Conſcience, and Dead Works; Conſcience is the Cauſe or Principle, Works are the Effect; for Conſcience is the cauſe of all Actions or Works that pretend to any goodneſs in us. 2. He ſpeaks of what our Conſciences are by Natute, and in our Natural Condition, and of it ſelf, and ſo it would ever be the Producer of Dead Works, which the Living God would not accept, as not ſuited, or proportioned to him, as he is the Living God. 3. Our Conſciences therefore need the Blood of Chriſt to Purge them, as well from that Defilment that is in them, (which cauſeth them ſtill Naturally to Miſcarry, and to bring forth none but Dead Works) as well as to purge away the guilt of Sins, whereof it is the proper, and only Receptacle. 4. That the Blood of Chriſt is thus applied, that Conſcience being Purged and Renewed may be enabled for Time to come to bring forth Living Works, or Fruit to the Living God, as formerly; for ſo far as it remains Unregenerate, it brings forth none but Dead Works: Conſcience, whether good or bad, being in all ſtates one Eminent Principle of either.

Now to draw up what has been ſaid, and ſo to join what is yet to follow, to what hath gone before: As the outward Precepts of the Law it ſelf, if in Suppoſition ſevered from the Spirit of the Law, are not properly the Law, but only the Carkaſs and ſhadow of it, and ſo have not the proper Genuine goodneſs of the Law in them: So Anſwerably the Light of Natural Conſcience in Natural Men, which directs only unto this Carkaſs of Bodily Exerciſe, and wants that which is the Life and Spirit of the Law, is but the Shadow thereof: And therefore ſuch are the Works thence iſſuing, they are all but Dead Works, and Works of the Fleſh, performed in the oldneſs of the Letter.

Now to draw forth this Thread of Analogie yet further as the Scripture gives us the Clue and Line, you may find (Rom. 2. 20.) That this Light of Conſcience and Knowledge in the Law, which the higheſt in the Form of that Padagogie, or School of the Jews attains to (that were Unregenerate) was but μόρφωσις τῆς γνώσεος, a form of Knowledge, and of the Truth in the Law. I termed it even now the Picture or ſhaddow of the Law, and this Expreſſion here Anſwers for it, it being ſpoken as in oppoſition to the Truth and real ſpiritual Knowledge of the Law, as the very Letter of the Words imports μόρφωσιν τῆς ἀληθείας ἐν τῷ νόμῳ, the form or appearance of that which is the Truth, Reality, or Spirit of the Law. There are Three things to be Conſidered. 1. The Truth of the Law. 2. The knowledge of that Truth. 3. That the Light a Carnal Jew had, was but the Form, or μόρφωσις of the Knowledg of the Truth, which is in that Law. Some have underſtood this Word, Form of the Knowledge, to ſignifie no more, than that the Syſtem, or Method of Knowledge which the learned Jews had in the Law drawn into a Form, ſuch as Scholars have in other Arts and Sciences. And that which ſeemed to afford ſtrength to this Notion as the ſole ſupport of it, is, that (2 Tim. 1. 13.) The Sum or Subſtance of that Doctrine Paul had delivered to Timothy, as a Teacher of others, is call'd a Form of wholeſome words. And Paul here ſpeaks of thoſe that were Teachers of the Jews, that Boaſted in that Knowledge. But let it be conſidered,

1. That the Word here is not the ſame with that uſed there. It is μόρφωσις here; it is ὑποτύπωσις there, which latter is an Artificial Draught, or Sampler, either ſerving for Doctrine or Practice, whereby to Teach others, or a Man's ſelf to work by. It is not Drawn from Painters Pictures only, but from Patterns or Examples, and things lively Acted. And ſo Interpreters make it to be the Subject of Vehement Exhortation in Paul to Timothy to be both a real Pattern in Life, as well as a Teacher in Doctrine, according as he had preſented an Example or Platform of both unto him.

But

But 2. Moreover, then (Rom. 2.) the word is μόρφωσις, the Vizor, the Maſk, the Appearance, the outward Form, of what is the truth, reality or ſubſtance; and ſo holds affinity with that Phraſe 2 Tim. 3. 5.) Having a Form of Godlineſs, ('tis the ſame word) denying the power thereof, and ſo it is oppoſed to the reality, power, or ſubſtance of Godlineſs, whereof this is the ſhadow, the Appearance. Chap. 3

3. Now parallel theſe two places, and you will find that as the words, ſo the ſcope is the ſame. His ſcope here is to unmask the beſt of the unregenerate Jews, in reſpect of what they moſt prided themſelves in, viz. the Knowledge and Light their Conſciences had of the Law: And he accordingly ſetts himſelf to ſpeak by way of diminution or derogation, that the beſt of their Knowledge, tho' ſuch as had the ſyſtem of the whole Law in it, was but the ſhadow, the outward Form, in reſpect of what was true Knowledge, and the real truth of the Law, the ſpiritualneſs and holineſs that was in it: Even as in Timothy he terms the outward profeſſion of Godlineſs in the lives of Hypocrites, or the impreſſions of it on their Wills, but a form of Godlineſs ſevered from, and in oppoſition to the powers thereof. Truth and Form are oppoſed in the one, Power and Form in the other. Now if the Light and Knowledge in the Underſtandings and Conſciences of the beſt of the Jews, was but in this ſenſe a Form of Knowledge, and the meer outward Picture or Shadow of the Truth in the Law, and ſo utterly differing from the Spirituality of that Law; then the dim Light in the Gentiles (whom in the 13*th* and 14*th* verſes he ſpake of) is ſo much more. And then this is the reſult of all, That the Light both of the one and other, and ſo of all men unregenerate, doth fall ſhort of that real Goodneſs or Holineſs that is in the Law, becauſe it is but the ſhadow of the truth of it.

I proceed now to the fourth Propoſition or Query, namely, What further Goodneſs this Light of the Law and Word hath in natural men, more than is common to other Creatures.

1. It would ſeem to have more, becauſe it is the Picture of the Law, which in every part thereof hath a tranſcendent Goodneſs above what is in other Creatures.

2. So as give the Goodeſs it hath what title or term you pleaſe, eſſentially ſhort of Holineſs, and that Goodneſs that is in the Law, as it is ſpiritual and good, there will be found a moral goodneſs in it, which according to the rate or exchange of Philoſophy is above that, which is meerly natural, or the common goodneſs of other Creatures. Such we grant it to be; but add withal, That ſtill men do but afford thereby an evidence, to condemn themſelves the more deeply for having abuſed it, and for having been unholy under it.

3. It is no diſſonancy to Truth, to ſay that there is, if not a middle kind of Goodneſs, yet an Excellency above that which is natural or common to all Creatures, and this other of Holineſs. As for example, there is an Image of God in man, in the ſubſtance and natural Faculties of the Soul, that it is a Spirit, and hath his Underſtanding, Will, and Sovereignty over the Creatures. There is a Likeneſs to God, which is not found in other Creatures; which (as may be inferr'd from Gen. 9. 6.) continues in a man now fallen, and for which God there puts that valuation upon the life of a man above that of a Beaſt, or any other Creature, and in compariſon of which, the goodneſs that is in man's Nature ſubſtantially (tho' now fallen) hath the peculiar honour to be called the Image of God; whereas other Creatures are but Veſtigia, the Foot-Prints, and no way the Image. There is a tranſcendent Goodneſs, which yet ſtill is ſhort and void of the Image of God, which conſiſts

Book 6. ſiſts in true Holineſs which man hath utterly loſt, tho' he was at firſt created in it, Col. 3. 3. compared with Eph. 4. 24. Now ſo it is with theſe impreſſes of the Law on Conſcience.

Yea 4. I ſhall acknowledge further, That theſe Beams of Light are a more excellent Image of God than that natural or ſubſtantial Image ſpoken of, and that becauſe they are the Shadows, and Impreſſes of his Law and divine Will, and ſo are more worth than all the Subſtance or Faculties of man's Soul conſidered apart from them: Yet ſtill I may ſay comparatively of them, as Paul ſpeaks of the old literal Covenant. (Heb. 10. 1.) They are but the ſhadow, and not the very Image of the reality of the things of the Law.

And the light of that Similitude which was ſtruck out of Scripture, will help to clear this farther goodneſs that is in it, above that which is natural; and yet relieve no man in his thoughts that it is Holineſs, or any degree of it. You have heard that it is the Form, or outward Picture of the truth of the Law. Now as in a Picture there may be conſidered a double truth and goodneſs, the one natural, in the Colours laid, which are the materials of it, eſpecially when they are true and good Colours of their kind; the other truth in the Picture is artificial, as it is a true Picture of that which it repreſents, which is by ſo much the more eſteemed true, and good, by how much it is more like unto him, for whom it is the Picture: So this form of Knowledge, and of the truth in the Law, hath a natural Goodneſs in it, which is in all Creatures; It hath alſo a further Goodneſs, it reſembles the Law, and ſhadows forth the things thereof, which yet is ſhort, far ſhort of that Truth and Goodneſs of Holineſs, or of the Spirit that is in the Law it ſelf; or of that pure Light thereof which is in the Conſcience of a Man Regenerate. And it ordinarily falls out, That as Pictures repreſent but the outwards, ſo this ſhadow of the Law in natural Conſcience, repreſents only the outwards of the Law, the things to be done, the Letter of the Law, (as the Apoſtle Rom. 2. 27. ſpeaks) but there is a Life, a Spirit, a Soul in the Law written in the Heart of a regenerate man, which this reacheth not, till God ſhall breathe it in, as he did a Soul into Adam's Body, which was formed firſt. The holy Word and Law conſiſts of Letter and Spirit (as was ſaid) which Letter ſevered from the Spirit is not holy with that Holineſs which is proper to the Law, for Quicquid dicitur de toto, non dicitur de qualibet parte, What is ſaid of the whole Law, take the ſpiritual part and literal part together, is not ſaid of that one part the Letter only. Or ſuppoſe (as you will object) that in ſome Men Light of Conſcience imitates to repreſent the inwards, and ſo inſtruct, and direct to the right end: Yet ſtill as the inwards of a Man have in Anatomy their Pictures cut and drawn, as well as the outwards of a Man; ſo there is a literal Knowledge even of the real ſpiritual Knowledge, which is ſeen in the Effects, that it ſanctifies not the Heart, nor the Conſcience in which it is. Some mens Knowledge is more to the life (the Holy Ghoſt hath a curious Penſil) and yet but μόρφωσιν τῆς γνώσεως, the form of Knowledge ſtill, and wanting the Light of Life, as Chriſt calls it, John 8. 12. Theſe goodneſſes I for my part ſhall ever acknowledge to be in the Light of Conſcience, and moral Vertues, and I have the more amply inſiſted on it, that Proteſtant Doctrine may not be accounted ſo abſurd, as to affirm that all in men unregenerate is eſteemed by them ſo wholly ſinful, as even the Light of Conſcience, moral Vertues and ſpiritual Gifts are in themſelves ſinfully corrupt, but only in the ſubject they do become ſuch, and in reſpect of the Hearts management of them.

CHAP.

CHAP. VI.

What is neceſſary to make Conſcience a Good and Holy Conſcience, which the Scripture deſcribes to be only in Perſons Regenerate.

THE Inquiry next will be what goodneſs it is in the Light of Conſcience, that riſeth up to the goodneſs of Holineſs; or which is all one, When it is that a Man's Conſcience in the Ballance and proper Language of the Scripture is termed, a good Conſcience. To make way for the Reſolution of this, and clear my way for it, I muſt premiſe Two things.

1. That a Regenerate Man is ſaid to have a good Conſcience in Two Reſpects. 1. In reſpect of this Juſtification of his Perſon, and ſprinkling the Blood of Chriſt on his Conſcience to clear him from the Guilt of his Sins: And a Man is ſaid oppoſitely to have an Evil Conſcience (thus, Heb. 10. 22. The ſprinkling from an Evil Conſcience is Termed) when his Sins are not Pardoned, but himſelf remains in an Unjuſtified Eſtate with the Guilt of all his Sins abiding on him, and in his Conſcience, the Regiſter of all. Look as a Bill is call'd a foul Bill when it contains many heavy Articles of ſad Crimes, and Accuſations; ſo is Conſcience named too. It is alſo call'd a Good or Evil Conſcience, as the ſtate of the Man is good or bad: For it is the Repreſenter of that State unto him, even as the Urine is ſaid to be good, when it ſhews an Healthy and good ſtate and habit of the Body, or to be a bad Water, when it Repreſents a bad Κρᾶσις, or Diſtemper: For Conſcience is the Sink of all Sins, as the Urine is the Drein of all humours. Now this kind of Goodneſs, or Evilneſs of Conſcience belongs not unto this Subject, this is but a Relative Goodneſs, or Badneſs of it.

But 2*dly*. The Goodneſs we ſeek after is that of Holineſs, or in Reſpect of Sanctification. It is this Inherent Goodneſs of it, I ſeek to define.

I premiſe Two things.

1. You know that God himſelf alone is the Fountain of Goodneſs, and the Meaſure and Standard of it.

2. In Diſcourſing of the Inherent Goodneſs of the Conſcience, I am not to ſhew at large wherein the Holineſs of all Light that is in a Believers Heart doth conſiſt, but I ſhall Punctually to my Subject, confine my ſelf to this Conſideration, in what the Holineſs of the Light of the Law in a Regenerate Man's Conſcience, and as 'tis properly ſeated in that Faculty, doth Conſiſt.

You know God himſelf alone is the Fountain of Goodneſs, and the Meaſure and Standard of it, (1 Kings 14. 13.) It is ſpoken of a Child of Jeroboam to expreſs the Truth of that Grace that was in him, that in him only was found ſome good thing towards the Lord God of Iſrael. That alone is goodneſs which reſpecteth, and is pointed unto, Him who is only Good, (Mat. 19. 17.) And ſo the Goodneſs in each Faculty conſiſts in what ſets up God in it according to it's kind. Now then by the help of this General Rule, let us proceed to the Diſcovery of this Goodneſs in Conſcience.

1. That Light in Conſcience which ſets up the Knowledge of God, as God, is the Light of Life. This is certain, and it's common to the Light in the Con-

Book 6 ſcience of all Men, good or bad, that it hath a Knowledge of, and an Eying God, and of a Divinity, for from thence ariſeth the Power, the Obliging, or Terrifying Power that Conſcience hath in any Man. The Gentiles ſo far as they had any Conſcience, ſo far did a Glimering of God riſe up in their Hearts. There is an holding the Truth in Unrighteouſneſs which is ſpoken of (Rom. 1. 18.) whereby is ſignified their Sinning againſt Light; and the next verſe tells us that the Truth ſo Sinned againſt, was the τὸ γνωστὸν τοῦ θεοῦ, ſomething of God known, or manifeſt in them: And yet it is ſaid of all theſe Gentiles, that they were without God in the World. (Eph. 2.) Even as of Paul you heard it ſaid, that he was without the Law. Wherein then did this Light of theirs fall ſhort? The Apoſtle hath let fall that Reduplication (I even now mentioned, (Rom. 1. 21.) on purpoſe to diſcover their deficiency, when they Glorified him not as God. Their knowledg reacht not unto that, but (as he ſays Rom. 3. 23.) fell ſhort of the Glory of God. He ſpeaks it on purpoſe to give a Diſtinction in the very Caſe in hand. That Knowledge they had in their Conſcienees, did not ſet God up, as God in their Knowledge, and ſo Glorified him not therein. It gave not that real Knowledge of him that was worthy of him, Anſwerable or Genuine to him, and to what he is in himſelf, and ſo Glorified him not.

Two things I urge with much Vehemency.

1. That all Unregenerate Men's Practical Light that works on them, falls ſhort of the Knowledg of God, as God. Carry it through the whole lump of them, their Light, their Vertues, their Graces, Zeal of, and for God, ſtill fall ſhort in this, that, tho' ſome of theſe may be Terminated upon God, as an object of them, yet they riſe not to Glorifie him as God. You may Love, and Reſpect God, as you do your Dead Benefactors; but if it be not as God, that is, ſuitable to, worthy of, and as ſo great a God is to be Loved with all (I ſpeak for the kind of it) it's not that which he Regards; and thus it is alſo in the Knowledge of God: Yea the cauſe of the Defect why they fall ſhort in Sanctifying God in their Wills, and Affections, is becauſe they fall ſhort, Proportionably in their Knowledge of Him, which therefore directs them not to that Spiritualneſs of Love, Joy, Fear of God, that is ſuitable to his Nature, for all theſe are Conformed to the Apprehenſions we have of Him. The Fundamental Defect, lies here, all Men have low Thoughts of God, not only for the Degree (ſo no Creature can know Him as He is) but for the Kind, and this cauſeth the other Defects in Mens Obedience. There were Zealous Men for Sacrifices, and the Worſhip of the Law, (whom you Read of among the Jews, Pſal. 50. God ſpends that whole Pſalm upon them) that Profeſſed they knew him ſufficiently, and yet ſerved him but Formally, and Outwardly, and Untowardly. God Diſcovers the bottom Defect, v. 21. Thou thoughteſt I was altogether ſuch an One as thy ſelf, and ſo thou didſt imagine that thou mightſt put him off with outward Obedience and Reſpects. Men that Live under the Light and Revelation of the Word, yet have but Childiſh thoughts of God. All the Word can ſay, Repreſents Him not as in Himſel Genuinely (es they take the Light thereof in) and ſo Men come to think they can eaſily Pleaſe, and Serve him. The Apoſtle John throughout his Epiſtle, Reſolves all the Defects of looſe Profeſſion and Backſliders into this, They know him not. He is Peremptory in it, and Paul in like Manner, uſeth the ſame Reduplication, about Knowing Chriſt, which he had uſed about knowing God, (Rom. 1.) Knowing and Glorifying God as God (Eph. 4. 20, 21.) If ſo be you have Learned the Truth as it is in Jeſus: Not the Truth Literally only, but of Chriſt, as Chriſt is in himſelf, which all Unregenerate Mens Thoughts fall ſhort of. Now then bring it to the Point in hand, if Natural Conſcience, whether by Natural Light, or from Revelation ſtill falls ſhort of knowing God as God, then all the Obedience, and all the Effects of it, though very Powerful and Great (becauſe back'd, urged with, and in the Name and Authority of a Diety, threatning Wrath) yet riſing not up to this Knowledg of God as God, or of

God,

God, (Heb. 9. 14.) as the Living God, and as the Truth is in God, make not a God of him in the Heart, like himſelf in the Heavens, but muſt needs all fall ſhort of Holineſs, the Spirit of which is to exalt God as God. You may obſerve it of the Jews, that their Conſciences were greatly awakned by Reiterated Sermons of Joſhua's which were very pungent (Joſh. 23, & 24 Chapters,) And all the People, the Multitude Anſwered (Chap. 24. 16.) God forbid we ſhould be ſuch Wretches as not to ſerve the Lord, or to forſake him. (v. 18.) We will ſerve the Lord for he is our God (ſay they) but ſays Joſhua to the Unregenerate Rabble of them, (v. 24.) You ſpeak you know not what. You know not what a God yon have to do withal, and thereforefore you utter this, and ſpeak thus ſlightly of ſerving him. Ye cannot ſerve the Lord for he is an Holy God (ſays he) He is Holy, and his Service muſt be anſwerably Holy as he is, and his Holineſs is to exalt himſelf as God, but you (poor Souls) take him not in as God. Men think of him, though as of a Supream Power above them, yet of one like themſelves, their Prince, or Lord, and ſo think they may pleaſe him, and ſerve him, as they do ſuch an one. You are miſtaken, (ſays Joſhua) He is an Holy God. Men run away with their Natural Notion of him, or with what is emproved by the Letter of the Word, and ſo their Conſcience runs away with an under Obedience below what is ſuitable to his Nature and due to him as God, and Conſcience works in the ſtrength of that Light, it hath of God Himſelf, and no further. So as if it falls ſhort, all falls ſhort. Chap 5

2. The Second thing I urge is, that when God means ſavingly to Convert a Man, he doth not only, or primarily, actuate, and awaken, and Snuff the Candle of the Lord, which he hath ſet up in the Heart, nor doth he only add more Oyl to make that Light burn brighter. All the Notions of God that can be had out of the Letter of the Word, added as Oyl to that old Light, will never cauſe him to know God, as God, and in himſelf, though theſe may Wonderfully enlarge it in its kind. All the Candles or Tapers in the World, will not help you to ſee the Sun, but where God means to ſave, he ſhines in with a new Light of Faith ſuperiour to that which Conſcience had before. God himſelf riſeth a new upon the Heart with the Light of himſelf, and as the Sun riſeth with its own Light, and is ſeen only by it's own Beams; ſo in Gods Light you ſee Light. And therefore Faith is ſtill joyned (in Pauls Epiſtle to Timothy) with a good Conſcience; for it is the Light which Faith brings in, that Enlightneth Conſcience with a New knowledg of God, which is Holy and Spiritual, as that which immediately cometh from, and ſo leadeth up to himſelf. It is New and Genuine Light and Knowledg, not from God only, but of God by Faith. I ſpeak not now of Faith, as Juſtifying only, which is only Terminated on Chriſt, and Gods free Grace, as Juſtifying; but I mean Spiritual Faith, which Paul (Heb. 11.) treats of. Conſcience then receiving by the means of Faith, this true Knowledge of God, as God, (for Conſcience is not the Firſt Suſcipient of this Light, but Faith; as Paul in Heb. 11. Inſtructs us) and participating thus thereof, this Light as ſoon as it comes into Conſcience, inſtantly puts and brings that Spirit we ſpeak of with it, and adds it to that Literal Knowledge which Conſcience had of the Law in the outwards of it, and is as a Soul Breathed anew into a Body or Dead Carcaſs. It Inſtructs the Heart what kind of inward Worſhip, what Spiritual Affections and Motions ſuitable to this God, muſt fill and inſpire every outward Duty, and it is content with no other but ſuch in the Service of God, for he knows now that none elſe will pleaſe that God whom he now clearly Underſtands. It inſtructs the Heart, (without more ado) what Love to, what Zeal for God, what Mourning, what Sorrow for Sin, what Joy in, and Fear to ſuch a God is due, If he be exalted as God in the Heart, and Holy Affections be ſtirred up by Holy Ends and Motives, Living Affections for a Living God; Spiritual Affections, for God that is a Spirit, and will in Spirit be Worſhipped. He ſees now it is not all the Sacrifices in the World (as he in the 50 Pſalm thought) will pleaſe him.

Book VI But he cryes out (as the holy Convert David Psal. 51.) If Sacrifice would please thee, I would offer it, but thou requirest truth in the inward parts: Thou requirest a clean, upright, and renewed Heart, for thou art a God of Truth and Holiness, and wilt be served in truth. And this is the true meaning of that passage also, (which you have Hos. 6. 6. and which our Saviour so pointed to, for the legal Pharisees to learn) That God delights in the Knowledge of God more than Sacrifices. Why are these thus opposed, but because those Persons who have not the true Knowledge of God (which they wanted) think to put God off with Sacrifices, and legal performances; And what satisfies, their Consciences they think must needs satisfie God. But if once this genuine Knowledge of God as God enters into their Souls, it will call for the Inwards of the Soul to be offered up as a Burnt-Offering, and is not satisfied without it. This transforming of their Minds will teach them to know that good and acceptable Will of God, and to offer up themselves an holy, living, spiritual Sacrifice unto God, as the Apostle speaks, (Rom. 12. 1, 2.)

And that such a new Knowledge of God himself is the Foundation of writing the Law in the inward parts, (of which Jer. 31. 3, 33. speaks) and of which Knowledge the Light of Conscience falling short, is not able to do, is evident by that very Scripture, v. 34. They shall all know me from the last unto the greatest. And so you have both Texts of Paul and Jeremy brought into a Comparison. Look as the defect in natural Conscience in Jew and Gentile (spoken of Rom. 2.) is by Paul attributed to their not knowing, and not glorifying God as God (Rom. 1.) tho' they did many things of the Law, and were a Law to themselves: So on the contrary, the Ground-Work, and Foundation, the first thing taught, the first Lesson written, when the Law comes to be written in the Heart, is to know God; They shall all know me, from the least to the greatest. And this being first written in Capital Letters in the Soul, then the whole Law, not in the outward duties only, but that which is the Spirit, and the Soul of all, is written there.

As when the Sun riseth, a man looks on the World, and all things in it in a new hue, and sees all those things every where round about him, and on the face of the Earth, which he saw not till now: So is it in this case, what is it humbleth a Man for Sin, and convicteth him of it, but this new Light of God shining upon, and actuating the knowledge of the Law? It now sees Sin as a Spiritual evil in it self, contrary to this God; yea, he now sees that Contrariety which hath been in all, and every motion of the Heart unto God as holy, and falls down and crys out, I was before without the Law. So also he is hereby, convinced of Judgment, that true Holiness God as God requires in the spiritualness of it, and he sees the Beauty that is in Grace. Yea, by knowing God anew and aright, he looks with a spiritual eye upon whatever relateth unto God any way.

So then it is not the natural Light of Conscience, nor that improved by the Word, which converts any man to God (altho' this is the best spring of most men's practick part of Religion) but it is Faith bringing in a new Light into Conscience, and so Conscience lighting its Taper at that Sun which humbleth for sin in another manner, and drives men to Christ, sanctifieth, changeth, and writes the Law in the Heart. And this you will find to be the state of difference between Augustine and the Pelagians, Semi-Pelagians, which the whole stream, and Current of his Writings against them hold forth. They would have had the Light of natural Conscience, and the Seeds of Vertues in men (as in Philosophers &c.) being improved and manured by the revelation of the Word to be that Grace which the Scripture speaks of. He proclaims all their Vertues, and their use of natural Light (as in them) to be Sins, because deficient of Holiness, and requires not only the revelation of the Objects of Faith, which else natural Light could not find out, but a new Light to see them withal.

2. The second thing upon which I state the Holiness of the light of Conscience, which is proper to that Faculty, and which is the office of it, is, that in directing the Heart unto what is its dutie, or in urging the matter of of Obedience, it insists on God's Interest and Glory as the principal Motive, and doth both frame and press such Motives as are drawn from thence. I take it for granted that true Holiness, in any, or in all Faculties, lyes in setting up God as our chiefest End. All the Faculties in their Motions, like the Stars in their Courses, Fight for this Interest; yet each according unto its kind, in a way proper to it, which must be set out, and the measure of it taken from, what is by Natures Appointment proper to each Faculty, for Grace is engrafted on, and works according to the Nature, and kind of each Faculty. As in a Man's Body every part hath it's proper Office (as the Apostle 1 Cor. 12. speaks) so it is in the Faculties of the Soul. Chap 4.

1. Holiness engrafted on the Understanding, works it towards God, and for God, according to what is its peculiar proper Office, as to know God as God, and to admire him as God, &c.

2. Holiness in the Will and Affections, influenceth them to love God and cleave to him.

Then 3. Answerably the Conscience must Act for him according unto it's kind; and that which is proper to it, is to be the Mover to Obedience chiefly for God and his Glory: When the whole Soul therefore by Regeneration once hath received and admitted God as it's supream End, Lord, and Natural King, then the Office of Conscience as his Attorney General, or Lord Chancelour, is to frame such Pleas, and Motives on his Behalf, as shall sway the Heart, and Vigorously to press them. That this is the proper Office of Conscience, both Reason and Scripture shew.

I. Reason shews it, for Conscience is one part of Practical Reason; now the Office assigned unto Practical Reason (which guides us in our Actions in General of any kind) is to incite the Heart to Action by Motives drawn from what is a Mans End. As the Speculative Understanding Reasons from Truths, to Prove or Clear one Truth from another, so the Practical Understanding Guids us in our Actions, and fetcheth Arguments to move us: Yet as this is but the Office of Practick Reason in the General, so Conscience being the top Branch of Practick Reason hath this more eminent Office assigned to it, viz. To urge such Motives upon us in our Actions, as are drawn from Moral Goodness, or Ends. Conscience being the proper Judge of all Moral Good or Evil, and so the seat of Moral Ends, this is likewise the Kind or Office of Conscience in General. If then it be Enquired what should be the Holiness proper to it according to this kind, the Resolution is easie by the former Principles.

1. The Former Law of Holiness comes upon it, Namely, to set up God as a Man's End in it's Kind, and according to it's Kind.

2. The next Work is to draw Motives for all our Actings, from Gods Interest as our chiefest End, and to press them on the Heart naturally and fully; for no Mans Reason Deliberates about what concerns his chiefest End.

II. The Scripture Evidenceth the same, (Rom. 13.5.) when the Apostle exhorts Christians to Obey, he useth this Phrase, for Conscience sake. He speaks there of a Regenerate Mans Conscience, and of what should move a True Christian. It is for Conscience sake (says he) which is a like and Parallel Phrase, as when the Scriptures says we are Justified by Faith, which is all one as to say, by Christs Righteousness, which is the Object of that Faith; or which Faith alone considers as that whereby a Man is Justified, and so Faith is Metonymically put for its Object: So here, because to Obey God as our chiefest End, is that which Conscience in moving Obedience ought to have in it's Eye, therefore to do a thing for Conscience sake, and for God as a Mans chief End, is all one; which when Conscience hath performed, and swayed the Heart unto it, 'tis termed, The Answer of a good Conscience towards God, (so far

Book VI far as that Speech Relates unto Sanctification (in 1 Pet. 3. 21.) it being God to whom Conſcience is to give its account, in which, when it hath been Faithful to him as God, it is a good Conſcience, and can give an Anſwer, a True and Juſt one, as having diſcharged it's Truſt on its behalf. In like manner to be a Servant of Righteouſneſs, and a Servant to God, is in the Apoſtles Language all one (Rom. 8. 18, 22. compared) for take God out of a Mans End, and it is not Righteouſneſs. Thus here to Obey God, and to Obey Conſcience, and to Obey for Conſcience ſake, and for Gods ſake, as our utmoſt End, are æquivalent. Now in a Man that Remains Unregenerate, this Eſſential property of Holineſs (as it is to be in the Conſcience) hath not as yet taken place in his Conſcience, nor hath it become the Natural ſupream Law thereof. And the Reaſon is clear.

For 1. Until God himſelf hath been by a Work of Regeneration on the whole Heart, ſet up in the Heart as a Mans Supream End, and generally own'd and Proclaimed ſuch in the Heart, Conſcience (whoſe Office is to Argue from what really is a Man's End) cannot Heartily and Naturally draw Motives from it; for it would Argue then from what is not, and ſo not have a Foundation for it's Reaſonings, ſuch as to perſwade the Heart, and as ſhould have power and force in them to prevail. And further it is ſo, becauſe that until Regeneration comes, and makes this great alteration of a Man's End, it is certain that Self-Love remaineth a Man's Supream End, and the Swaying Principle in all. Self is the Soul, the Spirit of Unregeneracy, that runs through, inſpires, and Leavens all the Faculties. If therefore Self be predominant in other Faculties, then alſo in this. If Self-Love ſways in the Will, then Self Reſpects, and Motives muſt alſo be in the Conſcience; and every thing moves according to that which is in it ſelf, to its own Center.

Now it is certain that Conſcience in Men Unregenerate remains Unſanctified, for theſe Two Reaſons.

1. That elſe a Man Unregenerate might be ſaid in reſpect of that one Faculty to be a Man Regenerate, when as there is not any one thing Born of the Fleſh, but is Fleſh.

And 2. Becauſe elſe in a Regenerate Man that one Faculty needed no Renewing; ſeeing, according to this Suppoſition, it had the ſame Light as truly good for the kind of it, afore Regeneration, as after; when as (1 Theſ. 5. v. 23.) the Apoſtle prays, The very God of Peace Sanctifie you wholly, your whole Man, Spirit, Soul and Body, &c. ſo as all are Sanctified anew, and therefore Conſcience alſo. And the ſame Apoſtle ſays, (Eph. 4. 23.) Be renewed in the Spirit, in the very Spirit, the pureſt part of the Mind.

There is one Query, or Objection, the Anſwer to which will further clear the meaning of this Aſſertion. The Query is this, Doth not Natural Conſcience in natural Men, urge obedience for God, yea, and urge reſpect to God as Motives thereto?

Anſw. 1. If Conſcience had not ſome Eye to God, or at leaſt to Moral good, it were not Conſcience. Conſcience, as ſuch, keeps to this as it's own Sphear, or Circle. To move for Worldly outward Ends or Reſpects, pertains not unto Conſcience, as ſuch, but is from Luſts to ſuch outward things; or at beſt, (2 Cor. 1. 12.) it is Worldly Fleſhly Wiſdom, as the Apoſtle calls it.

Anſ. 2. There are many Reſpects which Natural Conſcience hath unto God, as an Object of its Thoughts, whilſt it preſſeth Obedience on us, and under the Conſideration of which it urgeth it; yet ſtill if this one Reſpect (I inſiſt on) be wanting and left out, or not made the main of all other, then thoſe other Motives which Conſcience uſeth, do not riſe ſo high as to conſtitute the Conſcience science holy. For tho' the subject, which in this Case it is conversant about, be God, yet still it remains defective in what is proper to it; and truly constitutive of holiness, as it ought to be in Conscience. For example, when Conscience doth consider and present God to us as a supream Law-giver and Judge, who is able to save or to condemn, as (James 4. 12.) when yet the Heart hath not entertain'd this God as its natural Lord and Liege-King: In this case, tho' obedience be urged indeed, for God, and unto God, yet not for God, as the chiefest Motive. So that, as speaking of the Knowledge of God, I said, men might have large and great literal Knowledge of God; yet if they knew not God as God in himself, they wanted an holy Knowledge of him: So say I in this case, Though Conscience may eye God in many respects, under which he is revealed unto us, as a Judge, or a Sovereign, yet if not under this, as he is set up as our chiefest end, the Conscience is not holy in respect thereof. Chap. 5

3. For the clearing of this I add, That natural Conscience being leavened with self-love, doth naturally and heartily urge only such Motives on the Heart as do concern self, and in such a way as self-interest is rather spoken for, than God's. The meaning is, that when such motives only are urged, and professed, as are but fitted and suited to self, altho' those Considerations be taken from God, yet in this Case not God's Interest, but our own is pleaded for. There are many Considerations may be drawn from God as presented to us in Scripture, which alone considered are fitted but to move self-love in us, which is naturally our chiefest End: As for example, The Consideration had of God as a Law-giver, a Commander, a Judge, able to save and to condemn, doth more properly speak for self, than for God; for they urge but what is in God, in relation unto self. And altho' God, and his Name be materially used and objectively, yet finally, and so formally and really, self-love is more regarded and spoken to in them, than God's Interest.

Obj. But you will yet say to me, May not, and doth not Natural Conscience hold forth to Men Unregenerate, that God ought to be a Mans utmost End, and that it is the Duty of the Heart to be moved with Arguments drawn from thence?

The Answer in General is, That if the meaning be, that such Thoughts, and Considerations do materially come to Mind, that is, that natural Conscience hath such flying thoughts under its Consideration at times, it cannot be denyed, for it cannot indeed avoid them. For if God himself be the enlightner of Conscience, as hath been declared, then surely he will, to the end of leaving all men without excuse, cause at times such thoughts to pass thro' men's Hearts, as flashes of Lightning us'd to do thro' natural Darkness: And natural Conscience is not only capable thereof, but cannot resist their being the matter of its thoughts. But now in the acting and management of these and such other Considerations darted in by God, is the goodness or holiness of Conscience it self seen and discovered. The Apostle hath this saying (2 Cor. 1. 21.) speaking of the Heathen, That by the wisdom of God, the World knew not God. Which implies two things, 1. That there were suggested to their thoughts, by God's Spirit, many divine Considerations, leading on to, and tending to discover God unto them, which is therefore termed the Wisdom of God, that is, which he suggested to their thoughts, as object matter for their Thoughts to work on. But 2. Their Spirits which took in these notions of God, did make use thereof according to the predominant Principles within it self, and not according to the tendency of the things themselves suggested by God unto them: And so they thro' their own Wisdom or corrupt Principles knew not God, no, not by those Notions that God suggested unto them. Here you see the Wisdom suggested by God, is received and made use of according to the Qualification of the Receivers. Now what the Apostle speaks there of natural Wisdom of the Knowledge of God, I apply unto natural Conscience ence in the thing in hand. 'Tis true, Natural Conſcience doth take in ſuch Suggeſts as theſe, That God ought to be a Man's utmoſt end, and that it is the duty of the Heart to ſet him up as ſuch: But ſtill theſe are made uſe of but according to the temper and diſpoſition of Conſcience it ſelf, (which is the Receiver of theſe) which is poyſoned with ſelf: So that altho' theſe Suggeſts, as to the matter of them, be good, yet the Conſcience it ſelf, that is the ſuſcipient of them may be, and is, in the management thereof, deficient of Holineſs, yea and the motives or motions themſelves which Conſcience maketh from hence, are (as they come from it) deficient of that Holineſs is proper thereto. So then if the Conſcience be holy, it muſt not only take in the matter of ſuch Conſiderations, and ſuggeſt them to the Heart, but it muſt urge and enforce them with that vigour and ſtrength which is anſwerable unto the Vertue, Spirit, and Power that is in them, and worthy of the Motives themſelves.

This deficiency of Natural Conſcience herein, is diſcovered by theſe particulars.

2. Inaſmuch as Conſcience being prepoſſeſt with Self-love's intereſt as its chiefeſt end, it thereby becomes weak, and faint in the preſſing and urging of God's Intereſt as a man's chiefeſt end, for theſe two are inconſiſtent. It gives not the due Accent, putts not the Weight, the Emphaſis thereon, it cryes Shiboleth in the pronouncing, and ſo diſhonours ſpoyles, enervates and withers them in the propounding. Conſcience being weak, thro' the Fleſh, miſcarries with them whilſt it conceives them, and hath not ſtrength to bring forth. Some Motives perhaps drawn from God it may, and doth with a powerful Hand ſhoot up to the Arrow head, ſo as they pierce the Soul through and through; but theſe Motives drawn from God as a Man's utmoſt end, (which in their own Nature, and Ordination are, and ſhould be the great Artillery) Natural Conſcience doth faintly and weakly purſue, lets them fall at the Canons Mouth, diſchargeth them without Powder; ſo as they make no impreſſion, or dint on the Heart at all; yea, they never reach it.

2. If it urgeth ſuch Conſiderations, yet not conſtantly in the Courſe of a Man's Life. Alas, they come in but now and then, and but as God is pleaſed to convince the Soul of its defects, but this Principle is not made natural, and inlaid therein. And if ſuch Conſiderations do come in, they come unſeaſonably, poſt factum, after miſcarriages, and at times of God's reckonings and accountings with us (as the Prophet Daniel urged upon Belſhazar a prophane Idolatrous Heathen, That that God in whoſe hands was his Breath and ways, him he had not glorified. (Dan. 5. 24.) ſo to continue and condemn us. Whereas the right cure and ſeaſon of ſuch conſiderations (if the Conſcience were made holy) is before we act, or inter agendum, in the time of acting: Otherwiſe they only come as witneſſes againſt us in obedience. And the reaſon of this is, becauſe they are not natural to ſuch a Conſcience, but come in forcedly.

3. By urging Motives of ſo high Concernment ſo faintly, inſtead of giving demonſtration of any true Holineſs to be therein, it diſcovers the greater ſinfulneſs, falſeneſs, and Hypocriſie towards God. For inſomuch as it taketh in, and ſuggeſteth the matter of ſuch Conſiderations, it pretends to be for God, and to diſcharge its truſt committed to it: When yet, like a falſe-hearted Pleader at the Bar, who is bribed by the adverſe party (for ſuch is ſelf-love in a man unto God) it pretends to this and that, but urgeth nothing home, and his Tongue falters whilſt he ſeems to plead for him, whoſe Cauſe he hath undertaken. Now this is really, and in truth the greateſt diſhonour that can be put upon God, As in the like Caſe, any ſovereign Prince would eſteem it, if his Agent or Miniſter that appears for his Intereſt, ſhould either urge any lower Intereſts or Properties than thoſe of a King (as ſuch which he ſtands upon) or urge his proper Intereſt, as of a King, coldly and faintly.

Decet

Docet negare, dum urget timide. His Name and the greateſt Glory due to it is taken in Vain, whilſt it is mentioned to no higher, or more Efficacious purpoſe. Chap. 6.

And Laſtly, Such Motives ſo uſed deſerve not the Name of Motives. They fall from that Denomination, and they are Receptions, or Motions rather made in Conſcience, then Motives made by Conſcience. As imperfect Wiſhings and Wouldings in the Will, we Term Velleities, ſo proportionably are theſe in the Conſcience. Now no Power or Faculty a Man can be ſaid to Act for God as it's utmoſt End, unleſs it Acts with a ſtrength ſome way Suitably. It is an Obſervable Phraſe (Colloſ. 3. 23.) Whatſoever you do, do it Heartily, or with all your Might, as to the Lord. The Import of which is this, That whatſoever is truly done to God, and for God, He being ſo Great a GOD, and the Nature of His Service, (as they ſay of a King) being ſuch, as it falls ſhort, and is Deficient of what deſerves the Name of Service, in Reſpect to Him, or by way of Motive for Him, if it be not Perform'd with Vigour and Strength Anſwerable; it is therefore not done to the Lord, unleſs it be Heartily. And this is true of all the Motions Conſcience makes for God, they are not for Him, nor Worthy of Him, nor indeed Motives as for God, unleſs Proſecuted Predominantly for him, above all other Ends.

So then Two Deficiencies, or fallings ſhort of Holineſs, have ben diſcovered to be in Natural Conſcience.

1. That it falls ſhort in an Effectual direction to, or inſtruction in, the right manner of Obedience to the Law. It either not knows, or practices not, what are the Inwards of Duties, becauſe it was never Elevated to the Knowledge of God as God in himſelf, and ſo is Ignorant how to call for a Worſhip or Obedience ſuitable unto him, which conſiſts in Spirit and in Truth.

2. It alſo falls ſhort in that which is the Eminent Part and Office of it, namely, Faithfulneſs to God, to try Vigorouſly on the Heart ſuch Motives as are drawn from God's Intereſt ſet up therein as our utmoſt End. And theſe Defects lye in the very Light of Conſcience, and in Conſcience it ſelf, beſides what Deficiency is diſcovered in the Effects themſelves, which are Anſwerable to theſe Defects in the cauſe it ſelf.

3. I ſhall make this additional Remark, to compleat this Head, That this Deficiency in the Light it ſelf, from Conſcience to true Holineſs, appears and manifeſts it ſelf in the Effect, namely, that the Light that is in Natural Conſcience maketh not the Heart good, it Sanctifieth not, and therefore it ſelf is not good with that Goodneſs which is proper to that Faculty. As that is a good Tree which maketh the Fruit good, ſo that is a good Conſcience which maketh the Heart good. This is a certain Truth, that the difference between ſaving *L*ight or Knowledge, and common Light raiſed up unto a great Blaze, are difficultly diſtinguiſhed in themſelves abſtractly conſidered, compared with themſelves, altho' the difference in it ſelf is great, conſequently, as by the Fruits they are diſtinguiſhed manifeſtly in the Iſſue and Event. Inſomuch as the difficulty in diſtinguiſhing them thus in themſelves, hath occaſioned a great Divine to ſay, Non diſtinguntur niſi Conſequenter ad actum Voluntatis. That they are not diſtinguiſhed unleſs Conſequently to the Act of the Will. Which indeed holds true, in *R*eſpect of diſcerning that Difference, but not in the real Diſtinction of the Lights themſelves; for the difference muſt needs be in the Light it ſelf as the cauſe, or elſe one Faculty in an Unregenerate Man, needed not Sanctification and Regeneration. Now that that only is a good Conſcience which maketh the Heart good, appears both by Scripture and Reaſon. Ameſie Medulla, Lib. 1. Cap. 3. Theſ. 4.

Book VI

1. By Scripture. Paul therefore said he had a good Conscience, because he desired to Live Honestly in all things. Heb. 13. 18. For else had he had never so much Light which had still directed him, and instigated him to good, yet had not Wrought in him a desire to live accordingly, he could not have termed his Conscience Good. And therefore also the having a Good Conscience is put for an Holy Conversation, (by the Apostle Peter, 1 Pet. 3. 16.) as the Cause for the Effect, for so it follows, That speaking of you as Evil doers, they may be ashamed that accuse falsly your good Conversation in Christ. Therefore a good Conscience makes the Man good.

2. In Reason it is Evident. For when any thing hath lost that Special Vertue which once it had to effect that which it was ordained for, we say of it that it is not good, which that Familiar Saying of Christ Confirms in the general, Salt is good, but if it hath lost it's Savour (or Vertue of it's Seasoning and Diffusive vertue to season other things) it is good for nothing. Compare Luke 14. 34. with Mat. 5. 13. Yea, if it might be supposed good for some other inferiour purpose then what that Native Vertue once eminently served for, yet we use to say of a thing in such a Case, that it is not good, that is, not answering it's kind. Take any Drugg, which hath a Cordial Vertue, if that Vertue be gone, you use to say it is naught, tho' some Weaker or Lower Effects, it may still retain. Take Wine when it is Soured, or the Spirits of it are gone, you say it is naught, that is, as it is Wine, it still may make good Vinegar, or may serve some other use. A Purging Drugg, when the Purgative strength of it is gone, it is not good, tho' it may have so much left, as to stir the Humours a little, yet if not enough to carry them away, it is not good, because it wants that Vertue it was ordained for, altho' still a Skilful Apothecary knows how to make some use of it. Thus Conscience, tho' it retain some weaker Acts it had in Man in Innocency, and which now are common to a Man Regenerate and Unregenerate; yet the Special Vertue, and Energie of those Acts it then had, and which now in a Regenerate Man it hath in Sanctifying and Purifying, being Lost and Gone, the special proper Goodness of it is gone and lost also. It may Serve to stir the Humours, both the Guilt and Power of Corruption, and it may serve to drive Corruption in, but it's Purging Vertue is gone. And tho' God doth make use of those weak Properties that remain, so as to discover sin, or to witness against the Sinner, yet the Native Use is extinct, and so it is not a good Conscience.

CHAP. VII.

How a Natural Conscience, in it's highest Operations, is Deficient in that which is necessary to make it really Holy.

NOW to give a Demonstration of the Deficiency of Conscience, in its Operations on the Heart in all particulars, might be too large; I shall do it but in some few, which shall be fitted to Two Cases or Conditions of Men Unregenerate, under one of which all such Men's Conditions will fall, and in either of which it will appear that Natural Conscience Sanctifies not the Heart throughout, as Regenerating Grace doth.

The First Case is, That in men Unregenerate there are to be found, besides Light of Conscience, Vertues, and Impressions on their Wills and Affections, inclining them to good, which the Heathens callld Semina Virtutum, Seeds of Vertues, inclining them unto what the light of Conscience doth direct them unto; and in this case will it not be said that it maketh the Heart good, or that a goodness of Heart doth accompany it. Chap 7.

But 1. None had an Universal Goodness, no not in that sphere of Moral Good, but were deficient in some Vertues whereunto the Light of their Conscience did direct them. God did never make Light of Conscience and Moral Impressions to Vertue adequate or even in any man; that is, not of like extent; bnt left it so, as in those who naturally, or otherwise, have had most of moral inclinations in them, yet their Conscience have had strong Convictions to such Duties and Actions unto which their Wills and Affections have had no inclinations stampt on them to correspond therewith, but the contrary inclinations have been left to their full strength. And this God doth, to give a ground of discovery unto all men of their natural Condition, by letting them see the strength of corrupt Inclinations, and their emptiness of good, by some such particulars. This is exemplified both in Heathens, Jews and Christians. The Heathens had dispersed among the Bulk and multitude of them, all Seeds of Vertues, but so as all were not in each, and every man; but one had Justice, another Abstinence from Pleasures, a Third Continency. God withal, left each of them in their Dispositions naked and void, in respect of some Vertues or other. Thus Socrates was given to the love of Boys, and such vile Affections is the very instance Paul gives of the wisest of their Philosophers (Rom, 1.) That so that fatal doom might with condition be pronounced of all and each, which the Apostle there recordeth, They withheld the truth in unrighteousness. Their corrupt Hearts were too head-strong for their Consciences to rule, in some particular or other.

I confess, I have sometimes wondred at those high passages I before rehearsed, both concerning their crying up Right Reason, and also of their professing to live thereto; as being a seeming Vindication of them from that which the Apostle (Rom. 1.) chargeth them withal, viz. imprisoning the Truth in unrighteousnes in some things. But in the end I perceived the Juggle (for it was truely such) for whilst all cried up this Right Reason in the general, as their Rule, and professed to live by it, yet come to the particulars, Therein each Sect or Person would judge this or that to be according to Right Reason (or Nature, as they termed it) as they listed, and as agreed with their Lusts. Diogenes accounted self-pollution, or (as the Apostle terms it) defiling their Bodies ἐν ἑαυτοις committed alone by themselves, to be lawful, and according to Nature; which the Apostle (Rom. 1. 24.) instanceth in, as one of their Philosophical Practices. Plato (the divinest of them) held communion of Wives: The like might be said of others. Though all men understand what is meant by Iron, what by Silver, as soon as they hear each named, yet (says Plato) when we use the name of just or good; one is carried to one thing as just and good, which another dislikes, and we differ therein amongst our selves. Thus he confesseth. And hence, under this general proclaiming the right Rule, and magnifying Right Reason (as all did) so many Sects arose amongst them, differing in their Judgement of what was just, or unjust, morally good or evil, lawful or unlawful, so as every one did surrender the judgement of his Reason to his Lusts; Yea, and made many abominable Vices, things in their Nature indifferent, Leges Naturæ opiniones suas faciunt: Each made his own Opinion, and what they had a mind to, the Law of Nature and Right Reason. And then indeed they might well boast (as they did) they lived according to Right Reason; for wherein their Vertues fell short, or their Lusts over-ruled them, they would flatly argue for that to be lawful, or natural, or indifferent, and so blessed themselves in their own deceivings. And if I mistake not, the Apostle had this very thing in his eye, when he says, They became vain in their reasonings, and their foolish Heart was darkned (Rom. 1. 21.) and professing themselves wise (so each Sect pretend) they became Fools, the vainest that ever were, corrupting themselves in what they knew naturally, and making uſe of corrupt reaſon in them to defend what Natural Reaſon condemned. And ſo I may make a parallel between the myſtery of iniquity among the Heathen, and that in the Popiſh Religion. The Pope cryes up the Scriptures in General, and profeſſeth to give us Religion from thence; but then he taking on him to be the Supream Judge, can, and doth give us out from thence what Religion he pleaſeth, and frameth Opinions to his own Luſts and Ambition; and ſo did the Philoſopher whilſt they cried up Reaſon.

2. Both the Light of their Conſciences, and alſo their higheſt Vertues, when they did moſt exactly fall on them, did carry them but to the Letter, but not to the Spiritual part of any Vertue. At the beſt they are ſaid to do but the things contained in the Law, (τὰ τὸ νόμου in the Text) even wherein they were a Law unto themſelves. Obſerve it, they are not ſaid to keep the Law, neither to have the Law Written in their Hearts; whereas of a Believer both theſe are at once Affirmed, John 14. 21. He that hath my Commandments and keepeth them, is he that Loves me. Firſt, He is ſaid to have the Law truly and genuinely ſtampt upon his Soul: And 2*dly*, Out of that Principle is ſaid to keep it; whereas theſe have but the Duties, the outward works of it Written there, and accordingly do but the things of the Law. Or again, They may be ſaid to have the Effect of it, as Brute Beaſts are ſaid to have the Work or Effect of Reaſon, as Bees in making their Hives, &c. The Works which they do are Opera Intelligentia, as if Reaſon had done them, but they do them not from a Principle of Reaſon. And this difference did Auguſtine long ago urge and inſiſt on, in his Anſwers to Pelagius and Julianus, and the Maſſilienſes, who urged this Text, that the Light of Conſcience and Vertues, and good Works, thence flowing, were ſuch as had a true and real Goodneſs in them: But he diſtinguiſht how that in the Law Commanding, and in every Action to be done according to the Law, there were, Opus, or (as from the Stoicks he termed it) Officium quod faciendum eſt, the Duty that is to be done; Et Finis, vel propter quod faciendum, the end for which it is to be done. Which end he ſtill aſſerts againſt them, to be not meerly the good of any Creature, tho' a Publick good to the whole World, but the chief End of a good Action is Gods Glory, who himſelf is the chiefeſt Good, and the chiefeſt End. The Officia, the Duties, are not the Law, but only τὰ τὸ νόμου, the things of the Law, Officia Legis, as Beza Interprets it: But Love to God is the end of the Law, and the performance of it, (1 Tim. 1. 5.) and ſo it is the Soul and Spirit of it; and when it is not Written as the Supream Law, and Soveraign Dictate in the Conſcience, it may be ſaid the Law is wanting there.

Lib. 4. contra Julian. Cap. 13.

In Heathens Nature ſpoke out, and their higheſt pitch was to Love Vertue for Vertues ſake, Judging and Valuing it to be the greateſt Ornament of their Rational Souls. They therefore decryed all outward Reſpects as Unworthy, and too mean to be Motives unto Vertuous Actions; but yet ſtill all their Admiration was raiſed no further but to Vertue it ſelf, and Vertuous Actions for themſelves, as the Supream Excellency. They never raiſed Vertue to a Tendency or Subordination to God, and to Glorifie God, as God by it; herein they fell ſhort, and therefore ſhort in Holineſs. For I may ſafely Affirm, That if a Chriſtian himſelf could thus Love true Grace, and prize it as a Supream Excellency, and love Goodneſs, only as it is an Habit in the Soul, which makes us good, this would not be Holineſs. For in ſo doing, a Man would value it only as a particular good unto his own Soul, which is but a ſmall piece of the Creation of God: And the Mind in ſo doing would but Glory and Center ſtill in it ſelf, (as well as in valuing Riches or Honours) and not in the Lord, for there is the ſame Reaſon in either.

The 2*d Caſe* is this, That to the Jews and us Chriſtians, there is by the Revelation of the Law, and Will of God, many Duties of Gods Worſhip (as Prayers, Meditation, holy Conference, and reading the Word) whereunto there are ſmall, if any, Moral inclinations ſtampt upon mens Wills, to aſſiſt them in them, or facilitate these unto them: And therefore Conscience calling upon the Heart for such duties as these, is forced to raise the Tax or Levie of them, by calling in foreign Assistance and Aid. And for a supply of natural strength and inclination unto Duties of this kind, it is reduced to such Motives of the Law as are fitted to stir self-love in the Affections; as fear of Hell &c. And this is also the Case of temporary Believers under the Gospel. Now in this Case, it doth yet more evidently appear, that the Light of Natural Conscience doth not sanctifie the Heart throughout, as Grace in a regenerate man in some measure doth. Chap. 6.

1. Natural Conscience puts a necessity upon the performance of a Duty; saith, and urgeth that it ought, and must be done; but it puts no inward freedom and willingness into the Will to the performance of it, as Grace doth. For Grace makes a man willing, as Conscience makes the Duty necessary. It puts an inclination, a Spirit of Liberty and Freedom; a free Spirit, an ingenuous Spirit (as David calls it, Psal. 51. 12.) And therefore Paul opposeth (Gal. 5. 18.) the working of the Spirit of the Law, or of Conscience by the Law, in these words, If you be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the Law; and so e contra. Now, to be led by the Spirit, is to have the Will ready to follow God in every thing, to have the Will easily carried on to a Duty, for leading implies readiness of following, Isaiah 11. 6. A Child shall lead them; that is, a little thing may perswade them.

If it be objected, That Conscience carryed on the Will to do Duties, for else they would not be done.

I answer, There is a willingness which is intrinsecal, and direct, and per se, when a man hath a mind and will to a thing for it self, and there is a made willingness, which is per accidens, which is a comparative willingness. There is no man so averse to any thing, but may be thus made willing, that is comparatively, and per Accidens willing. The most covetous man in the World, that loves Money never so much, may be made willing to part with it, and glad to do so, if it concerns his life to do it; or if a great necessity of Bonds, or going to Prison, be laid on him; which is indeed a Constraint, and so Peter terms it (1 Pet. 5. 2.) and opposeth it to willingly. But a godly man hath a ready mind to whatever is good in the Principle of his heart, and often good Duties come off at the first motion; To will is present with me: (Rom. 7. 18.) Or if Flesh lie uppermost, and so there is an averseness in the entrance, yet when God and his Heart have closed in the duty, and grown familiar, he finds his whole Heart to be in it.

Now, the reason of an unregenerate mans unwillingness unto such holy Duties, lies in this, That they are appointed, and the tendency of them is, to bring God and their Hearts together, which indeed is to bring two Enemies together, for such are their Hearts and God. And the reason of a regenerate man's willingness is, that in the duty two Friends meet together, God who hath from Everlasting own'd that Soul, and the Soul, that hath chosen God to be his God.

2. Natural Conscience gives Light and Enforcements from legal Motives to the Duty, but it gives no new inward strength. And the reason is clear, for Natural Conscience carries a man on but upon the strength of the Covenant of Works: Now, the Law is weak (says the Apostle, Rom. 8.) as to any such effect. Urgency of Conscience is but as if a man should come to one that is lame, and his Joints frozen and Stiff, with a Light in one hand, and a Cudgel in the other, and waken him, and jogg him, and tell him, Here is light for you to walk by, and there are blows if you will not: Or it is as if one should ride a tyred Horse; there is a Bridle to direct, and a Spur to put him on, but the Rider giveth no strength for the Horse to travel with. Natural Conscience in its Government is tyrannical; and, like the Task-Masters of Egypt, requires Bricks to be made, and beats men, if not, but gives them no Straw: But Grace adds another Principle to Conscience, and that is Faith and the new Creature. Faith fetcheth life, and quickening, and strength from from Chriſt, both habitual ſtrength, which is called ſtrength in the inward man, and co-operating ſtrength. I am able (ſays the Apoſtle) to do all things thro' Chriſt that ſtrengthneth me. The Spirit of Adoption not only puts us on to pray, but helpeth our infirmities (Rom. 8. 26.) which is ſpoken in oppoſition to the Spirit of Bondage. The Holy Ghoſt comes and fills the Soul with Arguments and Motions and Inclinations to pray, inſomuch as the Soul is like a full Breaſt till it be drawn, or a pregnant Womb, till it be delivered of what is formed in it: And the Soul reſts not till it hath gone alone, and poured forth it ſelf to God. Conſcience indeed wakens the old man ſo, as he makes him beſtir himſelf and his lazy ſtiff Joints, and ſo to mend his pace in duties, but ſtill it gives no ſtrength: So as it is extrinſecal enforcement and inſtigation only, and not inward ſtrength, which Conſcience doth afford.

3. Natural Conſcience cannot ſweeten the Law to a man, and cauſe him to delight in it, and the duties of it, as a regenerate man is ſaid to do (*Rom.*7.) for if it gives not ſuitable Strength and Will, it cannot give Delight, for Delight follows theſe, Whilſt forced extrinſecal Motives carry us on; and there is a grievance in the Motion; for Fear is an affection which hath grief in it, (1 *Joh.*4.18.) and thus, tho' they (*Mal.*1.13.) brought but the lame and lean Sacrifices, yet they grudge at it, and ſaid what wearineſs is in it? They were weary of doing any thing for God, but love ſweetens all to a man: This is the Love of God, that his Commandments are not grievous (1 John 5. 3.) Now it is a certain Rule, that as Natural Conſcience works by fear, ſo Faith works by Love, and Love ſweetens the Law to a man. Conſcience may bring a ſick man meat, but it muſt be the inward Conſtitution of a ſound Mind that taſtes the ſweetneſs of meat.

Laſtly, As thus its weakneſs is ſeen in Holy Duties, ſo in regard of Sin alſo it is not able to Condemn Sin in the Fleſh. Of the Law it is ſpoken (Rom. 8. 4.) that it diſcovers Sin, but kills it not, it hath Power to kill the Man for Sin, and to Condemn him (2 *Cor.*3.6.) but not to kill Sin in the Man as the Phraſe is, (Rom. 8. 4.) as the Law came into the World, that Sin might be imputed, that is known, and diſcovered, but not Deſtroyed: So light of Conſcience hath no farther Power. Like Flaſhes of Lightning, it on the ſuddain diſcovers, but expells not the darkneſs, yea, often leaves the Soul the more in the Dark; yea, which is more, it enrageth ſome Luſts the more, and that whilſt it reſtrains the outward Acts. So Paul who had a ſtrong work of the Law, (thro' Conſcience) upon him, ſaies (*Rom.*7.) That the Law wrought all Concupiſence in him. As a Horſe that is Reined, grows the more Fierce; as the Winds that go to blow out the Fire, ſpreads it more; as the Water in Lime, makes it burn within the more; ſo the Light of Conſcience makes Luſt inwardly the hotter, and more Violent; therefore thoſe are more eager in Sinning, that have moſt Knowledge. 'Tis true indeed Violent Terrors of Conſcience upon a Man, when the Guilt of Sin in it's turn comes to take the Dominion, and to Reign (which is but an after part of the Dominion of the Law over a Man) will reſtrain Men from Sinning, but yet the ordinary Light of it, tho' it reſtrains the Acts, yet increaſeth the Luſt; and ſo doth more hurt one way, than good another.

USE. Let us then mind the main and primary Scope and Extent of Conſciences Commiſſion, and God's primary end in putting the Light of it into Men, which is the ſame with that of the Law; as the power of it, and the Effect of it is the ſame. Now the Law was ſent that Mans Sinfulneſs might be diſcovered, and he convinced of it, to ſee his weakneſs, and the power of Sin, and his utter averſneſs to good, and proneneſs to Evil; that ſo Men deſpairing of being ſaved by the Effects of it, or their Conformity to it, might ſeek help in Chriſt, and work anew from him, Gal. 3. 15, 16, 17, 18. And if this uſe be not made of it, then God hath ordained it for another ther use, to convince and Condemn Men by it, at the Latter Day, and leave them without excuse; which use the Apostle speaks of, (Rom. 1.) And God will make use of the Light of Natural Conscience even to Condemn the strictest Heathen. Chap 8

What a great Mistake is it then, utterly to pervert this Use and Extent both of God and it, and to deem this Light of the Law, and of Conscience, and the work of it, to be Grace it self? Oh! That ever Men should thus abuse the very Witness God hath appointed to convince them, they are not in a State of Grace, and mistaking the intent of his Speech and Verdict in them, should judge it to be Grace, and because it checks them for Evil, and puts them on to good, think by Conforming a little to it, to be saved! Thus the Jews Understood the Law, and the Effects of that in them; and because they had the Law which God gave them, to see themselves out of his Favour, they thought therefore they were in it (Rom. 2.) rested in the Law, and thought if they Conformed to it, because it call'd for Obedience, they should be saved, (Rom. 10.) Whereas if Men would listen to it, it would shew them their Inability to conform to it, and so begin to humble them, and to take them off from resting in their Obedience. There is enough in the Light of it to do this, for God means to Judge them by it at the last Day.

CHAP. VIII.

The Grounds of the Mistake upon which Men proceed in Judging the Actings of Natural Conscience to be the Workings of a Principle of True Grace, Considered and Detected.

I Now come to examine those grounds of Mistake, with Unregenerate Men go upon in the Judging this Principle of Conscience, and the workings thereof to Grace and true Goodness.

1. The First Ground of Mistake is, because Men find it to be an inward Principle, as Grace is, inherent and sealed in their inward parts. (Jer. 31. 32.) And the Motions thereof unto good, are not outward, or External, but from within, nor are they outward Respects by which it moves.

Ans. 1. Tho' it be a Principle within a Man, as in Relation to it's Residence yet as to the working of it upon the rest of the Faculties, it Acts as if it were an extrinsical, and violent Principle. It may be remembred to this purpose, how I have before prov'd, that the Motives it useth, at best, to carry the rest of the Heart on to Obedience, are legal, and the Government of it Vigorous, whereas that of Grace is sweet, and natural, having the Hearts of it's Subjects, so far as a Man is Renewed. There are Three sorts of moving Principles to be found distinct in Mens Spirits. 1*st.* Meer outward Respects from things Worldly, and Outward; such as are the Motives which arise from our Lusts, as carried forth to outward Objects. 2*dly.* There are the inward impulses by which Natural Conscience works. And 3*dly.* There are the kindly, sweet, and Natural, Gracious Motions of Grace and Holiness in a Regenerate Heart. To exemplifie these Three by Similitudes: Take a Clock or a Watch, and Observe the Principles of each of their Motions. A Clock is moved by Weights that hang without it, and such are outward VVorldly Respects that pertain not to Conscience, as vain Glory, Love of Praise, Filthy Lucre, &c. But a VVatch hath a Motion from what is within it self, a Spring that that ſets all the Wheels on work, and yet the motion of the watch is truly, Book 6 and indeed but an extrinſecal motion in compariſon with what is natural.

And ſuch is that of Natural Conſcience in reſpect of thoſe Duties unto God which it enjoyns; both the one as well as the other are external, in reſpect of a violence, or a forcedneſs of their motion, for the Wheels which move have not a natural poiſe to move of themſelves. But take a Bird that flyes, there is truely and properly an internal Principle of Life and motion in the Wings, and all the Limbs thereof, which moves the whole, and every Member, and ſuch a Principle is Grace, in compariſon of Natural Conſcience.

Anſw. 3. Tho' it be thus a Principle within thee, yet it makes not up another ſelf within thee, as Grace doth. Tho' thy Conſcience is againſt a Sin, before or after, it is committed, yet thou canſt not ſay, I am againſt the ſin, which is thy beloved ſin; No thy ſelf art for it, but Conſcience in thee is only againſt it. Hence, thou canſt not ſay with Paul (Rom. 7.) It is not I but ſin, for thy Conſcience only ſtood out againſt it, when thy Heart was wholly for it. But this a regenerate man can, and doth ſay, And this was it which moved Auſtin to fall off from that interpretation of (Rom. 7.) That the paſſages thereof ſhould be meant of an unregenerate man (of whom once he underſtood them) becauſe he found that tho' the Light of his Conſcience, was againſt the ſin, yet made not up another whole inward man, which a man might term himſelf. Yea, you may obſerve, that when Conſcience ſpeaks againſt a ſin, it ſpeaks to the reſt of the whole man, as to a diſtinct perſon from it ſelf, tho' it be ſeated in the man; for it ſpeaks thus, Thus thou oughteſt not to do; or this thou haſt done. The Language of Conſcience is as the language of another perſon whoſe part it takes, even of God to a man, as Menander ſaid ἡ τὺς ἀνθρώπους συνείδησις θεός. Conſcience is as God to all, and every mortal man: And therefore it acts the part of an Advocate, againſt a man's ſelf. But the Grace of Sanctification hath won all the Faculties in their Courſes to go the ſame way with it ſelf. And therefore a regenerate man can ſay to Conſcience. that beſides, and over and above thy Checks (oh Conſcience) I have an whole new man, an inner man within me, that had no hand in this ſin, but is for God, and his Law, as well as thou, and ſerves him in the inner man, even whilſt the Law of the Members doth prevail to the outward action.

Anſw. 3. In reſpect of many actings of Conſcience in thee, thou art a Patient, not active, or an Agent: But on the contrary, when it checks, reſtrains, and condemns for Sin, or invites unto duties, thy whole Heart is againſt it. 'Tis true theſe are truly acts of a Faculty, within thee, for the Apoſtle (Rom. 2. 15.) calls them their thoughts (when he ſpeaks of their Conſciences accuſing them) yet they are (if unregenerate) Sufferers, and Endurers, and Patients under them, becauſe it is God (as I have ſhewed is the Author and Actuater of them, puts a word into Conſciences mouth, as once into Balaam's, ſo as it cannot but ſpeak, nor can it ſay the contrary, when yet (as Balaam) the whole man is againſt that word, and follows after the ways of unrighteouſneſs, and would not have the Viſion ſo to ſpeak. It is full ſore againſt his Will, and bent, and grain of his Spirit. In the Text (Rom. 2.) it is ſaid συμμαρτυρούσης, its Witneſs being joined with anothers, namely, Gods. Thus checks, and terrors of Conſcience are acts upon a man, rather than of a man, and ſo men are Endurers under them. And therefore men hate them, and would be rid of them if they could, or knew how. They ſecretly ſay of it as Ahab to Micajah, Go mine Enemy, thou never propheſieſt good to me. The other Faculties do look upon it as the Sodomites did upon Lot, and cryed out, ſhall this ſtranger judge us? They would thruſt it forth of their Juriſdiction, if they could, as none of their company. Men uſe Mirth and Jollatry to allay the checks of it, and give themſelves a Medicine to kill this Worm. Speculative light Men like, for it is pleaſant, but Light that is buſie with them, and active in them, they like not to retain in their Knowledge (Rom. 1. 28.) Whereas a godly man writes up ſuch Knowledge in his Heart, as one doth Memorandums in his Table-Book, (Prov. 3. 3.) Write them (ſays he) in the Tables of thy heart, having ſaid before, My Son, forget not thou my Law. He is as glad of new Light that diſcovers to him a ſin, or Corruption he ſaw not before, or a Duty he knew not, as a man is of finding great ſpoyl. 'Tis David's compariſon (Pſal. 119. 162.) Whereas, another man looks upon every ſuch diſcovery of ſin, or duty, as men do now upon a new Tax or Levy, and hate the Light of Conſcience, as a Task-Maſter, as the Jews did a Publican. Chap. 8.

A ſecond ground of miſtake is, that Conſcience is a good and upright Principle contrary unto Sin, and for what is good, and cannot be charmed to hold its Peace.

Anſw. 1. The Goodneſs that is in the Light of Conſcience riſeth not up to the goodneſs of Holineſs, as hath been ſhewed. It is but the Letter, not the Spirit of the Law. Now, conſider that the ſhadow, as of Truth, ſo of Goodneſs, ſanctifies not.

2. As for its Contrariety, and oppoſition unto ſin, condemning, reſtraining, and coming in againſt it, I anſwer, There is a two-fold Contrariety, the one real, and phyſical, as Fire is contrary to Water, which are deſtructive each of other, and are armed with power to expell the one the other: And thus in a regenerate man Fleſh and Spirit are contrary, Gal. 5. 17. The Fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh: And theſe are contrary the one to the other; ſo that ye cannot do the things that ye would. They therefore cannot exiſt in a predominancy each in the ſame Heart; but if the Spirit that is in man luſteth after Envy, God gives Grace to ſubdue it; ſo as to be under the dominion of Sin and Grace, cannot ſtand together, (Rom. 6. 12, 14.) Such a contrariety to ſin as this, is not in the Light of an unregenerate man. But there is another ſort of Contrariety, viz. teſtimonial, (for unto a Witneſs the Text compares it) which in appearance Conſcience bears to a Sinner. But indeed it is contrary only as a Witneſs is to a bad Man, and a bad Cauſe; contrary only in this, becauſe he comes in and gives Teſtimony againſt him, and that not out of a Contrariety or Antipathy to the man, but as Witneſs of the Truth. Paul hath told us ſuch a Teſtimony is remote from Enmity, Gal. 4. 16. Am I therefore your Enemy becauſe I tell you the Truth? Or the contrariety is as that of a Lawyer, that pleads a Cauſe againſt a man, he is ſaid to be contrary only, becauſe he ſpeaks againſt the man. And indeed in theſe Teſtimonies Conſcience is rather contrary to the man that ſins, than to the ſin it ſelf; for it expells it not. It hath not a deſtructive vertue in it; but a beloved ſin, notwithſtanding Light of Conſcience teſtifying againſt it, doth in a predominancy continue ſtill in the Heart. Or if you will, it is but a repreſentative, or demonſtrative Contrariety, not a Natural. Light hath a natural Contrariety to Darkneſs, and expells it; whereas the Light of a Glow-Worm only diſcovers it ſelf in the Dark, but enlightneth not the Air round about it. And therefore, tho' thou hadſt never ſo much Light that directed to good, checked thee for evil upon all occaſions, and continued to do ſo all thy days; if this wrought not a deſire to live well in all things, but thou goeſt againſt it, and impriſoneſt the Light of it, this will aggravate thy ſin. And however thou takeſt this for a good Conſcience (as if Conſcience had a peculiar abſtract goodneſs in it) yet when the naughty man that lived againſt Conſcience, goes to Hell, what will become of this good Conſcience? It will even go to Hell with thee, and be thy Executioner: Yea, and even Conſcience it ſelf will be moſt puniſhed there, for that is the part on which the Wrath of God lights: It is the Tonnel thro' which God fills the Veſſel with Wrath, and that, both becauſe it gave Light only, but no Power; as alſo becauſe the man whoſe Conſcience it is, was wicked, and his Heart naught. And therefore tho' Conſcience was againſt the ſin thou commitedſt, yet Conſcience it ſelf will be reckoned as guilty, and to Book VI. be an Evil Conscience, because it wanted power to hinder thee, which Power it once had.

3. A Third Ground that helps forward the mistake is, that they find it a Constant Principle, which will not be charmed, nor hold it's Tongue: And as Grace is said to be a Seed that remains, so is this.

Answ. 1. Consider, That for that very cause it is not Grace, but Nature: Grace is in us not from the first, but only after that it is received, but this Light of Conscience, and these Workings of it have been always in thee for the time past.

Answ. 2. Tho' the faculty it self always remains, yet thou shalt find, if God turn thee not to him, Sin winning ground of it, and weakning the exercise of it, till it hath put thy Conscience past feeling. Whilst Men are Young their Consciences are tender, but as they grow Old they are hardned, and this is part of their growing in Wickedness: So (Eph. 4. 19.) tis said, after they are past feeling, which implies that they had a Sense once. Tis the like Phrase to that you use of a Man Dying, you say, He is past Sense, past Speaking. The Allusion there is to Palsey-benumbed Members, which are come to such a pass, that they feel no Pain. Conscience having spoken often, when it sees it cannot prevail, ceaseth to speak; yea (1 Tim. 4. 2.) Paul speaks as if some Mens Consciences were in the end Cutt (so the Phrase by Beza is interpreted) seared off with an hot Iron, as a Putrified Member, that is grown Dead and Senseless useth to be; not that the faculty is cut off, but it is meant in regard of the Acts of it, which are Cut off, and Men walk as if they had no Consciences. The Reason is, because (as I said) the Exercise of it depending upon Gods Working on it, and in it more or less; therefore when he hath striven long with Men in and thro' the checks of their Consciences, in the end ceaseth striving, and then Conscience ceaseth to check any longer. And therefore God is said to give them up to a Reprobate Mind, that is void of Judgment, even in judging those things Sins which are to the Light of Nature most abhorrent, and as the Phrase in such case is, inconvenient, (which the Apostle there useth, Rom. 1. 28.) Whereas Davids smote him for Numbring the People when he was Old (for that was towards the end of his Reign) as well as when he was Young and did so for his cutting off Sauls Lap. And Paul when Old, and the time of Departure at hand (as he says in the Second Epistle to Timothy) yet then he continued to serve God with a pure Conscience, as in the 1 Chap. of that Epistle, v. 3. himself speaks.

Or if this Light in Natural Conscience be not in the exercise of it almost extinct, yet it will be quiet, and suffer it self to be close Prisoner, not striving to get out, as (Rom. 1. 17.) the Phrase is: But any Truth in a good Conscience will make the Prison too hot for it. The Evil Conscience will keep Commissions and Writs lying by it, and not so much as open them, much less put them into suit, like those Lights in those Roman Urns that give Light within, but never break forth, because they were made of such matter as had Light only, and not Heat; and such is the Light of a Natural Conscience till God joins his Wrath with it. But on the Contrary, in a Godly Man Light against any Sin, or for the doing any Duty, like Fire Imprisoned and Smothered, burns inwardly, and ceaseth not till the Flame break forth, Jer. 20. 9. When Jeremy through Fear and Discouragement was resolved to Preach no more, but to live a quiet Life with the World, when he knew it was his Duty to do otherwise: In the End (says he) it was Fire in my Bones, and I could not stay or forbear. Men use a Natural Conscience as a Dark Lanthorn, they shut up as much of it as they please, and if it Burn, let it shine inward, it shall not outward. Grace will not be soused or dealt with, but like the Apostle (who spake it as led by this Principle) in the end, it says, I cannot but speak the things I know, Acts. 4. 20.

4. A Fourth main Ground of Miſtake is, that Religion is expreſſed unto us, by making Conſcience of what we do; and uprightneſs is underſtood to conſiſt in this, that we follow our Conſciences. A Conſcionable Man, and a Religious Man are equivalently put each for the other. Yea, did not Abimelick plead it, (Gen. 20. 5.) and did not God acknowledge this to be Integrity, v. 6. He having in that matter of Sarah gone according to the Principles he was enlightned with? Had he known her to have been another Mans Wife, he would not have taken her, for he made Conſcience of committing Adultery; and this God takes for Integrity, inaſmuch as he went not againſt his Conſcience.

Anſw. 1. I Anſwer, That all do, and muſt acknowledge, that when a Man doth ſo act according to an Erroneous Conſcience (as to the matter of Fact, taking that to be a Duty or Lawful which is an Heynous Sin, and which is incompatible with the State of Grace for the preſent) tho' in this he principally Acts out of, and according to his Conſcience, yet therein he hath not that Integrity which is required to Salvation. For Example, Paul thought verily he ought to Perſecute the Church, and what he did therein, he did out of Conſcience, yet he was far enough off from Sincerity or Integrity, for the Matter of Fact could not ſtand with Godlineſs. Now as Conſcience may thus in the matter it directs be Damnably Erroneous, unto the prejudice and certain Hazard (as to the preſent) of Mans Salvation, ſo it may be, and is much rather, and more uſually, defiled, and deficient, and falſe unto God in reſpect of the manner of performance, and in reſpect of the End it moves for; and even when yet it guides aright unto what is the right matter of the Duty, yea, and is Obeyed therein by the Heart. Holineſs and Integrity do always Eſſentially lye in urging to the right manner, and propounding right Ends in Duties, but it doth not always conſiſt Eſſentially in the Matter, or outward Duty to be performed. An Action for matter miſtaken, may yet in reſpect of the Ends of it be accepted, as in David's offering to build a Temple, but not e contra. So that in theſe Caſes what thou doeſt is out of Conſcience, but far off from Integrity. The Bow may be a ſtrong Bow, and the Arrow may be good, but if the Eye that ſhoot it be aſquint, and aims not at the right Mark, the Shot miſcarries ſo it is here.

2. What is truly and properly Integrity, but a Conformity of a Mans Heart and Actions unto the Rule? Even as Truth is ſaid to be an agreeableneſs unto that which is it's Rule; as truth in a Mans Speeches is an agreeableneſs to what is in the things that a Man ſpeaks of; and truth in the things themſelves is a Conformity to thoſe Ideas or Images of them which are in the mind of God, the Fountain of Truth. Now every Man's Conſcience being every Man's immediate Rule and Square; hence, when a Man's Actions are Conformed unto the Light that is therein, there may be ſaid to be (as to that reſpect, and within that ſphear) an Integrity in the Action which a Man doth according to his Light. But there is an higher rule above Conſcience (there is an higher than they, as Solomon ſpeaks, and one greater than our Conſciences, as John ſays) even the Word of God, which conſiſts of Spirit as well as the Letter, and ſo is a two-edged Sword, dividing between the Marrow and the Bones, which is a Judge and a diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the Heart, Heb. 4. 12. And to this Spiritual Light Conſcience it ſelf muſt be Conformed, ſet and turned, and by this Light the goodneſs of Conſcience is alone to be meaſured, and yet natural Conſcience utterly ſwerves from this Light, even when it directs to the Letter and outward Action. Hence therefore thoſe Actions ſo performed according to this Light, and Dictate of Conſcience, want that Integrity which is the Truth and Soul of them, becauſe they are not Conformed to, nor agreeing with the Supream Rule. 'Tis a Conſcientious work, but not a Work wrought in God; becauſe though 'tis a Conſcience, yet not a Conſcience of God (as Peter ſpeaks) in the Man which doth it. For Example, take a Church-Dyal, that is joyned to a Clock, al-

Book 6 though the Dyal follows the Clock never ſo truly, and ſo it's part there is a Conformity to it's next Rule, yet if the Clock be not ſet to the Sun, that is the ſupream Moderator and Keeper of time, it cannot be ſaid to be a true Dyal, nor a true Clock: For both the Clock and it alſo are appointed to tell the true Hour of the Day, wherein if they fail, they ſwerve from their Ordination they were (as ſuch) made for. So when the Dyal of thy outward Actions agrees with the Clock of thy Conſcience, and thy hand turns as the Clock moves it, yet if Conſcience it ſelf be not ſet right, and made conformable to God's Intereſt and Ends, who is the ſupream Rule of goodneſs and integrity, both are falſe to him, and err in what he is moſt concerned. In a word, as Truth is Conformitas rei cum archetypo ſummo, ſo Integrity of heart is Conformity of Conſcience, and of all in the Heart to the higheſt Rule: And yet when a Man ſpeaks as he thinks, and what he ſays is an untruth, though indeed it is not a Lye, for there is ſome integrity in his ſpeech; yet there is not an abſolute Integrity in relation to the thing that is ſpoken; for it is falſhood, and that which he ought not to ſpeak: So it is here in this caſe.

3. As for that Allegation concerning Abimelech, that his following his Light of Conſcience was accknowledged Integity by God himſelf, the Anſwer is,

1. That that Speech of God being in anſwer unto Abimelech's plea made, it is to be underſtood as ſpoken in the ſame ſenſe that Abimelech himſelf meant it. God talkt now with an Heathen, and ſpeaks not in the Language of his Sanctuary, nor in the dialects of that Court he means to keep at the day of Judgment, but by way of Conceſſion acknowledgeth ſuch an Integrity to have been therein, as Abimelech ſtood upon, viz. a moral Integrity; which is, when the Action that is outward, agrees to the inward Light that is in a man, and ſo is an Integrity in it's Kind, but not an Evangelical Integrity, ſuch as ſhould be accepted to the Salvation of a mans Perſon. If you bring me a braſs Shilling, and plead that it is good Braſs, good Metal, I ſhould readily acknowledge it ſuch: But if you preſs me to take it for a Shilling, or demand if it be good Coin? I deny it. Thus, in Ezekiel alſo God ſpeaks in their Language when he ſays, If a righteous man fall from his Righteouſneſs, &c. And ſuch alſo was that Speech of Paul, when ſpeaking of his unregenerate Eſtate he ſays of himſelf, That as touching the Righteouſneſs which is in the Law, he was blameleſs, (Phil. 3. 6, 7.) which muſt be underſtood of that kind of Righteouſneſs whereof he was there treating, which was that Righteouſneſs which was currant among his Fellow Phariſees. So (ſays he v. 5.) I was according to the Law a Phariſee. Yea, (v. 6) he reckons together with it, Perſecuting the Church, and all this the Phariſees judged an excellency. And he ſpeaks in all this but their Language: And he doth the very ſame, being call'd before a Court of Phariſees, (Acts 23. 1.) where being accuſed and brought before them as guilty of high Crimes, he makes his Apology, and Juſtifies his whole Cauſe in theſe words, I have lived in all good Conſcience before God to this day. He ſpeaks this in their Dialect according to what they accuſed him, according to their Principles accounted a good Conſcience. And beſides that, it had been to no purpoſe to have alledged his Integrity as a regenerate Chriſtian unto them that were no way apprehenſive of it; the 6th verſe ſhews alſo that his purpoſe was to get off from theſe his Enemies by pleading their Principles, and ſo in their ſenſe he might well ſay (as he doth) I have lived in all good Conſcience to this day. For what they counted living in a good Conſcience (and was the truth in him) that he had done all his Life. He had followed his Conſcience in all things according to their ſtricteſt Principles. But if you had brought him before God's Court, and bidden him ſpeak for himſelf, you ſhould have found him in another tone, as (in the ſame Phil. 3. 9.) You hear him uttering of himſelf, how for ten thouſand Worlds he would not be found in that Righteouſneſs. That I may be found in Chriſt (ſays he) not having mine own Righteouſneſs, which is of the

the Law. Now then as Paul speaking before Pharisees to justifie himself as in mans Court, speaks in their dialect; so God speaking to an Heathen (Abimelech) answers him in his, when he acknowledgeth in that action Integrity to have been in him. Chap. 9.

Or else (2.) It may be termed comparative Integrity as to that particular, in comparison to other Actions and Carriages of his against Conscience, and Acts of other men who sin against their Consciences: As a Judge that is free from Bribes and partiality, and injustice, is said to be a man of Integrity; that is, he is comparatively such as a Judge, tho' not in other respects, as a man personally. He may do Justice out of Vain-Glory or Importunity, as that unjust Judge did in the Gospell, and this is comparative Integrity, because he is free from those common Corruptions in judging, that others are subject to. And so compare the Carriage of Abimelech's Heart in this, with the ways of other Heathens, and it was Integrity; or with other of his Actions, and it was Integrity, but it was not absolutely so.

CHAP. IX.

That the Natural Conscience may approve of the Law, and commend the duties enjoyn'd, yet it is deficient in those Acts. A Discovery of those Defects.

THE next Head belonging to this Discovery, is a Consideration of the Defects of Natural Conscience in all those effects fore-mentioned, which are reduced unto two Generals.

I. A respect of what good the Law requires.

II. A Restraint of Sin or Evil.

I. As to a respect of what is good.

The two first Effects are,

I. That the Conscience approves of the Law and Duties thereof as good.

II. That it commends them as such to the Heart, and binds the Soul over to the performance of them.

The Query then is, whether these two be not the same with what are the proper effects of Grace (as to these two particulars) and what difference that is specifical may be assigned thereto. For (Rom. 7. 16.) This is recorded by Paul in the Name of men regenerate, and as the voice proper to them, it is the Voice of Jacob to consent to the Law that it is good. And so in (Rom. 12. 2.) to prove what is the good Will of God, is a proper effect of the Renewing of the Mind. And be not Conformed to this World, but be ye Transformed by the Renewing of your Mind, that ye may prove, what is that Good, that Acceptable, and Perfect Will of God.

To which I answer,

1. It is true, there is a great seeming affinity and likeness between the approbation and the Instigation of Natural Conscience and Renewed Conscience. For

Book VI

For the ſame word, the very ſame would not have been uſed to expreſs the one and the other by the Apoſtle (Rom. 2. 18,) and (Phil. 1. 10.) Of an unregenerate Jew he ſays in the one place, Thou knoweſt his Will, and approveſt the Things that are excellent; that is, the Things of the Law as excellent and good. And in the other (Phil. 1. 19.) Praying for Knowledge to be given to the Philippians (and if there were any Knowledge better than this, ſurely he would wiſh them it,) I pray, &c. That ye may approve the things that are Excellent. The words are the very ſame, and δοκιμάζειν the word there, is the ſame that is uſed (Rom. 12. 2.) when the Knowledge of a renewed Mind is ſpoken of. And it is taken from a Gold-Smith, that both tryes and allows of Silver as good and currant: And Silver ſo tryed is call'd δόκιμον. So as indeed there muſt needs be a Likeneſs.

2. The difference or deficiency of Natural Conſcience will be diſcovered by two Things. An Enquiry

1. Into the ſeveral Grounds of the Aſſent of regenerate and unregenerate Mens Conſciences.

2. The differing Manner of their Aſſent. And the Queſtion in both is, what is that proper goodneſs or excellency for which the one or the other doth approve of the Law as good.

Firſt, For Unregenerate there are two grounds, and perhaps many other which may help forward this Aſſent.

1. Some for the Wiſdom and Concordancy unto Reaſon which appears in that Law, and the Commands thereof. As Reaſon is man's Excellency, ſo what agrees with Reaſon, it approves as moſt excellent. The Heathens (as you heard) magnified the dictates of Conſcience under the notion of Right Reaſon, as the general Title they gave thereto, and ſo was the Ground of their aſſent and approbation. Now, the duties of the Law agree with the common Principles of right Reaſon in men, and the deductions out of thoſe common Principles, and alſo the Rules of it have the greateſt harmony and agreement in them one with the other that may be. And ſo far as Reaſon doth apprehend this, ſo far doth natural Knowledge and Conſcience acknowledge a goodneſs and an excellency therein. And to ſhew this was the ground of the aſſent to it, we have an expreſs Scripture ſpeaking of the Gentiles and their approbation of Moſes Law, as it was given to the Jews. And (Deut. 4. 6.) This is your Wiſdom in the ſight of all Nations, which ſhall hear all theſe Statutes and ſhall ſay, This is a wiſe and an underſtanding People. It is you ſee the Wiſdom, the Harmony to Reaſon they are taken with, and unto which the Law did ſupereminently approve it ſelf. This was Gallio's Principle, (Acts 18 14.) And when Paul was now about to open his Mouth, Gallio ſaid unto the Jews, If it were a matter of Wrong, or Wicked Lewdneſs, O ye Jews, Reaſon would that I ſhould bear with you. He ſaw reaſon why Wrong and Wickedneſs ſhould be puniſht, but for God's Worſhip he ſaw none. If it were a matter of Wrong and Wickedneſs, Reaſon would (ſays he) or as in the Original κατὰ λόγον, according to Reaſon I would bear with you; that is, liſten to you. But God's Worſhip and Paul's Doctrine he ſaw no reaſon for, and ſo it was out of his Element; beſides or above the Rule he judged of things by, and he thought it a juſt Excuſe. You ſee, he made Reaſon his profeſſed Rule; and as far as that gave him Light for his particular light, ſo far he judged of things of this Nature; and if others go further, yet ſtill by the ſame Rule. Thus Men in the Church, ſeeing no reaſon for the ſpiritual part of Religion and ſtrictneſs in God's ways, therefore account the ways of God Fooliſhneſs. (1 Cor. 2. 14.) The reaſon is, becauſe they ſee not the reaſon of them, for what we ſee no reaſon for, we uſe to account Folly.

Chap. 9.

A Second Ground which works on others to assent to the Law, that it is good, is, That they see how the whole and the particular Laws thereof do tend to the good of Men, and many of them Laws to a general and common good. God hath moulded and fitted the Commandments to the Condition of the reasonable Creatures and their good according to their Condition in this World, as well as for his own Glory, and to sanctifie himself, (Deut. 10. 13.) Which I command thee for thy good; That Consideration is put in as the Motive to Obedience, as being found in the Law. Men see that the tendency of the duties of the First Table, are for the good of mens Souls. Their Consciences acknowledge there is a God, and if so, then he must be worshipped or they cannot be quiet or happy. They have immortal Souls, that must live in another World, and therefore it is meet to apply themselves to this God according as he hath given command how he will be worshipped. Then for the Commands of the Second Table, All may readily see how they manifestly tend unto the general good of men. As the 5*th* Commandment, If there were not superiority and Obedience, as to Parents, Magistrates, &c. the World would prey one upon another, and all fall into Confusion. We should teach our Children to despise us when we come to be old and stand in need of their help. Thou shalt not murder; it is a Guard to the Lives of all. Thou shalt not steal; a Fence and Hedge to the Goods of all men. Nor commit Adultery. This proved that their own Children and not Strangers, should inherit mens Estates. Such Considerations as these, are found in most of the Commandments; and accordingly these, or whatever else like these may cause them thus to approve them.

I come to the Grounds whereupon a regenerate man doth further assent unto their goodness, upon which to be sure an unregenerate man doth not.

1. Not only because it accords with Reason, but also because it is an Expression of God's most blessed Will, which is the supream Rule of Goodness. And this especially commends it to a regenerate man also; Yea, and this commends it to him enough as good in some particulars wherein yet he sees no reason for it at present. David admires indeed the Equity, the Wisdom in the Law, for which he terms them the wonderful things of the Law. But that which commends it most to him was, that it was the Law of his mouth, as his expression is (Psal. 119) his Will, his Command who was the righteous and the holy God (Psal. 119. 138, 139.) Righteous thou art O Lord, and upright are thy Judgments, and thy Testimonies that thou hast commanded are Righteous and very Faithful. He assents to their goodness because God commands them. (Rom. 12. 1, 2.) Tho' the Service he is to perform to God, be reasonable Service (as some understand the word) yet the goodness that a renewed Mind approves in it, is, that it is the good and acceptable Will of God. And that is the goodness which the τὸ δοκιμάζειν, or the approbation of a renewed Mind there spoken of, pitcheth upon more eminently: That it is that which God commands, and that which God is pleased to accept when performed; this is it endears it to him, and for which he accounts it good. And therefore tho' he should see no reason, yet that it is God's Will, is enough to commend it to his Conscience. So it was to Abraham when God bad him sacrifice his Son. So to Ely, It is the LORD (says he, 1 Sam. 3.) let him do what seemeth to him good. What God thought good, he should think so too. Which holds as to endure God's suffering will, (which was the Case there) so to do his commanding Will. There is the same reason for both. You may see this in Christ (Psal. 40. Heb. 10. compared) Thy Law is in mine Heart; (Psal. 40. 8.) And I come to do thy Will. This principally commended the Command of laying down his Life, that it was his Fathers Will. Thy Will be done; and As my Father hath given Commandment, so do I, John 14. 31.

2. The

2. The moſt proper Goodneſs for which a regenerate man aſſents to the Law is, That in the ſpiritual part of it, it is the Image of God's Holineſs, and tends to ſet up God in the Hearts and Lives of men. We know the Law is holy and good, (Rom. 7.) which (v. 14.) he ſpeaks in reſpect of the Spiritualneſs of it. (Pſal. 119. 140.) Thy Law is pure (ſays David) therefore thy Servant loves it. Purity is the holineſs of it; as it is the Image of God's Purity. Bleſſed are the pure in Heart, that is, the holy in Heart. And all Holineſs lyes in ſetting God up. And the more of this he ſpies ſtampt upon any Command, the more he aſſents to that Commandment as good. To which purpoſe 'tis obſervable (Neh. 9. 13, 14.) That having ſaid that God gave them good Laws and Statutes, and ſo calling them good becauſe God gave them, he inſtanceth in the following verſe only in that of the Sabbath. Oh that Commandment, it was a good Commandment indeed: And why? But becauſe it was to be kept Holy to God, God is to be Sanctified upon that day, and to that end it was appointed, and an whole day ſet apart to that end, this took his Heart.

The 2*d* thing I mentioned to manifeſt this difference, was the differing Manner of this Aſſent of the one and the other. In an Unregenerate Man it is rather an Aſſent of Reverence than of free Approbation.

There is a Majeſty of the Lords which ſhines in the Uprightneſs of his Law, and in the Lives of his Saints, as they are Conformed thereto. Iſa. 26. 10. The Life of this Tranſcendental Goodneſs of Holineſs ſhining in the Law, lights upon the Conſcience, as the ſplendor of the Sun doth upon a ſore Eye, and finding it hath a Commanding brightneſs in it, it cannot but yield to be Glorious. For if it ſhould deny this, it's own winking at it and being dazeled with it, would confute it ſelf. And this the Apoſtle holds forth, (2 Cor. 3. 7.) alledging concerning the Law, that ſuch was the Glory that ſhined in Moſes his Countenance who was the Deliverer of it, that the People could not ſteadfaſtly behold it. It was ſo as they could not but acknowledge that there was a Glory in it, which typified forth what their Hearts did towards the Law it ſelf. But as I ſaid before, this is rather a Commanded extorted reverential Aſſent the Conſcience gives to this it's goodneſs, than free and out of liking and ingenious eſtimation of it. So as Men's Conſciences rather ſay as thoſe in Acts 4. 16. We cannot deny it, than that we do freely like it. Look what kind of Approbation their Hearts give to the Holineſs and Righteouſneſs that ſhines in an Upright Man, the ſame and no other it doth or can give to the Law it ſelf; for the Reaſon of both is the ſame, Holineſs in a Godly Man being but the ſame Law Written in his Life, that is given in his Word. Now then obſerve what kind of Approbation it is a Wicked Man gives unto the Holineſs of an Upright Man, and the ground of it. Herod he was Convinced of John's Holineſs and Juſtneſs, it was an aſſent of Fear and Reverence; He knew, ſays the Text, he was a Juſt and an Holy Man, (Mark. 6. 20.) But withal it is ſaid, Herod feared John knowing he was a Juſt Man, and an Holy, and obſerved him. And thus it is that Men aſſent to the Law as Holy: That part of it which Reveals the Image and the Glory of God in it, it commands an Aſſent and a Subjection to it, rather than they freely give it, an Aſſent of Reverence not of Love. So then it is rather Aſſent in a Wicked Man, than Conſent, which implies a willing yielding up the Mind to it, and of all in a Man. That Word uſed Rom. 7. 16. συμφημι τῷ νομῳ, I conſent to the Law, is emphatical. It Engliſhed is this, I ſay together with the Law, that it is good: Implying that it is Free and Ingenious, and that all in a Man together ſay and joyn with the Conſcience, that it is a good Law, there was a joint Vote or Suffrage of all the Facultics. Here is Conſent, not Aſſent only. 'Tis one thing to Receive the Truth, another thing to Receive it in the Love of it. Thoſe in the Theſſalonians received the Truth, but not in the Love of it, they Aſſented to it, but they Conſented not to it. And therefore if you obſerve it in that place before quoted, 1 Phil. 10. though the ſame Phraſe is uſed, that is uſed Rom. 2. of an Unregenerated Man; that the one is ſaid to approve things Excellent, as well as the other, yet there is this added by way of difference, that your Love may abound in Knowledge, that ye may approve the the things that are Excellent. It is an Approbation out of Knowledge, rooted in or joined with Love. Chap. 9

And that Wicked Mens Assent is but such as hath been described, appears by this, that they wish there was no such Law, no such Duties to bind them. As Balaam, though he assented to that word God gave him, and could speak no other, yet wished for, and desired some other Message; yea the contrary: So doth the Conscience and Heart of an Unregenerate Man. And therefore (Jer. 5. 5.) their Knowledg of the Law is compared to Bonds; as also (Psal. 2.) to Cords. For as they endeavour to imprison their Light in Unrighteousness, so they account themselves as Prisoners Fettered with the Cords of it, which they would break or shake off. Whereas a Regenerate Man looks on them as Bracelets. (So Prov. 6. 21, 22. Bind them about thine Heart, and Tye them about thy Neck) Which a Man puts Voluntarily upon him, and looks at as Ornaments. For though they Reverence the Law, yet they may wish it were not. Reverence is often severed from Love. When an Austere Holy Tutor keeps a Rakehell in awe, he may Reverence his Tutor much, as a Man that is good, and wisheth his good, and yet wish he were from him, and out of his Tuition.

The Second Effect mentioned, was, That Conscience commends the Law to the Heart as good, and lays an Injunction upon it, for the performance of it.

There are Two things in Natural Conscience makes it put two steps towards this; but there is a Third in which it fails, and makes an halt.

1. Conscience Assents to the goodness of the Duties of the Law in the General, that they are good to be done in such respects forementioned.

And 2. It further also particularly tells the Heart, that it ought now at this time to do them; yet it cannot bring the Heart to assent, that the performance of these Duties are particularly good to him, that is, that his good lyes in the performance of them.

Or thus: There is, 1. An Assent of Reason, that in General it is good. 2. An Assent of his Subjection to it, that he ought to do it out of a Sense of the Majesty and Superiority it hath over him. But 3. Not an Assent of Suitableness, or Sympathy, or mutual delight, that it is best for him; which Assent is in a Godly Man's Judgment to be found. For as he is said to Consent to the Law that it is good, so to delight in the Law as good. And the word συνήδομαι, implies a joint Delight, a Concurrence of all in him in that delight. Even as that other word συμφήμι imported a joynt suffrage, or consent, and both as between things suitable, both argued the Commands as suited his whole Man: Psal. 119. 78. sets forth and illustrates his sense and meaning herein by this opposite Comparison, Their Heart is as fat as Grease, but I delight in thy Law. The Comparison carries this with it, that the same Natural delight which in outward things they found suiting with, and nourishing their Carnal Hearts to a fatness, and contentment, the same I find in thy Law, as suiting all within my Soul; and v. 72. The Law of thy Mouth is better to me than Thousands of Gold and Silver. Not better in it self only, but better to me, says he. And this ariseth out of a suitableness and sweetness of Taste, which v. 66. holds forth, Teach me good Judgment and Knowledge. That which is Translated good Judgment, signifies good Taste, It being the same word that is used, Psal. 34. 9. Taste and see how good the Lord is, So David Prayed there for two sorts of Knowledge of the things of the Law. 1. Scientiam Visus, which he calls Knowledg, whereby Men see the Commandments to be good in the General; and not this only, but also, 2*dly*, Scientiam Gustus, Knowledge of Taste, that is, that he might have a Rectified Pallate to taste the goodness that is in the Commandments and the keeping of them. And this will lead us to another Note of Difference besides the former given upon that place, 1 Phil. 10.

Book VI (where when the ſame words are uſed of a Regenerate Man's approving, that are uſed of an Unregenerate Man's, Rom. 2. 18. as was ſhewed: And therefore we had need to take hold of what differences the place will give) and it is the ſame we are now upon; he Prays they may abound in all Knowledg and in all ſenſe, πάσῃ αἰσθήσει, a Knowledg that had Senſe and Taſte join'd with it, that ſo they might, namely upon ſuch a Knowledg, approve the things that are Excellent. And ſo this Prayer of Pauls accords fully with that of David, Give me good Judgment, or ſenſe of Taſte and Knowledge; which two words Paul uſeth, and our Tranſlators have rendred as the former, Knowledge and Judgment. And accordingly v. 68th of that Pſalm, we find the greateſt good that David deſired, was to know and keep theſe Statutes; his words are theſe, Lord, thou art good, and doſt good. And what is the mind and meaning of theſe ſo deep Concernments? But this, Lord, as thou haſt Infinite Goodneſs in thee, and as ever thou intendeſt to do me good, yea, and if ever thou wilt do any good for me, do this. What? Teach me thy Statutes. If God from Heaven ſhould have bidden him to ask one Requeſt that was moſt Eminent in his Heart and Deſires, it ſhould have been this, Teach me thy Statutes. This is a Preface to a Petition which his Heart muſt be in, in a peculiar and extraordinary manner affected with, that he ſhould urge it upon the higheſt Conſideration that can be alledged. For he calls upon, and urgeth all the goodneſs that is in God's Nature: Thou art good, and alſo all thoſe vaſt purpoſes of his doing us good, which is above all we are able to ask or think.

Natural Conſcience is able to Judge in the General, that the Law is better, than ſin, and that to Obey it is better. Therefore Peter appeals even to thoſe Wicked Phariſees, Acts 5. 39. Whether is it better to Obey God or Man, judge ye. And Socrates had done the like even to the Conſciences of the Heathen Athenians in the ſame words well nigh, ſo that take it in the Abſtract propoſal of it, and no Man can deny it. But out of ſuitableneſs, &c. to Judg that it was better for them in particular; as David ſaid, the Law of thy Mouth is better to me; This particular Aſſent out of Experience, is joined with the Taſte which unregenerate Men want. It is an Aſſent I ſay out of Experience of their goodneſs. For as they find a ſuitableneſs to them in themſelves, and a Taſte of their goodneſs; ſo they find they do them good. So Mic. 2. 7. Do not my words do good to them that are good?

And whereas it will be Objected, Doth not Conſcience tell Men it would be better for them if they would Obey, and that it will go worſe with them, if they do not, and ſo preſents the Duty as particularly beſt for them?

Therefore I add this Third Concluſion concerning their Aſſent: That it is one thing to preſent a thing as good for me by Conſequent, another thing as good to me ſimply conſidered in it ſelf ſuch; as for Example, A Phyſician preſents a Potion to a Patient, and bids him Drink it, tells him that it is good for him, that is by Conſequent good for him, becauſe it will reſtore him and deliver him from Death. But all the Phiſicians in the World can never perſwade him, that it is ſimply good, and of it ſelf good for him; for his own Smell, Pallate and Stomach tell him to his Teeth the contrary, and are ready to riſe up againſt it: And thus even when Conſcience tells a Man ſuch and ſuch Duties of the Law are good for him, it can nor doth ſay no more in effect but that they are good by conſequent, that the Omiſſion of them will be Death to him. But not all the Angels in Heaven, nor Miniſters on Earth, can never work an Aſſent in him, that in themſelves they are good for him, per ſe, ſimply good. No, for his Corrupt Heart and Judgment tells him the contrary, and he finds no Reliſh in them, in his Knowledge of Senſe (ſpoken of) even his Heart pronounceth the contrary. Thus indeed, and in this ſenſe a Righteous Man may look upon the greateſt Afflictions he ever had, as good for him, that is, by conſequent, It is good for me (I was Afflicted) but not of themſelves, no Man rejoiceth in them. There is no Affliction, but but for the preſent in it ſelf is grievious, yet by Conſequent he looks on it as good, that is, that will work for good: But at no hand as upon things which a man would have to chooſe, as wherein his happineſs lyes. But lo! that you may diſcern upon what terms a Godly man judgeth them good. Afflictions (which are in themſelves ſo grievous) David eſteemed good, and profitable and comfortable unto him. For this reaſon, that God uſed them as means to teach him his Statutes. Thus, (Pſal. 119. 71.) It was good for me that I was afflicted, that I might learn thy Statutes. That muſt needs be good ſimply and in it ſelf to a mans eſteem, which will ſweeten and make Afflictions, and the bittereſt of Afflictions, good in his Eſteem: Yet ſuch are Gods Statutes to an holy Heart. So that to conclude, this Natural Conſcience in ſuch a man may tell him, that this or that Duty is to be done, and that he had beſt do it, or that it is beſt it be done; but never that the very doing of it is beſt for him. Of the bitter Potion, they may ſay it is beſt to be drunk by them: But that it ſhould be judg'd and found beſt by a man in the preſent drinking of it, as Food is, ſo it is not nor can be. And yet the Commandments were ſuch to David; In keeping thy Commandments there is great reward (Pſal. 19.) This for the two firſt effects. Chap. 10

CHAP. X.

Tho' Natural Conſcience may prevail with men to do the Duties requir'd, yet not for Conſcience ſake, in the Senſe which the Scripture gives.

Natural Conſcience prevails with men to do that good which it enjoins; and that not only out of outward Reſpects or worldly Motives, but upon Principles and workings of Conſcience: But the main Queſtion or Thing to be ſearched out in this, is, What it is in Scripture ſenſe truly and acceptably to do a Thing for Conſcience ſake. For diſcovery of which I muſt have recourſe Firſt, in the General unto what I have before premiſed, as an undoubted and undeniable Concluſion (by which all our Actions will be Judged at the latter Day) That in the Ballance and Eſtimate of the Scripture, Nothing is acceptably done for Conſcience ſake, but what is principally done for God, as our utmoſt End, and for Conſcience principally as reſpecting God as ſuch. Which laid as a Foundation (and it is the great Foundation of the practick part of our Religion,) All under pretences of doing things for Conſcience, with which men ſooth up themſelves, will preſently vaniſh and come to nothing. When the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the Actings of that Affection of Sorrow for ſin (1 Cor. 7. 11.) I rejoyce not (ſays he) in that ye ſorrowed, but in that ye ſorrowed κατὰ Θεὸν, that is, for and according to God; and as looking at God and his Intereſt, as the moving Cauſe thereto. The Rule there given concerning the acceptableneſs of that affection of Sorrow for ſin for its Object, holds true and good of Conſcience and every Faculty, and the workings of it. So that if you ſorrow for ſin, committed againſt God, yet if not κατὰ Θεὸν, reſpecting him chiefly therein, it is not (in Scripture ſenſe) accounted Godly Sorrow. And ſo if you do never ſo much out of never ſo violent and efficatious Impulſes of Conſcience, yet if Conſcience doth not therein move in the vertue of reſpect to God chiefly, it is not to be accounted a good Conſcience. And this latter is founded upon the ſame equitable reaſon whereupon the former is founded. For there is the ſame meaſure of Holineſs in one Faculty that is to be found in another. If Sorrow for ſin ſtirrs upon under reſpects and not for God, it is not true Sorrow, altho' Sorrow for ſin. So if Conſcience in thee ſtirrs up any under-respects, (which it is capable of) and not chiefly for God, it is not Con- Book 9 science for God, though Conscionable Respects may move thee.

So then, here lyes the Spirit of the Answer to these Allegations of the effects of Natural Conscience, which pierce thro' and annull them all: That in Scripture sense, and in the sense of true Religion, to do a thing for Conscience sake, is opposed to all such respects as Conscience it self is capable of, if it fall short of this.

I alledged one Scripture to this purpose, unto which I shall join another, and Compare both together, (Rom. 13. 15.) Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for Wrath but also for Conscience sake. He had used in the words afore this Motive for obedience to Magistrates, that He is the Minister of God, a Revenger to execute Wrath (namely, God's Wrath on thee for sin) if thou do evil; and then inferrs, Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for Wrath but also for Conscience sake: Namely, to be subject to the Magistrate for Wraths sake as your end: Yea, for the Conscience to look up unto God as he that pours out his Wrath by him (as God speaks 2 Chron. 12. 7. My Wrath shall not be poured out by the hand of Shishack.) Yea and by the same Reason to look upon him as God that will pour forth wrath himself immediately upon thee; thus to eye God is not for Conscience sake. This is but to eye his Wrath, and thy self, although God be objectively eyed in it. Therefore that Respect which is left for Conscience to eye in God, is God himself, as severed from that or the like respects. In opposition to that other of Wrath this is put, to obey for Conscience sake. If you would be further satisfied herein, take and join with it, 1 Pet. 2. 19. This is thankworthy if for Conscience towards God ye suffer grief. He speaks to Servants under froward Masters, exhorting them to obey them (v. 18.) as in the former place he spake to Subjects to obey their Magistrates, and in both singleth forth God as the chief Motive, and that unto Conscience. And what in the one he termeth Obedience for Conscience sake, in the other he termeth Conscience of God, διὰ συνείδησιν θεοῦ. Now it being evident, that God subjectively hath not a Conscience proper to him, his meaning therefore must be, that our Consciences should be the Consciences of God, that is, of God tanquam objectum finale, as respecting him as our end whom our Consciences should principally eye and look unto; which (v. 20.) following, expounds: This is acceptable with God (says he) as presenting to us this Motive, this will take Gods Heart, and be pleasing to him. So look, as Sorrow, because it is moved chiefly by what concerns him, is called Sorrow κατὰ Θεόν, Sorrow for God; Or Fear when it is chiefly terminated on God, sanctifying and exalting God in our Hearts (as 1 Pet. 2. 15.) is styled the Fear of God, as in like sense Sincerity of Heart is termed Sincerity of God: So in the Greek (2 Cor. 1. 12.) In like manner Conscience, when it respects God chiefly, and fetcheth its Motives from him, it is termed Conscience of God, as observing or respecting none else, or nothing else above him. It is Gods Conscience in that respect more than thine own. Yea, and if Conscience had not had other respects to have been moved by, this Distinction, Conscience of God, needed not to have been made: As not that about Sorrow, which for the same cause the Apostle maketh (2 Cor 7. 11.) Sorrow for God.

Now this Conclusion being thus firmly laid, those pretensions from the effects of Natural Conscience, (whether that it prevaileth to carry the Heart on unto action, or that not outward respects move, but Principles and Workings of Conscience do,) instantly fall to the ground upon the putting this one thing to the Question, But is it Conscience of God that moves thee? This in General.

2. But more particularly what do men take, for what is done for Conscience sake, and so judge it to be Integrity.

1. Men ignorantly imagine that Sincerity and Integrity of Heart lyes in opposition to outward respects and Worldly Considerations. So that if a mans

Heart

Heart be not chiefly moved by such kind of Motives, as if the Wind of Vain-Glory, doth not set this Mill a going, nor the golden Key of covetous desires turn not about the Wards, but if they be motions from Conscience within: Then they think that their Hearts must needs be sincere and right. But they do not consider, Chap. 10

1. That the Spring of Conscience within will move, not only without, but sometimes against all such Respects: So in Judas, and so in Balaam, who crossed their dearest worldly Lusts, and yet the chief Motive it useth shall not be taken from God himself.

2. Men will not see, nor are able to discern that great Beam that is in the eye of Conscience it self; Not only because it is their own eye, but also because Conscience it self is the supream Judge. They will not be brought, to imagine that self-love (that's the Beam I mean) should be the predominant principle in Conscience, as well as in other Faculties, but they think all that Conscience acts must needs be sincere: Not considering what that means, that there is a Defiled Conscience. (Titus 1. 16.) And that Conscience in its urging Motives to obedience shews it self as full of Self as any other Faculty. As Christ says in another Case, first make thy Conscience good, and then the Effects will be good: Otherwise let it be Conscience which prevails and acts thee; it will nothing availthee as to Salvation.

Again, 3dly. Men judge those only to be outward respects which are taken from Things of this World, not dreaming that things of an higher Order and Nature (of which Conscience alone is apprehensive) do become by-respects when Conscience of God is not the chief.

Again, Men consider not that all Motives moving us, or prevailing with us unto that which the inward Bent and Stream and Current of the Heart is against, are in a true sense extrinsecal and outward Motives as well as Worldly, if they compare them with the movings and actings of a regenerate and renewed Conscience which works naturally, and with the joint Concurrence of the rest of the Faculties, as hath been said. That is properly an outward Motive which is against the Hair, against the Nature of a thing, and pondus of its Inclination, as when water is forced some way it would not run. Now if thy Conscience moves thee (though it be thy Conscience) to such duties as the frame of thine Heart is wholly contrary and averse unto, as to pray, to read the Word, to keep the Sabbath, unto which thou hast no inward Genius nor Inclination spiritual (these Laws not being written in thine Heart) in these thy Conscience is a violent and a forcible Worker, as truely as when outward and worldly respects do move. You all esteem the Fear of man to be an outward Motive and respect, and yet Fear is an Affection seated in our Nature and within us, and so moves from within: And yet being pitcht upon an Object which overcomes us unto what else we would not do, we use to say an outward respect moves that man. The reason is the same of the Motions of Consciences, which is but such another Principle within thee as Fear is. If Conscience apprehending the Wrath of God as an Avenger, chiefly moves thee, thy Heart is as much wrung and wrested (when thine Inclination is contrary to the thing commanded) as when the Fear of man doth move thee.

Again, Men consider not, that God himself and his Law doth then only become an intrinsecal Mover of thee in thy Conscience, when thy whole Soul hath first begun to own, entertain and receive him as thy chiefest end, and so thou hast taken in his Interest as natural to thee as thine own, when God is become Intimior intimo nostro, then, and not till then it is that Conscience moves thee as an internal Principle, and not before: But if God and thy Soul remain still at a distance, as Strangers, and thou hast not yet closed with him, all the Motives that are fetcht from him are forreign and out-outward unto thee, as much as if drawn from any Worldly thing whatever.

2. A Second Miſtake concerning what is done for Conſcience is, That Men Judg that what is done by means, or by the Influence of Conſcience any way, that it is done for Conſcience ſake, whereas many things are done,

1. Upon the ſtirrings of Conſcience.

2. Upon Reſpects which pertain ſome way unto Conſcience only, which yet fall ſhort of Conſcience of God. And therefore although Conſcience be the principal mover and ſwayer of ſuch effects, yet ſtill in Scripture ſenſe it is not ſaid to be done for Conſcience ſake. When the workings or ſtirrings and troubles of Conſcience ſet Men a work, and carry them on to Actions, they then put ſuch Actions upon this account; That they are done for Conſcience ſake: and this falls out in two Caſes.

1. The Firſt Ordinary, when at the importunity, and continual doggings, and yawlings of their Conſciences they do what they do to ſatisfie their Conſcience, which is the Heathens Phraſe, Conſcienti ſatisficiamus. Conſcience in many Men continually lies at them to perform or do ſuch or ſuch a Duty, and they do it. Conſcience is as the diſeaſe of the Wolf, if it be not fed daily with ſuch and ſuch Duties performed, it will feed upon a Man's own Heart and Breaſt. But this is not doing a thing for Conſcience ſake, but indeed for quietneſs ſake, and for Peace ſake. As a Man yields to, and doth many things to pleaſe a Shrew, that is, as a continual dropping in of Rain; a Man in that Caſe is not ſaid to do it for her ſake: but for a quiet Life. (Now many Men have ſhrewiſh Conſciences) as Dalilah prevailed with Sampſon, ſhe wearied him of his Life, (Judg. 16. 16.) And as that Judg (Luke 19.) yielded not for the Womans ſake, but for her importunity, becauſe ſhe wearied him. Some Men love to be at eaſe, to have nothing lie upon their Thoughts, to Sleep quietly, and to keep a perpetual Calm, and ſerenity of Mind: And out of the ſame Principle that they contrive to avoid other Croſſes; out of the ſame Principle and no other, they avoyd being dogg'd by their Conſciences; take a great deal of pains to ſtill the Child. In this though they act upon Conſcience, and obey Conſcience, yet ſtill they do it not for God in their Conſciences. A Maſter ſends a Conſtable to fetch home a Run-away Servant, and the Conſtable hales and pulls him along, he Obeys properly neither the Conſtable nor his Maſter, but leaſt of all his Maſter: So 'tis here.

2. There are alſo over and above this ordinary working of the Importunity of Conſcience from Day to Day, which prevails to action, ſome extraordinary Terrors of Conſcience, which do ſeize upon Men as Arreſts in the name of God, both calling upon us for Arrears, and Non-payment of Duties, as alſo reſtraining from Evils we have formerly run into, and which like a Mighty ſtream carry on our Hearts in the Current and Channel of Obedience: which was Judas's Caſe, when the Wrath of God was upon his Conſcience, he Repented, Confeſſed, Reſtored, and would have done any thing. Now if he had Liv'd, could he have Pleaded, or at the latter Day ſhould that Plea be Accepted, I did all this for Conſcience ſake? No, and yet all this was done upon the Impulſes and Violent provocations of Conſcience. As for Terrors from God: Conſcience is the only Principle that is apprehenſive of them, and all other faculties by means thereof: God is the Father of Spirits, and chaſtiſeth Men's Spirits, and Conſcience is that tender place which lies expoſed to, and which is moſt ſenſible of his Laſh, and to be acted by this ſmart in doing, is but to be led by ſenſe, as Bruits are, and not by Conſcience, though Conſcience be that ſenſible part, the torture of which extorts it. Now this then is a Manifeſt and Groſs miſtake, that becauſe Conſcience is the Subject of ſuch feelings and ſmarts, that therefore what men do hereupon, they do for Conſcience ſake; that they abstain from such a Sin for Conscience, when as the true English and proper Sense you must resolve it into, is the same with this, A Rogue dares not forswear himself for his Ears sake, nor a Thief steal for his Neck sake; so nor these Men for their Conscience sake, Conscience being the part subjected to this Punishment, anxiety and Disquietment, as those Members mentioned in those other Cases use to be. Chap. 10

To Conclude, In these Cases, and of these Men, it may be said, That Conscience makes them do what they do, rather than that they make Conscience of what is done, or of the doing of it: or they may be said to do these things for Conscience, in a Philosophical Sense, because Actings and Stirrings in Conscience are the efficient cause of them, But still not in a Theological Scripture Sense, according to which (as hath been inculcated) a Man is then only said to do a thing for Conscience sake, when Motives of God chiefly carry us on thereto.

The other Head of mistakes mentioned, was when such Respects move us, as pertain only, or properly unto Conscience, and when men act upon such respects, they still think the Action is done for Conscience sake. This is distinct from the former. For the former speak of Violent Impulses of Conscience efficiently, this speaks of Conscionable Considerations, or Respects Objectively. Now there are many Conscionable Respects which belong only to Conscience below God, which act Men: Which yet when they find, they perswade themselves they do it for pure Conscience sake.

As 1. There is a Rational Principle of Equity and Morality. A Man is alone, Conscience prompts him, what thou wouldst not have another do to thee, do not to another. This is Currant Reason. And the Reason of this Principle prevails with the Man, and no outward Respect. In this Case 'tis certain, that a meer Conscionable Respect prevailed: But how remote is this from Conscience of God. This is Conscience indeed of a Just and Good Principle, but not of God. Men do much to stick to their own Principles. Men will not be false to their own Rules, nor Conscious to themselves, that they are so. The Text here says of these Gentiles, that they were a Law unto themselves; and the truth is, that they made their own Principles their God, and men are obedient to them as unto God, and satisfie themselves herewith.

2. Conscience of the superiority of the Law, and the subjection the Heart hath to it, moves men much, and is a conscientious respect beyond all outward respects. The reason of the Law might and would move one if the Case were between Equals, if we and the Law were supposed such. Job says (Chap. 31. 13.) That he would hear his Servants Cause when they spoke reason: But the Law hath a natural Authority, Majesty, Superiority over the Conscience. It is the Husband, the Heart, the Wife which (as Rom. 7. 1, 2.) hath dominion over a man. The meer Sight of their Masters, with the noise of their Whipps, put to flight a whole Army of Russian Slaves, and brought them to obedience. So upon the very hearing of a Duty or a Threatning, Conscience acknowledgeth it ought to be subject. But still this is but Conscience of the Duty, or of the external part of the Law, not Conscience of God.

3. There is Conscience of the excellency that is in vertuous actions to adorn a man, this is also a Conscientious respect, which Natural Conscience may apprehend. Plato said, That if vertue were seen with bodily eyes, it would ravish all men with the sight of it, and the love of it. He saw something in it made him say so. Conscience may see and approve an excellency in many vertues, and judge and affect it as their excellency. So did Socrates.

So

So Paul (Phil. 3. 7.) accounted the righteouſneſs of the Law his Excellency: He ſays he accounted it Gain to him. And therefore as the Ermine, counting her white skin her excellency, when ſhe is hunted will die rather than go thro' a Puddle to defile it: So will many men die rather than blemiſh or ſtain their Innocency, as it is their excellency. And ſo is that of the Heathen to be underſtood, Oderunt peccare boni virtutis amore. And this men will not do, though in ſecret; they will not be conſcious of a baſe act, they will not have occaſion to think vilely of themſelves. As a man that is of a curious neat Spirit, and affects it as an excellency, he will not do an uncomely act, no not in ſecret; it is againſt his Spirit to do it: So nor will men defile that excellency their Conſcience apprehends ſuch. And it muſt be acknowledged, that many of the Heathen ſaw that in Vertue which made them love it for it's own excellency, and as it put an Ornament on their Souls. They profeſſed to do things virtutis amore, for the love of Vertue, they renounced vain-glory and ſuch outward reſpects in many of their actions. This indeed was a conſcientious reſpect in them, yet ſtill it is not Conſcience of God. For if vertue be conſidered as an Ornament (as Conſcience may apprehend it, which ſets a man up in his own eſteem and others) that adorns the Mind, as Learning doth, men may affect it, and love it and ſeek it, but ſtill ſo as it falls into the ſame ſphere and account that glorying in any other particular doth, be it either Honour or Learning. Yea, and if it could be ſuppoſed, that a man prized true Grace thus, chiefly as it is an Ornament to a mans Soul, but yet abſtracted from God, and not directed in order to him, this would be as great a ſin, as thoſe other Luſts in men are, who value either Honours or ſuch othet particular good things: For the reaſon were the ſame. And yet this was apparently the Heathens higheſt excellency, who thus left God out even in their higheſt Attainments. But Peter ſpeaking of a vertue (and in it ſelf but a moral vertue) Meekneſs (1 Pet. 3, 4.) ſays that as it is directed to God, being taken up, and exerciſed out of Conſcience of God, and as it is acceptable to him (as the ſame Peter ſpeaks in his ſecond Chapter) So it is an Ornament of great price with God. And then God himſelf is reſpected in it: For nothing takes with God, but what relates unto himſelf.

Mallem famam boni viri perdere quam Conſcientiam.

To Conclude, in all theſe there is Conſcience of an Idol (as Paul ſpeaks) be it vertue for it ſelf, be it Grace, but not Conſcience of God. Theſe are all Conſcionable reſpects, Druggs only found in Conſciences Natural Garden: But ſtill the main ingredient, that ſhould ſet all awork, is wanting.

CHAP.

CHAP. IX.

Another Deficiency in Natural Conscience is, That it may eye the Command, and yet not Obey for the sake of the Command, nor regard God as the utmost End in their Obedience.

ANOTHER Effect mentioned, was, that Natural Conscience in it's Instigations to Obedience, had a real respect unto God, and unto the Command of God. Laban (Gen. 31. 29.) forbare to hurt Jacob, having a Respect to Gods Charge given over Night: So likewise did Balaam, (Numb. 22. 18.)

Of this I have spoken much before, what it is to have a Conscience of God, and to do things from such a Conscience. Yet here some things practical may be added for the discovery of this, both as to the difference in the thing it self, and also as to the deceits Men run into, in thinking they act for God, and for his Command. The Foundation of which Deceit lies in this, that Corrupt Nature in us thinks much at every thing we do for God, and also having slight Apprehensions and Regards of God we are apt to put him off with any kind of Respects had to him, and we thereby so easily come to deceive our selves in a Conceit, that we act and do for him, when 'tis nothing less.

1. For that Respect which Men may have to the Command.

1. Men may have an Eye to the Command, when yet they Obey not for the sake of the Command: And so (as one says) Deo obtemperant non obsequuntur. If Men take the Command into their Thoughts, if they look at the Command as the material cause of their Obedience, and the examplary cause they are to square their Actions to, they think they perform that regard to the Command that is due to it; when yet they regard it not so, as to do the thing because it is Commanded. They look to it as their Chart to direct, but not as the Spring that should move and steer them in and unto their Obedience. A Slave may diligently repeat over and over in his thoughts, and be carefull to remember exactly the Command of his Master, as well as a Son the Command of his Father; but yet still in the Slave it is not kindly Obedience, such as is performed chiefly with respect to his Command, as in a Son it is; Whereas David describing a Godly Man and his Obedience (Psal. 119. 1, 2, 3.) at the 4*th verse* shews the ground he looks at in his Obedience; Thou hast Commanded me to keep thy Precepts diligently. Others do it out of Conscience so Commanding, but not out of Conscience of the Command; which usually appears in this, that Conscience lets us alone in some Commands, when it is Vehement in urging others.

2. In looking at God in their Obedience, Men are willing to deceive themselves many ways.

1. They may have a real regard unto God as the Object of the Service they perform, and with this they do but delude themselves, if it be not also superscribed and directed to him. Now in all Duties of Worship performed by us, God is the Person to whom intentionally a Man directeth it; as in praying, the Perſon ſpoken unto is God; in Hearing, the Perſon that ſpeaks to us is God, and we give him the hearing, as making account that a God ſpeaks to us. Now, this may be, and yet ſtill our ſelves may be the final Cauſe or end for whoſe ſake, and upon whoſe intereſt the Duty is performed. I may ſpeak to a man, as the perſon to whom my ſpeech is directed, when yet it is my own buſineſs for which it is intended; and ſo I ſpeak but for my ſelf. And thus a man may perform a Service even to an Enemy, (as Laban and Balaam did) and intend and mind them as the Object of their Service, but not as the End. Conſcience herein carries a man towards God, but this is not Conſcience of God. They pray toward him rather than to him. When it is ſaid (Zach. 5. 7.) They faſt, but not to me; it cannot be ſo underſtood as if God was not the Object of the Duty, or the perſon it was directed and addreſſed unto (for they could not take on them to faſt but that they dealt with him, and made their ſupplications to him) but the defect or default that is found is, that they made him not the End of thoſe duties. They faſt (ſays God) but not to me: And yet men are content to run away with this, as that regard which is due to God, in being in ſome regard a real reſpect.

2. They may further look to God as the Author and Efficient of the Command, and the Rewarder of the performance of it, and the Puniſher of the Breach of it, when ſtill they reſpect him not in their obedience as the final Cauſe. They look to him as from whom the Command comes, but they obey it not for his ſake, and ſo Conſcience moves from God, but not effectually for God. They return (ſays God) but not to the moſt high, (Hoſ. 7. 16.) An unregenerate mans Conſcience looks to God the Commander, as well as a regenerate mans, but then it is either as a Slave hath an eye to his Maſter, which is termed Eye-ſervice, as not being done heartily for him, (Col. 3. 22, 23. compared) or as an Hireling on his Maſter; or as a condemned man upon his Judge: But a godly man looks at God as one whoſe intereſt he hath made his own, and is therefore glad that God will command him. A godly man loves the Command the better becauſe it comes from God, and loves God the better becauſe he is pleaſed to command and uſe him. And when it is thus, then a mans Works are ſaid to be wrought in God. (John 3. 21) The want of which is oppoſitely that which makes other mens Works evil. (v. 20.) For every one that doth evil, hateth the Light, neither cometh to the Light, leſt his Deeds ſhould be reproved. But he that doth truth, cometh to the Light, that his deeds may be made manifeſt that they are wrought in God. Where you ſee, to do the Truth, or to act ſincerely, is all one as to work our works in God, that is, chiefly upon his Intereſt. It is termed (2 Cor. 1. 12.) Sincerity of God, as having reſpect to him, as if none elſe were concerned: And no other eying God in his Commands (as appears by that place) will ſatisfie a regenerate Conſcience.

3. Men may have a real reſpect to the Glory of God, when yet not to that Glory which is due to his Name (which the Pſalmiſt calls for) and ſo not glorifie him as God. Haters and Perſecutors of the People and Children of God, and ſo Haters of God, yet relieve themſelves with this pretence (as having ſome reſpect thereto in their Conſciences) not only that They think they do God good Service, (John 16. 2.) but farther (Iſa. 66. 5.) ſay Let God be glorified. Hear the Word of the Lord, ye that tremble at his Word; Your Brethren that hated you, that caſt you out for my Names ſake, ſaid, Let the Lord be glorified: But he ſhall appear to your joy, and they ſhall be aſhamed.

But 1. They do but ſay it (as there) and that Faintly, and when their great Zeal is in the proſecution of their luſts of Malice, they colour it over with taking that reſpect into their Thoughts, and ſo relieve themſelves with the pretence of it.

2. And Secondly, If the thought thereof rise up to a zeal of God (as in Paul and the Jews (Rom. 10. 3.) it did, and may do in others) in what is truly the Service of God, yet it still comes in but secondarily, not as the predominant end, and motive, but as an end taken in by the by. They act as a man that at once can pleasure himself and another, and who will be glad it falls out so well, that what is done for himself chiefly, is also a kindness to another. And thus, a man may be glad when he can pleasure an Enemy, when withal he serves himself, and will make the best of such a kindness, as if he did it for him.

3. And again, men may aim at doing Service to God as far as they use to aim at serving men, as their King, as their Countrey: As Souldiers and Subjects use to say, that they do service to their King and Country, as it is a common Cause, magnified and cryed up to do so: And in this Service they use to spend their bloods. And after the same manner was Paul zealous for God, and the Religion of the Jews, as a man would be for his King, or the Cause of Religion as it is a Cause in common. But thus only to aim at serving God, is too low for him; It is not enough to aim at God thus far in thy Service, as much as thou wouldest aim at men: But if thou glorifiest not God as God (Rom. 12. 1.) that is, as such a great God ought to be glorified, and transcendently set up above all Creatures, even above thy self; thou dost not glorifie God as thou oughtest. Many aim at glorifying God as far as they would serve a man, a Superiour, but they must glorifie him as God, that is, above all else; even themselves and all their own Interests: Not only by going against their Interests for him, but when both fall in, yet to be moved by his above their own.

4*thly* and Lastly. There is no deceit more general, than is this. viz. That if in the motion to any Duty, the Considerations of God and his Command were the first Propounders or Motioners thereof in a man's Conscience, then the man thinks them to be the chiefest swaying Motives. If these get but the start, and have but the priority of time, if they put forth the first hand out of the Womb; men then put the Birth-right, the Dominion or prerogative upon them; and this they do, tho' Worldly or other self-ends do carry the work on, and are the most effectual Agents to bring it to the Birth. You will find that when a man is to do any action that is good, upon the motion twenty by-ends will come in about him, like so many Beggars about a great man, if he offers to stir abroad. Now, the main repute of bringing forth the action, will not be cast on that which was the first Propounder, but on that which was the main and strongest stickler in it, and promoted it, and brought it forth to execution. Now, Conscience is apt in most such actions, if not to be the first in them, yet to shuffle in such Considerations, as wherein God should be respected, and then to cry, this is done for God. Jehu was indeed first moved and set a work by a Prophet, and by God and his Conscience, to destroy Idolatry and Ahab's House, but it was respect to his Kingdom which maintained the action, and which fell in and carried him thro' in it: And yet because Conscience had some hand in it, he in his own deceitful thoughts ascribes all to it, entitleth Zeal for God to be the only Author of it: See my Zeal (says he) for the Lord of Hosts. Conscience often doth but cast in the Bill, and make the motion, and rules the Suit; and Worldly by-ends follow it, bears the Charges, and are the great promoters in it; yet then it must needs be made an act of Conscience, and the Verdict is given in its name alone as the Foreman of that Jury.

CHAP. XII.

The Deficiency of Natural Conſcience in another of it's Effects, viz. In ſpeaking Peace to Men upon their doing well.

THE laſt Effect of Natural Conſcience in reſpect of what is good, is, That it gives forth Peace upon doing well, as God's Commiſſioner. And of this Tranquility of Mind, which accompanies doing Vertuouſly, great things are ſpoken by Heathens, and (as would ſeem) out of their own experience.

And truly in Anſwer unto this, I would in the firſt place readily grant, that God, even God himſelf, in and by an Unregenerate Man's Conſcience, doth for particular Actions, ſpeak an Approbation and Encouragment when they do well. That outward Bleſſings and outward Peace in this Life were diſpenſed under the Old Teſtament, (and are now) even to Carnal Jews and Gentiles, upon their outward doings that were Righteous, few, if any Man denies; when yet their Perſons were, and are for the ſame Actions liable to Eternal Wrath. Now that ſome inward Peace from God ſhould be vouchſafed their ſpirits upon ſuch Actings, by which he ſhould ſo far appear to approve and own Actions that are materially good, with a different reſpect from what are Evil; this holds but a due Proportion with that other diſpenſation of God. The Judgment of God is according to Truth, (ſays the Apoſtle, Rom. 2.2.) that is, God will ever acknowledge a thing to be what in truth it is, and ſo will own what is good ſo far as it is good: Yea, even at the latter day, then when he pronounceth ſome Actions to have been deficient, and in reſpect of the Manner of performance deſerving Wrath and Condemnation, yet then as a Righteous Judge, he will acknowledge what was any way good therein with any other ſort of goodneſs. For every Man ſhall be judged with all the abatements his Condition did or would afford, even when he Periſheth, Rom. 2. 12. For as many as have ſinned without Law, ſhall alſo Periſh without Law; and as many as have ſinned in the Law, ſhall be judged by the Law. And Conſcience as well in excuſing (which is, when a Man hath done a good Action) as in accuſing for what is evil, is ſaid συμμαρτυρεῖν to witneſs with, Rom. 2. 15. Witneſs with whom? Even with God in either, God in the one Witneſſing with the Conſcience, as well as in the other. And as the Directing light of Conſcience is from God (as hath been ſaid) ſo alſo the Excuſing light may ad tantum, that is, in ſome meaſure, be alſo aſcribed unto him. I would but further propound Jehu's Caſe and Inſtance to any Sober Man, for the Confirmation both of this Truth, and the Reaſons for it which I even now alledged, 2 Kings 10. 30. It is expreſly ſaid, that God ſaid unto Jehu, Becauſe that thou haſt done well in Executing that which was right in my Eyes, and haſt done unto the Houſe of Ahab, according to all that was in mine Heart. God, whether by himſelf, or by a Prophet, or otherwiſe, I need not diſpute, teſtified to him the Approbation of this Fact as good. Now hereupon I urge, that what God ſpake to his outward Ears, the ſame thing this ſame God might, yea, and did ſpeak to his Conſcience, which is the inward Ear, apprehenſive of what God doth ſpeak. Yea, and further, God did ſpeak this to ſhew his Approbation of it, to the end that his Conſcience ſhould know ſo much, and view it with Comfort: And then God alſo makes an outward Promiſe hereupon, Thy Children of the Fourth Generation ſhall ſit upon the Throne of Iſrael. This alſo his Conſcience with a Joy and Contentment might take in from God, as a Reward of his well doing; which makes good the Propoſition of that Reaſon son afore alledged. I might say the like in the Case of Gods acknowledging Abimelechs Integrity to himself, in that sense he apologiseth for himself, (Gen. 20. 5, 6.) Chap. 12

Yet 2. I say, (that this Concession may not be mistaken) That though God thus far doth witness with Conscience in Approbation of what is good in the Fact, yet Natural Conscience usually doth (as it is apt thro' the defilement of it) carry on it's own Testimony further than God ever intended.

1. Conscience proceeds too far in assuming and taking upon it this Occasion to pronounce Peace to the State of the Person, which is as false a Conclusion upon the premises in it self, as pernicious to the Man. Cains Conscience when it was once struck and blasted from God, with the Guilt of Killing his Brother, ran out in a despairing Conclusion, My Sin is greater than that it may be forgiven, Gen. 4. 13. This Sense the Original bears, and is so varied in the Margent. Here Conscience carried it on further than that which God had spoken to his Conscience; for his Sin was not such, but it might have been forgiven; so now on the contrary, when God gives forth and speaks such an imperfect Approbation of the fact for the outward performance of it, Conscience runs away with it, and speaks Peace to the State of the Man, and from outward carriages pronounceth Justification, and Eternal Peace. Thus Paul once thought himself alive, from his doing the Law; and so they cry Peace, Peace, when there is no Peace, as the Scripture speaks. And so here that distinction Interpreters give upon that of Abimilechs Integrity, holds true: There is, Integritas facti, & integritas personæ: An Approbation of the particular Fact, when there is not so of the Person, and his State. I might give many Instances of this kind, how when God speaks but so far to a thing, Mens Hearts in the Application and Conclusion fall into the greatest delusions. This is true in Men Godly, as well as Unregenerate. No Man shall draw near to God, but God will so far draw near to him. A Temporary Believer that is not in the state of Grace, if he doth come and pray to God fervently, God will put a Joy into his Heart to encourage him to come again. No Man shall set a step towards God, but God will set a step towards him. But then Men mistake, to the perdition of their own Souls, that what is really intended but an incouragment, they draw and conclude to be an acceptation of their Persons to Eternal Life, and account Joy from God to be joy in God.

A Second Error which Natural Conscience runs into, is even concerning matters of Fact, inasmuch as God approving the Fact in and with Conscience, but so as it is morally good, Conscience is apt to pronounce the same Sentence, super totum, upon the whole of it, the carriage of the Heart in it, and all, and often blesseth and applauds it self in it. This is evident in Jehu, whose Conscience shewed it self unfaithful to God and him thus, that he overlook't the carrage of his Heart in it, and the carnal ends he drave therein; and yet pronounced Peace to himself upon the whole, both for Matter and Manner: Come see my Zeal (says he) for the Lord of Hosts: Whenas the same God pronounceth of the very same Fact, in respect of his Carnal Ends that were predominant in it, and acted him, that it was Murther, Hos. 1. 4. So that I may apply what befell that good Lord Protector in the Reign of Edward the VI. (who was acquitted of Treason, and yet Condemned for Felony) unto what befalls an Unregenerate Man in this respect: That namely, whilst for the outward fact God in this Life gives him such an answerable Approbation as hath been spoken of, yet at the same time he binds over his Person to Eternal Wrath for Treason against himself, in not having made him his chiefest End therein, nor aimed at his Glory, which is the highest Treason against the Soveraign God.

This hath been spoken by way of Concession herein, and to clear it from mistakes: I come now to a more set Examination of the difference Natural Conscience gives, from that which a Regenerate Man hath. In the Examination whereof, I shall Consider Three things.

1. The

Book IV

1. The differing Well-Springs and Fountains or Originals, whence Peace is fetcht.

2. The ways of Peace (as the Scripture phraſe is) which Natural Conſcience takes to fetch and bring in peace, differing from what the Spirit of God in a true Believer carries on, and directs the Heart unto.

3. I ſhall caſt in ſome differences concerning the peace it ſelf.

1. For the Source or Originals of true peace and falſe, I ſhall fully couch my intendments in it under this following Metaphor and Allegory.

You may remember how in this diſcourſe we have carried in our eye thoſe two dividing Covenants of Grace and of Works, under one of which all men are at preſent. Unregenerate men are under the Covenant of Works, Regenerate under that of Grace. And I have alſo ſhewn how each of theſe have a Lordſhip or Dominion over thoſe that are under them, (Rom. 6. 14. Rom. 7. 1.) And ſo they have the power of Life and Death, Peace or Wrath, according as men demean themſelves towads them. It was a Royalty which the ovenantE of Works once had, to give Life and Peace, and to pronounce the Sentence hereof which ſtood good in Law. The Commandment (or Covenant of Works) was ordained (originally) unto Life (ſays Paul, Rom. 7. 10.) and the man that doth them ſhall live in them, (Gal. 3. 12.) and that is all one as to have Peace, Abſolution, and Juſtification from them. And therefore in Scripture a Covenant of Peace (Iſ. 54. 10.) a Covenant of Life and Peace, (Mal. 2. 5.) are equivalent.

2. All Royalty and Dominions have (as you know) Courts belonging to them, unto which the ſubjects of their Homage come. Now theſe two Dominions have all their Courts and Judgment for Juſtification, &c. By the ſame reaſon, ſpeaking Peace, is verbum forenſicum, a forenſecal act, properly belonging to Court proceedings, or holding Analogy with Sentence in a Court, and this our Divines, out of Scripture, againſt the Papiſts, have largely ſhewn.

3. Each of theſe Courts (which are firſt kept in the Mannor or Manſion-Houſe of every mans own Soul, ſhall be more publickly held at the day of Judgment) have their two Offices, which (becauſe we are ſpeaking of Peace) I may term Juſtices of their Peace; or (if you will) two Stewards of theſe Courts, that are authorized to manage things in their Names. Natural Conſcience is by Nature and legal Inheritance the Steward of the Covenant of Works, but Faith is by Grace appointed to tranſact the Affairs of the Covenant of Grace, (Eph. 2. 8.) By Grace ye are ſaved, through Faith.

4. Every man in either ſtate that is a Seeker of Peace, (which I add, becauſe ſome are ſo ignorant that they mind not any ſuch thing; ſo the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the Gentiles, Rom. 9. 30. The Gentiles that ſought not after Righteouſneſs) doth ſeek to have his Peace from that Court to which he belongs. Look what his ſtate is, or what the Juriſdiction is which he is yet under, look what homage he belongs to, unto what he falls in his own Spirit, and unto that Court he ſecretly comes and hath recourſe for a Sentence of Peace and Life. If a man belongs ſtill but to the Covenant of Works, although now man being fallen, that Covenant be utterly unable to give Peace; yet this having been the ancient Cuſtom of this Mannor in Adams time when the Covenant was in power and force unto ſuch ends and purpoſes, and this being the Natural Law between the Creature and Creator: Thither therefore do poor deceived Souls come all of them ſtill to take up their Copies for Life and Peace. And Natural Conſcience being by Nature conſtituted the ſupream Judge in that Court, will hold its place, and being true to it's Lord and Maſters Royalty, and having never yet ſubmitted to the ſupream Juriſdiction of Faith, and theſe poor Souls knowing no better; they come and deal with Conscience for Life and Peace; and Conscience takes upon it to proceed according to the ancient Rules and Customs of that Court, and so sets men on work, a doing, exacts the performances of such and such Duties, then undertakes how it will thereupon issue out Peace and Comfort. Satisfie me (says Conscience) by doing what I direct, and instigate you to, (and nothing will satisfie it but doing what it commands, nothing else will bribe it, no other pay passeth currant with it) and thou shalt have inward peace from me. Yea and further, if men be slack and negligent in those dues, it tortures, disquiets, and issues out Writs of Threatnings, &c. And thus, as it undertakes to sanctifie by urging legal Motives, so also to justifie and pronounce Peace in a legal way, for indeed it was once ordained to both. Chap. 10

But now 5*thly*. On the contrary, this Covenant being made void, and so God having given unto Free-Grace the Dominion for Justification, and true peace, (Rom. 5. 21.) Grace is said to Reign to Eternal Life, and it hath taken the Kingdom to it self. It is therefore now become the onely true Fountain of Peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ. It is written on the Frontis-piece of every one of Paul's Epistles, that by the Inscription over the Porch you may know to whom the Dominion appertaineth, even unto Grace, from God and Christ, upon whom Peace and Life do hold.

6. This Grace in Gods Heart will be applied unto only by Faith in our Hearts, for it can trust no other Principle within us. And though it be the Lord of Peace, yet it doth not issue forth a Sentence of Peace authentickly, but upon mens Believing, and by Faith; as Lords do not give possession without their Stewards. Rom. 5. 1. Therefore being justified by Faith, we have peace with God through Jesus Christ.

Lastly, These two have divided the World from the Fall to this day, into two parties, the one seeking Righteousness or Peace, by the works of the Law, the other seeking it by Faith, Rom. 10. 30, 31, 32. What shall we say then? That the Gentiles which followed not after Righteousness, have attained to Righteousness, even the Righteousness which is of Faith: But Israel which followed after the Law of Righteousness, hath not attained to the Law of Righteousness. Wherefore? Because they sought it, not by Faith; but as it were by the works of the Law; For they stumbled at that stumbling stone.

This differing way of seeking Peace by Conscience, or by the Covenant of Works one way, and by Faith in another way, began in Abel and Cain, the two Prototypes of regenerate and unregenerate men. (Jude 11.) Their way is call'd the way of Cain. And the difference is evident by the 4*th* of Genesis, and Heb. 11. 3. both sacrificed and worshipt God; But (Heb. 11. 3.) Abel offered it up by Faith, that is, he lookt not at the performance, as that from whence he must have his peace and acceptation with God, but by Faith, by believing he lookt on his Free-Grace and Promise of the Messiah given. But Cain erred in his Heart, not knowing this way of Peace, but thought to go the Old way of Works, when yet he wanted power to perform them, in which way Natural Conscience led him. He brought his Sacrifice as a performance, and was so stout and stiff in his Principle, that he was in a rage that God should give a manifest Token he was not accepted. And God on the other side, perceiving him so angry, says to him, Why art thou wrath and sullen, Cain, I will deal with thee according to thine own Principles. And out of his own Law and Covenant of Works, by which he thought he had the better of God, God confutes him, Gen. 4. 7. If thou dost well (or good) shalt thou not be accepted? This is plainly thy Covenant of Works, by doing good to be accepted; therefore, in the next words it is opposed to all sin, If thou dost not well, sin lyes at the door. He speaks to him in his own Language, and yet beats his own Weapon to his Head, and bids his Conscience for the time view over, and examine his own performances and ways, and particularly the frame of Heart Book 6 Heart wherewith he did offer this Sacrifice. The Sacrifice of the Wicked is an Abomination to the Lord, much more when he offers it with an Evil Mind, as Cain had done. And for time to come God bids him to look to it that he did well in all things (seeing he stood upon it) or he could not look for Acceptation. And thus God dealt with the Jews, when they were sturdy in the Opinion of their own Righteousness, Ezek. 18. from v. 5. to v. 10*th.* But if a Man be Just, and do that which is Lawful and Right, and hath not Eaten upon the Mountains, neither hath lift up his Eyes to the Idols of the house of Israel, neither hath defiled his Neighbours Wife, neither hath come near to a menstruous Woman, and hath not oppressed any, but hath restored to the Debtor his Pledge, hath spoiled none by Violence, hath given his Bread to the Hungry, and hath covered the Naked with a Garment: He that hath not given forth upon Usury, neither hath taken any increase, that hath withdrawn his Hand from Iniquity, hath Executed true Judgment between Man and Man: Hath walked in my Statutes, and hath kept my Judgments to deal truly, he is just, he shall surely Live, saith the Lord God. Wherein he offers to deal with them according to that Covenant of Works they trusted in, and puts them to it, thereby to shew them their unability to perform it. Thus the Division began, and so it went on to Paul's time, (Rom. 9. 31, 32.) and as it was then, so it is now, and will be to the end of the World.

These are the two contrary Sources, and also ways of Peace in the General set out; and this Metaphor of a way the Apostle takes up and follows, (Rom. 9. 30.) terming it a seeking or pursuance, by a Metaphor from Mens running in a way or race.

2. Let us now trace and follow each of these sorts of Men in their several paths which they take, than which nothing more discovers the difference of them. And because Rectum est Index sui, et obliqui, I will first set out in few words the way of Peace by believing, or Faith, as it runs in opposition to this high way and Rode of all Mankind, which Conscience will needs mislead them in.

If God means to give true Peace to a poor Soul, by the Tenour of the Covenant of Grace, the way he takes is this.

1. He breaks the old peace which Conscience had spoken, and to that end comes in with a new Light. Upon this heavy dull ey'd Conscience (that hath but half an Eye by nature to discover to a Man his Sinfulness, and shews but the outside of it) and God by this new Light gives a Man a true and through sight into that Condition he hath continued in, and gives him a view of the sinfulness of all his Works and performances (yea of those from which Conscience hath been so bold as to speak Peace formerly unto him) by discovering to him the defect for Manner and Ends of them. Conscience plainly tells him, the true God thou hast not Glorified (as Daneel told Belshazzer, Dan. 5.) nor hadst him ever in thy thoughts to mind and pursue as thy dearest Interest. And so Conscience discovers how the inwards of his Soul are very rottenness, and that he never did a good Action (in respect of what should be the Soul that gives Life and Spirit that makes an Action truly good) no not one in his whole Life. A Man hath a New Light which runs through the inwards of all, as the Spirit that moved in the wheels. I saw (saith Paul) that all Concupiscense wrought in me, (Rom. 7. 8.) That the best and rightest Actings of the Law on my Heart by my Conscience, had only this issue to bring forth motions of Sins; and now the Law which I thought had been ordained for Life, I found to be unto Death. And my Brethren, because that Natural Conscience was the great misleader in this, therefore God's Spirit first assaults that, and storms Conscience the first of all those Towers and Faculties in Men's Souls, and makes the breach there. Yea God takes this Law, and the true light of it, and cutteth Conscience it's Throat first of all therewith; and so the whole Man dies, and all that false peace which Conscience had given him him expires for ever in him, Rom. 7. 9. When the Commandment came into my Soul, (as the light of the Sun into a darkish Room) this new Light caused Sin to revive in his Conscience, namely, the proper state of the Guilt of it; And I dyed (saith he) and it was the Commandment slew him. (v. 11.) And (saith he Gal. 2. 19.) I through the Law am dead to the Law. Yea, and Conscience which was the great Deceiver of the whole Man, and undertook to be the Dictatour, and Conservator pacis, the Keeper of the Peace of this old Common-Wealth, is that part of the Soul, that is made the Rendezvouse of all a Man's Sins, and of all Confusion and trouble for them. All a Mans Sins do quarter upon Conscience, and now it pays for all, bears the load, the guilt of all. As in a Man in a Feavour, tho' other parts are in a distemper, yet Head and Heart most; and so here, tho' all in a Man is in a disturbance, yet Conscience is as the Stomach, whether the humours are gathered which makes the Man sick to Death. Cha. 10

Now 2. To be sure this Man will never put trust in Conscience for giving forth Peace to him any more, in this former way; nor will the Heart ever come to it's Court to take it up, nor to have it upon those terms as it had wont to do. Upon this discovery, yea by it, this Court of Conscience, the Chancery, is pull'd down, and so ever dissolved, and that justly too, for it had run all a Man's Life-time into a Præmunire. And now all it's decrees of Life and Peace are Casheired and Cancelled for Ever by that one Sentence which the Soul now Submits to, uttered by God upon Man's having broken the Covenant of Works: That by the works of the Law no Flesh shall be Justified, Rom. 3. 20. The Law is kill'd in the Man. (Rom. 7. 6.) That being Dead wherewith we were held, and the Man is Dead to the Law, (Gal. 2. 19.) I am Dead by the Law to the Law. He speaks of the light and works of Humiliation, by which he was kill'd by the Law. And I saw I had been so deceived by it, (says he Rom. 7. 11.) that I shall never trust the proceeding of it, or have recourse to that Court for Life and Peace any more. It is Dead, and made void to me as to any such Relief, and my Soul is as Dead to it, and I have no Heart no Spirit to have to do with it, or it's Agent Conscience, upon the old terms, to get Peace by doing any more.

3. Now let us see what way the Soul is directed unto, as the true way for Peace. It is meerly and intirely Faith on Christ, Rom. 3. 24, 25, 26. Being Justified freely by his Grace through the Redemption that is in Jesus Christ. Whom God hath set forth to be a Propitiation through Faith in his Blood, to declare his Righteousness for the Remission of Sins, that are past through the forbearance of God. To declare I say at this time his Righteousness, that he might be Just, and the Justifier of him which believeth in Jesus. Rom. 4. 5. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that Justifieth the Ungodly, his Faith is counted for Righteousness, Rom. 15. 13. Now the God of Hope fill you with all Joy, and Peace through Believing. Rom. 5. 1. Therefore being Justified by Faith, we have Peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Yea now that this Court of Faith, is in and by Graces preogative set up to give forth Peace, now even Conscience it self, that was the great Undertaker for Peace afore, the great Non-submitter to the Righteousness and Peace of Faith (it is the Phrase Rom. 10. 3.) is now glad to come and appear in this Court, and to make use of Faith, and brings with it all the Works, that were the Darlings of Conscience, which it once Judg'd good, but now sees to be but dead works; as also all the sins, whereof it is the drein, the sink (and therefore is call'd an Evil Conscience) all these it brings with it, and comes weary and heavy loaden to Christ, and cries out, Oh Sprinkle me Lord with thy Blood, by Faith! Oh give me Joy and Peace through believing! The Scriptures are express, Heb. 9. 14. The Blood of Christ purgeth your Conscience from Dead Works, when nothing else can do it. The opposition there shews how it is done, Heb. 10. 22. Let us draw near with full Assurance of Faith, having our Hearts ſprinkled from an Evil Conſcience. And this is that very ſame Conſcience that once was counted ſo good, and ſpake ſo much Peace once. And now this Conſcience that hath been made the ſeat of Humiliation, the Rendesvouz of all Guilt, is now on the contrary made the ſeat of Juſtification, the Receptacle or Ciſtern of Chriſts Blood, which runs into it thro' the Pipe or Conveyance of Believing.

Queſt. But will you ſay to me, Is there no uſe of a Regenerate Conſcience in the matter of ſpeaking peace after Believing?

Anſw. 1. I Anſwer in General, when Conſcience it's Court is down, and it ſelf put out of Office of being the ſupream Judge, the room where the Audit of Goſpel Peace is held, is the Ear of Faith, wherein and whereby God makes the Soul to hear of Peace and Gladneſs, even the Joyful Sound, yet ſtill that Peace which Faith alone brings in and ſettles in the whole Soul, is that which quiets it, and eſtabliſheth it's Joy: And an Eternal prohibition is given in againſt all proceedings for Peace, according to the former cuſtom of that Court, and Conſcience it ſelf hath thus ſubmitted to Faiths court, as to this ſupream Juriſdiction thereof. Indeed Conſcience comes to be taken in again as an Under-Officer under Faith as an Apparatour, as an Appendix or Subſervient, and receives from Faith a New Commiſſion, Gal. 3. 15, 17. There is a Phraſe uſed of the Law, that it was added to the promiſes of the Goſpel, added, that is, as a ſubſervient to it: And as the Law, it's Maſter, ſo Conſcience alſo is added to Faith to ſerve it in many Offices, and among other in this of Peace. It is not proper here to enlarge upon ſome Offices it ſerves in, viz. to repreſent what Sins are in the Heart, alſo to inſtruct and direct to what is to be done by us, and inſtigate thereunto, or reſtrain from Evil; it being as a Rule in an Artificers hand to guide us in working. Theſe are Foraign to my Scope, the matter of ſpeaking Peace, and the Influence a Regenerate Conſcience hath thereunto, is that which lies afore me.

1. Faith muſt be the ſole Judge to pronounce the Sentence of Peace, of Juſtification, and Conſcience if it could bring this Verdict, I know nothing by my ſelf (as Paul ſpeaks of himſelf) yet it muſt be ſilent in this reſpect, and only ſay, I am not thereby Juſtified, and leave it intirely to Faith, to tranſact the whole of Juſtification another way.

Yet 2. Conſcience may come in as a Witneſs in this Court of Faith, to confirm that Sentence.

1. It is a great Witneſs to the ſoveraign Vertue that is in Chriſt's Blood, (as that Blind Man was to Chriſt himſelf, Whereas I was Blind, ſure I am, I now ſee, and this Man hath opened mine Eyes, ſo) Conſcience comes in and atteſts, Whereas I was wounded, Bloodied and gaſht with ſuch deep and ſmarting Abominations, as no Medicines in Heaven or Earth could cure or aſſwage, I found that Blood of my Redeemer, which Faith alone applied to me, to give me eaſe, yea, cure and heal thoſe Wounds, and Waſh and Purge out thoſe ſtains which no Nitre nor Fullers Soap could do. The Waves roſe high, the Winds bluſtered, and the ſtill voice of that Blood ſpeaking better things in me, than Abels did in Cains Conſcience, calmed all. The Sea and the Winds Obeyed it, and were ſtilled at it. Blood is made one, yea and the firſt Witneſs (1 John 5.) which is no other than the Blood of Sprinkling, in it's efficacy upon the very ſprinkling thereof to make Conſcience as white as Snow, though before it was as Red as Scarlet, with bold and Bloody Tranſgreſſions. Conſcience is that Faculty which gives the Teſtimony of that Blood, and correſpondently (Heb. 10. 22.) waſhing with Water, which is the Second Witneſs in that of John, is mentioned and joined with the Sprinkling of an Evil Conſcience, as here in John the witneſs of Blood and Water in like manner are.

2. Con-

2. Conſcience ſeconds and backs the Sentence of Faith, by giving in Evidence of Graces and gracious diſpoſitions in the Heart; and this in and by the Holy Ghoſt, witneſſing with them that we truly believe, and are Perſons Juſtified by Faith, 2 Cor. 1. 12. For our Rejoyeing is this, the Teſtimony of our Conſcience, that in Simplicity and Godly Sincerity, not with Fleſhly Wiſdom, but by the Grace of God, we have had our Converſation in the World, and more abundantly toyou wards. You ſee it was the Teſtimony of his Conſcience, and it is but a Secondary Teſtimony, coming in to make good an higher Sentence, and ſo ſtill ſubordinate unto Faith. And here I give theſe Cautions. Chap. 10

1. That Faith is left alone to treat for a Man's Peace, and Juſtification, and that it alone goes to Chriſt to pronounce that Sentence; only Conſcence gives a Teſtimony unto Faith and the truth thereof.

2. That the matter of Regenerate Conſciences Teſtimony is not only fetcht from outward facts or Performances (theſe are Natural Conſciences Court-rolls it hath recourſe to, to pronounce Peace from) but Regenerate Conſcience looks chiefly to the inward Sincerity and carriage of the Heart to God in a Man's Converſation, as matter of Evidence. It regards inward and gracious diſpoſitions in the Heart, and regards not all outward Performances further than as it hath diſcerned inward Sincerity aiming at Gods Glory to have been the Companion or rather ground of them. Conſcience diſcerns and finds out gracious Diſpoſitions in the Heart, and ſeeks after ſuch chiefly, and then Faith finds out a promiſe to ſuch diſpoſitions, and the Holy Ghoſt bears witneſs with both.

3. A Regenerate Conſcience witneſſeth not by, or with, theſe our Graces, but as, and when actuated by the Holy Ghoſt; who to be ſure will not uſe or improve that Teſtimony to the prejudice of Believing. This Eminent Diſpoſition in Paul's Heart, in wiſhing to be accurſed for his Country Men, he thus brings forth to light, My Conſcience bearing me Witneſs in the Holy Ghoſt, enlightening me in the Diſcovery, and ſtrengthning Conſcience to give that Evidence. The truth is, Conſcience ſo far as it is regenerated, and as thus commiſſionated anew by Faith, is not, nor ſhould not be too forward to ſpeak, leſt it intrench upon what belongs to Faith; but only to anſwer, and give in Teſtimony in a ſubordination to Faith, whence it is call'd in to ſpeak. It is termed rather the Anſwer of a good Conſcience, (1 Pet. 3. 21.) than the propoſition or claim of Conſcience firſt made of it ſelf: And it is the Anſwer of Conſcience, as ſpoken firſt it ſelf unto, and having heard Chriſts Blood ſpeaking better things than the Blood of Abel, and as having heard Faith firſt talk of Chriſts Death and Reſurrection for its Juſtification, (Rom. 4.) as the Foundation of its Anſwer, and Apology.

But now let us ſee how contrary and remote from this true way of Peace, that way is, which Natural Conſcience doth miſlead mens Spirits into, and how much and how many ways it endeavours to ſet a man out of the way. You may obſerve (Rom. 3. 17.) in the Catalogue or Indictment of the particulars, or general heads rather, of mens Corruptions, this inſerted as one, The way of Peace they have not known, as not among themſelves; ſo nor to find it with God. Heb. 3. 10, 11. They do always err in their Heart, and have not known my ways. So I ſware in my Wrath, they ſhall not enter into my Reſt. Their erring, and erring always, this ſtanding univerſal Errata that is found in all Editions and Impreſſions of mens Hearts; is by reaſon of their being thus addicted to the Covenant of Works, as the ſworn Creatures and Vaſſals of it.

The working of this Myſtery of Iniquity, you may perceive through all States and Conditions which the Sons of men run through. For either 1. Men were never enlightned, nor Natural Conſcience ever yet awakened; which was Paul's Caſe afore Converſion, (I was alive without the Law) or before the revival of ſin in his Conſcience: Or 2. They come to be awakened by the Book 6 Law, and living alſo under the Goſpel, and being enlightned therein, and inſtructed in the way of Salvation; and Natural Conſcience plays a deceitful part in all.

The firſt ſort, that were never ſtruck, which were never troubled nor humbled under the ſenſe of their loſt Condition at all, are the moſt of Mankind. And either they are ſuch,

1. As are regardleſs of Peace of Conſcience or Righteouſneſs, in order to Eternal Life: They know not what either of theſe mean. Either through want of a diſcovery of their ſinfulneſs, or Ignorance of a Righteouſneſs ordained to Life eternal. And ſuch were the moſt of the Heathens, and ſuch are the moſt of common Chriſtians, that are ignorant and atheiſtical. It is ſaid of the Univerſality of the Gentiles, Rom. 9. 30. The Gentiles, followed not after Righteouſneſs, as the Jews did; that is, they lived without the ſenſe of any ſuch thing, and ſo had it not in purſuit at all. Theſe are ſaid to ſleep, 1 Theſ. 5. 6. Let us not ſleep as others, namely, of Mankind do, they being in the Night, (v. 7.) that is, the darkneſs of Ignorance: And cry Peace and Safety, (v. 3.) of that Chapter, as being ignorant of any danger they are in, in reſpect of another World; but this at the beſt is but Quietneſs not Peace, A freedom from being troubled. As if a man deep in debt is kept by them about him in ignorance of his Eſtate; hears of no Suits entred againſt him, no Serjeant to attack him, no Writ out for him: He is in a ſenſeleſs Security, and not at Peace with his Adverſaries. It is ſuch a quiet as a man condemned to die next morning, hath in his Sleep over night. Tis called a Spirit of Slumber, If. 11. 8. when yet Damnation ſlumbreth not, as 2 Pet. 2. 3.

Now, it is Natural Conſcience is in the cauſe for this. For whereas its office is (as the Prophets was, Ezek. 3.) to diſcover to man his ſinfulneſs, And to give warning of the Judgments of God, (as Rom. 1.) Natural Conſcience that is thus betruſted, ſeeks to hide, conceals all this, even from it ſelf, They wink with their eyes, and are ſaid to cloſe their eyes, &c. leſt they ſhould ſee, as the Prophet, and Chriſt out of the Prophet ſpeaks.

For if Conſcience at any time opens an eye-lid half way, ſees a little of a man's ſin, a glimpſe thereof, yet it will ſhut the ſame again preſently, that it might not ſee what follows, and is the Conſequent of it, what is the next behind it, Judgment and Wrath, which if it comes in ſo quick as it cannot ſhut out the ſight thereof, as the Gentiles could not, Rom. 1. laſt: Yet it turns away the next thought, and cutts off the application thereof unto it ſelf. Rom. 1. 28. and Chap. 2, 3. And thinkeſt thou this, O man, that judgeſt them which do ſuch things, and doſt the ſame, that thou ſhalt eſcape the Judgment of God? Thus they ſhut their eyes leſt they ſhould ſee, Mat. 13. Now this is wilful ſecurity of Conſcience, this is not Peace. Now if mens Conſciences will uſe ſuch tricks as theſe, when a man doth ill, to keep off the conſideration thereof, or of the Conſequent of it, and to pocket up, and conceal the Writs of Judgment, and let them lye by and not open them. (So Hoſea. 7. 2. They conſider not in their Hearts that I remember all their Wickedneſs) And if when a man doth well (as he thinks) then to cry Peace, peace: That man ſhall be kept quiet all his days. But this is not ſo much as true, much leſs peace; but Deceit and Fraud. This is a making their Hearts glad with Lyes.

Or 2. Mens Caſe is, that they ſet themſelves a-work to follow after a Righteouſneſs in order to peace. As many of the (Jews Rom. 9. 30, 31.) are ſaid to do: And ſome few Heathens, and many devout Chriſtians among Papiſts and our ſelves uſe to do.

Now 1. For thoſe few Gentiles that ſought for any kind of Righteouſneſs above the reſt, they withal profeſſed to truſt in themſelves. Upon Three Principles. 1. To Obey right Reaſon. 2. And that they Obeyed God in obeying Right Reaſon. And 3. To truſt in themſelves, Sibi fidere. Theſe were the profeſſed fessed Catholick Maxims, or fundamental Principles practical in their Religion. And which is strange, the very same proper Character, in the same words is attributed to the Jews, (Luke 18. 9.) That they trusted in themselves, with this addition, that they were Righteous. So then the same Spirit and mystery of Iniquity wrought the very same thing both in Jews and some Heathens, and both from the same Cause. A Righteousness both sought, and peace therefrom, and that Righteousness was in and from themselves, on which they trusted, with despising others. And this was their Sibi fidere, their trusting in themselves. Which how contrary it is to the fundamental Principle, true Christianity teacheth every ones Heart that is truely a Christian, Paul hath informed us, in making this one essential characteristical property of a true Believer, Phil. 3. 3. Who rejoyce in the Lord Jesus (as trusted in, and compleat to save) and put no confidence in the Flesh. And by Flesh he eminently intends a man's own Righteousness, which is of the Law, opposite to that by Faith, as by v. 6, 9. is evident. And how difficult a Lesson it is for us to learn, and how yet with all the main, and as it were the top, and the ultimate of all other God would bring us to, the same Apostle Paul hath in his own example after many years proficiency in Christianity, taught us, 2 Cor. 1. 9. We had the Sentence of Death in our selves, that we should not trust in our selves, neither for Bodily Life nor Strength, nor Righteousness, nor Revelations, Gifts nor Grace, not any thing we can call ours whatever. Chap. 12

But 2*dly*. As for the multitude of such as profess themselves Christians, which know the Scriptures, though they dare not in their Doctrine make such a profession of principles, yet in their Hearts they practise it.

For the Papists and their Devotionists, who profess Christ, and to trust in Christ, yet in the point of Righteousness and Life, you know what their Doctrine is. And as they set up the Pope, as holding all his power from Christ, yet exercising it against Christ, with profession it is in Christs stead; So they set up their own Righteousness, Graces and Doings, though they profess to hold all of Christ, and that by his merit these were first given: So as Nature in them too speaks out as far as it dares.

And Thirdly, For the generality of such Protestants as look after a Righteousness for their Peace, whilst they in Doctrine profess to trust in Christ alone by Faith only, and do at solemn times do homage to it, because of the Doctrine generally profeffed; yet practically their Hearts run the way of all Flesh before them; and having never been struck with the sense of their natural Condition, and emptiness, their Peace lies in satisfying their Consciences with Duties, which in the first and chief place raiseth up and maintaineth in them an Opinion that they are truly Religious and Conscientious in their ways, and then they are bold to add thereto Faith in Christ; yea and the opinion they have obtained of themselves from their Consciences, by complying with it in doing, is the Foundation in their Hearts of that their Faith on Christ.

Now as for this Peace of all these sorts of men, thus raised and maintained, it is sufficient by way of difference to say, that it hath been a Peace hath grown up alone out of what is in themselves; and not made and founded anew after a sight of their lost condition and of their being Enemies; or which is equivolent to it, there is not an utter renouncing of their own Righteousness as dung, and as being afraid to be found therein (as was Pauls Case, Phil. 3.) but a Peace it is that was never concluded upon a new Treaty with God, and upon new offers of free Grace. The old title remains, and they act for the maintaining of it. For they having taken it for granted that God and they have been at Peace, Conscience which they have by Nature hath struck in to be the upholder, continuer and maintainer of this Peace and the conceit hereof by doing Righteously may have uprightly, so keeping Peace (I allude to that Speech used of Christ, and indeed only proper to him, so making Peace, Eph. 2. 15.) whereas true and sound Peace is a Peace anew created, as the word is, Isa. 57. 29. I create the Fruit of the Lips; Peace created as light out of darkness at first, so 2 Cor. 4. 6. or as Creatures out of nothing. It brings a Man's former Light and Peace into Darkness and Confusion, reducing the Soul to nothing in it self, and in all its performances, and then God causing Light to spring in by the Face of Jesus Christ, it grows not up out of a mans own Heart and Conscience as a natural Soyl, as your Ears of Corn but its Original comes from what is without the Man, in Gods Heart and in Christ. It is a seed and fruit that drops from the lips of others Preaching the Gospel of Peace, either in their Writings or Sermons: I will create the Fruit of the Lips Peace, which (Eph. 2. 17.) Paul interprets of the Preaching of the Gospel of Peace, as it is therefore termed. It is not such a Peace as a Man behind hand in the World holds with his Creditors, Paying a little here and a little there, in some things punctually keeping his word, and so endeavouring to satisfie and keep them off from Arrests, and so thinking he holds up his Credit still with them. But it is a Peace which an utter Bankrrupt hath obtained after he is utterly broke, that hath the Statute sued forth against him; and all his Creditors come in and he hath nothing to pay; yea, further, is discovered to be a perfect Cheat, Coyning himself, and then paying all he seemed to have. And what is the Peace such an one can expect? But a total forgiveness of Ten Thousand Talents out of meer Compassion, as you have it in the Parable, Mat. 18. 24, 27. And most of all, a forgiveness of that Treason and dishonour of which the man is guilty in thinking to put God off with his false Coin, his self coyned Righteousness, that had not his Stamp and Image on it. Rom. 5. 1. 11. compared. But the Peace which a Man justified by Faith is said to have, is by his receiving the Attonement: A total discharge and acquittance thro' the alone satisfaction of Jesus Christ, pleaded, and had recourse unto, by whom we have now received the attonement. The Debt was sued out, the man ready to be cast in Prison: Deliver him, (saith God) I have found a ransom, and he receives it, as a matter that wholly is from without him, and which comes as a new Gift, even as Rom. 9. 30. The Gentiles are said to have apprehended, received a Righteousness; so the word there used imports, ἔλαβε, laid hold on Righteousness: Even the Righteousness of Faith, as an hand lays hold of a gift without it self, as (Rom. 5. 17.) this of Righteousness is termed. Whereas the other thought to have wrought it out by doing, as men by running win a Prize, as those other words διώκων and ἔφθασε import (v. 31.)

In the Conclusion of my Discourse, I cast in these three differences of true peace, from that which Natural Conscience gives.

1. True Peace is a peace comes from without you: But the peace of all these men by Natural Conscience is from within. Let me say it to you, Brethren, and be not offended by my inverting Christs word, The peace that is from within the man defiles, deceives the man. It is the peace that is wholly without, that saves and comforts the man. Only it is received within us by Faith, or we could not be comforted by it. It is compared therefore unto a Guard; The Peace of God, φρουρήσει, shall guard your minds, φρουρὰς is Præsidium militare, a Guard, it is the same word that is used (1 Pet. 1. 5.) when it is said we are kept by the power of God unto Salvation: Kept as with a Garrison. Now look, as the power of God is a thing without us, and a Garrison is a forreign external defence, brought in to defend a place, and keep peace in it, which else would be at divisions within it self: So is this true peace, the Peace of God. It is therefore termed not a Peace of Conscience, but of God, (Phil. 4.) And also Peace in the Holy Ghost, (Rom. 14. 17.) and that good hope (as the Apostle calls it by way of distinction from false and untrue) Rom. 15. 13. It is from the God of hope, and through the power of the Holy Ghost. Now the God of all hope fill you with joy and peace in Believing, that ye may abound in hope thro' the power of the Holy Ghost. If thou hast not joy, thou mayst have peace: If not peace, thou must have hope: Well, but all this joy, peace and hope come from without, from God, from the Holy Ghost; and therefore are taken in by the way of Faith, which is a receiving Faculty, it is all through believing. Yea, and they are brought in as Foreigners are, by a mighty power, which as it guards the Soul to Salvation, so it guards the Heart to peace. Or if you will, take that word of Christ, My peace (says he) by distinction. It is Christs peace which the Soul of a true Believer seeks, and which Christ in that Speech directs them to, in a double respect, and both of them exclusively spoken, as to the peace we ordinarily term peace of Conscience. Chap. 10

1. Because he is the sole Procurer and purchaser of, and matter of our peace. He is our peace, is the common cry of all Believers (Eph. 2. 14.) through his alone merit (Rom. 5. 1. 11.) and accordingly a Soul that seeks peace by Faith, eyes what is in Christ as the object matter of his peace with God, and is taken up with that in its pursuit after peace, (John 16. 33.) These things have I spoken that in me you might have peace. He had related in these late Sermons what he was about to do for them in dying, and also what he would do for them in Heaven. And let these things (sayshe) be matter of peace and comfort to your Souls, when I am gone. And therefore thro' Jesus Christ is every where added, where peace is spoken of, (Rom. 5. 1. Phil. 4. 6.)

2. It is Christs Peace, my Peace, and the Peace of God, because it is such, as God himself speaks and communicates when the Heart is quieted by it. And so in that respect also it is a peace without us. It is not a peace which Conscience speaketh (which is the speaker of the natural mans peace) but which Christ speaketh by Faith to Conscience, whom (Heb. 12. 25.) the Apostle termeth τὸν λαλοῦντα ἀπὸ οὐρανῶν. And so in that respect also it is Christs peace. The Scripture knows no such Phrase as Peace of Conscience. It is indeed Peace of Conscience subjectivè; Conscience being the principle it is spoken unto. But when it is spoken, it is so spoken as that it is the peace of God, and not peace with God only. Yea, and as a true Believer seeks for it, it is the peace of God only: He seeks not only to be at peace with God, but to have the peace of God, which God immediately from himself gives and communicates, this is that which a true Believer seeks. He goes to God and says, Lord, 'tis true I have walkt thus, and thus and have these and these Dispositions in me, but it is not the peace which these offer to give me, and in which my natural Spirit would rest in, that I wish for: But Lord, I desire thee to speak it. I will hear what the Lord will speak (says the Psalmist) He will speak peace to his People, (Psal. 88.) Oh let me hear himself speak.

A second difference is in that testimony which is allowed unto regenerate Conscience from within to give. It eyes principally what is the sincerity of Heart wherewith all hath been done in respecting God, and laying aside and renouncing carnal Ends. 2 Cor. 1, 2. This is our rejoycing, the testimony of our Conscience. What was it which this grand Jury founded its Verdict upon, and witnessed as matter of rejoycing? Even this, That in simplicity and sincerity of God: Not with fleshly Wisdom but by the grace of God we have had our Conversateon in the World. So then, his having sincerity, aimed at God as God (in so much as he call'd it sincerity of God) and his having been moved and guided, not by principles or ends which fleshly Wisdom suggested, but by Motives and Perswasions fetcht and drawn from the Grace and Love of God, sweetly and predominantly swaying his Heart, (for so the Opposition of [By Grace] there runs unto with [Fleshly Wisdom] both being put in opposition as in eodem genere causarum, as two differing Principles, yet of the same head or kind of causes that is inducing, moving causes both; that look as Fleshly Wisdom moves and steers a Carnal Heart, so did the Grace of God move Paul's Heart) these are the things which his Regenerate Conscience was now taught to eye, or else (as in order unto Salvation) he should not have had matter of Rejoicing, for any other thing

Book 6 thing within the Cognizance of Conscience, though he had done more, and laboured more than all the Apostles. On the contrary his Unregenerate Conscience had eyed only the Observation of the outwards of the Law, serving in the Letter, Rom. 7. 5, 6. and a blamelesness in the Law, and that was the matter of his Rejoycing afore, Phil. 3. which confirmeth this difference. By another Scripture you may see what sort of Actings his Conscience by the Holy Ghost was intent upon, not matters of outward fact, as that he made so many Sermons, &c. but an high and Holy Elevated and Sublimated disposition of Soul, even a continual heavinesse and sorrow of Heart; yea even wishing to be acursed from Christ, for his Brethren the Jews, Rom. 9. 1, 2, 3. Observe what a Preface he maketh to it, I say the truth in Christ, I lie not, my Conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost; that is acted, and enlightned not by the common light, which Natural Conscience is acted by, but a special and evident work of the Holy Ghost, and enlightned thereby to Witness this. His Conscience you see, singleth forth such a disposition of Heart as was eminently Characteristical of saving Grace, and infallibly such, and is not found in any Heart that shall Perish. I speak the truth in Christ, that is, as one that is in Christ, and hath this Evidence for it. Thus also speaks Hezekiah, Isa. 38. 3. Remember, Oh Lord, how I have walked before thee in Truth, and with a perfect Heart in thy sight. His Conscience was it that gave this Testimony. Now it was not his outwaad walking he insists on, but his walking afore God in Sincerity or Truth, and with a perfect Heart. And this his own Conscience was instructed to account and esteem to be that true goodness which is good in Gods sight. And the Reason is, because when a Man is Regenerate, his Conscience is fill'd with the Genuine Knowledge of God, as God. And so he looks upon things with that light God doth, and so only values and reckons that to be good which God doth account good: And God always in Judging of the Action takes in what the Heart is, which was the spring of it. 1 Kings 8. 39. Thou dost give to every Man according to his ways, whose Heart thou knowest. And by this Rule doth Regenenerate Conscience his Vice-gerent also Judge. This is the second difference.

3. Difference. The Peace which Natural Conscience speaks is at the height of it, but a dull flat dead Peace: Even as the Original of it are themselves but Dead Works, Heb. 9. 14. It is with them as with those that go with and carry dead Children in the Wombs of their Hearts, such living throwes they know not, but (1 Pet. 1. 3.) It is called Living hope, we are begotten into, and such an hope Faith affords at least in the Object of it. And it often riseth up to a Peace which passeth or exceedeth the Understanding, Phil 4. 6. Whereas that which Natural Conscience gives, is but such as riseth up from the Understanding or practical Reason; But that of Faith cometh from Heaven, and carries the Heart to Heaven: Being justified by Faith we have Peace with God, (Rom. 5. 1.) and rejoice in Hope of Glory, (v. 2.) yea, Rejoice in God, (v. 11.) And sometimes this Peace riseth up unto Joy unspeakrble, and full of Glory, 1 Peter 1. 5. which though Christians always attain not to, yet the object matter which their Faith is carryed forth unto, out of themselves, hath all this in it. Yea, and the Faith it self that is in the Soul, is still working the Heart up unto it, to seek after this, not to be quiet without it, or rest in any Peace befides it; Even as every Natural Faculty seeks and pursues after some way or other the highest perfection of that which is the proper object of it. And on the contrary, altho' the Unregenerate Man may have a further Joy than that of Natural Conscience, from a tasting of the Powers of the World to come, (Heb. 6.) yet that joy is not from Natural Conscience, but an effect of Supernatural enlightning in matters of Faith, and that as it is a Counterfeit of Faith, though not attaining unto true Faith. And the differences of such Joys from that other Joy believers attain unto, is not proper to this discourse, which only treats here of the Peace, which Natural Conscience as such affords, with difference to that which Faith gives, or riseth up unto.

This

This Paul knowing full well, being trained up to the experiment thereof, no means, no works, no Teſtimony of Conſcience could avail of it ſelf, unleſs God ſpeak peace. When therefore he would pray for peace, he frames his Prayer thus: That God himſelf would give it, (2 Theſ. 5. 16.) It is his manner, you know, at the beginning or end of his Epiſtles, to wiſh Grace and Peace from God the Father, &c. and he had ſo at the beginning of that Epiſtle; but at the latter end, being about to renew the ſame again in his Farewell, he as it were corrects his Speech, and frames his Prayer thus: Now the Lord of peace himſelf give you peace always by all means: Both as knowing his wiſhes and all means elſe ineffectual to attain or procure true Peace: As alſo ſignifying what kind of peace it was that true Hearts deſire and ſeek after. The Lord of peace himſelf giveth peace, and tho' himſelf bleſſeth means whereby he doth it, and you are to uſe them: Yet ſo, as he, the God of peace, muſt himſelf give it. Take the holieſt and beſt man in the World, whoſe Conſcience is the largeſt treaſury of good done by him, or wrought in him; and although Conſcience be a reflecting Faculty in all men, yet his Conſcience from all the good that is betruſted with it, and it is privy unto, cannot teſtifie a word for that mans peace and comfort, unleſs the Holy Ghoſt ſpeaks in and unto Conſcience by the light of Faith with power. For though the Spirit that is in man is ſaid naturally to know the things that are in a man, (1 Cor. 2.) yet they are but thoſe things which we have as men. But ſuch things as we have as good and holy men given us by the Holy Ghoſt, theſe the Holy Ghoſt muſt by a ſupernatural act enable Conſcience to diſcern, or we do not, cannot diſcern them. And therefore in the ſame Chapter it is ſaid, He hath given us his Spirit that we might know the things that are given us of God. And his Graces in us, are Gifts, and ſpecial Gifts of Gods Grace in us.

CHAP. XIII.

The highest Degree to which a Temporary Believer can possibly attain, describ'd by the Apostle Paul, *(Heb. 6.) which yet falls short of that saving Work, wrought in a Sincere Believer, there spoken of by him.*

HEB. VI. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

V. 4. For it is impossible for those who were once enlightned, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the holy Ghost,

V. 5. And have tasted the good Word of God, and the powers of the world to come;

V. 6. If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance: seeing they Crucifie to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame.

V. 7. For the Earth which drinketh in the rain which cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God:

V. 8. But that which beareth thorns and briers, is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned.

V. 9. But beloved, we are perswaded better things of you, and things that accompany Salvation, tho' we thus speak.

V. 10. For God is not unrighteous, to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministred to the saints and do minister.

THE Apostle sets before these Hebrews, the most dreadful things about a Temporary's work and Condition, that is to be found in the whole Scriptures; and yet in the Occasion he took for it, he doth it with the greatest advantage for the comfort of the weakest sound Christian, and with the greatest tenderness that possibly so great a matter could be uttered in. The advantage he takes for it, appears in this, That whereas one of the greatest Objections that many sound Believers have against themselves that they are but Temporaries, ariseth from manifold defects, and (some of which are but accidental to a Christians state) the deadness of their Hearts, the lowness of their Graces, the want of Growth, Rebellion of Lusts, and the like; for there are a Thousand such might be instanced. They judg'd such like things, specially when of a long continuance, to argue them Hypocrites; which doubts of theirs, they were the more strengthned in, when withal they compared the soaring Heights, the high Enlightnings, the vehement and forward Affections, Tasts of things in the other World, which concerns Mens Salvations, that they

they had obſerved to have been in ſome that had utterly fallen away. Alas thought they, when I compare what deadneſs is in my Heart, what little or no proficiency my Soul hath made in things Heavenly for ſo long a time; and on the other hand, what wonderful Enlightnings, quickneſs of Affections ſuch as have fallen away have ſhot up into, I cannot but Conclude that I much rather ſhall fall away too; for alas, I am far ſhort of them in theſe things. The Apoſtle therefore intending to diſcourſe this great point in this Epiſtle, takes this ſtrange advantage for it, and ſuch an one as ſhall prevent the diſcouragment of the loweſt Saint. The courſe he takes is this. Chap. 1

1. He preſents the worſt and loweſt caſe of a ſound Chriſtian that well can be ſuppoſed, and tells thoſe Hebrews plainly, that it was many of their caſes, Chap. 5. v. 12, 13. For when for the time ye ought to have been Teachers, ye have need that one Teach you again which be the firſt Principles of the Oracles of God, and are become ſuch as have need of Milk, and not of ſtrong Meat. For every one that uſeth Milk is unskilful in the word of Righteouſneſs, for he is a Babe. He inſtanceth indeed only in point of defect in, and want of growth in Knowledg; but that muſt be proportionably ſuppoſed to have been accompanied with anſwerable flatneſs and deadneſs of Holy Affections, and colder Exerciſe of Graces. 'Tis certain, if they did not grow in Knowledge in ſo many Years, they had not grown in Grace; Grow in Knowledg (ſays the Apoſtle) and in Grace. And 'tis as certain, that if they had not grown in Grace, there muſt have been a decay in Grace, and the exerciſes of it, and thereupon a Worldly fleſhly frame, and an over-growing of many Luſts would riſe inſtead thereof. Whereby at leaſt they grew nigh unto a Curſe from God, and were even at the very pits brink to have bin given up by God to final hardneſs, &c. Yet Knowledg is that thing which even Hypocrites uſe to grow up into, more than in any other endowment. In gifts of Knowledge, and the exerciſe thereof, they are Eminent. Theſe are an Excellency which corrupt Nature affects, and ſeeks after above all other; that therefore ſuch as were true Chriſtians ſhould not have ſought to grow up in this; what a ſtrange thing and caſe was this? And the ground thereof muſt needs be, becauſe they had not had a great Valuation of things Heavenly, which if they had had, they would have ſought to grow acordingly in the Knowledg of them.

Now take their Caſe as to Knowledg, as the Apoſtle here ſets it out, it was very deplorable. (v. 12.)

1. They ſeem to have loſt of that Spiritual Capacity to take in Spiritual things which they once had, and to have fallen from much of that Spiritual ſavour and quickneſs of Underſtanding in the fear of the Lord which they once had: This that word [You are become ſuch, &c.] ſeems to import.

2. They are Repreſented like Men old, or Men in a Conſumption, whoſe Stomachs cannot digeſt ſtrong Meats (as they had wont) and are therefore glad to live on Milk, and the weakeſt ſort of Food. You are become ſuch (ſays the Apoſtle) as have need of Milk, and not of ſtrong Meat: Which the Oppoſition, v. 14. ſhews and explains; but ſtrong Meat belongeth to them that are of full Age, even thoſe who by reaſon of uſe have their Senſes exerciſed to diſcern both Good and Evil.

3. That Word [by reaſon of uſe] implies that they had not exerciſed their Graces, whereby their Knowledg might have been put in ure, and ſo enlarged thereby.

2. Having thus ſet them forth at the loweſt, he deſcribes the Higheſt and Quickeſt ſort of workings, and operations and advancers in matters of Religion, made by ſome that yet fall away, v. 4, 5. For it is impoſſible for thoſe Book 6 who were once enlightned, and have taſted of the Heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghoſt; and have taſted the good Word of God, and the Powers of the World to come; if they ſhall fall away, to renew them again to Repentance.

3. And yet Thirdly he Concludes, That he hoped better things, and things that accompanyed Salvation, or that have Salvation in them. v. 9. But beloved we are perſwaded better things of you, and things that accompany Salvaiton, though we thus ſpeak; ἐχόμενα σωτηρίας, according to that ſaying, He that truly believes hath Eternal Life; of theſe concerning whom he had afore ſpoken the worſt things that could be ſpoken, he yet hopes, nay is perſwaded that ſuch better things, or ſaving Graces, yet remained in them, than all thoſe Enlightnings ſpecified had bin in thoſe other, as having been but ſuch as never had true Salvation in them, but had all the while been ſhort of it, and not in the event only. And the Ground of his Perſwaſion was,

1. That they had wrought in them at firſt a ſound and ſincere Love to God, his Name, and his Saints, which they had by Deeds and Labour therein given many real Teſtimonies of.

2. And to this end he bids them call to Remembrance, &c. Chap. 10. 32, 33, 34, 35. Call to Remembrance the former days in which after ye were illuminated ye endured a great Fight of Afflictions; partly whilſt ye were made a gazing ſtock both by Reproaches and Afflictions, and partly whilſt ye became Companions of them that were ſo uſed: For ye had Compaſſion of me in my Bonds, and took joyfully the ſpoiling of your Goods, knowing in your ſelves that ye have in Heaven a better and an enduring Subſtance: Caſt not away therefore your Confidence, which hath great Recompence of Reward. It went it ſeems very low with them at preſent, when to perſwade himſelf and them of their Grace he is fain to have recourſe unto things ſo far back.

3. He elſwhere minds them alſo, that though they had never yet been call'd to Martyrdom, nor reſiſted unto Blood, (Chap. 12. 4.) yet they had continued to Fight againſt Sin, and with much Conteſt and Hazard to keep themſelves from the evils of the Times, all which are a Fighting againſt Sin to keep a good Conſcience; as alſo they had maintained and kept up a Conflict againſt Sin in their own Hearts.

4. And thoſe things they had continued (though in ſome low Meaſure) to do for a long time from the firſt works upon them; and even there and then, (v. 12.) whileſt he blames them for their Non-proficiency, yet thoſe Words, That when for the time ye might have been Teachers, &c. argues them to have bin a long time Converted; then again (Chap. 10. ver. 32.) He bids to call to Remembrance the former Days, &c. when firſt Converted, which had been long ſince paſt.

OBSERV. That in the Conflicts and Diſquiſition your Spirits may have whether your Selves be Temporary Believers or no, conſider that there are many things Accidental to the ſtate of Grace, which you are not abſolutely to Conclude of your Eſtates by.

1. Not by a great decay of what Affections, and perhaps ſome Principles of ſtrictneſs you had at firſt, now much decayed and leſſened. If theſe he wrote to had theſe as freſh in them when he wrote as at the firſt, he would not have remitted them to their experiments in former times, (Call to remembrance (ſays he) &c.) Nor would he have comforted them with this, That God is not forgetful, &c. of what had been ſo long paſt, if freſher and better Fruits and more lively Evidences had of latter Years been found in them.

2. Nor

2. Nor are you to judge of your ſelves by a compariſon of appearance made of your ſelves with ſome you have known or read of in the Word to have gone ſo, and ſo far, whom you verily think as to your own view, whilſt you compare your ſelves with them, that they have fallen ſhort. Alas, if Theſe, among theſe Hebrews, ſhould have compared their low preſent Actings, Enlightnings, Workings of Heart, &c. with thoſe other in the appearance of them (as v. 4, & 5. he hath ſet them out) where would theſe poor ungrown Chriſtians have appeared? As 'tis an uncertain Rule to judge a man's good by comparing himſelf with others that are worſe, ſo and ſo fetching his Comfort thence; ſo 'tis as uncertain an one to judge of my ſelf and of my Chriſtian Eſtate by comparing it with others, whom I have thought better than my ſelf, to have gone farther, who yet have proved Apoſtates: For what do I know what was the frame of their Hearts towards God, and the Principles of their Profeſſion? Thou doſt not know the whole of the State and Condition of ſuch Men what it was: Bring then thy Heart to God, and view all that hath been between him and thee, either of his Love drawn forth to thee, or thine to him. Conſider whether thy Heart in ſome degree yet cleaves to God, and continues to purſue after him: So ſhalt thou have Comfort from the Lord, who is not forgetful of any of theſe things. Caſt not thy Confidence away in ſuch a Caſe; If you let that go, you let all go, hold faſt the beginning of thy Confidence to the end: Thus the Apoſtle exhorts in this Epiſtle again and again, Chap. 10. 35. Chap. 3. 6. But Chriſt as a Son over his own Houſe, whoſe Houſe are we, if we hold faſt the Confidence and the rejoycing of the hope firm unto the end: This is what, above all elſe, the Apoſtle exhorts unto, v. 14. Some of theſe poor Hebrew Chriſtians that were Sound-hearted, who had not fallen off and departed from Chriſt as others had done, yet could not but have great doubts and diſputes within themſelves, whether they were not Temporary Believers, and that their latter end might be like unto theirs. For ſuch a declining and ungrowing a Condition could not but have been accompanied with ſuch Temptations in an Heart in any meaſure conſiderative or attentive to its own Salvation. Yet you ſee the Courſe the Apoſtle takes with them. Chap. 13

1. He puts them not upon the diſpute of this, which was a Controverſy and Suit they could never have brought to an end, and which nothing but Faith ends.

Nor 2. Doth he ſeek to work in them ſuch a work of humbling, or apprehenſion of their being in their Natural Condition, as uſeth to be at firſt: Wherein Converts do caſt away all that had been wrought hitherto, as unſound, as if that were a neceſſary Foundation in ſuch unto a new ſaving work. He doth not direct them to make utterly a new Beginning, as to their own apprehenſions: But the caſe ſtands thus; That whereas ſound Believers uſe to have emptyings of themſelves upon diſcovery of their Wants and Corruptions, which cauſeth them to apprehend, for the preſent, their Conditions to be unregenerate, after which the Holy Ghoſt comes and takes the advantage out of themſelves unto renewed Acts of Faith: So theſe having the Convictions of their former unſoundneſs laid open to them by the Holy Ghoſt, are thereupon Gently led into true and ſaving Acts of Faith, Regenerating of them. And look as afore this work, theſe Temporarys had a work ſo like true Grace, as it was very hard to diſtinguiſh it from the true; ſo this very new ſaving work in them, is hardly diſtinguiſhable from that renewed work on true Believers upon and after ſuch Tentations.

3. He exhorts them to remember what had been wrought in them, and how God had drawn and won their Hearts unto him, and accordingly that that they ſhould hold faſt the Beginning of their Confidence to the end, and they would find themſelves partakers of Chriſt. It is unto the way of renewing their Faith he directs them, for Faith would only end it, and renew that often, ſays he, Chap. 4. v. 11. Let us labour to enter into that Reſt, leſt any man fall after the ſame example of Unbelief. The word is, let us ſtudy that point, and to enter into Reſt is to believe, as the oppoſition, and likewiſe v. 3. ſhew, For we which have believed do enter into Reſt.

If any one object to me, Would you have me recall my firſt Work, and Truſt in that? Suppoſe it were indeed not a ſaving work (as in many that are after made Sound, it is not) would you have me renew my Confidence thereon?

Anſwer, No: That is not my meaning, nor Paul's: For if the work were never ſo good and ſound, your Confidence muſt not be upon that, much leſs when it may be a falſe one; but this I ſay, Renew the ſame acts of Faith, and truſt on the ſame God and Chriſt thou dealedſt withal at firſt. Have recourſe to them afreſh, Reiterate again and again thy Faith on them immediately, as thou didſt at firſt. In the Original it is, the Subſiſtence of your Confidence; hold God and Chriſt afore thee as ſubſiſtent by Faith to thee, in thy Treaties with them, and if God continues to carry on thy Heart thus to purſue after him, Chriſt cannot but ſave thee. For if thou continueſt to caſt thy ſelf upon him, and ſtill in all ſuch diſceptations about thy Eſtate plyeſt him, and putteſt thy Salvation into his hands, Chriſt will not, cannot depart from thee whilſt he continues thy Heart to truſt him. He cannot but work ſavingly in the end on ſuch a Soul, if he hath not done it already. Remember then whence you are fallen, and do your firſt Works, and repent, (Heb. 6. 11.) And we deſire that every one of you do ſhew the ſame diligence to the full aſſurance of Hope unto the end. If you have ſlackned (as you have done) yet revive that diligence again, and you will find your firſt Confidence will come in again, if true, with advantage and encreaſe, even with full aſſurance of hope unto the end; or if there was not a true Faith at firſt, then a better will come in the room of it.

Only 4. He ſeverely cautions and admoniſheth them to take heed leſt there be in any of them an evil Heart of Unbelief, in departing from the living God. But exhort one another daily (ſays he) while it is called to day, leſt any of you be hardned thro' the deceitfulneſs of ſin, Chap. 3. 12, 13. and v. 15. While it is ſaid to day if you will hear his voice harden not your Hearts, &c. He exhorts them to take heed of indulging their Luſts, Heb. 12. 15, 16, 17. Looking diligently leſt any man fail of the Grace of God, leſt any Root of bitterneſs ſpringing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled: Leſt there be any Fornicator or profane perſon as Eſau, who for one morſel of meat ſold his Birth-right; for you know how that afterward when he would have inherited the Bleſſing, he was rejected: For he found no place of Repentance, though he ſought it carefully, with Tears. He exhorts them to take heed of leaving off Ordinances, Heb. 10. 25. Not forſaking the aſſembling of our ſelves, as the manner of ſome is, but exhorting one another, and ſo much the more as you ſee the day approaching. And many ſuch moſt earneſt exhortaions he makes, not only in relation to their neglect of particular Duties, but in relation to their eternal Eſtates and Conditions.

BOOK VII.

Of the Difference of the Works on Temporary Believers, and those truly called, and that they differ in their Nature and Kind.

CHAP. I.

That the Apostle Peter, 2 Pet. 1. 3, 4. 2 Pet. 2. 20, 21. makes a clear Distinction between Temporary Professors, and those truly called.

2 PET. I. 3, 4.

V. 3. According as his Divine Power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto Life and Godliness, thro' the knowledg of him that hath called us to Glory and Vertue.

V. 4. Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious Promises; that by these you might be partakers of the Divine Nature, having escaped the Corruption that is in the World thro' Lust.

2 PET. II. 20, 21.

V. 20. For if after they have escaped the Pollutions of the World thro' the Knowledg of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again intangled therein, and overcome, the latter End is worser with them than the Beginning.

V. 21. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of Righteousness, than after they have known it, to turn from the Holy Commandment delivered unto them.

I Have set these Two Passages of the same Epistle together, and by comparing the one with the other, you may easily discern that Peter would seem to speak somewhat like, yet clear differing things of two several sorts of Professors, and two several Works in those Professors of Religion. In the the Second Chapter he ſpeaks of ſuch who profeſſed Religion, and had once a work upon their Hearts which cauſed them at firſt ſo to do, and to break forth from the World (v. 18.) and that ὄντως (as the word is) that is, really had eſcaped from them who live in Errour, or the common errour of a Natural condition, common to you with other Men, but now were fallen away, and their latter end was worſe with them than the begining, (v. 20, 21, 22.) But in the Firſt Chapter (v. 1.) he ſpeaks of, and unto ſuch who had obtained like precious Faith with us, viz. the Apoſtles of Chriſt. And of each of theſe he ſeems to ſpeak like things (as on purpoſe) and yet how diſtant are they in the reality!

1. Of both the one and the other he ſays, that they eſcaped the defilements of the World. 2 Pet. 1. 3. Chap. 2. 20.

And 2. He tells us, that both of them were wrought upon and induced to this, by one and the ſame means, through the Knowledg of the Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, (compare v. 3. of the Chapter 1. and v. 20. of Chapter 2.) inſomuch as both are enlightned with ſuch a Knowledg of Chriſt, as hath a powerful Impreſſion upon their Hearts, as (v. 18. of Chapter 2.) it is ſaid of theſe (2 Pet. 2. 18.) that thus fall away, that they did ὄντως, really and indeed, and in earneſt forſake thoſe Sins.

Yet how differing is the State of theſe Perſons? The ſum of which Difference is reduced to this, that thoſe (of whom he ſpeaks in the Firſt Chapter) that were ſavingly wrought upon, had ſuch a Knowledg of Chriſt as had throughly altered, and changed the inward frame of their Hearts, their very Natures and Diſpoſitions, turning and transforming them from Sin to a Divine Nature.

1. It had prevailed to ſever, and part their Souls from the power of inward Luſts as well as outward groſs defilements, ἀποφυγόντες τῆς ἐν ἐπιθυμίᾳ φθορᾶς, that Corruption that conſiſteth in Luſt or inward Concupiſence. The prevailing Knowledge of Chriſt had deſtroy'd and rent the Indentures that had been between the Soul and theſe Corruptions; for the word Eſcaping ſpeaks and hath reference to Freedom from the Tyranny of an hard Maſter (or as it is, v. 19. of Chapter 2.) of being Servants of Corruption. In theſe Sincere Believers the divine Power had cut the very Heart-ſtrings, Ligaments and Tyes between their Souls and their Luſts, ſo far that their inward Man had really parted with, and was delivered from the ſtrength and violence of Luſts. But of thoſe other (Chapter 2.) it is barely ſaid, they had eſcaped, τὰ μιάσματα, the groſſer Defilements of the World, (v. 20.) that pollute Men outwardly; in reſpect of which it is, that they are ſaid to have eſcaped from thoſe that live in Errour, (v. 18.) He mentions nothing to expreſs that this work had reacht to the deſtroying of Luſts, or alteration of their ſinful Natures; but their caſe was as that of run-away Servants. They had made an eſcape from their Maſters, but the inward Bonds and Indentures were not cancelled, and ſo they were fetcht back again, v. 19. While they promiſe them Liberty, they themſelves are Servants of Corruption; for of whom a Man is overcome, of the ſame is he brought in Bondage; which he affirms more plainly (v. 22.) comparing them to a Sow that was once waſhed, which imports an External cleanſing only from the Mire they wallowed in, which cleaves to the outward parts; but to eſcape the Corruption that conſiſts in Luſts; to have the ſinful Nature, the inward radical Conſtitution changed, this they wanted. The Old Man, or Nature of Man as it comes into the World, is ſaid, (Eph. 4. 22. like to what is here) to be Corrupt in Luſts, that is, the formal being, and eſſence of its Corruption (as it is Corrupt) is ſaid to conſiſt in Luſts, and therefore to have eſcaped through the Knowledge of Chriſt, the Corruption that is in Luſt, is to put off the old Nature, to have the inward diſpoſition altered, which there alſo the Apoſtle affirms is done by ſuch a Knowledg of Chriſt, as hath a difference in it, from what is in ordinary profeſſours, v. 21.

If

If so be ye have heard him, and been taught by him as the truth is in Jesus. It imports a distinction from what is counterfeit, therefore (Gal. 5. 24.) those that are Christs, are said to have crucified the Lusts with the Affections. Chap. 1

2. Here is another Difference, viz. The Participation of a contrary Divine Nature. This Divine Nature clearly shews a Change of Nature, and so their having escaped the Corruption that is in the World thro' Lust, (2 Pet. 1. 4.) is the putting off the old Nature which is corrupt in Lusts: And on the other side, forasmuch that such a Change from a state of Natural Corruption is specified with this Divine Nature as its Opposite, it is evident that this Participation of the Divine Nature is to be understood of the contrary Divine Qualities and Principles, but now made Natural to the Soul, as Lusts once were. But it is not the Participation of the Essence of God substantially, as some both of old and of late have offered to affirm.

My Assertion is yet more clear, inasmuch as the Apostle also calleth the Communication of this New Nature, The giving of all things belonging to Life and Godliness; that is, all inward Principles, Seeds, Powers and Abilities of Godliness, and a Spiritual Life, and those as the Roots and Habits of all Actions made natural. Now look, as there is a different Mercy or Grace in God, out of which he bestows those Gifts he vouchsafes unto men, whom in the Issue he saveth not, different far from that mercy out of which he gives that Grace and Holiness which hath Salvation accompanying it: So the like difference is to be found in the exertings of the Degrees of his Power, out of which he worketh either. His Mercies that are over all his works, are styled Common Mercies, whereas to his Elect there are peculiar special Mercies, call'd the sure Mercies of David. Answerably the works on Temporaries flow but from his common providential Mercies, only farther heightned towards such than to others of Mankind (these being choicer Mercies in themselves than Riches, Honours, &c.) and are therefore styled common Graces, as being in their general valuation cast but into the same heap with other common mercies. But they are rather call'd Common Graces, because they bear the semblance and counterfeit of true and saving Graces.

It is therefore a Subject worth the Prosecution, to shew the disproportion of power which is seen in these two works, that the measure of the one may be mutually taken from each other: For the one by the Kind of it will be found to be such a work as needeth not the exceeding greatness of Gods Power to be put forth to work it; and the other, viz. The Divine Nature, is a work of that excellency, as requires the utmost of Gods Power to be stretched forth in the working of it, or it will not be effected.

CHAP. II.

The Uſefulneſs of this Doctrine concerning Temporary Believers, to many holy Ends and Purpoſes.

THE Apoſtle farther in this Heb. 6. ſets forth the high and great Workings which are in the Hearts of Temporary Believers that fall away, and the dreadful Event and Iſſue of their ſo falling, (v. 8.) And as there were in thoſe times, the higheſt Effuſions of the Spirit and Graces wrought in many true Chriſtians, in compariſon of other times; So there were anſwerably the higheſt ſort of Temporaries (which v. 4, 5. doth ſpeak of) and indeed the moſt ſublimated, that Corrupt Nature was capable of.

He adventures this Doctrine among them true Believers that were weak and doubtful: And notwithſtanding there might be very many Souls entangled in Fears that they were of that Number; yet this Doctrine is good and profitable to men, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks in another Caſe.

Obſerv. The Doctrine and Knowledge, that there is only a Temporary Work in many Profeſſors, is uſeful to ſincere Chriſtians for many holy Ends. Peter declares it to thoſe he wrote to, 2 Pet. 2. 20, 21, 22. For if after they have eſcaped the Pollutions of the World, through the Knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, they are again entangled therein and overcome, the Latter End is worſe with them than the Beginning. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of Righteouſneſs, than after they have known it, to turn from the holy Commandment delivered unto them. But it is hapned unto them according to the true Proverb, the Dog is turned to his own Vomit again, and the Sow that was waſhed to her wallowing in the Mire. Jude alſo upon occaſion of men that had once profeſſed the Doctrine of Grace (v. 4.) turned it into wantonneſs, doth the like, at v. 5. I will put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord having ſaved the People out of the Land of Egypt, afterward deſtroyed them that believed not. The meaning whereof is, he would have them conſider, that the Iſraelites coming out of Egypt was a Type of our common Salvation (as he had called it v. 3.) yea, many of them came forth through a work of God upon them, for they believed, Exodus 4. 31. And the People believed, and when they heard that the Lord had viſited the Children of Iſrael, and that he had looked upon their Affliction, then they bowed their Heads and worſhipped. They had been in great Diſtreſs, and mans Nature is apt to believe and embrace News of deliverance in ſuch a Caſe, which was a great ground of that Faith in many of them: but however, this together with the ſenſe of their Bondage, moved them to come out of Egypt. You read of the like Faith upon the great viſible deliverance at the Red Sea, Exodus 14. 31. And Iſrael ſaw that great work which the Lord did upon the Egyptians, and the People feared the Lord, and believed the Lord and his Servant Moſes. But, ſays Jude, I would have you withal remember, that though their Faith ſerved to bring them out of Egypt, yet it was but a Temporary Faith, ſuch as laſted not, nor ſerved to bear the Condition of a Wilderneſs; their Faith failed them as to perſeverance, chearfully to go on into the good Land. They would, if they could, have returned back into Egypt; and you know the ſins they fell into, and concerning them Jude adds, that God afteawards deſtroyed them that thus believed not. And this (ſaith he) though you know, yet I would have you remember, and lay it to Heart, as that which was Gods Aim and Intendment in this diſpenſation, in relation to thoſe their times and the Profeſſors of it. 'Tis of ſpecial uſe to you all; for this is the Caſe of multitudes of Professors, that come out of a gross sinful Condition; they see their former Estate to be a State of Bondage and Damnation (which is as a coming out of Egypt) but their own Lusts in their Progress in the Wilderness of this Life ruins them. And what befell the Israelites as Types, is for our Instruction. 1 Cor. 10, 11. Now, all these things hapned to them for Ensamples, and they are written for our Admonition, upon whom the ends of the World are come. Chap. 1

And Jude tells them, that when he set himself to write of our common Salvation, (v. 3.) the Holy Ghost, who dictated this Epistle, presented this Caution and Discourse about such temporary Professors first unto him, to present unto them.

The like to this also doth Paul in his Epistle to the Hebrews, Chap. 3, & 4. and 1 Cor. 9. 24. to the end: Know ye not that they which run in a Race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain. And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things; now they do it to obtain a Corruptible Crown, but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the Air: But I keep under my Body and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means when I have preached to others, I my self should be a Cast-away. He indeed in that Chapter presents this under another Scene, and Similitudes of the Olympick Games, in which many run, but one obtains: And so in Christianity, many beat the air, and run but uncertainly.

And how much our Saviour insisted on this Doctrine, you all know. How many Parables did he spend upon it? That Parable of Parables (as himself indigitates it to be) do you not understand to be, of all other, of the most concernment to you and others? I mean that of the Sower, and the several Grounds; and the Parable likewise of those that built their House on the Sand, when others built upon a Rock? Moreover, many Speeches there are scattered up and down to this Effect, That many are called, but few are chosen. Enter in at the strait Gate, for many will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. Luke 13. 24. The usefulness of this Doctrine is,

1. To awaken dull professors (as our Apostle terms those Hebrews, (Heb. 5. 11.) to consider their Estates. The wise Virgins sleep (Mat. 2. 54.) as well as the Foolish, and the noise of this Doctrine rowseth up such, sooner than any other.

2. This Doctrine is useful to quicken them to Holiness, and to endeavour to make sure work. Thus it wrought with Paul himself, and Paul makes use thereof to quicken Others. 1 Cor. 9. 26, 27. I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the Air: But I keep under my Body, and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means when I have preached to others, I my self should be a Cast-away. He had this in his eye to the last, after he had done all, v. 23. And this I do for the Gospels sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you. The like use he makes of it unto all, in 2 Tim. 2. 19. &c. Let every one that nameth the Name of Christ depart from Iniquity. But in a great House there are not only Vessels of Gold and of Silver, but also of Wood and of Earth, and some to Honour and some to Dishonour. If a man therefore purge himself from these, he shall be a Vessel unto Honour, sanctified and meet for the Masters use, and prepared unto every good Work. It was upon the occasion of the examples of Hymeneus and Philetus having gone so far, but now shipwrackt both in Faith and Conscience, that he thus wrote.

3. This Doctrine exalts and magnifies unto us the Grace of God towards us, as that which hath put so vast a difference between man and man, in things that are so like to true Grace, and that make men come so near to the Kingdom of God; Who caused thee to differ (says the Apostle) from another? And that other perhaps had a mighty Work upon him, which caused him to profess more than ever thou hadst done. Judas had a work upon him as well as Peter or the rest of the Apostles, what put the difference? Gods Free Grace, Thine they were and thou gavest them me, and I have lost none but the Son of Perdition.

4. As this Doctrine is in theſe and many other reſpects uſeful to us, ſo God himſelf hath many Holy and Glorious Ends in ordering ſuch a diſpenſation to be found amongſt Profeſſors.

1. It is for his greater Honour and Glory as he is Lord over his Church, which is his Houſe, to have (as in great Houſes there uſe to be) Veſſels not only of Gold and Silver, but alſo of Wood and of Earth, and ſome to Honour, and ſome to Diſhonour, 2 Tim. 2. 20.

2. Theſe Diſpenſations of God, ſhort of Regenerating Grace, do lay up matter for a great Honour unto the Man Chriſt Jeſus, as he is to be the Judg of all the World, and to give the exact account of every Man's condition and ways, and Heart, and to Judg of them accordingly. One would think that ſuch a work of the Spirit as hath ſo great a likeneſs, and that with a Reality joined with it in the Hearts and Spirits of Men, ſhould make a great puzzle and blind at the latter day, how clearly to diſtinguiſh and diſcover to the Men themſelves, and all the World, that ſuch Profeſſors as theſe were never truly Regenerate; but this will turn to the greater Glory to Chriſt, Heb. 4. 12. ſpeaking of Chriſt the Word (as the cloſe of his Speech, v. 13. ſhews, before the Eyes of him with whom we have to do) of him thus conſidered as the Word, he ſays, He the Word of God, is quick and powerful, ſharper than any Two edged Sword, piercing even to the dividing aſunder of Soul and Spirit, and of the Joynts and Marrow, and is a diſcerner of the Thoughts and intents of the Heart: Neither is there any Creature that is not manifeſt in his ſight, but all things are Naked and opened unto the Eyes of him with whom we have to do. He ſpeaks this of him, as he is to be the Judge of all Men. All things are Naked and open to the Eyes of him, πρὸς ὃν ὁ λόγος, to whom we muſt give the Account. And as in the next Verſes he repreſents him as a great High-Prieſt in all his Compaſſions, and power to help in time of need: So in theſe 12 & 13. verſes, he ſets him out as a Judge, with Ability to detect all Men to themſelves; and he ſpeaks this in a way of Admonition, eſpecially to ſuch as were in danger to fall from a work of God upon them, and to become Apoſtates. This the verſe before ſhews us. Leſt, (ſaith he) any Man fall after the ſame Example of Unbelief, of whom the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs were Types. And becauſe the diſcovery of all Mens Eſtates and conditions depends upon an exact dividing or differencing, what is in the Soul, what is in the Spirit, and what are the joints all Mens Actions turn upon, and what is the Marrow and intimate meaning and mind of every Man's Soul in his Actions, and ways and thoughts; and ſince ſuch a Diſcovery conſiſts in laying open every Mens ends and intents in his Heart, and Thoughts, and Principles; hence therefore he compares the Power of this Judg unto ſuch things as are moſt quick and powerful, as among Metals, Mercury or Quickſilver is, when it is put to other Metals by them that are Refiners. And tho' Metals are blended and mingled one with another, or with Droſs never ſo much, yet this is ſo quick and ſo active, as it will make every Metal run a ſeveral way, and ſever one from the other, and ſhew which is which. Thus the Light that Chriſt ſhall then bring with him, will do unto all Mens Hearts, and all the Thoughts and Intents and Principles which are the Foundations of Mens Actions, and which do difference them, and give them their ſeveral kinds. Theſe will all be clearly diſcovered; and though the Creatures of our Hearts (for ſo he compares our Thoughts, and intents and purpoſes, and the like) are for their kind unknown to us, becauſe ſo like ſometimes to true goodneſs; yet the Apoſtle ſays, they are all manifeſt in Chriſts ſight, and all lye Naked and open unto the Eye of Him; and he, when he comes to take the Account, will lay them all open unto us, that let a Man have had never ſo fine ſpun a work upon him, never ſo deep a Counterfeit of what is true Grace, the light that he will bring, will make them all naked unto Men themſelves, as truly as they are to him; and it is certain that this Manifeſtation and laying bare all Mens Hearts, could be performed by none but him, or his Spirit, when he comes powerfully upon Men to diſcover their Eſtates to them. But the greateſt difficulty of all lying in the Similitude of theſe workings with thoſe that are true and perfect, (and hence the greatest difficulty in Judging must needs lie here) therefore herein especially will Christ shew his Glory and skill, and will give every Man his Accounts perfectly, and set all right and straight unto the least Minute. Chap. 13

3. God dispenseth such lower workings, tho' short of Regenerating Grace, to make way for a fuller Conviction of all sorts of Wicked Men at the latter Day, and to Justify himself in his Condemnation of them. The great design God doth drive all along in this World upon the Sons of Men, is to clear himself at that Day, and to Confound them who shall be Condemned; at which Day he will have a great deal of Doe with the Hearts of Men, to Convince them, as Enoch the Seventh from Adam in his Prophesy, saying, (Jude 14, 15.) Behold, the Lord cometh with Ten Thousand of his Saints, to Execute Judgment upon all, and to convince all that are Ungodly among them, of all their Ungodly Deeds, which they have Ungodly committed, and of all their hard Speeches which Ungodly Sinners have spoken against him. The hardest Speeches that Men Living under the Gospel speak against him, are touching his Ways and Dispensations about Grace; and by this Proceeding, he prepares both to Confound the deepest Practical Opinions and Sayings in Mens Hearts, and also the Doctrinal Opinions that Men living under the Gospel do take up hereabout.

I. As for the Practical Opinions in Men's Hearts, the greatest thing that God hath to do withall in all Mens Hearts, is this Opinion, That they generally will not see nor believe that Corrupt Nature in themselves is so Corrupt and Disabled, to the attainment of that Grace which only and necessarily must save them; but on the contrary think, if they have any thing that hath the Appearance of Good in them, that they can do and may do much to the Salvation of themselves; especially if they shall be assisted and Elevated by the Spirit of God above what Nature doth enable a Man to do. God hath on the one hand, as much to do with Men in this Point, as he hath on the other hand to do with Men in the breaking forth of their Lusts into grosser Sins. Men will not believe their own utter Inability, and their Dependance wholly upon Free Grace, and their total need of Regenerating Grace, and therefore by lesser Experiments of the failure of Lower and Inferiour Workings of his upon them, God goes about to convince them of this their corruption and utter disability, and of the absolute necessity of their total Dependance upon him, which yet they will not see; and therefore God justly leaves them here, and Works no further, and thereby lays a Foundation of Justifying his Condemnation of them in their several Proportions, and the rest of Mankind, by the Example of those that are wrought upon the highest. And so God provides for nothing more than the Conviction of Men at the Latter Day, concerning the falshood of their Opinion of themselves in this respect.

1. Mens Opinionativeness herein, did cause even Heathens to set up what Light or Vertues they found in themselves, as sufficient to bring them unto Happiness: we know the Stoicks did set up Recta Ratio, Right Reason for their Rule, and their Imagin'd Perfection was, Vivere secundum Naturam: To Live according to what seemed good in Nature, either in Light of Conscience, or Vertuous Dispositions, or Inclinations, when acted and put in ure: Yea so Impudent hath the Devil been, that he hath Revived this we see in our Days, in Quakers; yea, and caused them Blasphemously to call this Christ within them. Hereupon (says God) and he says it Justly, There shall be Instances of some of you in the Issue, to Confute all the rest, in whom this Light and these Dispositions shall be tryed to the utmost how far they will reach, (as in Socrates, and Cato, and Aristides, &c.) and yet in the Exercises of all these he leaves them, and gives them up unto that which shall Convince them of an Unregenerate Estate: as the Apostle doth Convince all those Philosophers, that whilst they profest themselves Wise they became Fools, and Glorified not God as God, nor were thankful; and some of them were adon'd unto Unnatural Lusts, as Socrates to the love of Alcibiades, &c.

Book VI

And however if God hath not left them unto ſome great ſort of Wickedneſs or other, thereby to Convince them, yet the Diſcovery of the Deficiency of all the Light of their Conſciences, and of all their Vertues and Vertuous Practices, and of the Ends, Intents, Thoughts, and Principles of their Hearts, which ſhall be laid open at the Latter Day, will abundantly Detect them, and leave this further Conviction upon them herewith, That God had made Tryal of them in their Sphere, how far Corrupt Nature could go, and yet how Infinitely it fell ſhort of true Religion and Happineſs.

2. The Jews had a further addition both of Knowledge and Impreſſions that accompanied it: They had the Knowledge of the Law, and God did not deal ſo with any Nation; and they had a Zeal of God according to this Knowledge, and they thought themſelves ſure to attain Salvation if they ſet up with this new Stock. I need not tell you (out of Rom. 11. 6.) how whilſt they ſought after Righteouſneſs with all this new rais'd Stock, they did not attain unto the Law of Righteouſneſs, v. 31. And Paul's Caſe you know, (Rom. 7.) that what was ordained, as he thought to Life, he found to be unto Death; and the Concluſion which the Apoſtle makes (in Rom. 8.) is this, That the Law was weak through the Fleſh, (v. 3.) that is, all the aſſiſtance and energy which it could afford, through Mans Heart continuing ſtill Corrupt and Fleſh, remained ineffectual, like Phyſick in a Dead Man's Body; and the Righteouſneſs which they went about to eſtabliſh (as the Apoſtle ſays) they were not able to make it ſtand, though they attempted it again and again; no more than one is able to make a Dead Man ſtand, and to continue to do ſo, (Rom. 10. 3.) So that we ſee that this Addition alſo made unto the Jew, would not do; and yet Corrupt Nature finding ſome aſſiſtance and ſtrength come in thereby, they thought themſelves ſufficiently enabled for the attainment of Salvation.

3. But then thirdly, When Chriſt and the light of the Goſpel comes to be revealed to Men, accompanied with Divine Enlightnings and Taſts of the powers of the World to come, though ſtill ſhort of Regeneration, men will preſently be apt to ſay in their Hearts, Who ſhall aſcend to Heaven? that is to bring Chriſt down from above; Who ſhall deſcend into the deep? That is to bring Chriſt again from the Dead, and to bring him into my Heart: For ſtill Men think, and therefore ſay thus in their Hearts, that by that new ſtrength they may attain it, (I take this to be the meaning of the place) and God affords them all helps toward it, inward and outward, true Regenerating Grace and a new Principle of Faith only excepted: Still he proſecutes the ſame deſign, that Corrupt Nature may ſee that when it attains unto the Eleventh ſtep of the Twelve, and that Men not far off; yet Corrupt Nature being Corrupt Nature ſtill, though never ſo much aſſiſted, falls ſhort, and is weak, and utterly unable. And theſe things God works once and twice; in a Tendency to hide Pride from Man, (as Elihu ſpeaks) that Man might be emptied of that Opinion of himſelf, and adore and give himſelf up to the Grace of him who hath ſaid, I will have Mercy on whom I will have Mercy; and therefore it is not of him that wills, nor of him that runs, but of God that ſheweth Mercy, Rom. 9. 15, 16. Paul we ſee there lays it upon that: God acts thus with Men alſo, that they might ſee the abſolute Neceſſity of true Regeneration, and of a divine Nature; but this Men would not be brought to ſee, and therefore God juſtly leaves them to go on in their own way, and to enjoy their fond Opinion to their deſtruction; becauſe they would needs againſt all theſe Experiments hold up this Principle and Self-Opinion, in defiance of Gods Grace; and would be ſaved upon ſuch terms as would make Grace to be no Grace: for if this Opinion of Self-working tho' never ſo much aſſiſted continues in the Heart, the Apoſtle tells us, Grace would be no more Grace. And ſeeing that the Glory of the Grace of God would hereby be foyled, if God ſhould ſave Men upon ſuch Workings as theſe, though never ſo ſtrict or high; he therefore juſtly and with Indignation leaves them unto theſe their own Counſels, and hereupon it is that God and they do break off, whilſt they are in the midſt of a Treaty with him for Salvation.

For

For they will never come off to receive God and his Grace upon his own terms, nor set up Gods Banners of his Free Grace to them, and of sincere Love to him, upon their Turrets above Self, and so by degrees the Lord withdraws his Treaties from them, and they by degrees become Revolters from him, and in the End return to some of their old Rebellions, upon which God says, Which Covenant and Treaty they brake, and I regarded them not. Chap. 2

Moreover, God by his discovering such as these never to have had true Grace under so high and eminent Workings and Actings, needs make but a short Work (as to point of Conviction) of all the rest; for all those who have lower Works than these, of what kind soever, are with ease discovered to have had no Grace, when these for a deficiency and want of a Wedding Garment, or Marriage Affection to God and Christ, are sent speechless to Hell: so then this design and Dispensation of God is every way prepared for Judging all Men at last day.

II. God hereby makes way to confound the corrupt doctrinal Opinions that men have of Grace. For this Iniquity in practice hath come to be established in all Ages by a Law: Inasmuch as agreeably to mens deportment, according to their fond thoughts of Corrupt Natures Abilities in point of Grace, they have framed Doctrines, and drawn Models of what they judge to be Grace. All Pelagian, Semipelagian, and Jesuitical Doctrines, and all Arminian Tenets about Converting Grace, have in their several proportions arisen from what men in their own Experience have taken to be true workings of Grace in their own Souls, or else from the Pride of carnal Wisdom, whereby men of Learning and Parts think to understand this, (as Asaph hath it, Psal. 73.) even as they think to comprehend any thing else that is within the compass of mans understanding. And hence they think themselves as sufficiently furnished to judge of matters of Grace, as of any other, yea and would be thought of all things else to have skill in matters spiritual. Whereas on the other hand there are, and have been such, who beside the doctrinal Light they have had from the Word in these Points, have also had a deep and thorough Experience of either sort of workings, both Temporary, and of those other of saving, regenerating Grace on themselves; and who by comparing what the Opinions of the Arminians are, and oppositely what are the Orthodox Doctrines, as they are stated in several Columns in Writings of either side, and then by comparing these with what hath been written on their Hearts in those two several Columns of workings (as I may so speak) have, and do clearly see and conclude that the Arminian Doctrine about Converting sufficient Grace hath been but a Copy or Model taken from the Experience of a Temporary work; yea, and but for the most part of the lowest sort, or of that of the stony ground; and tho' many Persons that hold the Aarminian Doctrine in the point of Conversion may, and shall be saved (because they hold fundamental Truths otherwise, and God works beyond and besides what mens speculative Opinions are often times) yet it is no Thank to that Doctrine of theirs in that particular point of Conversion; for if only such a work be wrought in any of them that is no deeper nor higher than their Doctrine requires, they would not be saved.

And the Rule and Measure these go by in drawing such Draughts and Schemes, either of Conversion, or of sufficient Grace enabling to it; I say the rule and measure which misleads them, is, that they set up Free-will and a Grace attemper'd unto that kind of Liberty of mans Will which they have set up for themselves to be essential to it as it is Will, as they think, and by no means will permit such a Doctrine of Grace as shall detract from that kind of Liberty as they conceive: Which Liberty, say they, can no way be salved or stand with, or be preserved in that infusion of new Principles, or an infallible, effectual working and overcoming the Will, tho' done by all the Power that is in God, and by an omnipotent Sweetness that doth demulce it, as our Doctrine of Regeneration teacheth. So as they say and hold, That Free-will set free by the Light of the Gospel let into the Understanding, may, and doth yield unto God savingly, with less power of Grace than Book 7 than our Doctrine requires. Their bottom Error lyes in this, that they think if they ſhould pitch upon that Grace which we ſay is requiſite, and abſolutely neceſſary to Salvation, then they muſt derogate from their Diana of Free-will, and therefore they frame a Doctrine that may ſtand with it. And then having made theſe Draughts, they take Liberty to rage and rant againſt our Doctrine of Free-Grace, either as it is in the workings of it in our Hearts, or as we affirm it is in Gods Heart towards us, either in Electing or Regenerating Grace; and repreſenting God with our Opinions herein, they take liberty to blaſpheme Him, that if he be ſuch a God, he is ſo and ſo, (not to repeat any.) And it is wonderful to ſee what hard Speeches they ſpeak, as Jude ſays. And the bottom of the Quarrel is Free-will and Self, as it is in man corrupted, which is ſet up as the great Undertaker againſt God and his Grace in all theſe things. They pretend and plead moſt outragiouſly, that if God will but take the Shackles off with which mans Will is manacled, ſo as it be left to its own innate Freedom; and if God will but move, and elevate, and aſſiſt it, and work upon the Principles in it already, and ſtrengthen them with an acceſſary and additional power of light and good motions, Free-will ſhall then underſtand to will and run. And men will never be diſputed out of their opinion of its ability to do thus, becauſe they will not conſider and acknowledge the bottom of Corrupt Nature, that it lyes corrupt at the Bottom, in the inward Principles of it, in its Foundations; and that let it be never ſo much aſſiſted, if it be not regenerated and born again, it is never able ſo much as to ſee, much leſs to enter, or to put one ſtep into the Kingdom of God. They conſider not, that without a regenerating paſſive Principle wrought, the Will it ſelf and the Affections, and all in Man remain Corrupt as it was; and that the Underſtanding may be enlightned to divine Objects, and not be ſpiritualized, or endowed with a ſpiritual Capacity of knowing ſpiritual things in their ſpiritual Nature, and as they are in themſelves; and ſuch are the Enlightnings here (Heb. 6.) ſpoken of. They don't conſider how far this boaſting Will may be demulced, allured and toll'd on, and elevated to things of Salvation, without having a principle of true Love to God wrought in it; nor yet how far the Affections may be moved and ſtirr'd with the Cords of a man, that is, ſuch as are ſuited to the Principles in man, nor what good things there are in the Promiſes, in Chriſt, in his Righteouſneſs and Salvation, ſuited to work upon Self in a man; and thereupon what taſts and joys may Self be receptive of from all theſe: But all theſe workings will be found (as the Law of it is ſaid) weak through the Fleſh, through Corruption of Self remaining whole ſtill at the Bottom. And until this be inwardly mortified and depoſed in the dominion of it, and the Power of God come with that Almightineſs of working that raiſed Chriſt from the dead, putting in new principles of Life and Godlineſs, and making us Partakers of the divine Nature; until then Free-will in all its Converſions, whether to divine Objects, or what elſe, is but as a Door that turns upon its own Hinges, moves but upon its own Axeltree, and within its own Sphere, let it be moved and turned which way it will; and in theſe workings it is but (as I uſe to compare it) like a Drop of Water upon a Board, which if you gently put your hot and dry Finger to, and then as ſoftly lift it, it will a while cleave and riſe up; but if but a little farther, it falls down again to its own Centure.

But oh! how ſeverely doth God make way to confute and confound all theſe in their Opinions? wherein they deal moſt proudly, he goes beyond them, and is above them. Indeed, would there, or could there any other Courſe have been taken ſo effectually to ſtop their mouths, and ſo invincibly to convict them at the laſt day, as this?

1. He firſt in the World deals ſo with many of them, and with others of the Sons of men, as to anſwer them according to the Idol and Stumbling-Block of their Opinions, and to that end tryes to the utmoſt proportion in ſome or other, how far Corrupt Nature of it ſelf, and left ſtill to its innate Corruption, will riſe and go, and yet remain but Corrupt Nature and Self at bottom ſtill. He tryes how far all in man may be ſo wrought upon as hath been ſaid; and yet ſo allays, and moderates his Workings, as their Hearts ſtill fall ſhort of the Glory of God, or of his regenerating Grace flowing from Election, which theſe men ſo deſpiſe. And herein Free-will and Self, which they adore ſo much, continues (even as they deſire) with the ſame Principles that by nature they have, and devoid of having an inward Principle, and Root of Grace, and this according to their Doctrine, is their deſire alſo. So that indeed by theſe means, by making theſe experiments on Corrupt Nature, God doth but make way for the Triumph of his Grace over the proud Conceits of Self, which are in Mankind, and which are moſt Natural, and the moſt deeply rooted of any other. Chap. 2

Then 2. When he, at the latter day, brings forth his true Saints, and his Workings upon them, and (as it is in the Prophet) ſays, Theſe are my Witneſſes, and then lays open (what he hid from thoſe other, the wiſe and prudent) what real, true and uncounterfeit workings and experiments of his Grace there were in their Hearts, ſuitable unto the true Doctrines of eternal Love and invincible Grace: When he diſplays what a new Heart, and new Spirit he gave them, and how he wrote the Law in their Hearts, and taught them all anew to know him with a New and Spiritual Light, and put his Spirit in the midſt of them, that ſhould cauſe them to walk in his Commandments, and put his fear into their Hearts that they ſhould not depart from him: And then ſhall produce what the Word ſays, together with what hath been in their Hearts and Souls, beyond what all the Doctrine of the Adverſaries of his Grace taught: And when it ſhall be diſcover'd, that the workings which theſe Adverſaries had according to their Doctrine, yet fail'd of the Grace of God (as the Apoſtle ſpeaks) even for want of that farther power to be put forth by God, which they deſired not of him to beſtow upon them; what a fatal deciſion, tho' a final one, will this be, whereby God will put an end to their Controverſie!

For then, 3. He will come upon them with their own Principles, Iſa. 5. 3, 4. And now judge I pray you betwixt me and my Vineyard: What could have been done more to my Vineyard that I have not done in it? Wherefore when I looked that it ſhould bring forth Grapes, brought it forth wild Grapes? This is your ſufficient Grace, which your ſelves deſired, and would have none other; Much good may your Free-will-Grace do you; You have had, many of you, enough of it, as God in that place of Iſaiah ſpeaks thoſe words unto proud man, that under the Covenant of Works would be ſetting up his own Abilities, which God, according to their Principles, had aſſiſted. This (as I take it) is the true Air of the interpretation of that place. He will in like manner plead againſt theſe at the latter day, and then muſt all men fall down and acknowledge, that it was the Grace of God alone could ſave, which before man would never underſtand, nor be brought unto. In theſe men (whoſe work is deciphered here Heb. 6.) God did vouchſafe as full a ſufficient Grace according to their Principles, as they do deſcribe or deſire in their low model of Doctrines; for they will needs argue theſe men to have been actually converted, and to have walkt as true and ſincere Chriſtians, which yet how ſhort it was of ſaving Grace, I have out of the 9th and 10th verſes ſhewn. So then God will be found to have gone beyond their Doctrines and Demands: Yea and it will appear, that becauſe God did not farther work that in them which we ſay ſaving Grace muſt do (and thoſe v. 9, 10. ſhew) that, therefore, and therein they were ſhort of Grace.

CHAP. III.

That a Genuine Saving work of Grace is ſpecifically diſtinct from that which is in a Temporary Believer, evidenc'd from a Conſideration of the ſtate of the Thorny Ground here in (Heb. 6.) ſet in Parrllel with the Parable of the Sower in the Evangeliſts. Some Obſervations on the Whole.

IN proſecution of my Diſcourſe about the Nature of the work wrought in Temporary Believers, and to prove that the true work of Grace wrought in ſincere Believers, is ſpecifically diſtinct from it, I ſhall now Conſider the State of the Thorny Ground, as repreſented in Heb. 6. 7, 8. For the Earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth Herbs meet for them by whom it is dreſſed, receiveth bleſſing from God: But that which beareth thorns and briers, is rejected, and is nigh unto curſing; whoſe end is to be burned.

1. I ſhall conſider the Parallel theſe words do hold with the Thorny ground, in the Parable of the Sower, in reſpect of what each brings forth.

2. I ſhall conſider the Alluſion whereby the Event or Iſſue that in the end befalleth theſe Thorny-ground Profeſſours that fall away, as ſet forth in thoſe words,

1. Nigh unto Curſing.
2. Whoſe End is to be Burned.

3. I ſhall conſider the Import of the Similitudes whereby the MEANS by which they are wrought upon, are ſet out. 1. Rain. 2. The Dreſſing

4. Some Obſervations upon All.

I. As for the Parallel which this Text, (Heb. 6. 7, 8.) holds with the Thorny-ground in the Parable of the Sower, an Alluſion here ſeems expreſly to be intended.

1. In the ſubſtance and reality of the things, the works here ſpoken of by Paul, from which men fall away, are one and the ſame with thoſe mention'd in the Parable. For he ſpeaks here of the higheſt ſort of workings upon men that fall away, as the deſcriptions of the workings themſelves ſhew, viz. Their being enlightned, and having taſted of the Heavenly Gift, and being made Partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, and having taſted the good Word of God, and the Powers of the World to come. And as in the Primitive times there were in True Believers the higheſt Communications of Graces, and of the Holy Ghoſt: So there were then the higheſt Elevations and raiſings up of Principles in men unregenerate, and influences of the Spirit upon them; and here he mentioneth the higheſt of what are ſpoken any where in any other place of Scripture.

Now then in like manner in the Parable, the order of Chriſts placing the Thorny Ground, and the works thereon, doth ſpeak the higheſt work of them that fall away. For, as for the Stony Ground, that imports a lower degree of working upon it, than that of the Thorny: And there is no other work mentioned by our Saviour (whoſe ſcope was perfectly to ſet down all the ſeveral ſorts of Hearers and Profeſſors) beyond the Thorny, but only the good Ground, the good and honeſt Heart that brings forth Fruit with Patience to the end. And therefore this work on the Thorny Ground is, of Temporary works the higheſt, and ſo in reality is one and the ſame with this in Heb. 6.

But let us compare the Analogy of the words and Phraſes, and ſo thereby of the things that are found in that Parable, and in theſe words of Paul.

2. As there in the Parable you find three Hearts of Hearers compared in General unto the Ground which Seed is ſown in, to the end to bring forth Fruit: So here unto the Earth which drinks in the rain from Heaven, to the end to bring forth Herbs, doth anſwer. For thoſe words, The Earth that drinks in the rain (v. 7.) are to be carried down unto v. 8. in common ſpoken both of good and bad, and are thus to be read in v. 8. But that Earth which drinks in the rain and bears the Thorns, &c. The compariſon is in all unto the Earth in bearing and bringing forth: this in General. Chap. 3

2. But Secondly, and more particularly, The Parallel here and there, as concerning the good Ground, agrees perfectly in both, even in this, that the good Heart, or good Ground there in the Parable is ſaid to bring forth Fruit to perfection, Mark 4. 8. And other fell on good Ground, and did yield fruit that ſprang up and increaſed, and brought forth ſome thirty, and ſome ſixty, and ſome an hundred. 1. It yielded Fruit. 2. That ſprang up. 3. And encreaſed and brought forth; that is, continued to bring forth, ſome Thirty, &c. even till the Harveſt, and ſo from firſt to laſt had ſome Fruit all along. But of the Thorny Ground it is oppoſitely ſpoken, 1. That it brought forth no Fruit, Mark 4. 7. 2. That it became Unfruitful, Mat. 13. 22. 3. That it brought no Fruit to perfection, Luke 8. 14. The meaning of all which comes to this, that it brought forth no true perfect fruit for the kind of Fruit, as alſo not Fruit to the end of their days, unto the Harveſt, or unto maturity. Thus we have it in the Parable. And anſwerably we have here (Heb. 6. v. 7.) the difference between the two Earths or Soils. 1. That the Ground that is good, and bleſſed is ſaid, 1. To bring forth Herbs meet for them by whom it is dreſſed. 2. And to receive a Bleſſing from God: The Firſt imports that it brings forth true and wholſom Herbs, meet for his Uſe, for his Taſt, his Guſt, for his Diet, as the Margent varys it.

Yea and Criticks have obſerved this difference between the two Earths here in this place (which I make uſe of unto this Correſpondency with the Parable) that concerning the good Earth here, and of its bringing forth its Herbs, the Phraſe uſed is τίκτουσα, it begets, and brings them forth as a mature Birth ripened to perfection; as when a Woman, goes forth her whole time. For in alluſion unto a Womans bringing forth is a Womb aſcribed unto this Earth, (as ordinarily it uſeth to be) and ſo a double metaphor is inſinuated. But of the other Earth (v. 8. as proſecuting the ſame) it is ſaid ἐκφέρουσα, they caſt out their production, as abortive Births, and ſo their beſt Fruits arrive not at perfection, but end in Abortiveneſs. And indeed if we would ſtudy an expreſſion whereby to ſet out the difference of a Temporary and a Saving work, or an holy Calling, we could not do it more lively than to ſay, that the one is as a ripe and perfect Birth, the other but a Mola, an Abortive, and becomes ſuch thro' and from the deficiency in the work it ſelf from the firſt, as Womens Abortives uſually are. However the Iſſue of this ſecond parallel is this, That the Actings and Products of the Thorny Ground Profeſſors were never true Fruit, for neither Chriſt nor the Apoſtle here do vouchſafe them that Name.

And I may ſtrengthen this Parallel from that of Jude, who ſpeaks of the ſame ſort, or of like Profeſſors: That thoſe he ſo vehemently inveighs againſt, once were Profeſſors, is many ways evident, as having been ſuch as once had had ſome green fruit, v. 12. Trees whoſe fruit withereth (ſays he) and once had ſome Life, (why elſe are they call'd Trees twice dead?) once in Adam, and then wrought on anew, and then dead a ſecond time. And yet lo, he plainly concludes of them, That they had no Fruit. They are (ſaith he) Trees whoſe Fruit withereth, and are without Fruit; wherein he corrects his firſt having ſaid, whoſe Fruit withereth; becauſe it might be thought thereupon that yet at leaſt he acknowledg'd they once had ſome fruit, and that freſh and lively, and therein did honour them. Therefore he in this after ſaying abſolutely denys it, that they ever had any true Fruit. No, they are without Fruit, ſays he.

The Third Parallel is, that in the very letter the Apostle (v. 8.) doth describe these Temporaries by the same Similitude by which our Saviour sets out that Third and Highest sort of Professors, that they both bring forth Thorns. And this is the most Characteristical and most eminent deciphering whereby either of them did set them forth, and therefore besides the reality in what is the main, they in the very letter agree.

And for the farther Illustration of either, I shall pursue this Query, Whether in the Intendment both of the Apostle here, and of Christ in the Parable, be, that the Thorny Earth in both places did bring nothing but Thorns.

1. In the intention of the Apostle it is so to be understood; for not only he mentioneth no fruit at all, but Thorns only; but takes it in its comparative opposition unto the good Earths bringing forth good Herbs, as in difference from this, and therefore this other Earth brings forth no such Herbs at all, but only these Thorns instead thereof. And this sence is confirm'd by this, that seeing the best Earth or Hearts of the Holiest upon Earth, do bring forth Thorns as plentifully as it doth Herbs; therefore the point of difference in this Opposition must lie in this, that this Second Earth brings forth nothing but Thorns and Briars, and no Herbs at all, whereas that other did bring forth some Herbs, for if it also brought forth no Herbs, there would be no difference between them.

If it be said that he speaks of this bad Earth, how that in the end it brings forth Thorns, and so is cursed, but not so from the first.

The Reply is, 1. That if this Earth had brought forth Herbs at first, as well as Thorns, as the other Earth doth, then it would have received a Blessing from God upon such its bringing forth, so as to bring forth more, for that is also one difference put between the one and the other. 2. The Apostle (in the 9th & 10th verses) shews in the Persons, and instance of these Hebrews, that the difference between them was not confined unto what was the event on either side, but extended unto what from the very first of their being good Earth they had brought forth. This the Apostle doth here, and also Chap. 10. 32. In both he referrs them to time past, yea, unto the first; Chap. 10. 32. But call to remembrance the former Days, in which after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of Afflictions. And he doth it also here, v. 9, 10. But Beloved, we are perswaded better things of you, and things that accompany Salvation, though we thus speak; for God is not Unrighteous to forget your work and labour of Love, which ye have shewed towards his Name, in that ye have ministred to the Saints, and do minister. Therefore oppositely (in this 8th verse) speaking of the other Earth, his meaning must be, that for time past, yea, and from the first, these only had brought forth even Thorns and nothing else.

2. For the Parable I urge that in the περότασις, or fore-part of it, there is this Expression, Luke 8. 7. Some (of the Seeds namely) fell among Thorns, and the Thorns sprang up with it. Where,

1. The Word συμφυεῖσα, imports at least that from the very first together with the Word, there were Thorns sprung up. This cannot be denyed, and therefore take it as it is styled, a Thorny Ground (in difference from the good ground) and it is to be understood to have been such as brought forth Thorns from the first, in such a manner as the good Ground did not, for otherwise even the good Ground doth bring forth some Thorns from the first; and it cannot be otherwise, but this of the Thorns must be understood with difference.

2. That word also may, and doth, sometimes import a Coalescency, or a growing up into an Oneness, or a becoming one (as Grotius hath observed, * and quotes this very Phrase, Luke 8. 7. for that signification) as well as a springing up together from the first, or all along; and so implys, that some of the Thorns did at least coalesce and become one with what these Men had received of the Word, and as they received it; for it is the same word that is used of our Engrafture into, and our being one with Christ as our Root, Rom. 6. 5. If we have been Planted together, &c. The main Emphasis of which

* Quæ simul pullulant dicuntur quæ in unum coalescunt ut plantæ quædam Luke 8. 7. &c. Grotius in Rom. 6. 5.

Speech

Speech lies not in this only, that all the Saints are engrafted together, but chiefly in this, that Christ and all, and each Saint, are planted together, and are σύμφυτοι; for it refers to it as explaining his foregoing Speech, (v. 3.) Know ye not that as many of us as were Baptized into Jesus Christ, which (here in v. 5.) he explaineth by our being planted together with him, it having been into him, and therefore were Baptized into his Death; (which here in v. 5. is explained by a being planted together into the likeness of his Death, &c.) Baptism being the Sacrament signifying our engrafture into Christ (v. 3.) and our being planted together with Christ into the same Conformity, being the thing signified thereby, (v. 5.) Now in the like sence here the Thorns and the work of the word in the Heart are said to grow into one, to be σύμφυτα; that is, the Word they received was admitted by way of engrafture upon some Thorns or other in the Heart, and thence all the actings of their spirits were but Fruits of Flesh, as the Root of them, though conversant about spiritual Objects; and if so, then all such actings of spirits unrenewed, are no other unto God than Thorns in reality, although in view and in speciousness Herbs and Fruits. Chap. 3

And certainly the reason of the thing it self falls in fully for this; for to sow among Thorns, or Earth where Thorns are unplowed up, or in the midst of Thorns (as the Prable Luke 8. 7. hath it) is all one in Scripture Phrase, as to sow Seed upon an Heart remaining still wholly Unregenerate, Jer. 4. 3. Break up your fallow Ground, and sow not among Thorns, which is interpreted to be (v. 4.) Circumcise your selves to the Lord, and take away the foreskin of your Hearts: so as to sow among Thorns, is to plant the Word received in an Heart that remains utterly flesh still; and as this is the mind of the Prophets Caution there, so it must be understood to be the mind of Christ here in the Parable, that there were no other Principles in the Heart to receive that Word into, so as to affect the Heart, but what was Flesh, and so there was an engrafture of it upon, and a Coalescency with some Root of Thorns or other, and it cannot be otherwise if the Heart remains Thorny Ground. ἐν μέσαις

But here may this Objection be made, That in the Interpretation of the Parable, these Thorns are said to enter in after the seed was received into the Ground, Mark 4. 19. And so the whole Sense of the Parable is to be restrained thereunto.

1. I Answer: That indeed there is one sort of Thorns that do as it were anew arise, and so are said to enter in after the seed was received into these Mens Hearts, and they are such as Christ (in that 19*th* verse) instances in, viz. either Worldly Lusts, or gross Sins, the tops whereof by the power of the Word, when it was received even into these Mens Hearts, were lopt off, so far as they grew above Ground; of which thing Calvin was well aware, whilest he Notes upon it, That though indeed evil Lusts before the Word riseth up unto a stalk (in these Mens Hearts) did wholly possess the Heart, that yet they did not seem to be predominant at the first beginnings (of such Mens being so wrought upon) but to come or steal upon them by little and little, after the Word is grown up into some blade, and where it promiseth some Fruit. Yet still (say I) this no way lets, but that there might be some other Thorns that should rise up with the word received even from the first, (which I will call in respect of their Objects Spiritual Thorns, seeing in their Root they are Fleshly, and indeed but the affections and actings of self, upon what is in the word suitable thereunto;) and my reason is, because these Two Speeches of Christ, (the one of which is in Luke, They sprung up together with the word, and the other is in Mark, which speaks of Lusts entring in afterward) must be reconciled; especially considering withal, that these Thorny Professors were Men Unregenerate, and by their Thorns so distinguisht from the good Ground at the very first, the Reconciliation seems easie; for that Speech, They sprang up together, expresseth and takes in the whole from first to last as to this Sense; that some were still springing up, and not at last only, but from the first, insomuch as there were some or other all along. There were at first, those Spiritual Thorns,

Book 7. and afterward thoſe other Worldly Thorns; ſo as what with the one, nd with the other, there was ſtill a growing up of Thorns all the while, which do both of them alſo tend to choak the word (as 'tis there ſaid) received in the Heart. For ſelfiſh Affections unto Spiritual things are ſtill behind hand with themſelves, and do deſtroy themſelves (as Ariſtotle ſays of vices) and through their intermingling with the Word received, do hinder and ſpoil the efficacy thereof, and turn all into Sin. And then again thoſe other Thorns, namely Worldly Luſts ſupervening, do more conſpicuouſly choak that word, by Sucking and drawing away all the Sap and Juice, and intention of the mind from thoſe Spiritual Objects at firſt entertained. And theſe latter are ſaid to enter in, as it were anew; becauſe indeed the former growth of ſuch Luſts was (ſo far as before this new work they appear'd above Ground) in a great meaſure as then cut down, what through Terrors of Conſcience, ſenſe of Sin, Taſtings of the powers of the World to come, by which the intention of the mind was drawn out another way, yet ſtill ſelf remained in it's full Vigour the ſame, though diverted another way, and turned upon other objects. Hence therefore all thoſe Worldly Luſts do in their Root remain ſtill unſtubbed up, for they are all ſeated in ſelf, and if that be not mortified, then they all remain unmortified at the bottom, and will in the end riſe up as much as ever; for Worldly Pleaſures are the natural Objects ſuited to the Genius and diſpoſition of Self-Love as it is now Corrupted, and are the natural Channel for corrupt ſelf to run in: But on the other hand, it's diverſion unto Spiritual Objects of the other World (whilſt it ſelf remains in it's Native Strength) is but forced, and with a violence offered upon it, and therefore will not continue; and for the ſame reaſon thoſe other Worldly Luſts will ſooner or later ſprout and revive, as Job ſpeaking of a Tree ſays, Job. 14. 7, 8, 9. There is hope of a Tree if it be cut down that it will ſprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not ceaſe, though the Root thereof wax old in the Earth, and the ſtock thereof dye in the ground, yet through the ſcent of Water it will bud and bring forth Boughs like a plant. Thus here in the caſe before us, the General Root of Self is ſtill as much alive as ever, and upon the freſh ſcent of former objects preſenting themſelves, who had been the old and natural Acquaintance of their Hearts, they obtain their wonted life and ſtrength again, and overcome, as Peter ſays.

2. The Second thing propoſed, is the Dreadful Iſſue that befalls the Thorny Ground Profeſſors; and the Alluſions it is ſet forth by.

1. In this Life, Nigh unto Curſing.

2. Whoſe end is to be Burned, in the World to come.

Our Saviour Chriſt in the Parable doth not mention this dreadful Iſſue, for his main Scope was to ſhew the cauſes of each Grounds unfruitfulneſs, but Paul's drift is mainly and farther to ſhew the end of ſuch Men.

1. They are Nigh unto Curſing. This hath Relation and Alluſion to the condition of the Earth afore the fall, and after the fall: I ſay the Earth; for the Subſtratum or principal Subject matter or thing the Compariſon runs upon, is the Earth, to which Men and their Hearts are compared; ſo v. 7. The Earth which brings forth, &c. v. 8. but that Earth, namely that brings forth Thorns, &c. it is that Earth is nigh unto Curſing; ſo as to make out the Alluſion we muſt find out ſome Earth that was Curſed, and what other Earth do we find to have been Curſed, but that Earth for Adams Sin: And ſo as Adam himſelf was a Type of Chriſt (Rom. 5.) and Adams World afore his fall a Type of the World to come (Heb. 2.) ſo upon Adams falling the Curſe of his Earth was the Type of ſuch Perſons that ſhould Apoſtatize from Chriſt: And ſo the Alluſion holds thus, That as before the fall the Earth was ſo Fruitful, that with a ſmall pains it would bring forth Fruit in Compariſon of what it did after the Curſe, as thoſe words, In the Sweat of thy Brow, &c. do ſhew. But how it was after the Fall accurſed, you read, Gen. 3. 17. The Ground for thy ſake is Curſed, Thorns alſo and Thiſtles ſhall it bring forth to thee. Now to make up this Compariſon about the thing in hand; Mans Heart before the fall was a Paradiſe to God, planted wholly a right ſeed, as the Prophet expreſſes it; and man himself was bless'd of God, and God rejoyced in him. (Gen. 1. 31.) But now man being fallen, is curſed, and brings forth nothing but Thorns and Briars: Well, but yet the Lord comes again to cultivate and till the Earth of ſome mens Hearts a ſecond time, ſowes his ſeed, and comes with rain, and ſends Dreſſers to manure it, but it ſtill brings forth Thorns; then it is nigh unto a final Curſing (ſays he) as the Earth was then curſed. See Iſa. 5. v. 1, 2. Jude v. 12, Trees twice dead, once in Adam, and then after their fall ſome little Life was put into them, but they brought forth Thorns: And Peter writing of the ſame ſort of men (as you well know that Jude doth) his expreſs Sentence of them is (2 Peter 2. 14.) curſed Children. Chap. 3

and

2. Whoſe End is to be burned.

That the Thorns are to be burnt, is not immediately ſaid of them, but that the Earth ſhall be burnt, and therefore by Conſequent the Thorns that are found growing thereupon; yea and the Thorns being ſet on fire, do help towards that Fire that burneth the Earth together with themſelves. Now the Earth notifies the man, the Perſon, and the Thorns his works and fruits brought forth; but it is the Man chiefly, for He is the Earth. This I take to be an alluſion to the Land of Sodom and Gomorrah, with the Inhabitants of All ſorts on it. The Soil of Sodom and Gomorrah, before its being burnt, was as you find Gen. 13. 10. Behold all the Plain of Jordan, that it was well watered every where, before the Lord deſtroy'd Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the Garden of the Lord: It was like to Paradiſe it ſelf (which we ſpoke of before) before God deſtroy'd it. Thus here, the rain comes often upon this Earth, and it is watered with better water than ever Paradiſe was, but the effect of all being that it brings forth Thorns, then follows that which is equivalent unto the Curſe of Sodom: For God comes upon that Land with Fire from Heaven, and burned the very Ground, as well as all that were upon it. He did not only turn it into Barrenneſs, as when 'tis ſaid a Fruitful Land ſhall be turned into a Deſart (ſo the Pſalmiſt,) but it was turned into a Lake, and that a ſulphurous Lake of Fire and Brimſtone, out of which ſuch Vapours do ariſe as kill Birds that fly over it, and the Fruits that grow upon the Banks do, through the Heat and Fire that is in the Earth, turn to duſt, which Fruits are call'd proverbially, The Apples of Sodom; The very Rocks are blaſted, and the Ground ſmells of Fire to this day. Now to this Earth are the Hearts of Apoſtates here compared, in their fatal and final Puniſhment in the other World: And Jude's Compariſon (when he ſpeaks of theſe) is the ſame. Even as Sodom and Gomorrah (ſays he) and the Cities about them, in like manner giving themſelves over to Fornication, and going after ſtrange Fleſh; are ſet forth for an example, ſuffering the Vengeance of eternal Fire: He ſpeaks of ſuch very Apoſtates, and theſe that were Trees twice dead: And on the contrary, he thereupon comforts and encourages the Preſerved in Jeſus Chriſt, as v. 1. in a purpoſed oppoſition He ſtyles them in reference to thoſe Apoſtates. O Bleſs God for Election! That we were not left to be ſuch Profeſſors as theſe, bringing forth nothing but Thorns, whoſe end is to be burned, as if he had left us to our own Spirits, and had not changed our Hearts, we had been: Rom. 9. 27. Except the Lord had left us a Seed (viz. of Election) we had been as Sodom, and like unto Gomorah; It would have been the Iſſue of us all, we ſhould have been burnt with our Thorns.

3. We have next the Rain falling on this Earth, and its being dreſs'd, ſpoken of. This is the third part of his Compariſon, wherein he compares the Means of Grace whereby men are wrought upon, unto two things: 1. The Rain. 2. The Dreſſing of the Earth. The Rain I take to be inward means vouchſafed, viz. thoſe Illapſes, Enlightnings, good motions and comings of the Spirit of God upon mans Soul, falling immediately from Heaven, as the rain does. The Dreſſing is the outward means, as Preaching of the Word, and other Ordinances, differing from and beſides the rain, as when it is ſaid that Paul plants, Apollos waters, &c. (1 Cor. 3. 6.) there's the dreſſing; but the Rain is the inward means, of which I underſtand that of James, when he ſpeaks of the Husband-mans waiting for the Harveſt, (Iſa. 5. 7.) ſays Book 7 says he, He hath long Patience for it, until he receiveth the early and latter rain. These come before the Harvest, and are those inward influences and refreshments which do accompany the outward means. The Lord affords such Rain to poor Souls when they need it, some at one time, which is the Early rain; and some again at another time, still as they need it; and All tends to ripen the Fruit, and keep the Soul in Heart, as the Rain doth the Earth. And then what man doth in the outward Ministry of the Ordinances, that is the Dressings or Culture here spoken of. Now I come to the Observations, which are of three Sorts.

1. Upon the Ground that is Cursed.

2. Upon the Ground that was fruitful.

3. Concerning the Means, Rain, &c. These two lattter I shall put under one Head.

1. The first sort of Observations is upon the Ground that bore Thorns, and that was Cursed. 1. From that of the Earth bearing Thorns, although the good word had been sown into it; and although the Rain had come upon it, and it had drunk in that rain, yet the Heart remaining only carnal, and the roots of Thorns abiding (as hath been opened) it brought forth no other Product: Observe, That All means, inward and outward, and influences from Heaven, do but nourish Self, and but cause Worldly Lusts and self-love to grow. Take a poysoned Plant, plant it by another wholsom Herb in the same Ground, and let the Rain fall upon both; yet the Rain and the Ground nourishes the poyson in the one, and causes that to grow, as well as a good Plant in the other: So that we have no way but to turn to God, and to get the Thorns out, and new Principles in their room. Yea, in a regenerate man, so far forth as the roots of Thorns remain, so far forth all the actings of the Spirit will be the Actings of Flesh, and so but Thorns. The root is Thorn, and the fruit will be like the Root, as Christ says, that the Fruit was like the Tree. They are all Thorns to God; and carnal Affections to Spiritual Things, or Affections arising meerly from Self-Love to divine Objects, will make Fuel for Hell as well as Worldly Lusts; they are all Thorns in the eyes of God.

2. Observe, Concerning these Thorny Professors, that God proceedeth towards them in casting them off by degrees, and not presently upon the first Advantages against them; which is apparent out of the Text.

For 1. He continues the Rain, the inward good motions long to them: For that which is said v. 7. The Earth that oft drinks in the rain, is to be understood ἀπὸ κοινοῦ, and to be carried to the 8*th* verse, and applyed to this Earth that brings forth Thorns, as well as to the good; for that is spoken in common, both to the one that brings forth Herbs, &c. and to that other that is rejected.

2. After such a bringing forth of Thorns for some long Space of time, he yet proceeds by degrees: As 1. Though within himself and in his own Purpose he rejects them sooner, that is, He purposeth, if they persist still to bring forth no other Fruit than Thorns, to have no more to do with them. Luke 13. 7. Then said he unto the Dresser of his Vineyard, Behold these three Years I come seeking Fruit on this Figtree, and find none; cut it down, why cumbereth it the Ground? He, after two years expectation, had his Heart taken off from them, and began to have no pleasure in them, as the Epistle to the Hebrews expresseth it; yet still continued a dressing of it, v. 8. For he answering, said unto him, Lord, let it alone this Year also, till I shall dig about it and dung it: and withal, God sends Rain upon it as aforetime. But 2. After some further expectation, it becomes nigh unto Cursing. Now what it is for God to curse finally, you may know by the contrary dispensation towards the good here in v. 7. The Earth that brings forth Herbs, &c. receives a Blessing from God; that is, so as to bring forth more Herbs, which the Parable calleth an encrease, and which Christ (John 15. 1.) thus expresseh, Every Branch that bringeth forth Fruit in Me, he purgeth it to bring forth more Fruit. And that is the Blessing it receives here in this World, nor can there be a greater Blessing in this Life vouchsafed, and yet still to be nigh unto Cursing imports Gods Lothness and Backwardness finally to pronounce it; only in the mean while he withdraws his influences, till 3. At the last he curseth them indeed, as he did those (in 2 Pet. 2. 14. Cursed Children) and as he did the Figtree, Mat. 21. 19. And when he saw a Figtree in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon but Leaves only, and said unto it, Let no Fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever, and presently the Figtree wither'd away. Now, as Paul says, Doth God take care of Oxen? No, his aim was further, at Ministers in them: So here, Doth Christ curse Fig-trees? No, his aim is to shew how he curseth in the end fruitless Souls. He says of such a Soul, let never Fruit grow more on thee; and look as that Tree stood still in the same place, but yet none of its former Fruit grew thereon: So men may profess Religion after such a cursing of them, and continue in the Church and under Ordinances, but never a Prayer with affection grows any more thereon, no more Dews from Heaven, or inward Correspondencies with God. Chap. 3

Use. Let us take heed therefore, and eye the withdrawings of God, and mourn presently, least we grow nigh unto cursing; Let us watch the rising up of Thorns, for they will bring a Curse of bringing forth worser and sharper Thorns: And let us humble our selves for them, and seek to root them out.

3. Observe Gods dealings with these men, that having had workings on them, do fall away. You see how dreadful they are. Every where you find this dreadfulness expresst: He built his House (says Christ) upon the Sand, and the fall of that House was great. All the Sermons he had heard, and all the profession he had made, and all he had done, fell upon him and broke him to Powder. Read Jude, you have black words given to such. The blackest words that ever fell from the Holy Ghosts Pen, are to be found in Peter, (2 Pet. 3.) and in this Jude concerning such men, for whom the Blackness of Darkness (he says) is reserved; Read but that Epistle, Then says Peter (2 Pet. 2.) If they be again entangled and overcome of Corruption, their latter end is worse than their beginning; for it had been better for them not to have known the way of Righteousness, &c. Men cannot profess Religion at that rate they may profess other things.

The Consideration of these things, should awaken and quicken us to be observant how Thorns grow in our Hearts, viz. Worldly Lusts, Cares, Murmuring, Unthankfulness, inordinate Fancies of what in the World we would be. And we should be watchful to keep them from growing up in us; as also to observe narrowly any steps or beginnings of Gods withdrawings from us, for they tend to cursing, and we should never be quiet in such a Case.

2. The Second sort of Observations, is, concerning the good Earth, and the Means vouchsafed.

1. Observe, Even in good Hearts that have a Blessing from God, the Fruit, or at least the encrease of that Fruit, doth not appear oftentimes of a long while. This is plain out of the Text; for of the good Earth that brings forth Herbs, it is said, The Earth which drinks in the rain that comes often upon it, brings forth Herbs meet, &c. and so receives a Blessing from God to bring forth more. If therefore thou dost bring forth Herbs meet for God after the rain hath come oft upon thee, it is well; thou art still within the Compass of receiving a Blessing from God. Affliction works the quiet fruit of Righteousness, after we have been exercised thereby; but it is afterward, not presently.

2. Observe, Gods saving and through workings in the Spirits of men, are not always in violent ways, but in gentle, sweet, soaking Dispensations. The word ὑετὸς here, signifies your mizling rain, molliores & minores guttas (saith Hyperius) as the Israelites (1 Cor. 10.) were sprinkled in the Cloud; 'twas such a rain as falls in a mist. Multitudes of Souls are not wrought upon by ſtormy ſhowers of rain falling with thick drops, no: There comes your gentle rain, the Early and the Latter, as the poor Soul hath need thereof, and bedews his Heart. He prays and goes to bed, and it may be in the morning finds ſome Dew upon his Heart. Now wilt thou comfort thy ſelf, though thy work goes on but gently, yet it goes on ſurely. Thou haſt not thoſe high manifeſtations and ſudden ſenſible comings in thou heareſt others ſpeak of, yet thou haſt Gods preſence in a ſubſiſtence to thy Heart, and thy Heart drinks it in and goes away ſtrengthned and quickened. There is a ſtill work that doth not make a noiſe, when ſome that are far greater works decay, and like a Land-flood dry up. Of the ſlye Husbandman that found the Treaſure in the Field, it is ſaid, that he did hide it, but for joy thereof went and ſold all he had for it, Mat. 13.44.

I ſhall anſwer but an Objection or two which good and honeſt Souls may make about themſelves, upon occaſion of theſe obſervations, and the Doctrine that hath been delivered.

1. Obj. My Heart hath a World of Thorns in it, and more of Thorns than of what I can ever hope to be good Herbs.

Nemo eſt qui non ingenti Spinarum copia et quaſi denſa Sylva refertus ſit. Calvin.

Anſw. So hath every regenerate man a World of Thorns in him: Ay, (ſays Calvin) thick ſet Copſes of them. Every ones Grace is ſown and continues amongſt a Wood of Thorns: Yea, but yet there is another Root of ſomething that grows up in thy Heart, that is not Thorns; and there is a Conflict againſt the Thorns, an endeavour to ſtub them up, and they are Thorns in thy Side. Therefore there is another Principle in thee.

2. Obj. Thou wilt again ſay; I do not grow by reaſon of theſe Thorns.

Quanquam mediocris eſtit profectus, quiſquis tamen non degenerat a ſincero Dei cultu bona terra et fertilis cenſetur: Etenim etſi centupli reſpectu tenuis eſt ejus fertilitas quæ trigecuplũ reddit, terras tamen omnes ſimul Chriſt conjungit, quæ agricolæ laborem ac ſpem non prorſus fruſtrantur; & communi boni-tatis Elogio inferiores quoque dignatur. Calvin. in verba.

But comfort thy ſelf (ſays Calvin) for he that brought forth the Thirty-fold is by Chriſt reckoned with him that brought forth the Hundred-fold. Chriſt puts them all together, and dignifies them all alike with the common ſtyle of Good Ground; and where the expectation of the Husbandman (as he ſpeaks) is not altogether fruſtrate, that Little they have is accepted.

3. Obj. But you will object, Alas my Affections were mightily flusht at firſt, and now they wither, and Worldly Luſts grow up in their ſtead.

Anſw. Shall I yet ſay to thee? Doth God maintain a Conflict in thee againſt ſin, an endeavour to ſtub up the Thorns? doſt thou water thoſe roots of Bitterneſs with bitter Tears and Sorrow, and with the Blood of Chriſt to kill them? Then ſtill the root of the matter remains in thee.

Again, conſider, when thou wert firſt converted to God, as thou hadſt Grace in thee, ſo thou wert a Temporary Believer at firſt, in reſpect of thy unregenerate part. All was ſtirr'd at firſt; Corrupt Self-Love was ſtirred at firſt, as well as what was truly gracious; and when all was ſtirred, there muſt needs be a great fluſh of Affection. This was thy Caſe at firſt, and then the Stream was ſtrong; as Take a little Rivulet which runs naturally and conſtantly, but as the Prophet ſays, runs ſoftly, with a ſlow and gentle Current; let a Land-Flood come upon it, it will prove a River, a ſtrong and violent Stream: But when that Land-Flood ceaſes, then the Brook is not ſo ſwell'd, tho' it goes on ſtill, ſo much of it as was truly and naturally ſo, and had a Spring. So it is here. At firſt, half thy Heart, thy unregenerate Part was turned a Temporary Believer too; and Self-Love, the great Simon Magus in theſe was wrought upon, and became a Temporary Believer; but yet beſides, and over and beyond that, there was a little Fountain opened in thy Heart, and this continues ſtill to flow, when the Land-Flood ceaſes, and then look, what is true Grace indeed holds out the Conflict againſt it ſelf in Worldly Luſts, and bears alone the ſtreſs of all, and then Worldly Luſts begin to contend purely with this little Grace in us, and that fights it out alone, and then is the truer Tryal of Grace, though leſs diſcernable to Senſe than it was at firſt.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

That the Work of Grace in true Believers, differs in Kind from that which is in Temporaries, proved, because True Holiness of Heart cannot be produced by any Vertue of the Covenant of Works, since the Fall, but that it is peculiar to the Covenant of Grace to effect this.

GOD hath put that Genius and Disposition into the Grace of the New Covenant in us, as might answerably Glorifie the Grace of God in Christ towards Us, according to the tenour of that Covenant: And the Soul accordingly hath in it a Radical disposednes to give up the Soul to Christ, to be acted by him, and to be made sensible of it's own insufficiency to act it self, and so to glorifie Christ as its Root for Sanctification, as well as its Saviour for Justification; and accordingly sooner or later, both through the experience of its own inability to act it self, and of that continual infused strength which from without it feels freely derived as the Spirit pleaseth to dispense, and whereby it is carried on to motion, especially when by the Word, and the relation of that Truth out of it, it is called upon to do this, it actually doth most readily submit, and followeth the Truth revealed therein in a continual dependance upon Christ, to do all in him, and through him, as being that which glorifies Christ, and debaseth it self, and so it practiseth accordingly. But I do withal conceive, that this giving up the Soul to be acted only by Christ, doth arise rather from the Grace of Faith unto which of all Graces in Us, the predominancy and prime agency is committed under the New Covenant, (Rom. 4. 16.) whose Office it is to enervate and spoil all derived Grace in us of its strength, by discovering it's Weakness and Insufficiency, as also to carry them out of all to Christ, to abide in him as their only Element in which they move, and from whom also. And this Faith also doth from its Object Revealed to it, and Apprehended by it; namely, that the tenour of this Second Covenant (under which the Soul is now brought) is clean altered and changed in respect of Gods dispensing strength and motion, from what was in that first Covenant with Adam, with whom the Covenant was struck, being the Covenant of Nature; hence Gods concurrency with it was ordained suitable to the principles by nature bestowed, which were habitual Graces, that is, to concur with them according to their kind, as in a free agent, as with other natural Principles in their kind. And hence they had a strength to act from themselves, according to the freedom of Mans Will to use it. But now that Power is forfeited, through the breach of that Covenant which was, as now, the strength of Sin (as the Apostle speaks) so then of Grace. And therefore the strength of Grace to act under the Second Covenant, can never be in Grace it self, but in him who is the strength and foundation of that Covenant, Jesus Christ. Faith being thus taught of God (the Truth as it is in Jesus) this lesson of dependance for Motion as well as that for Justification, doth keep all those principles of Graces in Us, from attempting to put forth in their own strength, and carries them out of themselves to Christ, and teacheth them to lay down their own Abilities in subjection to his Spirit: Therefore this living in Christ, is attributed to Faith, G. 2. 20.

Book 7 The Life I now lead, is by the Faith in the Son of God; which evacuates ſtill all the power of Grace, any otherwiſe than as in Chriſt the Fountain, and preſerves the Soul in a Senſe of its weakneſs under his ſecond Covenant, that ſo the power of Chriſt might reſt upon it, 2 Cor. 12.9. Faith being herein to all Graces that which Moraliſts ſay that Prudence is to all other Vertues, their Governour and Tutor; was made thus the great Officer in this Second Covenant, becauſe it would give all to Grace, and Chriſt, (Rom. 4. 16.) Otherwiſe I do not conceive that in the Graces themſelves there is any ſuch peculiar inbred inſtinct, differing from what under the firſt Covenant; and therefore the Apoſtle Paul and all elſe have found it the hardeſt Leſſon to have their Hearts brought to this dependance, and not to truſt in themſelves, and act from themſelves; becauſe Grace was not at firſt brought up to it, to be of it ſelf thus poor and beggarly as this ſecond Covenant hath made it.

2. It is acknowledged that one Eſſential difference between a Temporary Work and a Saving, is, That the one acts all from it ſelf, though it be received, and that Grace Evangelical acts or is in diſpoſition to act from Chriſt as a Head, as well as to Chriſt as a Lord, and accordingly is taught to depend at length for Sanctification in working, as well as for Juſtification, upon Chriſt; which I take to be the main difference intended in that 15*th* Chapter of John, in the Parable of the Vine, and bringing forth Fruit in Chriſt, as the Syriack reads the words, through Abiding in him, in a continual Senſe that they of themſelves can do nothing without him: And this Fundamental Principle did Chriſt teach his Diſciples then at his Departure. So that Chriſt is made to us Sanctification as well as Juſtification, by a new Covenant. Yet ſo as 1. It may be a long while er'e ſuch true Grace is taught diſtinctly and knowingly to it ſelf thus to do; as may ſeem to have been the caſe of theſe his Diſciples and of Peter, not long after this new Leſſon of their Faith towards Chriſt; for this as in other things of more concernment, was little or not ſo diſtinctly as yet exerciſed; as they exerciſed Faith on God, but not ſo diſtinctly, on Chriſt, John 14. 1. therefore Chriſt calls for it. Thus alſo they had not prayed in his name, Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my Name, nor yet ſo diſtinctly knew how they were in him, and how he acted all in them, as appears by the 20*th* verſe of the 14*th* Chapter of John, and yet in the mean time that Grace was acted by Chriſt ſecretly: And herein it falls out as Chriſt ſays to Peter, John 13. 7. in another caſe, What I do now thou knoweſt not, but thou ſhalt know hereafter. So it is with them, that Chriſt doth all in them they at preſent haply do not know, but when their Union with him is cleared up to them, and their Faith taught this Leſſon more diſtinctly out of the Word, of their dependance upon Chriſt, they then more diſtinctly acknowledg all they formerly did was from him, and give him the Praiſe: And 2*dly*, In the mean time ſuch Souls do acknowledg all they have and do is not from themſelves, but Chriſt only, if they do any good; which acknowledgment (upon all occaſion of their quickning) is to be taken interpretative; for this doing all in Chriſt by Faith, is not always apprehended by many poor Souls that in a ſence of their emptineſs wait upon Chriſt for all, and do from their Souls deſire to attribute all to Chriſt, and yet always diſcern not how the ſtrength to do all flowes upon an act of Faith fetching that vertue from Chriſt, or from Union with him, becauſe that their Union is yet doubted by them. They acknowledg both that Chriſt is and muſt needs be the Fountain of all, and accordingly have recourſe to him by Acts of Recumbency in all, and vertue comes from him inſenſibly upon ſuch acts put forth; but yet the Connexion between the Cauſe and the Effect they do not ſee, nor can hang them together, the power that works in us being as ſecret as that of the Heavens on our Bodies, and as ſtrong as that of Phyſick, which yet is often not diſcerned; and therefore the Apoſtle prays for the Epheſians, Chapter 1. 19. That their Eyes might be opened to ſee that power wrought in them.

3. It is acknowledged, that all the Gifts and Graces in Temporaries, whereby they conform to the Law, &c. are all conveyed by the Knowledg of Chriſt, for thereby it is ſaid they conform to the Holy Commandment, mandment, 2 Pet. 2. but yet these are by no other tenour convey'd, than as that moral Light and natural Light which Christ sets up in the dark Hearts of all Men, (John 1. 9.) neither are they any more convey'd by a Covenant, or as the Foundation of a Covenant, than such light to Heathens is or was, although they be convey'd by the Knowledge of the Word, and of the Covenant of works, set on by the Spirit of Bondage, and also of the Covenant, which being indefinitely propounded to them, as well as to the Elect in the Ministry of it, Christ for the magnifying of saving Grace in and towards his own the more, and many other ends, makes tryal how far corrupt nature remaining such, may be induced by working upon the Principles therein, and also by infusing such Principles thereupon as may stand with nature remaining still corrupt, (though adorned and garnished) and how far it may be carried on and invited by this indefinite Revelation of the Gospel, to close with Christ and the Grace of the Gospel, and as Christs phrase is, how nigh the Kingdom of God it may be brought, and accordingly be Obedient, which yet it falls short of (as the Phrase is in the Hebrews;) God meets them in the indefinite promulgation of the Gospel as he did Balaam, and enlightens them, and allures them, and as he filled the Gentiles Hearts with food and gladness, and so left not himself without Witness, acts thereby to lead them to Repentance, Rom. 2. so he makes impressions of further joyes and a sweetness from himself (tho' not in himself as their chiefest good) upon the Hearts of Temporaries, to lead 'em to Repentance and Faith; so that though it be a work tending to Salvation in this sence specified, yet not saving, or which hath Salvation annexed to it at any time, (as Heb. 6. 9.) the Apostle distinguisheth them. Chap. 4

4. It is acknowledged, that such thus wrought upon, though by the Gospel, do for their Persons remain still under a Covenant of works, or under the Law, because they were created under it, and having been once thus Married to the Law, 'till they Dye to the Law to be Married to Christ, they according to the rule of Law are never freed from this Husband, but (as Rom. 7. 1, 2, 3, 4, &c.) the Law hath still power over them: And hence also those Graces and Gifts they use in a legal way, though they be exercised about Evangelical Objects, and do turn (as my Expression hath often been) the Gospel and the acts required therein into Law, (their Husband the Law converting all it's own way) yet they trust on their own Righteousness, and upon their own acts of Faith, Repentance, &c. (the counterfeits whereof are wrought in them) and even the Ordinances of the Ceremonial Law (which unto true Believers were then Evangelical through their Faith looking at Christ, and Justification through him, Psal. 51.) were yet all turned by the carnal Jews into pure legal performances, they going about in a legal way to expiate their Sins by Sacrifice, and so Rom. 9. 12. They sought Righteousness as it were by the Law, says the Apostle there; so these seek a Righteousness in their Evangelical acts (such I call them in respect of their Object) but as it were by the works of the Law. And as in point of Justification they thus err, so also in Acting of their Graces, they do all as it were by the Law, as Adam at first did, but by their own strength, and so bring not forth Fruit in me, as Christ complains (John 15.) and so are cut off, as there it is said. Ezek. 33. 13.

5. I yield these Graces and Gifts given them to be a true real work, as Reality is opposed to Hypocrisie, taking Hypocrisie for acting a part, and so that word ὑπὸς, speaking of the work on them really, (2 Pet. 2. 18.) implies; yet still so as compared with true Sanctification it is but counterfeit, as of Aurichalcum we say, that it is false Gold though it be true Metal, and of a Brass Shilling it is counterfeit Coyn, though true Metal, and which otherwise may serve to many purposes, and so I ever accounted it an Expression not according to the word, to call them Hypocrites, but rather Temporaries.

6. Grant also I do, that through those Gifts and Habits they are enabled to perform Duties of the Law and Gospel; Herod heard gladly, did many things, and many others much more, yet as the Apostle says, (Rom. 2.) of the Gentiles, they do but τὰ τοῦ νόμου, the things of the Law, but not in doing do they obey the Law, nor is the action legal, or such as the Law requires, no not προσκαιρος

Book 7. for the Kind of it; but as the Heathens did in civil things many things commanded by the Law in the Second Table, by Moral Habits of Vertues, which were yet when done splendida peccata; so these Temporaries perform the Religious Duties of the first Table, in many things (by the like Habits infused) but they serve God, but in the oldness of the Letter, as the Apostle says of the best of the Jews, *Rom.*7. but still not in the newness of the Spirit, as his distinction there is, that is from a received principle of Spirit opposed to Flesh: so that indeed they conform not to the Spiritual Law, as the Apostle calls it, which only truly is the Law, as appears in that Chapter; the Law is Holy, and Spiritual, and when he thus served God, he yet says He was without the Law, v.9. because without the Spiritual Light of it in his understanding, and therefore without all true genuine spiritual dispositions, suitable thereunto in his affections: and hence it appears to me (as many ways else) that the difference of their specious holiness from true Sanctification in the Elect, should not only lye in acting of it self, or from another, though that be true, but in the materials themselves, that is, that the one reacheth not to a true Spiritual Conformity, to the Holiness of the Law, in any degree nor is such as was in Adam in innocency; whereas the other doth, neither is there true love to God, nor is God made the supream end; untill which be done, there cannot be said to be true Holiness in the Heart or Action, till they be predominant; for Holiness is a setting up God as the supream end, or it is not Holiness; so untill then Self-love is the predominant principle, and so they remain wholly Flesh still; though Self is diverte from Worldly to Heavenly Objects; and so all their Actions from these Graces are deficientd of legal Righteousness, such as should be in them; and without love to God as the predominant principle, there cannot be any true legal Sanctification; for Love is the fulfilling of the Law, and the end of the Commandment is Love, out of a pure Heart, 1 Tim.1.5. God requires a right Manner, and a right End, or else the Command is not said to be done at all: So *Deut.*6. ult, This is your Righteousness, if you observe all these Commandments as he hath Commanded them; without which there is no more true legal Righteousness, or any thing of the Image of God, than of the true image of a Man in the Body without the Soul; and Bodily Exercise and Godliness are opposed by the Apostle.

7. I acknowledg this work to have also a goodness in it; so *Hos.*6. 4. it is called: But yet which still falleth short of the goodness which is in the Law, of which the Apostle says Rom. 7. 12. The Law is Holy, Spiritual and good, for it is not the Law Written in the Heart, but τὸ ἔργον τῦ νόμῦ γραπτὸν Rom. 2. 14. (so in the Gentiles,) that is, something which produceth many effects of the Law: And in the Jews it is called v. 20. μόρφωσις, a Form of Knowledg and of the Truth of the Law, which he had in his mind, which as it signifies a System or Body of the Law (as we say) in his mind, so withal insinuates the slightness of it for the kind; it is but a Form, a Picture, in comparison of the real Law it self, and so 2 Tim. 3. 5. μόρφωσις, a Form of Godliness, is opposed to the power or reality of Godliness; and so I confess it hath a goodness in it. 1. Natural, as it is a Creature wrought by the Spirit. 2. Moral, so far as the letter of the Law may be called such; as in a Picture there is a double truth and goodness, the one Natural in the substance of the Colours laid on, the other Relative or artificial as it is a Picture, and as more or less it comes neer the Life: But still so as it reacheth not that kind of goodness that is in the Man himself: So hath this Work, the more lively it is the more goodness, but still not that which is in the Law, which is Holy, Spiritual and Good, I call it a literal Goodness, because it is the image of the Letter, not Spiritual: As Picture represents the outwards, so this: and if it counterfeits the inwards (as in some of a finer Thread) yet still it is but the Picture there-

And that not any such a kind of true Righteousness was ever renewed in any that Perish Eternally, and that no Man that is but under a Covenant of Works attains it, nor that ever the first Covenant availed to work any such Righteousness in any one since the fall; much less in all the Jews: I prove by these Reasons among many other.

1. That

1. That is made the very Fundamental difference between that first Covenant, and that second of Grace, that in the latter God Writes the Law in the Heart, by giving a new Heart and a new Spirit, Jer. 31. 33. Heb. 8. 8, 9, 10, 11. that is, an Heart conformable to the Law; for the Law Written in the Heart, is imprinted dispositions suitable to the Law, which is called the Law of the Mind. That Scripture Heb. 8. being so expres, and making this the difference of the two Covenants, that which is made the difference of the latter Covenant, cannot be made common to the first; compare with this Heb. 10. where it is said, Christ hath [for ever perfected] (therefore none of them Perish) them that are Sanctified, v. 14. And what Sanctification is it? In the 15*th* & 16*th* verses he explains it, by alledging the Words of that Second Covenant, which at once interpret what it is to be perfected for ever, and what to be Sanctified: to be perfected for ever, is to have your Sins forgiven and remembred no more; and to be Sanctified, is to have the Law written in the Heart, v. 16. what God hath thus put together for ever, let no Man sever. The same is the difference that is put between the two Covenants, 2 Cor. 3. throughout. The one Wrote it upon Mens Consciences, but as in Letters upon Stone, there they might read it; but the other in living Letters, in dispositions suitable in their whole Hearts; the Gospel changeth into the same Image, the Law not so; and this was by Moses himself put; when he came at the end of all to publish this second Covenant, which he doth in the 29*th* & 30*th* Chapters of Deutronomy throughout. He tells them verse 1. Chapter 29*th*, that it was a Covenant besides that made at Horeb, which he did now Publish, that is the Second Covenant, and v. 12, 13. it was that Covenant he swore to Abraham, and that was the second Covenant, Heb. 6. 16, 17, 18. That Covenant made to Abraham with an Oath was to shew the immutability of his Counsel to the Heirs of Life, that is the Elect; and so Luke 1. 72, 73. we have it. Again, the Covenant there was the second Covenant, for Rom. 10. 6. Paul in Opposition and Distinction to the Law, quotes the words of that Covenant then promulged, in 30*th* Chapter, as proper to the Gospel; The Righteousness of Faith speaks on this wise, &c. Now Chap. 30. 6. among other promises peculiar to this Covenant, this is one, to Circumcise the Heart, and so to cut off the Foreskin of Flesh, and to give them an Heart to love the Lord; and this is delivered as that which should be fulfilled under the New Testament, upon the Jews at their last call, because then it eminently takes place; and in opposition to this, he speaks of those Jews who had the first Covenant, that God had not given them a Heart to perceive to that Day, by all he had wrought, so Chap. 29. 4. Chap 4.

2. My Second Reason is, That to be under the Law is to be under the predominancy of sin, and so their State is distinguished (Rom. 6. 14.) from that of Grace. Sin shall not have dominion over you, for you are not under the Law but under Grace: Now if those, under such a work, have still a predominancy of sin, they cannot have true legal Righteousness or Holiness, which, if not predominant, at least is not Holiness.

Again 3. In the seventh Chapter, which follows, the Apostle in his own person, now when evangelically sanctified, sets forth as his corrupt part remaining, by the Law of the Members, so the regenerate part in him by the Law of the mind, which is a conformity to the Law of God in the inward man, approving it, delighting in it, and though the imperfection of it still drives him to Christ to deliver him, to whom he flies, v. 25. yet so as he there doth abstractly, and apart consider his Grace in it self, as it is a created Habit in the Heart, and as it is a conformity to the moral Law (of which he there speaks) as it is Holy, Spiritual and Good, v. 12, 14.

4. The fourth Reason is, That in the highest instances of Temporaries, they are still reckoned men unregenerate, and Flesh, &c. and Grace evangelical as it is considered abstractly, a Qualification conformable to the Command, is mentioned as the difference from the work on them, and not only as it is acted by Christ in us, though that be true, John 15. 1, 2, &c. as I said before.

First,

Firſt, In the 6th of Hebrews, how are thoſe Enlightnings, Taſtings, & diſtinguiſhed from true Evangelical Graces, which are called v. 9. Better things (that is in themſelves for the work and ſubſtance of them) and things that have Salvation (as the word is) annexed to them? We find the Grace of Love unto the Saints in truth, and a Labour of Love thence iſſuing, to be the thing inſtanced in, and are mentioned to be in them oppoſitely to their Enlightnings: Anſwerably, the Thorny Ground, the higheſt degree of Temporaries, unto which theſe enlightned are compared, (v. 7, 8.) How is it diſtinguiſhed from the fourth Ground (Luke 13. 15.) but by the change in the Subject the Heart, A Good and honeſt Heart receiving the word, Honeſt as in not robbing Chriſt by taking any thing to it ſelf, ſo alſo in conforming it ſelf to all the Commands, as truly as laying hold on Promiſes. And ſo the other, the Stony Ground, their fault was, That ſtill they remained unrenewed at all; for the Stony Ground wants a Root in ſeſe, in themſelves, that is, as they wanted Chriſt, ſo alſo a true Principle of Sanctification in themſelves: But the root of the matter is in me, ſays Job, pleading his own Righteouſneſs.

As in like maner, concerning the Foolſh Virgins, the difference put between them and the Wiſe, is, that the Wiſe had Oyl in the Veſſel, habitual Grace, which thoſe other wanted, though they were acted for preſent performances, as a dead Body is by Angels for a fit, having Oyl in their Lamps for preſent acts. And then the Thorny Ground, was an Heart, though humbled, yet never regenerated or Sanctified: For Jer. 4. 45. The taking away the Foreskin of the Heart, is oppoſed to ſowing among Thorns; and our Saviour ſhuts up all that Parable with this, From him that hath not, ſhall be taken what he hath; and in Luke 13. it is explained what he ſeems to have; So as indeed it was not true Sanctification, but ſeeming ſuch. So theſe in 2 Pet. 2. 20. who really, ὄντως, eſcape from the World, embrace the Holy Commandment, thro' the knowledg of Chriſt, yet, 1. They are ſaid but to eſcape τὰ μιάσματα, not τὰς φθορὰς, that is the defilements outward, and in that reſpect they are called Virgins, Mat. 25. But they eſape not inward corruptions at all of Luſt, as by being partakers of the Divine Nature, the true Believers are ſaid to do, (Chap. 1. v. 4.) In oppoſition to theſe, 2. They are therefore called Swine, for their Natures ſtill remaining as afore, though waſhed outwardly; and Dogs vomiting out through preſent pain, yet with a Stomach to the Vomit; and therefore were never renewed into ſo much as true legal Sanctification inward; which if they were, ſuch expreſſions of differences could not be given them; nay they are on purpoſe given them to expreſs the contrary. And for that expreſſion of Goats elſewhere, it ſeems not to note out any farther degree of Men not ſaved, than ſuch as theſe were, but rather ſeems to be put for all wicked Men, placed at the left hand in oppoſition to the Sheep.

Object. It may be objected, that they are ſaid to be Sanctified through Chriſts Blood, Heb. 10.

Mat. 27. I anſwer, 1*ſt*, In that ſenſe as elſwhere they are ſaid to believe, and Judas to Repent. All Graces have a counterfeit call'd by their name, as in Herbs and Stones, and as the Picture of the King is called the King.

2*d*. Shew me a place that they are juſtified (when yet a promiſe thereof is affirmed to belong to them) which being an act of God upon us, hath no counterfeit. Yea, or ſhew a place that they are ſaid to be Born again; which if they are not, they are ſtill Fleſh, and ſo have no Holineſs begun.

3. That is ſaid to to be ſanctified, which is ſet apart from Common Uſes, as the Prieſts the Sabaths, &c. So in men their Graces, though not ſanctifying their Perſons inwardly, yet they ſet them apart to God in many works done for him, and to his Church in their Gifts outwardly.

Which 4. being the purchaſe of Chriſts Blood is ſaid to be done by his Blood. 4. Eph. He gives Gifts to the Rebellious alſo, and being wrought by at knowledge knowledge of Christs Blood, as Peter speaks, and that as in the Covenant of Grace revealed, therefore they are said to be sanctified by the Blood of the Covenant. Chap. 4

Obj. That Instance of Abimelech (Gen. 20.) may be objected, he having followed his Conscience in the matter of Sarah, so as if he had known her to be Abraham's Wife, he would not have taken her, and this Act God acknowledgeth to be Integrity.

1. The Answer is, that it is acknowledged such in the sense as Abimelech meant it, who pleads there his Innocency in what he might seem to have been guilty of, speaks according to the Judgment of his Conscience, and such an Integrity God acknowledgeth; and the meaning is, Abimelech followed his Principles in it, and so it was good in its kind, but not in that Court God means to keep hereafter. So in that Speech of Paul (Acts 23. 1.) He speaking in a Court of Pharisees, where he was to justifie himself and his Cause, he speaks according to their Principles, I have kept a good Conscience, (says he) and might well say so afore them, but not afore God: For in his Estate of Unregeneracy, whilst in the Flesh, he says the affection of sins which were by the Law, that is, stirred up by the Light of the Law in his Conscience, had a force in his Members to bring forth fruit unto Death, that is, outward Actions against Conscience and that light of the Law therein.

2. There is a twofold Integrity. 1. Absolute, which agrees with the first Rule of the Word. So this action of Abimelech, though he follow'd his Conscience, was not Integrity. But 2. It might be comparative Integrity, Namely, in that he followed his Conscience, which was his immediate Rule. Integrity we know is a conformity to its Rule, and so Conscience being a mans Rule when a mans Actions are squared to it, they are said to have a kind of integrity in them; but there being a rule above Conscience, to which both Conscience in the motives, matter, &c. ought to be conformed, from which Natural Conscience swerves, therefore an Act which is wrong in such a respect it is not Integrity. A man may honestly tell an untruth, because it agrees with what he thinks, yet it is an untruth, and Veritas est conformitas cum suo Archetypo, so is Integrity.

And as I have thus proved, That not true Spiritual Holiness, regularly to act according to the Law, was ever renewed in such Temporaries. So 2. That not any Promises of Life, Justification, Adoption Communion with Christ or Covenant, is made to any such works by God. And as in the former I granted some things, so in this: 1. That 'tis their Persons and Works are under a Covenant of Works (for all are either under the Law, or under Grace (Rom. 6. 14.) yet it is but by reason of their first Creation, when they were made under the Law, and had it written in their Hearts, unto which, in that respect, they are eternally subject till they die to that Law, and are married to Christ (Rom. 7.) And 2. I think that in judging men at the latter day, God will condescend to proceed with Corrupt Nature not in the rigour of that Law, but according to what was by Nature or otherwise revealed thereof unto them as appears (Rom. 2. 12, 16.) God winking at much of their Ignorance, as it is in the Acts; and the rather, because Jesus Christ he is their Judge then, who may (for he hath paid for it) relax of that righteous exaction of the Law in a way of abatement (That they without the Law, should be judged without the Written Law, by the Law written in their Hearts, by Natural Light, &c.) And so punish them with less punishment, who by reason of such Work, have had fewest sins; and as such a work is a restrainer of Corruption in them, so there will be a minoration of their punishment, unless they have returned again unto their Vomit, when their Latter End is worse than their Beginning, as Peter speaks. And 3. I acknowledge that so far as any goodness is in it, 'tis respected and accepted by God himself, and so far as it serves to any end, as God hath ordained, as he did that Act of Jehu (2 Kings 10. 30.) God commends it, and says he had done well, and all that was in his Heart to do, and accepted it to a temporal Reward: But in any spiritual acceptation he rejected it, yea in one of the Prophets he calls it The murther of Jehu; having his own ends in it. No man can bring forth Fruit to God, which he accepteth, until he be married to Christ, and dead to the Law. Rom. 7. 4.

Book 7 And ſo in this Life whilſt Chriſt governs he is pleaſed, I grant, to reward ſuch legal performances (and as he crowns other his Graces, ſo thoſe) with rewards within their own Sphere, as he did Ahab for humbling himſelf, and in the Parable, gave the Penny to the Labourer, and accordingly alſo Forgiveneſs; Namely, in a way of forbearance, To have patience with Sinners (as in that Parable of the evil Servant, the Forgiveneſs is expreſſed but by no more) which forbearance is truly a Forgiveneſs, in that he loſeth ſo much Glory ſo long unrecovered on them, and ſpendeth Riches of mercy which he will never reckon to them, farther than as they have abuſed them, yet this is but ſo much as he vouchſafed the Heathens, towards whom he exerciſed Riches of forbearance (Rom. 2. 4, 5.) But that he ſhould work theſe common Graces in a way of any Covenant, or make any ſuch Promiſes of Adoption, Juſtincation and Forgiveneſs, the ſame for ſubſtance with theſe to the Elect, and theſe proportioned to that degree they ſhall act their Graces given; for this I ſee no Footſtep at all in the Word or in any thing written to prove it. Neither can I ſee how without a contradiction in Adjecto any ſuch Covenant though for Chriſts ſake ſhould, or could be made with Creatures fallen and ſinful that had broken it already, how they could come to be capable of promiſes of Forgiveneſs, &c. for the Covenant of Works given to Adam, which we call Fœdus Naturæ, and the Moral Law (the Copy of it) promulged by Moſes, ſays expreſly, Curſed is he that continueth not in all things, Gal. 3. and already all Mankind have not continued in all things, having ſinned in Adam, and ſo are uncapable of any Promiſes of Forgiveneſs, of Life Eternal, and Communion with Chriſt in any degree, upon condition, of imperfect doing of the Law, though never ſo holily; for if any ſuch Promiſes be made, it muſt be ſuppoſed that this firſt Covenant of Nature (now in the renewing of it to corrupt Nature) was attempered and allay'd by Chriſt in the rigour of it, but how this is conſiſtent with that Sentence yet in force, Curſed is he that continues not in all things contained in the Book of the Law to do them, I cannot conceive.

The argument in ſhew for it is The renewing that Covenant in Horeb with the Jews, Exodus 20. and elſewhere, which together with the Ceremonial Law joined with it, was ſprinkled with Blood, with glorious Promiſes, that they ſhould be to him an holy Nation, and of Prieſts, &c. and alſo Gods ſaying Do this and live: When alſo it is ſaid that God ſanctify'd that People to himſelf, and promiſed to be their God, and was preſent with them, &c.

For Anſwer, This Covenant which was Fœdus ſubſerviens to the Goſpel, (as Learned Cameron calls it) had many ſcopes and Aſpects, but none of them is that Scope which is here put upon it.

1. It was truly the promulgation of the Covenant of Nature made with Adam in Paradiſe, in the moral part the Ten Commandments, and did refer thereto, and ſo did call them to look but to that Eſtate they once were in, and now were fallen from; and becauſe the Story of Adam's Righteouſneſs was loſt, what was written in his Heart was there renewed, only delivered Negatively, becauſe man was turned againſt it; Thou ſhalt not, &c. which was written rather affirmatively, This thou ſhalt do, &c. in Adam's Heart; and God delivers it now Covenant-wiſe, becauſe he preſents himſelf as ready to perform his Covenant, Do this and thou ſhalt live; and calls on them to perform their part, they being born under the Covenant as Creatures; Hereby at once to convince man of his Impotency to fulfill it, and withal to ſhew what God would have done for man if he had kept it, and it was thus promulged with Evangelical purpoſes to drive men to Chriſt; neither did the promulgation of it convey any Heart to them to do it in the leaſt degree; for God, when they promiſed to fulfill it, ſaid, Oh that there were an Heart within them, &c. Deut. 5. 9. And Joſhua, at the ſame time when the Covenant was renewed, intimates to them that the purpoſe of that Covenant was not as if they could do any thing of it, but to ſhew them rather their inability to do it;

it, Joſh. 24. 19. Thus Joſhua when he renewed it, told them, Ye cannot ſerve the Lord, for he is Holy and Jealous, and will not forgive your ſins; yet they, in confidence of their ſtrength, would take it as a Covenant they were to perform, v. 21. And Joſhua tells them, v. 22. that they were therein Witneſſes againſt themſelves: So as both God and Joſhua would have them underſtand by it, and the promiſe of Life by it, their unability rather, which yet they were not brought to be ſenſible of: And ſo when Moſes did ſo diſtinctly propound the ſecond Covenant, Deut. 29, &30. He tells them, that by the former Covenant God had not given them Ears to hear, nor Hearts to perceive, v. 4. Chap. 29. and to propound it thus Covenant-wiſe, was the moſt fit way to convince them of this their unability; that in the attempting the obedience of it they might ſee the weakneſs of the Law through the Fleſh, that it could not do as afore it did in Adam, not in the leaſt degree, (Rom. 8.4.) and anſwerably the Ceremonial Law annexed to it, concurred in this very ſcope; it was given that they, now fallen, might under their own hand as it were acknowledge themſelves Debtors to this moral Law, both as Sinners fallen unto the Curſe of it, and yet the obedience of it obliged, So Gal. 5.3. He that is circumciſed is a Debtor to the whole Law; and ſo to the Curſe of it, and Col. 2. 14. it is called The hand writing of Ordinances againſt us. God, at the ſame time he promulged the Ten Commandments, brought a Bond for men to ſeal, and therein to acknowledge themſelves bound and Debtors to it. Chap. 4

And as this was one ſcope both theſe had, ſo 2. The Moral and Ceremonial put together (both which put together, I have long obſerved as given the Jews to be reckoned one Covenant, out of Heb. 9. 15. 18, 19. compared) became in the latter of them as to the outward performance, fit matter of an outward Covenant with theſe Jews, as they were a national Church; and ſo conſidered as ſuch a Covenant, with Promiſes ſuitable, I do acknowledge it given de novo to the Jews, though fallen, as they were a Church (but this being proper to the Jews hath no influence or relation at all to Temporaries under the Goſpel): And ſo in all thoſe places quoted where the Law was given, did they ſtand as a Church to enter into Covenant with God, as in that 19*th. Exod.* &c. and the Apoſtle calls the whole as thus conſidered, a Carnal Commandment, Heb. 7. 6. becauſe beſides their Spiritual uſe in typifying things Heavenly to Spiritual Believers then, they had an outward carnal uſe to the whole Nation, who became a Church, and therefore called Holy, as ſet apart from the Nations, to be ſeparated to Gods Service and Worſhip preſcribed in the Law ceremonial and moral, and ſo as alſo a Nation of Prieſts (wherein yet was typified out the Spiritual Aſſemblys of true Saints and Churches under the Goſpel, and is ſo applyed by Peter, 1 Pet. 2. 5, 6.) and this Covenant was founded on a Redemption and Deliverance of that Nation out of Egypt, as that of the Goſpel is upon our Redemption thro' Chriſt; and yet they being Sinners how ſhould they have acceſs to God that was holy? They therefore had Moſes a Typical Mediator, Gal. 3. 19. The people ſtood afar off, and Moſes only drew nigh, as by Chriſt we have acceſs to the Father, Eph. 2. and ſo it had a Blood ſprinkled upon the Book, Heb. 9. 19. Exod. 24. 8. and anſwerably outward Juſtifications, δικαιώματα, Heb. 9. 1. as well as the Goſpel, and a remiſſion, v. 12. of that Chap. But how? Not at all purifying the Conſcience from the guilt of ſin from dead works, or from the power of ſin, but of the Fleſh and outward man, for that is the very difference that is put v. 13, 14. and therefore there was no promiſe of ſuch a Forgiveneſs as ſhould clear the Conſcience, or reach it in the leaſt to pacifie or purify it, nor therefore of any true Ground for any ſuch legal Faith, but a Forgiveneſs of reprieval, not to be deſtroyed for their ſin, if they offered Sacrifice (as it is expounded in the Pſalmiſt exegetically, Pſal. 78. 38.) and was ſo limited by God and Moſes their Mediator alſo, Num. 14. 19, 20. Pardon as until now; that is, ſpare them at preſent; and God ſays, I have pardoned, that is, ſo far, but threatneth to take vengeance however afterwards when he ſhould viſit: for as their Church Fellowſhip was outward, ſo their Forgiveneſs, ſo their Promiſes of Bleſſedneſs were outward annexed thereunto, which God fulfilled: And they had alſo ſins which were no ſins morally, as the touching the dead, and ſo had a Sanctification and a Juſtification which were not really ſuch, Book 7 that is, not of the Heart and Conscience from the guilt and power of Sin. And they had Promises Typical, Heb. 8. 5, 6. and in that respect those of the Gospel are called Better: And they had an answerable Communion with God in a Church Fellowship, and an outward presence of God amongst them in visible signs of a Cloud and Ark, and the Observances of the Ceremonial Law were the Expiations of the Transgression of the moral, in respect of the outward Transgression of it, so as the outward punishment (which else to the despisers of it without Mercy had befallen him, Heb. 10. 28.) was remitted and they absolved, and stood Recti in Curia again, as we say: And they had Promises of a Life, that in doing they should Live, even in that good Land of Canaan the Type of Heaven, Deut. 6. 2. 18. And this Covenant, Promises, &c. considered in these Two forementioned Scopes thereof, was truly, and toto genere, differing from that Second Covenant of the Gospel given, Deut. 29*th*, & 30*th*, Chapters, and was that old Covenant God found fault with.

Yet so 3*ly*, As the Holy and Great God had not made such an outward Covenant with that Nation as a Church, in such promises, such a Justification, Adoption, Sanctification outward and carnal, had not he therein had a farther scope in Types, hereby to note out another Covenant, Church, Promises, Justification, Sanctification, true and real, whereof he made this the shadow; and this he did for Christs sake also, whom and whose Covenant these things Typified out, and so made this Covenant, and Promises in the very terms of the thing signified, thereby to point out those Glorious Promises, that real Holiness, Justification, Adoption of the Gospel, (Heb. 9. 21, 22, 23. compared,) which true Believers among them had in their Eye, and had wrought in them, and they endeavoured after, so as to them it was Gospel also; yet in this, differing from that delivered (Chap. 29, & 30, Deut.) that there it is expressed clearly and directly in plain words, here it is enfolded in a Parable that had also another Scope besides it unto the Carnal Jew. And because this Covenant had these several and various Aspects (though some more, some less principal) hence though the carnal Jews should have literally performed the Typical Covenant in the letter, yet God finds fault with them, as wanting Spiritual Holiness, to which, by the Moral Law they were obliged as Creatures, and as a Church Redeemed, and which in the Ceremonial Law was Typified out, as that which was aimed at in those Types, and hence were those continual complaints, and finding faults by the Prophets (who understood the Spiritual intent of all) for their want herein.

Now then that Covenant, those Promises, that Sanctification thus understood, how far is it from any such scope as is put upon it by some Men to convey a true Sanctification, by a meer legal Covenant, unto others of the Jews beside the Elect. I acknowledg that as it was an outward Covenant, so it had an answerable Grace went with it to some of the Jews not Regenerate, to help them outwardly to keep the Law, as it had in Paul, who was blameless in it through Conscience enlightned by it (Phil. 3.) But withall I have sometimes thought that those Heavenly Enlightnings, Tastings of the powers of the World to come, &c. which are now in Temporaries under the Gospel, were never under that Covenant wrought in the Hearts of any Unregenerate amongst them; because sinning against Truth so acknowledged seems to be proper to the times of the Gospel, and Presumptuous, sinnersthen did but Sina against Moses Law, which is spoken oppositely to sinning against the Truth of the Gospel (Heb. 10. 26, 28. compared) and Temporaries now under the Gospel, are not to be Church-Members, if they could be known to be such, and the Jews were not in respect of any such work from the Law as then Members but Typically only. My Reason is, because that Churches are to consist of Saints Elect, therefore only under the Covenant of Grace (1 Pet. 5. 13.) and such as are so Sanctified as that Christ will perfect the Work, Phil. 5 6, 7. That they are admitted de facto, is because the Rules given Saints in the Word whereby we are able to judge of others by, are but such as Temporaries may ſeem to them to be true Saints, and ſo they are bound to receive them, yet not if diſcerned ſuch, for to them the Seals of the Second Covenant (which they are not under) cannot belong; but ſuch are our Sacraments now, viz. the Seals of the Covenant of Grace, This is the Blood of the New Teſtament, ſays Chriſt, and only ſo. Chap. 4

So as I add this for a Concluſion, God hath made Tryal of Corrupt Nature how far it might be wrought upon, by ſeveral workings of his Spirit and Truth without attainment of true Holineſs. And this is manifeſted in three ſeveral Degrees of the Revelation of his Truth, with workings of his Spirit proportioned thereunto.

1. He made and ſtill makes Tryal how far the light of Nature would go without the Law, (though not derived by Nature but from Chriſt, John 1. 9.) which Light of Nature is Gods Truth, ſo called Rom. 1. 18. & v. 19. it is alſo called Gods manifeſtation of himſelf to them, and Gods Wiſdom, 1 Cor. 1. 21. and which had that effect in the Hearts of many of them, the Law hath in ſome things, Rom. 2. 15. τὸ ἔργον τοῦ νόμου, The effect of the Law it is the recalled, and the Revelation of this Truth had a Spirit within them, as Seneca (the higheſt inſtance among them for Knowledg Moral that ever was) calls it, eſt Spiritus in nobis qui ita nos tractat ut a Nobis tractatur, who made Impreſſions of many moral Vertues on their Wills, and alſo in and to their Conſciences, for their Conſciences are ſaid συμμαρτυρεῖν, to witneſs, with whom? God in their Conſciences, who witneſſeth alſo, the ſame word that is uſed of the Spirits witneſſing with our Spirits, (Rom. 8. 16.) revealed and then ſeconded that light with a Bondage of accurſing if they Tranſgreſſed, and fed the fear of Death, Heb. 2. 15. and excuſing if they obeyed, Rom. 2. 15. which was a Reward for ſo much Integrity as was found in their Actions; and the higheſt inſtance for practice I know, of how far corrupt Nature might be empowered this way, was Socrates, who ſuffered for that Truth of God manifeſted to him.

And 2. A further Revelation of Truth was made to the Carnal Jew, who had a form of Knowledg and of the Truth of the Law, Rom. 2. 20. (But as I take it without any perceivance of the truth of the Goſpel and the Spiritual Redemption by Chriſt, by reaſon of that carnal Commandment, in the letter of which they reſted, 1 Cor. 3. 13, 14. through the vail on Moſes face, and on their Hearts, ſo as the glimmering notion thereof was peculiar to the Elect during thoſe times) and this had a further meaſure of the Spirit (for Neh. 9. as he gave them on Mount Sinai, good Commandments, v. 13. ſo alſo his good Spirit to inſtruct them, v. 20.) who became a Spirit of Bondage to them, Rom. 8. 15. and who (according as that Covenant was literal and outward, ſo far as de novo ſtruck with them) did accompany the Revelation of it with habits of Devotion, and of a Zeal of God miſguided, with warmth in (Rom. 10. 2.) and his Worſhip, to ſerve God according to the oldneſs of the letter, but not at all in the Spirit, which is to Worſhip only in truth: And the higheſt inſtance I know that God held forth of this work, was Paul, who was blameleſs, as concerning [that outward] Righteouſneſs of the Law, Phil. 3. 6. and wherein he exceeded others of his Companions, yet without the true Holineſs of the Law as it is Holy, for ſo he was without the Law, Rom. 7.

3. A farther diſcovery was made under the Goſpel, wherein as there is a plain Revelation of Chriſt and the way of Salvation in him (which is eminently called the Truth) which is now common in the notion of it to carnal Men; ſo God makes a further Tryal, and Experiments the utmoſt how far corrupt Nature may yet be wrought upon by the Truths thereof, without his infuſing or their attaining true Faith and Holineſs; and anſwerably gives a further Spirit, Heb. 6. 4. called the Spirit of Grace, Heb. 10. 29. that is of the Goſpel called Grace, Tit. 2. 11. whereby they are partakers of further Taſtes than of outward Bleſſings, and the comforts of an excuſing Conſcience, even of the powers of the World to come, which was not ſubject to the Angels who gave the Law,) Heb. 2. 2. and 5. compared) and are partakers of an Heavenly gift; yea, they may receive a work on their Hearts ſome way anſwerable to all the Truths of the Goſpel; for as Junius

Book 7 and others have obſerved, and by comparing thoſe Six Principles mentioned v. 1, 2. of Heb. 6. (the ſummof the reſt) and thoſe works on them mentioned v. 4, 5. they one anſwer to the other, and yet theſe attain not to true Holineſs or any true Qualifications or Works truly ſuch; not to true Love to the Saints, and works thence iſſuing for Chriſts ſake, which is put by way of diſtinction as better (v. 9.) than all that work upon them: And the work there mentioned, I account the higheſt Inſtance can be given of any Temporaries. For which dealing of God with Men, I muſt refer the Wonderment to the deepneſs of the Riches both of the Wiſdom and Knowledg of God: How unſearchable are his Ways, and his Judgments paſt finding out!

OF THE

(THE Third Perſon of the TRINITY)

BOOK VIII.

That there are Three parts of our Regeneration: 1. Humiliation for Sin, and the Neceſſity thereof, in order to Faith. 2. Faith in Chriſt for Juſtification. 3. Turning from Sin unto God, or Holineſs of Heart and Life: Proved, from the work which our Lord Jeſus Chriſt aſcribes to the Holy Ghoſt, John 16. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. from the inſtances of Converſion in rhe time when Job lived; and of the Converſion of the Apoſtle Paul. Of the Subſervience of Humiliation unto Faith. Objections Anſwered. Of our turning from Sin unto God, or of Holineſs in Heart, and Life.

CHAP. I.

That Conviction of Sin, Humiliation for it, Faith on Jeſus Chriſt, Sanctification, or amendment of Heart and Life, are the parts of our Converſion to God, is demonſtrated from the work which our Lord Jeſus Chriſt aſcribes to the Holy Spirit. John 16. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

JOHN 16. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

Nevertheleſs, I tell you the truth, it is expedient for you that I go away: For if I go not away, the comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will ſend him unto you.
And when he is come, he will reprove the World of Sin, and of Rigbteouſneſs, and of Judgment.
Of Sin, becauſe they believe not on me;
Of Righteouſneſs, becauſe I go to my Father, and ye ſee me no more,
Of Judgment, becauſe the Prince of this World is judged.

THESE Words contain a Summary of the Work of the Holy Ghoſt in Regeneration and Converſion (of which in the General ſo much hath been premiſed) throughout all the parts thereof. And the occaſion Book 7 occasion of Christs so distinct an enumeration of his several works in all the parts thereof, was this; In these his last Sermons he had told them, he was shortly to go away from them, and they in his absence to bear witness of him, by preaching him over all the World, (as it is in the last verse of the former Chapter) and withall, that for that their message they should find but hard Entertainment of it and of themselves at most of the Worlds Hands; (and this at the beginning of this chapter:) And because they began to be sorrowful at this, and to repine to be employed in a Business of so much danger and trouble; therefore to comfort them, he tells them, it was expedient it should be so, both for theirs and his Churches good: It is expedient (says he) for you; that is, You my Apostles, even in you particular: For I going away will send you my Spirit, who shall be a Comforter unto you in all those troubles which you are to meet withal. Neither is it for you only that I shall send my Spirit to you, but for my Elects sakes, who are now to be called over all the World by your preaching, and not only for those impaled within the Church of the Jews, (to whom only I have hitherto sent you) For (my Spirit) when he is come (on you namely) shall convince the World, that is, savingly convert my Elect in all Nations. And this work of Conversion he sets out in all the parts of it. 1. By Convincing the World, is meant Conversion: For so the word is used both in the Old and New Testament.

1. In the Old. When the Prophet speaks of the Conversion of the Gentiles, and establishing Christs Kingdom among them by his Word and Spirit, you shall find the same word in the Hebrew that is used in the Greek here thus, Isa. 2. 4. & Micah 4. 3. it is said, that the Word going forth from Jerusalem (as it did then, when the Apostles went to preach) Christ should judge among many people; that is, set up his Kingdom among them, and rule them by the Scepter of his Word. And how was it that this should come to pass? He should rebuke the Nations. Rebuke, Reprove, Convince, are all one, (as Interpreters observe) and it implies the opposition that is in mens Hearts to receive that his Word, so as they need rebuking and convincing, before they will effectually yield unto it. And whereas other Conquerors obtain their Crowns by force of Arms, He acquires his only by the Conviction of his Word and Spirit.

2. It is thus also used in the New Testament, (1 Cor. 14. 24, 25.) where the Apostle, to shew the Benefit of preaching above speaking with Tongues, giveth this Instance; Put the Case, an Unbeliever and Ignorant Person should come in; by that means (says he) he might be convinced of all; that is, truly converted from his Heathenism, Ignorance and Unbelief, unto the Profession and Worship of the True God, (as it is in the following words:) In a word, Heb. 11. 1, 2. the Apostle useth the very same word that is here, to express Saving Faith by (which will appear, if you compare the Original Texts together) he there taking it in its common Nature, as it hath all Spiritual things, for its object. The word there used is ἔλεγχος, Evidences or Conviction: And so here, ἐλέγξει, He shall convince. The words therefore are all one as if Christ should have said, I send you into the World to preach, and I send you my Spirit: And though the World be drown'd in Ignorance and Unbelief, and set in opposition against your Doctrine, yet my Spirit which I will send, shall convince them, make them know, believe, and yeild unto it. And because the Apostles might further desire to know what Doctrine were best to preach to convert them by, as also in what manner and order the Spirit would convert men; that they might accordingly apply themselves in their preaching, our Saviour Christ therefore at once sets forth an universal Platform both of the Sum of their Ministry, and of the Spirits working in mens Hearts, the one answering the other as the stamp doth the Image that made it. That whereas there are three things necessary to be known and believed particularly, and savingly, of all that shall be saved; so in the true conviction of them, Conversion doth consist.

1. There is Mans Sinfulness and Misery in himself, out of Christ.

2. The Way and Means appointed by God to come out of this misery, Christs Righteousness.

3. What

3. What a man ought to do by way of thankfulneſs to Chriſt for that his delivery (unto which three Heads our Divines have reduced their Catechiſms and Syſtems of Theology) our Saviour doth at once inform them, how the Spirit in converting them ſhould convince them of theſe Three; and that in their conviction of theſe three the work of Converſion is abſolved; and withal inſtructs them what particulars to inſiſt on in their preaching, as being thoſe things which the Spirit would make moſt uſe of to convert. So that he at once delivers both the particulars of the work of the Spirit in Converſion, as alſo the ſumm of Chriſtian Doctrine, and the Apoſtles preaching, and the order and method to be uſed in both. Chap. 1

1. The Spirit will convince of ſin; that is, of that miſerable and ſinful Eſtate which men live in by Nature, ſo long as they are out of Chriſt: And which, without belief in him, will prove matter of Condemnation to them; ſo that the Spirit will humble them, Becauſe they believe not on Chriſt.

2. He will convince them of Righteouſneſs, becauſe I go to my Father (ſays Chriſt) that is, the Spirit ſhall by Faith reveal unto them the Righteouſneſs of me, who am to aſcend up to Heaven to be the only true means to be juſtified and ſaved by. He names his Aſcenſion (which includes his Reſurrection) becauſe that declared his Righteouſneſs to be the true Righteouſneſs of God: Elſe (had he been an Impoſtor) God would never have ſuffered him to come to Heaven.

3. He will convince of Judgment, Becauſe the Prince of this World is judged, The meaning of which Phraſe, that which is in John 12. 31. evidently explains, Chriſt there ſpeaking of the fruit and efficacy of his Death, as it were triumphing ſays, Now is the judgment of this World; and the Prince of this World ſhall be caſt out. He there ſpeaks of the Converſion of the Gentiles; When I am lift up (ſays he) I will draw all men unto me, verſ. 32. Thoſe whom Satan had ruled and ſubjected to his Kingdom, and who had lived according to his Laws, now were to be reformed: Now is the Judgment of this World. That is, there is now a great change and reformation to be made in the Hearts and Lives of men: For ſo the word Judgment ſignifies, namely, a Reformation made according to ſome Law or Statute. And ſo Satans Kingdom is to be deſtroyed, and He caſt out, and Chriſt by his Laws to bear ſway. And thus Satan is judged: So that to be convinced of Judgment, is to be convinced of that Sanctification and true change of Heart and Life which Believers ought to take up. And ſo in Mat. 12. 18. (out of Iſa. 42. 1.) 'tis ſaid of Chriſt, that he ſhould ſhew forth Judgment to the Gentiles, by his Miniſters: That is, teach them true Holineſs and Reformation of Heart and Life, and the right manner of ſerving and worſhipping of God. And at the 20th verſe 'tis ſaid he ſhould bring forth Judgment unto Victory: that is, carry on the work of Grace and Sanctification (begun in the Heart of any Convert) unto Victory and Triumph, by upholding it and cauſing it to prevail, by ſubverting Satans Laws, and holds in the Hearts of men, and erecting his own. And this is all one with Convincing men of Judgment (as here) making them believe, ſubmit, ſtoop to, embrace and take up that ſtrictneſs which he in his Word requires. And ſo in Zeph. 2. 3. the Saints are ſaid to be ſuch as had wrought his Judgment; that is, had endeavoured to reform their Hearts and Lives.

CHAP. II.

In which it is proved that to convince us of ſin, and to humble us in the ſenſe of it, is the work of the Holy Ghoſt in converting us to God.

IT is granted, that in the humiliation of a Sinner, the viſion and knowledge of Chriſt and his glorious Righteouſneſs ſtrikes the greateſt, the laſt and moſt compleat ſtroke. But whether the firſt and ſingle ſight of it, without any work of the Law before Chriſt revealed, as a ground-Colour to make this take upon the Heart, is ſufficient, This is the Queſtion between us; and thoſe of the contrary Opinion, of which the great and main ground is, that becauſe the Viſion of Chriſt doth by reflexion and compariſon diſcover a Mans Sinfulneſs; that therefore there ſeems to be no need of any uſe of the Law to do it. But if this were ſo, then by the like reaſon alſo, Becauſe Chriſts Example is a compleat Rule fully directory to a Chriſtian, therefore there needs no direction from the Law: And ſo you wholly aboliſh the uſe of the Law. But that there ſhould be a foregoing diſcovery of Sin by the Law, before Faith and the Revelation of Chriſt: And that it is an Ordinance of God to this end, and a way of Gods ſo to work, and ſo to that end, that the Law ſhould be preached, is clearly evinced.

1. By that Inſtance of the firſt Work of Converſion, and of the firſt Sermon that ever was made in the World, by GOD the Father, who firſt gave the promiſe of the Son unto our firſt Parents. Yea, although Adam's Natural Conſcience was already made ſenſible of his Miſery, ſo far as the light of that Conſcience left in him could Work, Gen. 3. 7, 8. (for Adam confeſſeth to God his being afraid, and his Senſe of his own Nakedneſs verſe 10.) yet God er'e he Preacheth the Goſpel, and lets fall the promiſe of the Seed verſe 15. ſpends the firſt part of his Sermon in a further convincing him of his Sin by that Law which he had given him, and which he had Tranſgreſſed, thereby to convey the Spirit of Bondage, to work a further Conviction than Natural Conſcience had wrought, expreſly putting him in mind of the Command which he had broken, verſe 11. and though he doth not terrifie him with the Curſe annexed, becauſe his Natural Conſcience was already made ſenſible of it, (for that was it which he feared:) Yet becauſe this Humiliation preparatory is mainly to be for Sin as Sin, and as a Tranſgreſſion of the Law, which Natural Conſcience without a further Work of the Spirit, is not apprehenſive of; therefore that which God intends his Conviction in, is the hainouſneſs of his Sin, by ſetting before his eyes Himſelf as the Commander, [which [I] commanded] and the Law it ſelf commanded and broken: Which diſcovery is the main and proper end of the Law in its work. If therefore a Man whoſe Natural Conſcience was already awakened, needed yet a further diſtinct, and more Spiritual conviction of Sin by the Law, er'e it was fit to Preach Chriſt unto him; then much more, if we were to Preach to Turks or Pagans, who are paſt feeling (as the Apoſtle ſays) ſhould we firſt awaken them e're we ſpeak to them of Chriſt. And God himſelf being the Preacher to Adam, and appearing to him, if the Viſion of his Glory alone would have done it without a diſtinct diſcovery by the Law firſt wrought, then ſurely God might have ſpared this legal diſcovery, rather than all the Preachers that ſucceed him.

2. When

2. When Chriſt himſelf, the promiſed Seed, came to Preach the Goſpel, the firſt Sermon Luke records, Preached at his own Town, was upon that Text, Iſa. 62. 2. I am ſent to Preach the Goſpel unto the Captives, and in Priſon, (ſhut up under the Law, as Paul ſays) to heal the broken Hearted, &c. For to ſuch only does the Goſpel belong. And therefore he ſent John before him, to prepare his way, even to make way for the entertainment of his Miniſtry, to break and bruiſe and ſhut up ſuch as Chriſt might heal and enlarge; whoſe Miniſtry, though it had Goſpel in it, (for Acts 19. 4. he bids the People Believe, &c.) yet ſo, as that came in but in the cloſe and up-ſhut of his Miniſtry, as the thing which his Preaching made way for. But ſtill the eminent Impreſſion of his Miniſtry upon Mens Hearts was a ſenſe of their Sins, which legal Humiliation ſtill left. Though a Seed of Faith was in the bud, and by his Miniſtry begun; yet was it not bloſſomed, but to be raiſed up to Victory by him who breaketh not the bruiſed Reed: And Chriſts Miniſtry was to raiſe Aſſurance in them upon whom John had wrought; and therefore John is ſaid to have come Mourning, and to have Preached Repentance, and his Baptiſm is called the Baptiſm of Repentance. And theſe Titles his Miniſtry had given it, to ſhew what were the eminent effects which it was ordained to work. And accordingly though it ſowed a Seed of Faith by his pointing to the Meſſiah, yet it left his Hearers and Converts a greater impreſſion of legal Terrours ſtill remaining upon their Conſciences, for Chriſts Miniſtry to take off from them by a more clear Preaching the Goſpel. And in this reſpect John was ſaid to prepare the way of the Lord; and that by caſting down Mountains, filling Vallyes, and removing diſcouragements, ſo to make Chriſts way level, and by cauſing Men to ſee the Vanity of all Fleſh, Iſa. 40. 1. to the 6. v. And in ſome of thoſe Sermons recorded of his, you ſhall obſerve his method to anſwer this, and ſo diſcern the better what was the Scope of his Miniſtry: For he firſt falls upon them and threatens them, and convinceth them of their Eſtates, Luke 3. 7. he tells them of Gods Wrath, and takes away thoſe falſe conceits which had kept them from being ſenſible of their Eſtates, as if they were Abraham's Seed, verſe 8. And further to convince Men of their particular ſins, he tells them each of their Eſpecial boſom Luſts (which is the diſtinct and ſpecial way to Humble, obſerved alſo by Chriſt to the Woman of Samaria, and by Paul to Fœlix:) So verſe 11. he tells the People of their want of Charity, the Publicans of their Oppreſſion, verſe 13. and the Soldiers of their Violence and Rapine, verſe 14. and Preacheth Chriſt as it were but by occaſion of Mens Wondering whether he were the Chriſt, and that too, after all theſe other paſſages in his Miniſtry premiſed, verſe 15, 16. Chap. 3

3. God the Holy Ghoſt who is to work with, and ſecond our Sermons, and to deal with Mens Hearts, hath a peculiar Office aſſigned him; which therefore muſt needs be neceſſary; as appears by that Title given him, Rom. 8. 15. the Spirit of Bondage, and as ſuch he is received, er'e he becomes a Spirit of Adoption. Which Spirit of Bondage hath not relation to the Bondage under the Law, for he ſpeaks it to the Romans who were Gentiles, and not nurtured up under the Law; [Ye] have not received] nor to the Bondage of natural Conſcience; for it is a Spirit received, and a Spirit that returns no more to work fear, which in them that are Converted Natural Conſcience ſtill doth, yea, even in many Believers: But the Holy Ghoſt is a Spirit of Bondage in Converſion only; and in that it is ſaid [to fear again] it implies it was once received. The Office of which Spirit appears by the oppoſite Effect of the ſame Spirit as he is called the Spirit of Adoption, which is to Witneſs Adoption and Son-ſhip, as the other is to witneſs our Slavery and Bondage to Sin and Death.

4. As the Spirit hath an Office deſigned him for ſuch a Work, ſo God hath appointed a Word in the Hand of this Spirit, to work and engender Bondage by, as the Phraſe is Gal. 4. 23, 24. And that the Law was revealed to the World to this end, and that this is as proper an uſe of it as any other now ſince the Fall; I will take that which the Epiſtle to the Romans affords for the proof of it.

I come to the more direct Proofs out of that Epistle, the very method the Apostle takes up to promulge and lay open the Gospel (which is the Subject of that Epistle) offers something to me clearly to evince this; which by the hand will bring me to what I aim at.

The Epistle (you know) is an exact System or Form of wholsom Words, such as Paul would have Timothy keep by him. After Salutations from verse 1, to the 15. he propounds the General Subject and Argument of his Epistle, the Gospel, verse 15, 16. and the main Argument of that Gospel, verse 17. Now after he had declared the Argument and drift of the whole, he enters upon this System and Method of handling and revealing it: And to clear the way for it, he convinceth the Gentiles that they are under Sin and Wrath, Chap. 2. 1. from verse 18, to the 9th verse of Chap. 2. and then he convinceth the Jews that they also are under Sin; and this he doth by taking away their false Props, Chap. 2. from verse 9, to the 9th verse of Chap. 3. and then he enters into a proof, that all, both Jew and Gentile, and all Man-kind are wholly corrupted; from verse 10. to the 19th, where (ver. 19, and 20.) he shews, that as the Gospel was appointed to reveal Christs Righteousness (Chap. 1.17.) so the Law to give the Knowledg of Sin. (True, you will say) but unto whom? ver. 19. answers us, To them that are under the Law. And therefore it is most properly given to discover to Men Unregenerate whilst under the Law, their Sins. [It saith] that is, it Preacheth to them; and to what end? To Humble them, that every mouth may be stopped, and so every one (in their own apprehensions) become Guilty before God. And by this Law, (says he) is the Knowledg of Sin. And to what end is this Knowledg of Sin, but to make way for the Conviction of that Righteousness which the Gospel holds forth, and unto which all this tended? verse 20. and so on to Chap. 5. where at verse 12, he again proceeding to the discovery of the source of all that Sinfulness viz. Adams Sin, and of all that Righteousness, viz. Christs Righteousness, he at the 13th verse shews, that the end why God gave the Law was, to discover Sin: Sin indeed was in the World before Moses; but was not imputed till the Law came, that is, not charged on Men's Consciences. And verse 20. more expresly says, The Law entered that the Offence might abound: That is, in Mens Aprehensions. For though the Law stirred up Sin, (as he shews, Chap. 7.) yet that was but an occasional and accidental end (as it is in the 8th verse of that 7th Chap.) not the primary end of Gods revealing it: And it entred not, that Sin might be more, but that it might be imputed; and so, that that Guilt which was already contracted might be charged upon Mens Consciences, and that the Guilt imputed might abound, or appear above measure Sinful: And this, to the end to set up and to illustrate Grace and Christs Righteousness, in their Hearts who should be partakers of that Grace: Where Sin abounded, there Grace abounded much more.

If you will yet make Question, whether that the first Knowledge of Sin is to come in by the Law, so to make way for the abounding of Grace; consider what is said in the 7th Chapter, wherein the Apostle (having proved that both Justification and Sanctification were from Christ alone, in the 3d, 4th, 5th & 6th Chapters, and having before professed, Chap. 3. last, that he did not make void the Law, but established it) undertakes to shew the ends whereto the Law now serveth unto Men. (And this, to remove that great Objection, that the Law was made void by him.) Whereof one primary and direct end unto which it serves, is, to give in Conversion the first Knowledge of Sin. So verse 7. of that Chapter, I had not known Sin but by the Law; and what Knowledg speaks he of, but that which humbled himself at his first Conversion? For verse 9. he says, He was once alive without the Law; that is, without the Knowledg of it; as the Gentiles are said to be without God in the World. Now Paul being a Pharisee, was never without the Law, and some Knowledg of it; he being Educated in the Law from a Child; and therefore he must needs speak of that Knowledg which he began to have when he was first Converted, differencing it from his former Pharasaical Knowledg of it; in that he was alive, notwithstanding that Knowledg of it. Nay he calls that Knowledg

no Knowledg in comparison of this, for he says he was without the Commandment, when a Pharisee. And that he speaks of his knowledg in or after Conversion, is evident by this, that he knew not Original Sin, nor Lust until then. The Pharisees (as appears by Christs Sermon, Matth. 5.) thought it no Sin: But now Paul was humbled for it; he saw that in his state of Unregeneracy the Law had occasionally wrought all Concupiscence, verse 8. And that he speaks of his Knowledg not after Conversion, but in the work of Humiliation, appears by this, that Sin revived, and he dyed, who in his own apprehension was once alive, and thought himself a living Man and an Heir of Life, thinking to be Justified by the Law. And so the Law not only really put him into a State of Death, by occasioning Sin, verse 11. but stirred up in him apprehensions of his Bondage unto Death. verse 13. by discovering it unto him, he finding himself deceived in thinking to attain Life by the Law, whenas it wrought Death in him. In all which Sin every way appeared to him above measure Sinful. And this effect of the Law in his first Conversion he brings, to shew the proper use of the Law, confirming it by his own example (as he doth the other ends of the Law also,) which he shews in that whole Chapter, in three things, according to a Threefold condition wherein Men may be supposed to be: Chap. 3

First, Of an Unregenerate Man, having a common Knowledg of the Law, such as himself had whilst in the Flesh, verse 5. which Knowledg did then enrage his Lusts; which yet (to excuse the Law) he shews verse 8. to have been but occasional. And this condition he sets down from verse 5. to the 7th.

The Second Condition he mentions, is, when Men come to have a Spiritual conviction of their Sin by the Law, to bring them out of that estate, by being humbled: To which end the Law serveth more directly to give them the Knowledg of Sin; not such as stirs up Lust, as afore, but such as humbles them, and lays them for Dead. And this also he shews by the effect it had in himself; v. 7, 9, 10, & 13. his purpose being to confirm all by his own example throughout the Chapter.

And Thirdly, after his Conversion he shews the use of the Law to a Man Regenerate, to discover Sin and his Captivity under it, by the Spiritualness of it, from Verse 14*th* to the 24*th*, so to drive them to Christ for help; Verse 24, 25.

All which I take to be the true Analysis of the Chapter. For all which uses he brings his own Example, speaking in his own Person as a pattern herein. Now if his own particular instance before Conversion and after, be brought as a common example to shew the use of the Law in common, and after Conversion, then also in Conversion it must be taken as a common pattern also. Whose Conversion thus by the Law, had it not been extraordinary, it had not been a fit instance to vindicate and clear the Law, that it hath still it's use subservient to the Gospel, and particularly in This, To discover Mens sinfulness when first converted.

And I will add but this, That if the vision and conviction that Christ was the Messiah and Saviour of Sinners, be ordained to humble alone at first without the Law Then of all other Paul needed not to have had this Revelation by the Law added: For who ever had such a Conviction and vision of Christ upon the first moment of his Conversion, as Paul had from Heaven? If therefore he was notwithstanding by a Legal Humiliation Converted; how much more then, We? Yea, he plainly says, that he had not known Sin, but by the Law.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

In which it is proved from the Inſtances of Converſion in the time of Job, long before Chriſt came, from the Inſtance of the Apoſtle Paul's Converſion, after Chriſts coming in the Fleſh, that a Converted Soul muſt be convinc'd of ſin, be humbled for it, and believe on Chriſt for Righteouſneſs and Salvation.

SET Narrations of ſolemn Converſions are rarely found in the Old Teſtament among the Jews. We read not how, or by what means Iſaac, or Jacob, or Moſes, or David, were wrought upon, and turned unto God: But here, among the Records of thoſe that were not of that Genealogy, or of the Jewiſh Line, and ſo not Members of that Church, and yet circumciſed, and retaining the Profeſſion of the True God, being Eſau's Seed, we find in a Book of greateſt Antiquity, a lively Deſcription thereof; taken from the experimental obſervations of Elihu. He ſpreads them afore Job, (Chap. 33.) for his encouragement, and hopes of Mercy from God; notwithſtanding his great ſinfulneſs, which Elihu had charged him withall, in the Former chapters; or maugre thoſe deep Afflictions God had viſited him withal, in his Body, his Mind, and outward Condition: It hath rejoyced me to have met with ſo ancient Footſteps of the ſame Doctrine, of Ways, and Means, and Operations in Converſions ſo long ago, to have been for Subſtance much one and the ſame, as under the Goſpel we have ſeen; and is frequently exemplified in theſe Laſt days.

The Means Elihu relates to have been, ſeveral diſpenſations of God; as by awakenings and Inſpirations, in Dreams and Viſions in the Night, which, then, when the Word was not put into writing, but conveyd either by Tradition, or immediate Revelation, was more ordinary in thoſe times: And with this means he therefore begins: Job 33.15, 16, 17. In a Dream, in a Viſion of the night, when deep ſleep falleth upon men; in ſlumberings upon the Bed; then he openeth the Ears of men, and ſealeth their Inſtruction; that he may withdraw man from his purpoſe, and hide pride from man: He inſtanceth likewiſe in Gods viſiting men, with great and ſore Sickneſs unto Deaths door; and when humbled thereby, and not knowing what to do to be ſaved; He ſends a Meſſenger to open, and make known Gods mind to them; to Shew and Inſtruct ſuch an one in the right way of Salvation: This you may ſee in Verſe 19 unto Verſe 27. And a Seaſonable word coming upon Apprehenſions of Death, God often both then, as now, bleſſeth wonderfully; to work upon men ſavingly: And Elihu ſhuts up theſe Inſtances, (which are but a few of many, and inſtead of All the reſt he might have produced) with this Concluſion, Verſe 28. 29. Lo, all theſe things, that is, both theſe and divers other ways and means (which he names not;) doth God work by: As alſo all theſe operations by thoſe ſeveral means, doth God work. E're I draw forth the Particulars, of theſe workings of God with this ſick man; I premiſe two Generals.

1. That theſe Inſtances do ſet forth the workings of ſaving Converſion unto God; both Initial at firſt, or renewed Converſions after great ſinnings: Yet Initial, eſpecially, and moſt directly, as the Circumſtances inſtanced in, do carry it: Although in the intended or uſeful aims of Elihu in them to Job, (who was converted already;) they are directed as a preſcript for him to take the ſame courſe that new Converts are ſaid here to do; to be reſtored to the Favour of God again, by the ſame ways which new Converts are at firſt admitted into it: And indeed, Initial Converſion, and renewed, come all to one in the ſubſtantial Operations of either: All theſe these things, God works in all and every Convert, whether at first, or after in repeated Repentances, the Operations are the same in both: Like is in the original draught of a Picture, the first drawing gives all the substantial Lineaments, and the after-draughts go but over the same Rudiments, in additions more to the life, and that such an Original draught is intended principally, is evident from the series of Elihu's Discourse; in that from the Instances he draws this Conclusion as from the premises; viz. a gracious Invitation made to all, or any man; and an encouragement given them in like manner to come in, and turn to God; with promises of like Grace and mercy: And that he plainly infers this as a Corollary brought of, and deduced from the Example of this sick mans Conversion; and That the Grace that God had manifested in saving him, should be shewn to any other Convert, is apparent in those words, v. 27, 28. He, (that is God) looketh upon men, and if any say, I have sinned; and perverted that which was right; and it profited me not; He will deliver his Soul from going into the Pit; and his Life shall see the Light: This is a General proposition which concerns the Sons of men; so involves those that never as yet had been wrought upon; as well as those and that had been; Elihu declaring that God would in like manner upon Faith and Repentance be gracious to them: To deliver his Soul from going into the Pit. And the argument, or encouragement, from the Conversions of men unregenerate afore, must needs have more force, and persuasive power in it, to prevail with others, that are still such: For it is not only the same case; but if the instance had only intended men actually wrought upon already; the encouragement, and hopes given, had been capable of this grand exception; That those that had been in Grace already, and had a Seed of God still abiding in them, would be easily received into Gods Favour, and Grace renewed in him: As a Charcole that hath been dried will easily take fire: Oh but an unregenerate Soul might say; I who have lived all my days in such a condition of sinning, and have provoked God with so long continued a Course of sins, without any, the least spark of Good in me; how shall I hope to have it begun, and my person to be renewed: But when he shall hear of so great, and so long hardned Sinners, who have been converted, and that God hath been gracious to them, as if they had never sinned against him; and not only so, but that they have been admitted into his presence; and seen his Face with joy; (and such sinners as have utterly been strangers to God, do need the highest inducements, and widest door of hope set open to them;) such an example as this, must needs be wonderfully inviting, and give abundant hope to them: For the condition of these is just the same with their own: Yea the sick man instanced in, seems by his manner of Speech, to be one who had hitherto been Ignorant of the way of Salvation, until then: That providentially some messenger, and he one of a thousand, doth shew and discover to him that Uprightness, and way whereby men must be saved, as good News to him, which he knew not of till then: If there be with him an Interpreter, to shew to man his uprightness. And any intelligent Soul, that knows what it is to be converted, will be ready to acknowledge by descrying, upon view of them, several of the most eminent Lines and Lineaments of such a work drawn in this dark ancient piece: As namely, in general, it is described to be an efficacious Working, signified by the phrase of opening the Ear; in the Old Testament: Isa. 50. 5. The Lord God hath opened my Ear, and I was not Rebellious, neither turned away my Back. In the New Testament it is an opening the Heart, as Lydia's to attend to the things delivered; as likewise by a sealing of the instruction given: v. 16. impressing them as effectually on the Soul, as the Seal doth on the wax the Image engraven on it: So as finally they resist not, but become obedient thereunto: v. 16. But particularly, 1. God worketh so, as to withdraw a man from his former purpose of going on in sin, and hides pride from man; by convincing him of his sins and sinful Estate, and thereby breaking the Staff of pride of a mans Spirit, in the sense of his sinful and woful condition, in the ignorance of which he had stoutly gone on Book 8 on in the height and Pride of carnal Excellencies: But now is emptied of them all, and of that his conceited Righteousness, he was Opinionated of in his former estate, and brought Low, (as James word is) Humbled to the Dust in the sight of his Sin and Misery he lyes in, and thereby the Soul is wrought on, for it's Receiving, and Accepting by Faith, Christs Righteousness, and Ransom, or Redemption, which was to be given him out of the free Grrace of God: verse 24. Then he is Gracious, and saith, Deliver him from going down into the Pit, I have found a Ransom; (which Righteousness is the principal part of that blessed Message, which that Messenger or Interpreter from God, brings him then, when, 3. He closeth with, and betakes himself wholly unto that, for his alone Righteousness found, and provided by God for him; he also 4. Is brought in, and represented to have prayed, and supplicated God, for the obtaining of these; Prayer being the first fruits of Faith; and 5. The consequent of that, is, Gods Gracious Acceptation; and seeing Gods face with Joy, as the words of the 23, 24, & 26, verses, manifestly shew: If there be a Messenger with him, an Interpreter, one of a Thousand, to shew unto Man his Uprightness; then he is Gracious unto him, and saith, Deliver him from going down to the Pit; I have found a Ransom, he shall pray unto God, and he will be favourable unto him, and he shall see his Face with Joy: 6. He withal confessing, and forsaking his Sin, and pursuing after that Uprightness of Holiness, in Heart and Life, which is the other part of that Message the Interpreter makes known unto him. It involveth also the renewed Conversion of a Man that is declined, and hath grievously Sinned, and hainously Perverted that which is right, whom God recovers, and brings to himself again by some great Affliction, by which the Spirit works conviction of his Sin, and Reneweth Faith on the Messiahs Righteousness. Whereupon God restores him to his former Comforts out of his Graciousness, through the Redemption of the Messiah; and from the instance of such an one brought so low, and by this means so raised again, Elihu, (who directs all this personally to Job, in his condition,) would give him ground of hopes of Grace, and Mercy from God, under this deplorable Affliction that he was in: And thus in this Parable here Elihu, Callidè (as Sanctius word is) presents himself, as a messenger from God, directing Job to the only true means, whereby God is pacified, viz. the Messiahs Ransom, and Righteousness; and the right course he was to take, to recover the favour of God, and remove that evil that lay upon him; namely, by having recourse to that Ransom of the Messiah, and free Grace of God, by Faith: both which he points unto, v. 24. joined with Repentance, in Confession of Sin, and turning from it, as v. 27.

See the Dutch Annotators.

Both or either of these serve to this Scope; but eminently the first: viz. The Conversion of one Unregenerate, as being the greater Example of Mercy, and Grace, which might give the more abundant hopes to Job in this his case, who had long been savingly himself wrought upon, though as Elihu thought greatly fallen into Sin, the recovery of a Believer fallen but as the renewal of Friendship of one, who had long been in Friendship with another, whom he had unworthily provoked. But the other is as the first beginning of Friendship, of one that had continued an utter Enemy all his days till now.

2. The Second Premise, is this General Rule, for the understanding the Workings upon this sick Convert, his Heart, (which example I make my special centre, of the particulars that follow, drawing all the lines thereto) look, what in other parts of this discourse, he makes to be the inward workings upon him, he mentions afore to have been wrought upon, v. 15, 16, 17. the same must be taken in, and attributed unto, this sick Mans Conversion also; and he to have had the same inward Operations in his Soul, also, which that other by Dreams had: And the reason is clear; for although the outward means God used, was differing; As a Dream or a Vision to the first, and a great sickness, &c. to this other; yet Conversion from Sin, being said to be the effect that was wrought thereby; this is common to either, as to any true Convert else in the World: And therefore when it it is said, verse 26. Then he openeth

the ears of Men, and sealeth their Instruction; it is to be conceived that this sick Man, when humbled by his sickness, and apprehensions of Death; and that a Messenger from God had further instructed, and informed him; That then God also opened this Mans Ear, and sealed up in his Heart effectually, those Instructions that Messenger had delivered to him; he did Hear and Obey; and and therefore it is said v. 24. Then God is Gracious to him also. These were but differing ways, and Instruments, and occasions of working, but the effect the same in Both; so when in v. 17 he declares Gods end to be, that he may withdraw Man from his purpose, and hide Pride from Man; that is, to turn a Man from his sinful way and course of Life he was resolved to have persisted in: This must in like manner be supposed to have been the end, and effectual issue in this sick Mans Case: For this is common to all Converts, when likewise he further adds in the same verse, and hide Pride from Man; (that is to work Pride out of his Heart, to Bury it (as Calvins word is) extinguisheth it, which consists chiefly (as in New Testament Language) in the pulling down of strong holds, casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth it self against the knowledge of God; and bringing into Captivity every thought to the Obedience of Christ: 2 Cor. 10. 5. 'Tis that Universal Pride in Mans Heart, that is opposite to Conversion or Subjection to Christ, and not only, or chiefly the pulling down the plumes of that particular Sin of Pride before and towards Men: But this is to break the staff of the Pride of Mans Heart by Nature, which bears Men up in self Confidence of ones own Righteousness, and Creature Confidence: To work Poverty of Spirit in a Man: Now the same is to be Understood the issue, and effect that is in this Sick Mans Heart, and here intended; they are the Essentials of Conversion he sets forth; only mentioneth one piece, or strain of Spirit wrought in the one instance; another in the other; even as in the New Testament, in relating Conversion instances, we find them in like manner scatteredly narrated some in one, other effects in another, which when gathered together, give us a description of the whole work compleatly. Chap. 3

This General Rule I desire may not be understood, as if I meant, that God did not use sundry means: As that one Threatning, brought home to one Mans Heart, another to another Mans, to humble them; as likewise several Promises, brought home to work Faith, &c. yet still there is the same Effects, or things wrought in the Hearts of all, and common to all: As to be humbled for Sin; to confess, and forsake it; to Repent and turn to God; to Believe on Christ, and Gods Free Grace, for they are the Essentials, the Inwards of the New Creature: As every Child born into the World, hath alike the same Inwards; and of such Substantials, and none other but such, doth Elihu make mention as works in the Soul, in the whole of this his Discourse.

I come to draw out the particular workings themselves, as they are represented, either in the Instances or any other part of his Discourse.

The Parts of Conversion our Saviour reduceth unto Three; as I have shewed in opening John 16. 8.

1. The Conviction of Sin, which we call Humiliation.
2. Of Christs Righteousness, with Faith thereon.
3. Of Judgment; or Reformation of Heart and Life.

Let us consider if the Substantials of these are not to be descried in, or fairly to be collected from out of the aforesaid instances; as namely of the Sick Man, and the circumstances whereby Elihu sets forth the Story of him, or from other parts of the Discourse.

1. They shew a Conviction of Sin, and of a sinful estate that they had formerly continued in; so the Visioniſt had his Ear opened, and this instruction set home; that the work (as some Translate it,) his purpose (as others,) is Sinfull, and Wicked, and to be forsaken, or else he will utterly perish; this v. 17, 18. declare; in v. 17. God instructs him, That he may withdraw Man from his purpose; or [his work;] which denotes his course and way, and him to have been a worker of Iniquity; a committer of Iniquity in Christs and the Apostles sense; translated therefore his purpose, namely of continuing in his Sin; he sees likewise the danger of Book 8 going to the Pit, and of perishing, v. 18. And by these, as persuasives set on upon his Heart, he is induced to leave, and break off his sin; (as Daniels phrase is;) as being the way to Hell, and Destruction: This was an Instruction sealed upon his mind: But more expressly in v. 27. If any man say, I have sinned, and perverted that which was right: And perversion there notes out Great and grievous sinnings: These the Convert is brought to see, and confesseth.

And when the sick man hath also his sin, and unrighteousness laid open to him; for these words of v. 27. If any say I have sinned, &c. (which is the first A B C of true Repentance;) Thereby is strongly implied, yea declared, that the same was in this sick mans Heart——for it is an Inference drawn from his example in particular; teaching all men to do, even as this man had done: To lay to Heart his sin: It had not been an soppoſite general Inference, unless we suppose it to have been in that mans Spirit, who is proposed as the particular example or pattern that it is drawn from.

And if any object and say, That this would then have been expressed in words, in relating the sick mans Case. The answer is, That it needed not: It was enough to be set down in the Inference, and needless to have been repeated over and over in both. And such manner of implicarions are frequent in the Scriptures, and especially to be observed in the Proverbs:

Yea, many Interpreters, eminently skill'd and vers'd in the Hebrew, do understand and read the words of that 27th verse, as if they were the Speech of that sick penitents, when restored: And it is so varied in the Margent as to this sense. That He, the now penitent Convert, looks upon men, other men, as occasionally he meets with any; and proposeth to them his own example and says, I had sinned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not, but brought upon my self therewith, the danger of Death, and Guilt of Hell upon me: But He, Namely God, hath upon my Repentance, delivered my Soul from going into the Pit: And therefore do you all in like manner repent, as I have done: And 'tis certain that the Hebrew will bear either readings, though I preferr that which our Translators have given far before it. For this reason, that Phrase, He looks upon men, &c. is most properly used of God, who from Heaven looks eown upon Men, and observes whether they Repent. Neither was this sick Man only brought to be sensible of his sin, but being brought to Deaths door, is made apprehrnsive of Hell too, which is The wages of sin: The second Death: v. 22. Yea his Soul draweth near unto the Grave, and his Life to the Destroyers: Which words serve not simply to set out his Danger, as it was in the reality, or as it was in the thing it self; But also to shew that he had Apprehensions of it: And how often Hell is called that Pit, in the Proverbs, by Solomon, and in other Old Testament Scripture, I need not insist on: In the New, That bottomless Pit: Rev. 9. 11. The Angel of the Bottomless Pit, the Devil is called: Which is likewise as often termed Destruction, and is joined with Hell, to signifie it: Prov. 27. 20. And the word here translated Pit, in General signifies Corruption. And the dread of this for his sin, is the great distress which this sick mans Soul is brought to: And this was it which gave the advantage to this Interpreter One of a Thousand, (who took the opportunity) to strike whilst the Iron was hot: Even when his Soul drew nigh to the Grave, and his Life to the Destroyers in his own Fears: That is, to the Devils: Who (as Christ said of that rich Fool this night [They] (the Angels of this Pit;) shall take away thy Soul,) carry it to that Pit of Destruction, whereof he hath the Power, Heb. 2. and he hath his Name from thence of Adollion, and Abaddon, in the foresaid Rev. 9. 11. That is, Destroyer: And at death stands ready by an unregenerate mans Bed-side, to take away his Soul: And as the Grave, and Pit, and Destruction, are used to express Hell, the thing it self; so in the Old Testamnet, a man that is fill'd with such apprehensions about this, is brought in as using the like Phrases to these, thereby to express his sentiments thereof: Thus Heman in trouble, and Terrors of Conscience for sin, and Gods Wrath, speaks of himself as of a man in Hell; when yet he was not sick in Body; in like Language to what Elihu speaks of this sick man here; Psal. 88. 3, 4. My Soul is full of Troubles, and my Life draweth draweth nigh to the Grave: I am counted with them that go down into the Pit: And again v. 5. Free among the Dead, cut off from thy Hand; whom thou remembrest no more: And v. 6, 7. Thou [hast laid me in the lowest Pit] in Darkness, in the deeps: [thy wrath] lyeth hard upon me; and thou hast afflicted me with all thy waves Selah: This was not sickness Bodily, or danger of the Grave. For he speaks of himself as a man already laid in the lowest Pit; and that all the waves of Gods wrath had gone over him. And how often is it that the Approaches of Death to a mans view, and fore-thoughts of these things, awaken mens Hearts, and possess them with such apprehensions, Experience abundantly shews: Mens Consciences naturally being subject to the fear of Death, all their life long: (Heb. 2. 15.) much more at the sight of Deaths approachment to them; who have heard and known that Hell immediately doth follow: As in Rev. 6. 8. Chap. 3

But further, in this juncture of time, Here comes a Messenger, who is one of a thousand, (as it is spoken of him:) He will be sure faithfully to second this voice of Conscience, by a further laying open his sinful Estate to him, and the Spiritual danger he is in of the second Death, if he turn not: And when he is said to shew to man his Uprightness, even whilst it is a doing, a man withal is shewn what he ought to be, and what he ought to have been; and what Righteousness he must get, and obtain: This when done, will withal effectually discover unto a man, his own Uprightness, far more than Natural Conscience alone doth do: For this man speaks the Holy, and Spiritual Word, and mind of God; and sets a mans secret sins in the light of Gods Countenance, afore the mans Conscience, which Natural Conscience could not reach to: And the Spirit of God, joyning with both these, as he did in the Heart of the Jaylor; Acts 16. Convinceth him of sin: And thus humbleth, and prepareth him: Which by Gods ordination, is the first work in mens Conversion.

And truly that joyful word (Joyful Sound the Psalmist calls it) Deliver Him; v. 24. may very rationally be judged to relate to the many Fears his Soul was in, from the sight of his sins, and apprehensions of Damnation; upon his apprehensions of Death: And that God in and by that blessed word, Deliver Him, pronounced his Absolution from his Sins and Hell: Especially it being followed, and strengthened by those promises that follow; that God would favourably accept him, as the word is; And He should see Gods face with joy; in v. 26. both which in conjunction speak that kind of Gods manifesting of his face, which is by lifting up the light of his Countenance immediately upon the Soul; which gives more joy, as the Psalmist his Experience assures us, than Oyl and Wine, or all temporal mercies whatsoever: These Speeches are too big to express the mercies of this Life only: They are promises, though in this Life, yet not of this Life; but the Beginnings of that which is to come: And those Speeches of seeing Gods face, and accepting with favour, do referr unto it. And indeed many of those Interpreters, that would understand these Phrases of Deliverance only from Bodily Death, in a great sickness; yet withal acknowledge this sick man to have been delivered therefrom, upon his true Conversion unto God in the sight of his sins, his true Faith, and sincere Repentance, and Prayer unto God, for the continuance of his Life in this World: And this every Verse and circumstance in the Story do abundantly declare: And further, that the sight of his sins, and the sense of Deaths approach, being not sufficient of themselves to work Faith and Conversion in Him; that therefore God afforded the Spiritual assistance of a Messenger, &c. whose Errand must be supposed to be, to discover and press upon his Soul, such things as are most perswasive, and productive to draw on true Faith and Repentance in him: And those things, or motives, we know are such as belong to the other World, after Death and mainly of Hell that follows it: Rev. 6. 8. Which all that die in their sins, will immediately be carried into, when they turn not from them: This Messenger also by declaring, and laying open the rich mercies that are in God, gives him Hopes, not of recovery only out of sickness, but teacheth him to pray unto God, as v. 26. for Pardon and Forgive-

Book 8 ness of his Sins, deliverance from Hell, acceptation of his Person, and seeing Gods face: And had there not been this use of such a Soul-messenger, to Instruct, Guide and Direct him, in these great concerns of his Soul; a Physitian, or worker of Miracles, that could have raised the sick, had been more useful and proper to have been sent, than such an Interpreter, if restoring unto Natural Light only had been All the intent; Nor are the simple concerns of this Life, as deliverance from Bodily Death, and bestowing Temporal Blessings of this Life, without the mixture of the Motives from, and knowledg of the things of the other, sufficient to work Spiritual Conversion, Faith and Repentance in Men, which were wrought in this Man here: And which serve not only for such low things, as those of this World are, but for the great Grace things of the other World, Pardon of Sin, Acceptation of our Persons into and Favour: For Pardon of Sins is that special Mercy, that great Grace and Spiritual Blessing appertaining to the other Wold: Eph. 1. 7. In whom we have Redemption through his Blood, the forgiveness of Sins, according to the riches of his Grace. And therefore it is not Bodily Life only, or Bodily Death simply, that are ultimately here intended, in those words with which he concludes, v. 39, 40. Lo all these things worketh God oftentimes with Man, to bring back his Soul from the Pit, to be enlightned with the light of the Living: And altho' it often falls out, that together with Pardon of Sins, &c. God vouchsafes a present deliverance from Bodily Death, and from out of such or such a Sickness; and that thro' Christs Ransom; yet they are but some small things added, as Christs word is, and cast into the bargain, which is therefore mentioned v. 25. Then shall his Flesh come as the Flesh of a Child, &c. yet this were but a small thing, and for a Moment: But that God should produce, and bring forth his hidden Treasures, and alledg that infinite price of Redemption laid down for Mens Souls, when it is so rarely spoken of in the Old Testament, upon occasion of delivering a Man only from Sickness, &c. this holds no Decorum, or proportion: That had been a light thing, as Christ in the Prophet speaks, of the reward of his Redemption; but to be delivered from Sin, and Sins infinite in their Weight, and infinite in Number, to be delivered from Hell, and Eternal Death; to be discharged at once for Ever, so as never to see Death, nor set a foot in the Pit, not to enter into Condemnation; (and he that undertook for, and paid this price, and knew best the estimate of both, thus sets out this Deliverance and Redemption purchased to Believers, and promised from the time of their Regeneration, that he that Believes in me shall never dye, John 11.) This is something indeed, this is a Redemption some way Worthy of, that is, Suitable and Answerable to so great a Ransom, and Worthy of such a mention, so rare, and so unwonted.

And then by that other Phrase, to be enlightned with the light of the Living, is meant, that through those Gracious workings upon the Soul, God gives, and brings a Man into the light of Life Eternal, which is begun here, and with which a Man is enlightned at first Conversion, and thereby brought into a New World, and to see the Kingdom of God: Arise from the Dead, and Christ shall give thee Light: They do therefore very ill, that would limit these Phrases, and the issues of these workings, to be a temporal Deliverance, (and that only) and restoring a penitent Sinner to Natural Life. And therefore many Interpreters, that seem to verge that way, interpose and inject in their Expositions of these Phrases, à morte utraque, from both Deaths; or à morte æterna, from Eternal Death: And cannot forbear to do it, though literally they expound them otherwise. Thus much for the Conviction of Sin, and of the Soul thus prepared and humbled, and chastened for his Sin (as in verse 19.) which word signifies also, instructed: for his chastising thus even to Death, helps forward the instructing Man in these things.

* Mercer on the 30th verse: Piscator on verse 24. Redimeeum, id est, a morte æterna: Calvin. on v. 18. He pulleth back from the Grave or Pit, these words (says he) concerns not only Bodily Death, but by a Similitude: The Everlasting Damnation, is termed here a Grave or Pit: And in his 125th Sermon, interpreting that of verse 24. Deliver him from the Pit. The case here standeth not only upon Temporal Death, but upon Damnation: And thus divers others.

I come to the Second work: To effect which indeed, is the main errand of this Interpreter: To whom God had committed the word of Reconciliation of such a Soul to God, and here his part begins, and Gods effectual working therewith. Chap. 3

Verse 23. If there be a Messenger with him, an Interpreter one of a Thousand, to shew unto Man his Uprightness.

I will Analise the words into these parts, or Heads.

1. I will consider what kind of Person this Messenger is, with some Observations thereupon. 'Tis a fond, and utterly unwarranted Interpretation, that it should be some good Angel sent from Heaven, as Mercer mislead by his Jewish Rabbies, would put this upon; to whom I refer the Reader: For that which follows will not agree therewith, as not to say of an Angel sent from Heaven, he is one of a Thousand; for in comparison unto what other Angels is it, that this is spoken? To be sure not of Devils, the Destroyers. It were a dishonour to any of these Elect Angels, to have any comparison made with them, to set forth their Excellencies thereby; and if with others, the Good, certainly any one of those glorious Creatures coming with a message from God, would have had the same Efficacy on this mans Heart, and would have been sufficient, if that had been the meaning: Nor do we find that God used in those times their Ministry to convert, and to work saving Faith in any, though with other messages they were intrusted: They gave the Law, but that is the ministration of Death: No, God hath betrusted the Ministry of Reconciliation unto us men, and not Angels: Much less not to be Mediators between God and Souls; and to present their prayers to God, or to be employed to carry news of their Faith and Repentance, that thereupon God should then say to that Angel, Deliver Him, I have found a Ransom, as these Interpreters would have it. But men eminently Holy, or else Prophets, Teachers, and Instructers of others, employed by God for the Conversion and Salvation of Souls, are styled Angels: That is, Gods messengers: Thus in the Old Testament, John the Baptist, Mal. 3. 1. And indeed the whole Tribe of Levi, the Priesthood, To whom was betrusted by Covenant (Mal. 25.) the Law of God, the Conversion of Souls, v. 6. [He] or the whole Fraternity of them are styled the Angel (as here) or the Messenger of the Lord, v. 7. In the New, the Ministers, or Bishops of those seven Churches are so dignified. And Souls that are truly wrought upon by them, do reverence them as an Angel of God: As the Apostle, Gal. 4. 14. And these are callled Angels, or Messengers, because sent by God to work Faith in men: As Rom. 10. 15. How shall they preach, except they be sent: As it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of Peace, and bring glad Tidings of good things.

By an Interpreter is meant an Expounder of Gods Mind and Will, in this Covenant of Grace, touching mens Salvation, and of the Way to be taken by man for the obtaining it: To shew unto man his Uprightness, is the matter of the message here. And he is one of a thousand who is able to reveal the things of God touching mans Salvation, and give right Directions unto such disconsolate Souls, that are unfeigned, and taken quite off from all their false Supports and Confidences, and their ignorant carnal pleas that their Estates were good and blessed; to settle such Souls upon a right, sound, and new Basis, and bottom of unhinged Faith, and thorough Repentance; this is not every mans skill, that yet is learned in many other great mysteries; but of one who is experimentally versed in Soul-work; to whom God hath given the Tongue of the Learned, to speak a word in season, unto him that is weary, and hit his Case and Condition home, and speak to his Heart, and apply the word aright; and whose Spirit Gods Presence accompanieth with the power and Spirit of the Gospel: Such an one is One of a Thousand: He that converteth Souls is wise, Prov. 10.

Obs. 1. That Natural Knowledge, though improved and quickened to the height, is not sufficient to be effectual to work Regeneration in men. The Inhabitants of those Countries where Job and Elihu lived, were the most raised in Natural Knowledge, participating of all what their bordering Neighbours of Caldæa, Egypt, and Phœnicia had: Witness the many golden Sands and Oar of such Knowledge, dispersed and inserted up and down in this Book: This raised these Indwellers in those Regions, to a greater height than Greece, which lighted their Candles with the Light of these: Likewise that natural knowledge these had, though impregnated, and actuated to the height, by the apparent approach of Death, when Conscience is awakened, when sin that lay at the door, as a Dog asleep, comes in and takes a man by the Throat; when the Iniquity of a mans heels dos compass him about, as the Psalmist speaks, and the other World is near to view, and but as the Land that is on the other side of a narrow River; yet all these were not found sufficient savingly to work in any of them: It may conduce to convince, as such apprehensions did the Jaylor: Acts 16. But the work stays there, yea turns into despair, if there be not a Messenger, an Interpreter of Gods mind from Heaven, and he one of a Thousand too, to shew to man his Uprightness, the right way of Salvation, which Natural Light is utterly ignorant of; so far as may effectually bring men into Gods Favour, the State of Grace: There must be a Revelation for this; a shewing it to a man, by a farther means than Nature: Job himself had in a large Harangue discoursed this, in chap. 28. throughout: In the midst of which he cries out, v. 12. But where shalt Wisdom be found? true Wisdom, The fear of the Lord, as he expounds himself, v. last: (by which Eulogy that Religion which only is saving, was still signified under the Old Testament.) And v. 20, 21. Whence then cometh Wisdom? And where is the place of understanding? Seeing it is hid from the Eyes of all the Living, and kept close from the Fowls of the Air: It is God alone that understandeth the way thereof: v. 23. that invented it of old, v. 27. Then did he see it, and declare it; He prepared it, yea and searched it out: (He searched it out, and prepared it for them that love Him:) And no man knows it, so as to be saved by it, but that man to whom He reveals it: God said unto man, &c. v. last.

Obs. 2. We see God used then the Ministry of man; that is, of men that are Interpreters of Gods mind, to open and declare his Will: Teachers of Righteousness: As Noah is called a Preacher of Righteousness, afore the Flood: And the like we see hereafter continued, and to be the ordinary Converters of Souls; and the Word, the means of Conversion: Psal. 19. 7. The Law of the Lord is perfect, converting the Soul; the Testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple: And the same Course he continueth to this day, to work saving Faith in men: Rom. 10. 14, 15. How shall they then call on him, in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a Preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? Conversion was the same then, that now; and his ordination of Instruction from the Word by mans ministry, is the same. And the Apostle there concludes, v. 17. So then, Faith cometh by hearing; and hearing by the Word of God: That is, by the Appointment of God.

2. I come to the Matter of the Message it self, the discovery of which is used as the means of this mans Salvation and Conversion: It is summ'd up in one word, (as the Apostle speaks of the Law, Gal. 5. 14.) to shew to man his Uprightness: Which is no other than the word of Reconciliation under the new (2 Cor. 5. 19.) Revealing both on Gods part, How he comes to be reconciled to us; to wit, God was in Christ reconciling the World to himself, by making Christ Sin for us; And on our part, How we are reconciled to God, by laying hold on this by Faith, that thereby we might be made the Righteousness of God in him: And therewith turning unto God, out of love wrought by Faith, apprehending that Righteousness: These words, to shew to man his Uprightness, comprehending both these, were the message committed to this Interpreters Trust; even as the word of Reconciliation under the New, is unto ours, in these expressions, The word of Truth, the Gospel of Salvation:

vation: Eph. 1. 13. By which word, God out of his own will, doth beget all, that are begotten of Him; Jam. 1. 18. This one word, [man his uprightneſs,] comprehends both: And indeed thoſe in the Old Teſtament were ſaved, by the ſame Grace of the Lord Jeſus; (though darkly, and afar off revealed) as we under the New, (Acts 15. 11.) And the ſhewing this, for the ſubſtance of it, (which is the Old Teſtament phraſe, here and elſewhere alſo) tho in a more obſcure manner; and mans hearing, and cloſing with it, and obeying of this meſſage, was that which ſaved them then; as well as the clearer Revelation of it (which is the New Teſtament Phraſe,) doth us now. Chap. 3

The great enquiry then muſt be, what is to be underſtood by mans Uprightneſs; the hearing of which ſhewn, and declared to him by this Interpreter, and this ſick mans Soul cloſing with, and obeying of it, then ſaved him: What that is, the Papiſts carry it to a mans own merits; Our latter proteſtant Interpreters unto that duty on mans part, conſiſting in Faith and Repentance, and upright walking: But Calvin in his Sermons on Job, publiſh'd in French the year afore his Death, hath clearly and fully pitcht it on the Righteouſneſs of Juſtification; whereby God pardoning our ſins, accepts us for Righteous for his Sons ſake, and through his Ranſom and Redemption: This is the Righteouſneſs, (ſays he) which is ſpoken of in this place: Thus, in Sermon 126, and again in Sermon 127; his reaſon is, becauſe Elihu ſpeaks it "Of a wretched "Creature in trouble, that feels Gods Wrath and Vengeance; and there is "no way to comfort him but this; that it is, not that men are Righteous in "themſelves, or that they are able to ſtand before God; But that this Righ- "teouſneſs is that whereby God buryeth all their ſins in the Blood of Jeſus "Chriſt: And the ſhewing man his Righteouſneſs, is his ſhewing good remedy "for us to be diſcharged of the Bond of Death, wherein we were bound: "Which Remedy is, to put our whole truſt in the Death and Paſſion of our "Lord Jeſus: Thus He: I join to him John Cotton; (an Interpreter one of a thouſand;) in thoſe imperfect Notes of Expoſition, on the 1 Epiſtle of John, upon thoſe words chap. 2. 29. [If ye know that He is Righteous]" A ground "(ſays he) of wonderful Conſolation, to every poor Soul that is burthened "with his own unrighteouſneſs: This comfort Elihu gives to a man in ex- "tremity of Body and Soul; Job. 33. 23. to declare where his Righteouſneſs "is to be found: That is, it is not to be found in himſelf: God will ſay of "ſuch a Soul, Deliver him from going into the Pit; I have found a Ranſom: I forbear to mention others, who ſpeak near to this: But of late Mr. Caryl, in his compleat and accurate Comment on that Book on theſe words, doth ultimately come fully up to the Righteouſneſs of Juſtification chiefly; (as his word is,) though he takes in the whole of a mans Duty, in all other parts of Uprightneſs in Himſelf.

And I like well enough, and exclude not any part of the Duty of Uprightneſs on a mans part towards God: For unto Juſtification by Chriſts Righteouſneſs, Faith, or an act of cloſing with it, and relyance upon it, for a mans particular Juſtification, is neceſſary: Which is the duty of man: And yet requiſite on mans part to his Juſtification. Though as ſuch, Juſtification it ſelf is not attributed unto it; otherwiſe then in reſpect unto Chriſt its object, and as apprehended by it: And as for Repentance, and mans turning to God, in his firſt Converſion, and his future obedience, that I acknowledge to be intended alſo; provided that this Righteouſneſs on God's and Chriſts part, for juſtifying a Sinner, be firſt ſerved, according to the merit thereof; and the ſole Honour thereof in juſtifying, be kept inviolable in the prerogative thereof: And then I take both in; although theſe two be different Righteouſneſs; Becauſe the Holy Ghoſt chooſing out but one word to expreſs the whole errand, and matter of this Interpreters exhortation, that came to inſtruct him in what was neceſſary to his Salvation: It was meet it ſhouldbe ſuch an one as was moſt comprehenſive: And therefore we are to involve all that may any way be juſtly underſtood and ſignified thereby, and are conſiſtent together: The word Righteouſneſs being uſed to expreſs both Chriſts Righteouſneſs, viz. made ours by Faith only,

Book 8 and our own Righteouſneſs inherent alſo, and both requiſite to, and concurrent in Converſion, though in various ways, and to differing purpoſes, and Converſion being the Subject of Elihu's Diſcourſe, it is appoſite to take in both.

I begin firſt to ſhew, that the Righteouſneſs of Juſtification through Chriſts Righteouſneſs, is here intended; and this may ſeveral ways appear out of the Text.

1. Uprightneſs, or Rectitude (which Piſcator ſays, ought to be retained, and Vatablus ſo renders it) are all one with Righteouſneſs, in Scripture Phraſe, Eccleſ. 7. laſt. God made Man Upright, that is, Righteous, and ſo here, only there it is uſed to expreſs the Righteouſneſs of Man in his firſt Creation, whoſe Righteouſneſs of Juſtification, and of Holineſs, was but one ſingle Righteouſneſs, and the whole of it was in himſelf; but herein Job is ment, the Righteouſneſs of Man fallen, with which he muſt appear afore Gods Tribunal; and which muſt be the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt alone: And indeed that Righteouſneſs in verſe 26. that flows, and Uprightneſs here, are in Elihu's intention one and the ſame, appears by comparing both Verſe 23, and 26. what is Man his Uprightneſs in verſe 23. is in verſe 26. Man his Uprightneſs, the thing is the ſame, though the words are not the ſame, ſo then Righteouſneſs it is.

2. This muſt be underſtood to be ſuch a Righteouſneſs, as this ſick ſinful dying Man, might with boldneſs appear afore God withal, at the Bar of his ſtrict Juſtice and Judgment; it muſt alſo be a Righteouſneſs which this Sick Man lays hold of, when now he is made ſenſible of his Sin, the Hainouſneſs, the Multitudes of them, and of Hell the Deſert of them, which he ſees he can no way eſcape by himſelf, or any thing in himſelf, he looks to Dye, and expects no other, and then follows Judgment; and where ſhall ſuch a Righteouſneſs be found, to come afore God with? Not any Righteouſneſs of a Man's own. Phil. 3. either paſt, (for in Unregeneracy a Man hath nothing but Unrighteouſneſs,) or preſent, [that is, his preſent Repentance] or to come, that is his filial Obedience: No, David cuts off all Pleas, Pſal. 143 2. Enter not into Judgment with thy Servant, for in thy ſight ſhall no Man living be Juſtified, no none of his beſt, and deareſt Servants dare venture, or ſtand at that Bar, in their own Obedience, nor Righteouſneſs, either at or after Converſion; and yet appear before God they muſt, and be Juſtified by ſome ſuch Righteouſneſs, or they will be Condemned, and where ſhall ſuch a Righteouſneſs be found, as Job ſays of Wiſdom? No where but in Chriſt, to be prehended, and pleaded by Faith, looking out of a Mans ſelf to Chriſt as a Saviour for Righteouſneſs, and Juſtification thereby: Theſe are expreſs in Iſaiah, ſpeaking of Chriſt, Chap. 41. A juſt God, and a Saviour, there is none beſide me, verſe 21. There is no Saviour but me, and therefore look unto me (alone) and be ſaved all ye ends of the Earth, for I am God, and there is none beſides me, verſe 22. And this is our Chriſt, as appears by what follows, verſe 23. I have Sworn by my ſelf, that unto me every Knee ſhall Bow, and every Tongue ſhall Swear, which is punctually applied to Chriſt, and that twice in the New Teſtament, Rom. 14. 10. We ſhall all ſtand before the Judgment Seat of Chriſt, (to be Juſtified namely (as was ſaid) or Condemned) For it is Written, every Knee ſhall Bow to me, &c. And again, Phil. 2. 10, 11. this as diſtinct from the Father is ſpoken of there, That at the Name of Jeſus every Knee ſhould Bow, and that every Tongue ſhould Confeſs, that Jeſus Chriſt is Lord, to the Glory of God the Father; and what both in this World and at the Judgment Seat, ſhall the Righteous confeſs, for their Righteouſneſs, the Prophet goes on to tell you, verſe 24. ſurely ſhall one ſay, (all Men ſhall not ſay this, though all ſhall Bow, &c.) In the Lord I have Righteouſneſs, and Strength, and to him ſhall Men come (for both theſe) verſe 25. Will you have it yet plainer? In the Lord ſhall all the Seed of Iſrael be Juſtified, and ſhall Glory: Now here is a Meſſenger One of a Thouſand, from God, on purpoſe to ſhew a poor Wretch, wherein the Righteouſneſs of fallen Man doth lie. And what other Righteouſneſs can he alledge, and produce to make void that Caveat and Bar put in againſt him, (when ever he comes afore Gods Judgment Seat,) and all Men living, yea againſt the beſt Servants God ever had on Earth, which he finds written over the Door of that Court, at the very Entrance: Enter not into Judgment, Oh Lord. Seconded with this as the unalterable Ground thereof: Cursed is he that continues not in all things to do them; now wherewith shall the Clamours that his Soul is filled withal be quieted, but by this Perfect and Alone Righteousness of Christs; currant (we see by Isaiah,) under the Old Testament, Gods Free Grace accepting it for this Man, without works; but now the Righteousness of God, without the Law is Manifested, (Rom. 3. 21.) Being witnessed by the Law and the Prophets, and one of these Prophets that Testifies to, is this Elihu, and that in this very Speech of his in Job; who Testifies it with the rest, Even the Righteousness of God, which is by Faith of Jesus Christ, unto all, and upon all them that Believe, for there is no difference; verse 22. that 'tis said [but Now] is manifest in verse 21. respects the times of the New Testament, when this is most broadly and openly, and clearly Revealed, but was darkly afore, and whispered in the times of the Law, and the Prophets: And as in the dark was yet catcht hold of by Souls that were saved; 'twas the currant Righteousness among the Godly then; one and the same Righteousness, and but one and the same both in the Old and the New: so as we may conclude, that this Messenger had not deserved the Character of One of a Thousand, or of some Prophet, (by which Interpreters frequently notifie him,) had he not mentioned, and spoken of this Righteousness above all, he had otherwise fallen short of his Undertaking, to relieve this forlorn Soul, if this had been left out. Chap. 3

As the Nature, Necessity and Reason of the matter, or thing it self, and these Circumstances touching the Person in the Text, even now specified, requireth this Interpretation; so Three Words there are, and Three Sayings spoken of in the Text, which duely Examin'd in the Reference, or Aspect, which those Speeches of them do cast one upon the other, will prove them to be one and the same thing; and that thing to be Christs Ransom, and our Righteousness of Justification thereby: And so as if one of the Three prove to be Christs Righteousness and Redemption, then the other Two also are to be understood to be the same, and all one thereupon. These Three Words or Things spoken of, are, 1. Man his Uprightness. 2. Ransom. 3. Man his Righteousness. The Three Things or Sayings spoken of them, are, 1. [To shew] to Man his Uprightness, in verse 23. which is done by the Messenger and Interpreter, and with that Sentence he begins the round to the other Two. 2. Christs Ransom, or Price of Redemption found by God, and the Saying, or Sentence concerning this, is Gods [he (himself) says] I have found] a Ransom, verse 24. and owneth it to be a Satisfactory Ransom for Righteousness, for and unto that Man; and herein himself doth Second, and verifie that word spoken by his Messenger, who had shewn the Man that a Righteousness there was to be found with God, for Man fallen; and together therewith a Righteousness which might be obtained by this Man, if he would seek out for it; which Righteousness having been first laid open by the Messenger, God himself Seconds him in it, and explains to be a Ransom of Redemption, which himself hath found. 3. There is to Man his Righteousness rendered, verse 26. and the Saying or Thing spoken thereof, is Elihu's, uttered of God, For he will [render] to Man his Righteousness: But still uttered of this same God, who in those words afore had himself said, I have found a Ransom; and Elihu hereupon says, For he renders, or gives it forth to whom it belongs as his due upon his Conversion, and laying hold upon it, and renders it as his due, which cannot be with-held from him. So then in reality these Three are One and the same thing put into Three distinct words; Uprightness, Ransom, Righteousness; and these Sentences about them, do in their mutual Aspects and References one to another, agree in one, and utter this Harmonious sound joyntly, That Man's Righteousness for his Justification, is Christs Ransom, and Redemption, at least it is included, and aimed at in them all, though Uprightness, verse 23. and Righteousness, verse 26. may perhaps secondarily involve something on our parts besides it.

1. They are One: This is Proved by parts. 1. That Uprightness, [shewn] to that poor Man, verse 23. is one with Righteousness [rendred] verse 26. not

Book 8 only because Uprightness is used to express Righteousness, (which was afore observed) but that Addition in both places of [to Man his] Righteousness, and [shew [to Man his] Uprightness,] thus set to both, doth apparently argue them to be one thing in Elihu's Intention, for that addition is appropriative to Man, and as distinguishing it from the Righteousness of Angels. 2. That middle word, a Ransom, is as plainly comprehended in that of Uprightness, shewn by the Messenger, verse 22. for these words, I have found a Ransom, are not only Gods own verifying, and acknowledgment that he had indeed found, as this Messenger had told him that God had favour to him, and shewn the Man that it was to be found with God, and to be had from him for his Deliverance and Salvation; but in this return and Answer of Gods upon it, God particularizeth more distinctly what manner of thing, that Righteousness whereby Man is saved and delivered, is; 'tis a Deliverance by way of Ransom, a Redemption of him from Sin, Hell and the Grave, procured by a price of Redemption laid down for him by another, whom he procured to lay it down for him; Christ is made Sin, that we might be made the Righteousness of God in him; and by calling it a Ransom he beats Man off from vain imagination of his own Righteousness, for that is no where called a Ransom; no, the Redemption of the Soul is more precious than so, as the Psalmist speaks; no, it was so far from that Dream, that such way by Ransom at the full Rate and Quantum of it, as should satisfie for Sin, could never have entred into a Sinners Heart or thought to perform; 'twas past his finding out, as the Aspect intimates: But [I] (says God) have found this Ransom, and therefore give me the Glory of that. God was the Founder, or Procurer, and Christ the Finder, as we use to speak of the Price as paid in another: And then this middle Word and Speech, for I have found a Ransom, hath such a Correspondency with the Third and last Word, and Sentence of the Three, that shews that Ransom placed in the middle of the other Two, to be included in that Righteousness specified at the close spoken by Elihu upon it; He shall render, &c. and refers clearly to Gods saying, I have found; and is but as if he had said, that God had found it for that Man as a Price pay'd for him by another Redeemer, which God will surely render and give forth to that Man; and that otherwise God should retain from Man, that which himself acknowledgeth is the Mans; now this Ransom is that which God acknowledgeth he had found for him, in verse 24. and Elihu in the 26 verse, calls that which God renders to Man, The Man's Righteousness, and therefore Ransom and Righteousness are one also.

The other Instance I shall give of a Converted Souls having a sight and sense of Sin, is the Conversion of the Apostle Paul.

There are many Accounts of it of several kinds, the History of it in the Book of the Acts, related Two or Three several times, the infinite Riches of Grace that were in it. 1 Tim. 1. The work of Faith and Love wrought in him thereby toward Jesus Christ at his first turning, also in his being delivered from the power of the Law, and Married to Christ in Rom. 7. with a Narration of his Humiliation for Sin, which in him was a saving Work, in Rom. 7. verse 4, 5. he there involving his own Example, when he was in the Flesh, verse 5, 6. and from verse 7th of that Chapter and so on, he professedly applies it unto his own Conversion, and again the same, Gal. 2. 19, 20. For I through the Law am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God. I am Crucified with Christ: Nevertheless I Live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me, and the Life which I now live in the Flesh, I live by the Faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me.

The only Question that I know may be rais'd, is, Whether these words, I am dead to the Law by the Law, which are spoken of the work of Humiliation in him at Conversion, be to be understood of a saving sanctifying work begun to be wrought in him, yea or no; now that it was part of a work of that kind, is clear by the ninth verse, where that he speaks of that work which was the beginning of his Conversion out of Unregeneracy, is evident; for (says he) was alive without the Law once. Thoſe words note the whole time of his Unregeneracy, which he had liv'd in until this turn, unto which thoſe other words v. 19. I am dead by the Law to the Law, do refer, alive before once, but now dead; his death and his life muſt be meaſur'd to be of one and the ſame kind of Life and Death. Now the Life he had before was an Opinion of himſelf to have been alive by the works of the Law, and the Death he mentions muſt be from the contrary apprehenſion which did ſtrike him dead in his Spirit. And 2dly, during his former time, when he ſpeaks of that Once he ſays, he was without the Commandment, Rom. 7.9. I was alive without the Law once, but when the Commandment came, ſin reviv'd and I died. How was Paul without the Law in that former time of his, but in this reſpect, that that which was the Soul and Spirit of the Law he was wanting in, he had not the due apprehenſion and right Knowledge of it, ſo that he reckoned as not the Law, all that he apprehended about it in the time of his Phariſaiſm: He ſays, he had liv'd without Law all that time, who yet had been ſo zealous for the Law, as elſewhere you read: but he wanted the true Soul and Spirit of it, which makes it the Law; he tells us in the 7th verſe, I had not known ſin but by the Law, for I had not known Luſt unleſs the Law had ſaid, Thou ſhalt not Covet; for the Knowledge of this inward Corruption, was that which killed him, and he calls it the Law. I had not known ſin (ſays he) but by the Law, but by the light of thisone Notion let into his Soul, he now ſaw, looking back upon his former Eſtate, this inbred ſin inherent in his own Nature, had taken occaſion by the Commandment, and had wrought in him all manner of Concupiſence; for without the Law ſin was dead. And 3dly, I call this ſight of ſin, as it had been, wrought in himſelf, the Spirit of the Law; for in the 14th verſe, he ſays, We know that the Law is ſpiritual, but I am carnal, ſold under ſin, even after he was converted. He ſpeaks this of himſelf after his Converſion, and he ſpeaks the ſame of the Law at the 10th verſe, of that Law, the Knowledge whereof he now had, and not before; wherefore the Law is holy, and the Commandment holy, which had diſcover'd Luſt to be ſin to be Sin, to him; and the knowledge of this Law was that which did convert him, that ſtruck him dead, and put him out of his jolly Life he had led, which was from the thought and apprehenſions that he ſhould have been juſtify'd by the outward performance of the Law, in which he was deceived. And ſo the Commandment which was ordained to Life, (ſays he) I found to be but unto Death, and this was effected in him, when the Commandment came; that is, that which was in the true light of it, the Commandment it ſelf, that never came before, and ſo ſin reviv'd, like the Snake in the Fable, that was brought in benumm'd with cold, but laid by the fire, the heat reviv'd it: And I died, ſays he, ſin reviv'd, and ſtung me to Death, and this ſin, he afterwards tells us was that ſin that dwelt in him, v. 20. that ſin that dwelleth in me, which cauſeth me to do that which I would not, and is oppos'd by another ſelf oppoſite thereto: In reſpect whereof he ſays, it is no more I that do it, which oppoſes the corrupt ſelf in me, which he calls ſin that dwelleth in me, v. 20.

Chap. 3

From hence I gather, That a true and ſpiritual ſight of Luſt to be ſin mingling it ſelf with all a mans ways, is from a Spirit of Holineſs begun to be wrought in the mind. For ſuch a Light as this was Paul's, wrought in the entrance into his Converſion, and ſuch muſt therefore be the light in any one that hath it, and true Converſion follows upon it, as it did in Paul: And I give this reaſon for it, That out of that Principle, by which we ſee the ſpiritual evil of ſin, whereof this was the Light that gave the Knowledge of it, it is that any man ſees the Spiritual good, in oppoſition to Luſt, to be in him. For as the ſame viſive Faculty in man, the ſame Eye whereby a man diſcerns one contrary, it alſo diſcerns the other, as the ſame eye that ſees White, alſo diſcerns what is Black; or e contra: So the ſame Light that diſcerns Grace in the ſpiritual Nature of it, diſcerns Sin, and on the contrary in like manner. And this principle the Apoſtles Diſcourſe in this Chapter clearly runs upon.

CHAP. IV.

The Uſe and ſubſervience of Conviction of Sin, and Humiliation for it, to induce the Soul to believe on Jeſus Chriſt for Salvation.

I Shall now give you an Account of Conviction of Sin and Humiliation, not in the General only, but of every particular mentioned: To let you ſee the reaſon, the uſe they ſerve to, viz. To advance God himſelf as mans chiefeſt good, and to ſet up Chriſt, and his Righteouſneſs, and his own Free Grace, in juſtifying, ſanctifying, and in all.

Firſt, That the Soul ſhould be wounded with ſin as ſin, and as in it ſelf the greateſt miſery, to what a bleſſed End tends it!

1. By this work of Humiliation, the Heart is for ever weaned from the comfort that is in ſin, or in any Creature, ſo as never to be quiet till it meets with God, the God of comforts. For if this apprehenſion, that Sin is the greateſt Evil, ſeaſon but a mans Spirit once, it ſowers all pleaſent things with him, they have loſt their Taſt for ever: And nothing can be ſo Good to him as ſin is evil, but only God: For nothing is ſo good as ſin is evil, but only he; and then a man will take God and his Favour for a comfort alone; all he can ever look for, or hope to find, it muſt be in him: his comfort in ſin and all things elſe, is everlaſtingly ſpoyled and marr'd: ſo Hoſ. 2. 14. when God would allure and win his Churches Heart to him, what doth he? He brings her into the Wilderneſs, into a barreneſs of all Comforts, and then ſpeaks comfortably to her. A man convinc'd of ſin and loſt ſtate, is like a man condemned to die, the pleaſure which may be had in the green Paſture he goes through to execution, affects him not; ſo, nor can this man take content in any thing till he hath the favour of that God he hath offended, God only can ſpeak comfort to ſuch a Soul, and nothing elſe.

And 2*dly*, Hereby it is made reſtleſs after Chriſt and his Righteouſneſs, as the means of bringing him into Favour with God; if it were Wrath, or trouble of Conſcience thereby, were all his Grief, Eaſe would content him; but it being Sin, nothing but Chriſt and his Righteouſneſs will do it: As the Hart wounded, reſts not till it comes to ſuch an Herb as cures it; ſo nor he that is wounded, can take delight in any thing, till he ſpies Chriſt out, and Sighs and Pants inceſſantly after him.

2. For a man to ſee himſelf an Unbeliever and without Faith, without Chriſt; it is alſo exceeding neceſſary. John 16. v. 10.

1. Becauſe it tends to bring in the guilt of all his ſins upon him, to ſerve the inqueſt againſt him; for when the Conſcience is charged with Oaths, Adulterys, &c. it pleads a preſumpteous ſinners pretenſions of a Believer, I am in Chriſt, and I believe, and ſo ſin cannot faſten on him, but he puts it off and ſlights it, and walks, outfacing it and all its Bills; but when he is convinced of unbelief, which is the Protector of all ſin, then every Commandment may bring out its Bill and be heard, and ſerve a Writ upon him; convince him of this, and you convince him of all.

2. Becauſe they may be convinced what is the main thing neceſſary, and the firſt thing they are to do, the next courſe they are to take; for if men ſhould not be convinced of Unbelief as the great Sin of all the reſt, they would not be pitcht upon Faith as the only and full Remedy of their Evil, hereby they ſee the neceſſity of Faith, the ſtead it muſt ſtand them in, and their aim will be to get it.

And 3*dly*. Hereby, and for want of Faith, ſeeing themſelves out of Chriſt, they will be pitcht upon what is the eſpecial aim of Faith, Union with him, as the Foundation of all good they muſt receive from him. Many being humbled for want of Duties, pitch upon performing them, and so are eased; but when Unbelief is the main Sin, and want of Union with Christ the greatest misery, then union with him is the first aim of Faith, and the Soul is convinced that it must have his person, as Paul, Phil. 3. that I may win Christ; and then have Righteousness and all else: I must believe, and I must have Christ, or nothing is accepted, says the Soul; then Chap. 4

4. By seeing a mans self to have been an ungodly person, and to have done no good, and by seeing the Inwards of actions, and the carriage of the Heart in them, the Soul is convinced that this is true: That no good thing dwells in a man, and this moves the Soul to go to Christ both for Justification and Sanctification, and without it a man is in danger to err in both.

For 1. If he sees not that there is no good in him, he will certainly trust in himself, and not go wholly to Christ for Righteousness; if it hath any of its own, it will trust partly in Christ, and partly in it self: And like the Ship in the Acts, be part aground, and part in the water, and so be broken apieces when the Waves of Temptation come: Go to the first working of Faith, God will have a Man apprehend himself an ungodly person: Rom. 4. 5. To him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the Ungodly, his Faith is accounted for Righteousness: And after Faith wrought, though a man sees some good wrought in him, yet it hinders not his attributing all to Christ in Justification: Yet in the first working of Faith, it's clean otherwise upon a different Reason: For that good which is wrought after Faith, is wrought by Faith that fetcht all from Christ: And so Sanctification, being but borrowed by Faith, hinders not Faith; The Daughter hinders not the Mother: But if a man should see any good before, it being not wrought by Faith, nor fetcht from Christ, the Heart would rest in it, and oppose the work of Faith and going out to Christ: It being from a mans self, a man would rest in it, and not seek abroad for Righteousness whilst he hath any at home: As any one sin preserves the power of sin in the Heart, though a man parts with all other; so any good or Righteousness ungiven up, preserves self-confidence, and hinders Justification, as the other doth Sanctification. There is no Remedy therefore, but that all our supposed Good be discovered to be Naught and rotten; that every Burrough be stopt e're these poor helpless Creatures will go to the Rock.

2. The want of such Conviction will hinder Sanctification; for it would not renew the man throughout, but piece new Grace to old, false Grace to true, and make the rent worse; for he would rest in some false good. Christ will have all old things pass away, and all to become new; every Stud pull'd down, and nothing in the New Building that was in the Old; yea it hinders Christ from working it. He will shew his Skil in drawing his Image upon a plain Board, and so wipes out all afore. Bring to a curious Painter, that would shew his Skil, a Board with a Picture falsly drawn, and he will not go about to mend it, he can make no work of it, but he will take his Pensil and dash all out, and shew his Art in a New one; and so doth Christ. Bring a Bell to a Founder that hath a Crack in it, and he will not go about to soader that up, and so let it go; but dash all in pieces, and melt and cast it anew; and so doth Christ with those who have the seeming cast of goodness, and that by letting us see the falseness of it: For that is his end in breaking and melting the Heart, to cause us to apprehend all is naught.

3. A mans sight and sense of his utter Sinfulness, both in his Life, Heart and Nature, the multitude of sins, and the strength of sin, is necessary.

1. Because, though God pardons, he will have us know what he pardons. As he, Mat. 18. 23. Though he meant to pardon his Servants, yet would take account of them, that Pardon might be the more sweet to them. When a mans Soul draweth near to the Grave, then for God to say, Deliver him, I have found a Ransom. Job 33. how welcome is it!

2. A sight of sin is needful, to constrain us to make use of Christs Righteousness, and every part of it, to search throughly into it, and every parcel of it, and to see the necessity of all the Holiness of his Nature, Life, &c. that nothing could be spared. Men that are confusedly convinced that they are Sinners, their Book 8 their Faith is answerably as confused, they believe in Christ as a Saviour, and that is all; but their Faith improves not his Righteousness to the uttermost nor do they search into the riches of Christs active and passive Obedience, and the Holiness of his Nature, as necessary to obtain their acceptance with God.

3. It is necessary that we may not rest in a false Sanctification. Men that see but the Corruption of their outward Actions, content themselves with an outward Reformation. But men that see their Lusts, rest not till they be mortified; they bend their Force against them. A convinced Soul sees his Nature corrupted, and the Spring of all defiled, he will not rest till he hath a new Nature; as the power of Corruption he sees lies there, so the power of Godliness he will see lies in cleansing that Fountain. Paul seeing a Law of Death in his Members, rests not till the Law of life in Christ condemns it.

4. A Conviction of our sinfulness is needful, that we may see an utter helplesness and hopelessness in our selves for time to come: The Heart is ready to account it can do something for time to come, though it can do nothing rightly; yea, when it is stript of self Righteousness for time past, yet not self Ability for time to come; but now it thinks and casts with it self, I will go fast, and go Pray, and go Meditate on Christ and a Promise, and I will get him er'e I have done: which Resolutions are good, when in sense of a Mans own emptiness they are stirred up and maintained by a dependance upon God, to work Faith; but the Heart naturally secretly projects this out of it's self, as they in Jam 4. 13. and not if God enable me, &c. They reckon without him; and in hopes of this the Heart rests, and thinks in the end to get Faith to come. Among other steps and degrees of our Misery this is made one, that a Man is not only ungodly, but without strength, Rom. 5. 6. A Man that hath no Money in his Purse, yet whilst he hath Hands to work, he makes no such reckoning of want; and so Men when they see they want all good for the time past, yet they hope to work it out; they have hands left, and with them they fall to work; but when a Man shall see hands cut off too, and nothing but stumps left, which are as unfit and unable to lay hold on Christ, as a Mans Arm without hands is upon a Rope to save him; and God must not only find him Christ, but his Grace must give him hands to lay hold on him also: That the apprehension of this, serves both to drive him out of himself, and to magnifie Gods free Grace in working Faith. For if any pretended power in himself were able to help him, he would never go out of himself to Christ, nor would he attribute all wholly unto Grace, which is that God intends to have exalted; Eph. 2. 13. You are saved by Grace, through Faith: Might some think we shall acknowledge Grace enough, if we acknowledge that Grace pardons all, and effects all, though Faith be of our own working: No, (says the Apostle,) and that not of your selves, not so much as Faith, it is the Gift of God: And so Paul, to magnifie Christ's Grace, He says Christ died not only for men, and ungodly persons, but also for persons without strength, Rom. 5. This you must apprehend and find, and then Grace will be Grace indeed, and nothing but Grace, and then when you despair of your selves, you will rejoice wholly in Christ. What says Paul, Phil. 3? We have no confidence in the Flesh, but despair utterly of all in us, and rejoyce in Christ Jesus, acknowledging that he is all, and doth all. God cures one Contrary by another; Self-confidence cannot be cured but by Despair; God glorifies not, till the Body be dead and rotten in the Grave; and he sanctifies not till the Heart be dead to it self, and unable to stir, to move no more to Christ than the Earth can towards Heaven; if the Sun come nigh it, well and good, but it cannot move nigher to it: Or as Luther compares it, The barren Earth may gape for rain, but it cannot procure it, till Heaven pour it freely down into her lap: And so he calls this Righteousness of Faith, a passive Righteousness, Faith and a meer receiving Grace.

CHAP. V.

In which Answers are given to several Objections made against the Usefulness of Conviction and Humiliation, to bring the Soul to Believe on Christ.

MY next Work is to Answer the Objections and Cavils which Men make against Conviction of, or Humilliation for Sin; not only as Needless, but Dangerous; and that to trouble Mens Consciences for Sin, is to drive them to Despair.

1. They call it a Doctrine teaching men to despair; and that the issue of such troubling tender Consciences is Despair.

2. That Ministers or others who on Mens Death-Beds endeavour to discover to Men that have been Civil or Formal, their Estates, are Miserable Comforters, as Job's Friends were, who would perswade him all was naught.

3. That Mens aim in urging this Work, as first necessary, is by troubling Men's Consciences, to bring them to their bent, and to make them willing to be of their Mind and Faction, to entertain willingly their Dictates and Opinions, and so to Tyrannize over their Consciences.

4. If Men Cavil not at this Work, yet they denie it, cannot see any Reason why it should be so necessary to the power of Godliness: If I acknowledge my self ever to have been a Sinner, and to have failings in all I do, having always believed in Christ, is not this (says they) enough?

Unto the end both to Answer these Cavils, as also to Vindicate the Doctrine the more, I propose these following Assertions.

1. That to bring Men to such Apprehensions as these, is not to bring Men to Despair, but the Contrary. To make this good, we will go over all the particulars.

1. To make Men apprehensive that Sin is the greatest Evil, is not to drive them to Despair: Paul (Rom. 7. 3.) saw it to be above measure sinful, when first Converted, and you can never be enough Convinced of it, nor so much as you should; tho' the sight of it scares you, and fears you; and this you may see without Despair; yea, where that sight is, that Soul shall never Despair; for it directly leads the Soul to Christ, and causeth it to see a Beauty in Grace. If indeed we taught, it were necessary to have such Horror and Anguish of Soul, as Spira had,—or if we endeavoured to make impression of such deep Terrors from the Wrath of God, as Judas and Cain had, then you might have reason to think that this Work tended to Despair, tho' many have had them, and have not Despaired: But we profess that as Ravishing Joy is not necessary and Essential to Faith, so nor deep vexing Gashes and Impressions of Wrath are necessary to Humiliation, tho' they often accompany it; as the one is but the overflow of Faith; so the other of Humiliation: But as to see Christ the greatest good, is Essential to Faith, so to see Sin the greatest Evil, is Essential to Humiliation, and this is the main. The Damned indeed, who are plunged in Wrath in Hell, they Despair thro' Extremity, and Everlastingness of Torment: But they are far from what we urge as requisite to Humiliation, from seeing the Evil of Sin in it self: And as far are they that see Sin as Sin, to be the greatest Evil, from Despair, as the Damned, that feel nothing but Wrath, are from true Humiliation.

Book 8

And 2. If ſome drops of Wrath, and fears of Damnation be mingled with this Cup, yet it is far from Deſpair, for it is a work of the Spirit of God, who before he becomes a Spirit of Adoption to ſave, becomes a Spirit of Bondage to cauſe Men to fear, Rom. 8. 15.

3. To bring Men to apprehend all their Former Eſtate to have been hitherto throughout Sinful and Damnable, and out of Chriſt, is not to bring Men to Deſpair.

For, 1*ſt*, To apprehend that a Man's Perſon is ſimply Damned, this indeed cauſeth Deſpair; but to apprehend that my Perſon is in a Damnable condition, and ſuch as if I remain in, I cannot be ſaved, is far from Deſpair; for Paul apprehended himſelf once a Child of Wrath, as well as others, Eph. 2. 2.

2. To apprehend their condition to be thus, is not to believe that there is no Mercy reſerved for them, or that they are not capable of it; if ſo, then indeed it would make Men Deſpair, but as Peter ſays, 1 Pet. 2. 10. which in time paſt had not obtained Mercy: So to apprehend that as long as I remain in this condition I do not obtain Mercy, is not to Deſpair, but to apprehend the truth: For as it follows there, Thoſe who once had not obtained Mercy, have now obtained Mercy: And ſo we ſay he may obtain Mercy, whoſe condition is moſt Sinful.

Nor 3*d*, To apprehend thy ſelf out of Chriſt in the condition thou art in, is not to Deſpair: For then the Epheſians, when they ſaw their former condition to have been as Eph. 2. 12.) it is ſaid once it was, and who are Exhorted to remember that they were once without Chriſt, and without the Promiſes, ſhould have Deſpaired: But there is yet hope left, for the greateſt Sinners, that for time to come they may be in Chriſt, as thoſe Epheſians after Converſion were. To apprehend that I am abſolutely Excluded from the benefit of Chriſt's Death, that will cauſe Deſpair, but that Humiliation teacheth not. But to apprehend that it is not yet applied to me; that it is as yet to me as if Chriſt had not Died; and if I die in ſuch a condition, I ſhould die in my Sin; this is not to Deſpair.

4. Again, To apprehend my Eſtate to be helpleſs and hopeleſs, in regard of any Duties I have or can perform, or in reſpect of any power in me, or any Creature to help me, is not to deſpair. It is indeed to deſpair of thy ſelf, and all the Creatures, and to have no confidence in the Fleſh; and that is a good deſpair. But to deſpair, is to deſpair of God and his mercy for time to come; to ſay that he will never be merciful, never give me Faith and Chriſt. I may rightly make uſe of that in 2 Cor. 11. 8, 9, 10. to illuſtrate this; which tho' ſpoken in regard of deſpairing of his Natural Life; yet for the ſame reaſon there uſed, will hold good of this deſpair of Eternal Life: We were ſo preſſed, ſays he, that we deſpaired of Life, and had the Sentence of Death in our ſelves ſo far as by any means of our ſelves we could uſe, we ſaw no way but Death: But, ſays Paul, it was that we ſhould not truſt in our ſelves, but in God that raiſeth the Dead: That is, though we deſpaired yet it was not of God's power to help us, but we deſpaired in our ſelves. And thus God deals with men, and dealt with Paul about Eternal Life, he paſſed a Sentence of Death on him, and Paul ſaw no help in himſelf to believe, or come out of his miſery; Rom. 7. 10. I was alive, but when the Commandment came, I died; that is, received the Sentence of Death, and ſaw no way to eſcape it by any thing he could do: This was, that he ſhould not truſt in himſelf; but this was not that he ſhould deſpair of God's ſhewing mercy for time to come.

5. Again, Underſtand aright whence deſpair ariſeth, not from the greatneſs or hainouſneſs of a man's ſins, or inſufficiency of a man to help himſelf; but from ſtubborneſs of Heart not to go out to Chriſt for ſufficiency in him; that is the work of Deſpair: Ye will not come to me that ye may be ſaved, as Chriſt told the Jews.

6. Again, Poor Souls that are in this condition, God hath an eſpecial care of, to keep them from deſpair, when they have renounced themſelves and their former Condition. Tho' their Souls be a Tohu and Bohu, and as that firſt matter, Gen. 1. 2. without form, and ſo of themſelves would ſink into nothing, yet

God's

God's Spirit broods upon it and upholds it: They shall sail between those two Rocks, Blockishness and Despair; so as the convinced Sinner shall be terrified, and yet God will keep him secretly. God hath an especial Eye upon such a Soul: Isa. 66. 2. To this Man will I look, to him that is poor and contrite, and trembleth at my Word; and I will so look to him, as he shall not Despair. Isa. 57. 16. I will not always contend, for the Spirit would fail before me, and I will not suffer it: Tho' he melts it, yet he will not suffer it, when melted, to boil over into the Fire, and to be cast down and spilt into Hell-Fire irrecoverably: No, but tho' he be shut up and sees no help by any thing he can do to get out, Gal. 3. 23. yet he opens a Door of hope, Hos. 2. 15. When the Soul is in the Valley of Achor, of Starving; when Sins fly about a Mans Ears, yet God opens there a Door of Hope. And again, Chap 5.

4. To let Men go on without knowing their Condition, is the way to Despair at last: For when Men come to Die, and then have their Eyes opened, and their Consciences convinced, to see their Estate out of Christ wholly sinful, and themselves not able to lay hold on Christ, or Believe, and that now they have but a few Hours to get Oyl and Grace in, then they Despair indeed. Isa. 51. 11. The Prophet shews that trusting in false Righteousness, sparks of their own kindling, will bring them to Despair in the end, they shall lie down in Sorrow: Whereas, a timely discovery of this, prevents it; gives them time to use their endeavour, and to wait on Christ. To lie at God's Feet, and refer thy self to him, to Damn or Save, is not to Despair, but argues the greatest Ingenuity that may be, and argues some trust and hope in God begun, that a Man will refer himself to him, as David did, 2 Sam. 15. 26. Here I am, if he thus say, I have no Delight in thee, let him do what seemeth good in his Eyes. And whom a Man would choose as an Umpire to cast his Life upon, and to be his Judge, he hath some Confidence in him; this is not Despair.

We come to the Second Cavil, viz. That the Issue of this work in many is Despair, and well nigh undoing themselves.

1. When the Jaylor was humbled for his Sins, he had well nigh kill'd himself; shall we condemn that work was then upon his Heart, that led him to Christ, and brought him to ask, What shall I do to be saved? No.

For 2. Such Stories and Conclusions are the Devils work, to discredit the Work of the Spirit; he enters upon God's Work to spoil it: As when the incestuous Corinthian was Excommunicated, 2 Cor. 2. which was an Ordinance to humble him; Satan was ready to take the Advantage to have swallowed him up of Sorrow, v. 7. And we are not Ignorant, says the Apostle, of his Devices, v. 11. Shall we Condemn that Ordinance because Satan might abuse it? And so shall we decry this work, of humiliation because Satan adds fearful Conclusions to it? There is no work of the Spirit, but he adds false Conclusions to it if he can. If the Spirit Comforts, he endeavours to make the Soul Presumptuous: If he casts into Bondage only, the Devil labours to cast into Despair: But as we may not condemn Assurance, because sometimes it hath such an issue; so, nor Humiliation.

3. If any do Miscarry, they are but such as would ever have Perished whatever course in Preaching had been held.

The Third Cavil is, That when we labour to Humble Men, our aim is only to bring them to our Bent, and so impose on them what we please.

I Answer 1*st*. Then Peter might be charged with the same, when he endeavoured to humble the Jews for their Sin in Crucifying Christ; when he brought them to such a pass, that they being pricked in their Hearts, Cry out, Men and Brethren, what shall we do to be Saved? Acts 2. 37. But Peter's aim was orderly to bring them to sound Repentance, and to Believe in Christ; and that is all that we aim at also, and all the remedy we prescribe. Mark 16. 15. Christ bids them Preach, that he that Belives not, shall be Damned; one part of their Office was to Humble Men, and Discover their Estates out of Christ; and to what End? Mat. 28. 19. you shall find it was to make them Disciples, as the Word signifies; but of whom? Not of themselves, but of Christ, and to bring them to universal obedience, which without this work they will never come to: Teaching them to do whatever I have commanded, v. 20. And as Christ's promise is to be with us to the end of the World, so this must be our course to the end of the World.

And 2dly. If we did indeed, as the Friars of old, who Preached the Law, and stinging mens Consciences, took the advantage of it, to bring the People to Auricular Confession, and get their secret sins out, and so make them obnoxious to them, and then took money for Pardons and Absolutions; and set them about building this Convent and that Convent, for satisfaction: If we did it thus to make a gain of you, as Paul says, 2 Cor. 12. 17. You might suspect us in it. But we speak before God in Christ, we do all things for your edifying, as Paul says, v. 19. It is to set up Christ in your Hearts, that we endeavour to humble you; that you may see your need of him; and that you may see your own Emptiness and his Fulness, to make him precious to you, and to drive your Souls to him, and to bring every thought into the Obedience of Christ; to make you sensible of sin, that you may make Conscience of it, and know what Christ hath done for you. And if the Duties that are required be not Duty, the sins discovered be not proved to be sins, your Humiliation will not bring you to make conscience of them: It is our Masters advantage, and your Edifying, is our Aim; we seek not yours, but you.

And 3dly, If we were minded to gain a party out of the World, and to gain your Ear, it were a better course to sooth you up in a good opinion of your Estates, to sew Pillows under your Elbows, and cry Peace, Peace, when there is no Peace, as the false Prophets did. * But to go about to perswade men that their Estates are bad, and to urge a necessity of apprehending it such, this is the way to exasperate men: This provoked the Pharisees against Christ; brought the World about Paul's Ears, as Paul says, Gal. 1. Do we perswade men or God? That is for God. This Doctrine crosseth the World, sets up God; and gains but few; for men will and do stand out; and where one is throughly humbled, thousands presume, and will do so.

* It is Augustine's Argument, libro de Pastoribus, Tom. 9. p. 1333. Absit ut dicamus vobis vivite ut vultis securi estote Deus neminem perdit: Tantummodo Fidem Christianam tenete; non perdit ille quod redemit. Hæc si dixerimus Congregabimus Turbas ampliores & si sint quidam qui nos sentiunt hoc dicentes non recte sapere paucos offendimus sed multitudinem conciliamus.

For indeed 4thly, It is a mighty work of the Spirit to convince. And so when the Apostles were sent out, the Spirit is promised, and he shall convince the World of sin, John 16. 8. We could never do it, and the Devil he would never trouble men, for he keeps all in peace, and as I said, enters upon the Spirit's work to spoil it: So of all projects and Courses, this were the vainest, if it were not God's way, and he did not go forth with us in it.

And whereas 5thly, men complain that such are miserable Comforters to convince, and humble men for Sin, like Job's Friends, and that it is cruelty in men to deal so with poor Souls.

1. Consider, That such a Comforter is the Holy Ghost himself. John 16. He is promised to come as a Comforter; and what should he do for to comfort? He should convince the World of sin, because they believe not in me: For this makes way for comfort. And so Rom. 8. 15. Ere he becomes the Spirit of Adoption, he becomes a Spirit of Bondage; for none else are fit for comfort but those that are broken, Isa. 61. 1, 2, 3. The Spirit is upon me to preach glad Tidings to the meek, and comfort those that mourn, &c.

And 2dly. It is cruelty indeed to break the bruised Reed, to smite him whom God hath smitten, as David says; to break him in peices whose Bones are broken: But if mens Joynts are set wrong, it is not cruelty to break them in peices, for else they cannot be set right.

CHAP.

CHAP. VI.

Of the laſt Part of our Converſion, which is our turning from our Evil Thoughts, and Ways unto God.

HOLINESS in the Heart, is the main and ultimate Birth brought forth in Regeneration: And to make us partakers of Gods Holineſs, is the Summ and Scope of all towards us, both of this Election (Eph. 1.) and of all his dealings afterwards. Heb. 12. 10. And without which (verſe 14.) no Man ſhall ſee God. Now the Eſſential Holineſs that is in God, we cannot be partakers of, neither by Imputation, as Oſiander Dreamed, much leſs by real Tranſubſtantiation to be Goded with God, as ſome have arrogantly Aſſerted: We can be no otherwiſe Partakers of it than in the Image thereof (Eph. 4. 25.) which after God (as a Pattern or Prototype) is Created in Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs. You have the ſame Col. 1. 10. After the Image of him that Created him.

Now Man being fallen, and having loſt this Image which was at the firſt immediately given, without any inſtrumental means then uſed by him to ſtamp it on the Soul, God was pleaſed, in reſtoring and renewing this Image in Mans Heart a ſecond time, to ſet up mediate Inſtruments that ſhould have his Image ſtampt upon them firſt; and by the means thereof to Communicate to us this Holineſs firſt imparted to thoſe. Now theſe Patterns or middle Inſtruments on which God hath firſt ſtampt his Holineſs; are, 1. His Word or Law Evangelized. 2. The Man Chriſt Jeſus: And both in this reſpect are termed ὁ λόγος the Word of God: The Firſt, viz. Gods Word, bearing a Doctrinal Image of Gods Holineſs, the other, viz. Chriſt, being a Living, Tranſcendant Image of it. Therefore you ſhall find in the Scriptures of the New Teſtament our Sanctification or Holineſs ſet out to us, 1. By a Change, or Conformity in the Heart to the written Word, and whole Law of God, Rom. 6. 17. Heb. 10. 16. Jam. 1. 21. And 2dly, It is ſet forth by a Conforming, or changing the Heart into the Image of Chriſt, 2 Cor. 3. 18. But we all with open Face beholding, as in a Glaſs, the Glory of the Lord, are changed into the ſame Image, from Glory to Glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

Now we muſt know that a real Conformity to the Word and Law of God, is true ſaving Holineſs and Sanctification, as a Conformity to Chriſt in his Death, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion; and though all theſe are never ſeparate each from the other, yet the firſt is more diſcerned by us at firſt than the latter. Many in Regeneration at firſt find a ſuitableneſs in their Hearts to the Duties and Rules of the Word, whatever they know of it, when yet they are ignorant of, or at leaſt attend not unto, that Holineſs in them as it is the Image of Chriſt in his Death and Reſurrection. And even that other is true Holineſs, and whoever hath it ſhall be ſaved: For which my Ground is in Heb. 10. 14, 15, 16. For by one Offering he hath perfected for ever them that are Sanctified. Whereof the Holy Ghoſt alſo is a Witneſs to us: For after that he hath ſaid before, This is the Covenant that I will make with them, after thoſe daies, ſaith the Lord; I will put my Laws into their Hearts, and in their Minds will I Write them. Where we ſee the Sanctification of thoſe Chriſt hath for ever perfected, and whoſe Sins are forgiven, are ſet out by their having the Law written in their Hearts, &c. And therefore Paul for the comfort and ſupport of weak Believers doth in his own Perſon (Rom. 7.) ſet forth the Holiness of a Believer, as it is the Law of God Written in the Heart, which (v. 23.) he termeth the Law of the Mind, by which he consents to the Spiritual Law of God in the inner Man. v. 22. which Law (v. 25.) he serveth, and would fain Obey, and have no other in his Mind, even then, when with the Flesh he serves the Law of Sin. So then this is true Sanctification, though not the tota Ratio, or the whole Notion of a Christians Sanctification, who also is changed into a more Glorious Image of Christ, which at least is as the Varnish to this other, Conformity to the Word, as the ground-work of it. And accordingly it is made part of the Covenant of Grace in difference from the old Covenant, that the Law is written in the Heart, Heb. 8. 9, 10. Not according to the Covenant that I made with their Fathers, in the Day that I took them by the hand, to lead them out of the Land Ægypt; because they continued not in my Covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord. For this is the Covenant that I will make with the House of Israel, after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my Laws into their Mind, and write them in their Hearts, and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a People. And David's instance in that Medal of a Gracious Heart, and the Copy of his own (Psal. 119. throughout) shews how it stood pointed to the Law of God. And answerably it is the general Description of the Saints in the Old Testament, who were taken into the Covenant of Grace, Isa. 51. 7. The People in whose Heart is my Law; yea, of Christ, and by Christ, it is said, (Psal. 40.) Thy Law is in my Heart.

For though this Holiness be legal, in respect of the Materials and Pattern of it, the Law of God, yet it is not legal in respect of the Subject or state of the Person that hath it begun, or in respect of the Tenure of the Covenant, or of the Virtue efficient that wrought it. For the Person that hath it, is the Subject of the Covenant of Grace, belongs to that Division, and Jurisdiction, and hath it wrought in him by vertue of Christs Death and Resurrection, tho' as yet he picks not out, in his own discerning, that this is the Image of Christ in him.

Now those Metaphors, or Similitudes which the Holy Ghost hath chosen forth to express that change of Heart, as it is an inward Conformity to the Law and Word of God, are especially Three; 1. Casting the Heart as in a Mold into the same Image of Spiritual Holiness, that is stampt on, and found in the Word. 2. Engraffing the Word on the Heart, and so changing the Stock (the Heart) into the same Nature. 3. Writing the Law in the Heart. All which we have implied in Rom. 6. 17. But ye have obeyed from the Heart that form of Doctrine into which ye were delivered.

The words in the Greek are εἰς ὃν παρεδόθητε τύπον διδαχῆς, That form of Doctrine into which ye were delivered: And so out of the Greek the Margent varies 'em.

The Substance of his Comparison comes to this, that their Hearts having been first, in the inward inclinations and dispositions of it, framed and changed into what the Word requires, they then obeyed the same Word from the Heart naturally, willingly, and the Commandments were not grievous, because the Heart was framed and molded thereunto. The Heart must be made good, ere Men can obey from the Heart; and to this end he elegantly first compares the Doctrine of Law and Gospel delivered them, unto a Pattern or Sampler, which having in their Eye, they framed and squared their Actings and Doings unto it. And he Secondly compares the same Doctrine unto a Mold or Matrix, into which Metals being delivered, have the same figure or form left on them, which the Mold it self had, and this is spoken in respect of their Hearts. Therefore this word τύπος is a common word, and will serve both these purposes and aims, both which in common signifies the express Image, Effigies, Form, or first Draught of a thing unto which another is to be Framed or Fashioned; whether it be in a Mold into which Metals or Clay is Cast, and so have the same stamp or print upon them; as we see in Goldsmiths Work and other Trades (and this suits to the stamp in their Hearts wrought thereby) or whether it be after a Copy, Pattern, or Sampler, which one having in his view before him, frames and fashions his work unto it, as Moses framed all things according to the Pattern in the Mount. And this suits the Expression preſſion of their obedience from the Heart; and this he clearly intends, for the words are, εἰς ὃν παρεδόθητε, into which ye were delivered, rather than, which was delivered you; as our Tranſlation was pleaſed to render it. Other Arts and Sciences are ſaid to be nobis traditæ, delivered to us; but of this Doctrine 'tis ſaid, that we are delivered unto it, to be framed and conformed to it. And this is that which I have afore me, that the work of Sanctification is a work framing and caſting the Heart it ſelf into the Word of God: (as Metals uſe to be in a Mold) So that the Heart is made of the ſame Stamp and Diſpoſition with the Word. This Similitude being opened from the Scriptures, will afford ſome light unto us. There are four things for the opening of it. Chap. 6

I. That the Word and Law of God evangelized, may truly be compared to ſuch a Mold.

II. That our Hearts muſt be faſhioned unto it ere they can be ſaved.

III. I ſhall ſhew the way how the Heart is molded to it.

IV. I ſhall explain the work it ſelf, what it is to have the Heart truly molded to it.

I. The Word may truly be compared to ſuch a Mold: A Mold (you know) is an Inſtrument that hath the repreſentatian or ſhape of ſomething engraven in it, to the end to leave the ſame ſtamp and faſhion upon the things that are caſt in it. Now ſuch an Inſtrument hath God appointed his Word to be: For

1. It hath the repreſentation of his Holineſs in it: For whereas Man had ras'd and defaced that Image or Likeneſs to God in Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, wherein he was at firſt created; and ſo that living Copy of the Law was loſt (that written in Mens Hearts by Nature, being imperfect, and but ſome Footſteps of ſome outward parts of this outward Letter of the Law remainining) God therefore writ out the Copy of that Image in his moſt holy Word: That as Adam's Heart had then the perfect Image of God; ſo this Doctrine hath that abſolute Form upon it now. And therefore this Law is called Holy and Righteous, which are the Attributes of God himſelf, and which are the parts of God's Image, whereof it conſiſts, Eph. 4.22. Adam was the real Image, this the verbal; but both have the ſame Form, God being the Architype of both.

2. It hath not this Image on it, only for man to look on, and ſo to ſee the Picture of his Eſtate in Innocency, and bewail it as now loſt (as James ſays of a negligent Hearer of the Word, that he beholds his Face therein as in a Glaſs, for the preſent, but forgets it) no, but God hath appointed it in the vertue of the Goſpel to be, as the common ſtanding Mold, inſtrumental thro' the Knowledge of it, to renew that his Image again in Man, and to caſt all his Peoples Hearts into it. That whereas there are but two eſpecial ways more eminent to work the Image of any thing in another ſolidly and ſubſtantially; the one by way of Engraving or Sculpture, by the hand of ſome Artificer, on ſome Stone, Metal, or other Material: The other by way of caſting Metals or Plaiſter into a Mold, ſo as they are faſhion'd unto the Figure of it, without loſing any of their materials. Now God having once at firſt created his Image on man's Heart by way of engraving, as by his own Finger, and the Soul having now loſt that Image, and being changed into another; namely, that of ſin and wickedneſs, (the Image of Satan) God therefore does now rather take this ſecond courſe, and new caſts the Heart again, uſing the Artifice of his Spirit, and his Word is as the inſtrumental cauſe or mold, bearing that former Image, and faſhioning the Heart thereunto.

II. Let us ſee why the Heart muſt needs be thus new caſt in ſuch a Mold; the Reaſons of it are,

1. Becauſe we are by nature caſt into the Devils Image. For if we would draw the Devils Picture, we would draw Pride, and Malice, Revenge, Lying, and Murther, and all ſinful Diſpoſitions. Now Adam's Sin by its vertue does at our firſt Birth mold us into this Image; ſo ſays David, Pſal. 51. 5. I was ſhapen in Iniquity, formatus, as Immins and others read it. All the Limbs Book 8 Limbs of Sin are faſhioned in our Hearts, and our Hearts to them, Gen. 6. 5. The Fiction, or Faſhion, or Frame of the Heart is evil, as the word ſignifies. And we coming thus into the World with this ſhape on us, and thus caſt, our Hearts are alſo daily more hardned in this ſinful faſhion by the examples, of men. Therefore we are ſaid to live to the luſts of men, 1 Pet. 4. 2. That is, we apply our ſelves and our deſires unto the common ſin of others, ſuffering them to mold us alſo; which the Apoſtle thus expreſſeth, Living according to the Courſe of the World, Eph. 2. 1. And the ſame Apoſtle ſays, Rom. 12. 2. Faſhion not your ſelves to the World, μὴ συσχηματίζεθε, ne accommodetis vos ad hujus Seculi figuram, to the figure or faſhion of this World, ſo Eraſmus paraphraſeth it. Seeing therefore you are thus by Nature caſt into a ſinful frame, and are more and more in that Eſtate molded by the faſhion and mold of others bad Examples: Upon that account the Apoſtle there requires a change, or metamorphoſis μεταμορφῶσθε, that is, get the form and faſhion of your Hearts altered; for ſo the word ſignifies, a transforming or changing of a thing from one form to another. Mens Hearts that are ſhaped like to Devils (the Luſts of your Father (ſays Chriſt) you will do) being caſt anew in the Word, are made Partakers of the Divine Nature, 2 Pet. 1. 4. So that by it we come to be like to God, and have his *I*mage again renewed in us, which that mold bears; without which *I*mage of Holineſs thus imprinted by the Word upon our Hearts, we can never come to receive Happineſs from him.

2. Reaſon 2. Unleſs our Hearts be thus new molded, we remain Veſſels of Diſhonour, and not fit for our Maſters Service. What is it that chiefly makes one Veſſel differ from another, but the faſhion of it? You have Veſſels made of the ſame matter, whereof one, becauſe it is caſt in the mold and faſhion of a baſer Utenſil, is therefore uſed about diſhonourable Employments. But now another that is caſt in another, Mold, though of the ſame Metal, is ſerved up to the Table, and uſed in honourable Services. Nothing puts a difference between theſe two, except the faſhion, that they are caſt in a ſeveral Mold. This is part of the Scope of the Apoſtles compariſon, 2 Tim. 2. 20, 21. In a great Houſe, there are ſome Veſſels of honour, and ſome of diſhonour. Now the Veſſels of Honour are deſcribed to be ſuch as are ſanctified and prepared to every good work; and meet for the Maſters uſe. Fitneſs to be employed in God's Service, is that which makes any one to be a Veſſel of Honour; and that fitneſs it hath, is from its being ſanctified, which Sanctification is a new caſting of it, and a giving the Heart new Diſpoſitions, ſuch as the Word requires. Until therefore the Word hath changed thy Heart, thou art a Veſſel of diſhonour: Thou mayſt indeed be gilt over with Civility and formal Profeſſion; but till thy faſhion be altered, that is, the frame of thy inward Parts, thou remaineſt a Veſſel of diſhonour, and fit for nought but wrath: Rom. 9. 22. Theſe reaſons (you ſee) are ſuited to the Expreſſion or Similitude uſed in the Text.

III. In the third place, I will ſhew you how this is done and wrought, ſo far as this Metaphor will, out of the Scripture, give us light.

1. God begins to work by Humiliation and Contrition, and breaks the Heart all in pieces by the Word. A Founder that hath a Statue or Image to make of ſome hard Metal that hath a contrary form on it (as ſuppoſe an Horſe to be caſt into a mans Shape) will firſt knock that Metal in pieces. And ſo had our Hearts need be dealt withal; they not only bearing the Image of the Devil, but that Image being ſeated in our inward parts, and not only in the Superficies or Outſide, (as artificial forms are) yea, and being as Braſs and Iron, hardned in that faſhion, Iſa. 48. 4. I know thou art obſtinate, thy Neck is as an Iron Sinew, and thy Brow as Braſs. So that the Heart will not yield or apply it ſelf to the faſhion and mold of the Word. Miniſters may preach to you long enough, and your Hearts ſtill retain the ſame diſpoſitions, becauſe they are not broken with a ſenſe of your ſinful Eſtate; and the Curſe due unto it; For the Heart is Enmity againſt God, and cannot be ſubject to God, Rom. 8. 7. It will not yield to the Mold, therefore it muſt firſt be broken.

broken. Hence in Jer. 23. 29. The Prophet compares the word to a Hammer that breaks the rocky Hearts of men in peices. Chap. 6

Yet 2. That is not enough, for it must be melted also; therefore it is not only a sense of your misery that will prepare you for this new molding, but a melting also. Hence, as the Word is like a Hammer to break your Hearts, so it is like Fire to dissolve your Hearts, and make them soft and pliable, and so fit to take any Impression, Thus Jer. 23. 29. and Thus 2 Chron. 34. 27. Josiah's Heart was melted, and became tender at the reading of the Law. And this Similitude the Prophet alludes to, when shewing the inefficaciousness of the Word upon their rebellious Spirits, not praying unto Conversion; he says, The Bellows are burnt, the Founder melteth (or endeavours to melt their Hearts) in vain. Reprobate Silver shall men call them. Jer. 6. 30. And this melting of the Heart thus, contains two Things.

1. It imports the separating the corrupt Dispositions and Lusts of it (as the dross and scum useth to be in the melting of Metals) which before were blinded with it, Their dross, till then, remaining within them, as the Prophet speaks. But now he purgeth it from the midst of them, by the Spirit of burning, Isa 4. 4. or (as it is in Mal. 3. 3.) They are purified as Gold is purified: The very inward dispositions to sin being mourned for, complained of, hated, and cast out with loathing.

2. And as this melting fetcheth out the dross, so 2*dly*. It softneth the good Metal; it makes all the Faculties pliable, and apt to receive the impressions of the Word with meekness, as James speaks of receiving the Word. It maketh it a meek Heart, an Heart of such a Temper, as will be content to do any thing that God shall command. It can suffer exhortation, and suffer reproof Heb. 13. 23. It suffers the Word to frame it which way it will, and to that end urgeth it, presseth it, stamps it upon it self again and again in private, till an indelible impression be made; and till it finds the same dispositions wrought to obedience, which the Word requires.

3. This Transformation is done by the intervention of Knowledge or Faith. The Mind being enabled to conceive what is that good, perfect, and acceptable Will of God, and so approving of it as good for him; the whole man is thereby fashioned: So (Rom. 12. 2.) we are said to be transformed by the renewing of our Minds, to prove what is that good, perfect, and acceptable Will of God. And (Col. 3. 10.) The Image of God is said to be renewed by Knowledge. For we are not wrought on as a piece of dead Clay, but according to the nature of the Soul, which being an understanding Creature, the Heart is wrought upon by means of it. Faith believing, approving, applying the Word as good, the Will and Affections are presently fashioned to it, and so there is a Change wrought in the whole man.

IV. Now Fourthly. For the work it self, if it be askt what this Transformation of the Heart into the Word is: I answer, It is a universal frame and temper of all the Faculties of the Soul; whereby each, in their proportion, are respectively made suitable to the word in their inward several dispositions, and prepared and fitted to do what ever the Word commands.

1. It is a Change, though not of the substance or faculties of the Soul, yet of the temper, frame, and disposition of it. For a thing molded remains the same Metal it was before, only the frame and fashion of it is altered; and yet the alteration of that fashion works a great change in it, both in it's Name and Nature. And the Metal that once was a Dish being turn'd into a Pot, hath a new Name given it; and in genere artificialium the Spirit of it is altered: So when a man's Heart is changed by the Word, though the same Nature of man remain in him still, yet he receives a new name (Rev. 3. 12.) and is a new man; and so called, because the fashion of his Heart is altered; and in genere Spiritualium, he is another man: Differing from what he was before.

2. By

2. By this change all the Faculties are made ſuitable to the Word. Even as you ſee the Mold and the thing molded fit one another, as the Seal and the Wax do ſo too; ſo the Heart which before was Enmity to every Commandment, now is molded in and by the Word. It delights in the Law according to the inner Man, and finds an agreeableneſs between the Law and it's own Diſpoſition, there being anſwerable Diſpoſitions wrought in all the Faculties of the Soul to what the Word requires. If God ſaies, Fear me: The Heart Anſwers, I deſire to fear thy Name. (As 'tis ſaid of them Nehem. 1. 11. If the Word ſaies, Keep the Sabbath, the Heart can ſay, The Sabbath is my Delight. Iſa. 58. 14. If the Law ſaies, Love the Brethren, why the Heart finds an inſtinct begotten in it ſelf to do it (as there is in Birds to love their young) thus Believers are ſaid to be taught of God to love one another, 1 Theſ. 4. 9.

3. There is a change in all the Faculties according to their ſeveral Tendencies and Poyſes.

1. There is a Change in the Underſtanding or Judgment, and when it is thus changed, there will be an Abillity δοκιμάζειν, to try what is the acceptable Will of God, to Judge and know how he ought acceptably to be ſerved. Such a renewed mind is quick in the Fear of the Lord. (Iſa. 11. 2.) to Try it as the Touchſtone doth Gold, and alſo to conſent to the Law, that it is good, and good for him (Rom. 7.) and to eſteem every Commandment concerning all things as right (Pſal. 119. 128.) and to ſet an high price on every Ordinance, and every Duty, as being matters of great moment. And ſo it is ready likewiſe to diſallow and hate every falſe way, as you have it expreſſed in the aforeſaid Pſalm, and alſo in Rom. 7.

2. The Print of this Mold in the Conſcience will be a quick vigorous Light, ſo as the Motives that are Spiritual, and for the Glory of God, ſhall naturally riſe up in the Mind, and move the Heart, 1 Pet. 5. 2. Feed the Flock, not for Lucre, &c. but of a ready mind.

3. The ſtamp of it in the Will, will be a Propenſity to chooſe the things that pleaſe God, (as it is is ſaid of thoſe Eunuchs, Iſa. 56. 4.) thoſe things that moſt of all pleaſe God, will be moſt of all pleaſing to an Holy Soul too, and he will walk in them to chooſe. The Will being thus Transformed, the Mind needs not be wrought off by ſelfiſh ends unto holy Duties, but will be willing (as the Apoſtles Phraſe is, 1 Pet. 5. 2.) in a ready mind to feed the Flock. Taking care for them naturally (as Paul ſays Phil. 2. 20.) even as a Nurſe for the Child. And this Paul makes to be more than Obedience it ſelf, when the Heart is thus framed (2 Cor. 8. 10. Not only to do, but to be willing. Alſo part of this ſtamp and impreſſion lies in the Will's having a ſtrong bent and byaſs upon it, forcibly carrying it in all the turnings of a Mans Life towards the Commandment, and Obedience unto it, and cauſing the Will to encline to, and follow the Command, and likewiſe to ſtick unto it: Even as the Iron doth move with, follow, and apply it ſelf to the Load-ſtone. I have Sworn, and I will perform it, ſays David, Pſal. 119. 106.

4. So anſwerably this ſtamp of Inward Holineſs is ſet on the Affections when every Affection, according to the nature of it, is exerciſed in and about the Law, and the things thereof. Even Sorrow is after a Godly ſort, for the breach thereof, and for Sin as committed againſt an Holy God. Alſo hatred is rais'd againſt the things therein forbidden, and a love to the things Commanded, and joy in the performance. See Pſal. 119. through out, where all ſorts of ſuch Affections as theſe towards the Law of God are recorded. Thus when every faculty is ſeaſoned with a new diſpoſition towards Gods Precepts, and the obeying of them; when there is an Univerſal Conformity of all Faculties according to their ſeveral kinds and offices, and alſo their ſubordinations one to another, with a natural fitneſs and diſpoſedneſs unto what the Law requires, then is the Heart molded in the Word.

4. There

Chap 5.

4. There is a preparedneſs unto all Duties revealed in the Word: and a facile readineſs to be imployed in them: So that (as is ſaid 2 Chron. 30. 19.) the whole Heart is prepared for every Duty. And this the Similitude implies; for it is the end of caſting Metals into this, or that form, that they may be ſerviceable to ſuch or ſuch an uſe. Now when the Soul is caſt into ſuch a frame, that the Heart is as a veſſel meet and prepared for the Maſters uſe (as 'tis ſaid 2 Tim. 2. 21.) then it may be ſaid to be molded in the Word: Even when all the powers and faculties of the Soul are become Weapons of Righteouſneſs (as the Apoſtles other Similitude in this Chapter is) as being made on purpoſe for Righteous Uſes. And it is the faſhion in a Weapon that gives it the fitneſs for ſuch an uſe, as a Spade by reaſon of the faſhion of it is fit to dig the Earth but not to cut with, a Boul to drink in, and a Sword to fight with. Not but that a Godly Man's Heart may at ſome times be dulled, but ſtill as in a Weapon there is an habitual fitneſs which it hath from the faſhion of it, as in a Sword or Knife to cut; and 2*dly*, There is an actual fitneſs, namely an Edge; which though it be blunted, yet the habitual fitneſs is not taken away, ſo it is in a Godly Man's Heart, though the frame and faſhion of it ſtill remains the ſame. Thus there is an habitual preparedneſs to good Duties, yet the Edge and actual Vigour may be wanting, till it be whetted again, (Deut. 6. 7.) his Heart may be hackt, and battered, and ſo at the preſent made unfit, yet the faſhion is ſtill the ſame, and one good prayer, or Sermon whets it again, and brings it's Edge again. Now Wicked Men want both theſe fitneſſes. Indeed in the Furnace they will bow to any faſhion (as the Heart of Saul and of Pharoh did) but when they are once out of it, they will return to their own frame again.

5. This inward ſtamp of Holineſs is both an Univerſal, and proportionable impreſſion upon the Heart, which the mold of the Word leaves upon it.

1. It is Univerſal. There is no ſmall ſcratch, or raſe in the Mold, but it will appear in the thing caſt in it: Therefore Civil Men that have impreſſions of the ſecond Table, and few or none of the firſt, were never truly molded in the Word.

2. It is proportionable. Look what Cuts and Engravings are deepeſt in the Mold, theſe will make the higheſt and faireſt Emboſments on the things caſt in them, the very ſmalleſt and ſhalloweſt being viſible too: So it is with one Converted by the Word, and who hath his Heart molded in it. The ſtamps of thoſe Duties which God moſt of all requires of him in his particular and general Calling, will be moſt eminent upon his Heart. The great things of the Law will be the great deſires of his Heart to fulfil, and not be taken up about Mint and Cummin only, Mat. 22. 27.

The Second Similitude. The Holy God is pleaſed to uſe to expreſs the change of the Heart into the Word and Law of God, is this of Engrafting the Word upon the Heart, as a Graffe on a Stock, with ability to ſave and change it, James 1. 21. Wherefore lay apart all Filthineſs, and Superfluity of Naughtineſs, and receive with Meekneſs the engrafted Word which is able to ſave your Souls. I muſt firſt fix the Interpretation, becauſe this Tranſlation is Controverted by ſome Interpreters, although not many.

1. Some ſay that the word ἔμφυτος imports that which is natural, and is ſo far from ſignifying the engrafted word, that it is oppoſed thereto, ſo natural Branches are to be engrafted, Rom. 11. And the Greek Scholiaſt kept ſo cloſe to that meaning, that he plainly interprets the engrafted Word here to be the natural light of Reaſon. But this Interpretation is manifeſtly falſe. For 1. This Word is to be received, and therefore is not by Nature, nor any thing natural. And 2dly, It is ſaid to be able to ſave our Souls, which the light of Nature is not.

2. Others would have the word of God called ἔμφυτος, in this Sense, that it is Native and Genuine, which signification is opposed unto, what is Artificial, Affected, Adulterate or Counterfeit: As if you should call a true Vertue ἐμφύτην ἀρετὴν, that is, a genuine true Vertue, not acted or counterfeited. And so ἔμφυτος λόγος would signifie the pure naked Word in it's simplicity, unmixed, unadulterate with man's inventions; and so it would be all one (as they urge it) with what this same Apostle had call'd it, the Word of Truth. v. 18. with the Word of Truth he begat you. For God useth not falshood nor error to beget men to himself. And I confess, I was tempted to this interpretation, by parallelling it with 1 Pet. 2. 2. where he exhorts them to desire the sincere milk of the Word; ἄδολον λόγον without deceipt, but as it comes from the Dug, not mixt with Medicines or Waters. The like to which also you have 2 Cor. 2. 17. And that which further strengthens it is, That in the other Words and Phrases, in coherence with these in either places, both in Peter and James, there seems to be a parallel, and therefore in this also: Both James and Peter using the same words before in either. The one says, Laying aside all naughtiness receive this Word; the other says, Laying aside all superfluity of naughtiness, desire the sincere milk of the Word. And thus the meaning of James's exhortation should be as if he had said, You that were begotten at first by the Word of Truth, (that is, the sincere Word,) take heed you receive that only which is the True, Pure, and genuine Word of Truth; as that which is only able to save your Souls: For as it was that pure Word which begat you at first, so that alone must build you up to Life.

ἀποθέμενοι πᾶσαν κακίαν. So Peter v. 1. ἀποθέμενοι πᾶσαν περιουσίαν τῆς κακίας. So James.

But that which I have to say concerning this Interpretation is,

1. That it is not called the Word of Truth (Jam. 1. v. 18.) in opposition to Error and Falshood, so much as by way of eminency, as it is thus call'd too, Eph. 1. 13. The Word of Truth, the Gospel of your Salvation. It is too low an Epithet to say it is stiled the Word of Truth in opposition to what is erroneous, feigned, and false, or devised, for that is but what is common with it to every Philosophical Truth: But it is so called for the eminency of Truth in it. With which also that Elogium of Paul concurreth, This is a faithful Saying, worthy of all acceptation.

2. When ever the word ἔμφυτος is used to signifie that which is genuine in their sense, yet then withal it is applied to, and made the Epithet of some inward Quality, or Disposition of the mind of man which is inbred, and inherent therein, as when it is applied to vertues and the like. And so according to this meaning of it, if we would suppose the Word of God were termed ἔμφυτος, as noting forth Purity, Sincerity, or Truth of it, yet still withal it would connotate and import this other interpretation also; namely, inherent or inbred, in our Hearts and Minds or that which is ordeined to be inwrought, or engrafted in us.

I come therefore to the 3*d* and most usual Interpretation, which our Translators have chosen, namely, that it signifies the engrafted, or rather engraftable Word: (for it is nomen verbale, not Participium) That is, it is that Word, whose end use, intent, and ordination by God, is to be engrafted, inbred, and ingenerated into the Souls of men, and is to be received to that end. And so it is a metaphorical allusion to Seed or a Plant that is sown, ingrafted or inoculated either in Ground, or into a Stock, and especially the Latter. That look, as the word σύμφυτος, used Rom. 6. 5. which is a kin to this, and of the same Stock (as I may so speak) and which, as there used, signifies planted together; being there spoken of Christ and his Members, being planted together in one, as two Twigs growing, or set in one common Stock becoming and growing up into one Tree: So ἔμφυτος here spoken of the Word of God, signifies planted, or plantable within us, these two words differing but in this, that the word there is a Compound with συν, that is, together with, but this here is compounded with ἐν or in, and so the one signifies grafted, or planted together one with another. This other here signifies planted in: The first being spoken of Christ and us, and our being planted together in one; this Latter being spoken of the Word of God as planted, or to be planted in our Hearts.

Obj. But some urge that this Interpretation cannot stand, because the same word cannot signifie both what is natural, and what is engrafted too, for these two are opposed, Rom. 11. 17. 21. The natural Branches are opposed to those those grafted in. Now it is evident (say they) that the word ἔμφυτος doth signifie (at least sometimes) that which is Natural. Chap. 6

Answer 1. But First. I answer, The word in Rom. 11. used for engrafted, is not ἔμφυτος, but another word, and so prejudgeth not this Sanctification here.

Answ. 2. The word ἔμφυτος in common imports whatsoever is inbred and seated in the Inwards, whether it be by Nature, or otherwise set in, so as that it becomes as Nature. And thus the Latin word insitum answers to it in the like large signification; or as we say in English, implanted in one, whereby we express, not only what hath been by Nature, but as well what otherwise is inwrought, though acquired by Education, Breeding, or habitual Custom. So then this word, though upon other occasions, it may be used for what is originally natural, and inbred by Nature; yet withal, it still allows us that other signification of what is inwrought by an ingrafture, or otherwise acquired. In the Book of Wisdom (Chap. 12. v. 10.) μίσος ἔμφυτον, is put to signifie an inbred Hatred, or Grudge, not that which was by Nature, which we call an Antipathy; but that which had been inbred by Injuries, and yet was so deeply rooted, that it is as if it were natural. And thus, ἔμφυτον is all one with ἐγκάρδιον, that is, seated in the Heart: So that this word ἔμφυτος may well bear either Sense.

Even as συμπεφυτευσται. (which is of the same Kindred) imports both engrafted with another: And with all what is together in Nature with another Simul Natura. See Stephan in συμφυτευω.

This being cleared, it is evident that the Apostle James's comparison and allusion is to liken the Word to Seed cast into the Earth, or to a graft or more noble Plant set into a Stock, being ordained to take root, or to be inoculated and made co-natural with, and so to bear fruit in the Heart according to it's Kind; which Interpretation is most natural to this place.

For, 1. This Interpretation excludes not that other of being natural, taking it in respect of what the Word doth consequenter, and in the Event become to the Heart by it's ingrafture; for thereby it doth become natural and inbred in, and genuine to the Heart, and as a new Nature.

2. It agrees in this sense with the coherence and scope of the Apostle, and his foregoing Passages, For

1. Whereas he had declared (v. 18.) how they had been begotten by the Word as of Seed (which is formed into, and becomes the Substance of the new Creature) Now in this 21st verse, he exhorts them to receive this Word they had been thus begotten by, so as to grow up more and more, and to bring forth Fruit; which he expresseth by being Doers of the Word; in the following 22. verse. Only in carrying on of this Exhortation, he takes up this other Metaphor, as genuine to this Scope, as that other of begetting was to the former; namely, comparing the same Word of God, in that respect, unto Seed sown in a Soil, or to a Graft ingrafted on a Stock, which by becoming one nature with our Hearts, and by changing the stock thereof into it's own Nature, doth increase our Graces in us more and more, and causeth us to bring forth fruit, which he termeth doing of the Word. And this is withal a better parallel with that place of Peter forementioned, and his Scope, then the former Interpretation. For even just thus, Peter had spoken of the Word first, as the means of begetting us (Chap. 1. 23.) Being born again, not of corruptible Seed, by the Word of God. And then (Chap. 2. v. 2.) he exhorts them under a new metaphor, as new-born Babes to desire that Word as Milk to grow thereby: Even as we have the Like.

2. He had indeed begun, and laid a foundation for this very Allusion in v. 18. in stiling Believers, and men begotten again, the first fruits of God's Creation, as ordained so to be after Regeneration. He begat us (says he) that we should be a kind of first fruits of his Creation (Even as 1 Cor. 15. 23. Christ is termed the first fruits of them that sleep) alluding to Jer. 2. 3. Israel is Holiness to the Lord, the first fruits of his Increase. They are then begotten to that end, that in their future Course of Life themselves, and all their Actions might be consecrated to God as the first fruits of the Creation (Holiness in one man being more to God than all the Creation without it.) Now then in answer to, and prosecution of this allusion there begun, to the end, to exhort them to accomplish this, what could be more proper than to make use of this new Book 8 Compariſon of the Word of God unto a Graft ordained to be engrafted on their Hearts; and accordingly to exhort them to receive it as ſuch into their Souls, unto the end that they might in the ſequel of their Lives be conſecrated wholly to God, in bringing forth fruits to be offered up unto God, as the firſt fruits were.

3. The very words here uſed, Receive, and Receive with Meekneſs, theſe words comply evidently with that ſenſe of engrafting, rather than any other. The Phraſe to Receive, is proper thereto; for we ſay the ſtock receives the Graft as let into it, and the words with Meekneſs, are added, for it is received into ſuch a ſtock, Mans Heart, as hath the life of Senſe in it: And alſo becauſe that in order to this receiving the word by an engrafture, the Corruption of the Heart is to be parted with, yea, and cut off, as the old Top is, to make way for the new graft: He might well add with Meekneſs, for thus to cut off Luſts is painful and troubleſome; Chriſt tells us it is to cut off Members, to cut off Hands, and pull out Eyes, and this Tree to be lopt is the Heart of a Man.

4. Other Sciptures do fall in, to confirm this Metaphor (here uſed) of the Engrafture, or Sowing the word of God in our Hearts, in order to the bringing forth of Fruit in us. 1 Cor. 3. 9. You are Gods Husbandry. And we are Labourers together with God: Which Work or Labour is in the verſes aforegoing ſaid to be Planting and Watering. v. 6, 7. again (John 15. 16.) Chriſt ſending forth his Diſciples to Preach the Word, and to Convert Souls, and to build them up to Life, expreſſeth it thus, I have choſen you, that you ſhould go forth, (namely to Preach) and bring forth Fruit, therein comparing their Preaching to ſowing ſeed, or engrafting Plants which ſhould bring forth Fruit: Again, Col. 1. 6. The Word of Truth, as thus planted by the Apoſtles, is ſaid, to bring forth Fruit in them, and in all the World. Moreover in the ſame 15*th* Chapter of John, Chriſt is not only ſaid to bear Fruit in us by our abiding in him, as the Vine, but alſo by his Word abiding in us. For as at the 1*ſt* & 4*th* verſes, he had ſaid, The Branch bringeth not forth Fruit, unleſs it abide in the Vine: So at the 7*th verſe* he ſays, If you abide in me, and my words abide in you. So then where we, that is our Perſons, are ſaid to be engrafted into Chriſt, even there alſo it is ſaid, that in order to bringing forth Fruit, his Word muſt be engrafted into us alſo as we are into him, he expreſſing the one as well as the other, by one and the ſame word of abiding in: And thus James his ἔμφυτος, ſpoken of the Word, and Paul's σύμφυτοι: Rom. 6. ſpoken of Chriſt and us, do well agree in one and the ſame kind of Alluſion. Thus I have fixed the Interpretation.

To come now to the opening of the particulars contained and implied in the Metaphor.

1. God (whoſe Word this is) is tacitly compared unto a Tree, who hath all Excellencies, Perfections of Holineſs, Juſtice, Wiſdom, Truth, Righteouſneſs, Goodneſs in him Eſſentially.

2. His Word is as the Seed, or as Twiggs growing out of the Tree, fit to be Sown, inoculated, or ingrafted in the Hearts of Men.

3. And look as Seed or Twigs pluckt, or fallen from a Tree hath vertually all the Perfections of the Tree it comes from, and being planted, or inoculated ſpeads forth into the ſame likeneſs, and brings forth like Fruits; So this Word of Truth fallen from God, containeth in it all his Perfections communicable to us, Holineſs, Mercy, Goodneſs, &c. The Law, or his Commandment, is Holy, Spiritual, Juſt and Good, (Rom. 7. 12, 14.) as God himſelf is, and the Goſpel hath the mind of God and of Chriſt in it, 1 Cor. 2. 16.

Only 4. Look as Seed, or a Graft, brings forth no Fruit if it remain alone unſet, but it muſt be engrafted into ſome ſtock, or ſown in ſome Soil, if it brings forth Fruit: So this word of Truth remains as a dead Letter, unfruitful, unleſs it be received into Mens Hearts, and there takes root, and abides; even as Chriſt ſays the Branch cannot bring forth fruit of it ſelf, unleſs it abide in the Vine (John 15.) ſo the Word brings not forth fruit unleſs engrafted into us; yea, to that end it was ordained and delivered by God, and Preached by us. The Epithet here given it imports this end and ordination of it. It is called the Engraftable Word, and so termed as it is in it self, in respect of this its end and ordination, ere that yet it is received into the Heart; for he thereupon founds his Exhortation to them to receive it as such; as being the Word that is ordained, intended for this, and whose end is to be engrafted, to be insititious as the perfection thereof ('tis a Noun, not a Participle) as when we say, a Child bearing Woman, that phrase imports not so much one actually with Child, as fit in respect of Age or Condition for it. Chap. 6

5. To be engrafted, is not barely to be outwardly let into the Ear, or Understanding, but to be let into the Heart to be there recreated, there to abide, and become one therewith, and (if you will) to be naturalized into the Heart The Graft, if it take on the Stock, is let into the very Pith : So must the Word be, and then it is, that it becomes λόγος ἔμφυτος Then is the Word Insouled : (ἔμφυτος and ἐγκάρδιας are used for one) and so the Interpretation of natural comes fitly in ; the Word and the Heart becoming one in Nature. The Word is not only received into the Conscience, to be a Guide or Rule of Life, but also into the Heart, as a Graft that doth naturally coalesce with the stock. Other Scriptures express this under other Metaphors, comparing the Word to Milk and Meat, which received into the Stomach are turned by the digestive Faculty into the Spirits, Blood, Bones, Flesh, &c. And this is the true import of that Phrase in Heb. 4. 2. μὴ συγκεκραμένος τῇ πίστει speaking of the Word, that it profited not, because it was not digested by Faith, and so turn'd into Blood and Nourishment.

6. And Lastly, It imports not barely it's being made natural to the Soul, as Meat is with the Body, when turned into Flesh and Blood; for the Meat turns not Mans Nature into its Nature, but the Mans Nature assimulates it unto it self: But this Metaphor further imports, that the Word turns the Soul of Man and the dispositions of it, into the nature of it self, as a Noble Plant doth a more Wild Stock, Isa. 55. 11. He speaks of his Word, and the Power thereof, which shall prosper to the ends he sends it, whereof one end is, v. 13. that instead of the Thorn, shall come up the Fir Tree; instead of the Bryar, shall come up the Mirtle Tree; that is, the nature of the Trees themselves shall be changed by it. Again, in Meat Digested, the nature of Man useth all the Blood and Spirits gotten by it according to its own will and temper, which still remains the same; but this Word engrafted into the Heart, Converts all the the Sapp and Strength in the stock to bring forth Fruit according to its own kind, for the vertue of it over rules all, and it brings forth according to the kind of it self. And therefore in that Col. 1. the Word is said to bring forth fruit in us, and not so much we our selves to do it. Grace is the Word concocted, and the Fruit of Holiness is but the Word brought forth into the Life.

Therefore be exhorted to get the Word thus received into your Hearts, or it will not save your Souls. The engrafted Word (says James) is able to save your Souls. It saves only, as 'tis engrafted, else the whole Word of God is not able to save you, but will Condemn you. Men that hear the Word, and are enlightned by it, either receive it as the Earth doth the Rain, and brings forth Thorns and Briars, (Heb. 6.) the very Rain making Lust more fruitful, or else they receive it as engrafted (as James speaks) and that is, when it changeth the Heart, and then it saves. Whereas, of the other it is said, that they are near to Cursing, whose end is to be Burned. Nor is it having the Graft tyed about with a Thred, or the Word to stand in the Memory, or outward Profession, but it must take Root, and become one with thy Heart. USE.

The third Similitude whereby the Holy Ghost expresseth Sanctification to be a conformity to the Word or Law of God, is here in Heb. 10. 14, 16. For by one Offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified. v. 16. This is the Covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my Laws into their Hearts, and in their Minds will I write them. 1. Says, I will put my Law into their Hearts. 2. And in their Minds will I write them. And thereby he intendeth to express Sanctification as differing from Justification.

For

Book 8 For so he distinguisheth them in the Prophets Intention. For having said (v. 14.) That by one Offering Christ had perfected for ever them that are sanctified; he alledgeth the Saying of the Prophet, as in one including sufficient proof of this assertion, and punctually alledgeth both for the Subject and Predicate thereof. The Subject is them that are Sanctified, to which he applies these words, Those in whose Hearts he puts and writes his Laws; that is, those whom he sanctifies: Such he hath perfected for ever, in respect of Justification by that one Offering; which he proves from these words of the Prophet, which follow v. 17. And their Sins and Iniquities will I remember no more, and therefore they are perfected for ever. So then writing the Law in the Heart, is true and genuine Sanctification. It is such, that to the Persons that have it, Justification belongeth. Now let us consider these two Phrases.

1. Puting the Laws into their Hearts.

2. Writing the Laws in their Minds, which still aim both at one meaning.

1. He is said to put the Law into their Hearts, which you may conceive by what he did to Adam at the first, into whose Heart he put his Law. Now what was that Law, as it was put into Adam's Heart, but all sorts of holy Instincts, Properties, and Inclinations unto whatever God did command; and an antipathy against whatever God did forbid; this was the Law of Nature in his Heart. The Laws of God in Adam were Adam's original Nature, and the constitution of his Soul and Spirit. Which we may all easily apprehend by what we conceive to be the Law of Nature in Beasts, and other Creatures, which God hath put into them to act according to their kind, as to Beasts to love their Young, to Birds to build their Nests at such a season, with skill to do it. When God created man at first, he gave him not an outward Law written in Letters, or delivered by words; but an inward Law put into his Heart, and concreated with him, and wrought in the frame of his Soul. And the whole substance of this Law of God, the mass of it, was not barely Dictates or Beams of Light in his Understanding, directing what to do; but also real, lively, and spiritual Dispositions, and Inclinations in his Will, and Affections, carrying him on to what was so directed, as to pray, to love God, and fear him, to seek his Glory in a spiritual and holy manner. They were inward Abilities suitable to every Duty. And as an evidence of the Law, having been Adam's Nature, we have the shadow of it in the Hearts of all men, which evinceth it. For they do by Nature τὰ τῦ νόμυ (Rom. 2. 14.) the things of the Law: Tho' the inward part of the Law, the Holiness and Spiritualness of it be blotted out, which was then Adam's Nature. And the remainder of this, even in Corrupt Nature, and by Nature without outward Revelation of the Law, is an evidence that this Spiritual part (which is that of the Law which is lost) was once in man as his Nature: As we know what Corn the Earth once bore by the Stubble that is found upon the Field. So then, that Just, and Holy, and Spiritual Law, we now have extant in the Word, is but Historia Adami, The Story of Adam's Heart, viz. Of those Instincts and Properties which were once there: As Plinies Natural History, or Aristotles Historia Animalium, is the story of the several Instincts, Properties, and living Dispositions, and Postures of all sorts of living Creatures, painting out in a lifeless story, that which (when you come to see these several Creatures) you shall perceive naturally acted by them. And because the same Law is renewed again in the Soul, it is termed the Law of the Mind, which serves and observes the Law of God, as the Heliotrope doth the Sun, or the Needle the Loadstone, being pointed and touched by it. The Law of God is become the Law of the new Nature, and so the Law of Nature anew: And commands as a Law (Even as Sin is termed the Law of the members Rom. 7. 23.) ruling also as a Law useth to do.

2. The second Phrase is in Heb. 10.16. Writing the Law in the Heart, which imports the very same thing. And one Contrary serving to explain another, We may fitly understand what it is to have God's Law written in the Heart, by what is meant by the writing its Contrary; namely, Sin and Corruption in the Heart (Jer. 17. 1.) There Sin is said to be Written in their Hearts, as with the point of a Diamond; that is, deeply engraven. Now what manner of Letters theſe are wherewith Sin is written in our Hearts we have woful and daily experience of. They are letters ſuitable to the paper they are writ on. The Soul is a living active Creature, never reſting; and theſe letters are anſwerably ſtrong, vigorous, active, and lively Inclinations, and Provocations unto what is Evil and Wicked in all the varieties of it, which naturally ariſe. Such anſwerably are thoſe holy Characters written on a living Soul; and this the Apoſtle expreſſeth, 2 Cor. 3.3. For as much as ye are manifeſtly declared to be the Epiſtle of Chriſt, miniſtred by us, written not with Ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in Tables of ſtone, but in fleſhly Tables of the Heart. His ſcope is to clear that different writing of the Word of God by the power of Chriſt in Regenerate mens Hearts, from what it is on unregenegenerate mens Hearts, who alſo have the Law written in a Sort in them. He compares the latter to that writing the Law by God at firſt on a ſtone, or by Moſes on a Book: So comparatively, it's written on unrenewed Hearts, where when written in their Underſtandings, Memories and Conſciences, it appears and remains: Yet for the powerful efficacy of it, 'tis but as if it were written on Stone. There indeed he that hath it may read it written, for in the letter of it, it ſhews it ſelf; but yet, it's but written on a Stone or in a Book. But now, ſays the Apoſtle, ſuppoſe you ſee the ſame Law, by the Power and Finger of God written on Fleſh, on a Creature active and living; If you ſee this Law thus written by the ſame Power and Finger of God, which firſt put Laws into living Creatures to act ſo and ſo; What difference would there be evident between the former Writing and this? Such is the writing the Law in regenerate mens Hearts, (ſays the Apoſtle) It is written, not with Ink, but with the Spirit of the Living God; not in Tables of Stone, but in the fleſhly Tables of the Heart, that is, (ſays he) you muſt underſtand theſe Letters and Characters of the Word written to be anſwerable to the Spirit, with which they are written: Now this is the Spirit of the Living God who is a pure and meer Act, and his Life is Holineſs and Righteouſneſs, and he acts accordingly, and theſe Letters therefore are ſuch diſpoſitions of Life (like unto Gods) as ſhall incline the Creature by a vital Principle to act holily. The Letters are Spirit and Life in the Soul, and not dead Characters as on ſtone, ſuch as in unregenerate mens Minds the Law makes. They are alſo written there as on fleſhly Tables; that is, ſuppoſe you ſhould ſee the Living God would ſay, he would write on a living Heart, theſe Letters wrote, muſt bear a Likeneſs to the Subject or Paper written on, and ſo have living impreſſions ſuited to every Faculty and Power in the Soul; expreſſing the outward letter in living, and and active Energies and Vertues, according to the capacity of each Faculty. Conceive it thus, If you ſhould ſee the Statue of a man compleatly cut out in Stone (which is one part of the Apoſtles compariſon, to which he compares unregenerate mens Hearts) having all outward members, yea and the inward Parts alſo cut by a dead Tool by the ſame Artificer: And you ſhould hear God (who is the Father of Life, and is able to raiſe, out of Stones, Children to Abraham) ſay you behold this Man of Stone, this dead Noſe, Eyes, &c. which bear the Reſemblance of a Man: Come, you ſhall ſee what manner of Man I, that am the living God, will make of him, after my Image; what would you expect, but ſuch a man as now you ſee your ſelves to be, having all the members anſwerable to thoſe in that Man of Stone, and alſo not only the outward ſhape of a dead Eye carved in ſtone; but a living, quick, ſparkling, ſprightful Eye, that could diſcover this World and all things in it, out of a vital Principle? What would you expect to ſee, but an Heart likewiſe and Pulſe beating, Veins full of blood, the Arterys of Spirits, a living fleſhly Man, having all members like to that Man in Stone, but living and acting according to their ſeveral Offices and Properties enlivened with a reſtleſs Soul that enflames them? So it is here. Paul, when a Phariſee, had the Law carv'd forth in all the lineaments of it on his Conſcience, and Underſtanding. He had a form of truth and knowledge in the Law; but when Paul became a Believer, he had all this form and the members of it turn'd into Spirit and Life in him, into properties and inſtincts anſwerable to that outward Form, as hath been expreſſed.

Hearts

OF THE

(THE Third Person of the TRINITY)

BOOK IX.

Of the Eminency of Mercy and Grace discovered in this Work of Regeneration, comparatively with other Works wrought in us. Of the Greatness of the Power which God manifests in Regenerating us. Of the Influence which Christs Resurrection hath on our Regeneration.

CHAP. I.

The eminent Mercy of God, toward us in our Regeneration, evidenc'd, because it is the first apparent discovery to us of our Election. And because this work alone makes an alteration in our State, doth it once for all, brings us into an eternal State of Happiness, and alone makes a specifical Change in us.

I Have Discours'd of the Nature of the work wrought in us by God in Regenerating us, and of the several Parts of it; the next thing to be consider'd is the eminency of Mercy, which is shewn in this work. So eminent it is, that it hath singularly obtained the Title of Mercy, and obtaining Mercy:

Book 9 I who before (says Paul, 1 Tim. 1. 13.) was a Blasphemer, and a Persecutor, and Injurious, but I obtained mercy: He speaks of his Conversion: And the Grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant, (namely in that first work, in working Faith and Love) as it follows, with Faith and Love which is in Christ Jesus: And thereupon he breaks forth into that high celebration of God for the mercy in in it, v. 17. Now unto the King Eternal, Immortal, Invisible, the only wise God, be Honour and Glory for ever and ever.

There are three sorts of works whereby our Salvation is compleated and accomplished.

1. Immanent in God towards us, as his Eternal Love set and past upon us; out of which he chose us, and designed this and all Blessings to us.

2. Transient, in Christ done for us; in all he did or suffered representing of us, and in our stead.

3. Applicatory, wrought in us, and upon us, in the endowing us with all those Blessings by the Spirit: As Calling, Justification, Sanctification, Glorification.

My purpose is not to institute a Comparison of this work in us, with those two mentioned transacted towards us or for us, by God and Christ, but only with those other of the latter sort, wrought in us after Conversion. And so compared, this first work, and the Concomitants of it at first, have some things therein which may and should cause us to look upon it as a most abounding mercy; surpassing those other fore-mentioned that follow after it.

1. Because it is the first discovery, appearance and manifestation of the first Two, Election and Redemption; in the persons to whom they were intended, Titus 3. 4. when the Kindness and Love of God appeared: And how, and when did it appear? v. 5. According to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of Regeneration, &c. Gods Eternal Love, like a mighty River, had from everlasting ran, as it were, under Ground: And when Christ came, it took its course through his Heart, hiddenly ran through it; He bearing when on the Cross, the Names of them whom God had given him; but was yet still hidden here as to us, and our knowledge of it: But the first breaking of it forth, and particular appearing of it in and to the persons, is when we are converted, and is as the first opening of a Fountain: Whereto the calling of the elect Jews in the last days, is compared, Zach. 13. And accordingly in the first of the Galatians, Paul expresseth his Conversion to be the first revealing Christ in Him, and of Gods Grace towards Him: But when it pleased God, who called me by his Grace, to reveal his Son in me, Chap. 1. 15, 16.

2. There is no other Spiritual mercy we can lay claim unto, as ours, before this, or without this; but upon it we are led unto all mercies: This Peter (1 Epistle chap. 2. v. 9, 10.) expresseth, both in the Negative, and Affirmative thereof: The Negative, in saying that afore their calling, (of which in the words afore he speaks) they had not obtained mercy: The Affirmative, But now (namely upon calling) they had obtained mercy. Whilst a man lives without Regeneration, He is also without Promise, Eph. 2. 5. He hath now quickned you, who in times past were Strangers to the Covenant of Grace. And what are Promises but the Golden Veins or Rivulets that mercies run into? As the Dust and Sand of the purest Gold, use in several rills to do. Which Promises, though they were bequeathed before by Gods Eternal Decrees, and purchased by Christs Death; yet the right to them, the Seisin, the possession of them, is given at Conversion: 2 Pet. 1. 3, 4. After he had said, That His Divine Power had given to them all things belonging to Life and Godliness; (that is, furnish'd us with all requisite Abilities thereunto) through the knowledge of him that called us to Glory and Vertue, He adds, Whereby are given to us (delivery of Seisien thereby is made) exceeding great and Precious Promises; so as the younger Convert may upon Regeneration go over and run through all the Scriptures, and view and lay claim to what ever is promised of Spiritual Blessings therein. And oftentimes all the Promises are brought by the Spirit in unto this young Heir, upon his first Birth, for them to do Homage, at least to own him, and acknowledge him as their Heir.

Then

3. Then it is that both the first and the greatest Sum of pardoning mercy is granted and expended on us in the forgiving both of more sins, and of them at once, than perhaps ever after at several times. All the sins a man had committed for twenty, thirty, or perhaps more Years, lay on heaps. And forgiveness had not been given forth, not so much as for one of them, all that time. And every Commandment brought in his Bill, which the Spirit reduced unto Heads and made Catalogues of particulars under each Head. I was a Blasphemer, says Paul (and had Blasphemed times without number) a Persecutor, Injurious, and God forgave them all at once, as 'tis said Mat. 18. 24, 27. even ten thousand Talents at once. All the Debt and Arrears that had run on score so many years, were then acquitted. In the last chapter of James and the last verse, the Apostle exhorting to convert Souls to God, says, He that Converts a Soul, though but one Soul, hides a multitude of sins. For all his sins, till then, lay unforgiven. This you have Col. 3. 13. Where setting forth the mercy of their calling out of their unregenerate Condition, which he describes in these words, And you being dead in your sins, and the uncircumcision of your Flesh: And going on, You hath he quickned together with him. (There is their first Conversion) Then follows, Having forgiven you all Trespasses; All, and at once together; namely, then when quickned. Which great Debts in that former estate had been so long contracting. Chap. 1

I need not here debate that Point, whether all the sins Christ died for, for are at that time forgiven, though that Forgiveness be renewed every day, when pardon for new sins is asked by us, and so is to be sought for every day, as our Lord in his Prayer hath taught us. It is enough for the proof of my assertion, and acknowledged by all, that then it is, that such a multitude of sins past, so long continued in, come first to be actually forgiven; and that after calling he gives them forth pardon by the day, every day for the sins of the day, peccata quotidianæ incursionis. He that is in the State of Grace, asketh pardon every day for the sins of the day, as he committeth them; as well as we do pray for daily Bread (as in the Lords-Prayer we are taught) And we daily confessing our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive them, 1 John 1. 7, 9. And Christs Blood still cleanseth us from all sin. All along he speaks of it, as of the continuation of a continual Act that cleanseth; as a running Fountain doth what defiled things are brought to it: As in that respect it is compared to a Fountain opened for sin and uncleaness, Zach. 3. Fountains are called Living Waters, because they continually run, after their first springing, and cease not, and thus the Blood of Christ doth, and washes from the sinful flowings of that original uncleanness which is continually bubling up in us: Yet at this first opening of it it may be compared unto a Sea, in that respect we are now upon, of pardoning us at first, as (Micah 7. 19.) Gods pardoning mercies are compared; but in respect unto the continual cleansing us, it is compared unto a Fountain that always runs. And the difference of these two may be thus illustrated. There is a Father that spares and forgives a Son that serves him every day, and discharged his dribling debts (As I may, in comparison of the ten thousand Talents at first, term them) still as he runs into them: But Gods first forgiveness is, as that of the Father of the Prodigal, who had spent all his Stock given him, and run out of Cash Millions: Or as a Father that hath a Son that is a Merchant, who breaks, and is found thousands in Debt, and he at once discharged all, and gives him a new Stock to set up, and to begin the World anew with. A Father brings forth his Bags at such a time, and layeth forth more mercy at one clap, than by daily supplies all a mans Life after.

4. This work of Regeneration doth alone make that great Alteration (mentioned) of a mans State before God for all, and that for ever: That this makes the alteration of a mans State, I have shewn. The Apostle Paul hath it Tit. 3. 5. Hath saved us by the washing of Regeneration.

1. That this alone doth make the alteration of the State, is evident, because all other alterations after, are gradual, and additions of degrees, within the compass of the same State. Yea, even that great change from Grace to Glory, is but from Faith to Sight, from Imperfect to Perfect: We know but in Book 9 part (yet in part) as 1 Cor. 13. 12. Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face: Now I know in part, but then I shall know even as I am known. The same things which we believe, and know in part, we shall then see the whole and full of it: And it is but instead of seeing them in a Glass as now, then to see them Face to Face. The State of the man is one and the same, as to the Grace of God, when a Christian liveth, and after when he dies. To be the Lords, is the State of the man in both. The fellowship the same, it is but the change of place, not Company. Rom. 14. 8. Whether we live or die, we are the Lords. Faith it self hath Eternal Life in it, (1 John 5. 11, 13.) And not in hopes only, but it is in part abiding in him, 1 John 3. 15. Death and Heaven are accounted the great changes. As Job 14. 14. I will wait till my change will come. But this is a greater, a Turning from Darkness to Light, from Satan to God. Acts 26. 18. Yea, indeed God then actually gives the whole right of all, that ever he gives forth afterwards; Then in the Lump, afterwards by parcells. The Scripture calls it Salvation, and being saved, speaking in the great and the whole of it.

And 2. This great change is made but once. There is but one Baptism, as one Faith; and as the Faith was but once delivered to the Saints, Jude 3. So Baptism is but once to be administred; and why? Because the thing signified, sealed up thereby, which is Regeneration, is but once wrought, (but the Lords-Supper is often celebrated, 1 Cor. 11. As oft as ye receive) which is therefore called a Baptizing into the likeness of his Death and Resurrection. Rom. 6. 4, 5. And that in two respects, which are the same with those before us. 1. In as much as Christ died but once, and rose but once, Heb. 7. 27. and Heb. 9. 26, 27. Once in the end of the World he died, and offered up himself, even as it is appointed for men once to die. And 2. That the estate he rose into, is an eternal State of Life, Heb. 10. 12. He for ever sat down on the Right Hand of God. Now both these the Apostle applies in that Rom. 6. unto men Regenerated, and Baptized into Christ, by instituting the Parallel between our State by Regeneration, signified by Baptism into Christs Death and Resurrection; and Christs Death and Resurrection it self, in both these very respects forementioned, in these words, 9, 10, 11. Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more; Death hath no more dominion over Him: For in that he died, he died unto sin once, but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also your selves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord: From whence he infers, v. 12. That Sin shall not reign. 'Tis a Promise, as well as a Command: And those words, Likewise reckon your selves, import the Parallel to lie in this, That as Christ died but once, and rose but once, so we are planted by Baptism and Regeneration, (which work bears the resemblance of his Death and Resurrection, and whereof Baptism is the sign) but only once: And thus, as in Heb. 9. we heard the Apostle saying, that Christ dyed but once, so in Heb. 10. 26. We read, that for that very reason it is, that those that have been illuminated, and made Partakers of the Holy Ghost, &c. (of whom you read in the 6*th* Chapter of that Epistle) that if they shall sin wilfully, after they have received the knowledge of the Truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin: Which is all one as to have said on Christs part for us, for Christ died but once. And it is once, therefore answerably hereunto there cannot be a new Repetition of the work of Regeneration, which they professed to have received at their Baptism; which that 6 Chapter of the Hebrews v. 6. had given a clearer explanation of. That those who have been enlightned and tasted of the good Word of God, and have been Partakers of the Heavenly Gift, &c. if they shall fall away, it is impossible to renew them again unto Repentance.

And why? But because as Christ died but once, so men are renewed but once. And therefore those that hold total falling away from Regeneration, must either hold no second Regeneration for such, which is to put them into despair, or they must say, that Regeneration is often reiterated, and then that Baptism, the sign of it, ought also to be repeated (even as the Lords-Supper is) and then Christs Death reiterated also; for these are Parallels in the Apostles intention.

4. As the change wrought in Regeneration is once for all, ſo the Eſtate we are brought into thereby, is an Eternal Eſtate, never to be changed As Chriſt dyed once, and Lives ever, and Death hath no more Dominion over him, likewiſe reckon your ſelves: This Second Adam, Chriſt, that came to reſtore us, being immutable, and his ſtate unchangeable, ſuch is the State and Condition of the Members of him, (1 Cor. 15. 45.) And they are called Chriſts Fellows, (Pſal. 45. 7.) being made partakers of Fellowſhip with him, in his Death, and in the Vertues and Glories of his Reſurrection, (Phil. 3. 7.) and Regeneration, (whereof Baptiſm is the ſign,) is their Admiſſion into that Society. And they are admitted, in Socios Perpetuos. In that they Live, they live unto God, and Sin hath no more Dominion over them. Chap. 1.

Now then, All this put together. 1. Regeneration changeth the ſtate of a Man. 2. This alone doth it. 3. Once for all. 4. Brings him into a perpetual Eſtate; all this (I ſay) put together, Argues the Mercy Tranſcendant. And further, by how much, the miſery of that eſtate from which, may be greatned, or the Priviledge of that eſtate, into which we are by Regeneration brought, may be agrandized, (which is not my Scope) by ſo much is the Mercy of this New Birth to be Eſtimated by us.

5. This alone makes the Specifical change: All other changes that follow, are but Gradual. I intend to make this Branch diſtinct from the former, as to my purpoſe in hand, (though I confeſs it may be made one branch, involved in the foregone,) the change of a Mans ſtate of Salvation, is mainly a Moral, Legal, Forinſecal change: as that change which of a Man Condemned to Dye, unto a ſtate of Life, or that of a Servant, to a Son, (which out of Rom. 6. was inſtanced in) of an Heir of Hell, to be an Heir of Eternal Life: And the greateſt change of our eſtate lies in ſuch priviledges: Or as John expreſſeth it, John 1. 13. in giving us Authority to be the Sons of God. But over and above ſuch as theſe, there is a Phyſical change, which is more properly the impreſs of Regeneration, which is a work in us: The other changes are the conſequents, or concomitants thereof; and that is it that makes a Specifical change, as all Births, and Generations, and Corruptions, are ſaid to do: Other changes, by growings up in Grace; are but Gradual, From Faith to Faith: Rom. 11. 17. from Strength to Strength, Pſal. 84. 7. From Glory to Glory, 2 Cor. 3. laſt. Tis true, the ſubſtance of a Mans Nature, as a Man, is one and the ſame afore and after. It is therefore called but putting off an Old Man, and putting on a New: Even as you caſt off, or put on another Garment. And alſo that Holineſs, or the Divine Nature, is but a quality, which as it is more worth than a Mans Soul, devoid of it, ſo doth raiſe the Soul into another kind, or ſpecies of Man, taking it together with that indwelling, and information of the Holy Ghoſt, Who dwells in that inner Man, (Eph. 3. 16.) As another Soul in our Souls. Nay the very Body, the Animal part, is ſaid to be the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt. And it is added, who is in you, in your Souls, namely by a nearer conjunction, than in your Bodies. John 14. 17. He dwelleth with you, and ſhall be in you. And the concluſion of both is, that take this new Creature, with this indwelling of the Holy Ghoſt, in it, and the Old Man, with the Inhabitation of Satan in him, and it makes analogice, a greater change in kind, than if a Beaſt were made a Man, a Clod of Earth, a Star.

If the Spiritual body, and the natural Body, (of which the Apoſtle ſpeaks 1 Cor. 15. 44.) If the Heavenly Man Chriſt, and thoſe that appertain to him; and the Earthly Man Adam, and his Earthly ones, (v. 47, 48.) may by the Apoſtles Arguings, and Compariſons, (and ſo in his account and intentions) be ſaid to differ, like the ſeveral Species of Creatures, which you reckon differing in kind, (v. 39.) By theſe differing Species, he ſets out the difference of the Natural and Spiritual Body (v. 44.) whenas that is but the change of qualities in them, which yet is ſaid to make this vaſt difference: A vaſter difference muſt needs hold much more in this Tranſmutation of our Souls, we treat of. The one is Natural, the other is Spiritual. The Perſons are in the Scripture termed, another Generation of Men. Peter diſtinguiſheth

Book 2 thoſe that are diſobedient. (1 Ep. Cap. 2. v.) 8. and thoſe Born again, (v. 9.) with a [But] of diſcrimination. But ye are a choſen Generation. Chriſt calls the other a Generation of Vipers. The Pſalmiſt ſays, theſe are the Generation of them that ſeek thee. And to the other a diſtinct Generation is attributed by Chriſt, As in that Speech, they are wiſer in their Generation, than the Children of Light, who are of another ſort. And hence it comes to paſs, that the change made by the New Birth, is in Scripture expreſſed by ſuch changes; or as the Apoſtles word is (Rom. 12. 2.) by ſuch a μεταμόρφωσις, be Transformed by the renewing of your Minds. It is a word which the Poets uſed to expreſs thoſe changes they feigned, from Men to Beaſts; or Beaſts to Men. The Reality of which in this Work, might by many Scriptures be made good, by ſhewing how the Specifical Properties of Mens Spirits are altered. Like as if a Lion were made a Lamb, and ſuch like: And this change the New Birth makes at firſt, and that alone in wholly beginning that New kind, which was not before.

CHAP. II.

The Eminency of Gods Mercy in our Regeneration Evidenced from theſe conſiderations. That no Motives from us can be ſuppoſed to incite God to do this for us. That we do not ſo much as concur to the Work, but are meerly paſſive to it. The Uſes of the Doctrine.

UNTO all that hath been ſaid, this may be added further, That there can be ſuppoſed no Motives inciting God to beſtow this bleſſed change. It is not according to Works of Righteouſneſs which we had done: In giving other Mercies, after he hath begotten us he may at leaſt take occaſion from ſomething in us to move him: As to give perſeverance, for he that hath begun a good work will perfect it; for Artifex amat opus: And he is Faithful that hath begun it, to finiſh it; ſo to him that hath brought forth Fruit already, he is therefore moved to Purge him, that he may bring forth more Fruit, John 15. 1. And to him that hath, ſhall be given, as Matth. 25. and often elſewhere. He Crowns his own works in us with a farther encreaſe. But before Regeneration, there is neither any work of ours by us, nor work of his own in us, to move him. In giving Glory, though he doth not beſtow it propter opera, for our work, yet Secundum opera, according to Works, I ſpeak as to degrees of Glory. (So every where up and down in Scriptnres) only in this work of Regeneration, there is neither Propter nor Secundum. Even according to works is excluded. No Secundum, but of his Mercy. According to Mercy. (So Paul.) According to his abundant Mercy. (So Peter) hath he renewed us.

2. The leſſer Concurrence man himſelf may be ſuppoſed to have in any work done by God for us, the greater, the intirer is the Mercy ſhewn in it, for then 'tis wholly Gods. Now of all things whatever may be ſuppoſed we can do for our ſelves, we cannot beget our ſelves. As not at firſt could we have created our ſelves. Neither can any Creature do this for us. So John 1. 13. Who were Born (ſays the Evangeliſt) not of Blood, nor of Fleſh, nor of the Will of Man, but of God. This Birth goes not by Blood. Neither, that we are born of great Parents, or of good. Therefore Say not, (ſays Chriſt) you have Abraham to your Father. Nor is it of the will of the Fleſh, the power of man's Corrupt Will, who is born nothing but Flesh. Water may as soon of it self attain the form of Fire, as the will of the Flesh, that is, the Will as acted and enformed by Flesh, elevate it self, or be elevated (remaining Flesh) into the least disposition or act of Holiness. It is not in him that wills or runs, but in God that shews mercy. Nor is it in the will of man, nor of our Parents or Friends, that use all means to do us good; nor of the Holiest through their Prayers or endeavours to work it. Abraham would have had Ishmael, but God would not. No power or will of any Creature whatsoever can regenerate us: But it is God who of his own will begetteth us, as it is James 1. 18. Chap. 2

And the reason of this is founded upon this observation, which holds in Nature, That the more noble the Birth is, the more God hath a hand in it: And this being the most noble and wholly Divine and Heavenly, therefore it is alone from God. Animals are only said to be begotten: Now Beasts being more ignoble Creatures, unto their begetting God concurrs but by the ordinary way of Providence: For they traduce both Soul and Body: But the birth of Man being of the most noble Creature, God therefore reserves the main immediate stroke in it unto himself; and the Parents having prepared the Body through that plastica & prolifica Seminis vis, God comes and infuses the Soul. And therefore (Heb. 12. 9.) He is called the Father of Spirits, and they but the Parents of our Bodies. Sol & homo generant hominem, says the Philosopher: That is, God and Man do beget man. But in this new birth, because the most noble of all, God doth all, and all is to be ascribed to him, James 1. 17. Every good Gift, and every perfect Gift, is from above, and cometh down from the Father of Lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning: And then he instanceth in this of Regeneration, of his own Will he begat us. The Coherence evidently argues this to be so noble and so perfect a work of Gods, and of such a kind as is wholly Heavenly and Divine, and from him as the Father of Lights. That as nothing but the Sun it self, that is the visible Father of Lights, can cause a true genuine Likeness or Image of it self, whether in the Eye, or in a Glass, or in a Parrelion in the Clouds. So none but God alone can and doth frame the true Image of himself in the Hearts of men. This rich and noble begetting us of his will, is therefore wholly Heavenly and from above, for it is a perfect Birth, a good and perfect gift, and so entirely descending from above: Whereas the works raised in the Hearts of Temporary Believers are made up partly, through the influence of Heaven, partly from self-love stirred up and excited thereby, and so are but imperfect Gifts; Like those Creatures begotten by the Sun warming and shining on Mud, as Frogs and other creeping things, whose form is raised and educed out of that corrupt matter the Beams of the Sun fell on.

I add, That take the Substantials of it, we contribute nothing, but are meerly passive. Therefore an Infant is as capable of all the Essentials of Regeneration as a man grown up is: And therefore of Baptism. For what are the Essentials of Regeneration?

1. Christs apprehending us ere we him, Phil. 3. Thus Children are capable of being apprehended by Christ: Even as Children in the Womb are comprehended by the Mother, though they hang as the Earth, in the middle, not laying hold on her.

2. The Holy Ghost shed down into the Heart, as here in the Text. This Children are capable of, for John Baptist was filled with the Holy Ghost from the Womb, Luke 15.

3. The New Creature in all the Principles of it, the Habits of Holiness wrought, the Workmanship (as 'tis call'd) which Children are also as capable of: For as they are capable of all the evil dispositions of sin, and inclinations to it, so of Holiness: Yea and therefore of sin now, because once of Holiness; So as in receiving all these, a man may be wholly passive: And yet these are the Substantials. All that follow are but the actings, by the Spirit, of that New Creature in us; and our apprehending that for which we are Book 9 comprehended (as the Apostle speaks) yea and it is as certain, That ere any man can be born of Christ, he must be apprehended of Christ, And ere he have Spirit or Divine Nature begotten in him, he must have the Spirit come upon him, As also ere he can put forth the least Act of Holiness, he must have the Principle of Holiness: As no man that hath not a Principle of Life can stir a Finger, or that hath not an Eye, can see. So then, in receiving all these a man of riper years is passive; and the receiving of all depends upon no foregoing actings of his. Turn me (say they in the Prophet) and I shall be turned. (Jer. 31. 18.) Whereas afterwards acti agimus, (Rom. 8. 13.) We by the Spirit do mortifie the Deeds of the Flesh: Not the Spirit alone, but we by the Spirit, who in our Prayers is said to help our Infirmities, (v. 26.) And therefore they are said to be our Prayers as well as the Spirit's in us. When the Lamp is once lighted put, oyl to it and it burns; but who shall light it? When the Wheel is made round, an easy touch sets it a going; but who shall round it? In this therefore we are meerly passives. Though when thus turned, we also turn to God, Jer. 38. 18.

8. Even of all the good works we are enabled afterwards to do, this is the Womb, the Foundation: So as without this one work first begun in thee, no work thou doest or canst do, hath the Name of good: Even as all evil thoughts and lusts in the Heart proceed from that corrupt Nature we had at our Birth, That is the Mother of all Abominations, Which David in his Confession Psal. 51. had recourse unto. So is this Seed of God, the Divine Nature at first put into us, The Seed abiding, whence all that is good and acceptable springeth. They are all fruits of the Spirit as the other of the Flesh, Gal. 5. All the good we bear is from the Root. First (says Christ) make the Tree good. In some trades there is required frames of workmanship to be set up, or cast, ere they can work: As to a Printer, a Press: To him that will cast Letters, a Matrix (as they call it) To a Weaver, a Loom: To a Smith, a Forge: To a Goldsmith, &c. Molds to cast Metals in, from whence they receive their fashion. And the whole actings in their Callings afterwards, do depend upon such Workmanships and Fabricks at first erected: Now so is it here, as in two places to follow these Metaphors the Apostle holds forth. The one 2 Eph. 10. Ye are his Workmanship created to good works. A new Workmanship must be created, ere any good work will be effected. The other text is, Rom. 6.17. You have obeyed from the Heart that Form, Mould, or Pattern of Doctrine ye were delivered into, τύπον εἰς ὃν παρεδόθητε. The Word of God he compares both to a Pattern or Sampler of Obedience; and to a Mold, or Matrix, which their Hearts were first cast in themselves; that so they might become a meet, fitted and prepared Womb, in which, and from which all obedience might receive its formation and shape, and there be cast. Now you know that such as the Mold is, such are the things cast therein; if they be mishapen, then are all the metals cast therein spoil'd, As in some Wombs the formation of Children also is. Thou mayst perform works of all sorts that are good; but let me tell thee, unless thou hast thine own Heart first made a new workmanship, a workmanship created and forged by the Spirit anew, as a Principle thereunto, thou spoilest all in the doing, thou marrest all in the making. This for the Reasons of this point,

Use 1. Let the Saints bless God in a more special manner, for this work of Conversion and Regeneration wrought in them. Study the Riches of that mercy, which have been shewn in it. Put this eminently and usually into that Catalogue of mercies which thou givest thanks to God for. Two things are not reminded enough by us, our first Birth-sin, to humble us in our Confessions; our first Birth-mercy to make us thankful; wherein abundance of mercy is shewn, there God looks for abundance of thanks-giving. Many Years after Peter remembers it, to bless God for it, and stirrs up them to it, and puts himself into the number, who hath begotten us. So Paul also speaks, (who delights and takes often occasion to tell that Story) to the King immortal, &c. 1 Tim. 1. The Links of that Chain, Whom he hath predestinated, them he hath called; them he hath justified, them he hath glorified, we ſhould always wear about our Hearts, to oblige us to thankfulneſs and obedience. Kings uſually owe more to their Births, in which they were meer paſſives, than to all their after Atcheivements. Kings are therefore wont to celebrate their Births. At the beginning, and the laying the firſt foundation of God's great works of wonder, the Angels are ſtill brought in ſinging and rejoycing. At the foundation of the Earth, Job 38. 7. When the morning Stars ſang together, and all the Sons of God ſhouted for joy. So at the Birth of Chriſt, an Heavenly Hoſt, a multitude ſang. We read not ſo at his Reſurrection. Again, at the Converſion of a Sinner, there is joy amongſt all the Angels. Heaven rings of it, that a new Heir, a new Prince is born. And beſides, the ſubſtance of the mercy it ſelf, if thou canſt find out any peculiarity of mercies that environ it in the Circumſtances of it, conſider them, and bleſs God for them, this work being one of the greateſt Acts that ever God did about thee, or towards thee. God ſomtimes plots to ſet forth the mercy of it, to make his hand and love in it the more eminent and remarkable. Chriſt's Birth was accompanied with a Star, which made it obſerved by the wiſe men: And all Jeruſalem was troubled at it. And as our late Chronologers undertake, it fell out in the four thouſandth Year of the World, as the finiſhing the Temple, his Type, in the three thouſandth: And alſo at a time of general and univerſal Peace. Some Circumſtances or other, perhaps, thou mayſt diſcern in thy new Birth (if thou haſt had the advantage to diſcern the time or occaſion of it) I ſhall mention ſome that are not meerly circumſtantial: Whereof, though ſome one may be different from the other, yet in their variety, they have ſome peculiarity of mercies. Chap. 2

1. The longer thou didſt live before God turned thee, and yet did it, and the more ſinful thou wert, this, in one reſpect, wonderfully heightens the mercy of it. Chriſt encountred Paul as a man would do an Enemy, in the open Field; Unhors'd him in full careire; when his Heart was more than ever ſet to do miſchief, and near the place of doing it.

2. On the contrary, The ſooner God turn'd thee, if in thy Youth, this was mercy to thee, for God had thy Virginity, thy firſt love, before Lovers had bruiſed thy Breaſts. I remember (ſays God) the Kindneſs of thy Youth, when thou wenteſt after me in the Wilderneſs. Paul in this reſpect complains of it as a diſadvantag to him, That he was born out of time, and like a Truant had been put to this School or Academy, long after other Apoſtles, who had the Start of him. He ſeems to mention it with a little holy Envie at that honour others had before him, who were (ſays he) afore me in Chriſt; and thereby were elder Diſciples than himſelf. Jer. 2. 2. 2 Cor. 5. 8. Rom. 16. 7

3. If God at thy Converſion gives thee a greater ſtock and meaſure of Grace, brings thee forth in a fuller Stature in Chriſt the firſt day, herein is great mercy ſhewn. Thus Paul was recompenſed. He was born a ſtrong man the firſt Hour, Inſomuch as being the chief of the Apoſtles added nothing to him in experience or Knowledge, Gal. 2. Many are born Weaklings in compariſon, and are long a growing up to what thou, perhaps, at firſt receivedſt.

4. If when God began to work it, he did effect it ſpeedily, in this he was kind to thee, Hoſ. 13. 13. Ephraim is an unwiſe Son, he ſtayed long in the place of the breaking forth of Children. If as Mathew, we come at the firſt call, (The rude and barbarous Jaylor had quick diſpatch: He came in trembling at Midnight to Paul, and was converted with joy before Break of day; Yea, the ſame hour, Acts 16. 25, 29, 33, 34. The Philipians, the firſt day they heard it, Phil. 1. 5.) If as Paul, immediately thou conferreſt not with Fleſh and Blood, Gal. 1. 16. If as ſoon as God called, thou heardſt, and wert not rebellious, but openedſt thine Ear, this is an effect of Gods peculiar love to thee.

5. If God put thee to leſs trouble and horror, brought thee forth with leſs pains, in this, his mercy appears. Some Souls have very hard labour. Paul lay but three days, and Chriſt from Heaven pities him, and ſends Ananias to him. The Stone in ſome mens Hearts God diſſolves, when others are cut for it, and lie roaring night and day. Lydia's Heart was gently opened, and by Faith closed up a-Book 9 gain (as Adam's was for Eve) ere she was aware. Though sometimes it falls out, the lesser Fine, the more there is in Rent after, in greater Temptations.

6. Greater mercy is display'd to thee, if God came in then with much joy, when as he deals so roughly with others, as Joseph did with his Brethren; but no sooner thou hadst begun to confess and open thy mouth to speak to him for his love, but he fell on thy Neck and kissed thee: Yea, came and kiss'd thee sleeping, and with joys first awakened thee: And instead of shewing thee the Rack, the Dungeon, the everlasting Chains of Wrath, and shutting thee up under the Law; he had thee down into his Wine-Cellar, and brought thee to a Banquet. The Thessalonians were thus dealt with, 1 Thes. 1. 9. Ye became Followers of the Lord, having received the Word with joy in the Holy Ghost, &c. In a thousand of these varieties doth he deal with Souls, and playeth with us in his wooings, that his ways should be past finding out. And if all the stories of Souls Converted in this, as well as in the primitive times, were written, you would admire Christ for nothing more than his Art of Love, and the variety of his Artifices in wooing; and his manifold Wisdom in contriving Mercies in Conversions.

7. The more exemplary our Conversion was, the more peculiar was the mercy shewn in it. And such was that of those forenamed Thessalonians, 1 Thes. 1. 7, 8. Ye were Ensamples to all that believe, and in every place your Faith to Godward was spread abroad. Such likewise was that of the Romans. Rom. 1. 8. And of the Ephesians, so Eph. 2. 7. And thus Paul also speaks of his Conversion: That he was a Pattern of mercie to them that should afterward believe. And thus much shall serve to shew the greatness of this work from the abundance of mercie that God shews forth in it.

Use 2. You that have received this mercy from God, shew mercy to others; if in any thing, in endeavours what in you lies, to beget men to God; tho' God alone doth it, yet he useth means, though those means contribute nothing, yet God useth them, as the Clay to open the Eyes. Hast thou a Chamber-Fellow, a Pupil, a Friend, a Brother, still in their natural estate? Oh if thou hast received mercy from God, endeavour to bring them in to obtain like mercy with thy self. On some have compassion, save them with fear,
Jude 22, 23. pulling them out of the Fire. With fear least they should die ere converted, snatching them with all violence. Can you endure to see men burn? Hear what James also says in his last words, If any of you do err from the Truth, and one convert him; let him know that he which converteth the Sinner from the errour of his way, shall save a Soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins. Let him know; he speaks of it as a matter of such high worth and moment as few consider the worth, the greatness of such a work. Let him know he saves a Soul from Death, and whom would not that move? And it is a means of forgiving innumerable sins. Who, with speaking a word would not get a man in debt for thousands, freed. A man that converts another (though he contribute so little that God doth all) yet the person converted owes himself to him, Philemon 19. Oh what dowe then owe to Christ? And we have nothing but our selves to give to him.

Use 3. Despise not the Ministry, nor work of it: It is to convert Souls, and therefore it's the best Calling in the World, 1 Tim. 1. 12. And I thank Jesus our Lord, who hath enabled me: For that he counted me Faithful, putting me into the Ministry; The despised Ministry, that few of you now a-days will be of that calling, The Wares it deals in is Souls, Men and their Salvation. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Thou shalt save thy self and them that hear thee. He could not give a greater motive unto any work. God had but one Son, and he made him a Minister, Rom. 15. 8. Christ was a Minister of the Circumcision for the truth of God, which he preach'd among the Jews, through all their Cities. One of his Royal Titles is, a Bishop of Souls, 1 Pet. 2. 25. Only he is the chief, the Arch-Bishop, 1 Pet. 5. 4. and we under-Shepherds.

Use 4. Lastly, What is then, the Glory of the Church, and so should be of Universities? Even this, that multitudes of Converts are Born again therein, and they fill'd with such. In the 57*th Psalm*, 3, 4, 5, 6. the Psalmist enters into a Comparison, in this very respect, of the Surpassing Glory of Sion and Jerusalem, the Mother of us all above all those Nations, and Cities that were then Renowned in the World, as Babylon, Tyre, Ægypt, &c. Who boasted of those Worthies and Heroes that had brought forth and been the Mothers of their Belus, Trismagistus, Glorious things (says he) are spoken of thee, Oh City of God, and far more Glorious, than all the Nations. I will make Mention of Rahab, and Babylon to them that know me. Behold Philistia and Tyre with Æthiopia. This Man was Born there Among their Familiars they used to Boast and Brag of their Brave and Gallant Men, as born among them. But of Sion it shall be said, This, and that Man was Born in her. If he had intended to vye and Compare Sion with Babylon and Ægypt, in respect of an outward Birth, and Nobleness in that Respect, or for Worldly Excellencies, that make Men Renowned, they might have excell'd Sion, at least, equal'd her Sons in that Respect. But Sion, considered here as the City of God, her Glory Spiritual, her Children here spoken of, Born of the Spirit, and she a Spiritual Mother of them, (as Gal. 4. 25, 26, 27, 29. the Apostle speaks,) and so their Birth answerable and suitable to the Dignity of the Mother, that she brought forth every day multitudes of Saints and Regenerate Men, Children and Citizens of that Hierusalem and Sion that is above, the Mother of us; her Glory in Gods account was Ten Thousand times greater then what the flower of all other Nations could pretend to. And therefore he adds that God when he makes up his Catalogue of those whom he accounts of, should pass by all theirs, and leave them out, and set down them only, that were Regenerate and Born in Sion, as the only excellent ones of the Earth. As it follows, The Lord himself shall establish her, (as having such a Royal Generation for her Race and Progeny) the Lord shall Write when he counts up the People, that this Man was Born there. All which the Apostle alludes to, speaking of this Heavenly City, and her Children: Ye are come to Mount Sion, the City of the Living God, the Heavenly Jerusalem, the first Born which are Written in Heaven, Heb. 12. 22, 23. And this was Sion's Glory and Establishment then, Psal. 127. As Arrows in the hand of a Mighty Man, such were the Children of her Youth as these. Oh that such may be Yours. And whilst former times have boasted they have sent forth out of such a Colledge so many Bishops, Deans, &c. or Famous Writers, Men of such and such Learning, and Renown, the Memory of whom you continue in your Windows, let the Glory which you affect be, that such and such a Man was Born again here; and blessed are the Colledges that have their Quiver full of them as the Psalmist there goes on. And these shall more speak for you, with your Enemies in the Gate, then all other Arguments. Yea, God himself will Establish you; and these that Cry, Down with her, Down with her, shall not dare to attempt it, much less to effect it.

Chap. 2

CHAP. III.

The Eminent Mercy of God in our Regeneration appears inasmuch as all Three Persons Concur in it, though it be attributed efficiently, more Eminently to the Holy Ghost.

I SHALL farther Demonstrate this Truth, from the Solemnity that is in Heaven at the effecting of this Work of Regeneration, in a set distinct Concurence and Appearance of all Three Persons, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost therein. Which will yet further shew the greatness of Divine Mercy in this work.

This Great and Happy Conjunction appears in Titus 3. 4, 5, 6. But after that the Kindness and Love of God our Saviour, toward Man appeared; Not by Works of Righteousness which we have done, but according to his Mercy, he Saved us, by the Washing of Regeneration, and Renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour. There is a Distinct and Conspicuous Appearance of these Three. The Word used in the Text is ἐπεφάνη After that the Love and Kindness of God [APPEARED] when our Lord and Saviour was Born, it is said his Star Appeared, Matth. 2. 7. The same Word is used, and the Remembrance thereof, the Church call'd ἐπιφάνια the Epiphanie unto this Day. But here is a greater Epiphanie than that was, an Appearance, not of One Star, but of Three, the Three Persons, not a Constellation, but a Great Conjunction in the Heaven of Heavens.

1. There is the Father, who in the 4*th verse* is call'd, God our Saviour, as a Distinct Person from Christ, who is also call'd Our Saviour, verse 6. And of the Father, it must be meant, that it is said, that HE hath Saved us, and that HE hath shed on us the Holy Ghost, through Christ Our Saviour, the Father is spoken of as distinct from those Two.

2. There is the Holy Ghost's Appearance, who is said to be Richly, or Abundantly shed, which in those times often was visible: Peter and the rest, having received the Holy Ghost, he doth appear to the Senses of the Standers by, Acts 2. 33. He hath shed forth this (namely the Holy Ghost (mentioned and spoken of in the very words afore) which we see and hear: Your Senses may inform and convince you, it was so evident an appearance, both in the shapes of Tongues, as also in the Gifts and Graces on a sudden poured forth upon illiterate and sinful men. The same appearance of the Holy Gost you have in Cornelius, Acts 12. 44. which was conspicuous to Standers by: That it is said v. 45. They of the Circumcision were astonished, because on the Gentiles also was poured out the Gift of the Holy Ghost. For they heard them speak with Tongues and glorifie God, v. 46.

And 3. Here is Christs Concurrence also. Which he shed on us through Christ, says the Text. For upon the preaching of Christ, and upon mentioning of his Name, did the Holy Ghost fall upon men. Peter Preaching Christ, and Peace by him, (Acts 10. from v. 36. to v. 44.) When he had centred his Discourse in v. 43. That to this Christ all the Prophets gave witness, that through his Name whosoever believeth in him shall receive Remission of sins, the next words tell us, That whilst Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the Word. The Holy Ghost took that very Cue (as we say) to come in and enter upon the Stage; that is, then to fall down on all that heard heard the Word; thereby witnessing, that as Remission of sins was through his Name only, so that the Holy Ghost, to work Faith in his Name, was poured forth through his Name also. As the same Peter had before in that, Act. 2. 33. Enformed his Hearers, That Christ being exalted at the Right Hand of God, Having received of the Father, the promise of the Holy Ghost, hath shed forth this. Chap. 3

For explication of this: 'Tis true, there is a joint concurrence of all three Persons in every Action that is done: For Opera Trinitatis ad extra sunt indivisa. But then of such lesser Works and Appearances of God, you read the mention of their Concurrence but singly, in several and scattered places of Scriptures. So it is scatteredly attributed to the Father to create, and to the Word, and to the Spirit. But where and when in any work you find at once and together all three appear; all mentioned in a Chapter, as here in the Text for Regeneration; that work is ever some eminent work; and hath a Not only upon it, a Solemnity in it. Yea and thereby is signified, that over and above their ordinary and common Influence, they have a special, distinct, and extraordinary hand and operation. As Gods Presence was ordinarily in the Pillar of Fire, and the Cloud in the Wilderness; but if the Glory of God at any time appeared over and above, upon the Tabernacle, then some great thing was in hand, either of Judgment or Mercy. Perhaps many other Instances might be brought, wherein these three great Persons are together brought in as met in the like near conjunction. I shall instance but in two, the greatest of all other, and but in these, because they hold some parallel, with work of our Regeneration, and are Patterns of it, They both of them apertain to our Lord Christ our Head, to whose Image we are ordained to be conformed, and so will serve to illustrate the like done towards us in this Regenerating of us.

1. What was the greatest work of wonder that ever God did in the World? It was the Incarnation of the Son of God, Jer. 31. 22. God hath created (says the Prophet, speaking of it) a new thing in the Earth, viz. That a Woman should encompass in her Womb that Ghèber, that strong and Giant-like Man, Christ, God and Man, without the help of Man.

Now at the Instant time and moment when this was to be done, there was a manifestation and declaration of all three Persons in it. A Record is extant how all, though invisibly, concurred in it, not darkly, with an Us in general words, as at the Creation, Let us make man; but clearly and distinctly. And as at the Transfiguration of Christ (which Peter maketh the solemnest and most glorious manifestation of God, that ever he had been a Eye and Ear-Witness of, 2 Pet. 1. 16, 17.) You find, to grace the Solemnity of it, Moses, Christ, and Elias talking and conferring together: So here, there is the very Conference recorded: A set and solemn Conference it was in Heaven, and the words spoken set down at the Instant of Christs Conception: The Father declaring his decree about it to the Son.) And the Son speaking to the Father of his willingness to it. Paul hath recorded and set down the very words, as a great Secret, as it must be accounted, Heb. 10. 5. When he comes into the World he says, 'tis the Son of God he speaks of, as existing afore he took mans Nature, and the words that follow, spoken by him, are expresly said to be at the time, instant, or moment of his coming into the World, and his being made Flesh when he came into the World, as prophesied of by David, and Paul affirms he then did utter them. This his taking Flesh, was a going forth from his Father (as himself stiles it in John) the setting out upon the greatest Adventure and Design that ever was. And therefore Christ, at the time of his first setting forth, thought fit to speak something about it, as a distinct Person from his Father, as he that should be interessed in it; (for none was to be made a Sacrifice but he;) to let him know upon what ground it was he undertook it, meerly in obedience to his Will. The like he did when he Suffered, Not my will, but thine be done, which was his Motto from first to last. Sacrifice and Offering thou (as speaking to his Father) wouldest not, but a Body hast thou prepared me.

Now

Now as Christ is thus expressly introduced, so it is to be noticed, that his Father, had given the occasion, having first declared to him and revived the remembrance of his everlasting Decrees and Prophecies about it. For the Speech of Christ, (v. 7. Then said I, lo I come to do thy Will,) Is evidently in answer to another Speech first uttered and declared to him by his Father, which he repeats v 6. when in Burnt Offerings and Sacrifices for sins, thou oh Father, hadst had no pleasure: Then or thereupon said I, Lo, I come; Reviewing also the memory of God's Decree, and an old Record about it: In the Volume of thy Books it is written of me, to do thy Will oh God. God the Father had declared his Will, both viva voce, & Scriptis; and the Son his. And the Holy Ghost, the Secretary of Heaven, is brought in as the Recorder of all this, v. 15. Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a Witness. That word [also] bids us take in this Allegation of Christs Speech, as that which is referr'd to, as well as to that Quotation which followed. And he was in a peculiar manner in this, for none else could have told it, as uttered at that very time, but he.

And for this Christ hath expressly told us, That as he and his Father do confer together about the great transactions of mans Salvation: So that the Spirit hears all that passeth, John 16. 13. Nor yet did he stand by as a bare Witness, to relate it and confirm it to us, but was sent down by both as a principal Actor, that had the great and ultimate hand in effecting of it.

The Son of God speaks of a Body prepared by the Father for him to take up, A Body hast thou prepared me. The Father had a hand in it then, but by whom? By the Holy Ghost, so expressly, Luke 1. 35. The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall over-shadow thee: Therefore shall that holy thing that shall be born of thee be called the Son of God. Here is then, if not a visible Θεοφανία, as our Divines call that at his Baptism: Yet an evident Record of an invisible and distinct conjunction of all three Persons, at the Instant of Christs Conception, bearing their parts in it.

1. The Father declaring it as his Will, both to the Son and the Spirit.

2. The Holy Ghost, as the Person sent by the Father, to perform and fashion that Body in Mary's Womb. This Tabernacle being of another building, which God pitch'd, and not Man, Heb. 9. 11. and 8. 2.

And 3. The Son, as the Person that owns and assumes that Body so prepared for him, to dwell in it, as in a Tabernacle (as the Author to the Hebrews terms it) Lo I come into the World, which was only done by his taking that Body to himself, into one Person with him.

And this great and eminent concurrence of all three, may perhaps more clearly be gathered from the Story of the Angel's coming to Mary Luke 1. 26, 27, &c.

1. God the Father sent his Angel. The Angel Gabriel was sent from God, unto a City of Galilee named Nazareth, to a Virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the House of David; and the Virgins name was Mary. God the Father gave his Angel his Commission, and a particular note of all the Circumstances, as punctually as any one that sends a Messenger of an Errand. God sent him to a City of Galilee, and by Name Nazareth: To a Virgin espous'd, and her Husbands Name is in the Note, A man whose Name is Joseph, and his Lineage of the House of David. You see God the Father was deeply in it.

2. The Holy Ghost, he was sent, as was observed v. 35. The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee.

3. God the Son must needs be supposed most in it of all Three. For by vertue of his assuming unto one Person, that holy thing which was conceived in her, it was, that (v. 32.) He was called the Son of the Highest. And if he had not actually assumed, married into one Person with himself, that which was formed in her Womb by the Holy Gost, it had not been called the Son of God, as v. 35. it is. He it was, who put on and wore, and married this Flesh made of a Woman; and therefore his consent was of all other most explicite.

And

And thus began the New Testament (as became it) with the discovery of the Three persons in that great work, at which the Æra of the New Testament it self began. And this so distinct a discovery of the Three at the Incarnation, being thus express and eminent, hath not been enough noticed by our Divines, nor added in handling this Argument, unto those other at Christ's Baptism and Transfiguration: How this at Christs Conception, and that happy Contract and Espousal and Union made between the humane and divine Nature, will conduce to illustrate the like at our Regeneration, I shall shew, when I have added another Conjunction, more famous, because more visible, namely, at Christs Baptism; Where usually our Divines begin the Discovery of the Three out of the new Testament. And this I shall also speak (though more briefly) unto, because both these, put together, will have their joint Vertual Influence of tending to clear the Point in hand. Chap. 3

The meeting of the three Persons at his Conception was invisible: For the formation and union of his humane Nature was, as ours, in the lower parts of the Earth, hidden and under ground, as the Psalmist speaks. And unto which, speaking of Christs formation in the Womb of a Virgin, the Apostle alludes Eph. 4. 9. But what was as then uttered and transacted between the three Persons in secret, was at his Baptism to be proclaimed upon the House Top. It was the publick Owning, Inauguration, and Installment of the Son of God. It was the Solemnization of that Marriage between the two Natures, Humane and Divine, which had been carried more privately yet, by all the same three Witnesses. And accordingly God took a time for this, when all the People were Baptized and standing by (so Luke 3. 21. Mat. 3. 5.) who had come out of Hierusalem, and all Judæa, and the Region about Jordan; when they were all thus standing by. And Jesus was Baptized praying, v. 21. Heaven opened, which is the greatest outward Miracle in the Heavens; as an Earth-quake, or opening of the Earth, is on the Earth: And Heaven opened to let down the Revelation of the greatest Mystery; which only could be Cœlitus, or from Heaven revealed: A Light comes down from the Throne of God; and all three Persons make an outward manifestation of themselves. Pater in Voce, Filius in Homine, Spiritus sanctus in Columba. And what is the business they appear about? But to own their former Act and Work. To proclaim that Christ. They had met to make the Christ at his Conception: Now they meet openly to proclaim him to be the Messiah and Son of God: Yea, and to seal up and give Testimony to the humane Nature it self (who had lived 30 Years without any such extraordinary Revelation) That he was indeed the Son of God: That this holy thing born of that Virgin, was the Son of the most high God, as the Angel told Mary. And unto both these Testimonies and Transactions of God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, both at his Conception and Baptism, doth that tripple Testimony of the Three in Heaven refer, mentioned by John the Apostle; John 1. 5. v. 5, 7. Even to this, That Christ is the Son of God. A gust. Tract 6. in John.

But have I told this long Story meerly to this general purpose, to shew that in Gods greatest works of wonder there is a distinct appearance of the Three? Or withal to add a new Instance of the Θεοφανία, of the Three; And indeed the first mentioned in the New Testament, and upon the greatest occasion. No, not to these ends only or chiefly have I told this Story, as singly to be considered; but further, as more particularly conjunct with the thing in hand, as parallels with all, tho' transcending this of our new Birth and first Conception of the new Creature in us, or that other work, the manifestation of it at the, sealing of Salvation, or the revealing Christ in us, (at it is call'd Gal. 1. 16.) The forming the new Creature, for Christ and the three Persons to dwell therein.

There is nothing in Christ, or of Christ, but it is set up as an Image, or Pattern of the like to be done to us in our measure, being Predestinated to be Conformed to the Image of his Son, Rom. 8. As he was Circumcised, so we have a Circumcision ordained for us, Col. 2 We have a Crucifying, Burial, Resurrection, as he had: We have a Conception, a Forming Christ in us, an Uniting us to Christ. As in him there was the Union of Two Natures; there is a time wherein

Book 9 we are made Adopted Sons, as well as there was a time in which he was born the Natural Son: I might Quote Scriptures for all these, but you know them. In the 4th of the Galatians the 4th and 6th Verses compared, the Apostle seems to institute a Parallel between God sending forth His Son made of a Woman, and his sending forth (for he useth that word of both in common) the Spirit of his Son into our Hearts, Crying, Abba Father. But when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son made of a Woman, made under the Law. And because ye are Sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts, Crying, Abba Father: Thus clearly Parallelling the Conception of the Humane Nature and Union with the Natural Son of God, and our being made Adopted Sons by the coming of the Holy Ghost, into our Hearts. Observe the Parallel in this Respect by compareing Scriptures.

1. As there was a fulness of Time, an instant of Time when the Son of God was to be made Flesh, and so be admitted a Member of this World; so there is a fulness of Time, a set Time to send down his Spirit into the Heart to Regenerate it. Gal. 1.15, 16. But when it pleased God to Reveal his Son in me, (says Paul,) God let me run on much of my Time, of which he speaks, v. 13, 14. but having chosen me before, and separated me from the Womb, he had a set Time when to Reveal his Son in me.

2. When that set Time is come, set by the Father, of whom Paul there speaks; The Father begins and sets all a work in the Conversion of that Soul. This Christ Expresseth in the 6th of John: Where Christ giving the Reason, why some Souls come to him, and not others, He resolves it into His Fathers Act and Will, as the main; (verse 64, 65. which is the Conclusion of his Discourse about it.) But there are some of you that Believe not. For Jesus knew from the Beginning, who they were that Believed not, and who should Betray him. And he said, Therefore, said I unto you, that no Man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father. Now he attributes to his Father a double Hand or Stroke in it, one towards the Soul it self, the other unto Christ himself, that is to be Married now to it.

1. There is God the Fathers Actual drawing the Soul to Christ, a Whispering to the Heart to perswade it to take his Son; himself secretly wooes the Heart for him, verse 44, 45. No Man can come unto me, except the Father which hath sent me, draw him, and I will raise him up at the last Day. It is Written in the Prophets, And they shall be Taught of God. Every Man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father cometh unto me. Of this you read (Psalm 45.) what kind of words he speaks, and what Counsel he gives a Soul, that is brought to Christ, as verse 14. Hearken, Oh Daughter, and give Ear; even as He had spoken to his Son, to make himself a Sacrifice.

2. As He thus actually draws the Soul to Christ, (and the Father is at that Work, and at the Cords end) so He Actually gives the Soul unto Christ, that Christ would both take the Soul, and own it, when it cometh to him. Thus verse 37. All my Father giveth me, shall come to me; and him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out. And he speaks this as the Reason, why some Believe, and some not, though they hear the same Sermon, and have the same means. So verse 36. But I said unto you, That ye also have seen me and Believe not. Now Christ giving these as Reasons, why some came, and some not; and why, he Receives those that come, because the Father draws, and the Father gives; speaks of both as of Two like Acts of the Fathers, done by him at Conversion; then it is the Father thus gives, and the Father thus draws. And though God had given them to the Son of God, from Everlasting, as (John 17. Thine they were, and thou gavest them me.) Yet now he renews that act of giving them to Christ. Therefore de Presenti, Christ useth the present tense. All that the Father gives me, it is a giving, de præsenti, as a drawing de Præsenti, to distinguish it from that, from Everlasting. And so as Christ resolved it into his Fathers Will, Heb. 10. (as you heard) why he came into the World at all, so verse 38. He resolves the Reason why he owns and receives them that come to him, unto his Fathers Will in like manner. For I came down from Heaven, not to do my own Will, but the Will of him that sent me.

me. And this Gift or Donation is as if then, and at that time, the Father ſhould riſe up in Heaven, and ſay to his Son, Yonder is a Soul which I gave thee from Everlaſting, whom thou Diedſt for upon the Croſs; and now is the fulneſs of time Written in my Book, the ſet time appointd by me to have Mercy on him, for him to come unto thee, now take him for thine, take hold of him, and draw him to thy ſelf, and ſo joyns with Chriſt in drawing him. This is the Fathers work in Regenerating us. Chap. 3

2. The Sons Work is as follows.

1. Of Himſelf, he ſays John 10. 14, 15. I am the good Shepherd, and know my Sheep, and am known of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even ſo know I the Father, and I lay down my Life for the Sheep. He knows them particularly, and perſonally, as they know him, even by name. And as he loves us, ere we love him, ſo he knows us ere we can know him. Yea, look as diſtinctly as the Father knows him, and he knows the Father; even ſo diſtinctly doth he know, and take notice of all his Sheep, and this when he is to bring them to himſelf, as v. 16.

2. At that time he firſt takes and apprehends that Soul as his, and to be his for ever, in anſwer to that Gift of his Father then made, Phil. 3. 12. I follow after, if that I may apprehend that, for which alſo I am apprehended of Chriſt Jeſus. He ſpeaks of that Act put forth by Chriſt in apprehending him firſt, ere he did him, which is the fundamental Act of Union. As Chriſt loves firſt ſo he apprehends firſt. And as he had compared before his Chriſtian Life to a race which he was to run, ſo here he tells us how Chriſt took him firſt by the hand, and held him when he firſt entred into that race. However he means it of that act of Chriſts at his firſt Converſion, which is the foundation of all that we afterward purſue after. And herein you ſee the parallel runs on, as at Chriſts Conception: As then the Son of God his work was to take to that Body fitted for him, (Heb. 2. 16. He took not to, or he took not hold of Angels, but the Seed of Abraham.) So us at our Converſion, and thus works the union.

3. The Spirits work hath been diſcourſ'd of before. I ſhall now only mention that Text in Gal. 4. 6. Becauſe ye are Sons (namely by Election) God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts, crying, Abba, Father. And this Spirit works Faith in us, which is Hands, and Feet, and all. It is ſeminally the whole New Creature, Hands to lay hold on Chriſt again; and we embrace him (Heb. 11.) And embrace him gladly, Acts 2. 41.

4. As all three Perſons thus between, and among themſelves deal ſecretly, and treat with each other for us; the Father giving and recommending, the Son apprehending, both ſending the Holy Ghoſt into the Heart: So in our coming to God, both firſt and laſt, we have our paſs from one Perſon to the other, and have diſtinctly to deal with them all. Which is contained in one verſe, Eph. 2. 18. For through him we both have acceſs by one Spirit unto the Father. And this is more open and more ſenſible to us, as the other more ſecret. The word in the original is προσαγωγὴν. The Spirit being come into the Heart leads us by the hand back again to Chriſt: And Chriſt leads us to the Father.

I will give you but one Inſtance of one Converſion, which I have had recourſe to hitherto all along, and which is Paul's, who profeſſeth himſelf converted, as for the ſubſtance of it εἰς τύπον, for a Pattern, 1 Tim. 1. And though his Story hath this extraordinary in it, that Chriſt viſibly apprehended, him. And the Holy Ghoſt fell on him in laying on of hands upon him; yet for ſubſtance the ſame things are done in Heaven for us by the Three, who love us as they loved him: Even as at Chriſts Baptiſm all Three appeared, but at ours not, yet we are Baptized in the Name of all the Three. In the ſubſtance of Salvation, Converſion, Faith, &c. The Apoſtles had not any Priviledge, that we have not.

1. The Fathers good pleasure appeared in Paul's Conversion, as you have it expressed Gal. 1. 15. 16. When it pleased God, who separated me from the Womb, to reveal his Son in me.

2. Of Jesus Christ, you may read twice in the Acts, chap. 9. from the 6th verse, and Chapter 26. How Christ bestirred himself at his Conversion. He meets him in the way at the place and time appointed. And himself speaks to him v. 5, 6. And he said, Who art thou Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: It is hard for thee to kick against the Pricks. And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the City, and it shall be told thee what thou shalt do. And Christ directed him what to do: And not only so, but speaks himself to Ananius, v. 11. And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the Street which is called Streight, and enquire in the House of Judas, for one called Saul of Tarsus: For behold, he prayeth. You see he gives as particular directions as God the Father did to the Angel, when he sent him about the Conception of his Son. It is to shew what notice he takes of all the Circumstances of a Souls Conversion. No kind Husband could more bestir himself at his Wives Labour than Christ did at Paul's travel in the New Birth. He calls up Ananias at midnight, as it were, bids him go in all haste to help him, Behold, (saies he) he prays, v. 11. He is in his throws.

3. The Holy Ghost (v. 17, 18.) wholly falls upon him, and this at his laying on of hands, and hi being Baptized.

Use. You that are Regenerate, and born again, the Saints and Children of God, shall I affect your Hearts a little? Whom would not this love move? There was a time, though perhaps thou knowest it not, when all this ado was in Heaven about thee, unknown to thee, when thou wert first married unto Christ, the greatest Espousal that ever was transacted, one alone excepted, and that was when the humane Nature and Divine were espoused together in Christ. And the same kind of stir that was for Paul, was also for thee; what was done extraordinarily and visibly by him, was as effectually and strongly carried on and done for thee. He was directed by Christ what to do, and Ananias directed to go to him, and his Condition made known to him, that he might know what to speak unto him. Now the same hand did secretly guide and direct thee: Perhaps to go to such a Congregation, which thou hadst no mind unto; or for fashion-sake frequentedst: Or thou fell'st into such or such a Company of such or such persons, who spake so or so unto thee: Or such and such an accident befell thee as thou wert going such or such a Journey: As Saul in seeking his Fathers Asses, was meet by Samuel in the way, and he is anointed unto a Kingdom: And so wert thou taken in the heat of the pursuit of Vanities. And as his secret Providence directed thee, so perhaps the Minister or Person that spake unto thee, when thou wert first drawn to believe or close with Christ, had such a word put by God into his mouth, as if he had known thy very Heart and Condition, such promises as most nearly concern'd and suited thy Spirit and Condition, and Temptations. Even as he directed Ananias to speak to Paul what most concern'd him. And when by this invisible Conduct he had brought thy Heart and his Word together; He then shed forth his Spirit upon thee, Who made that good word effectual to thee, and it return'd not empty to him that sent it, but had that blessed Effect that he intended. Or perhaps when thou wert first humbled and stricken for sin, God took a keen Arrow out of the Quiver of his Word, and put it into the hand of an able Minister or Friend, which shot by him at random (as when Ahab was stuck) was carried home by the wind of the Spirit that went with it into the Heart and wounded it. And such Circumstances as these may move thee to acknowledge that good hand, that was the Mover and Orderer of them in Heaven, in Analogie to his Dealings with Paul. But above all the Three persons affect thy Heart with the love of God the Father unto thee. At such a time when thou wert in the Church in the midst of the Croud; first the Father he spyed thee out there, and remembers it was the time, the full time to have mercy on thee, which he had written in his Book. And thereupon riseth up (as it were) in Heaven, and saith unto his Son (as Christ upon the Cross did to his Mother, Woman behold thy Son) See, Son, says he, behold, thy Spouse, designed unto thee from Everlasting. Take him and apprehend him for thine at my hand: I will see you married, and the indissoluble knot tyed ere he stir from hence. Which is more, than as if the greatest King on Earth should espye, in the midst of Multitudes, a Beggar standing in Rags, and say to the Prince, his eldest Son, Go marry her here afore me. And then when he had bespoke Christs Heart, he also bespake thine. He let down a Cord of love into it, which took hold thereof, and and drew thee by it to his Son and to himself. Chap. 3

Christ

And when Jesus Christ had thy Soul actually a new commended to him, by his Father, he looking on thee, said with himself, That Soul! Surely I should know it. This is the very same that my Father presented unto me from everlasting, says the Second Person, in all that glorious Array which I am to be the Endower of her with, which made her appear so lovely, as it then took my Heart; but it is so much altered since, I scarce can know it, being defiled with so many Sins. And yet again, saith the man Christ Jesus, it is the same was presented unto me by name with all these very sins, when I was to suffer. I know her sure enough by a good Token; for she was brought and presented to me in the Garden, and hanging on the Cross, with these very sins, she is now guilty of, and I have the Remembrance in Scars upon my Soul, which these sins made, when my Soul was made an Offering for sin: And so he takes her for his. And then he sends his Spirit into thy Heart; And what the Spirit wrought upon thee when he drew thee unto Christ; I leave that to thine own experience to bring to mind.

Now the joy that was thereupon in the Brest and Bosom of God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, was not contained alone in this Transaction, but to make the Solemnity the greater, it was diffused throughout the Heavens. Not one, but two Parables are made on purpose by our Lord Christ to express this Jubilee unto us, in Luke 15. First, there is a man that sought his lost Sheep, than a poor woman that sought her lost Groat. The Stir and Zeal each shewed about it is sufficiently expressed; as deciphering the Heart of God and Christ therein to such a Soul, in that he leaves Ninety nine to seek such a Soul, long before it thinks of seeking him, which it doth not, but is prevented by him. And he goes out, with that resolution, not to give over seeking until he hath found it, come what will. And this eager resolution is expressed v. 4. He leaves the Ninety nine in the Wilderness, and goes after that which is lost, until he find it. And then when he hath found it, he lays it on his Shoulders rejoicing. What doth this signifie, but his own abundant gladness? He hath at last found it, with care to keep it: And this Action of laying it on his Shoulders speaks his Heart, as saying within himself, Have I now got you with all this trouble and pursuit? I will now make sure work of letting you run away again, or giving me, any more, the slip. So doth he rejoice, and so careful is he, that he lays it on his Shoulders, he doth not venture to drive it afore him: No, he will not trust it so loosely. He doth not only hold it in his Hands; (though therein (as Christ says) 'tis safe enough, for my Sheep none shall pull out of my Hands.) But puts himself to some trouble and care about it, lays it on his Shoulders Rejoicing. Oh how full of joy is Gods Heart and Christs Heart that he cannot contain it in his own Brest, but makes a solemnity of it! Calls together a Parliament of his Neighbours and of his Friends, (v. 6.) and makes such a matter and story of it; saying unto them Rejoice with me, for I have found my Sheep that was lost. So then, it's having been lost, is that which encreaseth his Joy. And yet when all is done, it is but a ragged, scabby Sheep all this ado is about. Oh but God loves it, Christ hath laid down his Life for it. For who is this Sheep? v. 7. It is a Sinner that repents. And who are those Friends God calls together thus to rejoice? v. 10. There is joy in the presence of the Angels of God. The higher House of Heaven is call'd together on purpose to rejoice, though the lower House regards not such a poor Soul.

Well, but it will be said it may be thus at so great a Shoal of Converts, Book 2 as in the Converſion of the Jews ſhall fall out, or when 3000 in a day are Converted, as (Acts 2.) Nay, but this is at the Converſion of one Sinner: And as Abraham made a Feaſt at Iſaac's weaning, ſo God feaſts the Angels with the Converſion of each and every Sinner. And 'tis emphatically ſaid the Angels of God, even thoſe that have God to rejoice in, have their joy yet more full by the Addition. But it carries with it this Reaſon, That it is becauſe they are Friends. The account is v. 6. God and Chriſt are ſo well pleaſed with it, as the Angels know and perceive full well, their Nearneſs and One-neſs with God, and ingratiate themſelves by Joyful acclamations at their Converſion.

CHAP. IV.

That there is an exceeding Greatneſs of Gods Power apparent in our Regeneration. This is demonſtrated from the nature of the work in General.

THERE is not only Infinite mercy, but the almighty power of God manifeſted in our Regeneration. It is exceeding greatneſs of Gods power, no leſs than that which raiſed Chriſt up to Glory, which is neceſſary to work Faith and Grace in the Heart of every true Believer. I deſire that all thoſe who in their Opinions and Expreſſions do leſſen and extenuate Gods work herein (as Arminians do; or others who in the ſecret ſayings of their Hearts, and practiſe in their Lives, make the work of Grace very eaſy, and in their own power, and therefore refer their Repentance to their own leiſure) would but come and conſider what the Spirit of God tells us, Eph. 1. 19, 20. And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power; v. 20. Which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the Dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places. Whatſoever low, and mean, and ſlight Conceit we, not knowing the power of Gods Grace, may have of it; yet let us but conſider,

1. Who it is that let fall theſe words, it was not only Paul (who had the deepeſt experience and inſight into a work of Grace, more than all the Diſcourſers in the World) whoſe authority were enough in the caſe; But it is the Spirit of God in Paul, from whom they dropt, 2 Pet. 1. 10. compared with the Chap. 3. v. 15, 16. Now it is this Spirit of God that gave out theſe words, who is the great Agent in the Buſineſs, and employed in it, (Luke 1. 35.) It is the power of the Higheſt (as it is call'd Luke 1. 35.) who works it; who hath been the Converter of the Apoſtle Paul, and of many millions of Souls; that expreſly ſays there is thus much power goes to it. If at any time God will convert any Soul, he muſt put forth the exceeding greatneſs of his power. If we would know how much Force goes to the effecting of any thing, the ſureſt way is to hear the Agent himſelf ſpeak; The Standers by, nay, nor the Patient it ſelf, doth not, ſo fully diſcern it often; when Chriſt healed the woman of the Bloody Flux and that but by the touch of the Garment, the Standers by, the Diſciples, they diſcerned nothing; but hear Chriſt himſelf ſpeak, δύναμις, Power or Vertue (ſays he) is goneout from me; He could tell, and beſt might, what pains went to effect that miracle; becauſe it went from him. So now alſo for the work of Grace, becauſe it is diſpatched often and done in a trice, as we ſee in Paul and the Thief, and done as it were by the touch or ſtriking of the words of a weak man at the Ears of another, therefore the Standers by think there is no great power power goes to all this; but ask him whoſe work it is, and he tells you, it is the exceeding greatneſs of his power, &c. If a ſtrong man lift up a great weight, and doth it ſlightly; the Standers by are not competent Judges what force goes to it, but only the man himſelf that felt the ſtreſs put to it. So it is here. Indeed the Spirit of God cloaths and hides this exceeding greatneſs of power working in Believers Hearts, by uſing ſuch ſweet perſuaſive motives, and gentle, rational Inducements, as Cords ro draw mens Hearts, as the Word of God hath in it; which is the reaſon why ſome bring down all this great power ſpoken of, to moral perſuaſion, making the working power of the Spirit of God in drawing mens Hearts, but as an Engineer that draws and winds up ſome heavy weight by Ropes faſtned to it; as in Cranes and the like Artifices: So as the Ropes bear the ſtreſs, and all is done by their force; and if the weight be too heavy, it cracks them, and down falls all again; and ſo the Spirit works not but by thoſe moral perſuaſions in the Word, by enlightning, faſtning 'em to the Heart; and if the Poiſe of the Will, and weight of Sin, (which ſo preſſeth down, Heb. 12. 1.) If it breaks thoſe Bands aſunder, all the Spirits work is loſt; the Heart falls down and ſettles again in the ſame Eſtate it was; which if it were true, wherein ſhould this exceeding greatneſs of Gods power be ſpent? Doth the Spirit make more of it than it is? if the Spirit effected but by his power concurring with the force of ſuch Twine threads only in themſelves; why ſhould ſuch big Words be uſed about it? You ſee in ſuch kind of working, the power of a Child is able to wind up great Weights, if the Cords hold: But the Truth is my Brethren, That the Spirit, willing to hide the greatneſs of his power, immediately working, and having hold on the heart, [the Work of Grace being the only ſtanding miracle in the Church] uſeth theſe Inſtruments in the working of it, yet doth it not according to the Strength and Force of theſe, but according to the exceeding greatneſs of his power alone. As when the Angel ſtirr'd the Water of the Pool, it was not the Angels ſtirring that Healed; but the immediate power of God then extended, and by that means; So nor is it the ſtirring of Gods Spirit of the Heart by good motions, or moral perſuaſions, though theſe be uſed, that work Grace; but the exceeding greatneſs of God's Power extended in and by theſe; working beyond the ſphere of their power and activity: And that this is ſo, will be evident if you

2. Conſider Secondly, the Inſtance given; It is ſaid to be the ſame Power that wrought in Jeſus Chriſt in raiſing him from the Dead: Now to raiſe any one from the Dead, is an act of the immediate power of God. Chriſt in raiſing up Lazarus ſaid indeed, Lazarus, Come forth, John 11. 45. But was it the Word think we, or the Power of God that went with this Word, rais'd him? And ſo the Spirit uſeth Perſuaſions to the Heart, but there is a farther power goes with them; But yetif you obſerve the Words of the Text, the working of Gods power here in Believers Hearts, is not ſimply Parallell'd with the power of raiſing Chriſt from Death to Life; but from Death even to that glorious Eſtate, he now in the Heavens enjoys, which is a work of further power than the raiſing up of Lazarus and any Dead man; for there is a great diſtance between Death and Life, ſo as it muſt be a great Power to raiſe one from the One to the Other; but between Glory and Life, there is yet a hundred times a vaſter difference; So that now to raiſe Jeſus Chriſt, ſo low laid in the Grave, and Subdued by Death, not to Life only, but far above Principalities, &c. to that Top of Glory in Heaven; this is the exceeding Greatneſs of Gods power indeed: Therefore (Rom. 1. 4.) this work of raiſing himſelf thus up, is made the greateſt that ever God did by his power; and which of all other manifeſted to the utmoſt, That Chriſt was the Son of God; put that out of queſtion, more than all his Miracles: he was Declared to be the Son of God with power by the Reſurrection from the Dead; ſuch was the Power ſhewn in that work above all elſe; and therefore the Holy Ghoſt ſingles out that, to expreſs his power in raiſing men from Sin to Grace; a greater diſtance being between them, than ſimply the natural Death and Life; even as much as between the eſtate of Chriſt humbled in the Grave, and Glorified in Heaven; and the like exceeding greatneſs of power worketh in the one and other.

3. Again

Book 9 Again. 3. Consider the great Superlative Expressions the Holy Ghost useth, besides the Parallelling it with the instance given. It is not only great power, but greatness of power, and that exceeding greatness: Now such superlative expressions are never used, concerning any Attribute, but when it is manifested in some work of God to the utmost, and more then in other former works of his: In comparison of which, these superlative expressions are used and taken up: And indeed you shall find them only used in the expressing his Works of Grace; which being as it were Nova Scæna et ultima Representatio, The last stage whereon his Attributes are to shew themselves, and act their parts; therefore every Attribute that appears on this Stage in any Act, doth its utmost, most superlatively, beyond what was done in former works of Creation, Providence, &c. and therefore every Attribute that bears a part herein, hath superlative Expressions of it. Take any Attribute, viz. his Mercy, which he shews in other Works, when he speaks of them as shewn in other Works, 'tis in the positive degree, simply thus, His Mercy is over all his Works; that is, shewed in, and to them all: But when he comes to speak of the Mercy and Love shewn in the Work of Grace, he contents not simply so to express it, but he tells us of the Riches of his Glory, and the Height, Breadth, &c. of his Love, which passeth Knowledge, Eph. 3. 16, 18, 19. And he speaks of God who is rich in Mercy, according to the great Love whereby he hath loved us, Eph. 2. 4. See what Superlative Terms he here useth, that are in no work of common Mercy, because indeed more Mercy is shewn to one poor Redeemed Soul, than to all the World besides; The like is of his Power here, expressed in other works of Creation, it is expressed in the positive degree, Rom. 1. 20. They (says the Apostle) express his Power and Godhead: But when he comes to speak of the power shewn in the working of Grace and second Creation, then nothing serves to express it, you see, but the exceeding greatness of his power: For it being a New Creation, his last Work and way of manifesting his Attributes, so every attribute must exceed in it; for that is Gods manner, that his last Works if he do any, should be greater, and clean put down the former. He observes it in Deliverances (Jer. 23. 7.) and so in all other Works, so as if he shewed power in Creating at first; if he come to Create again, he will have it be such a Work wherein much more power shall be shown, even the exceeding greatness of his power; for every Wise Agent, if he doth a thing over again, will be sure to exceed; he Reserves the Greatest to the last. Now therefore will you set the Work of Creation by this Work, and equal Gods Power in that with this here, see how it equals it: Creation is a making something out of nothing: Why this Work is a Creation also, 'tis called (2 Cor. 5. 17.) a Creature, and we are said (Eph. 2. 10.) to be Created to good Works. But yet there is something more, for it is said to be a New Creature; now as in the case of the Covenants, (Heb. 8. 13.) speaking of the New Covenant, he hath made the first Old; so this Phrase, the New Creature, implies, that there was an abolishing of some old thing first; and so the next words do certifie us, 2 Cor. 5. 17. Old things are past away, all are become New. Behold here is a greater Work than was at the First Creation, in that there was but a making something out of nothing; here are Old things first to be Destroyed, to pass away (that is) come to nothing) which to do, requires as much power as to Create) and then New to be made. There is a Great Building, Old things pull'd down, and abundance of Rubbish to be pull'd down and carried away, and then a New Erected; yea, all Old things must be done away, and all must be made New, not a Stick, or Stud that goes to Old Building, will serve in the New: And yet this is not all; For in the First Creation, only nothing was before, and nothing that opposed it; though all made of nothing, yet nothing against it; but now in this Work, these Old things do mightily oppose it, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5. Rom. 8. 7. God hath much more therefore to do, not only to destroy Old things before he make New, but Old things that are Enmity.

There is not only a changing of Water into Wine, which is done daily in the Grape, as (John 2.) but of contrary into contrary, of Hearts of Stone into Flesh, Fleſh and Volves into Lambs, Ezek. 36. 26. Iſa. 11. 6. This is greater than any Miracle Chriſt ſhewed, and therefore he tells his Apoſtles that were Workers with God as it were in this Work, that greater Works than he did, they ſhould do, even as Great as the Greateſt and laſt Work Chriſt ever did, in raiſing himſelf from Death to Glory.

Uſe. Is there ſuch an exceeding Greatneſs of power in the ſaving Work of Gods Grace, which intereſts us in the rich Inheritance of Glory? Why methinks this ſhould begin to Rowſe and Startle many of us, and make every one of us, that look for a part and Portion in that Inheritance, to conſider with himſelf, whether there is ſuch a Work of Grace in his Heart, as bears proportion, correſpondency, and in the working of it anſwers to ſuch an exceeding Greatneſs of Power, ſo as neceſſarily it ſhould draw forth ſo much Power from God, to work it. For we cannot imagine God doth overdo any thing, without imputation of Folly; no Wiſe Agent will put more ſtrength to the working and effecting of a Buſineſs then will neceſſarily work it, for there would be ſo much ſtrength as is overplus, ſpent in vain, as the Prophet complains. A King will not ſtretch out his Perogative Royal, or ſend an abſolute mandate, uſe his extraordinay power, when the bare intimation of his Pleaſure will do it; and therefore certainly God, who is ſaid to do all things in weight and meaſure; and who doth always proportion his power to the Work, will never exert ſuch an exceeding graetneſs of power, if leſs would ſerve the turn; Conclude therefore we muſt that the true Work of Grace, hath all this Power ſpoken of neceſſarily drawn out to work it; and therefore we ſhould do all well to examine whether we have had ſuch a working on our Hearts, as bears proportion with ſuch a power, ſo as we can Conclude and ſay, I feel ſuch a Work wrought in me, which no power but the power of God thus mightily unbared and manifeſted, could ever have wrought; and the Prints of ſuch a Work we may ſafely build on, as a note of Election, as the Apoſtle makes it, 1 Theſ. 4. 5. Knowing your Election for that the Word came to you in power, &c. And indeed, I know, no better way to diſtinguiſh the common workings of the Spirit, which ſo many falſely take for Notes of Electi-on, than by this Truth now in hand; for though they be all Works of the Holy Ghoſt, and Works of power alſo, yet not ſuch as the exceeding greatneſs of power here ſpoken of, and no leſs, ſhould be engaged in them; and therefore now to lay aſide ſuch as have had no working on their Hearts by the Spirit more then nature, who as thoſe (Acts 19. 2.) cannot tell by any Working that they have felt of the Word and Spirit, whether there be any Holy Ghoſt, Yea, or No; and who are Reſembled unto the High-way ſide, to let them paſs as thoſe in Jude 10. Who as Brute Beaſts, know no more then Nature: Let us Examin you that think you have ſome Work of Grace to ſhew for Heaven.

1. Firſt, Some will ſay, I am no Adulterer, no Drunkard, no Unjuſt Perſon, but Sober, Chaſte, &c. and is not this a Work of a Gods Power in me, and of his Grace, being more than Nature?

For Anſwer.

1. I Grant it is a Work of God, more then Nature, Mans Nature being as fully prone to theſe Sins as any other, and the Scripture telling expreſly that God reſtrains ſuch Diſpoſitions in Men, God kept Abimelech from Adultery, (Gen. 20. 2.) And Laban from hurting Jacob, Gen. 31, 34. &c.

Yea, and 2. I grant it to be a Work of Power, as great as to ſay to the proud Waves of the Sea ſtay here your Waves, and overflow not; or as it was to chain up the power of the Fire, from ſingeing the Garments of the Three Children; ſo to ſay effectually to the Pride, Malice, and envy, &c. of a Wicked Man, Boil not over, requires as great power; and not only ſo, but to Work and Stamp ſlight Impreſſions and Tinctures of Moral Vertues, is a Work of great power. Yet,

3. It

3. It is not comparable to that Power which wrought in Jeſus Chriſt, in raiſing him from the Dead.

1. Becauſe the inſtance of Reſtraining Grace alledg'd, is but keeping the Dead Body from ſtinking, and putrifying ſo much as elſe it would, and cauſing it to retain ſome of the colours a Living Body hath, though Wan and Liveleſs, which Embalming of a Dead Body will do, for many a Year: And ſo indeed that Men are kept from ſtinking, and retain ſome Colours of Juſtice, Chaſtity, &c. is from an anſwerable Embalming power of the Spirit, but this is far from that power which puts a new Principle of Life into a Dead Man, and raiſeth him up to Life.

2. Reſtraining Grace, is but keeping in, and reſtraining Sin in Men, yet ſo as ſtill there is not the leſs of it in a Mans Heart, as there is not the leſs Water in the Sea, for Bridling the Foaming and Raging Waves of it; whereas in the Work of Grace, there is an Abolition or Annihilation in part begun of old things, ſo as they paſs away, and ceaſe to be; now that is a power equal to Creating.

And 2. There is an alteration, of Corrupt Nature in as much as a New Creature, and contrary Workmanſhip wrought, ſo as the Droſs is turned into pure Gold throughout; but thoſe Tinctures of Moral Vertues are not a New Creature in Nature, changing it throughout, but a ſlight and ſuperficiary Gilding of the Droſs, corrupt Nature remaining ſo ſtill; which impreſſions alſo are wrought and maintained, even by the help of what is left in Corrupt Nature, namely, the Natural Conſcience, in which ſtamps of Law are written, and natural Wiſdom emproved, both which ſtirred up, and actuated by theſe apprehenſions that Vice is evil, Vertue good, and that in Wiſdom it is beſt, in a Mans Carriage here; to ſhun the one, and follow the other, and that it is of Profit and good Report amongſt Men, by means of theſe thoughts, I ſay, ſuch Reſtraint, and he impreſſions of Vertues are eaſily wrought, even by the help of what is left in Nature it ſelf; whereas now in the Work of Grace, the Spirit doth create a new by his immediate power, and therefore 'tis called a New Creature, and this made out of nothing that was in the Heart before to further the Work. To Conclude, This ſtirring up of Moral Vertues, &c. is but as a new dreſſing of an old Garment, which though it may deceive ſome, and make them think it is a New Creature, yet, there is nothing added to it that was not, or might not be in it before, only by the help of Conſcience and natural Wiſdom ſome Tufts of good, are ſtirred up; but in the Work of Grace, there is not only a new dreſſing of Corrupt Nature but a putting it off, and then a new Man Created, and that put on, Eph. 4. 22, 24. not a Gilding only, but a renewing throughout, changing us in the Spirit of the mind, turning the Metal into Gold to the bottom, verſe 23. But as for the ſuperficiary Tincture in ſuch civil Men, if not in time worn off, as Gilding is, and though it appears in their ordinary Carriages of their Lives, as ſet in ſuch and ſuch a condition, yet let them be melted a little, and tryed, put upon ſome new Temptation, caſt into another Faſhion, then the baſe metal, the corruption and naughtineſs of their Hearts appear: Whereas a Godly Man, whoſe Heart is throughout changed, try him how you will, caſt him into what Mould you will, yet the Grace appears. I therefore earneſtly deſire thoſe that find no further work of Power on their Hearts, then reſtraint from Evil, and ſlight diſpoſitions to Moral Vertues, to conſider of their Eſtates.

I come to a Second ſort of Men, and to a further Work: For ſome will now Plead, I find not only my Heart thus Embalmed, as you call it, by the Spirit, and the corrupt Luſts of the Old and Dead Man, as they are called, (Eph. 4. 22.) kept from ſtinking and putrifying, together with ſome additions of Moral Vertues; But I find ſome lively Warmth wrought in my Heart, and Affections by the Word and Spirit, even to ſuch things, and by ſuch Motives as the Word delivers. In Hearing and Praying, &c. my Eyes are enlightned to underſtand and aſſent to thoſe Spiritual Truths in the Word, my Heart ſo far wrought on, and ſuch ſtirrage of Affections, upon the conſideration of the Truths delivered therein, as I can ſorrow for my Sin, tremble at the Threatnings, Joy in the Promiſes, and find flickerings alſo of good purpoſes, deſires to obey, and ſome endeavours, and I hope you will ſay, that it is impoſſible, but that ſuch a working as this, ſhould be only from the exceeding greatneſs of Gods power, a meer ſupernatural work of the Spirit of Chriſt, above the power of Nature, in it ſelf, as it is for a dead Man to have Warmth, or move, or ſpeak, and one now that hath ſuch a work of power will preſently ſay, as the Magicians did, (Exo. 8.16, 17.) This ſurely is the Finger of God; a work of the greatneſs of Gods power, ſuch as this no wicked man can have that is Dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins. Chap. 4

1. I grant it is a work of the Spirit, and above the Sphere of Nature, and its activity in it ſelf alone, for it is a ſure Rule the Apoſtle gives, 1 Cor. 12.3. that no Man ſays Jeſus is the Lord, without the Spirit; that is, no Man can have his Underſtanding brought to aſſent to, and profeſs Chriſt to be the Lord and Saviour, or any other truth preached in the Goſpel, unleſs the Spirit perſwade his Judgment of it; much more to have the Heart wrought upon, and ſtirr'd up to good, by ſuch Truths, is a Work above Nature, and and therefore of the Spirit; why but yet this is little for a Mans comfort, for the Apoſtle in that place, as the reſt of the Chapter, ſpeaks of common gifts of the Spirit, communicable to Reprobates, as that of healing, &c. and beſides the enſurance ſhews, That many wicked in the Church, even ſuch as ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, have had a ſupernatural working of the Spirit, for they are Convinced of the Truth of Religion and ways of Grace, which by Nature they could never be, but by the Holy Ghoſt, which therefore they are ſaid to ſin againſt; ſo that a man, you ſee, may have a ſupernatural working of the Spirit in him and upon him; and yet not a work of ſaving Grace; the very inſenſible Creatures have workings of the Spirit on them; (Gen. 1.2.) 'Tis ſaid, the Spirit of God moved upon the Waters; and ſuppoſe he moves upon the Surface of thy Heart; and hath ſome ſupernatural working upon it; doth it preſently follow then that thou art in the Eſtate of Grace? No more than it doth that the Waters are.

2. I grant that it is the work of power and that more extended and greater than the former. For the former was but a power reſtraining Corrupt Nature, but this is an elevating, raiſing it to ſuch acts as are ſimply, and of its ſelf, above its reach and own pitch; and therefore (Heb. 6.4.) It is ſo expreſſed and called, a Taſting of the Power of the World to come; that is, the apprehenſions of the World to come; as Heaven, Hell, the day of Judgment; of things belonging to another World, have powerful workings on mens Affections, being enlightned by the Spirit to apprehend them in ſome meaſure and ſort; Inſomuch as in Felix (Acts 24.26.) The Diſcourſe of Judgment to come made him tremble, ſo powerfully it wrought on him, it ſhook his Heart, as a mighty Wind doth an Aſpen Leaf; ſo King Agrippa's Heart at the hearing of Paul's Converſion, and of Chriſts Sufferings and Riſing from the Dead, (Acts 26.) began to be ſtirr'd, to have provocations to become a Chriſtian. I forbear Inſtances any more, and yet it doth not follow that ſuch a work as this holds proportion with the exceeeding greatneſs of Gods power.

1. For though it be a work of the Spirit, yet it doth not follow it is ſaving Grace. Indeed if the Spirit of God were a meer natural agent in working, and always did work ad ultimum potentiæ ſuæ, to the utmoſt of his Power, as Fire, which when it burns muſt needs burn as much as in it can; and the Sun when it ſhines, ſhineth according to the fulneſs of its Strength; then indeed every man that had any working of the Spirit of God upon his Heart, might certainly conclude that he wrought it by the exceeding greatneſs of his power; but the Spirit of God is a free and voluntary Agent, who therefore may, and doth moderate his Power in his Works; puts more or leſs to,

Book 9 according to the working of his good pleaſure; and hence now it comes to paſs, that every man who is yet Partaker of the Holy Ghoſt and of his workings, hath not yet a ſaving work wrought in him, ſuch an one as draws forth the exceeding greatneſs of his power; for though it is the ſame Spirit that is in the Regenerate and works thus mightily; yet you muſt learn to know from the Apoſtle, (1 Cor. 12. 6.) That there may be diverſities of Operations, tho' the ſame God which worketh all in all; and all theſe worketh the ſelf-ſame Spirit, according as he will v. 10, 11. And that you may ſee the Truth of this, viz. That you may be Partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, and have your Judgments thus wrought on, by Enlightnings and Affections ſtirr'd by ſupernatural Objects; and yet all this not be a ſaving work; take only one Inſtanee; which is that of Balaam, that remained a Wizard, a Wretch, a Devil, twho went after the Wages of Unrighteouſneſs: (2 Pet. 2. 15. Numb. 24.) Firſt the Spirit of the Lord came on him; Secondly, marvelouſly Enlightened his Eyes to ſee ſome Glimmerings of the true God, (v. 3, 4.) and of the Bleſſed Eſtate of Gods People, witneſs his expreſſions, (v. 5, 6. to the 9th) and that ſo alſo as his Heart was wrought upon and ſtirred to deſire that condition, Chap. 23. 10. Let me dye the Death of the Righteous, &c. and yet who will ſay his Heart was changed?

2. There may be ſuch a work upon a mans Heart, and yet not the exceeding Greatneſs of Gods power go to work it.

1. As in the former Inſtance of reſtraining power; ſo here in the Spirits elevating power, as I may ſo call it; Let us ſuppoſe a Dead Body lay before you, it is in the power of a man bringing it to a Fire, or by by-rubbing, to ſtir up Warmth in it; let an Angel come, He can take it up, enform it, act it, ſo as it ſhall ſerve to move, ſpeak, and perform the like Actions of Life: And yet this Body is not all this while raiſed up from Death to Life, nor can all the ſole-rubbing, or all ſimple moving it ſo by all the Anpower of God gels ever do it. So now my Brethren, is it in the point in haud; beſides the enabling or reſtraining mens corrupt Luſts; there is a farther working on corrupt Nature remaining ſtill dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins; a power elevating corrupt Nature to perform acts of Life in ſhew, and as it were the Spirit enlightning, warming, rubbing on mens Affections by the Word, and the things revealed therein, moving them and carrying them on to good purpoſes, endeavours, and yet ſtill this Heart may be in it ſelf dead, no new principle of Life put in, beſides the preſent actings of the Spirit: No new Breath of Life as was breathed into Adam, who (1 Cor. 15. 45.) was made a Living Soul, and therefore now when the Spirit ceaſeth to move on this Heart, as the Angel ſometimes did on the Waters of the Pool, all Smyptoms of Life vaniſh, warmth is gone, and the Heart is as dead as a Log, as ever it was; as Balaam's alſo was out of that good mood; ſo that you ſee this is far ſhort of the working of his power, which wrought on Jeſus Chriſt when he was raiſed from the Dead; a leſs power than this goes to the working of it: For ſuch a raiſing of Dead Bodies the Devil hath often practiſed, carrying Dead Bodies out of their Graves: There is no ſuch exceeding greatneſs of power goes to ſuch a work.

2. In reaſon alſo it may appear, That to the effecting ſuch a work as this in mans Heart, There needed not ſuch an exceeding greatneſs of power be drawn forth. For there need not any new Principle, any new Soul or Life, be created, or infuſed into mans Heart, to make it capable of ſuch a work as this is. For there are principles remaining in corrupt Nature, which if but ſtirred, acted, elevated by the Spirit of God, are capable of all this: And ſimply to ſtir thoſe Principles up, and propound Objects to them, and ſo to act and affect them, is not a work of the exceeding greatneſs of God's Power.

Firſt, I will ſhew this in the work of Enlightning: And Secondly, In the work of being affected with the things that Word delivers.

Firſt, For the work of Enlightning, there is in every man an eye of Underſtanding and Conſcience which though Sin-ſhot (that I may allude to the Phraſe of Blood-ſhot in the eye) and defiled, (Titus 1 15.) by reaſon of which defilement it cannot indeed ſee the Spiritual goodneſs as it is in Spiritual things things themſelves. (1 Cor. 2. 14.)Yet even this Blood-ſhot eye being able truly and really to apprehend the fearfulneſs of Gods Wrath, and the torments in Hell which come by Sin; is therefore by conſequence capable to ſee an accidental Goodneſs in Chriſt and the ways of God, viz. That by them this miſery may be eſcaped. And this defiled Underſtanding is capable to apprehend that the Eſtate of the Righteous after this Life is Glorious and Bleſſed (as Balaam did) though indeed and in truth, if once they came to partake of it in Heaven, the Preſence of God would be Hell to them. Mans Underſtanding being naturally in the dark, to make it apprehenſive of the goodneſs of Spiritual things thus far, there muſt be not only a propounding theſe Objects to it, but alſo a new Light brought into it, which may make manifeſt this accidental Goodneſs, this Goodneſs of them in the general ſpoken; for we are Darkneſs, and it is Light makes all things manifeſt; and therefore thoſe that taſte of the powers of the World to come (Heb. 6.) are ſaid to be enlightned; that is, there is a new Light brought in, which did not ſhine about their Minds before: But now to bring barely a new Light into the Mind, is not a work of the exceeding greatneſs of Gods power on the Mind it ſelf; for it is but extrinſecal and outward, no more than to bring a Candle into a Room to a man that hath ſome ſight already whereby he ſees new things, which being in the dark before, he ſaw not; but there is thereby no intrinſecal Principle put into the eye of the man; no alteration wrought in it by this: As in a new Creation, and in a Reſurrection, (to which this work of Grace is parallell'd) there muſt be ſuppoſed to be; and yet in ſome degree or other God vouchſafes to every man that comes into the World (John 1. 9.) ſome Light wherewith their minds are enlightned. Chap. 4

But you will ſay what is there further wrought on the Underſtanding of a regenerate man; which will hold proportion with the power manifeſted in Creation, and the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt?

I anſwer, That beſides ſhining upon the mind with a new ſupernatural Light, there is a new Principle, a new Eye, as I may call it; a new power of diſcerning, put into and created in the Underſtanding of a man; whereby he is further enabled to ſee the Intrinſecal, Spiritual Goodneſs, which is in Chriſt and Grace; to ſee the Beauty, the Goodneſs of Holineſs, of Gods Face and Preſence; which never entred into the Heart of any carnal man. Therefore to this enlightning, there is not only the Spirit of revelation given (Eph. 1.18.) that is, the Holy Ghoſt coming with a new external Light, making them manifeſt; but there is alſo given an inward Spirit of wiſdom created in the mind it ſelf; a new Habit and Principle of Spiritual diſcerning and of the wiſdom of the Juſt, (for ſo Spirit is taken often in Scripture) whereas the other are barely ſaid to be enlightned. There is a new eye Created ἐπίγνωσιν, on purpoſe to know them (Col. 3. 10.) ſo it is in the original; There is a new Principle of Life put in, as in a Reſurrection, there uſeth to be: For ſo Chriſt expreſſeth it (John 12.) calling it the Light of Life, that is ſuch a Light as hath a new Principle of Light joined with it, and enableth a man to ſee Spiritual things as a Living, Spiritual man ſhould ſee them, which is Spiritually (1 Cor. 2. 15.) ſo that ſuch a work as this holds you ſee in Scripture expreſſions proportion with the Creation and Reſurrection of Chriſt, to annihilate and bring to nothing Fleſh and Corruption, in the Judgment, &c. and in the room a new Spirit of judging things aright it is Created a new Principle of diſcerning Spiritual things Spiritually, (Eph. 1. 17.) called a Spirit of Wiſdom; Spirit is taken for a new habit or principle of judging wiſely of things; and herein now the exceeding greatneſs of Gods Power is manifeſted in a work, in and upon the Judgment it ſelf; in taking away that Sin which covering it, made it as a dead eye, in regard of a right diſcerning of Spiritual things; and then putting a new Principle of ſeeing things, as a living man ſees them; call'd therefore by Chriſt, as diſtinguiſhing it from the Light of wicked men, (John 8. 12.) the Light of Life; Here now is a work holds proportion with Book 9 the power spoken of, raising up a dead man to Life; whereas in the enlightning of a wicked man there is no renewing of the Judgment, but barely a Light brought in, actuating and elevating it to see and discern, so far as sin and that Veil which covers it, will suffer it; and to that no such greatness of power is required: For there is not a new living Eye put in, but only a new light; there being a principle of Seeing and Understanding in a man by Nature, already able, by the help of the Spirit shining upon it, to have some Glimmerings of Spiritual things.

And 2. For the work of good motions of joy, fear, and good purposes in the Will and Affections: There is a Principle already also in the Will and Affections of a carnal Heart, which if it but awakened by such Enlightnings, stirrs up such good motions and purposes in carnal men. If you ask what this Principle is? I answer. It is Self-love; which is the General that commands the Will and Affections, and rowzeth them; but it and all the Affections are set afloat, and raised up only to those Objects which a man by self-love apprehends to be hurtful or good for him; Nay, then when by such common Enlightnings, a mans carnal Understanding apprehends Hell to be a dangerous Condition; and that Sin is the way to it; that Heaven is an excellent Condition, and that to leave Sin and do Good, &c. is the way to it; and by those moral perswasions are in the Word, self-love is once awakened as easily it is; a mans Affections are set a-work to fear Hell as an evil, to sorrow for Sin, that will bring him to it; to rejoice in the News of Heaven, as attainable; and to desire and begin to endeavour to take such Courses as will bring a man to it; and so that affection of joy, sorrow, fear, desire, may be elevated, lifted up, to be conversant about Spiritual Objects, such as are Sin and good Duties, Heaven and Hell; and yet not the exceding greatness of Gods Power go to work it, because there is already a Principle even in a Carnal Heart, which may be stirr'd with the apprehension of these; and so set all these a-work, namely self-love. So as the Spirit to work such good motions, shall not need to stretch forth the greatness of his Power to change the Heart, and to create any thing anew in it; as he doth in a Regenerate man; but the old Heart remaining carnal still, may by perswasions, such as are in the Word, and such considerations of being damned and saved, and the like; be stirred to all this: And to move only by such Perswasions and Considerations, and to propound them in such a manner as they should move, is no such great work of power; a good Orator will do as much in another case; so as the Spirit doth no more upon the Heart, in this case than the Light and Heat of the Sun doth upon a Dunghil; shining upon it and heating of it; by the power of both which it elevates and raises up Vapours in it, which yet were in it before; to a higher place indeed than of themselves they would ascend; namely into the Air; yet these Vapours are not changed, they are as stinking as before. So now is it in the working of the Spirit. John the Baptist preaching the Kingdom of Heaven was at Hand; the Spirit of God went with this News to mens Hearts: Both darted in Beams of Light to understand some Goodness in that Kingdom preached, and also warmed mens Hearts and Affections with the apprehensions of it; there went both light and heat with it; (John 5.35.) both which raised up and elevated their Understandings with the light to some glimmering apprehensions of Heavens Goodness, and their Affections, yea, and Wills also, (for it is said they rejoiced willingly, &c.) with the warmth to desire, and joy in the news of so great a Happiness; Here indeed both were elevated to a higher Object than ever of themselves, without the concurrence and existence of this light and heat from the Spirit, they would have ascended; yet whithout any powerful change wrought in the mens Hearts themselves, or any new Principle put into the Heart, only the carnal Heart still so remaining by self-love stirred up; for in the 3*d* verse he says, that though they rejoiced thus in Johns Ministry, yet they would not believe in him, and in v. 42. that though they did thus out of Love to themselves rejoice in the News of Heaven, as good for them; yet

they had not the love of God in them, to seek his Honour only and principally, and not their own (v. 44.) and certain it is that their Affections of Joy and Desire, which out of self-love were stirr'd to desire Honour from men, rather than for God; the same Affections, out of the same Principle of self-love, were stirr'd then to desire and rejoice in that Kingdom of Heaven offered; and yet still the Heart was as carnal, as unchanged, as empty of the Law of God as before, it being self-love only that set afloat both the one and the other: And so in Felix (Acts 24. 20.) the same principle of self-love that would have made his carnal Heart have trembled at the News of being brought to Cæsar's Judgment Seat, made his Heart, remaining still as carnal, trembled at Paul's preaching of Christs Judgment to come; and so in Esau, (Heb. 12. 17.) the self same carnal affection of Sorrow, which self-love would have stirred up in him for the loss of any outward thing, was stirred up in him to sorrow and weep for the loss of his Birth-right and Blessing, Types to him of Heaven; and all in vain for want of true Repentance, as some interpret, which he found no place for, though he sought it with tears: And therefore thus to stir mens Affections, is not simply in it self a work which argues the exceeding greatness of Gods power: Seeing there needs no new Principle be created in the Heart which was not there before, only the old ones stirr'd up and elevated and acted to a higher pitch; neither is there any true and intrinsecal change and alteration wrought on mens Hearts, or the Affections themselves, only a setting them afloat about new propounded Objects, such as Heaven and Hell, they remaining still the same: There is indeed a new working upon the Heart, which was not on it before: You will ask then what is it that is wrought beyond this, which is an effect of this great power? Chap. 4

I answer First, By parallelling it with the power shewn in the Creation (Eph. 2. 10.) it is a Workmanship created, as it were, a purpose to good Works: The difference of which from the former, I express by this Similitude. An old Clock that is out of frame and set wrong, may be brought to move about without any new Workmanship bestowed upon it, meerly by new weights hung on it; and so may the Old Man, the Carnal, remaining so, and the Wheels, Affections thereof, be stirred by the moral perswasions and Considerations of Heaven and Hell, hung on by the Spirit; and this is but an artificial kind of working, which argues no great power in the Agent; but a Skill rather, that knows how to apply things will move it; but now when the exceeding greatness of Gods power comes to work, he takes the old Frame in pieces, and creates and setts up a new Frame, a new piece of Workmanship, created on purpose for good works, by changing the Heart intrinsecally, putting new Principles of Life and motion to what is good, and though indeed those weights and considerations which move the carnal hart makes it move the faster to what is good; yet this in it self is a frame made on purpose Created to good Works; which Phrase implys and imports a principle of motion inclining the Heart that way of it self; for when God is said to create things to such and such an action; as the Heaven to move, the Fire to burn, the Ground to bring forth Herbs: The meaning is, he hath put such Principles into it as tend to produce such actions; and so to create a Workmanship to good Works, is to endow the Heart with such abilities, and Actus primi, as they are called, as should enliven the Heart to good works, as Actus Secundi: And therefore this difference will evidently appear between the work of good motions on a carnal Heart only; and a work of the greatness of Gods power, creating a new Workmanship; namely by this, viz. That when such considerations are taken off, then the Heart stands still; hath no inclinations towards what is good in it; when the Spirit ceaseth thus sensibly to move and act the dead Heart, it lies as a Logg, without any Principle or Symptom of Life in it; whereas now a changed Heart, even in the greatest desertions, hath still a new Workmanship in it, The bent whereof is contrary to what is evil; and if the weights of sin wring it to what is evil, (Heb. 12. 1.) yet it is as winding the Frame of a Watch

Book 9 the wrong way; and the inward frame and constitution whereof still is for what is good and holy, and God and the Law commands; and why? because this Workmanship, though not stirred about, yet was created for good works. And it is against the inward framing of it to be moved the other way.

In the Second place, I answer, by parallelling it with the power shewn in raising up Christ from Death to Glory, which is the instance in the Text, and which I mean principally to prosecute and insist on; only I take the other also for further confirmation-sake, and because the Scripture instanceth in that also, as an expression of the power which worketh in this work of Grace, calling it a Creation; for now if it be askt what new Principle it is which is thus created and brought into the Soul, I answer, it is a Principle of new Life; which as another Soul raiseth it: For the satisfaction of such, I will therefore add this, before I come to what I have further to deliver; and it is a difference answering to, and serving further to discover in what this exceeding greatness of power consists; for no other must here be handled; and in brief it is this; If thou findest another and a further Principle than self-love stirring in, and raising up these thy Affections, namely Godliness, and respect to God; than the exceeding greatness of his Power hath been, and doth work in thy Heart; first mark the reason and ground of this, for the thing in hand; He tells you the exceeding greatness of Gods power is seen in this, in putting in and creating a new Principle and Soul of Spiritual Life into the Heart; and not simply in stirring up the old one of self-love; now what think you, is this new Principle of Life which this great power puts in besides that of self-love? Look into 2 Pet. 1.4. According as his Divine Power hath given (mark here, he speaks of a work of the exceeding greatness of his Power) us all things to Life, That is, all the exceeding greatness of his power all things to Life and what is that? It is Energetically explained in the next words Godliness; Herein then consists the working of such a power as raised Christ to Life and Glory; giving or putting certain powers and abilities of a new life, namely Godliness into the Soul; and indeed to work this there must be stretched forth such a power; for tho' there be a Principle of self-ness, as I may so call it; which makes the carnal Heart respect the good of it self, and to be affected with joy or sorrow about that which tends to the Hurt or Happiness of a man's self: Yet in that vast Ocean of mans Heart by Nature, there is not the least drop or disposition of Godliness to be found; which should stir a mans Affections and raise them so high as to be answerably affected, with those things which touch simply upon God, have relation purely to him; and therefore now though the Heart of a Carnal Man may be stirr'd at the consideration of such things out of the Word as are suitable to, and apt, and fitted to stir self-love; and thus it may be more violently and turbulently than one who is sincere, yet in regard of Godliness his Heart is dead; such considerations wherein God is involved and his Glory and Cause, is the principal Ingredient; these lie in their Hearts and Affections like Pills in a dead mans Body; they not the Humours, nor these the Affections; or if they work, yet no further than their own Heart or Happiness is enwrapped up with the other; for why, there is no suitable Principle of Life and Godliness to work upon: Wouldst thou therefore now distinguish thy affections of Sorrow or Joy at the hearing of the Word, or at other times in thy own Meditations, from those in a carnal Heart? Mark if there be any drops or strains and dispositions of pure Godliness mingled with a great deal of Flesh and Corruption in the Affections; for as Oyl, a few drops of it, keep themselves severed from the Water, though jumbled with them; so will small drops of Godliness, and the having respect to keep themselves pure in a Sea of Corruption, in thy Affections: There is a meaning in every Affection; as of the Good, (Rom. 8.27.) so also of Bad; when thou art stirred to Sorrow or Joy in meditating or hearing of the Word, observe the full meaning of those Affections; upon what kind of Considerations they are thus set afloat; And that you may see this difference between carnal Affections and sincere renewed ones, under this very notion grounded upon Scripture; and ſo may more diſtinctly know how to apply it: (2 Cor. 7. 9.) Paul had ſent a Letter, wherein he had ſharply reproved the Corinthians for a ſin committed and ſuffered amongſt them; by which this affection of ſorrow for Sin was much ſtirred in them; now mark how Paul, in this ſecond Epiſtle, ſpeaks of this their Sorrow; Now I rejoyce (ſays he) not that you were made ſorry; [not ſimply that their affection of ſorrow was ſtirr'd for the ſin, that it might have been, and they never the better] but that Ye were made ſorry after a Godly manner; mark it, here comes in this very diſtinction, even to this very purpoſe in hand; if when a man ſorrows for ſin, it be the conſideration of Gods diſhonour that is wounded by it, that is thus laid to Heart; and if ſuch motives as lay open Gods Intereſt and Relation in it, that wounded the Heart; that raiſed up this ſorrow in any meaſure in truth to God; ſo as it is not for that miſery only, which ſin would bring on a man, that makes him ſorrow; but that it is done againſt his God, whoſe Favour he accounts more than his Life, and whom to diſpleaſe is as Death to him; as they (Zach. 12. 10.) that are not ſaid to mourn ſo much for ſin, or themſelves, as for God, whom they had offended, and Chriſt whom they had pierced; then thy ſorrow is after a Godly ſort. Which ſorrow being for thy Offence againſt God, ſo much the more encreaſeth, by how much thou apprehendeſt he is pacified towards thee; (as they Ezek. 16. laſt) and though thy Heart ſhould not apprehend ſo much, yet there are ſome relentings in it, for offending him whom thy Soul loves; ſo as if now the Sentence of Death were paſſed againſt thee, as at the latter day; and thou wert out of hope; yet at thy doleful farewel from him, thou couldſt find in thy Heart to down on thy Knees and ask him forgiveneſs Firſt, for all the Wrongs thou haſt done him: Is there any ſuch whiſperings of ſuch a meaning in thy ſorrow? This is from a new Principle of Life and Godlineſs infuſed into it; which nothing but the exceeding greatneſs of his power could have infuſed; ſo alſo for thy joys, doſt not only rejoice in the hopes of Glory which thou conceivedſt as good for thy ſelf, (as it is Rom. 5. 2.) but alſo (mark the Gradate on v. 11. of that Chapter) not only ſo, but alſo thou rejoyceſt in God, apprehending thy Heaven to conſiſt in him, and communion with him, as one who is ſuitable to thy Inward man, with whom therefore thou ſhouldſt find in thy Heart to live and die; and this barely for thoſe excellencies of Holineſs, Wiſdom, Goodneſs, and loving Kindneſs that is in him: This being the Top of thy Joy, That he is ſuch a God, ſo Holy, &c. and that he is a God to whom thou haſt a relation, and a reference; and in whom thou haſt an Intereſt. If there be the leaſt drop of ſuch diſpoſitions running in thy joys, and diſcovering themſelves in them; then is there ſomething pertaining to Life and Godlineſs wrought in thee by his Divine power; for there is no Principle at all left in Corrupt Nature which could ever elevate thy Joys ſo high; but it ariſeth from a Divine Nature infuſed; which in the ſame place (2 Pet. 1. 4.) he ſays the ſame power of God makes us Partakers of; for only ſimile gaudet ſimili. And ſo Laſtly, for thy good purpoſes and deſigns to fear and obey his Commandments: Are they ſtirr'd up in thee only becauſe ſin is the way to Death, and good Duties the way to Life? Or is there ſome further meaning in thy deſires; ſo as Hypocrite, or not Hypocrite, Heaven, or not Heaven, in the end thou deſireſt and purpoſeſt to obey him; and though in the end thy labour ſhould be loſt to thy ſelf, yet if God be a Gainer by thee, thou ſhouldſt not altogether be ſorry; but yet ſorry truly for this, thou canſt do no more; are there any, the leaſt part of ſuch diſpoſitions covered and taken up in thy deſires and purpoſes: There then hath been the exceeding greatneſs of Gods power dealing and tampering with thy Heart, putting in a New Principle of Godlineſs and Life; to which thy Nature is as truly dead, as Chriſts Body was in the Grave. Such ſmall drops and ſparks as theſe, coſt the Lord more power than creating the whole frame of Heaven and Earth; and ſooner ſhall they be diſſolved than the leaſt Iota of theſe ſhall utterly periſh; if all the power that is in God can preſerve them to Salvation, believe it, and build upon it, ſuch diſpoſitions, and ſuch tangs of Godlineſs ſeaſoning thy Sorrows, Joys and Deſires ſires ſhall never go to Hell with thee, nor thou with them; therefore now

Book 9 to Conclude this, as Paul ſpeaks of the Corinthian's Sorrow, ſo do I of all Affections and good Motions, rejoyce not ſimply in this, that you feel ſuch Affections ſtirr'd in you when you hear Sermons, &c. but if you find them ſtirring in the leaſt meaſure according to God, that he be aimed at in them, then Rejoyce; by which Principle of Godlineſs alſo, a Man ſets up God in his Heart above himſelf, is willing to deny himſelf, ſo God may be Exalted.

If then thou haſt found a work of God in thee, which hath took thee off from, and hath prevented thee in all thy natural deſigns, purpoſes, and intents of thy Heart, which thou hadſt for thy ſelf, and hath wrought thee another way, hath diſpoſed thee to another end, ſet all that is in thee a work for God, and his Glory; this is Godlineſs, this is a mighty Power, as much as bringing in a new Soul into a Body, for a New End, is a new Form. Thus Paul was prevented of all his Natural aims taken off from him, and he makes it an Evidence of his Converſion, (Gal. 1.) when he was moſt hot in the purſuit of Eminency in Learning, Credit among his Nation, (v. 13.) then did God (ſays he) who had ſeparated me. (v. 11.) that is, appointed and deſtined me to another end, Call me by his Grace. And the Life I now lead, is not my own, (Chap. 2. 20.) It is not I, but Chriſt lives in me; as when he Sins, he ſays, It is not I, but Sin; ſo here, It is not I, but Chriſt, when any good is done; that is, I am not guided by the Principles and Ends of my former Life, when I did all for my ſelf, but all is from Chriſt, and for Chriſt; he is the Beginning and the End. That whereas all were dead; (2 Cor. 5. 14, 15.) he quickens them with a new Principle of Life and Godlineſs, whereby they live not to themſelves, that is, they make not themſelves their end, but they live to him, that Dyed and Roſe again for them, and this Life is Godlineſs. Whereas every Man that is Born into the World, begins as Paul did to Trade for himſelf, and is bound ſomewhither, where he thinks Happineſs is to be had; and he takes in Loading accordingly, with thick Clay or Pleaſures, &c. fills himſelf with a Thouſand Vanities, but when thou art Converted to God, a contrary Wind takes thee, as it did Paul, and defeateth thee utterly of all thine own Purpoſes, carries thee ſtrongly to another Haven, to have another Loadſtar in thy Eye, a new Principle ſets thee a work, to be a Factor as much for God, as ever thou wert for thy ſelf, and to that end throweſt out all thoſe Vanities, which will tend no way to his advantage, as being bound for a Port, where thou can'ſt vent none of thoſe thy former Wares; and this not as Merchants do their Lading, in a Storm, becauſe they may Sink thee into the bottomleſs Lake, but becauſe they are unprofitable for God; and as willingly as ever thou tookeſt them in, thou throweſt them out. Thy Heart can know what Wares will be moſt for Gods Advantage, uſing thy Wiſdom to ſee what will bring him in moſt Glory, and thou dealeſt accordingly in ſuch things, as may increaſe his Revenue, and though thou loſeſt, yet art ſure he ſhall be no loſer; being made as Faithful to God, as once thou wert for thy ſelf: This is Godlineſs, this is a New Life, a New Principle, and as great a power muſt go to this, as to raiſe up Chriſt from the Grave to Glory; for this raiſeth thy Soul from Earth to *He*aven, out of thy ſelf to God; and is as much as to turn the Sun in his Courſe, or to invert the order of Nature. Thus nothing but an Almighty Power can thus advance a Mans aims out of himſelf, and make all in a Man ſubordinate to another. There is no Principle in Nature, if not enformed by Godlineſs, can reach thus high, much leſs in Corrupt Nature. Only let me add this, That the Principle of Self Love ſtill remains in the Heart of a Godly Man, ſets his Affections afloat, and is a Weight makes the Wheeles move, and acts him in his Actions alſo, and it ought to do; yet ſo as there is a farther Principle of Godlineſs, which elevates ſelflove higher, and makes it ſubordinate. For as when the reaſonable Soul is infuſed and annexed to the Senſitive, The Acts of Reaſon do not extinguiſh the Acts of Senſe; nay, the Senſes are helped and perfected much by them, and they ſubordinately concur and joyn together in moſt; yet ſtill, ſo as the Acts of Reaſon reach higher, and do Guide and Moderate the other: So this New Created Principle, and Fountain of Life and Godliness, infused into the Soul by Gods power, doth not destroy the acts of Self-love, only winds up the Will and Affections to have higher reaches, even as high as God, in whose Glory our Happiness lies, and so guides and moderates this other. But now it may be said, that though indeed to put in and to create in the Soul such a new Principle of Life and Godliness, argues great power indeed; and as much as was spent in the Creation of the World, but yet no more, if this were all; for simply to infuse and introduce into the Soul, this new Life, is no more then the breathing the breath of Life into Adam, whereby he was made a living Soul. But this is not simply a Creation, as I said before, but a new Creation; wherein, not only a new Life is put in, but old things, which resist the bringing in of this Life, are to be destroyed also. Yea, further, it is parallell'd we see with the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, wherein there was more then ordinary power spent, more then in the Resurrections of others we read of; for (Rom. 1. 4.) he was thereby with power mightily declared to be the Son of God: Wherein then was this exceeding greatness of power spent? Was it simply in bringing his Soul into, or joyning it unto his Dead Body again? Thus much power must and did go to the raising again of Lazarus, of him also who was raised by the Prophets Bones, there was something else therefore which in his rising drew forth this exceeding greatness of power spoken of, for which I refer you to the (Acts 2. 24.) where Peter proving to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah and Son of God; he argues it from the power manifested in his rising again, and that power not simply shewn in bringing his Soul into his Body, or raising him up, but principally in rescuing his Soul first, and loosing it from the pains of Death, which if it had been possible would have held him, but it was impossible they should. There were certain pains then which hindred, and with much power would have detained; had not the exceeding greatness of his power broken their power; and in breaking this their power, lay the Miracle. God raised him up, says the Text, having (first) loosed the pains of Death, &c. Now what pains of Death means he? Bodily death only; those the Soul is rescued from in dying, and from these also were they rescued, who were raised before Christ: The word is ωδινας, the throwes and pangs of a Woman in Travel, which Isa. 53. 11. are called the Travel of his Soul, he in his Soul bearing that Wrath which was due to us, verse 5th of that 53*d Chapter*, which Pangs, because they tended unto Death, and would have carried his Soul to Hell with them, would have Stab'd him out right, and sped it for ever rising again, therefore they are called the pains of Death, which pains had they seized upon any of our Souls would have for ever killed them, and detained them; for they had the power of Death in them; for if it had been possible they would have held him, but that they were encountred by the power of his God head. They light upon one was more than a Creature, who was back'd by the Almighty power of God, by which power he was rescued from them, they and his Soul were loosened, their power being first subdued, and therefore Peter out of the Psalms, at the 27*th verse*, speaks of a Resurrection of his Soul out of Hell, and then a Resurrection of his Body from Corruption in the Grave. These Pains encountred his Soul whilst it was in his Body, but God left it not to their power, but raised it up to Paradice, and then put it into his Body again, and therein principally was this great Transcendent power seen, which was declared by the rising of his Body; and therefore he says, Death is swallowed up in Victory; now there is never a Victory gotten, but where there is a contrary power opposing, and that power subdued, crusht, swallowed up, so says that Text, if it had been possible they would have held him.

Chap. 4

Answerably now, In this great Work of Grace, That which draws forth this exceeding greatness of Gods power here spoken of, is not meerly putting in a new Principle of Life and Godliness into the Soul, but it lies in dissolving the works of the Devil, (1 John 3. 8.) as in the other the pains of Death were loosened: For there are certain strong potent Detayners, Allurers of the Soul, to keep it in the estate of Death, anſwerable to the pains of Death, which have a mighty power, overſway, and intereſt in the Heart of Man; which nothing but the like power to that wrought in Chriſt, could diſſolve and ſubdue; which when God doth begin to work effectually, do put forth their power, and if poſſible would hold him; but that a ſtronger comes and ſubdues, conquers and deſtroys that power, and ſo looſens them and the Soul, and reſcues the Soul from them. This you ſhall find expreſſed, Col. 1. 13. where the Apoſtle with thanks aſcribes it to the power of God the Father, that we are Tranſlated into the Kingdom of his Son, and delivered from the powers of Darkneſs: For all lies not in bare Tranſlating us into the Kingdom of his Son. There muſt firſt be a Delivering out of the powers of Darkneſs, which Words tell us, Firſt, That Sin is nothing but Darkneſs, and Satan the prince of Darkneſs, hath a power, over and a Kingdom in a Man, and ſuch a power as will not eaſily give up and yield up a Mans Heart to God, but will ſtrive to hold a Man as long as they have any power left; for ſo. Secondly, the Word Delivering, Implies, namely ſignifying a forcible ſnatching out and reſcuing from the Enemies hands; it muſt be by a greater power encountring that power; Sin will not part with a Man without blows, and ſtronger than the ſtrong Man muſt come and bind him, yea, diſarm him, kill, ſubdue, and deſtroy this power, or it will never yield. For it is with this Delivering out of the power of Darkneſs, as it was in Delivering Iſrael out of Egypt, (which was a Type of this) God is ſaid to have brought them out of Egypt; with a ſtrong Hand, and a ſtretched-out Arm; that is, with power drawn forth. Now what was it drew out his power? Not barely carrying them out, but that he did it maugre the oppoſition of Pharoh, and all the power of Egypt which withſtood it to the utmoſt; therefore it is ſaid Rom. 9. 17. Even for this ſame purpoſe have I raiſed thee (Oh Pharaoh) up; that I might ſhew my Power on thee. That he reſcued them out of Pharoh's hands by deſtroying his power, therein was the ſtretching out of his Arm ſeen. Anſwerably, Is it in the Work of Converſion, the power of Darkneſs, is ſet up to draw forth the exceeding greatneſs of his power in deſtroying it: For as God ſent Meſſages to Pharaoh by Moſes to let his People go, ſo God deals firſt with the Heart, by his Word and Spirit, ſtriving and perſwading to let the Soul go free, and to turn to him; but the power of Sin denyes it, and will not let the Heart to turn; God then ſends Judgment after Judgment, and what will you yet let the Soul go? The Pleaſures of Sin, ſay no, and though ſome ſlight flitting Reſolutions are often wrought, and purpoſes to turn; yet as Pharaoh ſtill returned to hardneſs, and Iſrael was undelivered, ſo do thoſe purpoſes vaniſh, and ſtill the Heart is kept under the power of Darkneſs; and if it were poſſible to hold the Heart, Sin and Satan would. Well, but in the End, God comes with his Almighty power, and kills, and ſubdues the firſt born, that is, the ſtrength of Sin, (for ſo the firſt born is called, Gen. 49. 3.) ſnatcheth a man out, and yet when the Heart, is a going once in good earneſt, Satan and Sin in the Heart muſter up all the power and forces that Egypt can make to ſtop the heart and detain it, and bring it back again, as Pharaoh did: Then all the ſtrength Sin hath, begins to beſtir it ſelf, and make out after it: And then is that great and main Battle fought, (even at the firſt Converſion) and the main and famous Victory gotten, and great overthrow given to the power of Hell and Darkneſs in a Man By this exceeding greatneſs of Gods power, ſubduing killing, and giving it a deadly Wound, and deſtroying it, as he did the Ægyptians in the Red Sea, the Soul is reſcued and delivered from the Dominion of them. This we may Note in the General, to help us to diſcern a true Work of Grace, wherein the exceeding greatneſs of Gods power is drawn, from thoſe inferiour Works of the Spirit, formerly ſpoken of, namely, That the true Work of Grace is ſuch a Work as wherein there was and is the utmoſt oppoſition that Sin can make, ſhewn; and yet a foil given, a Victory, a Conqueſt gotten; which is not ſo in thoſe inferiour Works of the Spirit: There is not a Delivering out of the power of Darkneſs, in them; that is, Sin doth not ſhew its utmoſt Oppoſition, againſt the inferiour Works of the Spirit, and ſo is not foiled, having that power broken; as in this great Work it is; for otherwise this exceeding greatness of power would not be seen, for the power of the Conquerour is not drawn forth but by bringing forth the strength of the Adversary and subduing it: Now in those other lesser Works of the Spirit, whether of restraining, enlightning, and enlarging Grace, it is not so: For those Works are not directly contrary to corrupt Nature, though indeed above it, and elevating it higher than of it self, it could reach, yet not changing it by destroying Corruption: It is supra, not contra; for it works upon those Principles are left in it, namely, of Conscience and Self-love, and so insinuates its self, and therefore is not contrary to it, as Heat and Fire is to Cold and Water; which when they meet, do fight to the utmost, to destroy each other, and shew their utmost power in opposing, the Conquest of the other; but they are in Corrupt nature rather as those qualities the Philosophers call Symbolical, namely, as moisture stands with Cold in Water; and therefore a form of Godliness stands with the power of sin, and often of some particular Master-Lust. However, though the Work of Enlightning may procure a Combat in the Conscience against the power of Sin, in other faculties: yet not such as raiseth the utmost of the power of Sin, and then foils it; neither doth it fight against corrupt Nature, but acts with Motives suitable to Self-love in Corrupt Nature, drawn from such inconveniences as Self-love in Corrupt Nature is sensible of, as shame, and Hell, &c. so as it sets but Self-love against it self, by raising carnal desires after Heaven, and to avoid Hell, or desires of the World. So as there is not stirred up a full, a direct and high opposition in summo gradu; corrupt nature is not provoked to bring forth it's utmost Forces: Neither indeed doht the Spirits Work in those inferiour Works, by Delivering the Soul out of the power of Darkness, making an Insurrection against its Working, but by restraining it only; wherein therefore corrupt Nature puts not forth much Resistance. It is but binding of the strong Man, and simply to be bound, he will endure and suffer it, and resists not, as Sampson did not; and a strong Man laid asleep may easily be bound, and be kept under by a Child when he doth not put forth his strength; and so the Spirit, in those Workings in Civil Men and others, layeth Lusts Asleep, and binds them with Purposes and Resolutions to leave them, and they resist not; so as, to do this, there needs not the exceeding greatness of Gods power. But now true Grace and the power of God coming in, the Work of it is to deliver a Man out of the power of Darkness, by destroying it; and by coming to set up and introduce into the Heart a contrary Principle of Godliness in the Soul, to which Corrupt Nature, is in summo gradu, contrary, and is called Enmity; and therefore a Mans Lusts and all the power of Sin, fortify themselves against it; shew their utmost power; as Sampson though being Asleep was Bound, yet when the Philistines his Enemies came upon him to take him and kill him, he stirs up himself and his utmost strength; and the Devil knows all lies upon that Battel; so that by this you may know whether it be such a Work as in proportion of power answers to Christs Resurrection by this, if in thy Conversion thou didst feel the power of Sin to the uttmost opposing it, so as thou didst not think it had half so much power and interest in thy Heart as then thou sawest it had; (for when one comes to grapple with one, then he knows his strength) and yet for all that, thy Sin and Lusts were back'd by the power of Hell, so as had it it been possible they would have deteyned thee; yet thou didst find they had the foil in thy Heart, lost Ground, and God and Christ was set up as King there, so as thou felt'st thy Heart loosened from them; and that as willingly and freely as ever thou wert subject to it, then know this power hath wrought in thee. Chap. 4

in

CHAP. V.

The Greatness of Divine Power in our Regeneration, Manifested from Instances of the several parts of that Work.

BUT you will say unto me, Shew us (as he said to Sampson) in what things principally this great power lyeth, what there is in the Heart thus strongly to detain it, answerable to the pains of Death, which Gods power is to encounter with, and loosen the Soul from, and which to subdue, this exceeding greatness of power must be drawn forth.

The First particular Instance we find (2 Cor. 1. 4.) and we have it there brought in just to our purpose in hand. For speaking of the mighty power of God working with the Word, he illustrates and sets forth that power, by shewing the powerful opposition it meets with, and overcomes: The Weapons of our Warfare are mighty through God: And wherein is their Might seen? In pulling down strong holds, &c. You see there is such opposition in the Heart to be converted, as useth to be in a besieged Town of War, which will hold out as long as possibly it can, and to that end it builds and casteth up strong Holds and high Forts, strong and high; which the Heart sticks to, and will not be beaten from, till they be beaten down; To the pulling down, &c. says the Text; for yield it will not, till they be pull'd down: Now the Particulars he there instanceth in, are Reasonings and Imaginations. Some translate the one, some the other: That is, secret dislikings, or not fancying the ways of God, with secret Objections and Arguments against them, and the subjection to them; as also high thoughts that exalt themselves, high, proud, contrary, thoughts of enmity: Two great and mighty Armies to overcome, and the Spirit had need to come against them with no less than the exceeding greatness of his power; For you must know, That when the Spirit effectually converts any Soul, he brings Jesus Christ into his Heart, and sets up Jesus Christ there as King, and causeth this Fundamental Law to pass, and be enacted by the consent of the whole Heart and greater party, in all the Faculties as the predominant Rule and Principle to guide a mans whole Life; That it is absolutely best to obey Christ in every particular passage of Life, in every thought, in all conditions; that this I say, is absolutely best for him, and necessary to begin presently: This you have in the following Words expressed, To bring every thought into the Obedience of Christ; this Conclusion hath been irremoveably and irrevocably laid and fixed in the Hearts of all the Saints: So in the Apostles; as you may see by their expressing their Resolution in a case of the greatest difficultie, when they were most strongly tempted.

2. Another particular Instance of the greatness of Gods power in our Regeneration, is his breaking off a mans Heart from the pleasures of sin, and inordinate Lusts. A man is as unwilling to part with them as with Life; and therefore all the power that is in the Heart resists what would loosen them and the Soul, and raise it out of that Estate of Spiritual Death: As any thing would resist what would take Life from it: And as Death is a strong thing, so is Life also, and the Law of it: And therefore the Law of Pleasures, is strong in all men that lie buried in them, we being by Nature Lovers of Pleasures, more than of God; (2 Tim. 3. 4.) Pleasures are so powerful, because so suitable to the disposition of a mans Heart; that a man hath not the power, because not the Heart, to resist them; And therefore you shall find that hat men will ſay, (and the Scripture expreſſeth it in their own Phraſe) that ſuch a pleaſure they cannot leave; It is as the Life to them; and they can no more part with it, than be willing to ceaſe to live: So Unclean wantons, (2 Pet. 2. 14.) Eyes have they full of Adultery, which cannot ceaſe from ſin; ſuch power, intereſt and Sway it hath in their Hearts: So (Luke 14. 20.) when one whohad lately married a Wife was invited; He profeſſeth plainly, without any excuſe, I have married a Wife, and I cannot come. The inordinacy of his pleaſure in her, had ſuch hold in, and power over his Heart, that tho he be damn'd for it, and loſe Heaven for it, he could not part with it. So that the ſame power which reſcued Chriſts Soul from the pains of death, to that glorious Life in Heaven; muſt work to raiſe that dead Soul from the pleaſure of ſin, unto the participation of the Life of God, and to delight himſelf in the pleaſures thereof, (for without pleaſure the Creature cannot live) from which, by reaſon of thoſe ſinful pleaſures, he is eſtranged. Therefore our Saviour Chriſt, ſpeaking of the power and prevalency, that the pleaſure and ſweetneſs of Riches (for Gain hath its ſweetneſs) have in the Heart; ſays, Mat. 19. 24. It is as eaſy for a Camel to go through the Eye of a Needle, &c. As for a man that truſts in his Riches, (as Mark 10. 24. it is Expounded) to enter into Heaven; Riches being alſo one of a mans ſtrong holds or Towers, formerly ſpoken of: So Solomon ſays, Prov. 18. 11. poſſeſſing the midſt of the Heart, and ſo commanding the whole Heart, as Holds uſe to do the Cities they are in, and chaining all the munition and ſtrength of the Heart, as it is reckoned an impoſſibilitie to ſcale theſe Forts and break the Heart from them; therefore the Apoſtles, apprehending that every man had ſome dear pleaſure or other; Even poor men as well as rich, which was as dear to them; they ſtand amazed, and ask who then ſhall be ſaved? And our Saviour Chriſt goes not back from his word, only by way of diſtinction adds, that with Man this is impoſſible indeed: That is, all the power that is in man, all the reaſons, all the motives and perſwaſions he can be made apprehenſive of, cannot ever effect this, divorce the Heart and them; but ſubjoins, That with God all things are poſſible: Shewing plainly, as the greater power pleaſures have in the Heart, ſo what power it is muſt go to work a ſeparation between the Heart and them: No leſs than that power to which all things are poſſible, even the greateſt Impoſſibilities; if God could not do all things, he could not do this. And, my Brethren, do you know what it is to part with the pleaſure of a ſin? Which there is none knows but he who has done it indeed, And he that hath done it, finds a greater Strength working in him than all the Creatures have in them: It is not all the perſwaſions of Angels and Men, not all the offers of Eternity can make a man forego the Bird in the Hand, the preſent Pleaſures of ſin, tho' but for a ſeaſon; And till a man come to part with them in earneſt, he never knew the greatneſs of their ſtrength, and what power they have in him: For then all the pleaſure that ever a man did enjoy by and in a Luſt, and all that he might do ſtill, will be united and collected into one Temptation, to make it work the more effectually: And that which is of all moſt dear, will the Devil ſet upon a man, as his laſt and ſtrongeſt means to prevail with him: As Uncleaneſs did with Auguſtine (as in his Caſe thus he relates it) it came to me, ſays he, when I was reſolving to turn to God, and pluck'd me by the Sleeve, and caſting the moſt pleaſing Countenance that ever he ſaw, ſaid, What will you forgo Me, and that for ever? Now therefore to find ſo mighty a power in a man, as with Ephraim to ſay at thy Converſion, What have I to do with Idols? So with all the pleaſures thou haſt doted on, and to part with them as freely as ever thou didſt follow them; even as young Commencers do with their money, as we uſe to ſay: Then know this exceeding greatneſs of power hath began to work in thy Heart. Chap. 5

3. The third particular which, to looſen the Heart from it, and to overcome it in the Heart, draws forth this great power, is the World. For we are dead in Sins and Treſpaſſes, and yet walk according to the Courſe of this World, (2 Eph. 1. 2.) and live to the Luſts of men, 1 Pet. 4. 3. And this World hath a mighty power in it to detain a man in the Grave of Death: The men of the World and the things of the World, are as Grave-Cloaths, as our Coffins, as the mould of Earth that covers us, and hinders us from rising; as the great Stone did Christ And that a great power comes and says, Arise, and stand up from the Dead; must be that power which wrought in Christ when he was raised from Death to Life; John 5. 4. Whosoever is born of God, overcometh the World. Which argueth the World hath a great power, it puts forth to hold a man; for where there is no Army, no Fight, no Power put forth, there is no overcoming, no Victory: And what is the power by which we are enabled thus to overcome the World? 1 John 4. 4. Stronger is he who is in you, than he who is in the World. The World hath a great power in you, and such a power as none but Gods Spirit could overcome, and encounter with, and scatter; and therefore Conversion is call'd, Gal. 1. 4. a delivering us out of this present evil World, by the Lord Christ, who having overcome the World for us, overcame it also in us: For both the things of the World, and the Men of the World, have a great power in our Hearts; the good things of it, and the bad things of it: The good things of it, the World is a large Shop of Vanities, and every mans eye is fastned upon something, which works and draws mightily; his Heart stands as Jael at the door of her Tent, with milk in her hand, and cries come in my Lord; and we have all as thirsty Hearts as he had after the flattering Courtesies, the Honour of the World, and the good Opinion and good Word of the World, what strong Biasses are all these, to draw a man out of his way and course, into the ways of the World? Receiving Honour from men, how did it hinder the Jews from Christ? John 5. 44. And so the disgraces and discouragements from the World, from Carnal Friends that have power over us, as Parents, Masters, Husbands very much prevail: Many would have believed, but that they should have been cast out of the Synagogues. There is a corrupt Strain and Fashion of the World, which the Apostle calls the Course of the World, which men are carried away with, as men in a Dream: Which not to conform unto, is accunted matter of greatest shame, and thought the greatest folly: And then also there are many Entanglements and Correspondencies with Carnal Companions, and with those we have been by many kindnesses endear'd to; which are most powerful Bands and Tyes to ingenuous Natures: And all these doth the God of this World, represent at a mans Conversion usually, as he did to Christ when he Tempted him with the Glory of all the good things of it: And he knows how to varnish and paint, and set them forth in their best Splendour; and so also the disgraces, discouragements, and dangers from the World; and these he represents in their worst Vizour: Now to be able to look upon all these goodly things as crucified things, and as dead Flowers, which the Spirit of God hath blown upon; to choose rather to suffer Afflictions with a poor few despised ones in the World, who are not of it; to get and stand out of the Crowd, as a man wondred at; to be able to swim against the Stream and Tyde of the Multitude, the rage and fury of Oppressors: To have strength to break thro' all those Weeds of Correspondencies with men, though never so great; to break off the strongest Leagues and Treaties with them; and to venture all their Enmity: If Wife and Children (which are as hostages given to the World of amity with it) hang about thy Neck (as Hierom says in his first Epistle) if Father and Mother down upon their Knees, to fling away the one, and trample upon the other: If thy Friend, which is as thy own Soul, entice thee (Deut. 13. 6.) to forsake him; to have a Heart and Strength to do all this, and not to be overcome, is from the Cords of Gods Almighty Power drawing the Heart. And yet the Child of God finds such power working in him, as if all the World lay between Christ and him, Christ would draw his Heart through, nothing can hold him from Christ.

4. You have seen how the exceeding greatness of Gods power is drawn out in the work of Sanctification; let us see it also a little in the Work of true Justifying Faith; which though to carnal men seems of all things the most easy, yet to educe and bring forth the least act of it, requires as great a power

er as hath been spoken of, and therefore it is called, (1 Thes. 1. 3.) τὸ ἔργον πίστεως, the work of Faith, for the difficulty of it, the same τὸ ἔργον the work of God κατ' ἐξοχην (John 6. 29.) which he especially commands, and shews most power in working of, yea, the same power that was shewn in Creating the World, and raising up Jesus Christ: We have an express place for this, Col. 2 12. We are risen with him through Faith of the Operation of God, who hath raised him from the Dead. Faith, you see, is a Work of Gods power only, Faith of the Operation of God, as you say of things that some one man only can make, it is an instrument of such a mans making; so because God only can make true Faith, it is called, by way of distinction from false Faith, a work of the Operation of God; and if you would know what power goeth to work and effect it, he adds, it is of that God who raised up Christ; for no less goes to make Faith, whereby indeed a Resurrection is wrought likewise in the Soul; for he says, We are risen with him through Faith; that is, in Believing, there is a Work wrought in your Soul, resembling the Resurrection of Christ, which therefore must have the same power drawn forth to work it. But you will say wherein? Chap. 5

1. To open this. Consider, That the raising one is putting Life into a Dead Man. Therefore, Faith, you know, is a new Principle of Life put into the Soul. The Just shall live by Faith; as our Life lay in Doing, under the Covenant of Works, Do this and thou shalt Live; so now in Believing. The Life that I now Live is by Faith of the Son of God, Gal. 2. 20. It is a principle of Living in another, and fetching Life from another, even from Christ, in whom our Life is hid, a going out of a Man's self, for Life to him.

2. Consider, That every Man by Nature, would and doth Live in himself, and that also by doing still; tho' indeed and in truth all hope of Life by works of Righteousness is cut off; tho' all our works are Dead Works, yet we would live of our own tho' it be less; are loth to go our of our selves for Life to another, to depend upon another, in so great a matter as Life is; to have the breath we live with, breathed out of another; Nature is averse to nothing more than to this: Tho' Adam lost this power of living in himself, yet as Sampson, tho' his Strength was gone, thought to do as in former times; so do we, tho' dead and lost, think to live in our selves still; To live by our hands, by doing still; and therefore all the Righteousness we have of our own, every good Inclination, every good performance, maintains an opinion of Life in us: As that Church had a Name she lived, when she was dead; so we have an opinion we live, when we are dead. So says Paul, (Rom. 7.) I was alive, says he, when I was a Pharisee; he thought himself a living man in Gods sight, by reason of what Righteousness he had of his own, which he thought living works.

3. Now therefore, that we may be driven out of our selves to seek Life in another by Faith, It is necessary we should be kill'd in our selves, and see, and apprehend our selves dead men, and all our Works dead Works; so says Paul in the verse before that, 20 v. of the 2*d Chapter*, lately Quoted to this purpose: I through the Law am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God; I must be dead first in my self; (he speaks it in point of Justification, as appears by the scope of the place) that I might live in another: And therefore he adds, Nevertheless I live: And the Life I now live is by Faith; which Life of Faith can never come to be in the Soul, till the opinion of living in my self, and in my own Righteousness, be destroyed: And therefore says Paul in the same, Rom. 7. I was alive indeed, says he, thought my self a living man; but when the Law came, sin reviv'd, and I died: That is, when I came to see the Spiritual meaning of the Law, and what true Holiness it required to Life; I saw, that all my works were unholy, dead works: That was one Death, he saw he had no true Life of Godliness in him, no ability to bring forth a living work; and so could not live by doing: But there was a Second Death worse than this: For sin revived; he before had lookt upon all his sin

Book 9 as small matters that would never hurt him, no more than Dead Serpents would; and had regarded his own Righteousnes, as living Works, which would maintain him Eternally; but now when God opened his Eyes, Sin revived; he saw an Eternal abounding Guilt in the least Sin; which Stab'd and Wounded his Soul, for it Condemned him; and says he, then I Died; I was so far from thinking my self a Living Man, that I received the Sentence of Death in my self, and thought that if there had been no more Men in the World, I should have been Damned; and I saw no hope of Life in my self, and no more power to attain to it, then is in a Dead Man.

4. Now then to infuse into this Man, a new power of Believing, a new Principle of Life, namely, Faith, by which he may see himself twice Dead, pluckt up by the Roots; Dead in regard of any Work of Righteousnes, whereby to be Justified, or to Live in Gods favour; Dead in regard of Millions of Transgressions, the Guilt of which like poisoned Arrows have Wounded him; and seeing himself thus Dead, he is engrafted into another, and comes to apprehend and believe himself an Heir of Life, and to Live in Gods sight; from him to suck Life and Power to bring forth new Works of Life: Thus to Raise him up when once laid for Dead, is a Work of God's mighty Power. For as soon may a Dead Tree ingraft and joyn it self to a Living Root, or being set in, as soon, may it draw Life from that Root, and Live again, and bring forth Fruit, as this man can come to live by Faith in Christ. It is exceeding great power to bring a Man that is alive in himself, to see he is Dead; we are so conceited of our own Righteousnes, as to take any thing as a sign of Life; and as Men fight and strive for Life, so do Moral and Civil Men against that Word that would kill them, and bring them out of conceit with themselves. But when once the Soul apprehends it self Dead in it self, it is Ten Thousand times harder to Raise it up to fetch Life from Christ, to get it set into Christ: As before a Man is Humbled, there are many Carnal Pleas the Heart hath for it self, that make a Man think he is a Living Man; so when a Man is once humbled, there are as many pleas against the work of Faith, that do detain a Man in the estate and opinion of Death and Condemnation; especially when it is deeply wounded and stab'd with the guilt of sin; for the wounds of the guilt of sin are as incurable as the Wounds of the power of sin: (So Ps. 88. 10.) says Heman (being wounded within, and apprehending himself thus, a condemned man) Wilt thou shew wonders to the Dead? That is, wilt thou ever raise my poor Soul up to live in thy sight, pardon and heal all these Sins? It is a wonder, says he, if ever this be done; as great a wonder as to raise up a dead man to Life, or a man out of Hell; for as the pains of Death detained Christs Soul from rising; so the Guilt of Sin coming upon the Conscience, with a Thousand fears and objections, keep a mans Thoughts from ever daring to think that he shall yet live, and that God will accept him; Even to raise up the Soul to the lowest act of Faith, this power is required; even to believe a mans sins to be pardonable, this is required: For before he believes this, he must be made partaker of Gods vast thoughts in pardoning, (Isa. 55. 8.) A man must forsake his own Thoughts; and therefore a man that comes to believe the pardon of his sins, must not bring the thoughts of a man with him: (for in that sense also he may be said to forsake his Thoughts) For they can never imagine God will pardon so much, till they be enlarged by a new Principle. Now the most in the World having never been laid for dead thus, think it nothing to believe; but those that have, find nothing harder and of greater difficulty. It is not in us to apprehend what infinite, vast thoughts of mercy there are in God: And though this seems easy, yet when a man is once enlightned to see the sinfulnes of sin to be above measure sinful, (Rom. 7. 13.) And that for multitude, they are as Piles heaped up as high as Heaven, and as low as Hell; then to be enabled to see, and be convinced that there are such thoughts of mercy in God, as will swallow up all these sins, as the Heavens do the Earth; and that they are but a point, in comparison; to think that God thinks, when he looks upon these sins, that though there are millions of them, yet he can pass by them, can find mercy enough to par-pardon them. And upon these thoughts, to rest and stay a mans self; and so to seek him, as not to be denied: These Thoughts are as far above mans Thoughts, as the Heavens are above the Earth. Therefore doth the Apostle pray, (Eph. 3. 17, 18, 19, 20.) that they might have Faith, and so be grounded in Love; that they might be able to comprehend the heighth, depth, breadth of Gods Love and Mercy, pardoning and swallowing a mans sins up; which passeth Knowledge, that is, above the reach of Natural Men: It can never enter into their Hearts, that there is such a depth, until God elevates them to sucht houghts of it, and therefore the Apostle farther adds, Now unto him that is able to do abundantly, &c. Chap.

2. I will demonstrate this exceeding great power in working, in parallelling it also with the work of Creation; as I did the other: To which end consider, That to see the least Creature arise and start out of nothing, argues an almighty power; so also to lay and found so great and weighty a Bulk, as is that of the Earth, upon meer nothing, that the Axle-tree and Hinges of it should be nothing, is one of those great Works of wonder, whereby God in Scripture sets forth his glorious power to us: Now such is the work of Faith, whereby I believe Christ made all things to me, and in him all things to be mine; for it ariseth out of nothing, is founded upon Nothing in a mans self; which is the greatest miracle in the World. But you will ask me, what my meaning is, that true Faith is founded on nothing, and how I demonstrate it?

For answer, When God, and where God means to work true Faith, he first brings the Heart unto nothing: To nothing in its own Righteousness, to nothing in its own abilities; that is, to see and apprehend it self meer nothing. By nature we all apprehend our selves to be something, and to have something, out of that self-flattery which is in us (Rev. 3. 17.) Thou sayst, I am Rich, and increased with Goods, and hast need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and naked. Now ere God works Faith in us, he makes us know and apprehend this our nothing, which the Scripture calleth Poverty of Spirit: And this is the nothing which I mean; not in statu entitatis, as in the rank of Creatures; but nothing as in statu Gratiæ; nothing in Righteousness, nothing in abilities, ever to please God; nothing in the new World, tho' something in the old. The Soul sees it self to be worth nothing as to what is to be possess'd in the new Creation; unable to purchase any thing which is to be enjoyed there, to have Interest in nothing but Sin and Hell. God by saving things, that are not, confoundeth things that are: (1 Cor. 1. 28.) That is, he confounds the Carnal men in the World, which think they Are Something in Wisdom, in Power, in Righteousness; and have a subsistence within themselves, and on their own Bottom. These he confounds by things that are not, whom he brings to apprehend and profess themselves Nothing; That no Flesh should rejoyce in his sight: (v. 29.) That they might have a new Being and Subsistence in Christ, (v. 30.) of him ye are in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us, Righteousness, Wisdom, Sanctification and Redemption: When we are thus annihilated in our selves, he makes Christ ours; and in him we see all things made ours. That which makes these things real, and to have a Being, and a Subsistence to me, is my Faith, Heb. 11. 1. which is therefore call'd the substance of things hoped for, and evidence of things not seen; and therefore a mighty power must concur with it to effect this. Then (2 Cor. 4. 6.) He compareth that power, which God shewed in creating the first perfect and glorious Creature, Light. God who commanded Light to shine out of Darkness, hath shined in our Hearts to give the Light of the knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face of Jesus Christ: What was before the Light was made: You shall find nothing but a rude, void Chaos a darkness and emptiness of all Form; a Tohu and Bohu, which was next door to nothing; which the Spirit immediately sustained and hatched, it had vanish'd to nothing else. And God said there, Let there be Light; and there was Light. Any one that reads this will say, that God here manifested thee xceeding greatness of his Power: Just so Book 9 doth God deal in creating Faith in our Hearts, which are nothing but darkness in themselves. He brings them first to a Tohu & Bohu, an apprehension of their own emptiness of Grace, as that was of Form; to be nothing but darkness in thine own apprehension, so as the Soul is sinking, falling, going into nothing; and then didst thou feel the Spirit of God moving upon thy Heart, working in thee, and commanding Light to shine out of thy Heart; Even the Knowledge of Gods free-Grace, making Christ to be Righteousness, Sanctification, and all things to thee. But now the common mock Faith, which is in the World, which is so easy, which comes up alone, of it self, riseth still out of something in a mans self; is not thus founded upon nothing, their Hearts never having been throughly emptied of themselves, nor humbled, nor brought to nothing; their Faith stands not on the power of God, but upon themselves, and therefore they think it so easy: Their own Natural Righteousness, Goodness of Nature, Justness of dealing, every good motion, holy duty performed, emboldeneth them to believe, and think they shall be saved: And they are deluded by that self-flattery which is in mens Hearts, whereby they are apt to believe good News, or any thing which may make for themselves, and whereby they think well of themselves, and are loath to think so harshly, that they shall be damned. And therefore they are light of belief to think Salvation theirs, and to take any thing as an evidence of it: Even as Haman, when he heard that the King would honour a man, presently he thought, out of his pride and self-flattery, that he was the man whom the King would honour: So says every mans Heart naturally, as soon as he hears of such good news as the Gospel; I am the man whom God will save. If there were but one to be saved, self-love should easily perswade him, he was the man: For Pride makes him think better, and hope better, and believe better of himself than of any one else: Especially if he hath any natural goodness or acts of Righteousness to shew for it; which being his own, he thinks well of: And this is the foundation and rise of common Faith, which is engendred out of the principles of self-flattery in a mans self; and nourished, and back'd, and fed by the Righteousness which is in a mans self; and what great power is there in working this? Nothing is more easy; nay, nothing is more hard, than to beat a man off from believing thus well of himself: But if this were true Faith, a man should have wherewith to boast: God therefore, in those whom he means to save works true Faith, which shall ascribe all to Christ and his free Grace; blows down all the Building of presumption; the Foundation whereof was laid in self-flattery, and natural Pride, and good opinion of a mans self; the Walls whereof were doubled with untemper'd mortar of a mans own Righteousness, (for the Heart gets all the rubbish it can, to maintain and strengthen it self in a good opinion of it self:) and God razeth down all these to the very Foundation; Puts a man clean out of conceit with himself; that instead of thinking, he is the man whom God will save, he begins to think, that of all men in the World, he is the man must die; and sees more reason for it, than why all the Men in the World should be damned; and instead of having any good in him, he sees he is an ungodly person, void of all Grace and Goodness (Rom. 4. 3, 5.) and that he is without all ability or strength to help himself: No more able to believe, than to climb up to Heaven. When he is thus brought to nothing in himself, and to see no reason why he, of all men else, should be sav'd; a mighty power is necessary to draw him to believe on him that justified the Ungodly, (Rom. 4.5.) and to build his Faith upon nothing in himself, but upon Gods free Grace in Christ, and so to raise his Soul plunged into a Gulph of misery, Bladders prick'd, no hands to swim; that it can stand on the Rock (that is higher than I, as David says) Christ; and find footing on him, and so is raised out of apprehension of nothing, now to be all things, and to have all things in Jesus Christ: The power of God working in that great work, τὸ ἔργον πίστεως, the work of Faith, is declared to be as great as to create the World, by these three things.

1. By raising up a Soul, sinking in its own apprehension into nothing, to believe believe ſeriouſly, that yet he is, and may be all things in Chriſt, and tho' he hath nothing of Righteouſneſs, Wiſdom, &c. yet that he poſſeſſeth all things, as Paul ſpeaks, (2 Cor. 6. 10.) that out of ſuch low annihilating thoughts, a Mans Heart ſhould be raiſed to ſuch vaſt and high Thoughts, that once a Man ſhould dare to think that Chriſt and all his Righteouſneſs is his, that Sanctification, Heaven, Redemption is his, who even now was nothing but Sin, Hell, wrath and deſtruction: This is a Work of Almighty Power, greater than the Creation of the World; for here is all things come into the room of nothing. Chap. 5

2. Yea and further, Whereas all the things Chriſt is made to me by Faith, as Righteouſneſs, &c. are all things not ſeen, (Heb. 11. 1.) things out of a mans ſelf, yea, out of a mans ken and reach by Nature, and ſo are to all carnal Men in the World as if they were not; and ſo they reckon them as nothing, becauſe not ſeen; reckon them as empty Notions, that have no being, no ſubſiſtence, becauſe none in view: That all theſe abſent things not ſeen, ſhould by an unheard of Art and way, be preſented all before me as real, preſent, ſubſiſting things, to have a being to me, and in me; as true, and real, and ſenſible a being to Faith, as the Sun which I ſee before me, (John 14. 21.) as the Meat which I eat, (as Chriſt ſays, John 6. 55.) As real as the things I handle or embrace. (Heb. 11. 13.) That Faith ſhould thus be the Evidence of things not ſeen, and the Subſiſtance of things abſent and hoped for, and cauſe therefore the Heart to part with all things at the preſent he enjoys and ſees, to be made a Poſſeſſor of theſe, ſuch reality doth he find in them; what mighty power, think we, muſt accompany the Work of Faith, that works ſo great a Wonder and Miracle? As to make abſent things preſent, things hoped for to ſubſiſt, things afar off, to be in a Mans Heart?

3. Whereas a Man hath no power to go out of himſelf, to lay hold on theſe things, thus preſented and offered to him, finds in himſelf no more ability to embrace, and graſp, and reach them, than to lay hold on yonder Star, or upon the Sun, and a Man truly ſees he hath no ſtrength; (Rom. 5. 6.) But is like one falling from an high Pinacle of ſelf Confidence and Preſumption, which is blown down from undef him, and though looking up to Heaven, he ſees Righteouſneſs, Glory, all things in Chriſt, offered to be his, if he could catch hold upon them; yet Alas, he is not only ſinking and falling down headlong further and further from them, but wants hands to lay hold on them if he were at them, and nigh them: In this Caſe now, to have a Mans Soul drawn and wound up by the power of God, (John 6. 44.) and carried up by the wings of the Spirit, to the Throne of Chriſt in Heaven, and to have new hands of Faith given him, to embrace and apprehend him of whom he is comprehended: All theſe are ſo many wonders in the Work of Faith, which requires as much power to effect, as was ſeen in the Creation of the World.

And if any have not obſerved this power working thus in their Hearts at firſt, in bringing them firſt to nothing, (God working upon ſome inſenſibly and by degrees,) yet they may diſcern the power of God working in their Faith, in continuing, backing, ſtrengthning and preſerving of it; for he fulfilleth the Work of Faith with power, as well as he begins it with Power; and if Man lives not by Bread only, but by Gods Command and power; then the Life of Faith is much more continued with power, And indeed if we would define Faith, what is it but the power of God drawing the Heart to Chriſt and holding it to him, John 6. 44. and 1 Pet. 1. 5. Ye are kept by the power of God through Faith; that is, the power of God is ſeen in Faith, and that in Temptation eſpecially, verſe 6. 7. and though in ordinary paſſages of a Mans Life, when Faith is not put to it, a Man will ſcarce diſcern this power backing it, when Signs, and the witneſs of the Spirit, and aſſiſtance in Duties, do take part with Faith, yet in time of Temptation, this will more evidently ap-

Book 9 pear, when the ſpurious Faith that is but a fruit of the Fleſh, will fail; but if true, he that maintained the Oil in the Cruſe, that it decayed not in the time of the Famine, he will maintain that little drop of Faith in the time of Temptation. For this is a ſure Rule, That which backs thy Faith in Temptation was the begetter of it; as the Woman, when her Child was like to be divided, laboured to ſave it, becauſe it was her Child, ſo will God preſerve that Faith that is begotten by himſelf when it is like to be over-born. And know this, That if thy Faith be true, it will be Tempted; Satan hath deſired to Winnow thee, but I have Prayed (ſays Chriſt) that thy Faith fail not: Faith being that thing that Satan deſires moſt to winnow. Doſt thou therefore feel the power of God backing, ſtrengthning, joyning, with thy Faith, drawing thy Heart to cleave to Chriſt, maugre all Temptations? Doſt thou feel Faith an invincible thing that will never be Nonpluſt? It is becauſe Gods power is in it; let a Flood of Temptations come in, yet Faith, like a ſmall drop of Oyl, will be above them all: And like a Man hanging upon the top of a Pinacle, tho' ordinarily he hath a ſtool to eaſe his hand, yet when the ſtool is taken away, ſtill he hangs; ſo Faith, when Temptation takes all ſigns and props away, then upholdeth the Heart, though the Devil not only plucks the ſtool away, but alſo ſtrikes at the hand that holds it, yet ſtill Faith cleaves to Chriſt; and that ſo as ſometimes the hand is benummed alſo, and feels not that it holds it.

USE 1. The Firſt USE is to convince thoſe, who defer Repentance, of their low and ſlight eſteem of the VVork of Grace, they erring herein, not knowing the power of God; whereas if men apprehended that this Work is as much as to diſſolve the VVorld to nothing, and make it new again, and that it is as impoſſible for them, by their own powe to Repent, as to do this; they would ſet all aſide, and think this one thing neceſſary, as Mary did, and immediately begin to ſeek to God for it, and think that little time they have to Live, were little enough for to beg ſo great a thing at Gods hands, and be glad if they could obtain it at laſt. But ſuch is the Fooliſh Wiſdom of Men, that think to graſp both the pleaſures of Sin here, and Heaven in the end, that think to go beyond God and the Devil alſo, thinking to put God off with any Repentance at their caſt-away leiſure, after the ſtrength and flower of their Youth and Years are ſpent in the Service of Sin; and after a long Apprentiſhip ſerved to the Devil, who takes them Captive at his Will, think yet to give him at laſt the ſlip, to knock off his Fetters, and to eſcape; as if Repentance were within their own power, ſo playing with it, as the Cat doth with it's ſilly Prey, thinking that one ſudden leap will Tranſlate them at once from Death to Life; between which yet there is great a Gulf, as between Heaven and Hell. Away, you fooliſh Sinners, that ſay in your Hearts, as he (Deut. 29. 19.) We ſhall have Peace, &c. Go on to make your own Gheſts, (as they Jam. 4. 13, 14, 15.) chalk out what ways of Pleaſures this day and the next you mean to walk in, at laſt meaning (as your Hearts tell you) to turn in and ſee where true Repentance dwells, I tell you, (as James ſays, Jam. 4. 13, 14, 15. in matters of far leſs dependance, and more in your own power then Repentance is) you reckon without your Hoſt; it muſt be the exceeding greatneſs of Gods power, muſt work it. If you dare yet think it in your own power, go on and proſper, ſet your own times, put off God ſtill, who it may be now offers and begins to Work it, and in your own deceitful Hearts appoint and take a longer Day, and then break it and periſh for ever; do: But if you think it to be in Gods power only (as if this Text be true, it is,) tremble to have ſuch a Thought; take his time who hath appointed a time for every Work under the Sun, the Graſs to Grow, Flowers to Spring, Trees to Bloſſom and all in their Seaſon; which when paſt, Dung, and Water, and uſe what means you will, they appear no more.

But you will ſay, If the greatneſs of his power Work it, then he is able to do it as well at one time as another, and ſo no time is paſt with him.

I Anſwer,

Chap. 5

I Answer, That his power is regulated by his Will, for his power working any thing, is his Will. He worketh all things according to his good pleasure, and the Councel of his VVill; therefore speaking of VVorks of Regeneration, 'tis said, Of his Will he begat us., Jam. 1.18. He is a Free Agent, Breathing when and where he pleaseth; and therefore presume not on his power at all times, unless thou be'st sure of his VVill at all times; now that thou art not; for after that day appointed, he swears in his VVrath, they shall never enter, Chap. 3. 18. as he dealt with Saul in the matter of the Kingdom, 1 Sam. 13. 13, 14, 15. So with men for matter of Grace, Ezek. 24.13. when I would, they would not; therefore I will not, says God.

But you will say, I will seek him, and that earnestly.

I Answer, Remember Esau, who in this is made a Type of all Neglecters of Grace offered in the Gospel, Heb. 12 17. as the Birth-right is made a Type of the Graee offered in the Gospel, so his Father is a Type of God offering it; he having sold it, as Men do the offer of Grace, for their Lusts; his Father could not change his Mind, though he sought it with Tears; he found no place for Repentance: VVeep thy Eyes out, it will do no good.

But you will say, I will then turn from my Sins, take up new purposes and resolutions to forsake them, and confess them, and then I hope he will repent and have Mercy on me.

To this I Answer, I Confess you may do so; only take this with you, that there is a kind of Repentance which is partly in your own power, such as Ahab had, who Mourned and went softly; such as Judas, Mat. 27. who Repented himself, Confest and Restored; such as they performed, Hos. 7. last, They returned, but not to God, not doing it out of a changed Heart, which moves not God. But to have a changed Heart, a new Life of Godliness put in, is not in thy power. For thou canst not make a Hair Black or White, nor can a Blackamore alter his Colour, tho' his blackness be but in his Skin; and canst thou change thy Heart, thinkest thou, Sin being incorporated and blended with thy Nature, so baked into thy Bones, and the Spirit of thy Mind? Tell me, can this heavy massey lump, the dregs of the World, the Earth fastned in its own Center, can it remove it self, and become a Star? Can all the Creatures, Angels, Men, if they set their Shoulders to it, with all Engines, move it a jot off the Hinges it hangs on? No more can thy Heart move it self, being as averse to what is good the Earth as is to move upward, as fixt upon Sin, as the Earth upon its Center; and as great a distance is there between the State of Grace and Nature, as between Heaven and Earth.

But you will say, I will send for a Minister or some good Man to help me, and speak peace to me, at my Death.

Still this Doctrine answers you; it is Gods Power only can do it: Send for all the Angels from Heaven, the whole Colledge of Physitians, let them come with all their Balms, yet as he said (2 Kings 6. 27.) if God do not help thee, they cannot; for this Birth is (John 1.13.) not of self, or the will of Man, but of God: Though the Minister Preach then the Gospel of Peace to thee, yet unless God makes an Ecco to thy Heart, they are but tinkling Cimbals. Isa. 59. 17. I Create the Fruit of the Lips Peace; talk they of Peace never so much, unless God speak Peace, and Create it, as the Fruit of those Words, by an Almighty Power, thou canst not have Peace. The Wicked are as the Troubled Sea, which cannot rest; when the Sea was troubled (Mat. 8. 24.) could all the Disciples still it? Could all their Anchors save the Ship and stay it? No, (verse 27.) Christ only did it: So when thy Conscience is tossed at Death, and when the Waves of thy Sins arise, and the Devils, as the Winds, are let loose to joyn with those Waves, Book 9 Waves, who can Command them silent? Sooner mayest thou Command the Thunder silent, that Roars in the midst of Heaven; and then thou poor Wicked Wretch art tost, over-whelmed, and no Anchor will hold or stay thee; no Prince of Peace Comfort thee; and suppose now all Men speak things of Peace to thee, yet there is no Peace to the Wicked, says my God; and if He says No, His Word will stand.

But thou wilt say, I am of an Ingenuous Temper, and soft to the Impressions of good, so as at any time, when I consider things, I find my Heart moved.

I Answer, Suppose it; yet, if this be true, that Gods power must work it, thou for all thy good Nature, art as far off as another, in regard of any active concurrence to it; as take a piece of soft Wax, and another of hard, the soft is no more able of it self to work the image and impression of any thing upon it, than the hard; but a Hand and Seal must stamp the one, as well as the other. So is a good nature, as you use to call it, as empty of the image of God, as the crookedest, and as unable to stamp that image as the most perverse: It must be Gods Spirit, (for it is the Seal of God, and so called, Eph. 4 30.) must stamp and work an Impression, as well as upon the hardest Heart; upon thy soft Heart; this you may see in the example of the young man, who was ingenuous, soft, plyable, and Christ loved him; yet of him Christ says, and upon occasion of him, that it was as easie for a Camel to go through the eye of a Needle, as for a Rich Man to go to Heaven.

But some will say, If I should now set my self to turn, I fear my case is desperate and there is no hope, I am so hardned in evil.

Answer, The power of God being it which must do it, thou mayest come to Repentance, tho' thy Heart be never so hard. At the latter Day the Earth and Elements shall melt with fervent heat, and is not he able to melt thy Heart? Look now on the Frosty Weather, tho' all Men could not thaw it, yet stay, thou shalt see it thawed; and cannot he dissolve thy Heart?

But thou wilt say, My Heart is full of Sin, and of the Works of the Devil in it, and hath so long lain in them, that it cannot be heal'd.

I Answer, He raised Lazarus, tho' Dead Four Days, and he stunk; and why not thee also, tho' thou art not only Dead, but stinkest in thy sins?

CHAP. VI.

That the Virtual Cause of Regeneration is the Resurrection of JESUS CHRIST: What Influence it hath to raise us to a Newness of Life.

1 PETER I. 3.

Blessed be the God, and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant Mercy, hath Begotten us again into a Lively Hope, by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the Dead.

By the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the Dead.

THE next thing to be considered is the Virtual Cause of Regeneration, namely, The Resurrection of Christ.

These Words may First, Either refer to our hope, as being the Cause

Cause of it: For in that Christ is risen and ascended, lies our hope that we also shall, as the Apostle connects them (1 Cor. 15. 17, 20.) and it is the Inference which the Apostle makes, Col. 3. 1, 3, 4. compared, That He being Risen ver. 1. and being our Life, ver. 4. Therefore when He appears in Glory, We shall appear with Him. And this it was, that made the primitive Christians, (as with good News) thus to salute one another, Christ is risen, Christ is risen. Because I live (says Christ) you shall live also, John 14. 19. and therefore (1 Tim. 1.) Christ is called our Hope. Chap. 9

Or else 2. It refers to being Begotten again. And this seems here to be the most probable reference. Only this is a Rule, take in interpreting Scriptures, That when any Passage relates to two things, I take them both. But here I shall only speak of the last Reference, because the dependence between Christ's Resurrection and the New Birth, is the most difficult to discern. To shew the Affinity of these two, and to explain this in General, I shall say two things.

1. That Christ's own Resurrection is called his being Begotten: So (Acts 13. 33.) that place in the 2*d* Psalm is applied to his Resurrection, This day have I Begotten thee, &c. The reason whereof, I take to be this: Because when the Humane Nature first entred into that Estate, which primitively was ordained for Him by his Father: (For he should not have come into this World clothed with Infirmities, but for sin. (Rom. 8. 3.) But the World to come was ordained for Him, as this World was for the first Adam.) His first Entrance into that his World, being at his Resurrection; it may truly be called his Begetting, as being then first brought forth into that his World. And so I understand the coherence of those two verses, Heb. 1. 5, 6. That Begetting spoken of v. 5. was his Resurrection, which was that his first coming into the World, mentioned v. 6. namely, that World which is call'd the World to come, chap. 2. 5. Now, as his Resurrection is called his Begetting again, so our Resurrection is called our Regeneration. So you have it in those Words of Christ, Mat. 19. 28. Those that follow me in [the Regeneration] shall sit on twelve Thrones, &c. which refer rather to the time of the Resurrection; which is the Restitution of all things, (as Peter calls it) than to the time of following Christ here, altho' they may relate to both. And therefore we find, (Luke 20. 36.) the Children of God are called by a new Title; which ariseth from God's raising them up; it being a begetting them anew, as his Children. The Words are observable; for they are said to be the Children of God, they being the Children of the Resurrection, or peculiarly for this, that they are raised up by God. And there is this particular reason in it: For in their first begetting, as men, God was but the Father of their Spirits, they having other Bodily Parents of their Bodies and Flesh, Heb. 12. 9. But now in the Resurrection, God becomes a Father anew unto their Bodies, and the whole Man raising them up, and joining both Body and Soul together: And so they become the Children of God, being the Children of the Resurrection. And therefore also it is, that the Redemption at the Resurrection of the Body is called the Adoption. Rom. 8. And to this purpose also, is that Phrase (Col. 2. 18.) where Christ is called the first Begotten of the Dead; the Resurrection being a Begetting, both unto Him and Them; and because they are raised by vertue of his Resurrection, therefore he is called the first Begotten. Wherefore, that there should be some special Affinity between Christs Resurrection and our New Birth, is not unlikely. But more expressly those two places, Col. 2. 12. and 1 Pet. 3. 21. do ascribe the new Birth of a Believer unto the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. The like Figure whereunto, even Baptism doth now save us, by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. Baptism is the Sacrament of Regeneration; and when the Apostle says, Baptism saves, his meaning is, that the Grace in Baptism, which is Regeneration (for that is the thing sealed up) wrought by Christs Resurrection, doth save us. And the like to this, is that in 2 Col. 12.

The 2*d* Thing in General to be observed is, That though all the works of Christ for us have an Influence into his work in us, and upon us; yet so, as some are more especially attributed to some work of Christ than to another, and Book 9 and some things in every work in us, more peculiarly to some of his Works for us, than to others. That being true of Christs works for us, that is of the works of the Trinity: That though all works are common to all the Persons, yet some are more peculiarly attributed to the Father, as Election, some to the Son, as Redemption, &c. and likewise in every work something more peculiarly attributed to one than to another; as in Conversion, drawing us to Christ, is attributed to the Father, (John 6. 44.) and Sanctification to the Holy Ghost. And answerably is it in the thing in hand, the work of Regeneration: Wherein Mortification, or destroying the Body of Sin, which is one part of it, is attributed to his Death, (Rom. 6. 4.) and the Begetting, or infusing a New Principle of Life into us unto his Resurrection; verse 5. of the same Chapter. And thus likewise in Justification; the Matter of our Righteousness, which is imputed, is Christs obedience unto Death: But the imputation it self is ascribed to his Resurrection: (Rom. 4. last.) And so (Rom. 5. 10.) our Reconciliation is attributed to his Death, but our Preservation in that Estate, unto his Life and Intercession.

Now then, to shew why this New Birth is thus peculiarly attributed to his Resurrection.

1. It is not by way of Merit only, for the Merit or Price laid down, was fully accomplish'd and paid at that Instant when he arose out of the Grave, (which was the last part of his satisfaction, and when he arose out of debasement): But his Resurrection was the entrance and first step into his Glorified Condition.

Neither 2. Is it simply, in respect of Application; That he arose again to live and send the Spirit to work Regeneration in us; (as Rom. 5. 10. Where we are said to be saved by his Life): For in this respect, his Resurrection hath but the same common Influence which it hath into all other works, as upon Justification, &c. And indeed, to speak properly, His death is the Meritorious Cause, his Intercession, the Applicatory Cause: But his Resurrection is the Virtual Cause; as by virtue of which, it is wrought. And therefore (Phil. 3. 20.) it is called, the vertue of his Resurrection. A Dew comes from his Resurrection, like the Dew of Herbs, as the Prophet Isaiah calls it, in the 26th Chapter of his Prophecy, v. 19. which (as there) causeth the Conversion and Calling of the Jews, and their Resurrection unto Life, even as the Dew from Heaven causeth the Herbs to grow out of the dead Womb of the Earth. Therefore Christ is called a quickening Spirit, as Adam a Living Soul, 1 Cor. 15. 45. Adam being able indeed to convey Life, but not to quicken dead Hearts, as Christ doth. Now this Vertue consisteth in, or ariseth from two things, or rather shews it self in Two things.

1. In that the very same power that wrought in Christ when he was raised up, works in Us to Beget us again. So Eph. 1. 19, 20. It is Expressly said, That the same power that wrought in Christ when he was raised from the Dead, works in them that Believe. It is no less; yea, it is the same; and this, to work Faith: (Col. 2. 12.) And so (Rom. 8. 11.) the same Spirit that raised up Christ, raiseth us up; our Souls here, and our Bodies hereafter. And it not only required the same power, (as I have else-where shewn) but the same power was engaged by his Resurrection, to work this new Birth in us. For Christ rose not as a private man, but as a Head, and as the first fruits of them that sleep; 1 Cor. 15. 20. and the first begotten of the dead; and so, in a way of representing their Persons therein; thereby engaging the same power to work in them the Members, that wrought in Him the Head; because he rose with Them considered as in Him, and he having that power for their sakes; to shew that first in his Natural Body, which afterward he was to shew in his mystical.

2. Christs Resurrection is the exemplary Cause of our Regeneration, according to which, the Spirit, or that same power that wrought in Him, works a work in us conformable to his Resurrection, as the pattern of it. And so, although an exemplary Cause, hath of all ordinary Causes the least influence; yet this hath more than such ordinary Causes use to have. And that, by vertue of a Decree, or Ordinance given out by God. That we should as well bear the Image of the Heavenly, as of the Earthly Adam. This Law was given to Grace, as well as Nature: And so gives force to Christs actions, to conform us and ours unto them; as it did to Adam's Actions, to transform our Nature unto His (as his Corruption doth, by the Law of Nature.) And thus our begetting again, (which is by the infusion of a new Life) bears the Image of Christs Resurrection, and so is attributed unto it. The Rule being, That that in Christ should have an Influence more special to work in us that which was most like thereto. Thus Rom. 6. 5. It is expressly said, We shall be Baptized into the Likeness of his Resurrection. Now Baptism is the Sacrament of Regeneration, which resembles, in the dipping under water and coming forth again, our Burial with Christ in his Grave, and our rising again by Faith and a new Life: Col. 2. 12. Now then, I shall let you see in General the similitude between Christs Resurrection and our Regeneration. Chap. 6

by

1. As the Resurrection of Christ was the great Declaration of him to be the Son of God, with power; Rom. 1. 4. So is the Regeneration of a Believer the first Declaration of his being a Son of God, and the first discovery of his Election.

2. As Christ's Resurrection was the first step unto his Glory, and to that exaltation that followed that his Resurrection; So Regeneration is the Foundation and first step unto all those Priviledges of a Christian that follow upon the State of Grace, whereunto this is the door, or first entrance. I might shew this more particularly in the principal Parts of Regeneration; as,

1. In the work of Faith, in a rising from under the guilt of sin.

2. In the work of Sanctification, in a rising from under the power of sin. For we are dead in respect of both: Dead in respect of Guilt; as a man condemned is said to be a dead man, bound over to Death. Dead in respect of the power of sin, as a man whose Soul is gone is dead, he being unable to move or stir, because he wants a Principle of Life. It is Faith which raiseth us to a Life of Justification, as Rom. 5. 18. it is called. And this it doth, as really, from the state of Condemnation, which change is called a passing from Death to Life: So also apprehensively; that is, from the apprehension of our being under the guilt and condemnation of sin: Which apprehension is wrought by Humiliation, wherein the Spirit condemns a man, and and binds him over to Guilt and Death: (And therefore, Rom. 8. 15. he is called the Spirit of Bondage) and also gives a man up to the Law, which shuts a man up with a Guard or Garison, as one Condemned, until Faith comes: Gal. 3. 22. For therein God's dealing with the Jews was a Type of his proceeding by a Spirit of Bondage, wrought in those God means to convert: And so the Romans are said to have received the Spirit of Bondage. God also slayeth the Sinner with that guilt: Rom. 7. 10, 11. Sin revived, and I died, says Paul, when he was humbled. And out of this Death doth Faith raise the Soul up to a Justification of Life. Therefore (Col. 2. 12.) it is said, You are risen with him through Faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the Dead. For it is Faith which makes a man live in God's sight, and enjoy his Favour, which is the Life of the Soul.

CHAP. I.

That every Man hath ſomething which he makes his chiefeſt Good. What Men Unregenerate place their chief Good and Happineſs in, and in what the Regenerate place theirs. That there are Two chief Treaſuries, in which the Good things of Men are laid, viz. Heaven and Earth.

But lay up for your ſelves Treaſure in Heaven, where neither Moth nor Ruſt, doth Corrupt, and where Thieves do not break through, nor Steal.

For where your Treaſure is, there will your Hearts be alſo.

ALL Creatures are ſaid to have their Life, Motion and Being in God, Acts 17. 28. But that is only as he is their Efficient Cauſe, and Upholder of them by his power, It is in like manner ſaid, that God

Book I. hath made all things for himself, even the Wicked, Prov. 16. 4. namely, as the Finis cui, or external end. He by his Power and Wisdom ordered all their Beings and Motions to his own Glory. But it is the Priviledge, yea Essential Constitution of the New Creature, to hold of God by a more near and intrinsecal Tenure or Copy, even for it's very being, to have its Life bound up in God; and that in a double further respect unto him. Namely,

1. To have it's Life, Actuation, and Motion, and Stirrings of all within it self, to live and consist in God himself, as known and loved by it self, as the close Object and Matter of it's Happiness and Comfort. And

2. To have God made unto it from the inward Constitution and Tendency of it self, its proper natural principal End, it's own intrinsecal end, or Finis cujus; and more intrinsecal unto it, then its self is to its self. He is the Load-star that Guides, and Load-stone which quickens all the motions and tendencies of all within it, and which draws them all into, and carries them along with it's self.

And look as the Understanding and Will, are two Essential Faculties in the Soul, so to make God a Man's cheifest Good, and a Man's chiefest End, these are the Two Essential Properties of the new Nature, that do Constitute it such, and are proper thereunto. The Soul was originally made for God, so as both to Glorifie him, and also to be made happy in him; and Holiness in the Soul, and that Principle alone, doth fit it for, and elevate it unto both these. Therefore in some Scriptures you find it Termed, The Life of God, as Eph. 4. 16. sometimes the Glory of God. Rom. 3. 23.

The First of these is my present Subject in design, and to call all your Souls to an account; what it is your account your chiefest Good. All Men of Knowledge brought up under the Light we enjoy, out of ordinary conviction of what God is; and out of common experience of the Vanity of the Creature, do acknowledge and profess this God to be the chiefest Good, as to the speculative part; but that which we seek after, is a discovery of what Men do herein, practically and really, in the daily actings and Motions of their Souls towards God, and into God; and not what Men profess him to be in Reversion. All will say, we hope for Happiness from God in the other World, when they can live no longer; though all their Lives here, they live in the Creatures: But the Inquisition is, what Men do make here, in this Life, their cheifest Good, and do live upon it, and are taken up therewith, either in the pursuance, or enjoyment of it; and this with difference from all Carnal Men in the World.

It is uttered as the common Cry and Voice of the many or multitude, Psal. 4. 6. The many will say, Who will shew us any good. That's the Common Voice and Cry of Nature, common to good and bad; but how then are Wicked and Godly Men differenced and distinguished? Even by this, What good things their Souls make their good things. There are multitudes of Scriptures to evidence this; Luke 16. Christs chief scope indeed was to shew the vastly differing conditions of a Rich Wicked Man, and of a poor Saint, in this World, and in that to come. How plentifully the Rich Man lived, and what he enjoyed according to the opinion and desire of his own Heart; the 19*th verse* Relates, There was a certain Rich Man, which was Cloathed in Purple and fine Linnen, and fared Sumptuously every Day. And how Miserable the poor Man was, verse 20, 21. And there was a certain Beggar, named Lazarus, which was laid at his Gate full of Sores, and desiring to be fed with the crums which fell from the Rich Man's Table; moreover, the Dogs came and licked his Sores. He was in his Body full of Sores, and so in continual Tortures, unable to stir, for he was laid at the Rich Mans outward Gate, not having to sustain nature; for he desired Crums, which are the allowance of Doggs, and these were denyed him; and on the contrary, the Rich Mans Dogs licked and sucked his Blood, refreshing themselves therewith, a Dead Carcass, he unable so much as to drive them away. This Difference is in their Lives.

The

The other is in their Death: Poor Lazarus dies, and the Angels carry his Soul to Feast in Heaven; which Christ elsewhere expresseth, by sitting down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as at a Feast; and here, by his being placed in Abraham's Bosom, as next Guests to him: It being the manner at Feasts to lean on the Bosom of him that was next him, as John did in Christs, John 13. 23. The Rich Man Dies, and hath a stately Funeral; He was Buried, that's added; which you may observe is not spoken of the other; but withal, the next News you hear of him, is, his being in Hell, where, in the words of my Text, he is upbraided with, and reminded of this, Remember thou receivedst thy good things in thy Life-time, but Lazarus evil things. Souls in Hell meditate and perfectly remember what in this World they had been, and what Sins they committed, what Pleasures they enjoyed, and in the Conscience and Remembrance of such things, do lye that Worm that never Dyeth; and the 21*st Verse* of the 50*th Psalm* tells us, That their Sins are set in order, or Marshal-Array, afore them. Chap. 1

Nor is it simply said, Thou receivedst good things, as of Lazarus, 'tis said he received Evil; as if that were the Rule God went by? No, for even this very Abraham, who is here brought in speaking this to him, is an undeniable instance to the contrary. And the Rich Man had had from thence, wherewith to have retorted to him. Gen. 13. 2. Abraham was very Rich in Cattel, in Silver, and in Gold. And this was spoken of him many Years afore he dyed, and 'tis to be supposed he encreased therein. The Sting therefore which he sets and leaves in this Rich Mans Heart, lies in this Word, [THY] good things; that is, which thy Soul pitcht upon as such, as the chief Object of it's desires, the Darling of thy Delights, or (as it is uttered by God to the Inhabitants of that Great City, when in like manner Destroyed and cast to Hell, Rev. 18. 14.) The Fruits which thy Soul lusted after, and all things that were dainty and goodly, (namely, in thine own Eyes) are departed from thee. And this the very Text, with difference, puts the Emphasis upon. For of Lazarus he says, that he Received Evil things; but thou, thy good things.

So then, Carnal Men make the good things, that are in this Life, their chief and only good things, which their Souls lust after, and live upon. And the Reason is in Eph. 4. 18. They being estranged from God, and the life of God, through ignorance and unbelief, they know no better. And all Mens Souls cry out, Who will shew us any good? And therefore they, as the Prodigal (whose story is the lively Type of this) being ready to starve, and no saving entercourse being betwixt God and them, they content themselves with what is afore them, though but husks. Nor can they relish, or take in, or delight in any other. And so are confined and shut up to these.

And 2. In that other Scripture, Matth. 6. 19, 20, 21. Christ holds forth, as to this point in hand, These Two things, 1. That every Man hath some thing or other he accounts his Treasure, which in like manner, speaking to every Man, he calls their Treasure, where YOUR Treasure is, there will your Hearts be. Every Man that hath an Heart, hath also some Treasure. For it will be taken up with some thing or other; and the reason is, because every Man hath self to provide for, and lay up for. Christ hath expressed it in these very words, Luke 12. 21. A man laying up Treasure, says he, for himself, and of what his Heart judgeth best, and finds naturally most content in, it lays out for such things. 'Tis not Riches only, that are the Treasures of the Sons of men (tho' some mens) but whatever thing the Heart fancys, and is set upon, as its chiefest good. The poorest have their Treasure in this respect, of what is in their Sphear and Compass: 'Tis that on which their Hearts are, as the Pharase is, verse 21. that is, which he vallues, and esteems as his chiefest good. So then thy good things, in Luke, is all one with thy Treasure in Matthew, only the one is a real expression, the other only a Metaphorical. A Treasure hath this Addition, that it is some eminent good thing, which he accounts such, and so his chiefest good. Treasure, you know, is of what a man counts most precious. Rich and Covetous men, (from whom the Metaphor is taken) heap not up for Treasures, Iron, Lead, or Pebbles; but Gold, precious Stones, the World which in common estimation hath turned up

Book 10 trump. We may approve of many things in their kind, which we make not our Treaſure: But Treaſure is ſtill thechoiceſt and the chiefeſt: And ſo here is put to expreſs what a man hath pitch'd on as his chiefeſt Good. A Godly man accountsthe things of this Life Good, for he uſeth them; yet he reckons them not as his Treaſure. And a wicked man may acknowledge, and cannot but ſay of the things of the other World, God and Chriſt, and Grace, that they are things that are Good; yet he makes them not his Treaſure.

The Second thing that Chriſt holds out, is, That there are two differing Treaſuries or Store-houſes, Repoſitories or Places in whch the chief good things of the Sons of men are found; and but two: And they are Earth and Heaven. Theſe are the two great Staples of differing Commodities: Look as Heaven and Hell will one day make a perfect dichotomy, disjunction, or a ſingle diviſion of mens perſons hereafter, ſo here; on Earth, and on Heaven, do mens Hearts and Affections divide.

Now as the general Reaſon afore given, was That every man hath a ſelf to provide for: So the reaſon of this different Treaſure and Proviſion is the difference of that Self that is in men. Some have nothing but an Earthly Self. All their Affections, and Inclinations of their Souls, are through ſin become Members upon Earth, Col. 3. 5. and Earth will to Earth. But a man born again, hath another ſelf begun in him. For what is it elſe that is born again, but another ſelf, by this ſecond Birth, (as the Product thereof) as that former ſelf was by the other Birth? And is therefore call'd the New Creature, as that which is made for, and fitted to the things of another World. And theſe things on Earth will no more make that ſelf happy, than Meat and Drink, and Cloaths or Beauty, would conduce to make an Angel, or a ſeparated Spirit happie, or contribute to their well being.

I need not open to you theſe two vaſt Treaſuries; they are known to you all. The World is a large Shop of Vanity, and one Heart hath a mind to this thing, another to that, viz. Beauty, Credit, Learning, Wit, Converſation, Riches, Honour, Power. (Soul thou haſt Goods for many Years, (Luke 12. 19.) Eat, drink, and be merry.) Which, becauſe the World generally knows no better, and uttering their very Hearts, they uſe to give the name of Goods unto: Yea and of Subſtance forſooth, it being ſo to them; and therefore John is fain to diſtinguiſh them upon the mention of them, from the true good, terming them the Worlds good, (1 John 3. 17.) that is, which they count ſuch. It is the name the World gave, and in the other part of the diſtinction, or rather in oppoſition thereto (Luke 16. 9.) The other are termed the true Riches, by Chriſt, and (Chap. 12. 21.) Riches to God, that is, in Gods account and valuation ſuch, whereas the others are ſuch in the Worlds.

But not Riches only, but any thing elſe more Mental and Aerial; as Honours, Learning, yea legal Righteouſneſs it ſelf, outward Priviledges and Duties of Chriſtians (when God is not made a mans chief End in the performance or enjoyment of them) come under this Inventory of mens Treaſuries, Phil. 3. 5, 6. Circumciſed the eighth day, of the Stock of Iſrael, of the Tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew, of the Hebrews, touching the Law, a Phariſee: Concerning Zeal, perſecuting the Church: Touching the Righteouſneſs that is in the Law, blameleſs. Now he counted theſe his Excellency, and his Gain: He uſeth both expreſſions in what follows, v. 7, 8. What things were Gain to me, I accounted Loſs; for the Excellency of the Knowledge of Chriſt. Yea, put in all things, for ſo Paul doth; I account all things now but loſs. Or

2. Heavens Treaſury you have ſet out under that notion, (for I ſhall quote no other than ſuch as ſpeak in the Language of this Metaphor) I am thy exceeding great Reward, ſays God to Abraham, Gen. 15. 1. after he had refuſed the ſpoil of five Kings. By this metaphor are ſet forth.

1. God, who in Job 22. 25. is termed a Righteous mans beſt Gold: See the Margent.

2. Chriſt, in whom are unſearchable Riches, Eph. 3. 8.

3. The Promiſes, which are the Veins, the Mines thoſe Treaſures are laid up in: They are great and precious, 2 Pet. 1. 4.

4. The Graces that do intereſt us in theſe Riches, as Faith, 'tis call'd precious Faith

Faith, 1 Pet. 1. 1. Yea, much more precious than Gold, 1 Pet. 1. 7. So Wiſdom alſo is ſtiled whether you underſtand it of Chriſt, or the wiſdom to Salvation, through Faith in him, Prov. 8. 19, 20, 21. My Fruit is better than Gold, yea, than fine Gold, and my revenue than choice Silver. I lead in the way of Righteouſneſs, in the midſt of the paths of Judgement. That I may cauſe thoſe that love me, to inherit Subſtance; and I will fill their Treaſure. Chap. 1

And 2. That the Soul of a man born again is thus framed, as to place in God, and theſe things of God, his chiefeſt and ſole ſupream comfort; and this by way of difference from wicked men, the Scripture throughout ſheweth: David is a ſufficient Inſtance, who utters this diſpoſition of his both abſolutely, or ſingly, as alſo comparatively, or with difference to what wicked men account their chiefeſt good.

1. Abſolutely or ſingly, Pſal. 73. 25. Whom have I in Heaven but thee? Or in Earth, in compariſon of thee?

2. Comparatively, with wicked men, as a difference from them, Pſal. 4. 6, 7 There be many that will ſay, Who will ſhew us any good? Lord lift up the light of thy Countenance upon us. Thou haſt put gladneſs in my Heart, more than when their Corn, and their Wine encreaſed, Where, 1. He brings in the common cry of all mankind, as hunger ſtarved Creatures, Who will ſhew us any good? Then 2. Shews, what chief good the option of himſelf and of all the Saints is, in whoſe Name he uttereth it, as Paul, in the like caſe, inſtancing in his own Perſwaſion, but ſpeaking in this Name of the whole Us of Believers, Rom. 7. 37, 38, 39. Nay, in all theſe things we are more than Conquerers, through him that loved us, v. 38. For I am perſwaded, that neither Death, nor Life, nor Angels, nor Principalities, nor Powers, nor things preſent, nor things to come; Nor heighth, nor depth, nor any other Creature, ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the love of God which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. Lord lift upon us the Light of thy Countenance; this we have pitch'd on, as that in which our joy and happineſs lyes: And the Light or Communication thereof unto us, is the purſuit of us all which are the choſen of God: v. 3. Know that the Lord hath ſet apart him that is Godly for himſelf, to enjoy himſelf, to be made happy in himſelf; ordained him and ſingled him out to communicate himſelf unto. And accordingly hath given him a principle of Godlineſs ſuited to himſelf. He hath ſet out him that is godly for himſelf, making him capable of himſelf, as the Faculty is of its natural Object, and the eye of Colours, &c. Whereas wicked men (ſays he) have their Corn and Wine. Obſerve how he calls it their Corn, &c. Had not David Corn and Wine too? Oh but theſe were theſe mens chief good things, which their Souls had ſeized upon, as the Bee doth on the Flowers, to ſuck honey out of.

Again, You find the ſame requeſt with this very difference, Pſal. 17. 14. The men of the World (ſays he) which have their portion in this Life: There is the one ſort, who have their Name from the things they affect: The men of this World; that look as things of this World, in relation to their adherence to them, are call'd the Goods of this World, 1 John 3. 17. So David calls carnal men the men of this World. They have their denomination and diſtinction from what their Hearts are ſet on, and addicted unto: Even as Eſau is call'd a man of the Field, like as the Birds are call'd the Birds of the Air; becauſe that is the Element they live in. And their portion is in this Life: Their portion, that is, that which themſelves ſeek and chooſe. Remember thou hadſt thy good things in thy life time. The Prodigal's portion, was that which himſelf deſired, Luke 15. 12. of which (Mat. 6. 2.) Chriſt ſpeaks: That as they ſeek Glory from men, ſo they have their reward; ſtill it is call'd theirs, That is, what they pitch'd on, expected, deſired, Covenanted for.

Now how doth David? As a Godly man he diſtinguiſheth himſelf from theſe, it follows v. 15. As for me, I will behold thy Face in Righteouſneſs. He ſevers himſelf from them, as a man of another genius. 'Tis as when we ſay, [For my part] ſo he ſpeaks to God, The Happineſs I look for, lies in thy Face, in thy Self, that is, in thy Perſon and Favour, (as Face is taken) this I purſue after in this Life, upon the glimps I have of it. And in expectation of that, my deſires grow dead and flat to all other things here. So, as though the chief of my affections to-it here are but desires; yet when I awake from the dust (Isa. 26. 19.) I shall be satisfied with thy Image, the light, sight, and knowledge of thee, and of him whom thou hast sent, Christ the express Image of thy Person. That desire or aim of Paul's, (Phil. 3. 11.) did fully interpret this. He look'd not to things that are seen, which are Temporal, but his eyes were upon things that are not seen, but are Eternal; as himself speaks, 2 Cor. 4. last.

So that as in Philosophy we say, Potentiæ distinguntur per Actus & Objecta, as Sight from Hearing; as having Colours for it's Object; whereas Hearing hath Sounds: So shall the distinction of Persons, and their fatal Conditions, at the Latter day, be fetched from the Objects their Souls pursued after, as their chiefest Good, as that which they enjoy, or hope to arrive at, Psal. 24 6. They are a Generation, that is, a sort or kind of Men whose differencing Property is this, that they seek thy face. This is the Generation of them that seek him. That seek thy face, in opposition to which, Christ using the same denomination David had done, termeth the other sort the Children of this World. And then adds, who are wiser in their Generation, Luke 16. 8. Thus terming them in that very respect, a Generation distinct from the Children of Light. Insomuch as this distinction riseth up to be an essential difference, and to make a several Kind and Generation of men. Psal. 24. 6.

CHAP. II.

That we may know what we make our chiefest Good, let us enquire in what things we take most pleasure and delight.

LET us all narrowly enquire in what good things our Treasury doth lye: Which will be the great Inquest at the latter day. Hell, you see, getts those that do make the good things of this Life their good things. It is that which stops the mouth of one in Hell. Thou receivedst thy good things in thy Life. And at latter day when men shall see what a good and glorious God they have neglected, for the desires of, or pursuit after these low vanities, all mens mouths will be stop'd, and have nothing to say. That therefore which I put to the question is, in what dost thou place thy Treasure? I examine not the particulars; let thy Conscience do that. But deal impartially, to what World doth it belong? Wherein lyes it, and what is it your Hearts do trade for? Every man is a Merchant-man. Romes Customers are termed Merchants upon Earth, Rev. 18. 11. And of the Commodities they traffick for, you have the Bill of Trade in the 12 and 13th verses. The Merchandize of Gold and Silver, and pretious Stones, and of Pearls, and fine Linnen, and Purple, and Silk, and Scarlet, and all thyme Wood, and all manner of Vessels of Ivory, and, all manner of Vessels of most precious Wood, and of Brass, and Iron, and Marble: And Cinnamon, and Odors, and Oyntments, and Frankincense, and Wine, and Oyl, and fine Flower, and Wheat, and Beasts, and Sheep, and Horses, and Chariots, and Slaves, and Souls of men. The other are termed, on the contrary, Merchants for Heaven, and the Commodities of that Kingdom you have Mat. 13. 45. The Kingdom of Heaven is like a Merchant-man, who sought out good Pearls. And I may say, the Pearls of that Kingdom are good; as 'twas said of the Gold in the Land of Havilah. Gen. 2. 12. Now Christ tells us, it is the Heart that lays up this Treasure. And the Heart is deep, and of all things else, Treasures are the most hidden things in the Heart. Men seek to hide them; God is said to have hid his in the Field, and so do Men. Psal. 17. Their Treasure is call'd the hid Treasure. Yet the Heart knows knows where it is,and what 'tis ; for they are buried there. As therefore Searchers into Mines have long Borers or Wimbles,which put down into the Bowels ofthe Earth, do bring up ſome of the Oar with them, and diſcover what Mine is there:So there is a Virgula divina,will go down into the bottom of your Hearts. Two ways I ſhall now proceed in it according to the differing Language of theſe Texts. 1. The real naked queſtion, What are thy good things? 2. The Metaphorical one. What is thy Treaſure? Chap. 2

1. What things doth thy Soul ſavour, and reliſh moſt? The things of this World; or God, and the things of the other World? The truth of this ſign is evident. For whatever is good and convenient to any Creature, it hath a ſuitableneſs thereto. And if it be a ſenſitive or natural Creature, it hath a ſavouring or reliſhing thereof. For, omnis Vita guſtu ducitur, Is maintained by a drawing in unto it ſelf, and by a pleaſing taſting of what is that good thing is appointed for it. As thou haſt a Soul (which is of it ſelf a meer empty ſtomach) So that Soul hath a Pallate to ſavour and reliſh what is good for it ſelf. Which is fitted to take in the ſweetneſs of ſome good thing or other. And as that Palate is affected, or poſſeſſed with its native ſoundneſs of Taſte, or with a vitiated humour (as we ſee in ſickneſs) accordingly it doth ſavour and reliſh things in the like difference with which men in health or ſickneſs uſe to do. Now upon that which is the Palate of the Soul of man, there is by the Fall contracted vitiated humour; which maketh ſin and the good things of this World only pleaſing to it. Job 20. 12. Wickedneſs is ſaid to be ſweet in his mouth. I might give you this difference out of Rom. 8. 5 For they that are after the Fleſh, do mind the things of the Fleſh: But they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit. They do mind, or ſavour, or reliſh, as the Word is tranſlated, Mark 8. 33. Thoſe two Scriptures are ſufficient, the one ſpoken of carnal Profeſſors, 2 Tim. 3.4. Lovers of Pleaſure more than God; of Pleaſure, namely in other things than in God, that are beſides God. The other Scripture ſpeaks of every Babe in Chriſt. Let a man be but a Chriſtian of a days ſtanding, and a new Palate is given him, clean altered to the taſte of things, 1 Pet. 2. 2, 3. As new born Babes deſire the ſincere milk of the Word: If ſo be that ye have taſted that the Lord is Gracious. I take the Connexion thus, I cannot ſay, it is a meer Exegeſis, that is, explaining the ſame thing in new words. Nor is it yet a new Argument drawn from a further experiment. As if he ſhould firſt urge, if you be Babies, then 2. If afterwards in proceſs of Gods dealings with you, you have further taſted, &c. (thus moſt carry it) But it is a moſt vehement Indigation of what is the true ground and reaſon why, if they were but even new born Babes, they muſt needs deſire the ſincere milk of the Word, drawn from what is the firſt and eſſential propertie, accompanying that new Eſtate. Even to taſte how good the Lord is. And is as if we ſhould ſay, As you are a man; and add, If you ſo be, you have reaſon in you: Which is proper to a man, as a man; ſo urging them with what is moſt immediate and eſſential to them. So as Peter's ſcope is, that they muſt renounce their being ſo much as Babes, if they have not found ſomething of this Faculty and Act of taſting in them. Lawyers give this evidence of a Child that is new born, its being alive, that it cries. Peter here gives another as characteriſtical of this new Birth, that it hath a taſte to diſcern how good the Lord is. And whereas here in Peter, it is that the Lord is Gracious; there is therein an alluſion unto that of David, Pſal. 34.8. Oh taſte and ſee how good the Lord is. The Septuagint renders it χρηστὸς Gracious, but the Hebrew Tob, how good; and becauſe to a Soul new born, that part of Gods goodneſs which allures his Heart to him is his free Grace, and lets in all his goodneſs into the Soul: And ſo it is as that Pap or Dug the Soul ſucks his goodneſs by and through; therefore Peter chooſeth rather to ſay, if ye have taſted how gracious the Lord is. And ſo as new born Babes have this deſire in you. For taſt, we know is the Foundation of the moſt eager deſires, and imports, that look as a Child come new out of the Womb, though there it never had occaſion to exerciſe the Faculty of taſte; for it took its nouriſhment at the Navel: Yet

Book 10 being come into the World, it inſtantly ſeeks after Milk, and taſtes it, and in it the Mothers Blood; which argues the conſtitution thereof ſo framed, as it hath ſuch a Faculty of taſting congenite, whereof it had before no uſe, whilſt in the Womb. Now thus conſtituted, ſays Peter, is the new Creature towards God. There is ſuch a Faculty of taſte in every new born Babe, framed to things of the other World by its new Birth: Unto which World it is on purpoſe now new brought. And one of the firſt Spiritual Senſes it exerciſeth, is a taſting how good the Lord is. Are the pleaſures of ſin yet more to thee, and ſo have been hitherto all thy days, more than all that goodneſs that is in God, (who is a Sea of Honey) whereof yet thou ſayſt, as Solomon of his old man doth, I have no pleaſure in them? It is an evident ſign thou retaineſt wholly ſtill the old man, and haſt nothing of the new Babe in thee. Or as Barzillai (2 Sam. 19.32.) Thou ſayſt, Can I taſte what I hear in Sermons or Prayers, or read in the Word? Yea, perhaps thou haſt no more taſte of theſe things, than thou findeſt, as Job ſpeaks, in the white of an Egg (Job 6. 6.) Thou art not yet ſo much as a Babe.

But now whilſt I make this ſo great a difference between a regenerate and unregenerate man; the objection will be, That Regenerate men find a ſweetneſs in the good things of this life; yea, often in the pleaſures of Sin. And unregenerate men that fall away, do taſte of the powers of the World to come.

I ſhall endeavour to anſwer this Objection, by parts.

1. For a regenerate mans taſting the pleaſures of ſin. There are indeed fits and paroxiſms in which, as in mans Body, that is in an Ague (and the ſtate of the moſt regenerate is but made up of ſuch a mixture) corrupt Humours overflow and prevail, and vitiate and diſtemper this renewed Palate: Which when they do, no wonder if God and Spiritual things be out of taſte with him, and he reliſheth Things Worldly, yea ſimple. It may ſtrike, and yet withal Comfort the Hearts of the beſt here to hear Chriſt our Lord and Saviour ſpeak of Peter, that holy Apoſtle, (as to that preſent prevailing frame of his Spirit) ſuch ſharp and ſtrange Language as once upon occaſion he utters of him; ſuch as worſe could not be given an unregenerate man, Mat. 16. 23. Get thee behind me, Satan. For Satan then poſſeſs'd his Soul, and ſuggeſted that wicked Speech he tempted Chriſt withal, as the Devil could not have uttered a worſe; neither doth Chriſt lay all the fault on Satan (as we ſhould not) for Peter's own Heart was in a prevailing Diſtemper, overflown with the Gall or Jaundies. So as it follows, Thou ſavoureſt not the things of God, but thoſe that are of men. At preſent his Palate was in ſavouring theſe, rendred as carnal as an unregenerate mans. It was ſo to Chriſt that knew his Heart, and therefore might be ſo to his own ſenſe. Yea, a man in an Ague or Feaver thinks, he ſhall never reliſh his meat again. Here is the very diſtinction I have put, 1. The things of God, 2. The things of man, that is, which are ſuited to the Corrupt Nature of man, which is nothing but Fleſh (and therefore to be carnal, and to walk as man, is made all one, 1 Cor. 3. 3.) but this was but a fit, a paroxiſm for the preſent, Peter's taſte came to him again, (John 6. 68.) Whether ſhall we go? Thou haſt the Words of Eternal Life. The Foot of his Soul was here taken off from all other between, and knew not where elſe to reſt it ſelf. So then, this is but as the fit of a man that is of a ſound Conſtitution.

2. The Delight he takes in ſin, is but a broken delight, for the principle is broken and wounded. And leſa principia habent læſas operationes, as a Man that walks with a bone out of joynt, he doth it lamely, if he chews the Bread of Wickedneſs, or as the Pſalmiſt, the Dainties of the Wicked, Pſal. 141. 4.

Yet 1. It is as with a broken Tooth.

Or 2. Not ſo as to ſwallow it down; (as they Prov. 19. 28. The mouth of the Wicked is ſaid to devour Iniquity.) Not ſo as to return to a greedineſs, (as Eph. 4. 18.) but tho' he taſtes, he ſoon ſpits it out again, as they did that Broth, of which they cried, There is Death in the Pot.

Or 3. If he takes it down for a fit, he comes not to take that pleaſure in it for the future, as to retain it as a ſweet bit which of a Wicked Man is ſaid that he rowles it under his Tongue, to the end to protract his Pleasure in it all his Life (as Children will do Sugar Candy all day long.) Which also he hides and forsakes not, (as Job. 20. 12.) But this Man soon casts it out again, with the deepest detestation. Chap 2

that

4. The Heart if never wholly overcome with it, as Peter's Phrase is, (2 Pet 2. 20.) Overcome he may be, to an Act, the grossest, and in the Hour of Temptation, the major part of his Will must needs be for it, or he would not act it; but so as to make it his rest, to sit down in it as the Swine, to wallow in the Mire, which is Peter's Character of one so overcome in his sense, to Center in it, as the chief pleasure of his Life; He can never come to do it any more. The Impressions he hath had of God and Christ, which are indelible in his Soul, and the remembrance from whence he is fallen, or falling, (as Rev. 2. 5.) brings his Heart off, and about again. He still says the Old Wine is better, as Christ speaks, or as Hos. 2 7. I will return to my first Husband, for it was better with me then, than now.

For the Second part of the Objection, That Unregenerate Men taste of the powers of the World to come. The only Answer I shall now give, is,

That a right and true Parallel between a Godly Man in tasting the pleasures of sin after Regeneration, the remaining a radical constitution of soundness in him, and an Unregenerate Mans tasting the powers of the other World, doth help to clear this, and indeed each one doth illustrate the other. To make forth which, I express my self thus. The Palate of such an Unregenerate Man, remains in the inward constitution and temper of it, still wholly corrup, namely in respect of this Radical corruption of it, wherein the bottom of Mans Corruption doth consist; and that is, SELF; whatever object it relisheth and pitcheth upon, it is only such as is suited unto self. Now in the things revealed in the Gospel, there are two sorts or kinds of Goodness; the one is, the Essential, Substantial Goodness of things themselves, the other is an accidental Goodness cleaving hereunto, over and above the substantial Goodness of them, and this latter, suiteth self-love that is in every Mans Heart. The promise of Heaven, taken in under the notion of an happiness to a man's self, is in that respect an object suited to self in a man; and any man in respect of self love in him, is thereby capable to be enveigled with it, and struck with the news of it, as to listen after it, to taste and relish, to be taken with what can be said of it, so far as it may suit that Principle: Though take Heaven substantially, as it is the enjoyment of God himself, heirs with Christ of God, as the Apostle says, Rom. 8. For God himself is Christs inheritance, as avowedly himself speaks, Psal. 16.) so conceived, it is suited only to a Heart Regenerate. The Holy Ghost may set on the former as he did on Balaam, and give or convey unto self in a Man a taste of a supernatural sweetness; to toll on and entice the Creature to himself, when yet that taste and sweetness is not of God himself, as pitcht upon alone as our Happiness. I might make the like distinction of Christ as a Saviour only, and Christ as in himself, as I have done of Heaven.

So then in such an Heart the Competition betwixt the taste which self meerly hath had, of that accidential goodness in the things of the other World, so far as it is capable thereof, and the same self in a Man, as it is still naturally Rooted and set in this World, and hath tasted the pleasures of this World, and is suited unto them. Now mark it, the things of the other World (take them in their own Nature, and own proper Notion,) these no ways suit such a Mans Heart at all, but all within him is Enmity, and Averseness to the things themselves. And it is nothing else, for he is in his Root and Conjugal Constitution as a Man of this World. And so look as it is only accidental goodness, which is in the things which he tasteth, so his own Natural and Radical Disposition, verging wholly another way, these his Motions and Elevations towards them, are in like manner but Accidental to his Spirit, that is, only as he is set in such and such Circumstances of Distress of Conscience, or Fear of Wrath, and is influenced by such apprehension as comes upon him for the present. All which are but Foreign and Extrinsecal to his genial Constitution, or inward Nature. And thus Self in him is but forcedly raised up to that Joy he hath in the things of the other ther World, even as they come so to be set home, as to amuse Self awhile, with the strange News of Happiness, as in another Country to be had. But his Joy in things in this World is Natural Congenial. Now that which is Natural, and agrees with the whole inward Constitution of any thing, must needs be stronger, and so eat out what is but forced and extrinsecal. For what is good naturally to a Man, is always so; and is so per se. What is good accidentally, hold only in such a Distress, in such a Case or Circumstance, or apprehension as Man is in, and so wears off, as Colours laid on use to do. The stony Ground received the Word with Joy, (namely in this sense as hath been explained) but their Defect is noted to be the same that I have said, That they wanted Root in themselves, (Mat. 13. 20, 21.) that is a Congenial natural Principle suited to things Heavenly. Self was taken awhile with the Hear-say of them. But the Root of their Hearts and Natures, remained still fixt in the things of this World, in Earth: And the Root went on to bring forth according to its kind, and to draw the juice of the Earth it was fixt in, to it self; which dryed up that moisture that fed those Plants which were adventitious and set in made Earth for a while. So likewise of the Thorny Ground, tis said (v. 22. compared with Mark 4. 19.) The Cares of this World, and the Lusts of other things entering again (which are, and were Natural to the Heart and the soyl of it) choke the Word that was superficially cast in; for why the Heart is wholly a step-Mother to the one, and a natural Mother to the other, and so the Heart in the end returns to it self. But now in Regeneration we affirm, That a Man receives an Heavenly Nature, Which is a Noble Plant of the Lords planting naturally rooted in Heaven, and things Heavenly, as in its proper Soil it is to grow up and thrive in. And although there is another Root that is seated on Earth, that remains still in the Heart; yet it is a Dying, and that Heavenly Plant is that which is deepest in and nearest the Heart as the inner-man, and the other but as the outward.

Hence then the Parallel runs clear between these Two in an opposite way, (though I acknowledge a difference in one respect:) That look as an Unregenerate Man may taste (as hath been explained) of the Accidental Goodness that is in things Heavenly; yet all that while his inward Natural Constitution in him remaining wholly disposed to things in this World of it self, and to them for themselves. Hence, let him have what Tastes (he so remaining is capable of) concerning things Heavenly, that you can or will suppose, yet he is overcome again of what is Natural to him. For it is certain that Actiones sequuntur animi Constitutionem, and the remembrance of former Pleasures entering in, do wither and shale off again, all Accidental Joy and Sweetness in things Heavenly, which are to him also, and to his radical Constitution, but Accidental.

The contrary falls out in a Regenerate Man: That though he hath that corruption in him, which may make the pleasures of Sin sweet to him, and he may again taste of their Dainties, yet he having a New Divine Nature, which God upholds, and will bring forth to Victory, as Christ speaks, as being ordained for Eternity, and which is now become a Mans self, and is as Health is, in a Temper made sound, that hath yet some Humour remaining, and the things of the other World (which it is now rooted in, and is naturally suited unto) being of such a Greatness and Glory in themselves, they still leave those Impressions behind them upon his Heart, that upon the least reviving of them by the Spirit, the Heart is fetcht off from the Pleasures of Sin, as the other is by his Sin, drawn off from tasting the powers of the VVorld to come. I may say as Christ says, John 4. 13. Whoever drinketh and tasteth of Heavenly things (but only as Unregenerate Men have been said to do) he will Thirst again after Earthly, and be overcome of them; (And this I speak by way of Allusion,) but what follows v. 14. is really true and intended by Christ of a Man Regenerate. Whosoever drinketh of the Water, Christ shall give him, he shall never Thirst; that is, never come to have that impetuousness of full desire; and so not that pleasure or delight in other things carnal and outward (which Christ resembles the VVater of that VVell to) as he formerly had: He shall never add Drunkenness to Thirst (as Moses speaks) his Thirst thereto will be, by the Taste of this Water Christ gives him allayed; that that Vehemency and Greediness he formerly had, is for ever taken off and abated, and this because the Water which Christ gives him, becomes a VVell of Water springing up in him to Eternal Life, so it follows in the same verse; it is not adventitious, as Water in a Cistern, but as in a Spring, & it continually aspires to things above. And though it may be dam'd up with that Earth that environs it, yet it works out that Earth, and overflows in the Heart again. Chap. 3

To the 3d part of the Objection concerning a Godly man's finding Comfort in things outward that are Lawful.

The Answer is, and it is a great Invitement to Religion, that he may, and it is his own fault if he does not find more Comfort even in them, than Carnal Men use to do. (Psal. 36.16.) A little that the Righteous hath, is better than the Riches of many Wicked. He opposeth, 1. A little unto Riches and Abundance, And 2. The little of one Man, to the Riches of many Men, whereof each are Rich. So as if one Man alone had the Riches that many great Rich Men have; yet a Righteous Man that hath but a little, hath more Comfort in it than he; yea then all those Rich Men have, put their Comforts all together. Therefore Godliness is said with Contentment to be great gain; for it alone brings Contentment. For tho' the Creature is (taken in it self alone) more Vain to a Godly Man, than to another: And so if he should go about to seek his Contentment from it, as Carnal Men do, I may then invert it, that the little which a VVicked Man hath, is more to him, than all abundance would be to the other: Solomon that pursued this (being a Godly man) could best Write of the Vanity of these things: But yet when the Heart is set a VVork to seek God, and hath the Scent of him, as I may so say, mingled with the outward things he doth enjoy, or if it have the light of his Countenance, it puts a fulness into the Creature. A Dinner of Herbs, sawced with his Love, and served up by him, is more than the greatest Feast. And surely God traineth up his Children one way or other unto this. The more a Man truly Godly will seek to find Comfort in the Creatures, the more Thorns he shall find in his way, (Hos. 2. 6. 7.) the more Comfortless they will be to him than to another, because his Soul is used to better fare. His Faculties have been widened and extended by having tasted, or by having had impressions of the sweetness and goodness that is in the Lord. And so the Creature in it self is more emptiness and vexation than to another Man. And therefore a Godly man, if he will Live, and but keep up the Comfort of his Life, and not fall lower in this respect, nor live at a lower rate then he did in his Natural Condition, he must necessarily (even for his daily comfort) seek after God, and hold up Entercourse and Communion with him; so to fill up that Chasma that is otherwise made, the Creature is rendred more vain to him then afore.

CHAP. III.

If we would know whether we make God our chiefest, and supream Good; let us observe by what things the Comfort of our Lives is principally maintained, and upheld.

ENquire by what things the Comfort of thy Life, is principally maintained and upheld from day to day: For it is that which is good in this Life, whereby the Comfort of ones life is nourished, as Fire by Fuel. We all live here in a miserable World, and our Life is a Pilgrimage of many a weary step: And the Soul must have Baitings and Refreshings, or it will faint and fail, and not hold out to its Journey's end. The Comfort of a mans Soul in Scripture is termed a mans Life, Luke 12. 15. Life, Book 10 (says Christ) consists not in abundance; by Life there, he means the Comfort and Joy of Life, which all abundance of outward things cannot give. And in this very respect, when Comfort in outward things is gone and departed, the Heart dies, as 1 Sam. 25. 37. Nabal's Soul is said to die within him, tho' he was merry over night, yet when he fell into the fear of losing all by David's plundering him, he having provoked him, it is said that his Heart died within him. He lived ten days after, (v. 38.) but his Heart died, and became as a Stone, says the Text, that look as if you had beheld Lot's Wife when her Soul went out, and she was Metamorphosed to a Stone, or rather a Pillar of Salt; such was, in respect of the life of Comfort, this mans Condition. Look, as the Body is not able to sustain and support it self without the Soul: So, nor is the Soul, which is meer emptiness, able to sustain it self in life without some good thing it hath conjunction and commerce with. Now then, what is the Element thy Soul lives in? 'Tis certain that in him that is truly born again, his Conversion wrought these two things in him. 1. his Soul was struck dead, as to the making the Comforts of this Life his chiefest good. And this Humiliation usually doth work. Rom. 7. 10. I was once alive, but I died. Gal. 2. 19. I through the Law am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God. and v. 20. I am crucified with Christ. There are these more eminent parts of Humiliation. 1. To bring a man to nothing in his own Righteousness; (as 1 Cor. 1.) last verses, and to kill and slay a man thereunto, that so he may be brought to accept of Gods Righteousness in Christ, prepared for him, and to live thereby. 2. To bring the Soul to nothing in outward Comforts, in Sins, or in the Creatures. And this also is the work of the Law through the Cross of Christ, which goes with it, Isa. 40. 7. It is made the effect of John Baptists Ministry, (of which v. 3. speaks. The Voice of him that crieth in the Wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the Desert a high way for our God.) That at his voice, the Grass withered, the Flower faded, because the Spirit of the Lord had blown upon it. He speaks not simply of the vanity of the Creature in its self, but what it became to his Hearers, that received the Spirit of Bondage from his Ministry; as those words that follow do shew, because the Spirit of the Lord; namely, in his Ministry, had blown upon them all, and was ventus, a Wind that blasted and withered all their good things to them; so as now they looked upon them all as withered Flowers. And therefore Paul in the next verse, in that Gal. 2. says he was Crucified with Christ also. Which Gal. 6. 14. he interprets among other things to be a Crucifying of the World to him, which was done by the power of the Cross virtually, though by the Law humbling a man instrumentally, as that Gal. 2. to me evidently importeth.

Now the end why God thus kills man by Humiliation to his own Righteousness, and to all Comforts, so as never to have help to his Soul in them, is to the end he may live a new, and have a new Life in both. 1. To live by going out to Christ for Righteousness, the Just shall live by Faith. And 2. To cause the Soul to pitch upon God for ever as his chiefest good: And all that desired good it ever looks for in this World, or the World to come. So you have it, Psal. 16. 5, 6. The Lord is the Portion of mine Inheritance, and of my Cup: Thou maintainest my Lot. The Lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly Heritage. And this is done by Faith, as it sanctifies, and by Instinct of the new Creature, 1 Cor. 1. 7. Paul termeth God both the Father of mercies, as in relation to Justification and pardon, and then the God of all Comfort. 'Tis an Attribute he hath taken on him, as he is an Object of his Peoples Hearts And thus, in respect of Sanctification, all the Comfort we look for, is from him.

USE. Improve, and take the light of these Tryals, and go down into your Hearts and take the Keys of them, and ransack your private Cupboards, and narrowly observe what Junkets your Souls have hitherto lived upon, and gone behind the door, and there secretly and stoutly have made a meal of them. Delights are secret things, (Prov. 14 10.) as Treasures are. As Doggs (and carnal men are so compared) have Bones they hide, and secretly steal forth to gnaw upon: So men have sins they hide under their Tongues as sweet Bits, Job 14. 12. But examine what your Comforts principally consist in. Chap. 3

Now if you would further know how it may be discerned in what your chief Comforts lie.

1. Look what in Distress your Souls have Recourse unto for Relief and Support.

2. In ordinary Cases take this Division to help you. A survey either, 1. Of things Present. 2. Past. 3. To come. For in and from all these, Men take up their Comforts.

1. Observe what your Hearts have their ordinary Recourse unto in Cases of Distress, or the ordinary discomfitures of this Life; which God in a Mans Race layeth on purpose even in every Mans way. Mens expectations are usually and often disappointed, especially at times, and then their Hearts and Spirits fail. And look as in Fears, or in a Swoon, Mens Vital Spirits run to the Heart to Comfort it; so in Distress, the Heart runs out to something else, which it is enured unto, to comfort it as a Cordial and Consolation. And as the Otter when in times of Frost it is kept under Water by the Ice; yet by its Breath keeps open some place, as a Breathing hole, so doth the Heart. Now Watch and Observe, the Haunts and Breathing-holes which in Distress thy Soul keeps open to it self, to fetch in fresh Air from, or look as if you should see a Company of Rabbits grazing in a Sun-shiny-day, and a Man come by whom they fear, or a storm, you shall see them all instantly run into their several Burrows which are proper to them; and by the place whether each of them doth run, you may discern which is proper to each: Now thus in Distress doth the Heart run to it's Holes. The like Men do in times of War to their several Forts or Garrisons, and so you may know what Party they belong unto. Prov. 18. 11. The Name of the Lord is a strong Tower, and the Righteous runs to it, and is safe; that is, if he be a Righteous Man, that is his Refuge, as, Jer. 16. 19. O Lord, my Strength and my Fortress, and my Refuge in the Day of Affliction, the Gentiles shall come unto thee, from the ends of the Earth, and shall say, Surely our Fathers have Inherited Lies, Vanity, and things wherein there is no Profit. On the Contrary, take a Carnal Rich Man who puts Trust in his Riches; he also in ordinary Distresses runs to his Tower, from the same place of the Proverbs, v. 12. The substance of the Rich Man is his strong City. If a Cross in other things befall him, Discredit, Hatred of Men, as an Oppressour, yet he is still counting with himself, reckoning, Nummos in Arca, the Moneys in his Chest, or out at Use, or in Revenue, Populus sibi sibulet: At mihi plaudo, he the next Morning when he Wakes bids good Morrow to his Gold. And thus if one Comfort be gone, he runs to another, as the Prophet told that Wretched Man he should run from Chamber to Chamber for his Life. You may see this Difference amplified in Esau and Jacob, Saul and David. The first pair Compeers for a Birthright, the other two for a Kingdom. Esau, Gen. 27. when he had that great loss befaln him as ever befel a Man, namely, the loss of his Birthright, and himself made apprehensive of it, Witness his Tears: What doth he comfort himself withal? v. 42. saies Rebecka to Jacob, Behold thy Brother Comforteth himself, purposing to Kill thee. 'Twas Revenge; which, to a Man of his Constitution, an Hairy Man of the Field, is the sweetest Lust in the World to accomplish. But Jacob, on the contrary, when he was distressed greatly, Gen. 32. 7. as the Text there saies, Whether hath he recourse? Even to God, so v. 9. and you may see by his Prayer and Hopes in Gods Promise, v. 12. that God would surely do him good.

See it also in Saul and David, Saul was made sensible by Samuel, that he had lost a Kingdom, 1 Sam. 15. 30. Yet Honour me (saies he) afore the People. David lost all at Ziglag, Wives, Estate, and was put into as great a ground of Fear, of Hazard of Life (and so of his Kingdom promised) as Man could probably be in (for the People spake of Stoning him) And in this Case what had David recourse unto? The Story tells you, 1 Sam. 30. 6. David encouraged himself in his God. So elsewhere David says, My Heart fails, and my Flesh fails, but God is the strength of my Heart, Psal. 73. 26. and Psal. 119. 92. Unless thy Word had been my Delight, I had Perished in my Affliction.

Book 10

2. Observe whence your Comforts come in, Which is discerned by the Hearts recourse, either unto things present, past, or to come.

1. For things Present: Men use to take an Inventory of their present things afore them to comfort their Hearts with. So doth the Rich Man in the Gospel, Soul, take thine ease, thou hast (now at present, by thee) Goods laid up for many Years. As Rich Men count their Estates with themselves, and love to do it: So doth the Soul in secret reckon up it's Comforts and opportunities to satisfie it's Lusts. In a Morning when Men wake, their Souls look out what Sports, Pleasures, are ready to wait upon them that day. So they in the Prophet, to Day shall be as to Morrow, and much more abundant. Whereas if a Godly Man hath the sense of the Favour of God, he Triumphs in it, and makes his Boast in God all the Day long. Psal. 44. 8. He often counts with himself I shall hear a good Sermon this Day, and receive the Sacraments, meet with my Saviour, my Lord and Husband, when the day comes, and longs for it afore hand.

Again 2d. Mens Souls have recourse for Comfort unto what is past. Thus a Schollar, that is low and mean in his outward condition, takes a pleasing survey of what Credit he got by such a performance, at such a time; how he was applauded, and in the Contemplation thereof, his Soul bears up it self. When other streights and wants to satisfie other Lusts, do depress him, he Swims and Floats in his own Conceits by means of these Bladders, and his Soul is thereby kept up from sinking. Yea, he is carried aloft (as he vainly thinks) on the Breaths and Opinions of Men, as feathers and bubbles which Children make, for their pastime on them. Thus also men make and revive in their Fancies, the actings of former pleasures, and Dalliances, &c. whereas a Godly man in the present want of outward Comforts, yea, the present sense of the withdrawings of Gods Love, hath recourse to times past, the daies of old, as David recounts with himself, what Songs had been Sung in the Night, between God and him, what earnest Desires: My Soul hath longed for thee in the Night. What Love and Joys, sweet entercourse and Communion, hath been between God and him; at such and such a time.

3. And especially you may discover this, by what recourse the Soul hath to things to come in future hopes, and what kind of good things those are the Soul hath thus recourse unto. Mens Souls do live by hopes as much, and more than by any thing past or present; and we use to take up our Comforts beforehand. The Miserableſt Man that is, hath yet usually a loop hole of Hope to look out of, a door of Hope for his Soul to go out at, and relieve it self. Now, 1 Cor. 15. 19. The hopes of a Godly and Carnal Man are distinguisht. If we (that are Believers) had hopes only in this Life (as all Carnal Worldlings have) we were of all Men the most miserable, as having given up this World for Grace, both in the present and the future; and betaken our selves to what is in the other World by which we relieve and Comfort our selves, against the miseries of this World that befall us every day more than they do other Men. Christ is our hope, so (1 Tim. 1. 1.) that is Generally of all Christians, and our Life is hid in God with him, Whereas a Carnal Man makes his Gold (or some like Worldly Comfort or other) his Hope, Heb. 31. 24.

I shall to clear this Point further, remove one Scruple, which good Souls who are left to a dry Faith, and to follow after God in a Barren land, may, and will upon hearsay of this, be apt unto, and to say, This Doctrine strikes me Dead, for I have not, nor cannot yet find any comfortable Relish or Enjoyment of God, but a great deal of Carnal Relish of things of the World, and deeper and more impressions of sweetness from thence, than these Impressions are, which the Word, or thing of another World brings in; and how is God my chiefest good?

Answer 1. It is a false Rule which will deceive to measure out what is our chiefest good by what our enjoyments possessions of, or delights are in, that which we pitch upon as our chiefest good. The Rule would fail us whether we be Carnal or Regenerate Men. This is common to both, that in respect of Enjoyment, they have their disappointments, even the most Godly, in this

Life

Life of him whom their Souls deſire. A Soul that hath pitcht its Happineſs on ſuch an outward Worldly Comfort, may yet perhaps, never have come to enjoy it, as in Men that deſire to be Rich and are diſappointed in their hopes, &c. we ſee it verified, ſo as the caſe of the one comes all to one, and holds true as well as in the other. And a Man that is Carnal, Luſtful, Worldly, may as well ſay he makes not Preferment, or Riches, or Beauty his greateſt good, becauſe ſtill he hath been kept under, and diſappointed; and ſenſible ſweetneſs ariſeth always from Enjoyment. Chap. 4

2. Anſwer. But haſt thou not had thy Heart emptied of all theſe Earthly enjoyments, by what light and taſte thou haſt had from God? Haſt thou not had ſuch a Spiritual Appetite, as all created Comforts can never fill or quiet inſtead of himſelf? ſo as thou purſueſt after him with the ſtrong intent of this, day and night. What is it thy Soul hath ſet up in it's Eye, as thy Mark thou intendedſt for? (as Paul ſpeaks,) is it not Gods Favour, which thou prizeſt ſeekeſt for with thy greateſt Contention? Affections are to be meaſured by what we labour after day and night to arrive at.

And 3. In the mean time thou ſayeſt, of all outward Comforts, what good will all theſe do me? And what are they, if I want thy Favour? As a Man looking diligently for a Pearl or Jewel meets with many things that may entertain him; but ſtill ſaies his Soul, This is not the Pearl I ſeek for. Now as in Heb. 11. 14. The Apoſtle ſays of the Patriarchs, that they which ſay ſuch things, declare plainly that they ſeek a Country: So ſay I of thee, (the diſcomfort of whoſe Life lyes in the want of God, who canſt not ſit down in any thing on this ſide of him; theſe longings of thy Soul do declare plainly that thy Reſt is not here in the World. Yea, if Wordly things Court thee, and come in upon thee, ſo as thou couldſt (as to outward advantages) return to make and patch up a life of Comfort in them; yet ſtill thou canſt never do it, ſo (v. 15.) of the Patriarchs, the ſame Apoſtle ſpeaks; if they had been mindful of the Country (and the Comforts of it from whence they came out, they might have had opportunities to have returned but they would not, as their Children would have done into Egypt. Therefore upon this Demonſtration he Concludes, v. 16. But now, (that is, having ſuch a frame of Spirit) they deſired a better Country, wherefore God is not aſhamed to be called their God. For he was the chief and choceeſt of their deſires, and nothing elſe would ſatisfie; and therefore he was their chiefeſt good. God is much Glorified as thy chiefeſt good in ſuch deſires that can reſt no where elſe but in him; he is equally Glorified by thee, who waiteſt thus for him, and can'ſt find no ſweetneſs but in him, as he is by another in their Enjoyments of him. For the Affections ſtir as well one way as the other towards him, and from either, Glory ariſeth alike unto him. And what Affections of Love the one Soul ſhews in joy, and in ſweet Enjoyments of his goodneſs, the other ſhews in reſtleſs deſires after his Goodneſs.

CHAP. IV.

If we would know whether we make God our chief Good, we muſt enquire what are the things which we value as our deareſt Treaſures.

THus much as to ſuch ſigns which that plain and ſimple Expreſſion, what are thy good things? hath afforded. I come to the ſecond, as the ſame thing is repreſented under this Metaphor of What is thy Treaſure?

The Firſt ſign at to this Head, is that which Chriſt, (Matth. 6. 21.) holds forth, who is to be our Judge (Heb. 4. 12.) and who is a Diſcerner of the thoughts and intents of the Heart.

Now where your Treaſure is, (ſays Chriſt Matth. 6. 2.) there will your Hearts be alſo. No Mans Heart is in his own keeping; but his Treaſure, be it what it will, or take it away from him, yet the Heart will be where it loves. If God be made a Mans Treaſure he calls for the Heart, Prov. 23. 26. My Son give me thy Heart. And let any Earthly thing be a Mans Treaſure, and it takes the Heart away without asking leave, Hoſ. 4. 11. Whoredom and Wine (ſaies God) take away the Heart, Ezek. 33. 31. Their Hearts go after their Covetouſneſs.

1. What hath thy Heart, hath thy Thoughts moſt, the chiefeſt and the deareſt of thy Thoughts are ſpent upon what is thy Treaſure. Now therefore go down into thy Hearr and examine what thing it is takes up and engroſeth to it ſelf the muſings and deviſings of thy Soul: What it is the eyes of thy Mind ſtill are glancing, yea, fix'd upon, with deareſt contentment, and ſcarce ever off. That is thy Treaſure, and that hath thine Heart. Thus as a paſſionate Lover delights to revive, in his captivated Fancy, the Image and Likeneſs of the Party he loves; draws Pictures of her in his Fancies; and as the thoughts are the only means to bring things abſent and the Heart together; ſo the Soul feeds and encreaſeth the love it hath to a thing it deſires, by thinking of it. Affections chain the Thoughts, and faſten the mind and intention of it to the thing they affect: And ſuch a thing is certainly a Treaſure to thee. For take but the exemplification of it in outward Treaſures. You may obſerve it in men that have Treaſures, any Jewels, &c. They will ſtill be unlocking the Casket, and viewing of them, eyeing of them. They love ſtill to be opening the Baggs; and telling, and counting of what is within. And ſo it is with the Mind, what the Heart hath pitch'd upon as it's Treaſure, it ever and anon reviews and viſits with its Thoughts. For there is a freſh contentment and ſecurity ariſeth to the Mind thereby: Be it Goods laid up for many Years, the thoughts of this gives an eaſe to the Mind; be it the credit of ſomething paſt, men love to chew the Cud of it in their thoughts, and run it over all again in their Minds. Or be it the pleaſure of ſome ſin to come as a ſin of Uncleaneſs, how do men anticipate the pleaſure of it in their Fancies, rowling it over and over again, act it over again and again, e're they do it as Players do their parts. And this we all find, That the chiefeſt pleaſure of our Lives is brought us in by our Thoughts; and when we enjoy not the things we deſire, we pleaſe our ſelves with our own Fancies, and Idea's of them, which help to entertain the Soul till it doth enjoy them. And we may obſerve it in Scripture, that Men are differenced by the Objects of their thoughts, and of the muſings of the Heart, as well as by any thing elſe. Iſa. 32. 7, 8. A Covetous man deviſeth wicked things, but the Liberal liberal things. Such as the things are, men ſpend their deviſings upon, it is certain ſuch are the Men. If they mind chiefly Earthly things, as it is, (Phil. 3. 19.) Then they are Earthly men, whoſe End is Damnation. And in the firſt Pſalm, 'tis made a diſtinctive note of a Godly man from a wicked, that he meditates in the Law, day and night. The Scope of David is to diſtinguiſh men; and there is good reaſon why men may be differenced by their thoughts, and the things they are converſant about. For 1. Noſcitur ex Socio. A mans diſpoſition may be known by his Companion whom he is moſt entire and familiar with. Now, thoſe things a man thinks on moſt, he makes his moſt familiar Friends, is moſt entire with; by our thoughts we have the entireſt acquaintance that we can have with any thing, the cloſeſt that we can any way arrive at: For it takes the things into our Boſom. And therefore Solomon (Prov. 6. 22.) ſpeaking of meditating in the Law, when a man wakes in the morning, compares it to a familiar Friend talking with a man; When thou awakeſt it ſhall talk with thee. And A man is therefore termed a Friend to the World. James 4. 1, 2. 3, 4.

2 The thoughts do moſt diſtinguiſh mens Hearts, becauſe they are the freeſt acts of the Mind, wherein the Mind is the moſt it ſelf, and acts it ſelf elſe, Prov. 23. 7. For as he thinketh in his Heart, ſo is he. And therefore the Proverb is, that thoughts are free. And in this ſenſe it is true, that of all acts elſe, they are the leaſt enforced, which do follow the free diſpoſition of the Heart. Men cannot ſpeak what they would, or do what they would, theſe are ſubject to enforcement. And therefore in judging by ſpeeches and by actions, there may be deceit. But a man may think what he will; and indeed uſually men do pore on that which pleaſeth them, in their thoughts, they act themſelves, what ſoever they do in their Actions. We do not know the diſpoſition of Players as acting their parts upon the Stage, but look into the Tyring-houſe, and there you may ſee them act themſelves, their own baſe and lewd Diſpoſitions. The Thoughts are the Tyring Room of the Soul, the privy Chamber of it. Chap. 3

3. They are the immediate acts of the Soul; And therefore ſhew what Temper it is of. For the Thoughts, (as I may ſo ſay) are as they came, new from the Heart; they are the Figments of it, and ſo the Image of the Heart is freſh on them, as coming new out of the Mint. If you would taſte a Grape, take the Juice as it is new ſqueezed out into the Wine-preſs, and before adulterated with other Mixtures.

4. Thoughts are the moſt continual actings of the Soul of any elſe which the Soul abounds in moſt, and therefore diſcovers the Heart moſt; for of all Faculties, that is always a work The thinking faculty is as that little Wheel in a Jack, that moves twenty times faſter than any of the reſt. And when we have not liberty to ſatisfie our deſires; yet our thoughts are working ſo as the Heart cannot be kept off from thinking of what it would enjoy. Chriſt calls the Thoughts the Treaſure both of a good and bad man, for the abundance there is of them, as in that Speech, a good man out of the good Treaſure of his Heart, brings forth good, an evil man evil. Mat. 12. 34, 35. For out of the abundance of the Heart the mouth ſpeaketh; a good man out of the good treaſure of the Heart bringeth forth good things; and an evil man out of the evil Treaſure, bringeth forth evil things. Chriſt you ſee, when he would give a reaſon why men might be diſtinguiſhed by their Speeches, and with what kind men abound therein moſt, he reduceth it to the Heart, as the Fountain. For out of the abundance of the Heart, (ſays he) the Mouth ſpeaketh; that is, out of the abundance of the thoughts, Some perſons have many reſtraints, even of ſpeaking of good; and are diſadvantaged, when yet their Hearts are working upon them. Therefore look what thoughts the Heart abounds in, (it is the ſure Rule) ſuch is the Heart. There is no good man but he hath a Treaſure and a Spring of good Thoughts within him, which no wicked man in the World hath. And though there is a Spring of Mud and Filth runs with them of vain Thoughts, and ſinful Thoughts, which intermingles it ſelf with the current of them at the beſt, and which doth often ſtop the current of them; yet this Spring works it ſelf out again, the Current riſeth up again, and though with many windings and turnings, keeeps its Courſe. And as Rivers run into the Sea, ſo there is a Spring in his Heart tends God-ward. Another man, though he may have a Land-flood of good Thoughts, in a good mode, yet they are ſoon dryed up again; there is not a Spring of them. Prov. 12. 2*d* and 5*th verſes* compared together. A wicked man is called a man of wicked devices or imaginations; that is, a man of wicked thoughts, as it were, made up of them, whereas in the 5*th verſe*, a Godly mans Thoughts, in oppoſition, are termed right. The thoughts of the Righteous are right. That is, for the tendency the Current of them they are exerciſed about righteous things. Therefore David (Pſal. 139. 17, 18.) ſays not only that the thoughts of God are pretious to him, but for multitude more than the Sand. It may be intepreted of his thoughts of God which he could not tell the total Sum of. For, ſays he, every morning when I awake, I am with thee. Whereas, of a wicked man Pſal. 10. 4. it is ſaid, God is ſcarce in all his thoughts. And Jer. 2. 32. God, upbraiding the People of Iſrael, ſays, Can a Maid forget her Ornaments, not go abroad but be ſure to be dreſſed; and when ſhe hath prickt up her ſelf her mind is ſtill on them; but my People have forgotten me (ſays he) days without number. But in Prov. 6. 14. it is ſaid of a wicked mans Heart, it forgeth miſchief continually, as a Smith forgeth Iron; he is ſtill hammering of it. And becauſe vain are all their thoughts, therefore a wicked mans Heart is ſaid to be little worth. Prov. 10. 20.

There are two Scruples and Objections which as to this branch of Tryal, ſome, yea, moſt good Souls may, and do make.

1. The ſwarming of evil, vain or fooliſh thoughts, that are ſo frequent and ſuch Familiars, That they are bold to knock and draw the Latch when we have ſeparated our ſelves the moſt ſolemnly, and ſhut our ſelves up for God in holy duties, and on the Sabbath days If therefore I ſhould judge, by my thoughts, the World, and a thouſand Vanities are my Treaſure.

ther World, even as they come so to be set home, as to amuse Self awhile, with the strange News of Happiness, as in another Country to be had. But his Joy in things in this World is Natural Congenial. Now that which is Natural, and agrees with the whole inward Constitution of any thing, must needs be stronger, and so eat out what is but forced and extrinsecal. For what is good naturally to a Man, is always so; and is so per se. What is good accidentally, hold only in such a Distress, in such a Case or Circumstance, or apprehension as Man is in, and so wears off, as Colours laid on use to do. The stoney Ground received the Word with Joy, (namely in this sense as hath been explained) but their Defect is noted to be the same that I have said, That they wanted Root in themselves, (Mat. 13. 20, 21.) that is a Congenial natural Principle suited to things Heavenly. Self was taken awhile with the Hear-say of them. But the Root of their Hearts and Natures, remained still fixt in the things of this World, in Earth: And the Root went on to bring forth according to its kind, and to draw the juice of the Earth it was fixt in, to it self; which dryed up that moisture that fed those Plants which were adventitious and set in made Earth for a while. So likewise of the Thorny Ground, 'tis said (v. 22. compared with Mark 4. 19.) The Cares of this World, and the Lusts of other things entering again (which are, and were Natural to the Heart and the soyl of it) choke the Word that was superficially cast in; for why the Heart is wholly a step-Mother to the one, and a natural Mother to the other, and so the Heart in the end returns to it self. But now in Regeneration we affirm, That a Man receives an Heavenly Nature, Which is a Noble Plant of the Lords planting naturally rooted in Heaven, and things Heavenly, as in its proper Soil it is to grow up and thrive in. And although there is another Root that is fented on Earth, that remains still in the Heart; yet it is a Dying, and that Heavenly Plant is that which is deepest in and nearest the Heart as the inner-man, and the other but as the outward.

Hence then the Parallel runs clear between these Two in an opposite way, (though I acknowledge a difference in one respect:) That look as an Unregenerate Man may taste (as hath been explained) of the Accidental Goodness that is in things Heavenly; yet all that while his inward Natural Constitution in him remaining wholly disposed to things in this World of it self, and to them for themselves. Hence, let him have what Tastes (he so remaining is capable of) concerning things Heavenly, that you can or will suppose, yet he is overcome again of what is Natural to him. For it is certain that Actiones sequuntur animi Constitutionem, and the remembrance of former Pleasures entering in, do wither and shale off again, all Accidental Joy and Sweetness in things Heavenly, which are to him also, and to his radical Constitution, but Accidental.

The contrary falls out in a Regenerate Man: That though he hath that corruption in him, which may make the pleasures of Sin sweet to him, and he may again taste of their Dainties, yet he having a New Divine Nature, which God upholds, and will bring forth to Victory, as Christ speaks, as being ordained for Eternity, and which is now become a Mans self, and is as Health is, in a Temper made sound, that hath yet some Humour remaining, and the things of the other World (which it is now rooted in, and is naturally suited unto) being of such a Greatness and Glory in themselves, they still leave those Impressions behind them upon his Heart, that upon the least reviving of them by the Spirit, the Heart is fetcht off from the Pleasures of Sin, as the other is by his Sin, drawn off from tasting the powers of the VVorld to come. I may say as Christ says, John 4. 13. Whoever drinketh and tasteth of Heavenly things (but only as Unregenerate Men have been said to do) he will Thirst again after Earthly, and be overcome of them; (And this I speak by way of Allusion,) but what follows v. 14. is really true and intended by Christ of a Man Regenerate. Whosoever drinketh of the Water, Christ shall give him, he shall never Thirst; that is, never come to have that impetuousness of full desire; and so not that pleasure or delight in other things carnal and outward (which Christ resembles the VVater of that VVell to) as he formerly had: He shall never add Drunkenness to Thirst (as Moses speaks) his Thirst thereto will be, by the Taste of this Water Christ gives him allayed; that that Vehemency and Greediness he formerly had, is for ever taken off and abated, and this because the Water which Christ gives him, becomes a VVell of Water springing up in him to Eternal Life, so it follows in the same verse; it is not adventitious, as Water in a Cistern, but as in a Spring, & it continually aspires to things above. And though it may be dam'd up with that Earth that environs it, yet it works out that Earth, and overflows in the Heart again. Chap. 3

To the 3d part of the Objection concerning a Godly man's finding Comfort in things outward that are Lawful.

The Answer is, and it is a great Invitement to Religion, that he may, and it is his own fault if he does not find more Comfort even in them, than Carnal Men use to do. (Psal. 36. 16.) A little that the Righteous hath, is better than the Riches of many Wicked. He opposeth, 1. A little unto Riches and Abundance, And 2. The little of one Man, to the Riches of many Men, whereof each are Rich. So as if one Man alone had the Riches that many great Rich Men have; yet a Righteous Man that hath but a little, hath more Comfort in it than he; yea then all those Rich Men have, put their Comforts all together. Therefore Godliness is said with Contentment to be great gain; for it alone brings Contentment. For tho' the Creature is (taken in it self alone) more Vain to a Godly Man, than to another: And so if he should go about to seek his Contentment from it, as Carnal Men do, I may then invert it, that the little which a VVicked Man hath, is more to him, than all abundance would be to the other: Solomon that pursued this (being a Godly man) could best Write of the Vanity of these things: But yet when the Heart is set a VVork to seek God, and hath the Scent of him, as I may so say, mingled with the outward things he doth enjoy, or if it have the light of his Countenance, it puts a fulness into the Creature. A Dinner of Herbs, sawced with his Love, and served up by him, is more than the greatest Feast. And surely God traineth up his Children one way or other unto this. The more a Man truly Godly will seek to find Comfort in the Creatures, the more Thorns he shall find in his way, (Hos. 2. 6. 7.) the more Comfortless they will be to him than to another, because his Soul is used to better fare. His Faculties have been widened and extended by having tasted, or by having had impressions of the sweetness and goodness that is in the Lord. And so the Creature in it self is more emptiness and vexation than to another Man. And therefore a Godly man, if he will Live, and but keep up the Comfort of his Life, and not fall lower in this respect, nor live at a lower rate then he did in his Natural Condition, he must necessarily (even for his daily comfort) seek after God, and hold up Entercourse and Communion with him; so to fill up that Chasma that is otherwise made, the Creature is rendred more vain to him then afore.

CHAP. III.

If we would know whether we make God our chiefest, and supream Good; let us observe by what things the Comfort of our Lives is principally maintained, and upheld.

ENquire by what things the Comfort of thy Life, is principally maintained and upheld from day to day: For it is that which is good in this Life, whereby the Comfort of ones life is nourished, as Fire by Fuel. We all live here in a miserable World, and our Life is a Pilgrimage of many a weary step: And the Soul must have Baitings and Refreshings, or it will faint and fail, and not hold out to its Journey's end. The Comfort of a mans Soul in Scripture is termed a mans Life, Luke 12. 15. Life, Book 10 base, more vile, as in debauched Courses of Uncleanness, Drunkenness, vain Company, Joviality, Mirth, &c. Which are so base that if you ask their Consciences, or their Judgments, they must acknowledge such things to be their Shame. Some are Swine, and wallow in open Mire which stinks in all mens nostrils; and yet as to their Hearts and Affections, they are that chiefest good they doat on; like Beasts, in what they know naturally, they corrupt themselves. Others are more clean, as Dogs and Goats; to which those others of wicked men are compared, that feed more clean, and yet are Beasts. These put the treasure of their Hearts in things outwardly commendable, as Riches, Honours, Learning, Wit, Reputation, quick Conversation, &c. Yea, sometimes in outward Righteousness, and a fair Deportment in this World: And yet not making God their Treasure, and not subordinateing all these to him, and not preferring him, and the things of God, to the chief of their joy; they evidently lay but up Treasures on Earth. I shall leave the first sort, as self-convicted, and as judged wicked by the World it self, and as sentenced by such cutting Sayings of the Word, 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Neither Fornicators, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abusers of themselves with mankind, nor Theives, nor Covetous, nor Revilers, nor Extortioners, shall inherit the Kingdom of God.

But as touching the second sort, who place their good things in what the World highly esteems, as Christ says; to convince them, and to comfort the Hearts of the Godly, by distinguishing and separating them from them: I shall give these following Evidences or Discoveries, which shall be fitted to the Metaphor of a Treasure, or what a man really makes his Treasure.

I shall premise this, That in the Hearts and Lives of many Saints, yea, in all more or less, there are Corruptions answering unto what I shall instance in, to convince wicked men by, that such and such things on Earth are their Treasure: That yet a man truly holy doth still in the pursuit, and valuation, and endeavours, and reaching forth of the Soul, make God his chief Treasure, (notwithstanding those Corruptions,) in comparison of all things else.

1. Examine thy practical Esteem and Valuation of things; that is, what is it that is most precious to thee? That's thy Treasure, 1 Pet. 2. 7. Unto you, that believe, Christ is precious. As in Himself such, (v. 4.) A Stone chosen of God and precious, so in the esteem of Believers; Unto you he is precious. And he speaks it by way of discrimination from Carnal Men that have not true Faith. But to them, says he, that be disobedient, he is a Rock of offence, v. 7. Why doth he in this opposition, give the Title of Disobedient to them? Rather than of Unbelievers, which is the opposite term unto the former, You that Believe; But because the valuation of Christ, or undervaluing him, is seen and discovered as in the pursuit after him; so in the obedience to him, or in Disobedience. Thus David, Psal. 119. 14. I have rejoiced in the way of thy Testimonies, as much as in all Riches. Even in the way of them; mark it, because they did lead to God, as a man would do in a way, though never so craggy, that did certainly lead him to an hidden Treasure: And in the way to them, in the pursuance towards God, he delighted as much and above Riches in present possession: Yea, and above all Riches too, of what sort soever, that Men count Riches; which is not in Money only. So then he esteemed God his Treasure, and manifested this by diligence in the way unto him, the way of his Testimonies. Thus of Hezekiah, of whom Interpreters do understand that passage, it is said Isa. 33. 6. The fear of the Lord is his Treasure. So of Moses Heb. 11. 26. It is said that he esteemed the very reproach of Christ, greater Riches than the Treasures of Egypt. With other Men, how doth the market go? It is apparent, 1. That they undervalue God and Christ, and those things of the other World; and hold them at the rate of common things: So in the Original the Expression is (Heb. 10. 28.) though 'tis rendred an unholy thing which though there uttered of men that sin against the Holy Ghost with the highest contempt of Christs Blood; and was therefore so ren dred Yet to esteem Christ and his Blood a common ordinary thing, is common with them and other wicked men as their respect thereunto manifests, in comparison of other things) a wicked man is a prophane person, as Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his Birth-right, Heb. 12. 16. And for this his so manifest a demonstration of his undervaluing it to a Mess of Pottage (and the pleasure of Lust is but just like it) he is termed a prophane Person, who is one which esteemeth holy things, and precious things, as common, for that is properly Prophanation. Chap. 2

And 2. Instead of these, what are their Dainties? Sins and the pleasures of them, Psal. 141. 4. Encline not mine Heart to any evil thing, to practice wicked works with men that work Iniquity, and let me not eat of their Dainties. And so the good things of this World, (Rev. 18. 12, 13, 14) were dainty and goodly in their Esteem, and so (as there) their Souls lusted after them. Now then let us examine our selves hereby.

1. This thy esteem of God and Christ, if true, and in any proportion rising up to the worth of the things themselves, will shew it self, as in thy first Conversion, in selling all for them, (Mat. 13.45.) So after Conversion, in thy diligent pursuit after them. Treasures lie buried under ground to a great depth often. Therefore says Solomon, speaking of Christ and all his Graces, (by which we come to have Interest in him,) under the name of Wisdom, Prov. 2. 4. If thou seek for her as Silver, and searchest as for hidden Treasure. The mind of the Similitude is, That as God in his common Providence hath hidden the Mines of rich Metals in the Bowels of the Earth, because he would have men take pains for them: So in the course of his dispensations to his Children, he hath hidden his Christ, whom he so values, in himself; your life is hid with Christ in God, Col. 3. 3. And all the Riches of Christ, which are unsearchable, they are hid in God, Eph. 3. 10. and hidden deep. They are the deep things of God, (1 Cor. 2. 10.) To the end he may be treated with by every Soul that will have them. And although he gives them freely, and sells them not for any, or all of our endeavours: (And therefore, say not in your Hearts, that is, think not within your selves (as Paul interprets Moses) who shall ascend up into Heaven, as if any may by his endeavours bring Christ down from thence; Or who shall descend into the Deep? (Rom. 10. 7.) Yet before he usually brings Christ down into the Heart, or discovers his own Heart and Face, he orders it so that men shall take the utmost pains, and use the utmost diligence, to the end, to shew their valuation of these things. Many shall strive, says Christ. You must do more, work as at a Mine; if thou search for her as Silver: To work in Mines is the toylsomest work in the World. The Romans of Old, and the Spaniards now in the West-Indies, condemn their Slaves thereto. And indeed what a man values and esteems pretious, his desire will set all in him a work to seek, Prov. 18. 1. Through desire, a man having separated himself, he seeketh and intermedleth with all wisdom. Others read (as also the Margent varies it) intermedleth with every matter. That is, what a man strongly desires and esteems, it will make him separate, or set himself apart wholly to it. He will deal in every matter, that is, way or course, whereby it is to be attained. He will turn every Stone, or (which is all one as we read it) will intermedle with all Wisdom. He will use all his Wits to cast with himself how it may be compassed. Now go down into your own Hearts, think, and think seriously, what doth the Strength of thy Intention run out upon? Is it after God, and the things of that other World, or things in this? If thou hast been truly wrought upon, perhaps at the first thou wert so affected, as wholly to separate thy self thro' desire after God and his favour, because thou did'st thus judge, it is not necessary for me to be eminently Learned or Rich, &c. but to be saved, is that one thing necessary, and so did'st nothing else, with thy heart, until thy Spirit was setled and quieted in some good measure. Then afterward thou wast settled; and so that present and absolute necessity thy Soul was put upon at first, as in respect to that distress and unsettlement, is not the same as before, yet thy esteem continues such to the things themselves. As, though thou spendest not the greatest outward Bulk of thy diligence, because thy outward Calling in this World calls for it: Yet the greatest strength of thy intentness of Spirit, and heedfulneſs, is ſpent upon them ſo, as not to loſe thy intereſt, in them. And to that end a Godly Man will intermeddle with every Duty, and he will deal in all Ordinances, take the advantage of all Opportunities.

On the other hand, My Brethren, what is the reaſon, that Men ſearch for Learning as for Silver, and dig for it as for Gold, ſeparate themſelves unto it; intermeddle with every Author, as the Bee with every flower, and yet neglects God, days without number? Or if not that way given (I would it were ſo commonly) men ſpend their intention and dilligence (what it is) in Idleneſs, vain Company, which we term paſſing away the time: But as for God and Chriſt, and the ways of Holineſs, they are ſo far off from ſeparating themſelves unto them, through deſire, that they ſcarce intermeddle with them in a Week, a Month. Theſe, as Pebbles in the ſtreets, they are ſo far from digging for them, that they trample as Swine upon them (as Chriſt ſpeaks) or at leaſt ſtoop not to take them up: They think they may have them at any time for ſtooping for, at their caſt-away leiſure, or on their Death Bed. What is the reaſon of this? Even becauſe they are not their Treaſure. God hath not yet given thee an Heart to value them at their own rate. Suppoſe thou hadſt liv'd in Solomon's times, when Gold and Silver were as Stones in the ſtreets, or wert in the Indies, where at leaſt, for the ſeeking or digging for them, thou mighteſt have enough, and yet all thy time were ſpent to load thy poor back with Peacocks Feathers, which you read of alſo in Solomons times (which were indeed thoſe Glorious Birds, we now a days ſee brought from the hotter Climates) would any Man think, or couldſt thou in reaſon think that thou didſt make Gold and Silver thy Treaſure, in ſuch a Caſe?

Conſider, You live in times and places, in which the unſearchable Riches of Chriſt are ſhovell'd up to your Hands, every day offered, tendered, yea put (as it were) into your Hands. The Word we Preach is nigh thee, even in thy Ears and Heart; and yet as Solomon ſays, Prov. 17. 16. A Fool hath a Price in his hand, only wants an Heart towards it. Go Home and Conſider with thy ſelf, Theſe things are not yet my Treaſure, nor hath as yet God given me an Heart to make them ſuch.

Again, If theſe had been thy Treaſure, thou wouldſt have parted with all for them: Sold all thou haſt, as Chriſt ſpeaks of that good Pearl. For all men, will do for what is pretious to them. What ſays God, Iſa. 44. Since thou wert precious to me, I gave Nations for thy Life. And ſo wouldſt thou have done for Chriſt ere this, and never have repented of your bargain. 'Tis Repentance never to be repented of. I have accounted all things loſs, Phil. 3. And I do account them ſo ſtill, ſays Paul. And ſtill he preſſed forward to attain them with the greateſt diligence. But thou parteſt for unworthy courſes, uncleaneſs, drunkenneſs, or ſuch petty baſe Luſts, which the beſt part of thee, the ſpeculative part of thy mind, is ſo far from reckoning a Treaſure, as they are thy ſhame; yet to the practical part, they are really thy pretious things thou in thy great Wiſdom ſeekeſt after. Thou canſt ſell all for them, as Eſau his Birth-right, thy Soul, thy Books, thy good Name, the hopes of Preferment in the place thou art in, thy health, thy ſtrength, thy wits, thy favour, expectations and joy, thy Friends might have in thee, to purſue them. A goodly Treaſure ſure! Are they not? Yet they muſt be reckoned thine.

2. Wherein, or in what doſt thou account thy greateſt gains, and thy greateſt loſſes to lye? That, in the Valuation of thine Heart, is thy Treaſure.

You find, 1 Tim. 6. 6. Paul ſpeaking of the Oppoſite Diſpoſition of a Man truely Godly, and who ſeeks the things of Jeſus Chriſt, from his that is Carnal; He expreſſeth it with a [But] But Godlineſs with Contentment is great Gain; or as the Word is, Self-Sufficiency μετ' αυταρκειας, that is, Godlineſs hath ſuch such a sufficiency in it self, that with, or thro' that sufficiency, it alone is great Gain to him, in whose Heart it is placed, and by whose Spirit it is truly valued. And he speaks this in perfect opposition to the Spirit of Carnal Gospellers and Professors, of whom he had spoken the Verse afore, and which was the occasion of the Saying annexed Men of Corrupt minds, supposing that Gain is Godliness; that is, their secret opinion and esteem, that Gain in outward things is the best Religion in the World. But our Religion which we profess is to serve him that is God; now, Phil. 3. 19. Paul speaking of the same sort of Persons, (for of those of the Circumcision he speaks in both places) Whose God is their Belly He compares the Lusts and Appetites of Natural mens Hearts, unto those of the Belly, that is the furious desire to the Pleasures thereof; and such are theirs to Earthly Things; as it follows, who mind Earthly Things; unto which Psalm 17 v. 14. accords. The men of this World (saies David) who have their portion in this Life, Whose Belly thou fillest with thy hid-Treasure, namely, of the Earth, (which also speakes home to the Metaphor of the Text) So then, Earthly Things were their God: That is, their chiefest Good, instead of God. And the eager persuit with which they adored their God, he as justly terms their Religion; especially when under the pretence of Religion, they serve those ends. Chap. 2

1*st.* The Result is this, (which is the thing in hand) That Earthly Things are in the valuation of Carnal men, professing Religion, their gain; and their Religion also, supposing Gain is Godliness. But to Godly men Godliness is Great, true Gain, having a sufficiency in it. Unto which accords that also of Solomon, Pro. 3. 14. The Merchandize thereof is better than the Merchandize of Silver, and the gaine thereof than of fine Gold. Hast thou ever been brought to such dispositions of Heart and Spirit as these?

1. To suffer (in thine own resolutions and account) the loss of all things that thou mightest win or gain Christ? 'Tis Paul who is your pattern, Phil. 3. 6. 7. What things were gain to me, that I accounted loss for Christ; for whom I suffered the loss of all things that I might win Christ: Conversion to God is a great Shipwrack of an old man and all his goods and appurtinence. I do not know how Conversion goes now-a-days, when you may judge the World favours Religion: But I will tell you how the price of the Market went in our days.) A mans Conversation was such, as not only some things, but all things he most valued, he was faine to bring it and lay it down at Christs Feet, as they did their money at the Apostles; and by Wholesale give it up to him. For he knew not but that for the sincere profession of Christ, he might lose all presently. Take a Scholar in the University, whose Education was as Paul's, profiting in the Jewish Learning above his Equals; yet the Learning then cryed up, and the way of preaching in quotations of Fathers, Poets, Apothegems, Stories, &c. was such, as when a man had profitted therein seven or ten Years, and had a dispute with, or above his Equalls: If he were humbled for sin, and came to Christ for Righteousness, and treated with God for Salvation, God Would say to him, What advantage or use will all this your Learning, you have counted your Treasure, be of to me? This poor Soul was fain to give it all up for ever as lost, And was turn'd into the World a Dunce, stript of all his plumes; for the other was loss and useless, and all this to win Christ. And then his carnal Friends would come upon him too, and say they had lost all their hopes, their Cost upon him. Thus a proud Scholar was at once undone by Bankrupt. Again, his Heart was swoln with hopes of preferment, his Sail's fill'd with the wind of it: And he had ordered his Studies, his Comportment accordingly; taken in Commodities for that Port. And as he, in Habbakuck, had in his conceits, gathered to himself all Nations, all sorts of preferments as his prey, but when he came truly to turn to Christ and enter into a profession of strictness: He was brought in his own resolution, to lay down all he was in hopes of, and all which he had laid up as Gains, towards the procuring of it: And to be a poor Schoolmaster, or a Levite in a private Gentlemans House, was what in his future projections or expectations this man was brought to. Conversion was a great Shipwrack. And sure it is, and will be to every one, that turns to Christ still in something or other.

2. Again, after thou art turn'd, wherein dost thou reckon thy comings in to lie, and thy truest Gains? Paul being a Preacher of the Gospel, as before a Persecutor, (to instance therein) what were the chiefest of his Gains he lookt at, what to get Livings, &c. No, but that he might win some Souls converted, or quickened by his Ministry, he accounted his Treasure. What is our Crown (says he 1 Thes. 2. 19,20.) but even ye in the presence of the Lord? He acknowledged every such Soul added as a Jewel to his Crown; and every degree of Grace that was added to those Souls, as so many Carrats in Diamonds, which encreaseth their value. Thou hast an outward man with many appurtenances; a Name and Repute in the World, outward Comforts about thee, Health, Vigour, the World fair on thy side. All these in Scripture-Language are termed the outward man. Well, and thou pretendest to have an inward man in thee, that is, to have a repute and acceptation with God, made to enjoy Communion with him every day: Unto which the Things and Comforts of another World, do as properly and as suitably belong, as the other to that outward. To instance first in that part of thy outward man, thy good Name. God comes and makes a breach upon thy Name: And this partie of men, they report this, another that; yea, and pervert thy best and sincerest Actions, to thy reproach, turn thy Glory into Shame. And these losses and revilings daily come in, like Job's Messengers, upon the neck of one another. These are shrewd losses. But what dost thou reckon thy Gains? All this while thou findest God draw near to thee, own thee, testifie thy sincerity to thee. Thou hast an inward man, whose praise is with God, and not with men. And thou hast further a name in thy eye, at the latter day, above every name that is in this World. Yea, and every reproach will turn to encrease it at that day. Even this shall turn to my Salvation Phil. 1 19. Every thing written or spoken against thee, will then be a Crown about thine Head; as (Job 31.35.) and every Scoff and Contempt a Fence. And thine Heart all this while finds a self-sufficiency in Godliness betwixt God and Thee in which thou rejoicest And reckonest all these things thy Gains, and secretly rejoicest Heartily herein upon this Account; thus it was with Moses, Heb. 11. 26. He esteemed the reproach of Christ, or for Christs sake, greater Riches. He lookt on them as his Gains.

And thus it is in all other kinds of outward losses, which are of the appurtenances of the outward Man. See Paul's Spirit, 2 Cor. 4. 16. Though our outward Man perish, yet I thank God, my inward Man is renewed day by day. I find comings in more or less every day thereby, and what do I lose by that then? And therefore I value not my Losses of this kind, whilst a Gain comes in the other way.

Yea, upon this account all Afflictions, are therefore but light, and so all losses of all sorts whatever, because they work for us an exceeding weight of Glory: So it follows, verse 20.

And reason good, why we should thus judge: For the things we lose, are but things temporal; but the things we have in exchange for them, are things eternal: So again it follows v. 21. We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen, are Temporal; but the things which are not seen, are Eternal. That true Believers do really and in the private estimation of their Souls thus judge, you may also see by the instance of the Beleiving Hebrews, whose Hearts Paul cuts up, Heb. 10. 33, 34. Ye were made a gazing stock, by reproaches and afflictions, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, (as great losses as can be supposed to befal men) What should be the reason of this? They knew that they were Gainers, that they got well by it. Knowing in your selves (mark that) that you have in Heaven a better and an enduring substance, (which as Paul told us even now) is wrought and increased by all these losses an hundred fold, as Christ speaks. It was the knowledge and actual application of this, caused them to rejoice as well as they might. But how did they know it? The Text says, In themselves. When the great providence of God took away these, or any thing from them, God was graciously pleased still to seal to them a Bill of Exchange in their own Hearts; to return instead thereof, so much better and enduring substance by way of Exchange, Exchange in the other World; and he writ this Bill in their Hearts, they had it in themſelves, the earneſt of it, (as 1 John 5.) he that believes is ſaid to have the witneſs in himſelf) and look as all a mans actions are written in a Mans Conſcience, which he ſhall not be able to deny; ſo all ſuch Impreſſions from God are alſo Written in the Heart. And God will own all theſe his Bills of Exchange at the latter day. So then, a Chriſtian accounts theſe his greateſt gains. And well he may; for if one ſhould come into your Houſe, and take all your Pewter, and all your Braſs, and melt it before your Face; but then come and ſprinkle ſome of the Elixar upon it (which you call the Philoſophers Stone) and turn it all into Gold; I pray, what loſs had you? Yea, what gains? And truly thus by Faith you may, and in the iſſue, in experience all you true Chriſtians muſt look upon all Afflictions, and Loſſes whatever. By Faith you may aforehand, as knowing this will be the Iſſue; therefore ſays James, James 1. 2. Count it all Joy, when ye fall into divers Temptations; obſerve his When, not when after ye are fallen, but at firſt, when you do fall; Rejoice thus aforehand: Suppoſe thy Afflictions be for thy Sins, no matter; Wait and thou ſhall gain by them. They bring forth a quiet fruit of Righteouſneſs, that is, that iſſue which ſo quiets, as it cauſeth the Soul to ſay, I am ſatisfied; it was well for me, I was thus Afflicted. Thou loſeſt a Child dear to thee, for 'tis thine Image. And God renews (upon the occaſion and by the affliction of it) his own Image, or ſome member of it more fair and freſh than ever. What are an Hundred Thouſand Children to the leaſt degree of Grace? The comings in by one good Prayer, is worth them. God takes a Pin off thy ſleeve, and puts into thine Heart the white ſtone which hath a new name on it. It was good for me, I was Afflicted, ſays David; that is, he reckoned it his Gains. To be kept but from one Sin by an Affliction, is greater gain than this World hath to afford. I went Aſtray, ſays David, afore I was Afflicted. Croſſes which break other Men's Hearts, and which they can never get off, but are ſunk with the burthen of to their Graves, they are made light to a Believer (as Paul ſpeaks) they bring him near to God, and he bleſſeth God, that ever it befel him. 'Tis true indeed, he deſires rather, and he is to ſeek it, that God would ſanctifie Mercies to him. Yet if there be no other way to be made a partaker of Gods Holineſs (as the Apoſtle ſpeaks) but this, he would not care what God did with him. If by any means I may attain the Reſurrection of the Dead, ſays Paul, (Phil. 3. 11.) He ſpeaks it in reſpect of the Holineſs that will be in that ſtate. Let God take what courſe he will, what means he will: he ſhould be glad. It was becauſe he reckoned God and the things of God his Treaſure, and ſo his gains to lye there. By theſe two Dealings of God with thee put together, thou mayeſt make forth a great and mighty Evidence of thy Election.

1. That however God deals with thee in what thy fleſh and outward Man deſires, whether Rich or Poor, deſpiſed or in repute, &c. Yet ſtill thou canſt and mayeſt obſerve that by all ſuch diſpenſations God ſeaſonably keeps thee, or breaks thee off from Sin. Draws thee nearer, and puts thee upon praying and crying out to him. What is this, but that his Eternal Love hath taken care of an inward Man in thee, which he doth renew from day to day, (if thy Croſſes be ſuch) or from Month to Month, from Week to Week. And therefore will not let thee go on in ſuch a Sin as others do, or in that dead frame, but it ſhall coſt thee this Affliction or that, a loſs in this thing or that thing, which is dear to thee; another piece of thy name muſt go for it, or t'other Child, or ſome of thy Eſtate. This is a ſign Eternal Love carries on its deſign towards thee and not common or Providential Love.

2. Then Secondly, Doſt thou find this ſtill, upon all ſuch Loſſes and Periſhings of thy outward Man, thy Heart to have ſome quietneſs and rejoicing from this, that though God hath dealt thus bitterly with me, yet he hath made it up by a ſupply of his Spirit ſome way or other, either in preſerving from ſin, ſtirring up Conſcience, quickening to prayer, exerciſing Faith, waiting ſubmission. And then with all thy Heart thou dost value these more than all thy losses, and dost say, howsoever, I see it was good and best for me, I got by such a sickness, brokenness of Heart, both off from, and for such a Lust; and though I cannot say I have grown much, yet my inward Man hath been renewed, some Life of Graces have been kept in me hereby, so as I would not for all the World, but God should have dealt thus with me; I would not have been Rich, or Great, or Honourable, instead thereof, though still what God will do with me at last I know not. I tell thee such Thoughts and Dispositions as these do manifestly declare that thy Treasure lyes not on this side of Heaven, but it is in the other World, which appears by thine own Audit-Book in which Losses and Gains are written; that is, what things they are thou esteemest thy greatest Losses, and thy greatest Gains. Thy Gains in this Case lye in things of the other World.

Now, further to give you an Evidence that not in this World, but in the other, a Christians Treasure lies: Not only that he accounts the Afflictions of this present Life gains, but even Death it self; concerning which, other Mens Hearts say, When I am gone, all is gone. Death is the great Murderer, like a sweeping rain, dispoils a Man of all in this World at once. But what says Paul, Phil. 1.21. To me to die is gain. So a good Soul looks upon the thing in it self, And Oh! That I had assurance, that I might account it so for me; yet such it is in his Estimation, in his hopes, though not in his particular Confidence: Oh, says he, I heartily value the things of that World, so as that I would not care if I were well there; this Wife, these good Houses, Children, Credit, Honours, what good will they do me? Whom have I in affection in Heaven but thee? In Earth I have too many Harlotry things which draw away my Heart from thee. Oh, would I were with thee, and in thy Bosome! So he prays and sighs. And why is this? Because the true Treasure thy Heart values, is laid up there; and there is an enduring substance. And then says the Heart, If I dye, I should go and receive all my Bills of Exchange, into which all the Comforts I have had first or last, have been one way or other turned. I shall meet with every Prayer, Tear, Sigh, Groan, and have all mine Afflictions returned me with infinite advantage. To me to live is Christ, and to dye is Gain.

Again, I shall add, What dost thou endeavour to add to, daily? Therein lies the Gains, and that is thy Treasure. It is in the Text, What is a Mans Treasure, he will lay up, and be still adding to that heap. For a Treasure lies in an abundance, which a Man seeks to heap up; whereas of other things, he only provides so much as barely serves his present Use, as Coles for Firing, &c. Of the Believing Corinthians Paul gives this Testimony, and withal this Motive; which he knew would take with their Hearts, 2 Cor. 8.7. Therefore, as ye abound in every thing, in Faith, in utterance, in Knowledge, and in your Love to us; see that ye abound in this Grace also: Wherein lay the force of this Exhortation; but, that they accounted the Graces of the Spirit their Treasure? And so had a principle provoking them to abound in all sorts of them. The like Exhortation you have 1 Cor. 15. last. Always abounding in the work of the Lord; that is, in some good thing or other that is for God. Knowing your Labour is not in vain; for the more you abound, the more Treasure you lay up in Heaven. Consider, therefore, what heap thou art endeavouring to add unto, as thy Treasure: I do not say which of the heaps are bigger, thy good Works, or thy Sins; but which heap is it thou seekest to add to, and to abound in? Dost thou go on retchlesly, to add Sin to Sin. Isa. 30. 4. till the measure of thine Iniquity is full? Thou and thy Companions say, (as Isa. 56. last,) Come, to day shall be as to Morrow, and much more abundant. Abundance of Sin, and pleasure by sin, is that thou seekest; adding Drunkenness to Thirst, as (Deut. 29. 19.) Moses his Phrase is; that is, a full satisfaction to every Lust thou hast a mind to; if Covetous, seekest to add, Land to Land; if a Scholar, Notion to Notion; but neglectest, yea, valuest not to add Grace to Grace, one good Prayer to another, as Peter Exhorts, 2 Pet. 1. 5. dost thou give all dilligence to add Grace to Grace, to that end, that you may be rich in Faith, James 2. 5. Rich in good Works, in good Speeches, good Thoughts as accounting these your Treasure; then God is the chief Portion and Treasure. And this by so much the more as thou hast formerly added Sin to Sin. And if thou sayest, Alas, my Lusts abound, and Deadness and Unfruitfulness; well, but then thou aboundest in Complaints hereof, and addest Complaint to Complaint; and it makes thy life bitter to thee, as a sorer Vanity than any Solomon instanceth in. Chap. 2

Again, What times of thy Life dost thou look upon as lost time, or else, as most pretious and gainful to thee? Days of greatest Receipts of what is ones Treasure, it reckons his best daies. A man counts that time lost in which what he principally intends goes not forward. A Scholar that makes haste to be Rich in Knowledge, as others to be Rich in Estates, looks upon Times that Conscience puts him upon Holy Duties in, as interruptions, which he thinks much at, as impediments to his main end: So of the Sabbath; when will it be gone? As they in the Prophet. Or, as the Heathens scoft the Jews, that they lost the Seventh part of their Lives. Dost thou so? It is because thou makest not God, nor the things of God, thy Treasure. What made David account one day in Gods House better than a Thousand? Psal. 84. 10. What makes one Day better then another? But that gain which the day brings in? Oh, say they that run into excess of Riot, What a gallant Night had we on't! when their Wits and Spirits were flusht with Wine, and Joviality; but on the contrary, what says a Good and Holy Soul? I have had a good Day of it, or a good Night of it, when God hath been near him in private prayer, or at Meetings with others, Isa. 58. 13. To a Godly Man, a Fast-day, or a Sabbath-day is said to be Honourable; that is, pretious and high in his esteem. Hence when a Man comes to turn to God, he accounts all the time before, however spent, to be lost time. You have therefore Paul complaining that he was Converted later than the rest of the Apostles, 1 Cor. 15. 8. That he was born out of time: As a Scholar that is kept from School, or from going to the University till Twenty Years old, or upwards, bewails his Loss, or his having been a Truant. And yet Paul had spent his time well in the Jewish Learning, and profited therein above measure. Yea, but I knew not Christ, says he, for the excellent Knowledge of whom, I account all things loss. To this also refers that Speech of Christ, Matth. 10. 3. 6. Why stand ye here idle all the Day long in the Marketplace? And therefore a Godly Man also looking back upon the times past after his Conversion, those days wherein (though under bitter Temptations) yet he sought God much, and with the utmost intentions of his Soul: Or wherein there was a quick Trade and Entercourse between God and him, or others and him in the things of God; he notes them in his Almanack, with a White Stone. And these, wherein he Considers that the World and vain Thoughts have, as the lean Years, eaten up the fat; he looks on these with sadness; and with bitterness cries out, Amici perdidimus Diem, Friends, we have lost a Day, in which he hath not made some addition to his Treasure. This is the great Rule in Moses his Arithmetick, which he hath Taught us, to number our Days, by applying our Hearts to Wisdom. Which Rule by proportion holds and instructs for time past, as well as time to come; That a Man reckons that time lost, in which he hath not applied his Heart to Wisdom.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

To know whether we make God our chiefest Good, we must state the account, upon what it is that we most value our selves, or other men.

THE last Head of Signs from this metaphorical Expression [what is thy Treasure?] Is, What thou dost value and estimate thy self by, as also other Men?

This Note differs from the former. For when I ask'd what was precious to thee, it signified what valuation thou hadst of the things in themselves, which is a direct act of valuation. But this Query is by what things you put a value upon your selves or others. Which is as the reflex Act (as in other Cases we use to distinguish.) That I may give a right stating of this Note, that it may be fitted for all sorts to apply it without mistake of what I intend, or disquietment to their own Souls: I shall premise these things by way of Explication.

1. That this Note holds in an Affirmative a Positive sense true, of Unregenerate men; who may be convinced by this what their Hearts do really value themselves by, when it is found to be some Earthly Excellency or other which therefore is their Treasure.

2. Of Godly men, it holds true Negatively; as to what they have learned not to value themselves by; Not by Earthly and Worldly Excellencies; that Rate Book is cancell'd in a great measure with them. And as for a positive valuing carnal Self, in a way of being lift up: They have learn'd to be as Cyphers in their own Hearts, To be nothing in a mans self: This is the A B C in Christianity (though we are always a learning it) Ask an humble Soul, what dost thou value thy self by? He will readily answer (as to what he is of himself, and in himself,) Alas, by nothing. Thus Paul, in divers places, two especially. 1 Cor. 15. 9. I am the least of the Apostles, that am not meet to be called an Apostle. Again, 2 Cor. 12. 11. I am nothing.

And yet 3. For all this, you shall find the same Apostle value himself as he was a man in Christ, and according to what he had by Grace, as he had lived in and to Christ, and acted for Christ, he doth value himself thereby: Yet still vailing, and attributing all unto that Grace of God which had done it for him, even at the same time and with the same Breath with which he lays himself thus low; which is sufficient ground to the Note in hand; That even regenerate men have also that Treasure of another kind belonging to them, which they do and may value themselves by: Even whilst they really profess themselves as nothing: As in respect both to themselves as in themselves, and unto the Grace of God working in them and with them, which is one Branch of the point in hand. Consult we for this the places cited, 1 Cor. 15. I am the least of the Apostles. So (v. 9.) But then at the tenth verse he riseth again. But by the Grace of God I am what I am. Well, and what was he? It follows. I laboured more abundantly than they all; there he pulls forth his Treasure. Yet still (lest he should have said too much) he distinguisheth again upon it. Yet not I, but the Grace of God that was with me. And in 2 Cor. 12. 11. with the same Breath, with which before he had said I am nothing, he boldly premiseth this, In nothing am I behind the very chiefest Apostles, though I be nothing. Paul had then, wherewith he valued himself, you see. And in the same Chapter he gives you that other part of the distinction I mentioned, v. 2, 5. I knew a man in Christ, of such a man I will glory: But of my self I will not Glory, but of mine Infirmities, as in that respect; and yet it was himself he speaks of. So then take himself himſelf as in himſelf (and ſo carnal men never throughly humbled never do, and of that ſelf, abſtracted from my relation to Chriſt, ſays he, I profeſs my ſelf nothing. But of ſuch a man, and ſo of my ſelf as conjunct with Chriſt, what I am in Chriſt, I may and will glory. So then, the right ſtate of this note of difference between a Godly and an ungodly man, lies fair afore us. Chap. 3

1. That a carnal unregenerate man doth poſitively value himſelf and others by ſome Excellency that is Earthly, if he have any to value himſelf by. Or if not, he values others by what his Heart accounts truly a Treaſure.

2. A Godly man hath learnt not to value neither himſelf nor others, chiefly, by ſuch things.

But 3. His Heart being pitcht upon living upon God in Chriſt, he values himſelf, if he hath aſſurance of his being in Chriſt by what he is in Chriſt, and by the Grace of God, as by a rich Treaſure ſtill with vailing to Grace, and diſtinguiſhing himſelf as in Chriſt, from himſelf as in himſelf.

And 4. So far as he wants aſſurance, and ſo can value himſelf by nothing as aſſuredly his own, yet what his Heart truly maketh its Treaſure, may be diſcovered in him, and by himſelf in this, what things they are he values others by. It being thus ſtated, Let us come to the proof and application of it.

The reaſon why carnal men value themſelves by outward Excellencies is, That man naturally would not be a meer Cypher to himſelf and others: He muſt be ſomebody, a μεγας τις as 'tis ſaid of Simon Magus, Acts 8. 9. Now the Souls of men upon the ſame account that Ariſtotle calls them, abraſæ Tabulæ, in point of notion and intellectual ſpecies, may be called Cyphers, conſidered as ſeparated from all outward Excellencies and Endowments, as Wit, Learning, Eſtates, Beauty, Riches, Power, or ſome ſuch things. And they ſtand and appear to themſelves as Cyphers in compariſon of others. But look as any of theſe things are added to them, which they ſee are in high eſteem with men in the World, then this poor naked Cypher will begin to reckon it ſelf a Number, and ſtill the more that is added, the greater number it goes on to think it ſelf to be; as the more Figures, the more the value of a Cypher is encreaſed. You may ſee the truth of this too true a Similitude in the inſtance of Saul. When Saul was Young and a Stripling, and a private perſon, Samuel reminds him, thou wert little in thine own eyes, 1 Sam. 15. 17. The Cypher had but a few figures then ſet or belonging to it: And he was though ſomething, as the Word little imports, (according to what he then poſſeſs'd when he went to ſeek his Fathers Aſſes) yet little then in compariſon of what the value of himſelf did riſe to, when a Kingdom, with all its Glories and Priviledges, were added to him. A Kingdom, ſet to Original ſin, huft and blew him up, ſo that he thought himſelf worth no leſs than all the Kingdom beſides (as we have heard and ſeen other Kings have been wont to do) he grew too great for God himſelf to rule, and to have reſpect to his Commands: To intimate which to his Conſcience, was Samuel's Scope.

The Prince of Tyre is another Inſtance, Ezek. 28. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, verſes. It ſeems he was a man eminent in Wiſdom and Knowledge, as v. 4. With thy Wiſdom and Underſtanding thou haſt gotten thee Riches, and Gold, and Silver, into thy Treaſures. And by reaſon of all this, (as v. 2.) thy Heart was lifted up. As the Ark was, as the Waters that bore it did riſe and encreaſe. Well, and how big was this Cypher, this Mote, this Atome, this leſs than nothing lift up? Even as high as the Throne of God. So God, the Searcher of Hearts, chargeth him, v. 2. Thus ſaith the Lord God, Becauſe thy Heart is lifted up, and thou haſt ſaid I am God, I ſit in the Seat of God, in the midſt of the Seas, yet thou art a man and not God, tho' thou ſet thine Heart as the Heart of God. Oh how big did this Toad ſwell in his own imagination! Therefore God, to confute him, and to bring him to his native Cypherhood, threatneth to bring a Sword againſt him and all his Glory, that ſhould ſtrip him of all his Excellencies he valued himſelf by, and ſhould ſlay him, v. 7, 8. And then ſays God, (and it was as great a Sarcaſme, as that ſhot at our firſt Parents, Man is become as one of us) v. 9. Wilt thou yet say before him that slayeth thee, I am God. He will make but a poor God of thee. God prick'd the Toad and he fell to nothing. As also He did Herod, (Acts 12.) when swoln with the flattering Breath of the People for his eloquent Oration. God sent his Angel to cut the Bladder, and how did it fall? I have instanced in Kings, because they are Suns of the greatest Magnitude, any of the Cyphers of Mankind grow to: But it holds proportionably in all men else. If a man scrape together a little Riches and Scraps of Wit and Learning, mens Souls presently value themselves thereby, 1 Tim. 6. 19. Charge them that are rich in this World, that they be not high minded. As Riches encrease, the Heart encreaseth. This is one reason why a carnal Man comes to value himself by things outward.

2. If you will see a reason of the difference of the second thing propounded, viz. how it comes to pass, that a Godly man and a Carnal do differ thus in the valuation of themselves: Among others therere are two several Rate-Books, or Books of Valuation, which according as Men have Eyes given 'em to discern, and Spirits, impartially to view themselves in, and guided to judge themselves by; accordingly will they come to rate and value themselves with this vast difference spoken of.

1. There is the Worlds Book, which is that common esteem which the generality of Men have of things and do cry up, and magnifie them by. Now what things do bare a rate and value with the World, but things Worldly? Psal. 12. last. Vanity with Mortal Men, highly is extolled. And Christ, Luke 16. 15. hath this expression of it, Things highly esteemed by Men. Now a Worldly natural Man, having the Spirit of this World, as yet predominant in him (1 Cor. 2. 12. which is especially there spoken in relation to his judging of persons and things, for he exposeth it there to the Spiritual Mans Judging of things spiritually.) Such a Man therefore jumps with the Carnal VVorld in his Judgment, both about men and things, looks upon himself and all things wtih the Worlds Eye, and is said to walk according to the course of the VVorld. Eph. 2. 2. and so rates and values himself by the Worlds Book; that is, by the Common Opinion and Price, which things by the World are taken up at.

On the contrary, there is Gods Book. (as you say. the Kings Book, by which you know the value of Livings.) 'Tis Doomsday Book if you will, In which the rate of all Persons and things are laid down according as the value of things shall go at the latter day. And this was written to that end, to correct and amend the common account of things; that men might judge Righteous Judgment, and learn to esteem of themselves as they are indeed. And this Book heightens the price of the things of the other World, which Carnal men undervalue. Sets down a Thousand, where the World sets down nothing, Vanity of Vanities, Dung, Dross, where they write down an Hundred. And therefore in that Luke 16. 15. It is said, that what is in high esteem with men is an Abomination unto God. So Christ there exposeth and setts at distance, Gods esteem of things and Mans. You find the same opposition of these two, in Paul's Spirit. 1 Cor. 4. 3. I care not to be Judged by Mans day (As in the Greek) Translated Man's Judgment. God hath a day of Judgment, and man hath his day of Judging things so called, because Mans Judgment carries it from God. Men are Clerks of this Market, the Prizers of this Dead Worlds Goods: Now what Gods Judgment is of things and persons, his own Book doth perfectly serve to enform us, and so how to vallue our selves and others, so as the greatest Monarch in the World, whose Glory and Greatness this World Adores, if he comes, as Hezekiah, to read himself in Gods Book, he finds himself nothing, of no value therein. And in Deut. 17. you find that God hath written this Book in a special manner, for this very end. verse 18. It shall be when he sits on the Throne of his Kingdom, (speaking of their Kings, as they should be surrounded with all things which make them Great and Glorious.)

That

That he ſhall Write a Copy of this Law in a Book, and he ſhall Read therein all the days of his Life: And one end is, (verſe 20.) That his Heart be not lifted up above his Brethren. If he looks upon himſelf as he ſtands in the Worlds Book, He will rate himſelf worth more than Ten Thouſand others; but when he comes unto Gods Book, which preſents unto him, as in a Glaſs, how perſons ſtand in Gods Eye, (who judgeth without reſpect of Perſons, Acts 10. 34. That is, without thoſe outward Garbs of conditions men are in. For in the Sun, a Beggar and a King have both the ſame ſhadow.) Therein a King, reading, with the Spirit of God enlightning him, falls as low as the pooreſt Beggar; yea, lower, if he hath Grace. Now, a Godly man hath not received the Spirit of the World, but the Spirit, which is of God. That we may know the things which are freely given us of God, (1 Cor. 2. 12.) ſo as v. laſt, we have the mind of Chriſt, and do look upon things with that light in our meaſure, wherewith he doth. And hence comes that great change and alteration in a Godly man in judging of himſelf, valuing himſelf by what he is in Chriſt, by the things he hath received of God. David, who knew himſelf deſigned unto a Kingdom, made that Pſalm 131. on purpoſe to ſhew the frame of his Heart this way. Lord (ſays he, appealing to him that knew the Heart) mine Heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty. It is a ſtrange Level that Grace makes in the view and proſpect of him that hath it. It makes, as John's Miniſtry, the Mountains in the Worlds eye, Valleys; and fills up the Valleys that were low and empty, in the apprehenſions of thoſe men that have it. And this is perfectly James's Scope, James 1. 9, 10. Let a Brother of low degree rejoice, in that he is exalted; but the Rich, in that he is made low. Which when converted, the light of God diſcovers to him. James wrote to comfort poor Believers, and to humble the rich Profeſſors; (whereof many, being but temporary Believers, deſpiſed the poor, chap. 2. 6.) This you may ſee run along, as a Vein, throughout his Epiſtle. Chap. 1. 9, 10. 11, 12. Chap. 2. v. 1, 2. to the 6th. Chap. the 4th and Chap. 5. And becauſe in the Worlds light and eyes, and afore Regeneration, there appears ſo mighty a diſtance and diſproportion in a poor mans condition, and in a rich: He therefore ſets afore them what the true ſaving light of Chriſtianity works in the apprehenſions and valuations of men converted, whether poor or rich. He ſuppoſeth to be afore-hand both to a poor man that is Godly, and a rich man that is Godly: ſuppoſing ſuch a Brother a Believer, as v. 9. ſhews. A rich man, afore Converſion, look'd upon the poor man with a lofty eye, as one ſo far above him, and a poor man look'd upon himſelf as mean and ordained to miſery, in compariſon, and calls the Rich happy. Well, the Spirit comes and converts the one and the other. And then the Wheel turns (as the Poets feigned of Fortune) the World is turn'd upſide down: Saith the poor man, when converted, I that had nothing to betake to in this World, nor much hopes of being any thing, I find I am an Heir of Glory, and higher than all the Kings and Great ones of the Earth. Hath not God choſen the poor of this World, rich in Faith, Heirs of the Kingdom? chap. 2. 5. This therefore gives the poor man ground to rejoice, as well he may, that he is exalted. Let the Brother of low degree rejoice, (ſays James) in that he is exalted. And let him value himſelf with joy unſpeakable and glorious, by what he reads and finds himſelf to be in that other World. On the contrary, a rich man, when converted to God, and he begins firſt to be humbled, he, as he is a rich man, is as much caſt down and dejected. For ſeeing his ſinfulneſs and nothingneſs, through the light of the Spirit and the Word, and his obnoxiouſneſs to Eternal Death, Thinks he, the poor man that hath but Grace, and an Intereſt in Chriſt, is infinitely happier than I. He lyes low and puts his mouth in the Duſt; if there may be Hope. And when Faith and Aſſurance of the other World comes in, he rejoiceth in this his happy misfortune he hath had, to be humbled and levelled in his outward Condition, with the pooreſt Cobler, whom if he have more Grace than he, he looks upon as a better man than himſelf. And with this high and differing valuation (as it is kept up in their Spirits) do theſe two look upon things and persons for ever after. A Bond-man, a Slave, was Book 10 taught not to care, for he is Christs Free-man. Masters were taught, that they have a Master in Heaven, who hath no respect of Persons, (Eph. 6. 9.) The new Creature teacheth a man to know no man after the Flesh, 2 Cor. 5. 16. That is, to estimate no man from outward things, that is, with that high valuation and admiration a man had wont to do. Had any man any special, Spiritual Priviledge Paul learnt to value that man by it, and that afore himself. Such an one was in Christ afore me (saies he.) He is my Elder, and of more standing in Grace; and he gave them a reverence accordingly. Yea, take a poor Soul that dares not yet say that it is in Christ, and so cannot value it self thereby: Yet this true valuation is seen by what it hath of others. When he sees the greatest King in the World, living in his Natural Estate, and swimming in Greatness, he would not change Conditions with him for Ten thousand Worlds: For altho' his own being in the Estate of Grace, is yet uncertain to him; yet the others (supposed in his natural condition) is certainly at present damnable. Also every one he looks upon as Godly, are the precious ones of the Earth with him, as the Psalmist speaks: And oh (says he) that I were but an hired Servant amongst them, in the meanest condition, so one of that number, as the prodigal Convert wished. And what is the reason of all this? Because his esteem and valuation of things is altered.

Now then, for the application of all this, Consider by what Principles the valuation or disvaluation of thy self is measured or guided; To what Beam or Ballance dost thou come to weigh thy self; whether in the Ballance of the Sanctuary, or the Ballance of common opinion, which is hung up in the Worlds great Market-place. Thou mayst be Great, and Happy, and Honourable, in thine own eyes, as also the Worlds, when thou art miserable and abominable in Gods. Thus a rich man, or one in power, men account a Great man: But what is that Greatness, but such as a man that is fat and pursy hath? And so men weigh Fat and all, and account a man Great. So Nabal, 1 Sam. 25. 2. is termed a Great man, because he had three thousand Sheep and a thousand Goats; which was a great Estate in those days: But this kind of greatness God and his Word regards not. Therefore God pronounceth of Belshazar, tho' he had the whole Babylonian Monarchy, and all the Glory and Riches of it, environing of him, to put into the Scale, Thou hast been weighed, and art found too light. Here we might, for our help, run over all sorts of Instances of things of value, either Worldly or Heavenly, as the Scripture sets the one against the other: And how thereby this difference in Godly mens Hearts and others may evidently appear unto themselves.

1. There is that which is Honour in the Worlds esteem; and that which is truly and indeed such with God. Hast thou an ambitious Heart (God allows an Ambition, pitcht right as we see in Paul's Speech of his ambition to preach the Gospel) There is an honour to satisfie it. And doth thy valuation thereof carry forth thy Spirit thereto? Christ gives us the distinction, John 5. 44. How can ye believe which receive Honour of one another, and seek not the Honour which cometh from God only? Here is Honour from God only, and Honours from men, and mens Estate distinguished by their pursuit after them. The Glory of God himself, and the seeking thereof, in aiming at him, that is not here meant; but it is that Honour which is from God, and with God, and which by approving a mans self to him alone, obtains with him. Gods Favour is true honour in such a mans esteem. Isa. 43. 4. Since thou wast precious in my sight, thou hast been honourable, and I have loved thee: Therefore will I give Men for thee, and People for thy Life. So that, though before a man hath valued himself by those things which have brought him in honour from men; yet when converted, he takes another account, Knowing that Gods Favourites only, and whom he loves, are only truly honourable: And that his ways are only honourable, (as the Sabbath is call'd, Isa. 58. 13.) And that to lay hold of his Covenant, and keep his Sabbaths, purchaseth himself a better Name, and more lasting than Sons and Daughters, as it is (Isa, 56. 4, 5, 6.) On the contrary, he looks on others as vile Persons God abhorring them, Psal. 10. 3.

10. 3. He abhorreth them alſo: Whereas a wicked man bleſſeth the Covetous whom God abhorreth. And ſo for things he once made his Glory, and valued himſelf by, he now accounts to have been his ſhame, (Phil. 3. 19.) and that would bring him to confuſion of face. Chap. 5

So alſo 2. This holds in Wiſdom; (hence that diſtinction, (1 Cor. 2. 6, 7. The Wiſdom of the World, that comes to nought, and the Wiſdom of God. Wiſdom to Salvation, as in Timothy.) So that a man who hath valued himſelf by his Learning, Knowledge, Wits, Parts, and Policy, when he comes to be converted, finds, (as Rom. 1. 22.) That whilſt he hath profeſſ'd and thought himſelf wiſe (as of the Philoſophers it is ſaid there) he is become a Fool, and he finds that the Word proves him ſo to be, and he thinks ſo of himſelf; that he hath but even ſtudied all his life to be a Fool, becauſe he wants true Wiſdom to ſave his Soul: Which Wiſdom now he magnifies; for this Wiſdom is juſtified and magnified of all her Children; and is glad to become a Fool, that he may be wiſe. And on the contrary, with carnal men, Worldly Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children; and this unto Salvation is counted Fooliſhneſs, 1 Cor. 2. 14.

So alſo 3. Is it in Riches? (which is another thing men uſe to value themſelves by) Take that diſtinction of Chriſt Luke 16. 9. of the unrighteous Mammon and true Riches. So that a man that hath thought himſelf a rich man in the Worlds Books, upon Converſion becomes a Beggar in his own eyes. It is therefore call'd Poverty of Spirit. For why, as Chriſt ſays, (Luke 12. 21.) He that lays up this as Treaſure for himſelf, is not rich towards God. he thought himſelf rich and encreaſed with Goods, as the Church of Laodicea ſays of her ſelf, (Rev. 3. 17.) Thou ſayſt I am Rich, and encreaſed with Goods; when as God knows and ſays it, and the Soul now finds it, That it is wretched, miſerable, poor and naked. Whereas God values him as rich, that hath Faith and good Works, (Rev. 2. 9.) I know thy Poverty, but thou art rich. And ſo now a fair Woman, whoſe Treaſure lay in her Face and good Cloaths, by which ſhe once rated her ſelf, when ſhe look'd into the Worlds Glaſs, becauſe all men run doting and wondering after ſuch an one, as the World once did after the Beaſt, (Rev. 13. 3.) When ſhe comes to take account of the Word, and to look thereunto, ſhe finds another Beauty; which is ſo in Gods eſteem, (1 Pet. 3. 3, 4.) Whoſe Adorning let it not be in the outward plaiting of the Hair, &c. But let it be of the hidden man of the Heart, the ornament of a meek and quiet Spirit (which is a laſting Ornament, the other decays,) which in the ſight of God is of great price. I might inſtance in many more. Further take a Note or two.

1. That which thou valueſt thy ſelf by moſt, thou glorieſt moſt in: Makeſt it thy glory either in the ſecret applaudings of thine own Heart, or elſe it may be of others, (Phil. 3. 19.) Among other expreſſions which the Apoſtle hath to expreſs the over-valuing of Earthly things by Earthly minded men: One is, whoſe Glory is their Shame, who mind Earthly things. Hence you find boaſting in Riches ſpoken of, (Pſal. 49. 6. and 52. 17.) you alſo have that example of Nebuchadnezar, Dan. 4. 30. Who walking in his Gallery, and as it may ſeem, alone; you find him, like a Fool, talking to himſelf. Is not this the great Babel which I have built, by the might of my power, and for the honour of my Majeſty! As many a Scholar in his own Heart ſaith, Was it not ſuch an Act I kept, or Diſputation I performed, ſuch an Oration that I made? That one place more is enough, and fit for this purpoſe, (Jeremy 9. 23.) Let not the wiſe man glory in his Wiſdom, nor the rich man in his Riches, nor the mighty or potent man in his might and Power. God ſpeaks thus ſeverally, for men make any of theſe their Treaſure, and will glory of theſe; and in theſe do men Glory, if they know not God. But if he be a Godly man, what doth he Glory in? It follows, Let him Glory in this, that he knows me; that I am the Lord, that ſhews him mercy, and am his God and Treaſure. And of thee, ſay they in Pſal. 44. 8. and our Intereſt in thee, oh God, will we make our boaſt all the day long. Carnal men, ſays the Apoſtle, Glory in outward appearances: But ſays he,

Book 10 (Gal. 6. 14.) God forbid I ſhould Glory, ſave in the Croſs of Chriſt. And why might not Paul Glory in the Fleſh and in the World, as well as others? (It is well known he had where withal to do it, as he tells us elſewhere.) Why, he Anſwers, That the Croſs of Chriſt, and the power thereof in him had Crucified the World to him, had ſpoil'd all the Gloſs of it to his Heart, wip't the Varniſh off: For who values a dead Man, a Crucified man, at any thing? Thus Jeſus Chriſt being a Crucified man, (Iſa. 53. 2, 3.) He is ſaid to have no Form nor Comelineſs in him. And when we ſhall ſee him, he will have no Beauty to a Carnal Eye, why it ſhould deſire him, being a deſpiſed and rejected Man. Now ſo ſays the Apoſtle. The World is to me a Crucified thing, through Grace wrought in me by the Croſs of Chriſt. Again, Had not Paul many outward Excellencies, to make him Glorious in the Worlds Eyes, and might he not Glory in them? Yes, that he had; as great a Confluence of all Excellencies of Learning, Knowledge, &c. as any, and was ſo accounted too. If I would Glory, ſays he, (1 Cor. 11. 23.) I could too. But his turning Chriſtian, ſpoil'd all, Crucified them, Marred the Splendour of them in the Worlds Eyes; ſo that if he would have Boaſted of them now, he could not. For they had loſt their Grace and Colour; Grace, had foiled them. And now though he could vye Learning with the beſt of them in any thing, yet his being of that new Sect, his profeſſing the Croſs of Chriſt, which was fooliſhneſs to the World, ſpoil'd all, made him be thought a Mad Man by him that thought he had Learning enough, and too much; ſo that it was no Booty to Glory in any of theſe, tho he would; and beſides, ſaies he in the next verſe, Nothing avails but the New Creature; neither Circumciſion, nor Uncircumciſion (he means the greateſt Priviledges, by a Synechdoche of thoſe which the Jews or Gentiles had and boaſted of) And he ſays they avail not, they are little worth, of little value, as being able to do little, nay, juſt nothing with God, with whom we have to do: They are Nullius pretij with him, and therefore with me alſo. But being a New Creature, that's worth having indeed, becauſe it did intereſt him into Chriſt, and availes much with God in him. And yet not ſimply the New Creature neither, as in it ſelf, for ſo it avails nothing, as other things do, tho it be an excellency; but in Chriſt Jeſus a New Creature, avails, that is, as it is in Chriſt. So a Man may Glory of it, and ſo Paul did, (2 Cor. 12. verſe 1, 2, 5.) ſpeaking of his Revelations and Raptures, he would not ſimply Glory in thoſe as in themſelves, or in himſelf as having theſe. But ſays he at verſe 2. And of ſuch a Man I will Glory, though of my ſelf I will not Glory; and yet it was himſelf. And Chap. 11. v. 16, 17. What I ſpeak, ſays he, of other things, I ſpeak as it were Fooliſhly in Boaſting. He was aſhamed to do it; but they deſpiſing him, he would ſhew that he could vye with the beſt of them in thoſe things they made their chiefeſt Glory. Yet ſtill ſo, as he is aſhamed to do it; and therefore in the midſt of all, at verſe 23. he comes in with this Parentheſis, I am a Fool, ſaies he, to ſtand Boaſting thus. For he thought them all not worth talking of in themſelves. Yea, and he Glories to chooſe, in his Infirmities, as of more value than all his Sermons; becauſe in them he was debaſed for Chriſt, in the other fill'd and aſſiſted by Chriſt:

CHAP. VI.

How the New Creature makes God and his Glory its utmost End.

PSAL. XXIX. 1, 2.

Verſ. 1. Give unto the Lord, O ye Mighty, give unto the Lord Glory and Strength.

Verſ. 2. Give unto the Lord the Glory due unto his Name; Worſhip the Lord in the Beauty of Holineſs.

Firſt. HERE is the Duty, Give Glory unto God. Seeondly, Upon the moſt juſt Reaſon, For it is due unto his Name. Of all Duties it is the moſt Large and Comprehenſive; for it includes all Obedience in it; Praiſe, Bleſſing, Thankfulneſs, are contained in it. But I will confine my Diſcourſe of it, to ſome ſuch Particulars which the Scripture mentions under the Notion of Giving Glory to God.

I ſhall do Two Things,

1. Give Reaſons of this Duty and Diſpoſition.

2. Inſiſt on thoſe Particulars wherein eſpecialy we are to give, and the New Creature doth give Glory to God.

1. The Firſt Reaſon is in the Text, Glory is due unto his Name, becauſe he is moſt Glorious; it is the Reaſon given, Pſal. 138. 5. For Great is the Glory of the Lord; yea, his is Glory, and his alone. Glory is the ſuperlative effulgence of Goodneſs, many things are good, yea, many things are excellent, which are not Glorious; to things which are good, Praiſe and Commendation is due; to things which are more excellent than our ſelves, Honour is due, ſo to Superiours and Magiſtrates. Rom. 13. 7. but ſuch things as do ſuper-excel to Wonderment and Amazement, ſuch things are only Glorious. Thus the Sun is called Glorious, becauſe it dazleth the Eye, it is excellently ſenſible; and ſuch is God to the Heart; his Name is Glorious becauſe he is above all Excellency, Neh. 9. 5. and (Pſ. 8. 1.) it is not ſimply ſaid, thy Name is excellent, but how excellent is thy name! It is above all Expreſſion. Therefore he is called God of Glory, Acts 7. 2. King of Glory, Pſal. 24. 10. For as Kings are the Fountain of all Nobility, ſo is God of Glory. He is the Father of all the Glory which Chriſt hath, therefore Chriſt Prays to him for it, John 17. 1.

1. God is moſt Glorious in himſelf, Tho no Creature had been to Glorifie him. He was as Glorious when there was no World, as now he is. Mens Honours depend upon the opinion and apprehenſions of them that honour them. Where is the Gloty of a King, but in the Multitude of his Subjects, but God the Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt, are ſufficient to Glorify each other, if there were no Creatures. If thou art Righteous, what dost thou, Job 35. 7. How do Wise Men contemn the Approbation and Praises of the Weak, and Foolish? God might much more despise the Adoration, and Praise of us Wretched Creatures. We are therefore the more engag'd to give him all Glory upon this consideration, that tho he needs it not, yet he condescends to receive the inconsiderable Tribute from us.

2. All things which are in him are all Glorious, take the best and excellentest of the Creatures, and still it is said of them that one particular part in them is their Excellency and Glory, but all in them is not so, but other things in them are but common and mean to set off their excellencies So in Men, so in the members of Man, his Tongue is called his Glory, Psal. 57. 8. but that it may appear to be so, other parts must be mean, less Honourable, as Paul says, 1 Cor. 12. 25. But all in God are, and that all alike, Glorious; his whole Name, and and all the Letters in it. Exod 33. 18. Shew me thy Glory, says Moses, I will prolaim my Name before ye, says God, v. 19. His Mercy is called Riches of Glory, Rom. 9. 22. his Holiness also, is Glorious, thus when Isaiah saw his Glory the Angels cryed, Holy, Holy, Isa. 6. 3. his power is Glorious, Rom. 6. 4. his Grace is Glorious, Eph. 6.

3. When he would manifest this his Glory to others, all that comes from him is Glorious; all his works are Glorious. 1. The Earth is full of his Glory, as it shews forth his Glory,, which yet is but his Footstool (Isa. 6. 4.) much more his own Habitation (Isa. 63. 15.) which by Peter is styled (2 Pet. 1. 17.) the Excellent Glory. 2. His Word, both Law and Gospel are most Glorious, 2 Cor. 4. 3. Much more all his Saints; his Servants, his Courtiers are all Glorious within, Psal. 45. 13. His Image, whether Substantial (as his Son is called the brightness of his Glory, Heb. 1. 2.) or Representative or Similitudinary, as Grace in his Saints, his Image in Adam, is called Glory, 2 Cor. 3. the last verse, we are said to be changed from Glory to Glory; and he being thus Glorious, to Glorifie him is a Due to his Name. Psal. 29. 2. As we cannot but love things beautiful, and love is a due to them, so is Honour to things Honourable. Rom. 13. 7. Render Honour to whom Honour is due, and therefore Glorifie God, who is so Glorious.

2. Reason. As it is a Due to him, as he is the Glorious God, so it is due from us his Creatures.

1. He made all Creatures for himself, Prov. 16. 4. It is Reason, if all things be of him, they should be to him, Rom. 11. 10. therefore he there adds, To him be Glory for Ever. But in a more especial manner he made us Reasonable Creatures for himself.

The unreasonable Creatures are in some sort said to glorifie him, Ps. 19. 1. The Heavens declare the Glory of God. How? They give occasion and afford matter whence we may take hints to glorifie him. As in Musick there are the Notes set out in a Book, and the Tongue that sings, or Hand that plays, which make the musick. The Creatures are the Notes, or Musick, that is set and have the Notes, the Keys, and Characters of the Harmonious Glory of God stampt upon them, (Rom. 1. 20.) But then there must be an understanding Creature that hath skill, and ability to utter forth the musick and harmony of all these. Therefore between the reflexion, or shine of Gods Glory from the Creatures, and the Glory he hath from us who are reasonable Creatures, there is as much difference as between the Glory of the Sun appearing in its shining upon a Wall, and in a Looking-glass: Now such hath God made our Understandings, in comparison of other Creatures, or as the eye is to the Sun, on purpose that we might see his Glory as it is (John 17. 24.) and so reflect and beat it back again to him, so that after God had emblazoned his rich, and glorious power and wisdom in all the frame of Heaven and

Earth

Earth, as in a Coat of Arms; yet still there wanted Heralds to conceive of, and proclaim and adore his glorious Name; and therefore he created reasonable Creatures, whose sole and adequate end was to reflect Glory upon him, even as the sole end of a Mirour is to reflect the Image of things presented to it; and therefore (1 Cor. 11. 7.) man is said to be the Glory of God. Chap. 5

3. Reason. But especially this is requir'd of his Saints, Psal. 145. 10, 11: All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord, and thy Saints shall bless thee. v. 11. They shall speak of the Glory of thy Kingdom, and talk of thy Power. Not only their making as Creatures, but their whole formation, as new Creatures, is to this end: For this they were elected to be to the praise of the Glory of his Grace, (Eph. 1. 6.) To this end were they redeemed, yea, were bought with a price (therefore, says the Apostle, Glorifie God in your Bodies, and in your Spirits) a price which was paid by laying down and debasing Christs Glory (Phil. 2. 7.) Therefore we should endeavour to restore it to him: We should Glorifie God, that was in our Nature debased for us. To this end we are made and created New Creatures. Isa. 6. 2. They are the planting of the Lord: That he may be Glorified. Isa. 43. 7.

4. Reason. They shall be Glorified of God for ever; And should therefore here Glorifie God: Christ argues it, I have Glorified thee on Earth, now Glorifie me. (John 17.) Much more may it be urged on us: That if we pray that he would Glorifie us hereafter, we should Glorifie him here: And the rather, because here only is an opportunity of Glorifying him actively: Hereafter we are rather Glorified of him, than do Glorifie him; as we are said to be rather known of him, than to know him.

5. Reason. All three Persons do mutually endeavour to give Glory each to other, and shall not we their Creatures. The Father hath committed all Judgment to the Son, that all might honour the Son as the Father. John 5. 22, 23. The Son he honoured the Father. John 17. 4. I have Glorified thee on Earth, &c. And the Holy Ghost Glorifies the Son. John 16. 14. He shall Glorifie me: For he shall receive of mine: For he is continually magnifying Christ and his Love, unto Believers Hearts. Now if they do so, shall not we? if they do it, who are equal each to other; Shall not we who are so inferiour, made for them? If one King honours another, shall not their Subjects?

6. Reason. God is infinitely desirous of it, and exacts it. If a man looks for respect, and is worthy of it, and assumes not above his desert, Those under him are the more careful to give it him. Others value a man as he sets a due and reasonable value on himself; but if he degrades himself, they give him the less respect. Now God with the highest reason doth value himself above all things, and will accordingly be Glorified. Glory is mine, says he, (Isa. 42. 8.) He is so desirous of it, That he lays a Tribute of Glory upon every action: 1 Cor. 10. 11. Whatsoever you do, eating and drinking, do all to the Glory of God.

7. Reason. Glory is all that God doth require of us, for all we receive from him. He would freely have us to take all the comfort that is to be had out of his Blessings; But the Glory of all, and for all, he reserves to himself, Rom. 29. 11, 12. Both Riches and Honour come of thee: Thine is the Glory, &c. That is, though Riches and all good Blessings are of him, yet are his so his, that they are ours also; but the Glory of them all are his. This is his Prerogative, his Crown, wherein no Subject shall partake with him: As Pharaoh said to Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and all Egypt is thine. Gen. 41. 44. and v. 40. only in the Throne will I be greater than thou: So says God, I am God, and all the World, my Son, my Self, are thine; all things are yours: But the Glory of all is mine: That is, my Throne, my Crown. It is not

Book 10 your Prayers, nor is it your Duties he regards; but to be Glorified in all these: Therefore in the Lords-Prayer, the first petition is, Hallowed, or Glorified be thy Name: That should be the main thing that should run through all the rest that follow, and which the Heart should primarily fall upon, and eye in all. And as he teacheth them to begin, so also to end with an acknowledgment, Thine is the Kingdom, Power, and Glory. The end of all duties of Gods worship are 1. Communion with God and in God on our part; and 2. Glorifying and Sanctifying God in our Hearts, on his part: And as we are not to rest in a Peace of Conscience, simply from having performed Duties, but upon account of Communion and meeting with God in them: So in like manner, we are much less to rest in having done them for the satisfaction of our Consciences But so as to give in our Heart that Glory that is due to God, whom we deal with in them, And without this God reckons all but as Dung. In the 2d of Mal. God had called upon the Priests who brought Sacrifices to him, to give Glory to him therein, v. 2. in the 3d v. he threatens them that, if you will not, I will fling back your Sacrifices as Dung in your Faces. You know they Sacrificed Beasts then: To shew how abominable to him without this these Sacrifices were to him, he compares them to Dung, that is found in the Belly, or ventricle of those Beasts they offered; and to express his abomination of such Duties and Services, he says he would fling them as Dung in their Faces: To fling Dung in ones Face, is a note of the highest indignation and rejection, Men in applying themselves to those they desire to approve themselves unto, diligently use to observe what they look for, and expect, and what is their disposition: If a Prince be covetous, they about him project all ways to bring him Moneys in; if vain glorious to flatter him, &c. Thus Let us apply our selves to God: He is not taken with Riches, nor Duties, nor Tears; With nothing but Glory.

8 Reason. Therefore if this Tribute be not paid, God will curse all good Blessings to us. So it follows in that Mal. 2. 2. says God to the Preists, If you will not lay it to Heart, To give glory to my Name, I will send a Curse upon you, and will curse your Blessings. For should we hold all of God, and his due be witholden from him? The Kings Rents and Customs are still most strictly exacted upon the greatest forfeitures. If a man steals Custom and be taken in it, he forfeits all: So do we our Blessings, If Gods Due, his Glory, be not rendred him. The God, in whose hands are thy breath and thy ways, hast thou not glorified. Dan. 5. 23. Thy Kingdom is departed, and given to others, in the following verses, said God to Belshazar.

9 Reason. God will be sure to recover it on us, some other way; if he be not glorfied by us, he will be glorified on us. He will be sure not to lose by any of his Creatures, if we are not active, he will make us passively to Glorify him. He will have it out of us; we must pay the utmost Farthing: And seeing his Tribute lies in Glory, there are two ways of bringing of it, or whence it riseth. 1. In and by our free giving it to him. 2. By his vindicating it upon us. To be glorified on us, is as much to him as our Obedience, and brings him in as much: For his Wrath, his Power, his Justice, his Holiness, &c. are enacted, made known and acknowledged that way, as much as by our giving Glory to him; so as it is all one to him. And therefore he calls this a glorifying of himself, as well as the other: Thus he spake of Pharaoh, whom Moses had long call'd upon to give glory to God, Exodus 14. 17, 18. I will get honour, or be glorified upon Pharaoh. So Ezek. 28. 22. I will set my Face against Tyre, and I will be glorified in the midst of thee; and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have executed Judgment in her, and I shall be sanctified in her. His Glory is the making known of his Name and Attributes; which he doth in punishing as well as any other way, and he is said to be sanctified therein, Rom. 9. 22. What if God, willing to shew his Wrath, and to make his Power known, endured with much long-suffering the Vessels of Wrath fitted to destruction. Therefore (Rev. 15.) it is said, give glory to God for his Judgments are made manifest; Because his Attributes being therein manifested,

He

He is adored in mens Hearts. So Levit. 10. 3. when he brought the puniſhment on Nadab and Abihu, he gives this reaſon of it, I will be ſanctified in them that draw nigh to me: Either ſanctified in their own Hearts by themſelves, or on them in the view of others. So as puniſhment on us executed, is as much to God as our Holineſs in us. And therefore in the Prophet, the deſtruction of wicked men is call'd a Sacrifice to God: He expreſſeth it by the ſame Name he doth that worſhip he had then, as being as pleaſing to him: So that indeed the one is as much unto God as the other, if we do but conſider the Concernment of his Glory. It is true, That out of his further goodneſs unto the Creature, and his reſpects unto it, he declares himſelf more deſirous of Obedience from them, than their deſtruction: But otherwiſe as for his Glory, it is all one to him; for he is ſanctified in either, and will be the one way, if not the other, as that ſpeech implies: Oh how much better is it for us ſo to glorifie him, as to be glorified of him and in him: (as we find both joined, 2 Theſ. 1. 12. where he prays they may be holy, v. 11. that the Name of Chriſt may be glorified in them, and they in him) than for him to glorifie himſelf on us, in our Confuſion. The one or the other muſt be: It is all one to him which. And if it be done by your deſtruction, This is unprofitable for you. Chap. 6

2. I now come to enumerate ſome diſpoſitions and duties of the new Creature, by which it ought to reflect Glory on God.

1. It ought to endeavour to know him, and to conceive a-right of him, and to have ſuch thoughts of him, as become him. So Moſes deſires to ſee his Glory, That is, to know him and the Excellencies which were in him. So David and all the Saints deſired to ſee him in the beauty of Holineſs, to ſee his Face, and to have the light of his Countenance lifted up, (as Pſal. 62. 3.) So to rejoice, (as Jer. 9. 24.) in that we know God, which exerciſeth loving kindneſs in the Earth. And that thus to do, is to glorifie him, is evident, for (Rom. 1.) when the Gentiles are ſaid not to have glorified God, they are ſaid (v. 28.) not to have liked to retain God in their Knowledge. And if his manifeſtative Glory be the reflexion of it, upon the underſtanding of another, then when we are ignorant of him, and conceive amiſs of him, ſo much of his Glory is loſt, and therefore the Gentiles which know him not, are ſaid to live without God in the World, being eſtranged from him through ignorance; ignorance makes him as no God to thee, and therefore thou diſhoureſt him in the higheſt degreee; if thou knoweſt him not, thou makeſt him no God to thee. On the contrary, to endeavour to know him, and think much of him, is a glorifying of him, Pſal. 46. 10. Be ſtill and know me, and I will be exalted. If we ſpend many thoughts upon, and do ſtudy a mans worth, we honour him exceedingly thereby in our thoughts. If we ſtudy any mans Writings much, and preſerve every Note of his, we honour him exceedingly: So we Honour God if we think of God much, and labour and deſire to know him ſtill better, more and better for the Excellencies ſake that are in him; and ſtudy his works that we may know him, and knowing him we may honour him in our thoughts and glorifie him.

2. When we admire him in all we know by him, and ſtand agaſt at him, then we glorifie him. And therefore in 2 Theſ. 1. 10. to be glorified and made wonderful, are joined together; things we wonder at, we glorifie; and therefore Rev. 10. 3, 4. to wonder at the Beaſt, is made all one as to worſhip him, ſaying? Who is like unto the Beaſt, or able to make war with him, &c. So it is an Honour to God to ſtand and to wonder at God, and every part of his Name, which is called Wonderful, as David did, Pſal. 8. 1. How excellent is thy Name in all the Earth! To wonder at his Mercy, as they, Mich. 7. 18. Who is a God like to thee, in pardoning Iniquity, Tranſgreſſion and Sin! So likewiſe to advance his infinite Wiſdom, as David doth, Pſal. 147. 5. And his goodneſs is unſearchable. Pſal. 145. 3. To ſtand admiring a mans Picture, or peice of his workmanſhip, magnifies the workman that made it. Beauty, if not lookt upon, thinks it ſelf contemned: So doth God account himſelf neglected, if you do not know him.

3. We Glorify God, when we ſpeak much of him to others, as of what we wonder Book 10 der at, we use to do; for with men, then a thing is said to be glorious when it is spoken of much, when the World rings of it, and Gods Glory is such a great glory as it is able to fill all the World, and all Mouths with it. A good Name is as a Box of Ointment, says Solomon, which when broken fills the whole House. Now Gods Name is a Box of such Ointment as may fill all the World. Psal. 113. 3. It is to be praised from one end of the World to the other; yea, and from one Generation unto another, it fills all Time also. So ver. 4. of the 145. Psal. Therefore the Saints should have their mouths fill'd with his praise. Psal. 71. 8. But his Saints bless him; all his Works praise him, by talking of his power and mighty acts, Psal. 145. 12. And therefore the Tongue is called mans Glory, Psal. 57. 8. Because it is the instrument to set forth Gods Glory, therewith bless we God, says James.

4. We glorifie God, when we ascribe all to him. So David did, 1 Chron. 29. 11, 12. Thine is all (says he) and all comes of thee, we have given thee but thine own. And so Isa. 26. 18. We have not wrought any deliverance, but v. 12. Thou hast wrought all our works in us and for us. So if thou prayest, acknowledge thou canst not as thou oughtest, but it is the Spirit helps thine Infirmities. Before we do any thing, we should by Faith draw all power from him: And then when we have done, we shall ascribe all to him. Psal. 115. 1. Not to us, not to us, but unto thy Name be the Glory. They speak like those that refuse a Bribe, and shew the greatest vehemence against the very offering of one: Their Corrupt part in them suggesting Thoughts of assuming to themselves: But they cry out Not unto us. I will give you the highest instance that can be given, to be an example unto you. The Holy Ghost, when he works any thing in us, tho the power be essentially his own, yet he Glorifies the Son by taking of his, (John 16. 14.) And working through him. How much more should we, when all we have, is received? When Joab would honour David, and let him have the honour of the Victory, he sends for him to take the City and wear the Crown, 2 Sam. 12. 16. and yet it was but David's Men, and Money did it; but Joab's Wisdom and Valour had a hand in it. Wouldest thou honour God? Send for him into thine Heart, after a serious Prayer, and give him the Glory, for with his might thou didst it. Paul that did more than all the Apostles yet says he had done nothing, but the Grace of God that was with him.

5. We glorifie God when we suffer for him, 1 Pet. 4. 14, 16. He is on your part glorifyed. So the three Children Glorified God in Daniel when they said, that God they served was able to deliver them; if he would not, they would not go against his command. Nebuchadnezzar that glorious King, could not have found one in all his Dominions would have glorified him so; therefore Christ, by suffering for God, is said to Glorifie him, John 12. 23.

6. We glorifie God by getting his Image into our Hearts, and imitating him: Imitation of any one is a great Glory to him: To have a great mans Picture is his honour. If a great man be in favour, all follow his fashion, and therein they shew they honour him. And therefore (1 Cor. 11. 7.) the man is said to be the Image and Glory of God: Both are joined, get therefore the Image of God into thy Heart; be holy, even as he is holy; kind as he is kind; as he is patient and long-suffering, shew them forth in thy Life; shew forth the praises of him who hath called you; Mat. 5. 16. Let your Light so shine, that you may glorifie your Father. When the Stars shine, they glorifie the Sun, because they shine with his Light; thus a Christian glorifies God when he lets any Grace shine forth.

7. We glorifie God by Glorying in him, and boasting of our Portion and Happiness in him. (1 Cron. 16. 10. and Psal. 44. 8.) For as they are his Glory, so he is theirs, Psal. 3. 3.

8. We glorifie God by living according to his Will, and abounding in the fruits of Holiness. So sayeth Christ, Hereby is my Father glorified, if you bring forth much Fruit. John 15.

9. De glorifie God by doing all things for his Glory, as the end, (1 Cor. 19. 31.) This is more than all the rest; (you may imitate Kings, and suffer for Friends, and yet you make not them your end:) For it is to acknowledge that nothing in the World is so worthy as he, no not your selves; and not only so, but that we are ſo infinitely below him, ſo dependant on him, and he ſo glorious, as we are not only ſubject to him, but made for him; and that all elſe are made for him: For therefore is all for him, becauſe by him, Rom. 11. laſt. and therefore Glory be to him, and of all the greateſt. And in this ſenſe the Woman is ſaid be the Glory of the Man, becauſe made for him, 1 Cor. 11. 7, 8. and ſo Man of God. Chap. 6

10. Unto that of doing all to Gods Glory, as our End; muſt be added, Doing all we do in Chriſt. God hath made Chriſt the Partner of his Glory, his Will being that Men ſhould Honour the Son as the Father. And Men Honour the Son by offering up all they do to his Glory through Chriſt and his Name. Phil. 1. 11. the fruits of Righteouſneſs that pleaſe God, muſt be by Jeſus Chriſt to the Glory of God, and Phil. 2. 8, 10, 11. God hath given Chriſt that great Name above every Name, that every Knee ſhould bow to him; that is, all was to be done to him, and through him, to the Glory of the Father, v. 11. which is an exceeding great Favour, that God would accept of no Glory given him, but through him; for in one place you hear God ſay of him, This is my Beloved Son in whom I am well pleaſed, and with all others in him, ſo in another, This is my Servant in whom I will be Glorified, and by others through him, ſo Iſa. 49. 5. And God hath ſtampt upon his Face his Glory, that we might behold it, and hath ordained him his Servant, through whoſe hands he will receive Glory again Therefore (Pſal. 22. 22, 23.) after Chriſts Death is there propheſied of, and his declaring his Name in the great Congreation: All are called to Glorifie God and Praiſe him; for without Chriſt, God had had none of Mankind to fear him, and worſhip him, and (Iſa. 45. 5.) God inviting Men to the Covenant of Grace, which he calls the ſure Mercies of David, that is, of Chriſt, (as Acts 15. they are Interpreted,) he makes this promiſe to Chriſt, That Nations ſhould come to Chriſt, becauſe God had Glorified him, that is ordained him to be the Mediator through whom he would convey all to us, and receive all from us: Whom therefore he made a Co-partner with him therein.

11. We Glorify God by Repenting and turning to him, when he Puniſheth and Afflicts us. Rev. 16. 19. when the Fourth Vial was poured out, it is ſaid, They Repented not, to give God the Glory. Repentance and turning from a Mans Evil ways, brings in much Glory to God; by confeſſing our Sins, and acknowledging our Deſerts, we Magnifie his Patience, and Long-ſuffering and Juſtice on us, and Wiſdom in finding us out. Confeſs (ſays Joſhua) and give Glory to God. By being Vile in our own Eyes, we exalt him. The moſt proper way a Sinner that hath Diſhonoured him, hath to Glorifie him again, is by debaſing himſelf for that his Diſhonour of him; and by turning from our Evil ways upon his puniſhing us, we yield and ſubject to him, which gives him Honour as much as Obeying him. The Submiſſion and coming in again of Rebels, eſtabliſheth and exalteth the Honour of a King, as much, if not more, then the continued obedience of good Subjects. For 'tis Glory with a Victory, a Conqueſt. And to hate Sin becauſe it provokes the eyes of his Glory as the Phraſeis, Iſa. 3. 8. is to Glorify him, as thoſe that reſpect a ſuperiour, a Prince ſhew it, by doing nothing before him which might be unworthy the preſence of ſuch a Majeſty, to give him the leaſt diſtaſte: The leſſer the thing is we forbear, in ſuch a reſpect, the more reſpect give we them.

12. We Glorify God by calling upon him in time of Trouble, and praiſing him for Delivering us out of it, Pſal. 50. 15. Thou ſhalt call upon me in the day of Trouble, and I will deliver thee, and thou ſhalt Glorifie me; to make God our Refuge afore trouble, and to acknowledge him after, Exceedingly Honours him: How Glorious doth it make a Prince to take part with the Oppreſſed, and to vindicate them upon their Cry, Iſa. 25. 3, 4. Therefore ſhall the ſtrong People Glorify thee, &c. For thou haſt been a ſtrength to the Poor, a ſtrength to the Needy in his Diſtreſs, a Refuge from the Storm, &c.

13. By Believing on him, we give Glory to him, of Abraham it is ſaid, Rom. 4. 20. He was ſtrong in Faith giving Glory to God. No Man thinks himſelf more Honoured then when he is truſted; and in truſting on God, eſpecially fro Book 10 for Salvation, we give him the Glory of all his Attributes at once, for there all Attributes meet; if any were wanting in its concurrence, we could not be saved. That 115*th Psalm* is a Psalm on purpose, made to call upon People to trust in God, as appears. v. 8, 9, 10, 11. and from the 12*th Verse* to the end, he expresseth nothing but peremptory conclusions of Faith. God hath been mindful of us, and would bless us, &c. And how begins he that Psalm? Not unto us, but unto thy Name give Glory, for thy Mercy, and Truth sake. It is the pure Voice of Faith, it is a self-emptying Grace. Not unto us, and it refuseth again to take any thing to himself, not unto us, but unto thy Name give Glory, for thy Mercy, and thy Truth's sake, those two Attributes, Faith gives especial Glory unto. They are what Faith rests in, and they are what God especially desires the Glory of. Therefore Exod. 34. His Mercy and Truth are those Attributes he only or chiefly proclaims, when he shews Moses his Glory. 1. The Scriptures call Mercy the Riches of his Glory, Rom. 9. 23. if it be the Glory of a Man to pass by an Offence, as Prov. 19. 11. then it is the Glory of God, To pass by so many. For all the Promises are Yea and Amen, that is Truth, to the Glory of God, 2 Cor. 1. 20. God engageth at once not his Truth only, but all his Attributes, his whole Glory to perform them; and therefore to believe them, gives this Glory to him. and therefore upon believing God, is said to shew his Glory. John 11. 40.

14. We Glorify God by fearing God above all, Rev. 14. 7. Fear God and give glory to him: To fear God that can cast Body and Soul into Hell, in opposition to man whose Breath is in his Nostrils, how doth it exalt him? Deut. 28. 58. It is call'd fearing his fearful and glorious Name: All Glory carries an awe and reverence with it, they are therefore joined; and by reverence we give an honour unto Majesty.

5. We Glorify God by joining our selves unto the Assemblies of his Saints, and in the publick Duties and Ordinances of his Worship. Isa. 60. 7, 8, 9. He calls it the House of his Glory, speaking of the flocking of Gods People, as Doves to the Windows, or as Clouds, (v. 8.) unto the House of his Glory with Sacrifices; v. 7. and he speaks of the times of the Gospel, when the Gentiles were converted. Now he says they should flie as a Cloud, which removes sometimes from far, from one Country to another, above the Mountains that might hinder their course, and all impediments; so they move to enjoy Ordinances, and fly as Doves to their Windows or Dove-houses, which especially they do when a Storm is towards: For Gods House is the best shelter and Dove-House against a Storm. And thither they come, as to the House of Gods Glory (v. 7.) so called, because 1. There they see the Glory of God. So David desired, Psal. 63. 2. To see thy Power and thy Glory as I have seen thee in thy Sanctuary. And 2. There this Glory is spoken of; Psal. 29. 9. In his Temple doth every one speak of his Glory. And 3. There they Worship and Glorifie him. So David foretells, Psal. 22. 23, 24. &c. and Psal. 18. Where when all are Saints and Holy ones, and none else admitted, his Glory is the more set up, As Isa. 60. v. 21. They shall also be all Righteous, &c. that I may be glorified. For it is a dishonour to him that Persons prophane and unrighteous should have communion with him, and eat at his Table. He is a glorious God, (Psal. 5. 4, 5, 6, 7.) and so hath no pleasure in Unrighteousness, neither shall evil dwell with thee, or stand before thee: But as for me, I will come into thy House, &c. For he will be sanctified or glorified (as the Septuagint renders it) in all that draw near to him, (Levit. 10. 3.) he puts an Emphasis there, specially of the Priests, Mal. 2. 1. 3. This Commandment, says he, (v. 1.) is for you oh Priests. And the Command is (v. 3.) to give Glory to God: That is, this most of all concerns or lies upon you: A King looks more especially to be honoured of his neerest Servants and Followers. The Gospel they preach is for their Glory, (1 Cor. 2.) and they therefore should be for Gods.

Obs. 2. That in Glorifying God we must give him the Glory due unto his Name, or which is some way suitable and worthy of it. God hath much Glory

God hath much Glory and Worſhip given him in the World, but it is not ſuch as becomes the Great God to have, or which is due unto his Name. In Rom. 1. 21. the Gentiles are found fault with, that they glorified not God as God. There is a reſpecting of him, a doing ſomething for him, and in relation to him, performed by many, but it is not a glorifying of him as God. The Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 6. 5. When they made Images of their puniſhments inflicted, and conſecrated them to God, they thought it a giving Glory to the God of Iſrael. But they glorified him not as that great God that made Heaven and Earth, with a Glory due unto his Name. He will be ſerved by us as a God; and if our ſervice falls ſhort of this, he rejects it. Chap. 6

1. Reaſon. For otherwiſe it ſatisfies not his Aim in his deſigns of Glory which he looks for. He would not at all have gone about a glorifying of himſelf in his Works, but to ſhew himſelf a God in them; and ſo, nor would he have exacted it as a Duty of us, to glorifie him; if he had not deſign'd that it ſhould be done to a God ſo Great, ſo Glorious: As that King ſaid to Alexander, when he asked him how he would be uſed, Βασιλικως ſays he, Like a King. So if you ask the Word of God how he will be worſhip'd, Like a God, ſays it. He ſtands upon it, and takes upon him in it, as Pſal. 46. 10. Be ſtill and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the Heathen, I will be exalted in the Earth. It is a Phraſe of one exacting reſpect, due to him in his place; as if a Maſter ſhould take on him, and ſay, Know I am your Maſter: Or as if a King ſhould exact obedience of his Subjects that ſlighted him; Know I am your King, and I will be obeyed. So ſays God it is not a little reſpect will ſatisfie a King, and it is not a little ſlight reſpect will ſatisfie God. All things muſt be carry'd to a King, ſuitably to Majeſty in Speeches, in Geſtures, &c. and all muſt be carried unto God as God. God ſtands upon it as much as any of them, He in his place, as They in theirs. Mal. 1. 6. If I be a Father, where is my Honour? If I be a Maſter, where is my Fear? They ſerved him but with the Lame, the Sick, and the Blind, (v. 8.) and thought to put him off with any thing, but how doth he confute them? Offer it now to thy Governour. (They had then no King) and yet he, tho' no King, would not accept ſuch a Preſent from you ſaies God: And will you ſerve your God with it, will he accept it? In the Original it is, If he will accept (I F) being put for (N O T) as often in the Hebrew; as, If they ſhall enter into my Reſt; That is, they ſhall not enter, and therefore v. laſt, he takes upon him and ſays, I am a great King, and my Name is dreadful among the Heathen: And therefore, I will be worſhipped accordingly, How do Kings ſtand upon points and terms of Honour, and will not lower 'em: How jealous are they to preſerve their prerogative State, &c. in its height. They are not ſo in matter of money, they will give away of that, but not abate of their Power and State, becauſe it is proper to them as Kings, it is that which conſtitutes them ſuch; and thus is the God of Glory, a jealous God, he will abate no whit there, he will be God; my Glory I will not give, (ſays he) to another Iſa. 42. 8. He cares not to give away Kingdoms, and Worlds, Heaven, his Son; but not an Iota of Glory.

2. Reaſon. Becauſe if he be not glorified as God, he is diſhonoured; if reſpect be given to a man, but not ſuch as his place requires, he thinks himſelf ſlighted; to honour a King as a Juſtice of Peace, were to diſhonour him. For Honour lies in a proportion, a ſuitableneſs, a comelineſs, as Beauty, &c. doth. And therefore in that forenamed place, (Mal. 1.) when they ſerved him thus below his worth, he ſays, they deſpiſed his Name, v. 6. and made his Table contemptible, (v. 7.)

3. Reaſon. If we glorifie not God as God, it is not Godlineſs, but Bodily Exerciſe, or Selfneſs, Natural Devotion, Hypocriſie; For Godlineſs is that which exalts God as God. Thence it hath its Name and Denomination, which applies it ſelf to God and all his Attributes, as becomes the Creature to do. That is, Godliness if it be allayed with any thing that makes Book 10 God less than a God to a mans Heart, it is debased, and is not Godliness. As in Justification, if we leave never so little to Works, it is not Faith: For then the Grace we relied on, is no more Grace (as the Apostle says:) So in Sanctification, if we bow and bend our Religion to any lower Principles than what exalt God wholly as God, it is no longer Godliness.

USE. You have heard one of the truest and exactest Tryals of your Grace and Religion. And that is, whether you glorifie God as a God. It holds universally true, That all mens Religion, and the God they serve, are proportioned the one to the other. The Religion the Word requires, sets up our God as God. And so do all they, in whose Hearts the Law is written, and who have Faith. To know God as God, is indeed revealed in his Word; (so you have it Jer. 31. 33, 34.) and the taking in of God by Faith, under the true and real Notion of him, moulds all in a man to glorifie him according as he is apprehended; and as men fall short of Honour in their apprehensions, thro' unbelief, of this God, accordingly do they fall short in that Service and Devotion they honour him with. And it is as certain that all carnal men in the World do, thro' Atheism and Unbelief, take into their Hearts a false God, or false apprehensions of the true God That he is not to them as God, and so accordingly they worship him. The Jews, who had the same revelation of God in his Word as we have, yet still, thro' Atheism, they took in such low apprehensions of him, as they mistook the way of serving him. They glorified him not as God. When Joshua (Chap. 24.) pressed them to serve the Lord and fear him, they thought with themselves that they would, and hoped to please him too, and far be it from us, (say they) to forsake him, *v.*16,17,18. But Joshua tells them, v. 19. they were mistaken in him; if you knew what a God he is, (saith he) you would see that this service you think to please him with, would not be sufficient. Ye cannot serve the Lord, for he is an holy God; and so requires to be worshipp'd not outwardly, or formally; but to be made your End, your Guide, and to have all within you subject to him, according to all his glorious Attributes and such service your carnal Hearts can never perform unto him. The like Instance you have, Psal. 50. A Formalist there, thought to serve him full well with Sacrifices, with the Blood of Bulls and Goats whereas he took liberty to live in known Sins. What was the reason? He thought God would be pleased with such a Form of Religion. It all arose from Mistakes of God, v. 21. Thou didst think (says God) that I was like Thee. His Heart, thro' Atheism, framed a God to his own frame of Spirit, one that was of his Mind, and his Religion. And as David was a man after Gods own Heart, so they make a God after their Hearts. They so temper their Thoughts of him, and his Mercy, Justice, Holiness, &c. in such a sense and interpretation as may stand with their ways and courses, and which doth indeed make him no God, or not as that God the Word sets him out. What is the reason that men living in the Church, and hearing all the Glory of the Great God set forth, yet worship this God with no more devotion in their Hearts, nor obedience in their Lives, than the Turks worship Mahomet with, and the Heathens did their Gods with? It is because they, in the interpretations their Atheism puts upon all is said of him make him but as one of their Gods. And not only they, but those who are most enlightned (if not with a saving Light) as their apprehensions of God falls short, so the Principles which they walk by (what ever they may profess) in the course of their Lives to serve this God with, fall short also: Their conceits of him and about him, are tempered so as to make him approving their ways, tho' in all the obedience they perform'd to him, they seek themselves, and make themselves their end; and so bow God to their Ends, and make a Bridge of him, and go about but to serve their Turns of him; which did they Spiritually conceive how Holy a God he is, they durst not make bold to do; but would seek Salvation from him, as aiming at him in all, and submitting themselves, their own ends and Salvation to him. Men do with God, as the Venetians do with their Duke; they set him up in all matters of State-Attendance, as a Sovereign Prince, but level his power so low, that he is no more than an ordinary Senator, for in the carriage of Affairs of State, when any thing comes to be done, they over-rule him, bow him to their suffrages, contradict his Will, and yet all the Conclusions made, go forth in his Name, as if he were a Sovereign Prince. Thus do Men give unto God all Titles of Respect, acknowledge him in all his Glorious Attributes to be as great a God as he proclaims himself in his Word; yet in the secret Senate-House of the Understanding, Will, &c. where all actions are concluded, consulted on, and published they Un-God him again, walk by such principles therein, as take all away again from him, setting up themselves in his room, making themselves their end, yea, carry things against him; and yet when any good is done, they cry still as they, Isa. 66. 5. Let God be Glorified, when yet they cast out the Saints for his Names sake, as thereit is said. Men haply will shew as much respect to God as they would do to a Man like themselves, whom they Reverence, or conceive thus or thus well of; but we are to Glorifie him as a God, as he shews himself as God, and more than Man in his Dispensations towards us; which are such as none but a God so Great, so Merciful, &c. would continue to dispence, to forbear us so as he does, as Hos. 11. 9. I will not execute the fierceness of my Wrath, for I am God, and not Man. So must we respect him as God, and not as we would a Man only endued with such perfections. Chap. 6

If we trust him, we must trust him as God, and not so far as we would a Faithful Man only, though never so honest; put our Souls Salvation, Obedience and all into his hands. For Grace is his Faithfulness. We must so submit to him as to suffer him to alter all a Mans ways and thoughts, and overturn all his Spirits in Obedience and dependance on him.

When we come for Pardon to him, seeing the greatness and Multitudes of our Sins he must think higher thoughts of Pardoning to be in him, than in a Man. My thoughts are as far above them, says God, Isa. 55. (he speaks of Pardoning) as the Heavens are above the Earth, for I will multiply to Pardon or as we read it, I am the great Pardoner.

If any Business be to be done, any Deliverance be to be wrought, let us trust his Power, beyond that of second causes, trust him as a God that can do whatever he will on the Earth and in the Sea, and not limit the Holy One, as the People of Israel did, when they said, can he provide a Table in the Wilderness to provide for so great a Multitude?

If we love him, let us love him as God; for as Christ saies, He that hates not Faiher and Mother for my sake, is not worthy of me.

If we Fear him, let us Fear him more than man, never so great or powerful; as Moses did, in whose Eyes, the Wrath of Pharaoh was but, in comparison of God, as a Rod of Straws in the hand of a Child, to a Rod of Iron in the hands of a Giant; who hath known the power of his Wrath? Says Moses, Psal. 90. As is our fear, so great is thy Displeasure, and greater. Fear not them, says Christ, that can but Kill the Body, but him that can cast Body and Soul into Hell: Who art thou, that thou shouldst be afraid of a Man that shall dye, and forgettest the Lord thy Maker, that hath stretched forth the Heaven? Isa. 51. 12.

So if we know his Holiness and Soveraignty, we would submit to him, more than to any Man; in all Afflictions, in all our dependances upon his pleasure, yea, in the matter of Salvation it self.

We should also Live to him, so as we do to no one else; turn all our causes for him, take all our Hearts and Ends in pieces, and mould them all to him.

To Conclude, this is certain, That all the principles we take up to serve God by, and which we walk by (if our Hearts be right) are such and so framed, as to set God up as God, or all is naught; we should put an estimate upon sin, by his Greatness we sin against, and should say and hold to the Conclusion which Joseph did, How shall I do this, and Book 10 sin against God? We should not slight him in the least, or think any Fear or Care herein, too much strictness for him: Nor would Men sin in Private if Men thought him Omniscient, nor would our Consciences be content with Obedience, without making God our chiefest end, if we know him in his Holiness, which makes him exact all from the Creature for himself, and justly too, seeing he is their Maker and End: Nor would Men rest in Duties of his Worship, without Communion apprehended or sought for, with him above all. If they made him their chiefest good in Worshipping him, men would Worship him only according to his own Will and Word, and not teach his fear by the principles of Men, as Mark 7. 7, 8, 9. for can Men tell what will please the great God? The Heathens thought that their Gods were to be Worshipped according to their own Prescriptions: So those that were placed in the room of the Ten Tribes, (2 Kings 17. 26.) thought that they must Worship the God of the Land after his own manner, they should not make a God of him else. So v. 27. the King of Assyria said, let them take a Priest, to go and dwell there, and teach them the manner of the God of the Land. and v. 28. he taught them how they should fear the Lord. And as for matter, so for manner; Men would Worship him in Spirit, if they knew him to be a Spirit, as Christ says, and would bring living Sacrifices, not dead formal performances if they knew him the living God. There are Three Cautions I will add, to explain my meaning in this point.

1. When I say, The Glory due to God is to be given him, the meaning is not, that which is simply due to so great a Majesty; that no Creature can give him; but such as in your condition, Creatures Sanctified, can return to him.

2. That in the Best, there is an Unregenerate part which is a very Atheist, and doth say, there is no God, but denies all of him, as Unregenerate Men do; for which, Men judging their Estates, must give allowance, yet so as there is a Regenerate whole Man in them, that sets God up as God. Thus,

3. This setting God thus up as God, is best discerned by those principles which we habitually have taken up to our selves to live by, which we will not leave but stick unto, which lye in the Heart continually drawing up the whole Man to them, moulding all according to them, and of which when we fall short through the Atheism of the Unregenerate part, we judge our selves. Now if so, then still God is then set and acknowledged as God, either when we keep to them, or when we fall short; when we pass sentence on all that pass, according to such Laws as stand in force, enacted in our Hearts.

CHAP. VII.

That one eminent Disposition immediately flowing from the New Creature, is a desire to Convert, and beget others to God.

PSAL. LVI. 13.

Then will I teach Transgressours thy ways, and Sinners shall be Converted unto thee.

IN this Psalm you have the lively workings and beatings of an Holy Heart, recovering from a great fall and lapse into gross Sins. Which is also a renewed draught, or going over again of the first work of Con-

Converſion of the Soul unto God. And you have them as lively repreſented, as if you ſhould behold an Animal, or living Beaſt, cut up and diſſected alive, and therein ſee the Circulation of the Blood, the beatings and pantings of the Heart, the motion of the Pulſe, &c. As Firſt, How deeply he humbleth himſelf for his Sin actual, v. 4. and original, v. 5. Secondly, Seeketh Pardon and Juſtification, as under the Types of the old Law it was ſignified, which David full well underſtood; Purge me with Hyſop, and I ſhall be clean; Waſh me, and I ſhall be whiter than Snow. Thirdly, You have him ſeeking the aſſurance and joy of this to his own Soul, and the ſhining of Gods Countenacne (now eclipſed) again, v. 8, 9. The Prophet, as the ſtory ſhews, had told him infallibly, that his Sin was pardoned; and he believed it, but yet that ſatisfied him not. His Spirit had been uſed to anothers Voice, even of the Spirit of God ſpeaking peace in his own Soul immediately. And I would hear God ſpeaking it, (ſays he.) The Ingenuity of his Heart could not bear, that God ſhould be ſtrange to him, though he knew his Sin was Pardoned, v. 9. Fourthly, He ſeeks both, 1. For the renewal of that inward Principle of Grace and Holineſs in the Heart, v. 10. Create in me a clean Heart, O God, and renew a right Spirit within me. 2. The continuance of the Holy Ghoſt's dwelling in him as the Fountain, and Author, and Actor of all Grace, and Giver of all Joy, v. 11. And this I obſerve, He frames not the matter of his Petition into a poſitive Requeſt, as in all the other, as Give me thy Holy Spirit; but Negative, Take not, &c. Caſt me not, &c. The cauſe of which was, 1. He had ſeen by woful experience, that God had taken his Spirit away from his Predeceſſor Saul, for ſmaller ſins, 1 Sam. 15. 23, 26. Chap. 16. 14. Chap. 18. 12. And 2. He ſhews what of all elſe would be moſt dreadful to befal him, either to be caſt forth of Gods preſence, and God and he part; or that God ſhould call back his Holy Spirit, as he had done from Saul. Chap. 7.

The reſt of the Pſalm from the 13th verſe, is moſt ſpent in Holy Reſolutions and Vows, of what he would do for the future, if God would thus reſtore and equip him again: Which to do, is the manner and duty of Sinners turning, or returning unto God.

As 1. He would teach Sinners the ways of God, in order and aim at their Converſion.

2. He makes Returns of High Praiſe, and Loud Thankſgivings and Celebrations of Gods Mercy, verſe 14, 15. Deliver me from Blood guiltineſs, O God, thou God of my Salvation, and my Tongue ſhall Sing aloud of thy Righteouſneſs. O Lord open thou my Lips, and my Mouth ſhall ſhew forth thy Praiſe.

3. He would preſent unto him what he knew would moſt of all pleaſe him, not Sacrifices, but a broken Heart, verſe 16, 71. For thou deſireſt not Sacrifice, elſe would I give it; thou delighteſt not in Burnt Offering. The Sacrifices of God are a broken Spirit, a broken and a contrite Heart, O God, thou wilt not deſpiſe. And verſe 19. with the Sacrifices of Righteouſneſs. Then cloſing up the Pſalm with the remembrance of the Church, even when himſelf was in this deep diſtreſs, ſuch as one wonld think ſhould have ſwallowed all the intentions of his Prayers for his own particular; yet he forgets not her. Do good in thy good pleaſure to Sion: Build thou the Walls of Jeruſalem.

In my Text you ſee the Firſt-born of thoſe Reſolutions, and moſt genuine Diſpoſitions that ſprings up in him, to be teaching Sinners Gods ways, in order to their Converſion.

For the Opening which, in order to what I am to make Obſervation of upon it.

1. This Redintegration of Love betwixt God and him, he in every paſſage utters in the Language, at leaſt in the Materials of a new Converſion, ſuch as the Soul hath at firſt; yet ſo expreſſed, as they carry with them ſtrong and pregnant inſinuations that the former work was not wholly extinct; nor the Spirit of God wholly taken from him, verſe 11. Recovery after great falls falls hath in it all the Tranſactions and Workings that is in a New Converſion, and is indeed the ſame Work acted over anew in a Mans Spirit. And therefore ſaies Chriſt to Peter, When thou art Converted (ſpeaking of the Recovery of him from his Relapſe) Luke 22. 32. To manifeſt this by Particulars.

1. Here is the ſame Humiliation or Conviction of Sin, enſe of, and burthen for it, (verſe 3, 4. My ſin is ever afore me.) Together with a renewed ſight and view of the Original of all natural Corruption, (verſe 5. Behold, I was ſhapen in Iniquity, and in ſin did my Mother conceive me.) And alſo of the deceits in the Heart, and Spiritual Contrarieties to Holineſs, which v. 6. he termeth truth in the inward parts, which looking into his his own Spirit he diſcerned all ſorts of Contrarities thereunto, verſe 6. Behold thou deſireſt truth in the inward parts. He ſpeaks it, as having turn'd his Eye, come new from the ſight of his own Corruption, v. 5, to the purity of God and his Spiritual Law. And Oh how oppoſite is my Heart from that ſincerity thou requireſt! Then you may obſerve alſo ſelf-emptineſs, and brokenneſs of Spirit, (which is the bottom-work of Humiliation) in diſcerning his own nothingneſs, verſe 17. which Chriſt terms, Poverty of Spirit. This for the Work of Humiliation.

2. As for the works of Faith for Juſtification; here is as freſh and vehement goings out, and longings for waſhings by Chriſts Blood, (v. 2. Waſh me throughly from mine Iniquity, and cleanſe me from my Sin. And v. 7. Purge me with Hyſop, and I ſhall be clean; waſh me, and I ſhall be whiter than Snow) as ever were in a poor Soul when it firſt lay at the Foot-ſtool of Gods Throne of Grace, imploring pardon as a condemned man to die. And here is not only begging the thing it ſelf, but the renewed aſſurance of it to his Soul, v. 8, 9. Make me to hear joy and gladneſs, that the Bones that thou haſt broken may rejoice. Hide thy Face from my Sins, and blot out all mine Iniquities. And alſo v. 12. Reſtore unto me the joy of thy Salvation, and uphold me with thy free Spirit. Which few Converts at firſt do. But David had been enured to it. Here is alſo as impetuous ſeeking after the face and preſence of God, verſe 11. Hide thy face from my Sins, verſe 9. But turn it upon me, and caſt me not out of thy preſence, verſe 11. that is, Let me ſee thy face. This for the Workings of Faith.

3. For Sanctification and Holineſs. He having ſeen the bottom-Corruption of his Nature, verſe 6. he experimentally ſeeketh for a Sanctification of his Nature of the right kind; even the contrary frame of Heart to his Natural uncleanneſs, Create in me a clean Heart, and give me Grace of the true and right kind and Breed. Renew a right Spirit within me. Truth in the inward parts, Lord. Nothing elſe would content him, not outward Sacrifices, nor Performances, as you may perceive by verſe 16. Yea, and he ſeeks this in a ſenſe of his own inability to effect it in himſelf. And ſo gives up his Heart in acknowledgment of his utter and total dependance upon Gods Grace and Power to work it, Create in me, O God: Do thou do it; for I am no more able to work it, or the leaſt degree thereof, than to Create a World. And as he prays for habitual Holineſs in his Nature, ſo for the Holy Ghoſt to abide in him, verſ. 11. to act that Grace and uphold him. Whom verſe 12. he termeth the principal Spirit, or his leading Spirit. 'Tis read either of them, by ſome, as in diſtinction from inherent Grace, which verſ. 10. he had termed Spirit. And the fruits and effects of it follows, ſeeking to turn others. This he did by opening his Mouth in Holy Conference to ſet out God's Praiſe, praying for the Saints and Church of God, and ſtudying and ſearching forth what would pleaſe God moſt, to to the end to offer it up to him. Theſe are all the diſpoſitions of Hearts truly and newly Converted, and wrought upon. And ſuch Converſions as theſe, and renewals of the whole work upon us, we muſt have in our Lives, if we go to Heaven; if not upon falls, yet upon ſome occaſions or other. Except ye be Converted, ſays Chriſt to his Diſciples, that were Converted already, ye cannot enter into the Kingdom of God. And theſe kind of Workings you have now heard of in David's Heart, may both help us to judge of our ſelves whether we have been Converted, or rightly Recovered after Relapſes,
